Since we have been in our new office above the young harness maker, we have had various kinds of callers, some pleasant ones and some not quite so pleasant. Not many days ago a gentleman stepped in with a bridle in his hand, and staring around the office as if he was mad. We thought our time had come to be bridled and rode out, but when he asked for the harness shop we kindly told him it was one story below. We hardly got over our scare when a six footer stepped in with a black-snake whip in his hand, which to us looked to be about ten feet long. Our eyes felt as big as cart-wheels, and the hair on our head was standing up straight. We would look at the man then at the whip, (getting smaller all the time). After he looked around for some time (seeing how brave we were) he asked for the saddler, then we were so overcome with joy that we only wished that we had an elevator so that we could have let him down to the first floor. After recovering from our last scare in popped another with a set of harness. We drew a long breath, scratched our head and imagined all kinds of things, finally thinking it would be a curiosity to see an editor in harness, we raised courage enough to ask if there was anything we could do for him? when he replied, "excuse me I have got into the wrong place". We showed him the harness shop and were only too glad that that was the place he was looking for.

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Constance.

Mrs Eva Anderson is very sick......Thos Hicks has cholera infantum,... .Sam Loder is on the sick list......We beg to be excused for not announcing the arrival of J. T. Haley and wife, of Washington, in our last.

Waterloo.

Corn is growing nicely, some will be layed by this week.

Potatoes never promised better for a full crop.

Oats look well. Meadows are fine and are ready for the scythe.

Mr. Jasper Sullivan's new residence will soon be completed.

Mr. Deck Clore and wife, Misses Nora Clore and Anna Wright are visiting friends in Carroll county.

Hebron.

Rev. Grough, of Ohio, will preach Mrs. Anderson's funeral next Sunday. He will also preach on the mode of baptism.

Mrs. W. C. C. Rouse is very ill at this writing.

Mrs. Susan McPherson has returned from visit to Falmouth.

Mr. Clayton has a hen that layed 18 eggs in four days.

Henry Aylor's bees have made four barrels of honey this season.

John Crigler is having a fine barn built.

The Hebron Sunday-school books are now ready for the scholars.

Misses Laura Hicks and Lina Snyder are visiting in Ludlow.

Scattersville.

Give us ice and palm-leaf fans.

Wheat harvest about all done.

The blackberry crop promises to be fine.

Lewis Conner was down one day last week, in search of fruit which is very scarce in this locality.

Miss Ora and Irba Conner, of Cincinnati, and Miss Lula Conner, of Burlington, were visiting at O. P. Conners, last week.

Some of our farmers spent their fourth in the harvest field, while other took their horses to Burlington to have them shod.

J. O. Huey talks of picking up a base-ball nine to beat Burlington. How do you like that Watt?

Beaver Lick.

Quite a number of the voters of both the Hamilton and Beaver Lick precincts have requested me to employ this means of calling, on Mr. Nathan Walton and Dr. Scott, our candidates for representative, to announce in the RECORDER a meeting at Big Bone Springs, for the purpose of discussing the local issues of the day. Many of the voters here are not acquainted with the candidates, and are desirous of listening to them in order to select a man to represent us. Gentlemen, set a day and come. We will do our finest to make it pleasant for you.

Our farmers are busy making hay while the sun shines. Tobacco looks well, and there is quite a large acreage of it in this locality. Corn is not thought to be growing as it should.

A nice game of base ball was played by the Brilliants and the Dewdrops, on the former's grounds at Big Bone on the 4th. A large number of spectators witnessed the finly contested game. The Dewdrops added another feather to their cap, winning by one run. That night a grand hop was given at the residence of Henry Stevenson Everything went well till the "wee sma' hours," when the youngsters disbanded for their envied couch to catch a bit of "tired nature's sweet restorer, sleep, balmy sleep."

Bellevue.

Considerable improvement has been made in our neighborhood thus far this season, and if we are to judge anything by what we hear, considerable will yet be done Mr. Jas. Roger's house is nearly completed. Mr. A. Carbin has just finished remodeling and repairing his residence, which adds very much to its appearance. The Christian church is nearly ready for service. It adds very much to the appearance of the east end of town.

In taking a run through the neighborhood, we observed that S. D. Rice has the finest piece of wheat; M. Clore the finest corn; R. A. Brady, the finest clover; Sam Wingate, the finest rye; I. Flick, the finest tobacco; Judge Clore, the finest bees; Bill Corbin, the finest melons, and everybody the finest potatoes.

Several of our farmers have been cutting their wheat, which promises a fair crop. Oats and rye are a good crop. Corn irregular and backward, but growing rapidly. [illegible] ...lure. Some small fruit and a fine crop of berries. Grass is splendid.

Madam rumor has it that several of our young folks are to change their way of living soon, and henceforth to live as one. Such being the case, we admonish ye quill-driver at the seat of justice, to be ready.

Our dealers are engaged, at present, in laying in their stock of lumber and coal They are now yarding about 25,000 bu. of coal and nearly 350,000 ft. of lumber.

We are sorry to say that our old friend J. E. Botts is again quite poorly......Mr. B. F. Garnett is able to take an occasional walk out......Mrs. M. E. Berkshire is quite poorly.

Plattsburg

Meadows are fine.

Squirrels are plentiful.

Ben Hensley has the finest piece of corn in the Woolper valley.

Several days, last week, the mercury stood at 90° in the shade at Senator Tolin's residence.

J. W. Smith, who was kicked by his horse, several weeks ago, is not able to be out yet. It was a narrow escape.

A spirit of improvement has struck our town again. Sid Gaines has whitewashed the store.

You hardly ever see a man pass the road but what he has some part of the running gear for a bee-gum.

If this awfully, awful hot weather continues, we will have one of those Missouri "sly coons."

Ben Stephens and Tom Watts, two of Bullittsville's clever young men, took a pleasant trip over our beautiful roads, last Sunday.

The gravel on the Woolper pike is nearly all washed off, and it will take more money to repair the road now than it will to build the two bridges.

John Allen has built him a nice little residence on the hill over looking the west end of town.

The ground that Barboursville this State stands on, belongs to one our citizens, Mr. William Hensley, sr., who, several years ago, brought suit for the recovery of the property, and was successful in the lower court; but the town authorities have taken it to a higher court, and it still remains unsettled.

Among the visitors spending the heated term in our town, are Mr. Ben Johnson and family, of Kansas City, Mo., Rev. Jno. E. Squires, of Bedford, Mo., and Mr. and Mrs. Egbert Nichols, of Ludlow, Ky.

Miss Sallie Carpenter, of Gallatin county, was visiting Miss Lena Smith week before last.

Having passed through nearly all the counties comprising the blue grass region of Kentucky, in the last few weeks, we find that the corn crop looks better in Boone and clearer of weeds than any county we passed through.

As Bro. Froh has thrown up his commission as preacher for the Ashby Fork congregation, they have sent for Old Bro. Bristow, and will have their annual basket meeting the fourth Sunday in August.

A number of voters in this vicinity would like to know how our candidates for representative stand for U. S. Senator.

The Comets, a base-ball club of this place will play the North Bend, Ohio, club next Sunday evening.

Francesville.

The glorious 4th of July, the great National Sabbath, passed off very quietly here, considering the excitement generally indulged in on such occasions. The small boys commemorated the day with fire crackers and toy pistols, while the older heads displayed their patriotism in congregating in groups of one and two in a place and discussed the topics of the day, while some rehearsed incidents of the revolution, such as the hanging of old John Brown, Washington crossing the Alps, and all such incidents as the speaker was familiar with. The whole was to have been concluded with fire works and a grand illumination of the town at night, but from some unknown cause the gas was not inflamable, and we were left in the dark. Fortunately we have no accidents to report.

Francesville has a lumber yard of its own to boast of now, a very valuable addition indeed. Parties desiring shingles would do well to call at No. 3, Sunflower street nearly opposite Dog-fennel Alley, and examine the stock before purchasing elsewhere.

As yet there seems to be but little excitement over the coming election here. We will take the liberty of suggesting in behalf of the citizens of this place that a majority of us will support either of the Hon. Candidates that will come out and say he will have a special act passed taxing the people of Boone county for the purpose of defraying the expenses of putting down side walks in Francesville, or we will support both of them if they favor this improvement.

Billy Hays is the business man of our town. He has built a slaughter house, has a butcher employed from Aurora, and is killing two beeves a week, which he finds no trouble in peddling out. He is quite extensively engaged in farming, and besides all this he is trading considerably in horses especially blooded brood mares. We think Billy is taxing his brain too much.

John R. Smith's mammoth barn is fast nearing completion. Henderson & Beall are the builders.

Mr. Scothorn is having the foundation rebuilt on the site where his house stood that burned a year ago. He will build his house in a short time.

Wheat and hay harvest are in order now. The wheat is generally harvested, the crop being small, though in quality we are informed better than last year. The oat and hay crop was never better than now. If the farmers have good luck in saving them, feed for stock will be plenty the coming year.

We had the pleasure of entertaining a brother last Sunday that we had not met in sixteen years.

The health of the neighborhood is remarkably good, considering the green apples and mulberries there are in market.

We are authentically informed that quite a remarkable accident occurred to Mr. Miller, living on Mr. Webb's farm, near this place. Last spring Mr M, cleaned up a piece of new land and planted it in potatoes, (the kind known as the mammoth pearl). One day last week he began digging them when to his surprise, on opening a hill, one broke loose from its fastening and rolled down, knocking him down, breaking one of his legs and otherwise injuring him. The potatoe finally lodged against a tree or it might have done greater damage. Mr M. in order to get it into a merchantable shape, had his men to get a cross-cut saw and rip it up, and on taking it to the Taylorport Saturday afternoon market, he realized $13 20 for the one potato. We would recommend these potatoes to those only, who have bottom land to grow them on, as there is too much danger attached in growing them on these prairies on end.

Mr. Allen Wainscott and wife, of Jessamine county, were visiting his father and mother at this place, last week......Edward Miller, of Dry Ridge, Ohio, was visiting friends here last week......Mrs. Batterson and Mrs. Graham have returned from Fla

Petersburg.

The distillery will shut down for repairs this week, and will not start up until September.

S. G. Botts has taken four barrels of honey from his bees this season.

The coopers are all on a loaf, as the shops are closed.

Mr. Chapin is going to build a business house on the corner next to the post-office, the stone for the foundation has been hauled.

O. T. Porter is on the sick list......Labin Lodge, of Indianapolis, was visiting friends here last week......Miss Sallie McWethy is visiting friends in Indiana ..... Miss Lizzie Gray, of Milford, Ohio, was visiting Mrs. Terrill, Saturday and Sunday......Mrs. Davis and daughter, Mrs. Keene, of Lexington, were visiting Morgan Davis, last week......Mrs. Harvey McNeely, of New Orleans, is the guest of Mrs. McNeely of this place...... Capt. N. B. McNeely, of Memphis, is here on a visit for his health......Mrs. Genia Coyl and family, of Pittsburg, Pa. are here on a visit....Alonzo Green spent the 3d and 4th inst., in Cincinnati.

Normansville.

Wm. Rust, a gay Lothario of seventy-three years, accompanied by Mrs. Anna Glore, a charming young widow of twenty odd summers, took a skiff on the 3d inst., at Hamilton, and sailed up the Ohio to Rising Sun, where they were united in the holy bonds of wedlock, after which they returned, looking as happy as a couple of sixteen. May they never have cause to seem otherwise.

No damage reported, as yet, to the various crops. Wheat and rye about all havested; though thin on the ground the grain is good, and the yield will be much better than was expected. Corn and tobacco doing well.

Mr. Fritz Feithau's son, Henry, was thrown from a horse last Thursday, and had an arm broken.

The fourth was passed very quietly in our little town, most of the citizens spending it elsewhere. J. W. Kennedy and Willie Carson, spent the day at Aurora. They did not see much, but they heard a great deal about what others saw, which afforded them great pleasure

A party of eleven chartered a boat to take them to Madison, but through some oversight, no eatables were provided, but it was no fault of the boat as boats do not furnish provisions when chartered.

Ed Krutz spent the day at home.

The latest—Permitting weather.

REPORT OF HE CONDITION

OF THE

Farmers & Traders National Bank AT COVINGTON,

In the State of Kentucky, at the close of business, June 22 1883.

RESOURCES.
Loans and discounts		$596,257 38
Overdrafts............ ..		187 20
U. S. Bonds to secure circulation		50,000 00
Due from approved reserve agents.........		56,025 45
Due from other National banks.......... .	5,440 88
Due from State banks and bankers............	1,607 76	7,048 64
Real estate, furniture and fixtures		4,668 91
Current expenses and taxes paid............		3,846 08
Premiums paid............		9,000 00
Checks and other cash items...		92 85
Bills of other Banks..		940 00
Fractional paper currency, nickels and pennies......................		47 81
Specie		2 965 00
Legal tender notes...		20,000 00
Redemption fund with U. S. Treasurer (5 per cent of circulation)......		2,250 00
Total		$753,279 32
LIABILITIES.
Capital stock paid in		$300,000 00
Surplus fund..........	1,200 00
Undivided profits...	26,730 65	27,930 65
National bank notes outstanding........		45,000 00
Individual deposits subject to check.....	342,731 38
Due to other National Banks............	23,809 31
Due to State Banks and bankers	13,807 98	380,348 67
Total		$753,279 32

State of Kentucky, County of Kenton, ss: I, John L. Sandford, Cashier of the above-named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

J. L. SANDFORD, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 22d day of June, 1883. GEO. H. DAVISON, Notary Public.

Correct—Attest:
E. J. HICKEY,
M. C. MOTCH,
J. H. MERSMAN, } Directors.

J. W. KIRKPATRICK & SON,
—BURLINGTON, KY,—
UMDERTAKERS
—AND—
EMBALMERS,
Will furnish nice Hearse any reasonable distance for $10.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office over Dudley Rouse's Store.

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence,
Burlington, - - Ky.

L. C. NORMAN. H. J. STEPHENS.
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

S. W. TOLIN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. Aprompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.
Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prcp'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.
N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky. | J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.
DIRECTORS.
LEGRAN GAINES, Jeff Utz,
JNO. M. MOODY.

DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS.
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
SALT BY THE BARREL.
R O U S E.
BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS.
The Best of Flour
PATENT & HIGH GRADE
Always on Hand, and cheaper than the cheapest.
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE.
A fresh Stock of Garden Seed at
DUDLEY ROUSE'S.

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEEL,
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE.
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.
Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire,
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.
All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE
Petersburg Drug Store,
Where you can find everything in the Drug line, such as——.
Well call and see and be convinced.
Respectfully, S. C BUCHANAN.

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S
Indian Blood Syrup
Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the
BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.
TRADE MARK.
Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.
AGENTS WANTED.
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St, New York City. Druggists sell it
D. CLARK JOHNSON:— This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. MCCAMC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '183

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300,000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK.
Covington, Kentucky.
DIRECTORS.
James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green,
J. S. Matson, J. H. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H Dills, F. P. Helm,
L. C. Stephens.
The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.
The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank. dec. 20-6m

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar7-tf23
J. W. Talbott.

UNDERTAKING.

We keep Constantly on Hand all sizes of
Burial Cases and Caskets.
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES GUARANTEED LESS THAN CITY PRICES.
DAVIS BROS., - - HEBRON, KY.

KENTUCKY MILITARY INSTITUTE
At Farmdale, P. O., Franklin Co., Ky., six miles from Frankfort. [illegible] Sept. 3. For Catalogues, etc., address as above COL. R. D. ALLEN, Supt.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL, Publishers.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY

The Colors of Lakes and Rivers.

What is the color of pure water? Almost any person who has no special knowledge of the subject will reply at once "It has no color." Yet everybody knows, either through hearsay or by the evidence of his own eyes, that the ocean is blue. Why the ocean looks blue is a question that few who have crossed it have ever sought to solve, and there are, probably, many travelers who, though they have seen most of the famous rivers and lakes in the world, have failed to notice the remarkable differences in color which their waters present. Even the ocean is not uniform in color; in some places its waters are green, or even yellowish. Some lakes are distinctly blue; others present various shades of green, so that in some cases they are hardly distinguishable from their level, grass-covered banks; a few are almost black. The Lake of Geneva is azure hued, the Lake of Constance and the Lake of Lucerne are green; the color of the Mediterranean has been called indigo. The lake of Brienz is greenish yellow, and its neighbor, Lake Taun, is blue. New York has both green and blue lakes. The colors of rivers differ yet more widely. The Rhone is blue and so is the Danube, while the Rhine is green. Anybody who has traversed the wonderful Adirondack region and fished in its waters must have noticed the remarkable differences in the color of its rivers and smaller streams which radiate in every direction from the central group of mountains. The waters of the Sacondaga are yellowish, while those of the Canada creeks and of the Mohawk are clear with perhaps a bluish tint in deep pools. Fish Creek is black or deep brown, and its neighbor, Salmon River, is colorless. Next comes the Black River, whose color is indicated by its name, and between it and the Grasse, which is also black or brown, is the Oswegatchie with clear white waters. The St. Regis, again, is black, but the Raquette is white. The St. Lawrence is blue. These various hues are not caused by mud or any opaque sediment, such as that which makes the Mississippi coffee-colored, but belong to the waters, like the golden color of tea, without greatly impairing their transparency.

The cause of the difference in color of lakes and rivers has engaged the attention of many celebrated investigators of nature, such as Tyndall, Bunsen, Arago, Sainte-Claire Deville and others. Recently Prof. Spring, of the University of Liege, has carefully investigated the question of the color of water, and has reached some interesting conclusions. According to him, absolutely pure water, when seen in masses of sufficient thickness, is blue, and all the varieties of color exhibited in lakes and streams arise from the presence in the water of mineral salts of different degrees of solubility and in varying quantities. Water containing carbonate of lime in a state of almost complete solution remains blue, but if the solution is less complete the water will have a tinge of green which will grow stronger as the point of precipitation is approached. Prof. Spring concludes that if lime is added to blue water, in which so much carbonate of lime is already dissolved that the point of saturation is approached, the water will become green. In proof of this he cites the fact that water near the shores of lakes and seas, where it comes in contact with limestone, is generally of a greener hue than elsewhere.—N. Y. Sun.

Senecharib Sykes.

"Wall, why don't you eat your vittles?" inquired Mr. Senecharib Sykes, glaring at his eldest son, Oliver, at the breakfast table. "Are you sick, sweenied, or financially busted?"

"Oliver is by no means well," suggested Mrs. Sykes, "and I have no doubt but that a change of scene in another climate would be beneficial to him."

"What's the matter with you?" inquired Senecharib.

"I don't know exactly," answered Oliver. "I reckon it's some kind of general debility. I should like to go to some watering place."

"Go to some watering place!" whistled Senacharib, dropping a potato from his fork and shoveling a spoonful of salt into his coffee. "Weel, why don't yer go out to the horse-trough? I suppose yer want to take in Long Branch, don't yer? Want to blow in a couple of thousand dollars, or two hundred head of steers? I've got my opinion of these dished-up watering places. You'd like to go to Hot Springs, wouldn't yer, and mash some widder woman with her face calcimined, and the six children by her first husband in the background where yer never see 'em. Such creatures are always on the lookout for idiotic invalids with wealth. They are thicker than red ants at a picnic. Want to go to Newport, and be snobbed by the aristoc, don't yer? Want to go up to Waukesha, Wisconsin, and drink stagnant pond water flavored with carbonic acid gas? Want to go to Long Branch and rent General Grant's cottage, built with a small kitchen, nineteen smoking rooms, and a dozen dog kennels, don't yer? Think some of going to Saratoga, and get yourself steered on to a bunko game? Want to go to Rye Beach, and suck rye whiskey cocktails through a rye straw while the little German band plays 'Coming Thro' the Rye?'

"Yes sir, I've got my opinion of all these watering places, and it's a low one. You can't steal a side glance at the porter without paying him a dollar, and if you stub your toe its two and a half. They will sell you a cigar for six bits and charge you ten cents for a match. You can't move around on the gallery without fetching away the back breadths of a lady's dress, and you can't saunter into the bar-room without rubbing against a saucer-eyed dude. The butter is made in an iron kettle with a fire under it instead of a churn, and the spring chicken is as springy as an Injy rubber teething ring. My advice is to stay away from all such watering places, and, if you must recuperate your shattered constitution, why pack yer grip sack, pike for the banks of Newfoundland, and put a coating of hard-boiled corns on the palms of your hands hauling in mackerel and codfishes. That's me, that's your old dad, Senecharib, and he's got the Texas steers to pay the expenses."—Texas Siftings.

—A Scotchman employed to build in London used steam cranes to hoist the bricks up to the required height, and, as the English workmen refused to have anything to do with a job where steam supplanted men, workmen had to be brought from Edinburgh to finish the hotel.

The Public Printer.

Very few of the great mass of humanity know who makes the beautiful public document with its plain, black binding and its wealth of statistics. Few stop to think that hidden away from the great work-a-day world, with eyelids heavy and red, and with fingernails black with antimony, toiling on at his case hour after hour, the Public Printer during the sessions of Congress is setting up the thrilling chapters of the Congressional Record, and between times yanking the Washington press backward and forward with his suspenders hanging down, as he prints this beautiful seaside library of song.

We are too prone to read that which gives us pleasure without thought of the labor necessary to its creation. We glide gaily through the Congressional Record, pleased with its more attractive features, viz: its ayes and noes—little recking that Sterling P. Rounds, the Public Printer, stands in the subdued gaslight with his stick half full, trying to decipher the manuscript of some reticent Representative whose speech was yesterday delivered to the janitor as he polished the porcelain cuspidore of Congress.

This is a day and age of the world when men take that which comes to them and do not stop to investigate the pain and toil it costs. They never inquire into the mystery of manufacture or try to learn the details of its construction. Most of our libraries are replete with books which we have received at the hands of a generous Government, and yet we treat those volumes with scorn and contumely. We jeer at the footsore bugologist who has chased the large, green worm from tree to tree, in order that we may be wise. We speak sneeringly of the man who stuffs the woodtick and paints the gaudy wings of the squash bug that we may know how often she orates.

Year after year the entomologist treads the same weary road with his bait box tied to his waist, wooing to his laboratory the army worm and the sheep scab larvæ in order that we, poor particles on the surface of the great earth, may know how these minute creatures rise, flourish and decay.

Then the Public Printer throws in his case, rubs his finger and thumb over a lump of alum, takes a chew of tobacco and puts in type these words of wisdom from the lips of gray-bearded savants, that knowledge may be scattered over the broad Republic. Patiently he goes on with the click of type, anon in an absorbed way, while we, gay, thoughtless mortals wear out the long summer day at a basket picnic, with deft fingers selecting the large red ant from our cold ham.

Thus these books are made which come to us wrapped in manilla and franked by the man we voted for last fall. Beautiful lithographs, illustrating the different stages of hog cholera, deck their pages. Rich oil paintings of gaudy tobacco worms chase each other from preface to errata. Magnificent chromos of the foot and mouth disease appeal to us from page after page and statistics boil out between them, showing what per cent. of invalid or convalescent animals was sent abroad and what per cent. was worked into oleomargarine and pressed corn beef.

And what becomes of all this wealth of information—this mammoth aggregation of costly knowledge?

Cast ruthlessly away by a trifling, shallow, frivolous and freckle-minded race!

It is no more than right that Sterling P. Rounds should know this. How it will gall his proud heart to know that his beautiful books and his chatty and spicy Congressional Record are treated by a jeering, heartless throng! Do you suppose that I would perspire over doubtful copy night after night and then tread a job-printing press all the next day printing books at which the bloodless, soulless public sneered and the broad-browed talent of a cruel generation spit upon? Not exactly.

I have a moderate amount of patience and self-control, but I am free to say right here before the world that if I had been in Mr. Rounds' place, and had at great cost erected a scientific work upon "The Rise and Fall of Betts in America," and a flippant nation of scoffers had utilized that volume to press autumn leaves and scraggy ferns in, I would rise in my proud might and mash the forms with a mallet. I would jerk the lever of the Washington press into the middle of the effulgent hence. I would kick over my case, wipe the roller on the frescoed walls, and feed my statistics to the hungry flames.

No publisher has ever been treated more shabbily, no compositor has, in the history of literature, been more rudely disregarded and derided.

Think of this, dear reader, when you look carelessly over the brief but wonderful career of the hop louse, or with apparent ennui dawdle through the treatise on colic among silk-worms and facial neuralgia among fowls.

This will not only please Mr. Rounds, the young and struggling compositor, but it will gratify and encourage all the friends of American progress and the lovers of learning throughout our whole land.—Bill Nye, in Detroit Free Press.

Health in Town and Country.

No opinion is more prevalent than that life in the country is more conducive to health and longevity than life in the city. This statement is generally received as an axiom. Painters, poets and novelists have all given their testimony in favor of life in the country as promotive of health and length of days. Their brilliant imaginations have pictured all the girls in the country with rosy faces, while those in the city have pale and sorrowful countenances. Country women at sixty are described as fair and robust, while those that attain that age in towns are represented as invalids. The hale old grandfathers who work and enjoy life at ninety are always found in and about farm-houses. Country children are invariably represented as "perfect pictures of health" and contentment. They are pictured as bees and birds are, constantly moving from flower to flower. City children, on the contrary, like the good little boys and girls whose lives are given in Sunday-school books, generally die very young. In the opinion of fanciful writers they are poisoned by breathing vitiated air, drinking skim-milk diluted with lake or river water and eating bakers' bread and tainted fruit and vegetables. To read the writings and listen to the talk of some people one would suppose that deaths never occur in the country except as the result of old age, mowing-machine accidents, the bites of rattlesnakes, or discharges of lightning. Sickly and debilitated city people who desire to secure "a lease of life are often advised to move on a farm, or at least to spend the summer months in the country, where they can breathe air purified by pine boughs and perfumed by clover blossoms, drink the water that gushes from a spring or is raised from a deep well by means of an 'old oaken bucket'" attached to a long sweep, and eat fresh fruits and vegetables. That many people who have become enfeebled by long confinement and close application to business in a city derive great benefit by passing some time in leisure in the country is altogether likely. That many farmers and many more farmers' wives would derive a still greater benefit by passing a considerable time in some great city is equally probable. Rest and change are what are wanted in either case. That the average country place is more conducive to health than the average city is questionable. The American Engineer has this to say on the comparative healthfulness of the country and city:

As the summer season approaches the prevailing idea that cities, according to size, are unhealthy, or the larger the city and the more densely populated it the more unhealthy it will prove, is again brought to our attention. The fresh air of the country, the salubrity of certain locations, the advantages of sea air and ocean breezes, are all enumerated as absolutely necessary if we, the city inhabitants, would live. We are advised, or coaxed, as the case may be, to seek the quiet of a country town, village or place; we are recommended to visit this or that watering place, this one because of the salt air, that one because of the high mountain location. But if we examine the records we find that, as a matter of fact, the death rate is much lower in crowded cities than in the more thinly-populated suburbs of the average country town. The environs of most of our large cities are harassed by malarial fevers and the like, from which the older portions and more densely-populated localities of the cities are comparatively free. The demand for quinine in the new districts, where streets and roads are being upturned by the progress of improvement, or in the country where the fields and farms are constantly being plowed into, or where the swampy growth of non-inhabitation exists in all these localities it will surely prevail to a profitable extent for the doctor or druggist. The city fashionable or the merchant townsman betakes himself and family off to the country, brimful of visions of healthy invigorations for winter follies, and is sadly disappointed to find that as he gets settled in this or that country place his own vigor and that of his family have perceptibly decreased instead of being improved or enhanced; all were in much better health and spirits while in town. He is informed, however, by the country doctor that his trouble is only a reaction of his city excesses, whether of business or pleasure, and that as he stays longer the more his family will improve.

It is the same bone of contention. While our city doctors, sanitarians and health boards are contending over a dense population and sanitary improvements, street cleaning and unhealthy gases from the waste and soil pipes, the country physician is racking his brain over a cure for malaria, where health should presumably be the leading feature, and the necessity for medicine at a minimum. It is a fact, confirmed by statistics of the most reliable character, that throughout the world the populous towns or cities, or the more densely populated portions of the same, are much more healthy than are the suburbs or the thinly populated portions. Numerous cities might be mentioned to confirm this, London, Rome, New York, being of the leading instances. Dr. Parkin, a well-known authority on such subjects, comes out most emphatic in this matter, and claims that "density of population—within certain well-defined limits, those in which the oxygen of the atmosphere is in its normal or nearly normal condition—instead of being injurious during the prevalence of endemic and epidemic diseases, is actually beneficial." While this is true in the main, it is naturally attributable to the watchfulness of the authorities as well as the easy access to physicians in time of need. The several causes of the endemic or epidemic diseases are more accessible and more easily reached in the populous regions than in the less crowded portions of the cities or in the more thinly inhabited portions of the country, where the extent is vast as compared to the population. Even the popular uncleanliness and offensive odors arising therefrom can not, according to Dr. Parkin, offset the general advantages of a massing of the population.—Chicago Times.

Nash, the Prince of Gamblers.

He drove about in a chariot flaming with heraldry, and drawn by six grays, with outriders, running footmen, and all the appendages which made an impression on the vulgar minds of the visitors of his kingdom. His dress was magnificent; his hat alone was always of the same color—white; and as the Emperor Alexander was distinguished by his purple tunic, and Brummel by his bow, Emperor Nash was known all over England by his white hat. It is due to the King of Bath to say that, however much he gamed, he always played fair. He even patronized young players, and after fleecing them, kindly advised them to play no more. When he found a man fixed upon ruining himself he did his best to keep him from that suicidal act. This was the case with a young Oxonian, to whom he had lost money, and whom he invited to supper, in order to give him his parental advice. The fool would not take the Beau's counsel, and "came to grief." Even noblemen sought his "protection." The Duke of Beaufort entered into a compact with him to save his purse, if not his soul. He agreed to pay Nash 10,000 guineas whenever he lost the same amount at a sitting. It was a comfortable treaty for our Beau, who accordingly watched his Grace. Yet it must be said, to Nash's honor, that he once saved him from losing 11,000, when he had already lost 8,000, by reminding him of his compact. Such was the play in those days. It is said that the Duke had afterward to pay the fine from losing the stipulated sum at Newmarket. He displayed as much honesty with the young Lord Townshend, who lost to him his whole fortune, his estate, and even his carriage and horses—what madmen are gamblers!—and actually canceled the whole debt on condition my Lord should pay him £5,000 whenever he chose to claim it. To Nash's honor it must be said that he never came down upon the nobleman during his life. He claimed the sum from his executors, who paid it.—London Times.

—When Dickens was in Louisville he saw pigs on the streets, and, in honor of Mr. Dickens, pigs have ever since been allowed to run in Louisville. "But what had Dickens's pen to do with pigs?" asks the Louisville Courier-Journal.

—The members of the Massachusetts Medical Society were asked "Do you favor the admission of women to the society on the same terms with men?" and 709 said yes, 400 no, and twenty-three were indifferent.—Boston Herald.

Tale of a Crab and a Horse.

A Celtic fishmonger stopped his wagon in front of a house in West Twenty-sixth street yesterday afternoon. He jumped from his seat, took two bass from the rear of the wagon, and entered the basement door of the house. An aged darkey shortly afterward drove a hungry-looking horse, attached to a recollection of vehicular ruins, behind the fishmonger's wagon. He thrust his hands into the ruins, brought forth two boxes of strawberries, and carried them into the house adjoining the one that the fishmonger had entered.

In the rear of the fishmonger's wagon was a box of crabs covered with sea grass. The darky's weird and hollowed-eyed horse gazed upon the sea grass longingly. Then he sniffed it. Suddenly he plunged his nose into the box and got a large mouthful of grass, which he started to munch greedily. He stirred up a combative crab, which fastened itself on one of his nostrils. He jerked his head out of the box, emitted a wild neigh, and begin to plunge and kick with great enthusiasm. The fishmonger and the darky appeared simultaneously. The fishmonger [illegible] convulsed at the antics of the darky's steed. The darky was evidently displeased.

"Take dat crab offen my hoss's nose," he shouted.

"Take it off yourselluf," said the fishmonger.

"I'll smash de crab wif dis hyar stick," yelled the darky, as he picked up a piece of wood that his frightened horse had kicked off the seat of his wagon.

"Lave the crab alone," said the fishmonger. "Phat business had your horse ating my grass?"

At this critical stage of the dialogue the crab dropped from the horse's nose, and the fishmonger picked it up and tossed it into his wagon. The darky and the fishmonger then drove away.—N. Y. Sun.

—The poet Bowles was in the habit of daily riding through a country turnpike gate, and one day he presented as usual his twopence to the gate-keeper. "What is that for, sir?" he asked. "For my horse, of course!" "But, sir, you have no horse." "Dear me!" exclaimed the astonished poet, "am I walking?" Mrs. Moore told me that anecdote. She also told me that Bowles on one occasion gave her a Bible as a birthday present. She asked him to write her name in it. He did so, inscribing the sacred volume to her as a gift "From the Author."—Retrospect of a Long Life—S. C. Hall.

—In this age of adulterations even comparatively primitive Spain has not escaped. One Spanish magistrate, at least, has hit upon a highly original mode of dealing with them. A French paper quotes the proclamation of a certain Alcade whom Dogberry himself might envy: "All articles," runs this precious document, "in the shape of wines, groceries and provisions, which upon examination and analysis are proved to be injurious to health, will be confiscated forthwith, and distributed to the different charitable institutions."—St. James' Gazette.

—According to a return issued the other day at Berlin, 218 persons were condemned in Germany to decapitation between 1864 and 1868, of whom only twenty-six were executed. Between 1868 and 1878 no fewer than 428 were condemned, but in no case was the sentence carried out. In 1878 Hodel was executed for his attempt on the Emperor. In 1879 and 1880 there were no executions, and since 1881 there have been only three.

—An English critic thinks that the Hebrews have an inherited appetite for music, because the chosen people praised the Deity with musical instruments. This was Disraeli's opinion.

To Consumptives.

Reader, can you believe that the Creator afflicts one-third of mankind with a disease for which there is no remedy? Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" has cured hundreds of cases of consumption, and men are living to-day—healthy, robust men—whom physicians pronounced incurable, because one lung was almost gone. Send two stamps for Dr. Pierce's pamphlet on Consumption and kindred Affections. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

The proper way to warm the house is to keep the cellar coaled.

Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" is the debilitated woman's best restorative tonic.

The man who knows the most is not an owing man.

Young or middle aged men suffering from nervous debility, loss of memory, premature old age, as the result of bad habits, should send three stamps for Part VII of Dime Series pamphlets. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

"Why does a kiss raise the spirits?" "Because it's the cream of ta-ta."

Medical Skill Baffled.

T. C. Coyle, of Clarksburg, W. Va., writes: I am quite familiar with Scovill's Sarsaparilla and Stillingia, or Blood and Liver Syrup, having used it for the past fifteen years as an alterative medicine, and can safely say that it is superior to any with which I am acquainted now in the market for the cure and control of those diseases of the blood that have baffled the skill of the masters of the medical profession.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, July 6, 1883.

LIVE STOCK—Cattle—common	$2 25	@ 3 50
Choice butchers	4 70	@ 5 40
HOGS—Common	5 00	@ 5 70
Good packers	5 75	@ 6 10
SHEEP	4 00	@ 4 75
FLOUR—Family	5 25	@ 5 75
GRAIN—Wheat—Long berry red	1 06	@
No. 2 winter red	1 02	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	51¾	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed	35	@
Rye—No. 2	54	@ 55
HAY—Timothy No. 1	10 00	@10 50
HEMP—Double dressed	8	@ 9
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	17 00	@17 50
Lard—Steam	9¼	@
BUTTER—Western Reserve	30	@ 32
Prime Creamery	25	@ 28
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per bar. from store	2 15	@ 2 50
Apples, prime, per barrel	4 00	@ 4 50
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 40	@ 4 00
Good to choice	4 50	@ 6 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 17	@ 1 18
No. 1 white	1 07	@ 1 08
Corn—No. 2 mixed	59	@ 59½
Oats—mixed	38	@ 42
PORK—Mess	18 62½	@18 75
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@ 4 25
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 07	@ 1 07¾
Corn—No. 2	48½	@
Oats—No. 2	25½	@
Rye	55	@
PORK—Mess	16 25	@16 30
LARD—Steam	9 32½	@
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 25	@ 6 25
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 winter red	1 13¼	@ 1 13½
Corn—mixed	58½	@ 58¾
Oats—mixed	40	@ 42
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	20 00	@20 25
Lard—Refined	12½	@
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—A No. 1	4 50	@ 4 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 02	@ 1 03
Corn—mixed	52	@
Oats—mixed	38	@
PORK—Mess	18 00	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 red	$1 02	@
CORN	49	@
OATS—mixed	30	@
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	2 75	@ 4 50
Shipping cattle	5 25	@ 6 50

Hay-Fever. Having been afflicted with Hay-Fever for years I gave Ely's Cream Balm a trial. I have had no attack since using it. E. R. Rauch, Editor Carbon Co. Democrat, Mauch Chunk, Pa. Price 50c.

Old puns are not poetical, and yet they've all been metaphor.—Philadelphia News.

Elkton, Ky.—Dr. E. B. Weathers says: "I regard Brown's Iron Bitters as a medicine of unusual worth."

A "Ladies' Shoemaker" advertises himself as one of the luminaries of "the Sole her System."—Glasgow Evening Times.

Wolfesville, N. C.—Dr. I. C. McLaughlin says: "I used Brown's Iron Bitters for vertigo and I now feel like a new man."

When does a budding young damsel burst into fruit? When she becomes the apple of some one's eye.

When your wife's health is bad, when your children are sickly, when you feel worn out, use Brown's Iron Bitters.

Funny, isn't it, that you always see the night-fall before any stars begin to shoot.—The Judge.

Hay-Fever. Since boyhood I have been troubled with Catarrh and Hay-Fever, and was unable to obtain relief until I used Ely's Cream Balm. It has cured me. E. L. Clickener, New Brunswick, N. J.

Velvet lawns are so called because they must be kept vell vet to remain so.—Boston Transcript.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer

Is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which Sulphur, Sugar of Lead and Nitrate of Silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. John D. Park & Sons, Wholesale Agents, Cincinnati, Ohio, and C. N. Crittenton, New York.

A wit being asked, on the failure of a bank: "Were you not upset?" replied: "No; I only lost my balance."

Colden's Liquid Beef Tonic

Will cure indigestion, dyspepsia or loss of appetite. Colden's, no other.

Straighten your old boots and shoes with Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffener, and wear them again. Sold by shoe and hardware dealers.

Russia Salve is unrivaled for its speedy healing qualities. Ask your druggist for it. 25 cts.

Chrolithion Collars and Cuffs are cheapest in the long run. They wear longer than any others and you save cost of washing.

Inventors' Hand-Book—Free.—Just out. How great fortunes have been made. History of inventions; valuable to all who read and think. Order it by postal card. N. W. Fitzgerald, Solicitor, Washington, D. C.

Flies, roaches, ants, bed-bugs, rats, mice, crows, cleared out by "Rough on Rats." 15c.

You would use St. Patrick's Salve if you knew the good 'twould do you.

Don't Die in the House. "Rough on Rats," clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs. 15c.

If afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 25c.

Wells' "Rough on Corns," 15c. Ask for it. Complete, permanent cure. Corns, bunions.

Skinny Men. "Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia.

The umbrella is the check-rain of the human animal.—Boston Transcript.

NO HOME EXEMPT.

The Source of Those Mysterious Troubles That Come to Every Household Explained.

The following article from the Democrat and Chronicle, of Rochester, N. Y., is of so striking a nature and emanates from so reliable a source, that it is herewith republished entire. In addition to the valuable matter it contains, it will be found exceedingly interesting:

To the Editor of the Democrat and Chronicle:

Sir:—My motives for the publication of the most unusual statements which follow, are, first, gratitude for the fact that I have been saved from a most horrible death, and, secondly, a desire to warn all who read this statement against some of the most deceptive influences by which they have ever been surrounded. It is a fact that to-day thousands of people are within a foot of the grave and they do not know it. To tell how I was caught away from just this position and to warn others against nearing it, are my objects in this communication.

On the first day of June, 1881, I lay at my residence in this city surrounded by my friends and waiting for death. Heaven only knows the agony I then endured, for words can never describe it. And yet, if a few years previous, any one had told me that I was to be brought so low, and by so terrible a disease, I should have scoffed at the idea. I had always been uncommonly strong and healthy, had weighed over 200 pounds and hardly knew, in my own experience, what pain or sickness were. Very many people who will read this statement realize at times that they are unusually tired, and can not account for it. They feel dull and indefinite pains in various parts of the body, and do not understand it. Or they are exceedingly hungry one day and entirely without appetite the next. This was just the way I felt when the relentless malady which had fastened itself upon me first began. Still I thought it was nothing; that probably I had taken a cold which would soon pass away. Shortly after this I noticed a heavy, and at times a neuralgic, pain in my head, but as it would come one day and be gone the next, I paid but little attention to it. However, my stomach was out of order and my food often failed to digest, causing at times great inconvenience. Yet, I had no idea, even as a physician, that these things meant anything serious or that a monstrous disease was becoming fixed upon me. Candidly, I thought I was suffering from Malaria, and so doctored myself accordingly. But I got no better. I next noticed a peculiar color and odor about the fluids I was passing—also that there were large quantities one day and very little the next, and that a persistent froth and scum appeared upon the surface, and a sediment settled in the bottom. And yet I did not realize my danger, for, indeed, seeing these symptoms continually, I finally became accustomed to them, and my suspicion was wholly disarmed by the fact that I had no pain in the affected organs or in their vicinity. Why I should have been so blind I can not understand.

There is a terrible future for all physical neglect, and impending danger always brings a person to his senses, even though it may then be too late. I realized, at last, my critical condition and aroused myself to overcome it. And, Oh! how hard I tried! I consulted the best medical skill in the land. I visited all the prominent mineral springs in America, and traveled from Maine to California. Still I grew worse. No two physicians agreed as to my malady. One said I was troubled with spinal irritation; another, nervous prostration; another, malaria; another, dyspepsia; another, heart-disease; another, general debility; another, congestion of the base of the brain; and so on through a long list of common diseases, the symptoms of all of which I really had. In this way several years passed, during all of which time I was steadily growing worse. My condition had really become pitiable. The slight symptoms I at first experienced were developed into terrible and constant disorders—the little twigs of pain had grown to oaks of agony. My weight had been reduced from 207 to 130 pounds. My life was a torture to myself and friends. I could retain no food upon my stomach, and lived wholly by injections. I was a living mass of pain. My pulse was uncontrollable. In my agony I frequently fell upon the floor, convulsively clutched the carpet, and prayed for death. Morphine had little or no effect in deadening the pain. For six days and nights I had the death-premonitory hiccoughs constantly. My urine was filled with tube-casts and albumen. I was struggling with Bright's Disease of the kidneys in its last stages.

While suffering thus I received a call from my pastor, the Rev. Dr. Foote, rector of St. Paul's Church, of this city. I felt that it was our last interview, but in the course of conversation he mentioned a remedy of which I had heard much but had never used. Dr. Foote detailed to me the many remarkable cures which had come under his observation by means of this remedy, and urged me to try it. As a practicing physician and graduate of the schools I cherished the prejudice both natural and common with all regular practitioners, and derided the idea of any medicine outside the regular channels being the least beneficial. So solicitous, however, was Dr. Foote, that I finally promised I would waive my prejudice and try the remedy he so highly recommended. I began its use on the first day of June and took it according to directions. At first it sickened me; but this I thought was a good sign for me in my debilitated condition. I continued to take it; the sickening sensation departed and I was able to retain food upon my stomach. In a few days I noticed a decided change for the better as also did my wife and friends. My hiccoughs ceased and I experienced less pain than formerly. I was so rejoiced at this improved condition that, upon what I had believed but a few days before was my dying bed, I vowed, in the presence of my family and friends, should I recover I would both publicly and privately make known this remedy for the good of humanity, wherever and whenever I had an opportunity. I also determined that I would give a course of lectures in the Corinthian Academy of Music in this city, stating in full the symptoms and almost hopelessness of my disease and the remarkable means by which I have been saved. My improvement was constant from that time, and in less than three months I had gained twenty-six pounds in flesh, became entirely free from pain and I believe I owe my life and present condition wholly to Warner's Safe Cure, the remedy which I used.

Since my recovery I have thoroughly re-investigated the subject of kidney difficulties and Bright's disease, and the truths developed are astounding. I therefore state, deliberately, and as a physician, that I believe more than one-half the deaths which occur in America are caused by Bright's disease of the kidneys. This may sound like a rash statement, but I am prepared to fully verify it. Bright's disease has no distinctive symptoms of its own, (indeed, it often develops without any pain whatever in the kidneys or their vicinity), but has the symptoms of nearly every other known complaint. Hundreds of people die daily, whose burials are authorized by a physician's certificate of "Heart-Disease," "Appoplexy," "Paralysis," "Spinal Complaint," "Rheumatism," "Pneumonia," and other common diseases, when in reality it was Bright's Disease of the kidneys. Few physicians, and fewer people, realize the extent of this disease or its dangerous and insidious nature. It steals into the system like a thief, manifests its presence by the commonest symptoms, and fastens itself upon the constitution before the victim is aware. It is nearly as hereditary as consumption, quite as common and fully as fatal. Entire families, inheriting it from their ancestors, have died, and yet none of the number knew or realized the mysterious power which was removing them. Instead of common symptoms it often shows none whatever, but brings death suddenly, and as such is usually supposed to be heart-disease. As one who has suffered, and knows by bitter experience what he says, I implore every one who reads these words not to neglect the slightest symptom of kidney difficulty. Certain agony and possible death will be the sure result of such neglect, and no one can afford to hazard such chances.

I am aware that such an unqualified statement as this, coming from me, known as I am, throughout the entire land as a practitioner and lecturer, will arouse the surprise and possible animosity of the medical profession and astonish all with whom I am acquainted, but I make the foregoing statements, based upon facts which I am prepared to produce, and truths which I can substantiate to the letter. The welfare of those who may possibly be sufferers such as I was, is an ample inducement for me to take the step I have, and if I can successfully warn others from the dangerous path in which I once walked, I am willing to endure all professional and personal consequences.

J. B. Henion, M. D.

Breaches of promise—Those your tailor didn't bring home.—Chicago Herald.

Stinging, irritation, all Kidney and Bladder Complaints, cured by "Buchu-Paiba." $1.

WE SHOULD HELP ONE ANOTHER.

Mr. Norman Hunt, of No. 169 Chestnut St., Springfield, Mass., writes April 10, 1883, saying:

"Having the affliction caused by kidney and liver diseases, and after enduring the aches, pains, weakness and depression incident thereto until body and soul were nearly distracted, I sought for relief and a cure from my trouble, and was told by a friend, who had been cured by it himself, that the best and only sure cure was Hunt's Remedy, and upon his recommendation I commenced taking it, and the first few doses improved my condition in a very marked manner, and a continuance of its use has justified all that my friends claimed for it—that it was a sure and permanent cure for all diseases of the kidneys and liver. Several of my friends in Springfield have used it with the most gratifying results, and I feel it my duty as well as a pleasure to me to recommend Hunt's Remedy in the highest possible terms."

MANUFACTURER'S TESTIMONY.

Mr. H. W. Payne, manufacturer of harness, saddlery, trunks, valises, etc., No. 477 Main Street, Springfield, Mass., writes us under date of April 10, 1883:

"Gentlemen—I have used Hunt's Remedy, the best medicine for diseases of the kidneys, liver, bladder, and urinary organs, and have received great benefit to my health from its use, and I find that it will do just what is claimed for it. It will cure disease and restore health. I therefore pronounce it the best medicine that I have ever used."

BOSTON & ALBANY RAILROAD.

Albert Holt, Esq., paymaster Boston & Albany Railroad, at Springfield, Mass., writes April 23, 1883: "I have used Hunt's Remedy, and my experience with it has been such that I can cheerfully say that I am satisfied that it will do just what it promises to do, if used according to directions."

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

Sure Cure for Epilepsy or Fits in 24 hours. Free to poor. Dr. Kruse, 2844 Arsenal St., St. Louis, Mo.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Me.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address Stinson & Co., Portland, Me.

AGENTS Coin Money by selling Dr. Chase's Family Physician and Second Receipt Book. $2. Address A. W. HAMILTON & CO., Ann Arbor, Mich.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS

MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD

And will completely change the blood in the entire system in three months. Any person who will take ONE PILL EACH NIGHT FROM ONE TO TWELVE WEEKS, may be restored to sound health, if such a thing be possible. For curing Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. Physicians use them in their practice. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. Send for pamphlet. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

AN OPEN SECRET AMONG THE LADIES

The brilliant, fascinating tints of Complexion for which ladies strive are chiefly artificial, and all who will take the trouble may secure them. These roseate, bewitching hues follow the use of Hagan's Magnolia Balm—a delicate, harmless and always reliable article. Sold by all druggists.

The Magnolia Balm conceals every blemish, removes Sallowness, Tan, Redness, Eruptions, all evidences of excitement and every imperfection.

Its effects are immediate and so natural that no human being can detect its application.

Delicate and Feeble Ladies.

Those languid, tiresome sensations causing you to feel scarcely able to be on your feet; that constant drain that is taking from your system all its former elasticity; driving the bloom from your cheeks; that continual strain upon your vital forces, rendering you irritable and fretful, can easily be removed by the use of that marvelous remedy, Hop Bitters. Irregularities and obstructions of your system are relieved at once, while the special cause of periodical pain are permanently removed. None receive so much benefit, and none are so profoundly grateful and show such an interest in recommending Hop Bitters as women.

Feels Young Again.

"My mother was afflicted a long time with Neuralgia and a dull, heavy, inactive condition of the whole system; headache, nervous prostration, and was almost helpless. No physicians or medicines did her any good. Three months ago she began to use Hop Bitters with such good effect that she seems and feels young again, although over seventy years old. We think there is no other medicine fit to use in the family."—A lady, in Providence.

Bradford, Pa., May 8, 1875.

It has cured me of several diseases, such as nervousness, sickness at the stomach, monthly troubles, etc. I have not seen a sick day in a year, since I took Hop Bitters. All my neighbors use them. Mrs. Fannie Green.

$3,000 Lost.—"A tour of Europe that cost me $3,000, done me less good than one bottle of Hop Bitters; they also cured my wife of fifteen years' nervous weakness, sleeplessness and dyspepsia." R. M., Auburn, N. Y.

High Authority.

Hop Bitters is not, in any sense, an alcoholic beverage or liquor, and could not be sold for use except to persons desirous of obtaining a medicinal bitters.

Green B. Raum, U. S. Com. Inter'l Rev.

South Bloomingville, O., May 1, '79.

Sirs—I have been suffering ten years and I tried your Hop Bitters and it done me more good than all the doctors.

Miss S. S. Boone.

Baby Saved!

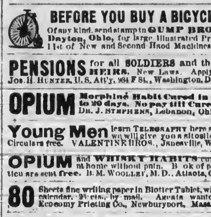
We are so thankful to say that our nursing baby was permanently cured of a dangerous and protracted constipation and irregularity of the bowels by the use of Hop Bitters by its mother, which at the same time restored her to perfect health and strength.—The Parents, Rochester, N. Y.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS

No time should be lost if the stomach, liver and bowels are affected, to adopt the sure remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Diseases of the organs named beget others far more serious, and a delay is therefore hazardous. Dyspepsia, liver complaint, chills and fever, early rheumatic twinges, kidney weakness, bring serious bodily trouble if trifled with. Lose no time in using this effective and safe medicine. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

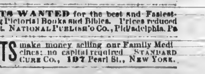
CATARRH



HAY-FEVER

ELY'S CREAM BALM will, when applied by the finger into the nostrils, be absorbed, effectually cleansing the nasal passages of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membranal linings of the head from additional colds; completely heals the sores and restores the sense of taste and smell. Beneficial results are realized by a few applications. A thorough treatment will cure. Unequaled for cold in the head. Agreeable to use. Send for circular. 50 cents a package, by mail or at druggists.

ELY'S CREAM BALM CO., Owego, N. Y.



Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass TARE BEAM. JONES, HE PAYS THE FREIGHT. Sold on trial. Warranted 5 years. All sizes as low. For free book, address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE to sell the best Family Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit a pair of stockings with HEEL and TOE complete in twenty minutes. It will also knit a great variety of fancy-work for which there is always a ready market. Send for circular and terms to the Twombly Knitting Machine Co., 163 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

WEEKS SCALE WORKS.
BUFFALO, N.Y.
3-ton $35.00
4-ton $50.00
SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

CUT THIS OUT And Return to us, with TEN Cents, and you'll receive by mail, a Golden Box of Goods, that will bring you in more money in One Month than anything else in America. Absolute Certainty. M. Young, 173 Greenwich St., New York.

BEFORE YOU BUY A BICYCLE Of any kind, send stamp to GUMP BROS., Dayton, Ohio, for large Illustrated Price List of New and Second Hand Machines.

PENSIONS for all SOLDIERS and their HEIRS. New Laws. Apply to Jos. H. Hunter, U. S. Att'y, 934 F St., Washington, D. C.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. Dr. J. Stephens, Lebanon, Ohio.

Young Men learn Telegraphy here and we will give you a situation. Circulars free. VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

OPIUM and WHISKY HABITS cured at home without pain. Book of particulars sent free. B. M. Woolley, M. D., Atlanta, Ga.

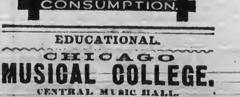
80 Sheets fine writing paper in Blotter Tablet, with calendar, 25 cts., by mail. Agents wanted. Economy Printing Co., Newburyport, Mass.

HAIR Wholesale and retail. Send for price-list. Goods sent C. O. D. Wigs made to order. E. BURNHAM, 71 State Street, Chicago.

AGENTS WANTED for the best and Fastest-selling Pictorial Books and Bibles. Prices reduced 33 per cent. National Publish'g Co., Philadelphia, Pa.

AGENTS make money selling our Family Medicines; no capital required. Standard Cure Co., 197 Pearl St., New York.

$1000 REWARD For any machine hulling and cleaning 50 for market as much Clover Seed in one day as the VICTOR Double Huller. It has made $100 often IN ONE DAY



VICTOR ILLUSTRATED Pamphlet mailed FREE. NEWARK MACHINE CO. NEWARK, O.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST." ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers (Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. 25 100

EDUCATIONAL.

CHICAGO MUSICAL COLLEGE. CENTRAL MUSIC HALL. DR. F. ZIEGFELD, President. All Instruments and Voice taught by the most skillful Instructors. Fall Term opens September 10, 1883. Send for Catalogue.

COM. B. H. TELEGR'H COLLEGE, Ann Arbor, Mich. Students wanted in Sept. Situations guaranteed.

A. N. K.—E. 933

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KY., WEDNESDAY, JULY 18, 1883. NUMBER 38.

THE DAIRY.

—The quantity of milk a cow gives depends much upon the mode, time and regularity of milking. Cows do best that have one regular milker, and at the time of milking should be carefully attended to, and not be subjected to variation from day to day.

—A writer says that he has never failed to cure garget by the use of beans. He feeds one pint of bean meal, mixed with other meal, for four successive days, and has found that quantity sufficient to cure the worst cases. He thinks if cows were fed with bean meal several times a year they would never be troubled with garget.

—The following is one of the best recipes we know of for making a cow give an abundance of milk: "Give her every day water slightly warmed and slightly salted, in which bran has been stirred at the rate of one quart to two gallons of water." If the bran is real city bran, with no shorts or middlings in it, then add a double handful of oat or corn meal. You will be surprised at the effect on the milk-yield, though we will not guarantee the twenty-five per cent. increase claimed by a writer in the Southern Farmer.—American Dairyman.

—If the dairyman feeds his cows on cabbage or they get hold of wild onion, how quickly the taste is discovered in the butter! Fresh grass or clover imparts a high rich and aromatic flavor that everybody likes. This suggests the idea that the quality of butter depends immediately upon the character of the cow's food, and should put the cautious dairyman upon his guard to see that his cows cannot get at any kind of food that will injure the quality of the milk. Hence he should be sure to destroy all the weeds in his pasture even more carefully than he does in his corn-field; and as water, when tainted, will work the same evil as bad food, he should see that only a pure article is within reach of the cows.—Elgin Advocate.

Sources of Bad Flavor in Butter.

Much butter is worthless because of some bad flavor about it. The causes of this are various. Browsing on weeds in the pasture may effect the taste of the butter. Impure water which the cow is obliged to drink sometimes may be the cause. Prof. Law, of Cornell University, finding the cream on his milk to be ropy, examined it with a microscope, and discovered that it was infested with living organisms. Carrying his investigation further, he found that the herd had drunk the water of a stagnant pool located in a muddy swale. The water of the pool was found to contain the same organism as the milk did. Mr. Willard related an instance where the milk in the vat in a cheese factory during the heating of the curd gave off a smell like that of stagnant water. It was found that one of the farmers supplying cream had allowed his cows to pass through a narrow slough, the mud of which adhered to their udders. Particles of dust from this mud got into the pails at milking time, introducing fungi from the slough, which multiplied in the milk and spoiled the whole of it, giving it the odor of foul water. Inhaling the odor of putrid flesh may taint the milk and impart a bad taste to the butter. Setting milk in open pans which are exposed to the odor of vegetables, or food, or the fumes of cooking or tobacco smoke may impair the taste of the butter. The flavor of the butter may be spoiled after it is made by being exposed to odors, or by being packed in tubs which have not been properly cleansed, or by being kept in a room where there is kerosene oil, or other bad smelling substance. Thus it will be seen that there are many ways in which the flavor of butter may be spoiled. The butter maker, being mindful of all these dangers, should renew his diligence and increase his vigilance in guarding his product from all such sources of contamination.—Exchange.

Feeding Cows for Milk.

To the milk producer the quantity of milk each cow produces is an important item, and how he shall obtain that result is the question for him to solve. Can quantity be obtained, or increased, except at the expense of quality? Every experienced dairyman will answer this in the affirmative. A cow may be considered a machine for producing milk. She must be properly fed and cared for, or the result is unsatisfactory; it is as vain to expect that a cow will give milk without sufficient and proper food, as to expect the steam engine to afford power without sufficient water and fuel. If we feed the steam boiler with water in excess, or in insufficient quantity, and only fuel enough to merely keep the water warm, it is vain to look for power, and so it is to give a cow only just food enough to keep her alive without starving. If milk is desired in quantity, the cow must be fed a surplus beyond the other needs of the system, or all the rest is loss. I think it is calculated that about two-thirds of all a cow eats is needed to maintain her existence; all the profit comes from the other one-third, and too often this is withheld entirely.

The best of milk-producing food should be provided and fed in abundance at all seasons while the cows are giving milk; roots, grain and the best of hay and fodder during winter and good pasture with partial soiling during summer. This will necessitate the growing of green crops like a mixture of peas and oats, rye, Hungarian grass, corn or clover for summer and a dry time. Corn meal is good for quality, but bran or middlings should make the larger half or two-thirds of the grain ration. I would leave cottonseed meal out, or not feed over half a pint mixed with the other grain, at a feeding. Corn and oats ground together make an excellent grain ration. In feeding green corn fodder I would cut the stalks finely and mix with it the meal and grain, and allow them to soften somewhat before feeding. Hard glazed cornstalks, fed whole, are apt to make the teeth sore, fed freely.—W. H. White, in Country Gentleman.

—The English life-boats saved nearly nine hundred lives last year. There are now two hundred and seventy-three life-boats stationed along the coasts.

A Stage-Coach Dialogue.

The seat of honor and pleasure in a journey overland is by the driver, and there is always a scramble for it, and the one who succeeds in securing it is regarded as a lucky fellow. I got left in my contest for a seat on the top and found myself recently inside of the stage, with a clergyman and a man whom I took for a miner, during a trip to Silver City, N. M. The preacher and I sat on the back seat and the native sat facing us. He was dressed in the regulation costume of the country: Dark pants stuck in his boots and held up by a six-shooter buckled around the waist, blue flannel shirt, flaming red necktie, and a great sombrero. A knife was stuck in his boot and he carried a Winchester rifle on the seat beside him. Taking him all in all, he was about as ugly looking a specimen of humanity as I have met. As the stage rolled along, the miner looked out of the window as if in deep thought. The preacher and I entered into conversation, during which he asked my business. I told him, when he asked:

"Do the great papers buy literary articles?"

"Yes, sir, when they are good."

"Do they pay for them liberally?"

"They do, when they accept the articles."

"Well, I have got some very interesting subjects I could write about," he continued, as the stage jolted over the rough road, making it a little hard to distinguish what he was saying. "For five years I was a missionary at Siam and saw many strange and even startling things."

"What were those scenes you refer to?" I asked.

"Well, the punishment of criminals was exceedingly strange and is worthy of description. When a person is convicted of crime there he is taken out upon the public square for execution. His neck is bared well down upon the shoulders, and the executioner dips his finger in mud and with it makes a mark upon the neck of the doomed man."

"What kind of mud?" shouted the miner in a voice like a thunder-clap, while he glared at the parson savagely. I noticed that, although he kept peering out of the window, he had followed our conversation for some time.

"A sort of yellowish mud," replied the preacher, evidently disturbed by the miner's look and manner. But he continued:

"The executioner then takes his heavy sword and with one quick and decisive blow severs the victim's head from his body."

"It's an infernal lie," yelled the miner, in tones that might have been heard four miles. "The boys do occasionally hang a horse-thief there, and the town has a pretty bad name, but they never cut people's heads off. There ain't only one sword in the whole place, and that belongs to a militia Captain and wouldn't cut the head off of a turnip."

"But I was a missionary there for five years," meekly interposed the minister.

"And I was a barber there for seven years, and I never shaved you, neither."

"My friend, that can not be; for the people never shave there."

"That's another of your infernal lies; they're as clean a shaven set of people as thar is in the West. You're a nice man to be giving the town a bad name after you have left it. If it weren't kind of agin the fashion to hit a parson I'd knock your head off of you fur your lies," cried the miner, getting madder every minute.

"My dear friend," said the minister, imploringly, and evidently much disturbed for his safety, "there certainly must be some mistake. You do not mean to say that you were a barber in the Kingdom of Siam, where people never shave?"

"Oh! I thought you were talking about Cheyenne," said the miner, as he fell back into his chair disgusted.

I was the only man who seemed to enjoy this amusing incident, and even I found it good policy to show as little disposition to laugh as possible. The stage rolled on for miles after it occurred, and not a word was spoken by any one. The miner looked more intently than ever out of the window, and yet there was not an expression on his stolid face to indicate what his thoughts were. The preacher looked as intently out from the opposite side of the stage, and I spent my time watching the miner, looking at the strange region through which we were passing.—Cor. Philadelphia Press.

The Rattlesnake.

In favorable localities rattlesnakes occur in amazing plenty, and the stories to be heard in every State, of "dens," where they writhe in countless numbers and dreadful intimacy, have some foundation. De Kay cites an instance where two men, in Warren County, N. Y., about 1840, slaughtered 1,100 rattlesnakes in three days on the eastern side of Tongue Mountain. In 1877 a farmer killed seventy-six massasaugas in a cranberry marsh of Crawford County, Ohio, where are still harbored many serpents disappearing elsewhere. Some swamps and canebrakes in the far south swarm with the dreaded cottonmouth, and local species occur in thousands on parts of the plains and Rocky Mountains, particularly in the tufa craters of warm springs, in Utah. But perhaps the nearest approach to the "den" of the sensational picture is an island in Pyramid lake, Nevada, where during the warm months "it is absolutely dangerous to walk about those parts of the island where they are colonized."

This animal is easily killed or disabled, however, and has in man an implacable enemy not only directly but in many indirect ways; yet there are few localities favorable to him where he has been exterminated. You can find rattlesnakes in plenty, for example, within five miles of the center of New Haven. It is doubtful if any of the several species will ever suffer extinction.

Scales being undistensible and never falling out to be replaced, like hair and feathers (with which they have no homology), serpents get room for growth and renew their coats periodically by sloughing off the entire skin, underneath which a new external skin has formed and separated itself from the now faded and husky cuticule. This process occurs during August in the adult, two or three changes happening in a single summer with youngsters, who outgrow their vestments very speedily. It is a popular idea that this midsummer sloughing occupies a considerable period, during which the serpents are harmless, because blind. It is quite supposable that this might be so, since the outer layer of the cornea of the eye peels off with the slough, and during a few preceding days the eye has a dull and filmy appearance. But captive snakes, given active mice at this time, attack them without hesitation or missing. After the molt the eye gleams bright and cold like a jewel, but with a sullen, ferocious and relentless expression, for it is overhung by the bony penthouse of the broad, strong superorbitable bones that give a fulcrum for the powerful muscles of the jaws. This cruel eye and its fixed stare introduces the once vexing question of fascination; but before discussing it, some account of the food and feeding habits of our subject will be well.

The disposition of the whole family is sluggish and opposed to any active movement and even in taking its prey, beyond the one lighting swift blow that smites it down—so startling a contrast to the ordinary lethargy! The mocassin, to be sure, is somewhat an exception, since he is a good swimmer and chases in their element frogs, water snakes, tadpoles, and the less agile fishes, like the catfish.

The most rapid exertions of rattlesnakes are aroused in fleeing from danger; yet, when doing their best on open ground, their pace can easily be equaled by a child, without running, as I have seen on the plains, so that a blacksnake or a Eutania, could not only overtake, but circle round and round them. Their plan in food-getting, then, is not to pursue their prey, but to lie in wait for it and strike before their presence is suspected. Protected by his colors, that assimilate him to the haunts he most frequents, whether woods or rocks, as in the eastern crotalus, or the barren uplands chosen by the far western species; the shaded morasses threaded by the dark-skinned massasaugas; the lush meadows where the copperhead lurks; the stream-bank or rice-ridge where the cottonmouth plunges into the water; or the yellow weeds under whose mottled shadows the little ground rattlers become visible—hidden, and motionless for hours together in one or another of these resorts, the crotalus coils in patient vigilance. "Though aware of the passenger's presence, he either lies quiet or glides away to a more retired spot." His course is that of the darkey who was urged to follow one into the thicket and kill it: "Massa, I nebber bodders nuffin' wot don't bodder me; I makes dat a rule!" Here, again, nevertheless, an exception must be noted for the copperhead, and more especially for the moccasin—vicious reptiles, asking little provocation before inflicting their deadly wound. Holbrook says the moccasin "attacks everything that comes within its reach, erecting its head and opening its mouth for some seconds before it bites." All other snakes put in a cage with it show the keenest terror. No species of crotalus, however, will follow the object of its rage as do some of the non-venomous serpents.

Such are facts respecting the food-getting of the rattlesnakes, while those of other serpents would furnish an equally prosaic explanation; yet the notion that the small, bead-like eye, and tongue darting forked flame from black lips, exerted a charm or fascination upon smaller animals, luring them within reach of the fatal stroke, is as old as the fabled basilisk—older, indeed, for to it, no doubt, the very image of the basilisk owes its origin. Traveling westward, it came to America with the earliest bookmakers, and was at once attached to our subject and to the blacksnake. "Birds have been seen to drop into its mouth," wrote Penant; "squirrels descend from their trees, and leverets run into its jaws. Terror and amazement seem to lay hold on these little animals," etc., etc. "All agree," says old Catesby, of South Carolina, who confesses he never witnessed the phenomenon of fascination for himself—"all agree in the manner of the process, which is that the animals, particularly birds and squirrels, no sooner spy the snake than they skip from spray to spray hovering and approaching gradually nearer the enemy, regardless of any other danger, but with distracted gestures and outcries, descend though from the tops of the loftiest trees, to the mouth of the snake who opens his jaws, takes them in, and instantly swallows them."—Ernest Ingersoll, in The Manhattan.

—Several years ago a vessel was wrecked on Cape Cod, and among other portions of her cargo that floated ashore were a number of hardwood logs, which, after knocking about in the surf for some time until all the valuables were secured, were gathered up by the people in the vicinity and used for fuel. Some person with a better knowledge of wood than his neighbors bought it all up. They were actually burning fuel that was worth $800 a cord. It was, indeed, the finest and best quality of Turkey boxwood, which to-day would readily bring twelve cents a pound.—N. Y. Times.

—Half a century ago a Mr. Walden, of Portland, Me., had four strangely assorted pets—a parrot, a monkey, a tame fox and a Newfoundland puppy. The parrot has seen his companions, one after another, go the way of all flesh, and now, at the age of sixty years, is still one of the most important members of Lieutenant George Walden's family. Contemplation of the vicissitudes of life has subdued the loquacity which was formerly the parrot's chief failing, and the bird is now, to all appearances, one of the most profound thinkers in the State of Maine.—Boston Post.

—Newport this year proposes to be very asthetic. The regulation color of the village carts is to be crushed strawberry, and the donkey's ears are to be bound up in ribbons and his foretop banged, a la belle.—Exchange.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—According to the Weisz system of type-setting, recently introduced in Vienna, the type is cast in syllables, common prefixes, suffixes, etc., instead of letters, and a great saving of time is thus effected, it is claimed.

—A piece of oyster-ground off Milford, Conn., containing six hundred acres, has been sold to parties in California, who have been shipping seed oysters quite extensively to that coast to plant in San Francisco bay.—Boston Herald.

—A New Orleans man has discovered a new mode of tanning and preserving the skin of Louisiana's bird, the pelican, by which the feathers are not damaged and the bird's skin with the feathers on it can be utilized for making turbans and hats for ladies.—N. O. Picayune.

—Those who object to the odors of the disinfectants used at the present day will find charcoal unobjectionable on this account, while it absorbs gases in a surprising way; pieces can be laid on plates and put out of sight in a sick room.—N. Y. Times.

—The nettle, a growth common to nearly all of the States, and which has hitherto been a source of great trouble to farmers, has now been found to yield a fiber, which it is claimed, will supplement cotton in the manufacture of cloth. Cloth made from it, on trial, has been adjudged equal in texture and appearance to linen.—Chicago Journal.

—A Swiss watchmaker in Pennsylvania has completed an automatic clock, which for intricate mechanism is said to surpass the celebrated one at Strasburg. During twelve hours it plays three musical selections, and 2,022 automatic movements are made. Of course, the machinery is so arranged as to permit the entire performance of the automatons taking place every fifteen or twenty minutes.—Philadelphia Press.

—Mr. F. L. Slocum has examined the ink for writing on glass and, according to the American Journal Pharmacy, reports that it is made by mixing barium sulphate, three parts; ammonium fluoride, one part; and sulphuric acid q. s. to decompose the ammonium fluoride and make the mixture of a semi fluid consistency. It should be prepared in a leaden dish, and kept in a gutta-percha or leaden bottle.

—Patent plastering was a novelty exhibited at a recent building exhibition held in London. It is claimed for it that it saves both time and labor. The material is prepared beforehand in slabs which are fixed to the joists direct, with great speed, forming the ceiling at once. Thus, plastering which would occupy weeks to execute can be accomplished by this slab system in as many days. It is also claimed for this patent that the ceilings are fire resisting.

—Turpentine is regarded by many persons as an antidote to poisoning by phosphorus. It is not the ordinary turpentine which should be given, but the acid French turpentine, or old turpentine which has been exposed to the air long enough to have become ozonized by absorbing oxygen. If this be administered while the phosphorus is still in the stomach it changes the poison into an inert substance which resembles spermaceti. After phosphorus has entered into the circulation the only remedy is transfusion of fresh blood into the veins.—N. Y. Times.

PITH AND POINT.

—The sale of boot-jacks last year was 91,000 less than the year before. Is this country going to bed with her boots on?—Detroit Free Press.

—Three-fifths of the fashionable alligator satchels and pocket-books are made from pig-skin. This, at least, is the allegation, but perhaps the allegator lies.—Philadelphia News.

—"I am saturated to the epidermis," said the high-school girl, throwing her gum boots into the corner. "I don't wonder at that," replied her mother; "they give you such hard lessons at school!"—N. Y. Journal.

—The Crow Indians have been caught putting rocks in the bales of hay they sell to the Government. The day is not far distant when all Indians will be civilized enough to vote.—Philadelphia News.

—In modern Egypt a young man is not permitted to see his wife's face before marriage. Whoever has invested in prize packages can imagine the feelings of the average young Egyptian as he gazes on his trinket for the first time.—Modern Argo.

—"A beautiful Boston girl has crossed to Europe in the steerage of the Cunard liner, just to see how it was," says an exchange. For the same reason her mother has been keeping boarders to pay the daughter's expenses.—N. O. Picayune.

—They were approaching an ice-cream saloon, and she said: "Oh, Charley, I'm going to have a new dress cut bias—Oh—oo. S-p-p-p!—there's an ice-cream saloon. Goody!" "Yes, and it is like your new dress, for it will be cut by us;" and the horrid old wretch led the pouting damsel across the street.—New Haven Register.

—Little Johnny says that when he was a baby, his mother tells him that he was as good as pie, and used to sleep all night and half the day. Now, when he does not get up the first time he is called, he gets a fearful scolding and occasionally something else beside. He can't see why what was praiseworthy in the infant should be reprehensible in the boy.—N. Y. Post.

—Miss Jenny Marks, of Baltimore, won a sewing-machine by making a guess at the number of pills in a bottle in a window. There were 25,100 pills in the bottle, and she guessed 25,190. There were over 5,000 guesses, and the worst one was a guess of 9,000,000. The man who guessed 9,000,000 was one of those fellows who get their education by reading gas-meters.—Oil City Derrick.

—An electric light introduced in a Pennsylvania coal-mine the other day scared a lot of mules there out of their wits; and miners said it was the first time one of the animals was ever known to show fear underground.—Philadelphia Press.

Second-Hand Building Stuff.

"What are you going to do with that stuff?" was asked of a man who was placing on a truck the remnants of a building that had been torn down in Sixth avenue.

"Take it to the yard," he replied.

"And then what?"

"Sell it."

The yard referred to is the headquarters of a dealer in second-hand building material.

"This business is fifty years old," the superintendent said. "We occupy nearly forty city lots. They are covered with second-hand building material. We can supply brick for the interior walls, or brown stone for front walls, or granite columns for ornamental high stoops or porticoes. It is all ready for use, and it is of known quality. We have thousands of feet of timber and lumber of various kinds. Every kind of lumber used in building a house can be found here, joists, flooring, studding, rafters and roof boards. The roof itself can be bad, too. Tin deteriorates some, but slates do not so much. We can supply tin roof that is as good as it was the day it was laid. We have several cords of slates. Our lumber is better than new. It is thoroughly seasoned. We supply the lumber for about all the swell mansions. Every piece of timber in Vanderbilt's house came from this yard. When men put thousands of dollars into frescoes they want no shrinkage in the timbers of their houses."

"You do not confine your attention to dwellings, do you?"

"Your question reminds me of a man from a neighboring village who came here. He said he guessed he'd got an order that would puzzle us to fill. He wanted a second-hand pulpit. He was astonished when I showed him a complete outfit. We had stained glass windows, crosses, altars, candle-sticks, rails, mourning benches, a sprinkling bowl, and a baptistery. I showed him a full assortment of pews for the body of the church. Then I offered him a second-hand steeple with bell, complete and all set up. He bought a pulpit and paid for it in silence. He was so astonished he couldn't talk."

"What else can you fit out?"

"Anything. Here's a good bar for a lager beer room, and back of it is an elegant arrangement of shelves to hold the cut-glass bottles. There are mirrors between to reflect the back hair of the bartender. If you want one we can supply you with a first-class stall fit for Maud S. There would be an iron manger in one corner, a solid mahogany door at the other, and a rosewood hay rack between, if you wanted it."

"You don't mean to say you've bought in second-hand stalls of that kind, do you?"

"Well, not quite that. We have everything but the hay rack, though, and have got the stuff for that. To return to the interior work of dwellings, we have everything necessary to fit out either a mansion in Fifth avenue or a shanty for a squatter sovereign. We just sold a pair of Italian marble mantels that probably cost $500 each when new. They are as good now as then. You can almost see through them they are so clear, and the carving is exquisite. We have mantels in various kinds of colored marble, and two in Mexican onyx that are beautiful. We get hold of hand-carved mantels and newel posts, stair rails, doors, and frames that would delight the heart of one able to appreciate the beauty of such work. There is a gas chandelier. The figures are extremely delicate. It is carved from solid walnut. In common articles it would tire you merely to hear them enumerated. You can not think of any article, door knobs, girders, gas pipes, ranges, book cases, mirrors, anything that is known under the head of modern improvements or as a part of the house itself that we cannot supply. We'll buy any kind of a building. Booth's Theatre is now making its way here piecemeal. The old bank building that stood at 40 and 42 Wall street is here. A part of the partition that once ornamented a Morrisania bank will go into Harry Miner's new theatre. It will make the handsomest box office you ever saw. He gets Booth's fancy iron orchestra railing also. We have a windlass here that was used in a down-town bank to hoist the gold up out of the vaults in the basement. In our office is a stool that was used in a succession of business houses for more than a hundred years. The clock, a round faced affair, two feet in diameter, is as old. It is more serviceable. An enormous eagle looks down on the book-keeper from between masks out of an old theatre. He sits at a desk that was made in the time of Queen Elizabeth."

"How do you get it all?"

"We have three buyers out all the time. Usually, the contractor who puts up a new house gets the old one in the bargain. We buy and remove it for him if he wishes, or we buy any part of it. We sell mostly to builders and large real estate owners. Everything is sold on its merits."

"And price?"

"About one-third that of new on the average. Some of the fine pieces which we sell to builders are turned in to the owners at ten times our prices. You can not say that it is a cheat either, because as such bric-a-brac goes the price is reasonable."

"How much of a business is it?"

"Ours is not the only yard. We sold $35,000 worth of firewood from the waste last year, and the total sales amounted to a little more than $250,000. We used to give away the kindling ten years ago. Now it keeps a good many teams going, especially in the winter. We have 317 men on our pay roll. Their pay is high. It takes as great skill to take fine work out of a house as to put it in."—N. Y. Sun.

—Newburyport, Mass., is the only town in the world of that name, and gets spelled in all sorts of ways in consequence. The English give it "Newbury Port," and goods from France come to "New Buryport."—Boston Post.

—It is expected that the journey from Paris to Constantinople will soon be made in seventy-five hours. A through train with forty-two beds now runs twice a week.

Our Young Folks.

A LITTLE BOY.

If I were a little bird,
I'd sing my sweetest song;
I'd take a journey to the sky,
And frolic all day long.

If I were a pussy-cat,
I'd chase the rats and mice,
And have sweet cream for supper,
And everything that's nice.

If I were a tiny mouse,
I'd gnaw the soft new cheese;
When Tabby wasn't in the way
I'd do just as I please.

But I am a little boy
Just learning what to do;
And every day, it seems to me,
I find out something new.

I get up in the morning
And play with Tom and Nell;
But when I am as old as they
I'll go to school as well.

I'm very little, to be sure,
But then I'm only four;
And some day I'll be older,
And know a great deal more.
—Our Little Ones.

HOW TO SCARE AN ELEPHANT.

Bobolo was only eight years old, but he was a person of considerable importance nevertheless; for his father was a King, and consequently he was a Prince. It is true that his father was only King of a Kaffir tribe of negroes in Africa, but, as he knew nothing about the great world away from the part of Africa he lived in, he fancied himself the greatest man in the world.

If Bobolo had not been a Prince, he might have been a very nice boy, but, as it was, he was so spoiled by being petted and told he was better than any other boy that he made himself so disagreeable that nobody could love him. But that fact did not make much difference to Bobolo, for he never knew it, because nobody dared to say it. He had a great many slaves of about his own age, and he made them his companions.

When he was in a good humor he would treat these little slaves very well, but when he was cross—which was most of the time—he would slash right and left among them with a little whip which he had which was made of the tough hide of the hippopotamus.

Sometimes he did not even wait until he was cross to whip his little companions; but would cut away at their bare legs just for the fun, as he said, of seeing them dance, for, though Bobolo was not very strong, his whip was very hard and he knew how to use it.

Among the slave boys, the strongest and quickest was Kami. He was a year older than Bobolo, and was as kind and obliging as any boy could be. These good qualities did not make Bobolo treat him any better than he did the others. On the contrary, Kami seemed to catch the whip oftener than anybody else. The reason for this was not that Bobolo disliked him, but because he liked him. He wanted Kami with him all the time; and so when he was angry poor Kami was sure to be near, and consequently was the easiest to beat. And what made it harder to bear was that the boys in Africa do not wear any clothes, and so there was nothing between Kami's skin and the whip.

One night when the boys were going to bed—Kami slept in the same room with Bobolo—Bobolo felt cross and would not be satisfied with anything that was done for him. It made him crosser still to see how contented Kami looked, so he took up his whip and suddenly struck him. Kami gave a great jump and cried out with pain.

"What's the matter with you?" said Bobolo.

"You hurt me," sobbed Kami, rubbing the place where he had been hit.

"Hurt you!" mocked Bobolo, striking him again. "You big baby! Now you've something to cry for. I wouldn't cry for a little thing like that!"

"Nobody ever struck you," sobbed Kami; "you don't know how it hurts."

"I should think not!" cried Bobolo, with a sneer. "Strike me! a Prince. But I know I wouldn't cry, anyhow!"

Kami did not answer again, for he knew it might only bring him another blow with the whip. He quietly laid himself down and prepared to sleep. But Bobolo was not sleepy, and he would not have Kami be so. He snarled like a little dog:

"Get out of there! You can lie on the ground to-night; I want your bed!"

Kami knew it would do no good to complain; so he quietly got up, dodged a blow of the whip, and waited patiently until his ugly master should lie down. Bobolo scolded a little while, and then took his place in Kami's bed.

It did not matter much to Kami, for his bed was only an antelope skin, and he could sleep just as well on the ground. He would have gone to Bobolo's bed, but he did not dare; so he crouched down in one corner of the room, and before long both he and his master were fast asleep.

Late that night there was a sudden commotion in the village. Somebody had given the alarm that elephants were coming; and the whole village was roused in an instant.

We who live in great cities far from wild beasts can not at first see why the coming of elephants should create such a stir; but when it is known how the negroes live, we can understand better.

Their huts are small and frail, and the only protection the villages have against the thousands of wild beasts in the forests round about is a slight fence of wood and vines. This does fairly well to keep out the smaller animals; but when a herd of elephants, each one as big and even bigger than Jumbo comes marching along, the fence is no more to them than a sheet of tissue paper would be to a man.

It is not that the elephants are wicked and wish to do any harm, but because they are so huge that they do not think anything more of crashing through a village than a thoughtless child does of putting its foot on a tiny ant's nest. So when the alarm was given this night, every man and woman in the village rushed out, shouting and screaming, some running this way and some that. The men at once caught up blazing torches from the fire to throw at the elephants, because they knew that the great creatures are afraid of flames. The women, at first, did not seem to know what to do, but suddenly one of them cried out: "The children! the children!"

You might have thought, to hear them, that they were afraid some harm might happen to the little ones; but it was no such matter. There is a belief in some parts of Africa that elephants are afraid of the voices of children. So it usually happens that when a herd of elephants is known to be coming, the women all rush to their huts and drag out the children and whip them well to make them scream. It is not very nice for the children, of course, but it is done, nevertheless, and consequently on this night, at the cry of "The children!" all the women rushed to their huts.

Among others Bobolo's mother ran to her hut. Not to get dear Bobolo, for he must never be touched with the whip, but to get Kami. She was in a great hurry, and rushed to Kami's bed, and taking hold of the little sleeper there, dragged him, half-awake only, out into the street, and there laid on the whip so soundly that the little fellow was moved to do his full share toward scaring the elephants. How he did yell! And the more he yelled and struggled, the harder she whipped.

The elephants were frightened away at last, and the children were led back to the hut and put to bed again.

There probably was never a more astonished boy than Bobolo was that night. He was so greatly overcome that he could not say a word, but lay all the rest of the night sobbing with pain and wondering what had happened.

The next morning there was an explanation when his mother saw her darling boy all covered with stripes where she had struck him. It seemed even to that stupid little fellow that there was something like retribution in his punishment, for as it turned out he had been flogged with his own cruel whip, which his mother had picked up by accident as she entered the hut.

However, the result happily was that Bobolo learned two important things. One was how to scare an elephant, and the other was that he would cry if he was struck with a whip. His poor slaves benefited by the last piece of knowledge, for he did not use his whip so freely after that.—Youth's Companion.

A Dangerous Toy.

The toy pistol is so safe, many ignorant persons think, because it carries neither shot nor bullet.

As I tried it once, I can tell you about it. First, I twisted one of the caps around a match, and set the match on fire. When the flame reached the paper cap there was a little explosion. Suddenly I felt a stinging sensation in my hand, and, on looking at it, I found several tiny black splinters sticking in the skin. I pulled them out, but I felt the pain for some time afterward. Then I placed a cap on the hearth and struck it with a hammer. This time I was well scared, and kept my hands as far away as I could. When it went off I felt the same stinging sensation in my left hand, which was more than two feet away. I had been struck again by a flying splinter. This thing was getting decidedly dangerous, and when I took up the pistol to try it, I carefully wrapped my right hand in my handkerchief. It went off beautifully, but—ah! There was the mischief! The handkerchief was dotted here and there with the black splinters from the exploded cap.

The insane desire of the small boy to carry a pistol is one of the wonders of the age; and the worse than folly of those who allow him to do so is almost incredible. Of what use is it? If the pistol will not go off, it is, as its owner would scornfully express it, "no good." If it does go off, it is a dangerous weapon that has power to maim and kill.

Did you ever think what it means to kill—to take away life? Who shall do so dire and terrible a thing as that? Are you fit to have a pistol? Are you wise enough to carry a revolver? No, sir. It is against the law in some States to carry pistols. Why, then, should you wish a toy-pistol, that will shoot nothing but the boy who holds it? If you live in the backwoods, and have to fight the terrible wild crow or the ferocious chipmunk, you may learn to use a good rifle. In cities and towns, where the most terrific wild beasts to be seen are the cats, a boy who carries a pistol is a boy without sense—a boy whom girls despise and brave boys call a coward.—Charles Barnard, in St. Nicholas.

What Is a Gentleman?

What is a gentleman? It is a very old question and has been answered in very different ways, but it is clear that the word at least has a relative and not an absolute meaning as some insist, and that it varies with the times. Here is what Lord Chesterfield says, which the members of the Four-in-Hand Club will read with interest: "A gentleman always attends even to the choice of his amusements. If at cards he will not play cribbage, all fours, or putt; or in sports of exercise be seen at skittles, leap-frog, foot-ball, cricket, driving of coaches, etc., for he knows that such an imitation of the manners of the mob will indelibly stamp him with vulgarity." In another of his letters to his son he says: "There are liberal and illiberal pleasures, as well as liberal and illiberal arts. Scottish drunkenness, indiscriminate gluttony, driving coaches, rustic sports, such as fox-chases, horse-races, etc, are infinitely below the honest and industrious professions of a tailor and a shoemaker." And yet people who call themselves gentlemen do most of these things nowadays, and even those who are not gentlemen consider themselves such in consequence of doing some of them. Between Lord Chesterfield's ideas and Mr. Tennyson's on the subject, who is to decide?—Pall Mall Gazette.

—The general appearance of cattle on the Wyoming ranges of this year is said to be far better than the average of previous years. In some districts in Central Wyoming they are in superior condition. The loss by death in the winter was small, and the number of calves satisfactory.—Chicago Tribune.

—Mid-ocean telegraph stations have been proposed, and will probably be carried out some day.—N. Y. Sun.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. JULY 18 .1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
"	½ "	40
¼ "	½ "	20
¼ "	1 "	20
"	¼ "	10
"	⅛ "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (excepting the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

THE lamb crop has been pretty much driven out of the county.

IF nothing happens to the crop, tobacco will be the source of a large revenue in this county again this season.

WITH the yellow fever in the south and the cholera in the east, it begins to look like the country is threatened with pestilence.

TOM THUMB (Charles Haywood Stratton) died of apoplexy on the 15th inst., aged 43 years; most of his life having been spent on the stage.

ONE of the attractions at the camp meeting near Corinth, Grant county, on the 1st and 2nd of next month, will be the sermons delivered by Rev. T. Dewitt Talmage.

THE seashore is at present attracting most of the local politicians of high and low degree. They bathe, they eat, they drink and in an informal way make the slates for the fall.

HOGS—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $5 20@5 40; fair to good packers, at $4 80@5 25; fair to good light, $5 40@5 65; common, $4 25@4 80; culls, $3 50@4 25; stock hogs, $4 25@5 00.

OUR old friend and fellow-citizen, William Nelson, now has charge of the local department of the Lawrenceburg Daily Press. Mr. Nelson has returned to his first love, and will make the Press spicy and interesting in all the details of its local news.

TOM BUFORD writes to Governor Blackburn from Indiana, that he is short $75 on his board bill, and that he wants the Court of Appeals to send him that $500 it owes him on account of his sister. Thomas ought to come over to Kentucky and collect up those little bills owing to him.

GOV. J. C. UNDERWOOD, Editor of the Cincinnati News-Journal, has written to the Directors of the Madison county Fair, offering a premium of fifty dollars in gold to the handsomest lady in attendance upon said fair. The premium will be awarded by a committee of five ladies, on the last day of the fair.—Richmond Herald.

VENNOR says for this August: The first week of the month is likely to give heat and some severe storms where these were experienced last year. Hail should be guarded against in Western sections. I think the fore portion of the month will be characterized by wide spread heat. First change to cooler weather after the 10th, when a very decided relapse to cool weather may take place with even snowfalls in the mountains.

WHILE the London authorities were dilly-dalying about protecting the city against an invasion by the cholera, the scourge quietly made its way into their midst, and great excitement now prevails there. The British shipping has never stopped sending its vessels through the infected districts, and it is probable that every ship that has passed through the Suez Canal the past month has carried the cholera out to other countries. People in this part of the world should take warning and make such arragements as the threatening scourge demands to baffle its effect.

LIVELY war is now being made on the trade dollar. Those who have it, want it off their hands, and those who have it not, refuse to take it except from 10 to 15 cents discount. In the mean time reliable Treasury officials advise all who possess the objectionable dollar to hold on to it, because at an early day the Treasury Department will urge Congress to provide for its redemption at par. This will be no more than fair and honest, but in the meantime most of the dollars will have found their way into the hands of the brokers who will be the only ones to profit by this tardy justice, while the poor and the wage workers, who are compelled to receive it at the face value will be the losers.

THIS AND THAT.

In some sections of our county the question of county aid, or county taxation for turnpike purposes is assuming a leading position in county affairs. The subject is one of vast importance to the county generally, and of special inportance to the property owners; for we may safely assume that whatever aid is given to turnpikes must come from them in the shape of an advalorum tax, because our capitation tax has now reached that standard, which to heighten will decrease the revenue derived from that source. The county expenses now absorb the poll tax, and will continue to do so unless someone will devise a plan to enable the sheriff to coerse payment from the polls not able to pay and have nothing to pay with, and thereby increase the county revenue by reducing the delinquent list, or in other words, teach the sheriff to draw blood from a turnip.

The people of this county are as able to stand any reasonable amount of taxation for a proper purpose as any farming community anywhere; but then they have no kind of hankering after, or a love for it, grateful as it may appear to those who have experienced its blessing in the shape of good school-houses, good roads and other useful, necessary public structures and conveniencies.

Our people are strongly inclined to oppose all and every improvement of a public nature attended by a tax, unless the thing itself be so located as to be bodily in sight and at each man's door. If a bridge is to be erected, all oppose it except the few who are in sight of the structure and must use it on all occasions. If a school-house for the public school is needed, those able to pay the necessary tax oppose it, and propose a subscription; but mark you, no objector to the tax heads or circulates the paper. "I pay for my children's schooling, let others do the same." That is the argument, and its conclusiveness is beyond question to those using it, though in many instances the schooling referred to is a myth. Suppose, now, the question of continuing the common school tax was submitted to the vote of this county at the August election, who doubts the result? The county of Boone would vote against that tax, vote it down by an overwhelming majority.

No word in the English language is more hideous to us than the word tax. School tax—that is fearful. It is robbery to compel one person to assist in educating another's children, as no one is interested in his neighbor's affairs. Especially is it the hight of tyranny to compel us to assist in educating our poor neighbor's children. No, let us do as we please with our money—every cent of it is ours. We make it, what care we about educating these poor children? Let them grow up in darkness and when they become men and women, if they don't behave and make good citizens, we will put them in some place prepared for them with the devil and his angels. We have no kind of interest in the education of any children except our own. And so we go on in that strain of logic, and irrationally, finally conclude that each man's entire interest and happiness is now and ever will be governed and circumscribed by the limits of his immediate household—that everyone lives to and for himself.

The school tax is a huge monster, fastened upon us, sucking away slowly our life blood, Bounty Fund tax, a great convulsion of the past, cyclones, tornadoes, hurricans, volcanoes, earthquakes, war, pestilence and famine all combined, from which a kind providence and human uncertainty ransomed us, though the fright will pass on with its electrical effect and fire sparkling and scissing as it goes down to our seventh generation. Turnpike tax next.

* * *

Now that Butler's chances for the Presidency are assuming a little definite aspect, the South arises and opposes such a step. Said a Virginia Senator the other day: "The Northern Democrats cannot afford to heap such an insult on the South as to shove Butler forward. The old feud is dead and forgotten, but the widows, the sons and daughters of those that fell cannot forget or forgive the actions of some men when they were in power. The nomination of Butler would insure the election of the Republican candidate."

THE courageous act of a lady, who found her husband at the Manhattan Beach Hotel, dining with a gay young woman and cowhided her, will have the effect of dampening the ardor of many an industrious Lothario, who is never too weary to take out ladies other than his wife.

GRAVES county is sorely troubled with flux and cholera morbus, the former being an epidemic, from which a number of deaths have resulted.

The Commonwealth Distribution Company an Illegal and Fraudulent Lottery—How Buyers of Lottery Tickets are Swindled.

[To the Editor of the Courier-Journal.]

In your issue of the 13th of June appeared a communication of mine, containing the following assertions, among others, relative to the Commonwealth Distribution Lottery Company, of this city.

First—That it is an illegal lottery.

Second—That it is utterly irresponsible, there being no liability whatever in law on either the managers or any other person to pay any prize that may be drawn.

Fourth—That every person who in Kentucky buys a ticket from this fradulent and illegal lottery is himself liable to a fine of $100.

Fifth—That, because its fradulent and illegal character is so well known in this State, the company has ceased selling lottery tickets here, and is confining its swindling operations to other States, where its proper standing is not known.

I cited the decision of our Court of Appeals in the case of Meredith against the Barrows, announced February 17, 1882, in which most of the foregoing allegations were directly sustained. I dare the Commonwealth Distribution Company to deny the statements contained in my communication. I challenge them to appear in print over the signature of any one of their authorized agents, and to name the grant under which they are operating.

Have they accepted my challenge? They have not, and furthermore, they dare not.

You know this company Mr. Editor, as well as I, and perhaps much better. Their offices are in your building, and they are sending circulars by the hundred thousand all over this country, in which they have the stupendous audacity to use your well-known and highly-respected name as a reference for the legality and honesty of their fradulent concern. I have a copy of that circular now in my possession, the opening sentence of which is a reference to the Courier-Journal as to the legality and honesty of this lottery

Just think of the company's hardihood! Although an outlaw in its own State; although declared illegal and irresponsible by the highest court in this State; although not daring to sell any tickets in this State because of its established illegality; although several of its officers are under indictment in the Circuit Court of this county because of operating an illegal lottery, and although its principal manager R. M. Boardman, was put on trial in that court before Judge Jackson, and on the 14th of June, 1883, was convicted and fined $500, still in the face of all these facts which are matters of record, this company has the prodigious cheek to use the fair and esteemed name of your paper as a voucher for its false claims to legality and honesty.

Honesty, indeed! Here is an affidavit, Mr. Editor, and I have two others containing the same statements, which will show the public how exceedingly "honest" this fraudulent lottery is:

"CITY OF LOUISVILLE, STATE OF KENTUCKY, ss.: Henry Ellis Foster, being duly sworn, says: "My name is Henry E. Foster, am thirty-two years old; reside at No. 717 West Chestnut street, Louisville, and have lived there since September, 1882; am an insurance agent. I attended the monthly drawing of the Commonwealth Distribution Company which took place to-day, June 30, 1883. I was at the door of the office at 5 o'clock in the morning. The door was not then open. I waited around until the door was opened which occurred at a quarter past 7 o'clock, and at once went in. I had to show my ticket in order to get in. I was the first one to get in of the spectators, of whom there were four others. When I got in all the tickets had been already placed in the wheel, and no opportunity whatever was given me to see whether the number of the ticket I held was put in the wheel or not. The tickets had been put in before the door was opened, for when I got in all the employes were at their respective posts and the drawing was in operation. The drawing was completed at a quarter past 9.

H. E. FOSTER.

"Subscribed and sworn to before me this 30th day of June, 1883.

S. W. D. STONE,

"Notary Public, Jefferson co., Ky."

I have, also the affidavit of Mr. James D. Gilman, who resides at 120 West Jefferson street, Louisville, and who has lived in this city and vicinity all his life, in which he says that he tried to gain admission to the drawing this morning, but, not having a ticket, they would not let him in.

If this drawing is honest, will Mr. Boardman tell us why it takes place at such an early hour as 7 o'clock in the morning?

If this drawing is honest, will Mr. B. tell us why he holds it in his private office instead of in Macauley's Theater, as he used to do formerly?

If this drawing is honest, will Mr. B tell us why the tickets are put in the wheel before the door is opened and before any outsider can get in to see what tickets are put into the wheel?

If this drawing is honest, will Mr. B. tell us why no opportunity whatever was given the three or four spectators who were present this morning to see whether the numbers on the tickets held by them had been placed in the wheel or not?

The fact is, Mr. Editor, and everybody here in Louisville knows it, the numbers of those tickets only which have not been sold are put in the wheel, the number of the sold tickets being left out so that no ticket-holder has any chance whatever to draw a prize. Of course the company do sometimes, just for a blind, give a small prize here and there, but this is done to gull the credulous patrons of their lottery.

In conclusion, Mr. Editor, I would say that every lottery is to a certain extent a necessary evil. But men will speculate in chances. This however is no reason why they should be swindled out of their money by giving them no chance to get any return at all for their investment. This is what the Commonwealth Distribution Company is doing; it is confessedly illegal and fraudulent—an out-and-out swindle, and a disgrace to the State of Kentucky.

CITIZEN.

—Louisville, (Ky.) Courier-Journal, July 1.

LOOK! LOOK!! LOOK!!!

From JULY 1st, to AUG., 1st, Custom Made suits will be on the average $5 less. Ready Made suits have been reduced 25 per cent.

The stock is large and must be disposed of to make room for my Fall Goods, let every one take advantage of the great reduction. H. F. BLASE, 540 Madison St., Covington, Ky.

$88.00 FOR ONLY $59.00 FREIGHT PREPAID.

BEATTY'S PARLOR ORGANS ONLY $59

Regular Price, $83.00 without BENCH, BOOK and MUSIC.

24 STOPS. 1-Cello, 8 ft. tone, 2-Melodia, 8 ft. tone, 3-Clarabella, 8 ft. tone, 4-Manual Sub-Bass, 16 ft. tone, 5-Bourdon, 16 ft. tone, 6-Saxaphone, 8 ft. tone, 7-Viol di Gamba, 8 ft. tone, 8-Diapason, 8 ft. tone, 9-Viola Dolce, 4 ft. tone, 10-Grand Expressione, 11-French Horn, 8 ft. tone, 12-Harp Æoline, 13-Vox Humana, 14-Echo, 8 ft. tone, 15-Dulciana, 8 ft. tone, 16-Clarionet, 8 ft. tone, 17-Voix Celeste, 8 ft. tone, 18-Violina, 4 ft. tone, 19-Vox Jubilante, 8 ft. tone, 20-Piccolo, 4 ft. tone, 21-Coupler Harmonique, 22-Orchestral Forte, 23-Grand Organ Knee Stop, 24-Right Organ Knee Stop.

This Organ is a triumph of the Organ Builder's Art. IT IS VERY BEAUTIFUL IN APPEARANCE, BEING EXACTLY LIKE CUT. The Case is of Solid Walnut, profusely ornamented with hand-carving and expensive fancy veneers. The Music Pocket is of the most beautiful design extant. It is deserving of a place in the millionaire's parlor, and would ornament the boudoir of a princess.

FIVE SETS REEDS. Five Octaves, handsome appearance. It will not take the dirt or dust. It contains the Sweet VOIX CELESTE Stop, the Famous French Horn, Solo Combination, New Grand Organ, Right and Left Knee Stops, to control the entire motion by the knee, if necessary. Five (5) sets of GOLDEN TONGUE REEDS, as follows: A set of powerful Sub-Base Reeds; set of 3 Octaves of VOIX CELESTE; one set of FRENCH HORN REEDS, and 2½ Octaves each of Regular GOLDEN TONGUE REEDS. Besides all this, it will be fitted up with an OCTAVE COUPLER, which doubles the power of the instrument. Lamp Stands, Pocket for Music, Beatty's Patent Stop Action, also sounding Board, &c. It has a Sliding Lid and conveniently arranged Handles for moving. The Bellows, which are of the upright pattern, are made from the best quality of Rubber Cloth, are of great power, and are fitted up with Steel Springs and the best quality Pedal Straps. The Pedals, instead of being covered with carpet, are Polished Metal of neat design, and never get out of repair or worn.

SPECIAL TEN-DAY OFFER. If you will remit me $59 and the annexed Coupon within 10 days from the date of this Newspaper, I will box and ship you this Organ, with Organ Bench, Book, etc., exactly the same as I sell for $88. You should order immediately, and in no case later than 10 days. One year's test trial given and a full warrantee for Six Years. Given under my Hand and Seal.

Daniel F. Beatty

COUPON On receipt of this Coupon and $35.00 in cash by Bank Draft, Post Office Money Order, Registered Letter, Express Prepaid, or by Check on your bank, if forwarded within 10 days from the date hereof, I hereby agree to accept this coupon for $24, as part payment on my celebrated 24 Stop $88 Parlor Organ, with Bench, Book, etc., provided the cash balance of $59 accompanies this coupon; and I will send you a receipted bill in full for $88, and box and ship you the Organ just as it is advertised, fully warranted for six years. Money refunded with interest from the date of remittance if not as represented after one year's use. (Signed.) DANIEL F. BEATTY. $24

FREIGHT PREPAID. As a further inducement for you (provided you order immediately, within the 10 days,) I agree to prepay freight on the above organ to your nearest railroad freight station, any point east of the Mississippi River, or that far on any going west of it. This is a rare opportunity to place an instrument, as it were, at your very door, all freight prepaid, at manufacturer's wholesale prices. Order now; nothing saved by correspondence.

HOW TO ORDER. Enclosed find $59 for organ. I have read your statement in this advertisement, and I order one on condition that it must prove exactly as represented in this advertisement, or I shall return it at the end of one year's use and demand the return of my money, with interest from the very moment I forward it, at six per cent, according to your offer. Be very particular to give Name, Post Office, County, State, Freight Station, and on what Railroad. Be sure to remit by Bank Draft, P. O. Money Order, Registered Letter, Express prepaid, or by Bank Check. You may accept by telegraph on last day and remit by mail on that day, which will secure this special offer. I desire this magnificent instrument introduced without delay, hence this special price, PROVIDING ORDER IS GIVEN IMMEDIATELY.

Address or call on the Manufacturer, DANIEL F. BEATTY, Washington, N. J.

New Style No. 1215.—Height, 72 ins. Depth, 24 ins. Length 46 ins. Weight, boxed, about 400 lbs.

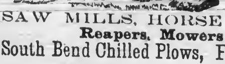
THE political teapot in Washington begins to simmer mildly. Prominent parties, here, who have the opportunity to keep posted, argue that the workingmen are going to have a very great and decisive influence, not only in the Presidential election next year, but in the nomination. This is a strange doctrine to be enunciated in Washington, where the workingman is not recognized as a factor in anything beyond the hewing of wood and the drawing of water, but it is asserted that they are better organized now than at any period in the history of the nation, and that they feel their power. They have been knocking at the doors of Congress for legislation for years, and now they are about ready to demand, as a right, what they have heretofore asked as a favor. They want among other things, an eight hour law that will be general in its operation, and they want more pay. These are the two pivotal ideas in the briefest way it can be put. How they are going to work on the parties is not yet made manifest. There is, however, a foreshadowing that the workingmen may take up Ben. Butler, who seems now to be making himself very popular with this class.

A COLORED man named Armistead, of Virginia, is making speeches in eastern Kentucky in the interest of the democracy. He spoke in Frankfort Saturday night.

Down in Ballard county they have a candidare for the legislature whose nickname is "Honey." Up in Owsly county they have another candidate for the same body whose nickname is "Peach." Should they both be elected, their brother members will not have to depend on the Frankfort saloons for "Peach and Honey."—Breckenridge News.

BEING marshal of a Kentucky town is about the most serious business a man can engage. At least half a dozen of them have been murdered since the 1st of January, and every man of them carries his life in his hands. Saturday night Marshal Kensley, of Greensburg, and four deputies attempted to arrest a man named Owen on a felony warrant. Owen and a number of friends were waiting for the Marshal, and the result was a battle, in which Kensley and one of the deputies were killed.—Louisville Post.

Subscribe for the RECORDER.



A. M. Elliott & Co,

—DEALERS IN—

Threshers,

Engines,

SAW MILLS, HORSE POWERS, BUCKEYE Reapers, Mowers and Self-Binders, South Bend Chilled Plows, Furst & Bradley Steel Plows.

Buggies, Wagons and Farming Implements in General.

Give us a call. Satisfaction guaranteed in every sale. Corner second and Judiciary Streets, Aurora, Indiana. 33-6t

NOTICE.

Know all men by this notice: That Elzy Garrison, H. A. Hicks, B. L. Rice, C. C. Talbott, Wallace Garrison, John S. Mason and T. A. Huey, under the name and style of the Richwood and Big Bone Turnpike Co., have associated themselves together to contract and operate a turnpike road, beginning at its intersection with the Union and Beaver Lick turnpike, just southeast of Dr. H. C. Lassing's residence, in Boone county, Kentucky, and running thence in a general westwardly direction along an established and surveyed route, in a main line to Elzy Garrison's gate, and consisting of said main line and a branch turnpike, beginning at Robert Willis' corner with Richard Howlett, on the old Big Bone and Union dirt road, running in a general northwardly direction until it intersects the general main line at a point S. E. of C. T. Rice's old homestead. Said main line and branch road shall be called the Richwood & Big Bone Turnpike.

Big Bone or some point on the road shall be the principal place of business.

The amount of capital stock shall be $10,000, to be paid in as the work progresses.

Said corporation shall date from June 9, 1883, and continue fifty years.

Its officers shall be a President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer and five directors, all of whom shall be elected annually on January 1st of each year.

It shall not subject itself, at any time, to a greater liability or indebtedness than $6,000.

Private property shall be exempt from corporate debts.

ELZIE GARRISON, H. A. HICKS, B. L. RICE,
WALLACE GARRISON, JOHN S. MASON,
COURTNEY C. TALBOTT. T. A. HUEY.
June 12, 4t.

LUMBER.

A. Corbin & Son.

—) BELLEVUE, KY., (—

Will sell the best Hemlock Stock Boards at $13 00.

Best Hemlock fencing at	$13 00
Standard Shingles at	$4 50
Weather boarding, white pine,	$18
Flooring, yellow pine, at	$35

Doors, Window Sash and blinds always on hands.

Prices subject to a chance without notice. Persons who contemplate building will do well to call and see us before purchasing.

A. Corbin & Son.,
Bellevue, Ky.

Farm for Sale.

A small farm of 11½ acres, on the Covington and Lexington pike, at the top of Willow Run Hill. On it are a commodious house, necessary out buildings and a good orchard. Title good. Call on W. O. Tupman, Sheriff's Office, Covington, Thomas Tupman, Kenton Heights or W. L. Riddell, Burlington.

W. J. RICE.
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.

Is prepared Raise or Move EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS On Short Notice,

And at the Lowest Possible Figures.

33-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

LUMBER.

Goe. M. Bedinger & Co.,

Erlanger, - - Ky.

We keep constantly on hand all kinds of Lumber, Laths and Shingles. Also Builder's supplies of all kinds.

—Come and see Us.—

may 9-6

Erlanger Hotel.

JOHN L. CONNER, Prop.
C. F. PETTIT, Clerk.

First-Class Hotel Accommodations, with a thorough Feed and Sale Stable attached.

Having returned to my Hotel stand after a years absence, I will be glad to have my old patrons and friends, and new ones I hope to make, call upon me, when we will use every effort to make it pleasant and agreeable for all. 25-3m

LOOK HERE!

when you go to Lawrenceburg, call on

Winegardner

He has a large assortment of

Wall Paper!

And is daily receiving additions to his stock. Call and examine before purchasing.

Inks, Pens and Stationary

constantly on hand.

Headquarters in Lotton House.

Farm for Sale.

I am offering for sale my farm, lying 8 miles south of Burlington on the Big Bone road, containing 55¼ acres, a part of the Mason Crisler farm. The land lays well and is conveniently located, the improvements are a good brick house and all necessary out buildings, and a variety of good fruit. Any person desirous of purchasing a nice farm will do well to come and examine the premises and learn terms. Title good. MRS. OSCAR CRISLER.

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley.
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U. Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk; A. G. DeJarnette, Commonwealths Attorney; N. E. Hawes, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. Ed Fowler, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday. Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and L. A. Lader fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

Beever—W. M. Rouse, Friday after the third Monday, and

E. E. IGOE,
Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun, Ind.

AYER'S PILLS.

A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.

These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.

A Sufferer from Headache writes:

"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.

W. L. PAGE, of W. L. Page & Bro."

Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable. J. T. HAYES."

Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.

The REV. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.

PREPARED BY

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists.

YOUNG, OLD, AND MIDDLE-AGED. All experience the wonderful beneficial effects of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Children with Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, or any scrofulous or syphilitic taint, may be made healthy and strong by its use. Sold by all Druggists; $1, six bottles for $5.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

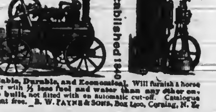
FLORESTON COLOGNE

Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.

Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines.
2 to 100 Horse Power.

Reliable, Durable, and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ½ less fuel and water than any other engine built, not fitted with an automatic cut-off. Catalogue sent free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1200, Corning, N. Y.

$1000 REWARD For any machine hulling and cleaning as fit for market as much Clover Seed in one DAY as the VICTOR Double Huller.



VICTOR ILLUSTRATED Pamphlet mailed FREE. NEWARK MACHINE CO. NEWARK, O.

W. N. STAGE, Gen. Travelling Agt. Louisville, Ky

STATE COLLEGE OF KENTUCKY.

UNSECTARIAN. Fall session begins Sept. 13, 1883. Fifteen Professors and Instructors. Scientific, Classical, Agricultural, Normal School and Commercial Courses of Study. Tuition and Matriculation fees, $20 per annum. Board in dormitory, $2.25 per week; in private families, $4.50. 320 students last year. Buildings, apparatus & machinery entirely new. Capacity for 600 students. Range of study wider and expenses less than any college in Kentucky. For catalogues apply to Judge W. B. KINKEAD, or to JAMES K. PATTERSON, Ph. D., President of the College, Lexington, Ky.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST." ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers (Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

NAVAL Agents Wanted for Ancient & Modern BATTLES. New and graphic Pictorial History of the great Sea fights of the World. By Medical Director SHIPPEN, U. S. N. Address J. C. McCURDY & CO., 120 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard Books & Bibles works of character; great variety; low in price, selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 30 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

Local News.

We are authorized to announce JAMES R. CLUTTERBUCK as a candidate for Sheriff at the August election, 1883, subject, however, to the action of the democratic party.

We are authorized to announce Dr. S. S. SCOTT as a candidate to represent Boone county in the next General Assembly, subject however, to the action of the democratic party.

We are authorized to announce N. S. WALTON as a candidate for the legislature, subject to the action of the democratic party.

Nice rain Saturday night.

Our doctors are having a vacation.

The hum of the threshing machine is next to be heard.

Miss Mary A. Thompson's school closed last Friday.

Many thanks to Mr. William Rouse for some nice apples.

A very lively wind storm visited this section last Friday night.

Hay harvest about done, and the grass was put up in good order.

An unusual quiet has prevailed in our town since harvest commenced.

A. O. Hall has been manipulating the mail on this route for the last two weeks.

Our County Clerk has been on the sick list for two or three days, but able to attend to business.

Bullittsville is organizing a base-ball nine to be composed of the best material to be had in the county.

The good effects of Ayer's Sarsaparilla on a debilitaded person are felt at once, and a cure follows its use.

Dudley Rouse has erected a porch in front of his store room, which adds much to the comfort of his building.

Laura A. Baker, daughter of Thos. Baker, of Union, was adjudged a lunatic by the County Court last Thursday.

In this issue we publish the order calling for a vote on the local option question in the Hamilton voting district.

Happy Jack has a splendid "crap" of "turbacker." A "bumble" bee can stand flat-footed on the ground and suck the blossoms.

Rev. Ad. Gaines will occupy the pulpit in the Universalist church, the morning and afternoon of the fifth Sunday in this month.

The Lawrenceburg Register of last week contains an advertisement of a sale of real estate by an administrator that occupies two and one-half columns, very small type.

We hear that Dr. Maxwell is again giving his mental apparatus some exercise over the perpetual motion problem. Doctor, if you make it work, your name will be perpetuated.

We have received the catalogue of premiums for the approaching Lawrenceburg fair. It is quite lengthy and the premiums offered are very liberal. Kentucky patronizes that fair extensively.

Nice tombstones or monuments at the graves of the departed, are marks of respect which should not be neglected. Hurschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., have just what you want. John Beall, of Hebron, is their agent.

We met Alf. Gaines on the Lexington pike, the other evening, driving seven or eight hundred very fine lambs, and he did not bear the appearance of a man who was going to lose a couple of dollars on each lamb; but vice versa.

Last Saturday James Bills and Lizzie Meyers, from Constance, came to town and securing the necessary papers, repaired to the residence of Elder H. J. Foster, where they were united in the holy bonds of matrimony and sent on their way rejoicing.

Tim Westbay convinced us, last press day, that he is one the cleverest fellows in town, and we shall keep our No. 10's in readiness to do some lively tripping of the light fantastic, when he celebrates the event that will endow him with the qualifications of a juror.

The school commissioner requests us to announce that the board of school examiners will meet in Burlington on the third and fourth Saturdays in July and August for the purpose of examining those who desire certificates to teach the public schools in this county. All desiring certificates are requested to be on hand one of those days. The examination will commence promptly at 10 o'clock a. m.

There was a good attendance at the picnic Saturday afternoon, and had it not been for the rain that evening Viola Park would have been the scene of much of Boone's beauty and chivalry. After it became evident that the rain would interfere with the dancing if continued in the woods, the crowd went to Morgan Academy where the amusement was kept up till near midnight. Everything passed off nicely, and everybody present had a nice time.

John D. Norris, the well-known turfman of Boone county, now has eight fine horses quartered in the new stables on the fair grounds. Several of them are very speedy, and will make the winner of the races in which they are entered trot for all there is in them to win. Morgan Davis has charge of the flyers. Mr. Frank Grant, of Petersburg owns one of the fast ones in charge of Mr. Davis, and great things are expected of this horse. If he possesses half the energy of his owner, this horse's success on the turf is assured.—Lawrenceburg Register.

Dog-fennel is in bloom.

James Conner has handled 1700 lambs this season.

News scarce this week. Everybody is in the havest-field.

The warm, damp weather is calculated to injure the wheat in the shock.

The Sunday-school Convention convenes at Sand Run church day after to-morrow.

Wm. Belloney, colored, and Jeannett Victor, white, were married at Catlettsburg the other day.

The frequent showers have been somewhat annoying to the farmers who had grass to save.

The blackberry brigade will be mustered into service in a few days. The crop of berries will be good.

Michael Reets, of New York, while reading the Bible was struck by lightning and killed, on the 13th inst.

Quite a procession of seiners left town Tuesday morning for the river where they anticipated taking a large quantity of brain food.

The price of admission to the Southern Exposition at Louisville will be fifty cents, which will evidently curtail the attendance.

An emigrant's wagon passed through town Tuesday morning headed for the West, where the driver expects to grow up with the country.

Our old friend, Isaac McMullen, aged 75 years, takes two good horses to the field with him when he goes to plow, being able to make them both weary before night-fall.

Walter Ryle, constable in the Carlton district, was in town Tuesday morning after Attorney Tolin, who was wanted at Rabbit Hash to prosecute a negro man that has been giving that locality trouble. The negro it is said is either crazy or a very mean animal.

Commencing with to-day, I will run a comfortable passenger conveyance from Burlington to Cincinnati by the way of Covington, every Wednesday, leaving at 6 o'clock a. m., returning, will leave Cincinnati at 3 o'clock p. m. Round trip, $1 25. JAS. WESTBAY.

M. T. Garnett, C. L. Crisler, Charles Fowler, Frank Kirkpatrick, Georgie Piper and the writer, visited Joe Schlosser's ponds near Covington, last Friday, with a view to taking some of the fine German Carp and other varieties of the fish with which those ponds abound. Having replenished Joe's exchequer to the tune of $8, they were granted the privilege of the ponds, when they cast their lines and the fun commenced and continued till late in the afternoon, resulting in the capture of about a dozen fine carp that weighed from one pound to two and one-half pounds each, besides near a half bushel "small fry." The proprietor was with the boys nearly all day, expatiating in his jovial manner on the merits of the carp, apparently knowing the age and weight of every fish that inhabits the ponds, and there are myriads of them, both great and small. The boys, while they are well pleased with their day's sport, anticipate taking an immense quantity on their next visit, from the fact that they intend to have Schlosser and Crisler wade through the ponds, which will result in forcing the water out, when they will have nothing to do but scoop up the fish.

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

Major Sandford took in Burlington yesterday.

Miss Susie Rich is the guest of Mrs. W. F. McKim.

Capt. G. W. Terrill, of Petersburg, was in town Tuesday.

Owen Utz, of the Union neighborhood was in town Monday.

Miss Paulin, of Cincinnati, is the guest of Miss Mary A. Thompson.

John Sherrill and Joe Weston, of Cincinnati, were in town Sunday.

Miss Laura Zinn and Miss Kittie Riddell are the guests of Miss Nettie Gardner.

Mrs. T. W. Finch and children returned Sunday, from a visit to Williamstown.

J. K. Armstrong, of Covington, accompanied by a handsome lady, made the town a flying visit last Sunday.

Mrs. Parish, and her husband and mother, all of Owen county, were the guests of Mrs. B. K. Sleet, last Saturday

Miss Kate Bradford, of Florence, and Miss Lottie Reed and Mr. Davrainville, of Cincinnati, were the guests of Mrs. F. A. Hall Sunday.

Miss Bessie Rouse, grand-daughter of Uncle Billy Rouse, returned, Monday, from Cincinnati where she has been visiting since the 4th inst. She is highly pleased with her visit, and says she made two mashes.

Died.

At the home of her parents in Hancock county, Illinois, Miss Susie M. Cloud, after a long and painful illness. The deceased has many relatives in this county.

Mrs. E. A. Tucker, daughter of Allen Conner, of Florence, died last Saturday afternoon. She was a victim of consumption, and leaves many friends who sympathize with her family and husband in their sad bereavement. The funeral was preached, Monday, by Rev. C. C. Conner, after which the remains were taken to Spring Grove Cemetery, back of Cincinnati, for interment.

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Hebron.

Geo. Knapp got the fingers on one hand so badly mashed, that the end of two of them had to be amputated.

Henry Aylor has taken 10 barrels of honey this season.

Harrison Clore has 61 acres of oats in one field.

Miss Gussie Hinton, of St. Louis, Mo., is visiting Michael Clore's.

Richard Gordon lost a valuable horse this week.

Miss Mamie Gedge is visiting Mrs. L. B. Terrill.

Beaver Lick.

Mr. George Miller is about finishing the beautiful two story front he is building, and when it is done, if nothing goes to the contrary, a nice hop is promised the young friends of his family.

Mr. John H. Slater has a couple of pigs that are a remarkable curiosity, and it is worth the worry of a long trip to see them. They are a month old and doing well. If they live, Mr. Slater intends presenting them to the Zoological Garden of Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mr. William Howlett has taken thirteen barrels of honey from his bees this season. This shows that Boone county certainly is a kind of sweet place.

Our bird fanciers, Ed Williams and Bill Dickison, each have a pair of young, southern mocking birds in cages, which the parent birds are feeding. This will be quite a nice addition to Beaver's feathery minstrelry, and don't you forget it.

During the present month the Hughes Chapel will be finished, and on the first Sabbath in August it will be dedicated by Bishop Covanaugh, assisted by many of the leading divines of the country. Dinner will be served on the grounds at the church, and everybody is invited to come and bring their baskets well filled. A general good time is promised all who may meet with us.

Dame Rumor has it that some couple is going to get married about Beaver soon, if there isn't something done to prevent it. This event has been anticipated many times within the knowledge of "us," but somehow it would never materialize just right.

Florence X-Roads.

Miss Florence Seaman and Miss Florence Smith, of Covington, are visiting Miss Octavia Rouse.

Miss Eva Stephens, of Covington, is visiting Miss Anna Crigler.

J. W. Rouse and wife have been on the sick list for a few weeks with malarial fever.

Elder Gran preached a very lengthy and interesting sermon on the mode of baptism, at the Hebron church, last Sunday evening.

Petersburg.

This is soda water weather.

The town is flooded with loafers since the distillery stopped.

The largest Irish potato we have seen this year was raised by A. B. Parker. It weighed 17 ounces.

Early & Rariden have the contract for plastering the Christian church.

The serenaders were out last Friday night, and furnished some good music.

Capt. N. B. McNeely will return to his home in Memphis, Tenn., sometime this week much improved in health.

Miss Hattie Thompson, of Rising Sun, was visiting Mrs. Bowman, last week.

John Comer, of Cincinnati was home on a visit last week.

Miss Brodbeck, of Lawrenceburg, was the guest of Miss Allie Snyder, last Saturday and Sunday.

Saturday week the Almonts and the Speedwells, the latter playing four of the Burlingtons best players, commenced a game of ball on the Burlington ground, but only seven innings were played when the Speedwells withdrew, claiming that the umpire was ruling unfairly; but not so. The umpire was doing the best he knew how, and showing no partiality to either side. The Almonts were too many for the Speedwells, and they knew it, and also knew it was no use to rule the umpire out, for they were beaten and could no help it, as the Almonts led in the beginning, and at the end of the 6th inning the score stood 19 to 5. The Almonts claim the game and the ball which they did not get. Boys, you cannot play ball a little "bit," but you are good kickers.

The Rabbit Hash ball team failed to put in its appearance, from some cause, last Saturday.

Stott Bros. have the nobbiest cigar sign in town. It's a daisy.

Mr. Robert Huey, son of J. S. Huey, and Miss Lulie Carver, grandaughter of S. P. Brady, will be married in the Baptist church at Bellevue, by Rev. E. N. Dicken, to-morrow evening at 8 o,clock.

The hog market took a big tumble the other day, and those buying hogs for July delivery will have pains in the region of the pocket-book.

Telling it very Short.

"I'll tell it, sir, in few words if I can, but the story would fill a book if justice was done to it."

"Surely, Michael, but put it short this time so's I can squeeze it into a page of letter paper."

"Here you are, sir, then, and there are thousands of people here in Bingham, N. Y., who will testify to the truth of what I say. My name is Michael Guilfoyle. I am seventy-four years old. For about nine years I was almost shut out from the world by rheumatism. I had peddled small wares in this city for years, and had to stop altogether. At the best of times I could only hobble miserably about with my cane. I was bent nearly double with pain and weakness, and my hands were useless to labor with. I was but the poor wreck of a once strong man. None of the medicines usually given for rheumatism did me the least good, sir. My old friends and customers forgot me, as though I were under ground,

'With the end of my nose and the tip of my toes
Turned up to the roots of the daises.'

My days and nights were doleful and painful. I had no hope except death. That is God's truth, and Mr. Mosher, here, knows it.

"I can't tell you how, but PARKER'S TONIC cured me. That was three years ago, I'm lively as a cricket now, sir and go my business rounds every day, rain or shine. You may tell this to all the world, and refer the doubters to me."

This preparation, which has been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will be called simply PARKER'S TONIC. This change is made for two reasons: first, because ginger is an unimportant flavoring ingredient, and secondly, because unprincipaled inferior preparations under the name of ginger.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, contain the genuine medicine if the facsimile signature of Hiscox & Co., is at the bottom of the outside wrapper.

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE.

GEORGETOWN, Ky.—On Cincinnati Southern R.R.

Located in the healthy and beautiful "Blue Grass" region of Kentucky, 55 session opens September 3rd, 1883. Instruction in all branches of a College education. Experienced Professor. The degree of B. S., A. B. and A. M., conferred. Useful course for those who can spend only one or two years in College. Terms low for advantages offered. For catalogue or particulars, address to

R. M. DUDLEY, D. D., President.

Hay Conveyors.

We take this method of informing the public that we are MANUFACTURING and SELLING W. M. CONNER'S

HAY CONVEYORS.

Just the thing to use in large barns

BAKER & CRUTCHER,
35-4t Florence X-Roads.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

James West, Plff.,
vs.
James Marshall, Deft.
} Notice of sale in equity

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April term thereof, 1883, in the above cause, the undersigned will, on Monday, the 6th day of Aug, 1883, at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabout (being County Court day) proceed to offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, on a credit of 6 and 9 months at the Court-house door, in the town of Burlington, the property mentioned in the judgment to wit:

A tract of land in Boone county, Ky., near Richwood church, beginning at a corner of Black, Hughes and Cleek; thence running with Cleek's line to a sugar tree; thence back into the farm of the grantor so as to strike a point from which a line run to Hughe's line will include taking the line first run and Hughes' line for two of the boundary lines and the other two lines to be so run as to make the tract mortgaged contain 50 acres said tract is more completely bounded thus: Beginning at stone corner to H. Hughes and Thos. Finch, thence with said Finch's line N 38 W 23:10 chains to a stone, thence N 50:1 E 31:20 ch. to a stone in Robt. Cleek's line, thence S 4 W 31 ch. to a stone, thence S 26¼ W 1:50 ch. to a stone corner to H. Hughes and Robt. Cleek, thence N 64 W 3:50 ch. to a stone, thence S 60 W 7:50 ch. to the beginning containing 50 acres.

Or sufficient thereof to produce the sums of money so ordered to be made. The purchaser will be required to give bonds with approved security, for the payment of the purchase money, to have the force and effect of a judgment, bearing legal interest from the day of sale, according to law. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms. Amount to be raised by sale, $983 39

Bonds payable to the undersigned.

W L RIDDELL, M C B C C

ELECTION NOTICE.

BOONE COUNTY COURT.
Regular Term, April 2, 1883.

Numerous voters, (20 in number) of the HAMILTON voting precinct, of this county, having petitioned for the holding of an election on the first Monday in August, 1883, for the purpose of taking the sense of the legal voters therein on the proposition whether or not spirituous, vinous or malt liquors shall be sold therein, it is therefore ordered that the sheriff of Boone County be and he is hereby directed to hold said election at the time and place above directed. Said sheriff in his action herein will be governed by the law authorizing this proceeding. The fees were deposited as required by law.

A copy Attest: M. T. GARNETT, Clerk.

Notice is hereby given that an election will be held on the 6th day of August, 1883, in pursuance of the above order, at the time and place for the purpose mentioned therein. J. R. CLUTTERBUCK, S. B. C.

JNO. S. DORMAN & CO.
—DEALERS IN—
MILLINERY, DRY GOODS, NOTIONS,
Clothing, Carpets, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Caps, Trunks, Valises, &c.
LAWRENCEBURG, INDIANA.

Notice to Contractors.

Sealed proposals will be received at Burlington, Boone county, Ky., until the 21st day of July, 1883, for hauling and breaking the following amount of lime-stone rock on the Burlington and Bellevue Pike, bids to be for sections and distributed according to directions of the Board of Directors on each section as follows: On section 1st, 10 rods; on section 2d, 8 rods; on section 3d, 8 rods; on section 4th, 10 rods; on section 5th, 5 rods; on section 6th 5 rods. A perch of stone broken to be 25 feet long, 1 foot wide and 1 foot in depth, and 12 perches as stated above to make 1 rod of broken stone. The stone to be broken so that the largest will pass through a 2½ inch ring. Contractors will be required to have the hauling and breaking done by the first of December next. The Directors reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

S. P. BRADY, President,
36-2t WM. WALTON, Secretary.

REPORT OF THE CONDITION

OF THE

Farmers & Traders National Bank

AT COVINGTON,

In the State of Kentucky, at the close of business, June 22 1883.

RESOURCES.

Loans and discounts		$596,257 38
Overdrafts		137 20
U. S. Bonds to secure circulation		50,000 00
Due from approved reserve agents		56,025 45
Due from other National banks	5,440 88
Due from State banks and bankers	1,607 76	—7,048 64
Real estate, furniture and fixtures		4,668 91
Current expenses and taxes paid		3,816 08
Premiums paid		9,000 00
Checks and other cash items		92 85
Bills of other Banks		940 00
Fractional paper currency, nickels and pennies		47 81
Specie		2,965 00
Legal tender notes		20,000 00
Redemption fund with U. S. Treasurer (5 per cent of circulation)		2,250 00
Total		$753,279 32

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock paid in		$300,000 00
Surplus fund	1,200 00
Undivided profits	26,730 65	—27,930 65
National bank notes outstanding		45,000 00
Individual deposits subject to check	342,731 38
Due to other National Banks	23,809 31
Due to State Banks and bankers	13,807 98	—380,348 67
Total		$753,279 32

State of Kentucky, County of Kenton, ss;
I, John L. Sandford, Cashier of the above-named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

J. L. SANDFORD, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 22d day of June, 1883. GEO. H. DAVISON, Notary Public.

Correct—Attest:
E. J. HICKEY,
M. C. MOTCH,
J. H. MERSMAN,
} Directors.

J. W. KIRKPATRICK & SON,
—BURLINGTON, KY.—
UMDERTAKERS
—AND—
EMBALMERS,
Will furnish nice Hearse any reasonable distance for $10.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
☞ Office over Dudley Rouse's Store. ☜

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence,
Burlington, - - Ky.

L. C. NORMAN. H. I. [illegible]
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW,
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

S. W. TOLIN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. A prompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.
☞ Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.
N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.
DIRECTORS.
LEGRAN GAINES, JEFF UTZ,
JNO. M. MOODY.

DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS.
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
SALT BY THE BARREL.
R O U S E.
BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS.
The Best of Flour
PATENT & HIGH GRADE
Always on Hand, and cheaper than the cheapest.
QUEENSWARE. GLASSWARE AND TINWARE
A fresh Stock of Garden Seed at
DUDLEY ROUSE'S,

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEED.
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES.)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE.
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.
Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.
All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE
Petersburg Drug Store,
Where you can find everything in the Drug line, such as——.
Well call and see and be convinced.
Respectfully, S. C BUCHANAN.

TRADE MARK.
Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S
Indian Blood Syrup
Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the
BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.
Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.
☞ AGENTS WANTED. ☜
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St, New York City. Druggists sell it.
D. CLARK JOHNSON:— This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. MCCANC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '83

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300,000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK,
Covington, Kentucky,
DIRECTORS.
James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green,
J. S. Matson, J. H. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H. Dills, F. P. Helm,
L. C. Stephens.
The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.
The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank. dec. 20-6m

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar7-tf28 J. W. Talbott.

UNDERTAKING.

We keep Constantly on Hand all sizes of
Burial Cases and Caskets,
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired,
PRICES GUARANTEED LESS THAN CITY PRICES.
DAVIS BROS., HEBRON, KY.

KENTUCKY MILITARY INSTITUTE
At Farmdale, P. O., Franklin Co., Ky., [illegible] from Frankfort. Has the most healthful and beautiful location in the State. [illegible] and able College Faculty. Expenses as moderate as any [illegible] begins Sept. 3. For Catalogues, etc., address as above COL. R. D. ALLEN, Supt.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL, Publishers.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY.

THE PERENNIAL MAUD.

Maud Muller worked at raking hay,
And cleared her forty cents a day.

Her clothes were coarse, but her health was fine,
And so she worked in the sweet sunshine,

Singing as glad as a bird in May
"Barbara Allen" the live-long day.

She often glanced at the far-off town,
And wondered if eggs were up or down;

And the sweet song died of a strange disease,
Leaving a phantom taste of cheese,

And an appetite and a nameless ache
For soda water and ginger cake.

The Judge rode slowly into view,
Stopped his horse in the shade and drew

His fine cut, while the blushing Maud
Marveled much at the kind he "chawed."

He was "dry as a fish," he said, with a wink,
And kind o' thought that a good, square drink

Would brace him up, so the cup was filled
With the crystal wine that the old spring spilled,

And she gave it him with a sun-browned hand;
"Thanks," said the Judge, in accents bland,

"A thousand thanks, for a sweeter draught
From a fairer hand"—but then he laughed.

And the sweet girl stood in the sun that day,
And raked in the Judge instead of the hay.
—N. O. Picayune.

HOW HE GOT OUT OF IT.

"For goodness' sake! what's the matter, Dod?" exclaimed Sidney Stitt, looking up from the bachelor occupation of sewing on a button, in which his friend's sudden entrance caused him to lose a stitch and prick his fingers—"you look as if all the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune had made you their target for a month!"

"Matter!" growled Dodanim Dothan, flinging himself into a chair, and glowering angrily at the world through the window—"there's enough the matter; I should say!"

Sidney sucked his punctured finger, and waited till the spirit of confidence should move Dodanim to unbosom.

"Sid," he said at length, "I'm in a mess! You know what I told you about Phidyle Bates."

"You said you had made her an offer of marriage, and that she had promised a speedy answer."

"Yes, and she kept her word, too, confound her punctuality!"

"That is to say, declined with thanks."

"No—accepted with the eagerness of a despairing maiden clutching at the last matrimonial straw to keep from sinking in the Slough of Despond!"

"Well, what more can you wish?"

"To get out of it!" said Dodanim. "You see, Phid Bates, as I happened to discover, was down in her rich aunt Hesketh's will for the old lady's entire fortune; and the latter, being turned of ninety, the man lucky enough to become Phid's husband might fairly hope to realize his golden dreams without vexatious delay. I made a bold push to be that happy man. I pressed my suit, proposed, and, as already stated, was accepted. For twenty-four hours I was the happiest of men. But, alas! how soon was the blissful chalice dashed from my lips! A note from Phidyle announced that her aunt, on being informed of her engagement, in a fit of rage called in her lawyer and made another will, leaving everything to the—I forgot what she called it—Society.

"I hoped the letter would wind up with an offer to release me in view of these altered circumstances. But not a bit of it! 'I'm real glad it's happened so, dear Doddy,' she added in a postscript: 'for now everybody will know, as I did always, that you sought me for myself alone.'

"Now, Sid, that's the scrape I want you to help me out of. If I was only free from Phid, I could work my way back into Carrie Sewell's good graces when she gets back from the visit she's gone upon. She's got a few thousands of her own, and is as pretty as a pink. I only dropped her because I thought I saw a better chance."

Sidney Stitt having finished his sartorial labors, and put away his needle and thread, sat for a few moments wrinkling his majestic brow in thought.

"There's one plan that might work," he said at length.

"Out with it!" cried Dod, jumping up and grasping his hand. I knew you could help me if anybody could."

"Phid Bates is a high-strung piece," continued Sid. "If you could only lead her to suspect that all along your heart has really been another's, I believe she'd send you packing without a moment's ceremony."

"But how to manage such a scheme?"

"Oh! that's simple enough. Write a strong love-letter to some other woman—a fictitious one, if you like. Direct it; put it in your pocket unsealed, as though you meant to add or inclose something before mailing it; call on Phid; talk as lovingly as ever; and before coming away, accidentally drop the letter and leave it. Trust to female curiosity for the rest."

"Capital!" shouted Dod, slapping his friend's shoulders. "Let's about it at once;" and drawing a chair to the table on which were pen, ink and paper, he sat down.

"Don't you think it had better be addressed to an actual person?" he asked. "To somebody Phid knows for instance? She'd be more apt to think it real. Stay—I have it!—What say you to Nepenthe Hooker?"

"Ha! ha! ha!" laughed Sid—"why, she celebrated her semi-centennial the other day, and is uglier than she's old; but no matter—she'll do as well as any."

"But isn't there danger Phid may see through the joke?" suggested Dod.

"No—a jealous woman never takes anything as a joke; besides, as Miss Hooker owns a small annuity, Phid will scent a motive for your perfidy."

Dod, after spoiling several sheets of paper, submitted the following for his friend's approval:

> DEAREST NEPENTHE—After many attempts and failures to suitably express the ardent passion that has for years consumed my heart, I abandon the effort in despair. I would throw myself at your feet, and pour out my feelings in a torrent of earnest, burning words, but for the dread that your answer might doom me to hopeless misery! Permit me, then, through the imperfect medium of the pen, in plain and simple terms, to declare my undying love for you, and you alone—whatever idle tongues may have chosen to report. Dearest! I now offer you my heart and hand. Do not break the one by declining the other. I would go to seek your answer from your lovely lips, but lack the courage. Please reply by early post. And now, darling, having committed to paper this faint expression of feelings long pent up, I shall seal and dispatch it as soon as I have gained sufficient nerve.
>
> "Your devoted DODANIM DOTHAN."

"Bravo! Dod," applauded Sid. "You ought to get up a new and revised edition of 'The Approved Letter-writer, and Love-maker's Assistant,' for the use of enamored swains of defective literary training."

"By George, though," said Dod, "if the story ever gets out, I'll be the laugh of the town!"

"Have no fear of its getting out. Phid'll never let it be known that she read a letter addressed to another."

It was not till the next evening that the friends again met.

"Your hand, Sid!" cried Dod, with boisterous glee. "It worked like a charm. I went to see Phid last night, had a long, cozy chat, and in pulling out my handkerchief to hide a tear at parting, managed to let drop the letter. I called again this morning, but the servant said she had orders not to admit me any more. So, you see, the business is done!"

Sid was warm in his felicitations.

"Now for Carrie Sewell!" said Dod.

"Hal—what's this?" ejaculated Sid, glancing at a newspaper that he had picked up, and from which he read hurriedly:

"'Married, at West Felicity, on the 1st inst., by the Rev. Dr. Splicer, Miss Carrie Sewell, of Chipperdale, to Mr. Midas Muchtya, of Chinkington.'"

Dod looked thunderstruck. The pet part of his project was irretrievably "dished!" Wishing Sid a hasty good evening, he hastened home to his reflections.

They weren't very pleasant, on the whole, and were less so the next morning when the postman delivered a letter in Miss Nepenthe Hooker's stiffest hand, formally acknowledging receipt of Mr. Dothan's very flattering favor, declaring that the gratifying sentiments it so delicately conveyed had long been secretly reciprocated, and graciously accepting the offer he had honored her by making.

Here was a second thunderstroke for Dod. It was evident that Phidyle Bates had revenged herself by posting his letter to Nepenthe Hooker.

What was to be done? Dod would have applied to Sidney Stitt for counsel; but he shrank from disclosing his ridiculous plight even to him.

He formed the desperate resolve of going to Miss Hooker herself and explaining that it was all a joke. But it was no joke on her side, the lady declared; and on learning how her tender affections had been trifled with, she went into a fit of violent hysterics that roused the neighborhood, and Dod was fain to beat a hasty retreat to escape being mobbed.

He resolved to run away next morning; but the Sheriff, with a warrant for his arrest for breach of promise, was beforehand with him.

Dod tried to find bail, but couldn't. His friends, it seemed, weren't among the solid men of substance. Then he sought to make terms with the fair plaintiff. But her only terms were marry or go to jail! Like Mrs. McStinger, she held her grip, and like the immortal Jack Bunsby, Dod yielded to his fate, and was led a victim to the altar.

MORAL: He deserved it. —N. Y. Ledger.

A Remarkable Case.

"It was only a blister, but this particular blister, unlike others, sloughed, gangrene set in, followed by absorption or blood-poisoning, and death ensued," said Dr. Van Winkle yesterday. The victim was little Jacques Wurzburger, a bright German lad, five years of age, the son of Adolph Wurzburger, a florist of No. 605 Broadway, but living at No. 238 East Seventy-first street. The child died on Thursday morning of one of the most remarkable cases of blood-poisoning recorded in medical annals. Little Jacques' disease baffled the skill of physicians for weeks. The blister was first discovered early in June on the left side of the child's abdomen, just above the groin, and was about the size of a man's hand. How it was produced was not known at the time. The lad's parents summoned Dr. Van Winkle, who examined, punctured it to let out the watery fluid, and then applied a simple ointment. The doctor regarded it as a trivial affair and thought it would heal in a few days. The child's parents informed the physician that it was the result of chicken-pox. Afterward they said that Jacques put matches in his pocket and perhaps that caused the trouble. A few days afterward Dr. Van Winkle called again, when the mother said:

"Jack, after I questioned him, told me that he picked up a piece of chalk in the street and put it into his pocket. I found, on examination, that it was not chalk, but a lump of lime."

The doctor then discovered that the skin about the blister was in a gangrenous state, slowly but steadily eating inward. This sloughing began two weeks after the doctor's first visit. Little Jacques tossed about and exclaimed amid his sobs:

"Oh, mamma, do take me up." She often carried him round the room and held him in her lap.

"After the sloughing began," said Dr. Van Winkle, "I applied a bread and milk poultice to the blister. But this did not help it. He would sleep for an hour or two and then awake and cry. I never saw him delirious, but no doubt his mind was wandering some of the time. All at once his appetite disappeared, and I began to grow uneasy. From last Sunday week he rapidly grew worse. The gangrene kept eating deeper and deeper and destroyed the cellular tissue, but did not spread. My theory is that the lime, which is a powerful escharotic, irritated the skin, producing the blister. What caused the sloughing I am not able yet to determine. The decomposed matter was absorbed, producing blood-poisoning. This is the most remarkable and peculiar case I ever heard of."—N. Y. World.

Doing Him a Favor.

The occupant of an office on Larned street desired to drop 5,000 circulars to as many residents of Detroit regarding a new household patent, and he had just completed the weary work of directing the envelopes, the other day, when in came a telegram calling him out of the city for a day or two. He ran into a law office and left his key, and explained that he was sorry he didn't have time to mail his circulars before going. When he had departed the lawyer said to his office boy:

"My son, what is life worth without the good opinion of our fellow-men?"

"Nothing, sir."

"Of course not. This afternoon you go over and stamp all his circulars and get them into the post-office. It will be a favor and a surprise to him."

At three o'clock in the afternoon the boy said he had used up all the stamps, and he was directed to mail the circulars and wait for his reward. It came in a manner to astonish him. When the circular man returned he rushed into the law office white with rage, drove the boy into a corner, and shrieked out at the top of his voice:

"You infernal idiot! You licked three cents on each circular!"—Detroit Free Press.

—The stoves used in the United States cost one dollar a head each year in 1840 they did not cost over six cents a head.

HOME AND FARM.

—If a person has been bitten by a mad dog, tie a cord tightly about the wound, apply warm water to encourage bleeding, suck the wound and apply caustics.—N. Y. Times.

—In the Ohio Farmer a correspondent recommends growing potatoes under a covering of straw, put on about the time the tops are coming through. The covering keeps the ground moist in a dry time. The straw was put on in some instances to a depth of ten to twelve inches.

—Corn Bread: Two two cups of Indian meal allow one cup of white flour, two tablespoonfuls of white sugar, two and a half cups of buttermilk, one teaspoonful of soda, one of salt, one tablespoonful and a half of melted butter; steam for two hours in a well buttered tin, and dry off in the oven.—Exchange.

—The Rural New Yorker says tomatoes raised in poorish light soil will ripen ten days earlier than those raised in rich soil. We know this from the actual test during the past season. If large, showy tomatoes are wanted, regardless of flavor or time of ripening, then the rich soil and the rank growth are needed. Cutting off all but one or two fruits of the clusters while they are small and green will also cause those remaining to grow to a larger size.

—Says a lady writing to the Country Gentleman: Few housekeepers properly estimate the value of providing covers for pillows in common use, thinking if the cases are changed each week the pillows are properly protected. This is a real mistake, as any one can see by putting a white cover underneath the case and noticing how soon it becomes soiled. Old pillow cases can be used, by tearing off the buttons and putting buttonholes in the hems.

—Poached Eggs and Toast: Pour some boiling water into a frying pan; then break the egg into a saucer very carefully, and slide it off into the hot water. The water must not be boiling hard, or the eggs would fly in pieces. The water must be boiling hot to begin with, but afterwards merely simmer until the white is cooked so that no limpid part remains; then the yolk will be sufficiently done. Toast and butter some evenly-cut slices of bread, and lay them on a plate; then with a skimmer carefully lift out the eggs, and place one on each piece of toast.—Boston Post.

—E. P. Howell, for many years known as an extensive and successful fruit-grower, says that the experience of every grower of fruit for market is that the most important matter in beginning as a pomologist is to plant a very few varieties. Not less than four-fifths of our good fruits are unprofitable. They will serve the purpose of the amateur, whose main object is to supply his table with a succession of good fruit; but they will not pay the gardener. An orchard with a large number of varieties demands incessant work and constant anxiety.—Chicago Tribune.

Dyspeptics and the Drug-Store.

But nine out of ten dyspeptics resort to the drug-store. They get a bottle of "tonic bitters." They try Dr. Quack's "Dyspepsia Elixir." They try a "blue pill"—in the hope of rousing Nature, as it were, to a sense of her proper duty.

Now, what such "tonics" can really do for them is this: they goad the system into the transient and abnormal activity incident to the necessity of expelling a virulent poison. With the accomplishment of that purpose the exertion ceases, and the ensuing exhaustion is worse than the first by just as much as the poison-fever has robbed the system of a larger or smaller share of its little remaining strength. The stimulant has wasted the organic energy which it seemed to revive. "But," says the invalid, "if a repetition of the dose can relieve the second reaction, would the result not be preferable to the languor of the unstimulated system? Wouldn't it be the best plan to let me support my strength by sticking to my patent tonic?"

Yes, it would be very convenient, especially in times of scarcity, if a starving horse could be supported by the daily application of a patent spur. It would save both oats and oaths. Even a fastidious nag could not help acknowledging the pungency of the goad. But it so happens that spur-fed horses are somewhat short-lived, though at first the diet certainly seems to act like a charm. For a day or two the drug stimulates the activity of the digestive organs as well as of the mental faculties, but the subsequent prostration is so intolerable that the patient soon chooses the alternative of another poison-fever. Before long the pleasant phase of the febrile process becomes shorter and the reaction more severe; the jaded system is less able to respond to the goad, and, in order to make up for the difference, the dose of the stimulant has to be steadily increased. The invalid becomes a bondsman to the drug-store, and hugs the chain that drags him down to the slavery of a confirmed poison-habit.

Circumstances may differ. A dyspeptic who intends to make his own quietus within a month or two, and in the meanwhile has a certain amount of work to finish, would be justified in stimulating his working capacities by all means, in order to improve to the utmost whatever chances of mundane activity may remain to him. But he who intends to stay has to make up his mind that recovery can not be hoped for till he has not only discontinued his drug, but expiated the burden of sin which the stimulant outrage has added to the cause of the disease. Nature has to overcome the effects both of malnutrition and of malpractice. The drug has complicated the disease.—Dr. Felix L. Oswald, in Popular Science Monthly.

—At Austin, Tex., in excavating in the Colorado River for the water-works, the workmen brought up a spur of curious workmanship and of evident Spanish origin. From the description of a fine spur said to have been lost by Gen. Bustamente in the river when he was retreating before Santa Anna, many believe this to be the same spur. And, near the same spot, was unearthed the framework of a clock. It is of metal, and, though oxidation has marred its luster, of course, traces of a high polish can still be seen on it, and practicles of rich and valuable pearls, with which it was overlaid, are still visible.—Chicago Times.

—They have found a breech-loading cannon under the citadel at Aleppo, where it must have been buried two hundred and fifty years. Its mechanism is almost precisely like those invented in these late years. Perhaps somebody will sometimes find a telephone loaded with helloas buried deeply below the surface somewhere; for every day some evidence is brought to prove that there is nothing new under the sun.—Detroit Post.

How a Great Fortune Was Made, Etc.

On the 4th of May I returned to Rio and am preparing to return to England. On my arrival I was shown over the finest residence in Brazil—the chateau of the Baron of Nova Friburgo (New Freiburgh). It is situated on the Cattete, and is surrounded by spacious gardens, which stretch to the shores of the bay of Rio. The house is of fine granite, every stone of which is said to have been imported from Europe. The structure is square, with rather plain facades, here and there broken by niches and ornamented with statutes. The owner is said to possess the finest plantation in Brazil. It is situated somewhere near Petropolis, and is regarded as a model establishment. It is openly stated in Rio that the vast fortune of the original Baron of Nova Friburgo was gained by forgery and counterfeiting. Upon expressing astonishment that so heinous a charge should be made, my informants—there were several of them—would exclaim: "Tut, man, that is nothing. There are few or no rich families in Rio who have not made their fortunes either by dealing in slaves or false notes, so that the Baron of Nova Friburgo—or Notas Falsas, as we call him—was no worse than the rest." It seems that some twenty years ago the father of the present Baron was intrusted by the Government with the business of superintending the printing of a new emission of Government paper notes, and that on the execution of this trust he took care to have a few millions printed for himself. These notes were printed in Germany, and so wretched was the engraving and so flimsy the paper that a few years ago they were obliged to be called in and replaced by greenbacks printed in New York. Many of the old notes are without signatures, but the people are so ignorant and the Government so accommodating that this never interferes with their currency. The former receive and pay them out without scrutiny; the latter redeems them in taxes without question.—Brazil Cor. San Francisco Chronicle.

How the Moujiks Get Drunk.

Moujiks are curious when drunk. They hardly ever quarrel, but become affectionate and embrace each other. Their idea of drinking is to imbibe until they are quite insensible. When I was in Russia I had a coachman who once a month used to come and ask me for leave to get drunk during two consecutive days. Upon inquiry I found that only on these conditions would a coachman remain sober during the rest of the month. Having obtained leave, he would go to a drinking house, show the proprietor his money, and state how long he would remain there. Then he would sit down at a table with some spirits before him. Gradually and solemnly he would get drunk, place his arms before him on the table and recline on them. Thus he would remain for two days and nights, the proprietor supplying him with more drink whenever he looked up. His time up, the proprietor would drag him outside the house and set him down in the snow against the wall, having first filled his cap with snow. Every charitably disposed brother coachman passing by would box his ears. In about half an hour this discipline would sober him; he would get up, shake himself together, and resume his duties. One man's poison is another man's meat, and so I suppose that he enjoyed himself.—London Truth.

—A tender-hearted Toledo man was annoyed greatly by a big, worthless dog hanging around his house. He didn't like to give it a button, and was not steady-nerved enough to shoot it, so he concluded to make it run away. He got a coil spring out of an old clock, wound it up tight, put it in a piece of beefsteak, and threw it to the innocent brute. The meat was gulped down without a tremor. In a short time the meat was digested sufficiently to let the spring loose. That spring ran the dog down the street so fast that thirteen baby wagons were upset, children knocked down and teams scared. The cry of mad dog was raised and the whole police force called out. The dog was finally shot.—Toledo Blade.

—They have a "curfew" ordinance in San Francisco which, unlike the provisions of the ancient curfew, apparently applies only to boys and girls and is silent as to the old requirement about putting out fires and lights. An item in one of the San Francisco papers states that the police will rigorously enforce the ordinance, and admonishes parents to see that their boys and girls are not out after the curfew bell rings.—Chicago Tribune.

—Somebody told a young English nobleman that to be popular in Boston society he must profess to be very fond of baked beans. And so, when he dined at Mrs. Beaconstreet's, he said in a loud voice to the servant: "Pass the baked beans, please." There were none, of course, and the hostess said she was insulted.—N. Y. Herald.

—More than 700 miles of subterranean telegraph lines are completed in France, and 1,300 miles are in course of construction, and will be completed by the end of the year.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, July 13, 1883.
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—common	$2 25	@ 3 50
Choice butchers	4 70	@ 5 40
HOGS—Common	5 00	@ 5 70
Good packers	5 75	@ 6 10
SHEEP	4 00	@ 4 75
FLOUR—Family	5 25	@ 5 75
GRAIN—Wheat—Longberry red	1 05	@ 1 06
No. 2 winter red	1 04	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	52	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed	36	@
Rye—No. 2	53½	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	10 00	@10 50
HEMP—Double dressed	8	@ 9
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	14 75	@15 00
Lard—Steam	08	@
BUTTER—Western Reserve	30	@ 32
Prime Creamery	25	@ 28
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per bar. from store	2 15	@ 2 50
Apples, prime, per barrel	4 00	@ 4 50
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 40	@ 4 00
Good to choice	4 50	@ 6 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 11⅞	@ 1 12
No. 1 white	1 10	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	56	@ 60
Oats—mixed	41	@ 45
PORK—Mess	16 00	@
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@ 4 25
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 04	@
Corn No. 2	51¼	@ 50½
Oats—No. 2	34⅛	@
Rye	53½	@
PORK—Mess	13 00	@13 75
LARD—Steam	8 17½	@ 8 20
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 25	@ 6 25
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 winter red	1 13¼	@
Corn—mixed	57¼	@ 58¼
Oats—mixed	38	@ 40
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	17 50	@
Lard—Refined	11	@
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—A No. 1	4 25	@ 4 50
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red, new	95	@ 97½
Corn—mixed	51½	@
Oats—mixed	35	@
PORK—Mess	16 00	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 red	$1 02	@
CORN	41	@
OATS	34	@
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	2 75	@ 4 50
Shipping cattle	5 25	@ 6 50

—John Bright is as cool as he is clever. A few nights ago, while addressing an English audience, he had occasion to remark: "Job has said, 'Man is born unto trouble, as the sparks fly upward,'" but that upon the whole he "did not agree with Job." Whereupon one of the audience of 4,000 arose, and objecting to hear Job spoken of so, shouted: "Three cheers for Job." The three cheers were given with an enthusiasm which might have discomforted a less ready man than John Bright.

—For the last four years a St. Louis man has not missed attendance at any session of the Criminal Court. No one knows what his name is, or anything about him, except that he is mildly insane. His devotion to the court is supposed to have an element of romance in it, for it is said he hopes to find again there a young woman whom he saw years ago on the witness stand and fell in love with her. Indeed, it is asserted that the face which haunts his memory is the cause of his madness.—St. Louis Globe.

A LARGE proprietary medicine house in Baltimore, Md., who run St. Somebody-or-other's remedy for rheumatism, recently expended over $1,000 in giving its employes a day's excursion in the country. This is genuine philanthropy.

THE sleepy brakeman knows what a carbuncle do in a tight place.—N. O. Picayune.

YOUNG and middle-aged men, suffering from nervous debility and kindred affections, as loss of memory and hypochondria, should inclose three stamps for Part VII. of World's Dispensary Dime Series of pamphlets. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

IT does not matter how well the gardener tries to do—he is always slipping.—Boston Star.

"Now Well and Strong."

SHIPMAN, Ill.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I wish to state that my daughter, aged 18, was pronounced incurable and was fast failing as the doctors thought, with consumption. I obtained a half dozen bottles of your 'Golden Medical Discovery' for her and she commenced improving at once, and is now well and strong.

Very truly yours, REV. I. N. AUGUSTIN.

"Discovery" sold by druggists.

PEOPLE pretend to go to the salt sea to get the fresh air.

HAY-FEVER. I have suffered from the last ten years from Hay-Fever. I desire to testify in favor of Ely's Cream Balm. My short use of it demonstrated its efficacy. J. MAIDHOF, 401 Broadway, N. Y. 50 cts.

CLOSE quarters—The twenty-five cent pieces hoarded by a miser.—N. Y. News.

Sick-Headache.

MRS. J. C. HENDERSON, of Cleveland, O., writes: "The use of two of Pierce's 'Pleasant Purgative Pellets' a day, for a few weeks, has entirely cured me of sick-headache, from which I formerly suffered terribly, as often, on an average, as once in ten days." Of all druggists.

THE man who drinks can not conceal it from the world. His habit is red in his nose.

LADIES and sickly girls requiring gentle and reliable stimulant, will find Brown's Iron Bitters beneficial.

WHERE are the fragments of the boy who "burst into tears?"

RE-INVESTIGATED.

A Remarkable Statement Fully Confirmed by Three Important Interviews.

An unusual article from the Rochester (N. Y.) Democrat and Chronicle was published in this paper recently and has been the subject of much conversation both in professional circles and on the street. Apparently it caused more commotion in Rochester, as the following from the same paper shows:

Dr. J. B. Henion, who is well known not only in Rochester, but in nearly every part of America, sent an extended article to this paper, a few days since, which was duly published, detailing his remarkable experience and rescue from what seemed to be certain death. It would be impossible to enumerate the personal enquiries which have been made at our office as to the validity of the article, but they have been so numerous that further investigation of the subject was deemed an editorial necessity.

With this end in view a representative of this paper called on Dr. Henion at his residence, when the following interview occurred:

"That article of yours, doctor, has created quite a whirlwind. Are the statements about the terrible condition you were in, and the way you were rescued, such as you can sustain?"

"Every one of them and many additional ones. Few people ever get so near the grave as I did and then return, and I am not surprised that the public think it marvelous. It was marvelous."

"How in the world did you, a physician, come to be brought so low?"

"By neglecting the first and most simple symptoms. I did not think I was sick. It is true I had frequent headaches; felt tired most of the time; could eat nothing one day and was ravenous the next; felt dull, indefinite pains, and my stomach was out of order, but I did not think it meant anything serious."

"But have these common ailments anything to do with the fearful Bright's disease which took so firm a hold on you?"

"Anything? Why, they are the sure indications of the first stages of that dreadful malady. The fact is, few people know or realize what ails them, and I am sorry to say that too few physicians do either."

"That is a strange statement, doctor."

"But it is a true one. The medical profession have been treating symptoms instead of diseases for years, and it is high time it ceased. We doctors have been clipping off the twigs when we should strike at the root. The symptoms I have just mentioned or any unusual action or irritation of the water channels indicate the approach of Bright's disease even more than a cough announces the coming of consumption. We do not treat the cough, but try to help the lungs. We should not waste our time trying to relieve the headache, stomach, pains about the body or other symptoms, but go directly to the kidneys, the source of most of these ailments."

"This, then, is what you meant when you said more than one-half the deaths which occur arise from Bright's disease, is it, doctor?"

"Precisely. Thousands of so-called diseases are torturing people to-day, when in reality it is Bright's disease in some one of its many forms. It is a Hydra-headed monster and the slightest symptoms should strike terror to every one who has them. I can look back and recall hundreds of deaths which physicians declared at the time were caused by paralysis, apoplexy, heart-disease, pneumonia, malarial fever and other common complaints which I see now were caused by Bright's disease."

"And did all these cases have simple symptoms at first?"

"Every one of them, and might have been cured as I was by the timely use of the same remedy—Warner's Safe Cure. I am getting my eyes thoroughly open in this matter and think I am helping others to see the facts and their possible danger also. Why, there are no end of truths bearing on this subject. If you want to know more about it go and see Mr. Warner himself. He was sick the same as I, and is the healthiest man in Rochester to-day. He has made a study of this subject and can give you more facts than I can. Go, too, and see Dr. Lattimore, the chemist, at the University. If you want facts there are any quantity of them showing the alarming increase of Bright's disease, its simple and deceptive symptoms, and there is but one way by which it can be escaped."

Fully satisfied of the truth and force of the Doctor's words, the reporter bade him good day and called on Mr. Warner at his establishment on Exchange street. At first Mr. Warner was inclined to be reticent, but learning that the information desired was about the alarming increase of Bright's disease, his manner changed instantly and he spoke very earnestly:

"It is true that Bright's disease has increased wonderfully, and we find, by reliable statistics, that in the past ten years its growth has been 250 per cent. Look at the prominent men it has carried off: Everett, Sumner, Chase, Wilson, Carpenter, Bishops Haven and Peck, and others. This is terrible, and shows a greater growth than that of any other known complaint. It should be plain to every one that something must be done to check this increase or there is no knowing where it may end."

"Do you think many people are afflicted with it to-day who do not realize it, Mr. Warner?"

"Hundreds of thousands. I have a striking example of this truth which has just come to my notice. A prominent professor in a New Orleans medical college was lecturing before his class on the subject of Bright's disease. He had various fluids under microscopic analysis, and was showing the students what the indications of this terrible malady were. In order to show the contrast between healthy and unhealthy fluids, he had provided a vial, the contents of which were drawn from his own person. 'And now, gentlemen,' he said, 'as we have seen the unhealthy indications, I will show you how it appears in a state of perfect health,' and he submitted his own fluid to the usual test. As he watched the results his countenance suddenly changed—his color and command both left him, and in a trembling voice he said: 'Gentlemen, I have made a painful discovery; I have Bright's disease of the kidneys,' and in less than a year he was dead."

"You believe, then, that it has no symptoms of its own and is frequently unknown even by the person who is afflicted with it?"

"It has no symptoms of its own and very often none at all. Usually no two people have the same symptoms, and frequently death is the first symptom. The slightest indication of any kidney difficulty should be enough to strike terror to any one. I know what I am talking about, for I have been through all the stages of kidney disease."

"You know of Dr. Henion's case?"

"Yes, I have both read and heard of it."

"It is very wonderful, is it not?"

"A very prominent case, but no more so than a great many others that have come to my notice as having been cured by the same means."

"You believe then that Bright's disease can be cured?"

"I know it can. I know it from the experience of hundreds of prominent persons who were given up to die by both their physicians and friends."

"You speak of your own experience. What was it?"

"A fearful one. I had felt languid and unfitted for business for years. But I did not know what ailed me. When, however, I found it was kidney difficulty I thought there was little hope, and so did the doctors. I have since learned that one of the physicians of this city pointed me out to a gentleman on the street one day, saying: 'there goes a man who will be dead within a year.' I believe his words would have proven true if I had not fortunately secured and used the remedy now known as Warner's Safe Cure."

"And this caused you to manufacture it?"

"No it caused me to investigate. I went to the principal cities, saw physicians prescribing and using it and I therefore determined, as a duty I owed humanity and the suffering, to bring it within their reach and now it is known in every part of America, is sold in every drug store and has become a household necessity."

The reporter left Mr. Warner, much impressed with the earnestness and sincerity of his statements and next paid a visit to Dr. S. A. Lattimore at his residence on Prince street. Dr. Lattimore, although busily engaged upon some matters connected with the State Board of Health, of which he is one of the analysts, courteously answered the questions that were propounded him:

"Did you make a chemical analysis of the case of Mr. H. H. Warner some three years ago, Doctor?"

"Yes, sir."

"What did this analysis show you?"

"The presence of albumen and tube casts in great abundance."

"And what did the symptoms indicate?"

"A serious disease of the kidneys."

"Did you think Mr. Warner could recover?"

"No, sir. I did not think it possible. It was seldom, indeed, that so pronounced a case had, up to that time, ever been cured."

"Do you know anything about the remedy which cured him?"

"Yes, I have chemically analyzed it, and upon critical examination find it entirely free from any poisonous or deleterious substances."

We publish the foregoing statements in view of the commotion which the publicity of Dr. Henion's article has caused, and to meet the protestations which have been made. The standing of Dr. Henion, Mr. Warner and Dr. Lattimore in the community is beyond question, and the statements they make can not for a moment be doubted. They conclusively show that Bright's disease of the kidneys is one of the most deceptive and dangerous of all diseases, that it is exceedingly common, alarmingly increasing, and that it can be cured.

A CARPENTER is a plane man.—Arkansaw Traveller. This augurs well for whoever adz to it.

WRIGHTSVILLE, PA.—Rev. Elijah Wilson says: "Brown's Iron Bitters have permanently cured me of chills and fever."

HANLAN is called the aquatic lion, and when he is in his scull the lion can row'er.—Somerville Journal.

FAYETTEVILLE, ARK.—Rev. T. J. Reilly says: "I used Brown's Iron Bitters for indigestion and chills with entire satisfaction."

FRUITS of the seas-on—Wrecks. "Cutting up shines"—the worker in precious stones.—Boston Star.

Skinny Men. "Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia.

THE warm weather brings the dogs to muzzlin' and summer pants.

HAY-FEVER. I have suffered for eight years with Hay-Fever. In July I resorted to Ely's Cream Balm, have been entirely free from the fever ever since. E. C. HILLMAN, State Arsenal, Trenton, N. J. 50 cts.

"CAN a man serve two masters?" Certainly, sailors on schooners can.—The Judge.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer

Is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which Sulphur, Sugar of Lead and Nitrate of Silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. JOHN D. PARK & SONS, Wholesale Agents, Cincinnati, Ohio, and C. N. CRITTENTON, New York.

"Buchu-paiba." Complete cure, all annoying Kidney Diseases, irritation. $1.

Wells' "Rough on Corns." 15c. Ask for it. Complete, permanent cure. Corns, bunions.

LYON'S Heel Stiffeners keep new boots and shoes straight. By shoe and hardware dealers.

"Rough on Rats." Clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs, ants, vermin. 15c.

Glenn's Sulphur Soap

Communicates freshness and purity to the complexion. Hill's Hair Dye, black or brown, 50c.

"Mother Swan's Worm Syrup," for feverishness, restlessness, worms. Tasteless.

WALK MORE, AND SLEEP SOUNDLY.

Mr. JOHN W. COLE, Principal of the Gale School Troy, N. Y., writes us:

TROY, N. Y., April 7, 1883.

"Having been afflicted for several years past with illness, the cause of which was unknown to me for a long time, and my continued disability getting to be of so serious and distressing a character as to cause great anxiety with my family and friends, I became satisfied upon close investigation that the cause of my sickness was the diseased condition of my kidneys and liver. At this time by accident a friend who had similar symptoms to mine informed me of the great improvement in his health by taking Hunt's Remedy, and persuaded me to try it. I immediately commenced taking it, and from the first bottle began to improve, and its continued use affords very encouraging results. I can sleep soundly, walk better, am free from pains, and the severe attacks of headache from which I suffered so much have disappeared, and I cheerfully recommend Hunt's Remedy for all purposes for which it is advertised. I will add in closing that my wife has used it very successfully for preventing the attacks of sick headache with which she had been afflicted from youth."

ALMOST DISHEARTENED.

A prominent citizen sends us the following statement:

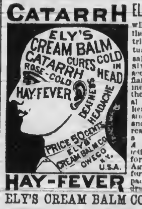
"For several years I have been very seriously afflicted with a severe pain in the back, which I long supposed to be lumbago or rheumatism of the back. More recently the pains had become more severe, so much so that it was with difficulty that I was able to get out of bed in the morning. I had tried various remedies without any apparent relief. By the earnest solicitation of a friend I commenced taking Hunt's Remedy, about three weeks ago, and its instantaneous benefits are wonderful, for I have had no pains in my back since taking the first three doses, and am relieved from the pains, aches and exhaustive weakness, the painful symptoms that usually accompany diseases of the kidneys. And I confidently expect to be completely and permanently cured by the use of it. I must cheerfully recommend Hunt's Remedy to all who are afflicted with any kidney or liver disease.

"WILLIAM G. ARNOLD,
"Walnut Street, Providence, R. I."

March 29, 1883.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

No time should be lost if the stomach, liver and bowels are affected, to adopt the sure remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Diseases of the organs named beget others far more serious, and a delay is therefore hazardous. Dyspepsia, liver complaint, chills and fever, early rheumatic twinges, kidney weakness, bring serious bodily trouble if trifled with. Lose no time in using this effective and safe medicine. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.



CATARRH HAY-FEVER

ELY'S CREAM BALM will, when applied by the finger into the nostrils, be absorbed, effectually cleansing the nasal passages of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membranal linings of the head from additional colds; completely heals the sores and restores the sense of taste and smell. Beneficial results are realized by a few applications. A thorough treatment will cure. Unequaled for cold in the head. Agreeable to use. Send for circular. 50 cents a package, by mail or at druggists.

ELY'S CREAM BALM CO., Owego, N. Y.

"DRINK FAIR, BETSEY, WOTEVER YOU DO."
—Martin Chuzzlewit.

TEA CLUB ORDERS.

We have made a specialty for five years of giving away as Premiums, to those who get up clubs for our goods, Dinner and Tea Sets, Gold Band Sets, Silverware, etc. Teas of all kinds, from 30 to 75 cents per pound. We do a very large Tea and Coffee business, besides sending out from 60 to 90 CLUB ORDERS each day. SILVER-PLATED CASTERS as Premiums with $5, $7 and $10 orders. WHITE TEA SETS with $10 orders. DECORATED TEA SETS with $15. GOLD BAND or MOSS ROSE SETS of 44 pcs., or DINNER SETS, of 106 pcs., with $20 orders, and a Host of other Premiums. Send us Postal and mention this Paper, and we will send you full Price and Premium List. Freight Charges average 75 cents per 100 lbs. to points West. GREAT LONDON TEA CO., 803 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

AGENTS WANTED FOR OUR NEW BOOK
Famous Frontiersmen, Pioneers and Scouts.

A Thrilling Narrative of the Lives and Exploits of Renowned INDIAN FIGHTERS, TRAPPERS, HUNTERS and GUIDES. Complete accounts from Dan'l Boone, 1735, to Gen'l Crook's Apache Campaign 1883, including Kenton, Ready, Davy Crocket, Kit Carson, Wild Bill, Texas Jack, Capt. Jack, Buffalo Bill, Gen. Custer's Last Fight with Sitting Bull. MAGNIFICENTLY ILLUSTRATED. Now is the time to make money. Write quickly for our liberal terms. Send 50c. in stamps for outfit. The Coburn & Newman Publishing Co., Chicago, Ill.

St. PATRICK'S SALVE

TRY IT USE IT

It relieves at once Burns, Piles, Chapped Hands or Lips, Corns, Bunions, Scalds, Bruises, Soreness of feet, hands, eyes, etc., Itching from any cause, etc. Ask your druggist, or send to 99 Fulton Street, N. Y.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.
25 100
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good.
Use in time. Sold by druggists.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST."
ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers
Suited to all sections. Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

Lady Agents can secure permanent employment and good salary selling Queen City Skirt and Stocking Supporters, etc. Sample outfit Free. Address Queen City Suspender Co., Cincinnati, O.

VIRGINIA HOMES and Timber Lands. 800 FARMS will be sent FREE to any address. Our Journal describing WILLIAM P. HILLEARY & SON, WARRENTON, Va.

PATENTS NO PATENT, NO PAY. N. W. FITZGERALD Patent Attorney, Washington, D. C. Full instructions and New Book on Patents sent free.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

AGENTS make money selling our Family Medicines; no capital required. STANDARD CURE CO., 197 Pearl St., New York.

PENSIONS for all SOLDIERS and their HEIRS. New Laws. Apply to Jos. H. HUNTER, U. S. Att'y, 134 F St., Washington, D. C.

HAIR Wigs & Waves sent C.O.D. anywhere. Wholesale & Retail. Price list free. Goods guaranteed. B.C. STREHL, 157 Wabash-av., Chicago.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Me.

EDUCATIONAL.

EDUCATIONAL.

1883. The NEW CALENDAR of the 1884.
NEW ENGLAND
CONSERVATORY of MUSIC
Beautifully Illustrated. 64 pages. SENT FREE to yourself and musical friends. Send names and addresses to E. TOURJEE, Franklin Sq., Boston, Mass. The Largest and best appointed Music, Literary and Art School, and HOME for young ladies, in the world.

COLEMAN BUSINESS COLLEGE, Newark, N. J. Terms $45. Positions for graduates; write for circular.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS
MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD

And will completely change the blood in the entire system in three months. Any person who will take ONE PILL EACH NIGHT FROM ONE TO TWELVE WEEKS, may be restored to sound health, if such a thing be possible. For curing Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. Physicians use them in their practice. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. Send for pamphlet. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

BEFORE YOU BUY A BICYCLE Of any kind, send stamp to GUMP BROS., Dayton, Ohio, for large Illustrated Price List of New and Second Hand Machines.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

A. N. K.—E. 934

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KY., WEDNESDAY, JULY 25, 1883. NUMBER 39.

THE INQUISITIVE FISHERMAN.

Once there was a fisherman
Who went to catch some fish;
He took with him a basket
And a little china dish.
"I'll use one for the fishes,
The other when I sup;
For, if they meet my wishes,
I'll cook and eat them up!"

He fished and fished the whole day long,
From morn till late at night;
He baited hooks and watched his bob,
But could not get a bite.
He then threw down his rod and line,
And vowed he'd go below,
To find out what the reason was
The fish had used him so.

The fish all gathered round him,
Each wagging his own tail,
From the little polly-woggy
To the great gigantic whale.
Some fish were looking scaly,
And some exceeding thin,
But all were glad to see the man,
And offered him a fin.

They said: "We have no china dish,
Nor basket snug and light;
But we are very prudent fish,
Who think before we bite.
We do not need to cook our prize
Ere we sit down and sup."
And so, before his very eyes,
They ate that fisher up!

—St. Nicholas.

"MUCH ADO," ETC.

A True Story.

"Papa, I want to go to Hartford with you!" called out little Lotty Park, as she saw her father open the door to go down stairs, for it was almost train-time, and Mr. Park was station-agent at West Waring.

"Not to-day, Lotty. I can't go till to-morrow; you may come along then, if mamma says so."

The next morning, Lotty was duly dressed in her prettiest clothes, and looking like a dolly, only far sweeter and prettier than the best of dollies, she went down to the platform, for Mr. Park's house was the upper story of the picturesque passenger depot.

Before long the train came screaming and hissing in from the west, and Mr. Park locked up the office and came out to where Lotty stood. Tom Scott, the baggage-master on the train, looked out of the sliding door to see Lotty, for whom he was always prepared with a flower, an apple, a bit of candy, or some other dainty, for he loved the rosy little thing dearly, and all the more that his own little girl lay asleep in the Sharon graveyard.

Mr. Park swung Lotty up into Tom Scott's arms. "Here!" said he; "check this bit of baggage through to Hartford."

Catching her, with a laugh and a kiss, he sat her down on a big trunk and gave her a cooky out of his dinner-pail.

Just then Mr. Park caught sight of the very man on whose account he was going in to Hartford. Mr. Coe was a manufacturer in Waring and there had been trouble about his freight rates, which Mr. Park had to go into the office of the road to see about; he had not got all the information he wanted, for Mr. Coe had been West, but here he was, just come back, on his way to the Waring station, half a mile below West Waring.

So Mr. Park talked to him all the time the engine was taking in water, and then got into the car and sat beside him, still talking so earnestly that he got off at the Waring station, quite forgetful of Lotty, Hartford and everything else, and followed Mr. Coe to the wagon which was waiting for him in his earnestness to fully inform himself about this matter.

The clatter of car wheels called him back in a moment; the train was off, off beyond his reach, but it would go easily down to the Tuck Junction, a few rods off, and stop there, according to law, to cross the other track. Mr. Park tore after it like a crazy man, caught his foot in a rail, fell, scrambled up and rushed on, but all too late!

The train hissed away far ahead of the frantic follower; there was but one thing to do: telegraph to the next station, East Hartland, to have her put off there and sent back on the next train.

He ran back to the Waring station, but the telegraph operator had gone home to dinner, and he had to hunt him up and get the key; but now the train was overdue at East Hartland; he must signal to Parsonsville.

This village happened to be a mile from its station, and before the operator could send up a message the train had gone. Mr. Park could have cried if he had been a woman; being a man, he expressed his distress otherwise, but quite as forcibly. The next thing was to signal Hampton.

"Ask Conductor Cone to stop train at B. Brook siding; fetch girl Tom Scott has along."

The train in from Waring went on to a siding just before you reached Hampton, and waited for the Hartford train ten minutes. At Hampton the telegraph operator was also gone to dinner. No answer came back till Mr. Park was ready to despair, then it said: "Both trains gone before your message came."

There was but one thing left to do now; he must telegraph to Hartford, and another message spun along the wires:

"Ask Cone to fetch the little girl Tom Scott took in out on the evening train."

The answer that came back was dreadful to the anxious father.

"Tom Scott left train at Wintonbury. No child on board."

To be sure; Tom Scott's old mother lived at Wintonbury. Once a week he stopped off the train at this last station to see her, and took the return train there, for she was very old and infirm, and lately had been dangerously ill.

But "No child on board!" What could this mean? Had Lotty run into the next car to find her father and slipped unseen between the cars, while careless Tom stepped off at Wintonbury and thought no more about her? Oh, poor Lotty! was she lying on that ghastly track that had slaughtered so many before her? Mr. Park shuddered and hid his head in his hands; he was not an imaginative man, but everything that could possibly happen, to his darling ran through his mind; may be she had fallen from the door of the baggage-car and been lost in the woods, if she escaped uninjured. Perhaps she lay in that cold, black river the train crossed so many times, which only a few months ago had engulfed a score of others, each perhaps as dear to some one as Lotty to him: and all because of his own carelessness! How could he have forgotten her? What was business of any sort compared with Lotty?

He was not habitually a praying man, but with the instinct that drives many of us—most of us—to an Almighty power for help when trouble and danger press, he lifted up a fervent prayer to God to help him; to bring back his lost Lotty.

Poor man! he dare not go home and face his wife, who was feeble always, and now worn out with the care of a sick baby. He could not bear to think of going to her with the truth of the case—which he could not know himself until the evening train brought out Tom Scott; and he would not go to her with a dreadful uncertainty.

There was nothing for him but to wait at the station till the train came in.

His brother George was in the ticket office at West Waring, filling his place, on the supposition that he and Lotty had gone to Hartford, so he need not go back there.

It was two o'clock by this time; in fifteen minutes the milk train would come along. There was just a chance Lotty might have been put on to the milk train from the platform at Bright Brook, which was a flag station close by the siding, when Tom Scott found her father had not come aboard.

Why had he not thought of this before? A wild thrill of hope ran through his heart, he could scarce wait for the train to come up; why should he? he could run down to the Tuck junction and get on the cars there; so off he went again at full speed, and boarded the train the instant it slowed.

"Is my little Lotty aboard?" he called eagerly, turning a white, worn face and hungry eyes toward Conductor Smith, who stood in the caboose door.

"No, sir; nobody but them you see settin' before you," smiled the conductor, quite unaware of the agony his answer gave the expectant father.

Mr. Park dropped into a seat that was luckily vacant close beside. There was no child there, but a small boy of about Lotty's age—a boy as black as black could be, who turned and looked at him with a grin.

Mr. Park laughed; he was so tired, so anxious, so cruelly disappointed, that he laughed aloud, but it was a laugh worse than a cry.

Everybody turned to look at him, but the train stopped, and being close to the door, he got out first, went over to the freight station, sat down on a cheese box, and leaned his head against a beam, entirely worn out.

The freight-master asked him some trivial kindly question, but the poor man shook his head silently; he could not speak; so the other went his way and let him alone. He saw that something was the matter he could neither meddle with or help, but he told his wife that night that he did wonder what ailed Park; for he never saw such a face in all his life as his was that day.

It seemed as if the afternoon never would go by; he heard three o'clock strike from somebody's house near by, and as the minutes wore on he thought that the clock had run down, but he pulled out his watch and it was a quarter of four. Almost time for the Western train to come in; then arose the question in his mind whether the suspense would be shortened if he got on that train and went down to East Hartland to wait for the evening train out. He would know sooner, but what would he know? Was a horrible certainty easier to bear than suspense?

Some men would have accepted the alternative at once, but he shrank from it, partly because he was weakened and worn with the terrible strain of the last few hours, and actually felt unable to make the exertion; partly because, like more than half the other people in the world, he wanted to delay a shock that was probable as long as it could be done.

The train steamed in; he heard the hotel-porters crying out their short, sharp invitations; he heard laughter, the buzz of tongues, the driving off of carts and carriages, the clatter of an unruly horse's hoofs, and the objurgations of his driver, but he never lifted his weary head.

His thoughts took a new turn; he went back to the day Lotty was first laid in his arms, a little, helpless, fretting baby of a day old. But how proud he was of his girl, even from her babyhood! how he had watched every new trick, and laughed with delight at her broken baby-language! how scared she was at the locomotives the first time he took her down on the platform, hiding her fair head in his breast and sobbing with terror!

Poor little soul! he wondered if she had been frightened when she fell off the train, or if she had been spared that terror by instant death. He shuddered at the idea, and made a great effort to control himself, and dispel the dreadful fancies that haunted him. He got up and walked up and down the freight-depot, then he went over to the waiting-room, picked up a New York paper somebody had left behind, and sat resolutely down to read it. There was a great deal of news in that paper, but he never knew it. All he saw was—

"Lotty! dear little Lotty! lost Lotty!"

The words seemed to dance up and down the columns everywhere. A boy came along with apples; he bought one of them and tried to eat it, but it choked him.

Time would fail me to tell of his efforts to make the day fly; it only crept the slower. His very agony wore itself out at length; he was dull and dumb, like one who walks in a bad dream.

At last the half-hour after five came, and he rose from the box where he had been sitting on the street side of the station, and went round to the railway platform where the cars would come in.

The wind was in his favor; it blew from the southeast. When he had stared at the clock-face in the waiting room, through the window, at least fifty times, and counted out ten minutes, he heard a distant shriek of the whistle, and his heart stood still. Only ten minutes more! for the train was due at 5.50 P. M.

But what minutes! Ten! there were ten hundred of them at the least! and then—there it came—slowing carefully up to the platform, and there was Tom Scott's pleasant face, and his athletic figure at the door of the car, ready to hand out trunks.

"Tom! Tom Scott!" cried a strange, hoarse voice, as a man pushed fiercely through the astonished crowd to the baggage-car, "where's my girl? where is Lotty?"

"Lotty!" ejaculated Tom, pausing in the act of sliding a big trunk to the platform.

"Lotty! why, man alive, where do you s'pose she is? to home, aint she? where she'd oughter be."

"Did you fetch her—send her, I mean, on the 2.10 train?"

"Bless your crazy soul! I never took her! When I see you didn't get aboard this noon I jest took an' dropped her into George's arms—he stood there alookin' on; and sez I, 'Take her hum, George; he ain't a-going to-day, as I see.' So he ketched her and went off with her. Didn't she kick though?" And Tom Scott laughed at the recollection.

Mr. Park would have liked to knock him down on the spot; but the relief, the revulsion, was so great he had scarce strength to drag himself up into the car. A few pants of the engine, a short tug up the heavy grade, and they were at West Waring station, and there, running across the street toward the station, rosy, dancing, smiling, came Lost Lotty.—Rose Terry Cooke, in Youths' Companion.

Where Bears Were Thick.

Said Major Jim: "B'ars will leave when you make it too hot for 'em, sir. when I was doin' business for old Jedge Smides, down in Madison Parish—plantation lay right on the river—Mississippi River you know—one night I was sittin' on my gallery smokin', sir—everything jest as still as er dead mule, sir. Well, first thing I knowed I heerd a kinder noise way up 'cross the river, and it sounded sorter low like at first, and then it kept gittin' louder and louder, twell I couldent stand it no longer, sir. I jest jumps up on my feet and I says: 'Old ooman, old ooman, a hurricane's comein', sure as you're born.' Says she: 'Major O.'—she always called me Major O. when she wan't in a hurry—'how in the name o' sense can a hurricane be a comein' when there ain't a cloud in the sky?' 'Well,' says I, 'there's the deuce to pay somewhere.' So I picks up my double-barrel and I breaks out for the levee, and when I gits there I lissen, and I hears that roarin' 'cross the river gittin' louder and louder, jest like a nigger funeral, when they begin to blow the mud out their bilers, sir. And I looked where the moon was shinin', and I seen that whole river turnin' black, sir, and comin' closer and closer up to where I was standin'. Skeared! I reckon I was skeared. Why, sir, my hair would a lifted a cotton bale. I would a put up and dusted, and I did kinder inch back er little, but I dazzent run, sir, with Susan Ann a standin' there on that gallery. There she stood, sir, and first she'd sing 'Old Hundred,' and then she'd git down on her marrow bones and moan out her little prayer, and then every once in a while she'd holler out, 'Jim, what is the matter?' as if I wouldn't a given six quarts of Dexter's best jest to a half knowed what was the matter. If you'd a seed me, sir, a standin' there havin' one agur on top of another faster'n you could count 'em, and the cold sweat runnin' out the holes in my boots, you'd a knowed, sir, how happy I was, sir, when I seed somethin' black riz up out that river and shuck hisself. I jest up and hollered to Susan Ann not to be carryin' on like a mooniack and makin' a durned fool of herself; but I had jest as well hollered at a loggerhead turkle, for Susan Ann and every nigger on that hill had lit out for the canobreak, sir. So I jest stood there lonesome by myself, and I jest poured it into them b'ars right and left when they topped that levee and shuck theyselves, twell broad daylight, sir. It looked like the whole world was full of b'ars, sir. I jest stood in my tracks and I killed thirty-eight of 'em, sir—the biggest in the drove, and when I stopped shootin' there wasn't a livin' soul on that plantation 'cept me and them dead b'ars. Every nigger, sir, little and big, and Susan Ann to boot, was clean gone, sir. I got some nigger dogs and I ketched the old ooman down on Joe's Bayou the next day, but some of them niggers never did git back, sir, never did. Yes, sir, b'ars will travel when you makes it hot for 'em."—Forest and Stream.

An Indian's Stoicism.

From a London (Canada) paper we copy the following account of the cat-o'-nine-tails:

"Doxtator was brought out. He is a muscular, heavy-set Indian, and had a laugh on his face. His back was bared, his wrists were strapped to the upper parts of the arm of the triangle, and his knees and ankels to the lower part, throwing his back out. The only sign of nervousness manifested was a quick look at the cat-o'-nine-tails which was in the hand of a stout expert, who had been a drummer in the Twenty-third British regulars. The cat had a short handle and nine thongs of hard, heavy cord a yard long, with nine knots in each. At the command of the Sheriff the cat was flourished around the whipper's head with a quick jerk, whistled through the air and fell with a sharp thud over the left shoulder-blade, making large blue marks. At the third the flesh was cut open, but the prisoner's muscles never quivered, though of sixty spectators, fully half of them sickened and turned away. Twenty-five lashes, given with all the power of a strong man in one place, caused the flesh to creep up in purple welts, which were cut transversely into small squares, out of which the blood trickled. But few of the crowd could look at it throughout. The Indian never flinched, and after the last blow, which was given with extra vigor, the Sheriff cried 'enough,' and Doxtator laughed and said:

"'Bully for Injun.'

"When he was released the porter asked him how he felt. He answered, 'Feel him back very much.' The Indian asked the whipper for a 'chaw baccer,' and grabbed a pipe out of the turnkey's mouth and went to smoke, but it was taken from him. The wounds were washed with salt and water to prevent inflammation, and that made Josiah wince worse than the flogging."

Religious.

TO A YOUNG LADY ON HER TWENTY-FIRST BIRTHDAY.

What shall I wish thee, maiden, to-day,
As we gather to greet thee bright and gay,
And tender congratulations?
Shall I wish for thee presents costly and rare,
A flower, a pearl for thy braided hair;
Some purchased gew-gaw dazzling and fair,
Or still richer presentations?

Shall I wish thee days of unbroken health?
Or wish thee a fortune of untold wealth,
And friends and admirers many?
Shall I wish thee houses and lands and flocks,
Riches in dividends, bonds and stocks;
Wardrobes of costumes, robes and frocks;
Wines in Burgundies, sherries and hocks,
And a husband rarer than any?

Nay, wishes like these are but empty things,
For what are jewels, and trinkets, and rings?
Or what is pleasure or mirth?
Or what are lands, or houses, or gold?
Or what a fortune of wealth untold?
Or what is aught that is bought or sold,
Whatever its cost or worth?

For jewels are trash, and gold but dross;
All pleasure pain, all gain but loss,
To a soul that must live forever,
If that soul and God be not reconciled;
If life be not pure and undefiled,
If the heart be not lowly, meek and mild,
Like the heart of a spotless Heavenly child,
That sin has sullied never—

Then I'll wish for thee pardon, and rest, and peace,
A life of faith that will ever increase,
And a hope that will ever burn bright;
A soul that God keeps calm with His smile,
A heart that no evil shall ever defile,
A mind that no doubt shall ever beguile,
Till the shadows and shades of earth's "little while"
Are lost in Heaven's bright Light;

Yes, then shall thy life be happy and blest,
Then shall thy heart be ever at rest
Wherever thy footsteps roam;
Then shall thy riches be richer than gold,
And the worth of thy treasures remain untold
Till God's pure Light thy Life unfold,
And God Himself thine eyes behold
In thy far-off Heavenly Home.

—Christian Commonwealth.

International Sunday-School Lessons.

THIRD QUARTER.

July 22	—[illegible]eated at Ai	Josh. 7:10-26
July 29	—The Reading of the Law	Josh. 8:30-35
Aug. 5	—The Cities of Refuge	Josh. 20: 1-9
Aug. 12	—The Last Days of Joshua	Josh. 24:14-29
Aug. 19	—Israel Forsaking God	Judg. 2: 6-16
Aug. 26	—Gideon's Army	Judg. 7: 1-8
Sept. 2	—The Death of Samson	Judg. 16:21-31
Sept. 9	—Ruth and Naomi	Ruth 1:14-22
Sept. 16	—A Praying Mother	1 Sam. 1:21-28
Sept. 23	—The Child Samuel	1 Sam. 3: 1-19
Sept. 30	—Review.

NOT A FAILURE.

"Her life began so brilliantly," said my friend, "it is a pity that it has turned out such a failure."

We were speaking of one who in her girlhood gave exceptional promise of scholarship and literary culture. Her powers were uncommon, and were equaled by her ambition. Stimulated by admiring parents and teachers, and filled with a genuine love of knowledge, she studied so incessantly that her health broke down, and there came a period of enforced repose.

Rallying, the same course of severe effort produced the same result, and the studies had to be laid aside. The lamp burned brightly, but the vase was fragile and so the flame was obscured. It could never become a beacon sending its rays far and wide, through mirk and gloom. But it could and did burn steadily on with a mild, pure radiance, shedding its cheerful luster over the home circle.

Contented to abide in lowly ministries, the gifted girl, finding that she could not spend days and nights over Greek and Latin, determined to become that rare thing, a perfect housekeeper. She learned patiently and thoroughly the various secrets of housework; those occult processes by which neat, beautiful and well-ordered homes are kept going as if by magic.

Reading the other day about Solomon's temple, and the great blocks of hewn stone and massive beams of cedar, which were prepared and brought to it, all ready for use, so that the grand edifice was reared in dignified quietude, without noise or confusion, I thought, how like to this is the work which must take place in the household, if things are to be carried forward in order. Nobody builds a beautiful home temple without pains and care, and we must do our polishing and hewing out of sight, if we would be successful architects.

The young girl I am speaking of (I will call her Lillie) learned to brew, to bake, to sweep, to dust, to sew, to manage servants and to entertain guests, every one of these occupations being in a manner uncongenial to her, since she was by nature shy, retiring, and a bit of a recluse. The variety and exercise necessary to homely housekeeping did not tax her strength as did intense devotion to books, yet she continued frail, and was sometimes laid aside for months.

I suppose nobody learns how to sympathize with the sick in any other way than by learning pain suffering. Our Lillie became a tender visitor in shadowed homes. She would come with her soft step, her gentle words, her sweet face and her unerring tact into a sick room, and when she left it the patient felt encouraged. So, there was one work she did for the Master, not less precious that it was a very unobtrusive one.

She taught class after class in the Sabbath-school; and as the years went by, and the girls and boys who had been under her instruction grew up, they remembered her counsels and prized her continued friendship. They sought her for advice, told her their perplexities, and were influenced by her in their maturity, as they had been guided in their childhood.

Lillie's brothers and sisters married and went here and there to their new homes. Neither love nor marriage were appointed for her, and she staid on with her parents through their declining years, always their comfort, and gradually their main dependence. She retained, as it seems to me some single women do, in a marvelous way, the simplicity of her child-heart through all her years; and now that her hair is sprinkled with silver, and her foot-fall is less firm than of old, she is still everything that a daughter can be to the aged ones who lean on her.

Lillie has never written a poem, nor painted a picture, nor made a discovery in science, nor dazzled a drawing-room. She has spent her life humbly, in a shady place, but she has made the shadows sweet with the perfume of Christ's love, and the world has been the better for her. Such a life is anything but a failure. Margaret E. Sangster, in Congregationalist.

The Skeptics and Christ.

The study of Christ's character and life has always commanded the profoundest thought of men. In the days of His humanity all who saw and heard Him wondered at the impersonation of grace and virtue and wisdom which they recognized in Him; and through all the centuries He has been studied by both friends and foes, until He holds the chief place in the literature of the world. How He is esteemed by His followers we need not attempt to show; but the judgment of His character by His enemies, while scarcely less exalted, is still more surprising.

The familiar testimony of Rosseau, one of the most polished of all the skeptics, is a remarkable confession of Christ's divinity: "If the life and death of Socrates are those of a sage, the life and death of Jesus are those of a God." So exalted was his conception of the character of our Lord that Mr. John Stuart Mill was compelled to say: "Religion can not be said to have made a bad choice in pitching upon this man as the ideal representative and guide of humanity; nor even now would it be easy even for an unbeliever to find a better translation of the rule of virtue from the abstract to the concrete than to endeavor so to live that Christ would approve our life." And even Strauss, in his second "Leben Jesu," 1864, concedes "that in many respects Jesus stands in the first line of those who have developed the ideal of humanity." Of course none of these skeptics acknowledge the deity of Christ; and, to break the force of their concessions, they make exceptions, and presume to say there were sides of excellence in His character that "were only faintly indicated, or not even hinted at." But, in spite of their unbelief, they are not able to escape the conviction that Christ and His religion present supernatural features which, though they can not understand, they dare not deny. It is a suggestive question of Mr. Mill: "Who among the disciples of Jesus or among their proselytes was capable of inventing the sayings ascribed to Jesus, or of imagining the life and character revealed in the Gospels?" And the negative answer which the question anticipates only expresses the judgment of the most thoughtful and candid of his class of doubters.

Yet there is a wide difference between the views held of Christ by skeptics and Christians; for while the former yield him reverence on the ground of His unapproachable moral excellence, the latter worship Him as the incarnate God. Skeptics like Renan, with a look of great liberality, say: "The Sublime Person, who daily presides still over the destiny of the world, we may call divine, not in the sense that Jesus absorbed all the divine, or, to use a scholastic word, was adequate to it, but in the sense that Jesus is the individual who has made His species take the greatest step towards the divine." This, however, is paying Him no more homage than did the men who in the days of His flesh admitted that He was a prophet but denied that He was the Messiah. The declaration of Peter: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God," expresses the Heaven-taught estimate which all Christians hold of Christ.—Baptist Weekly.

Wise Sayings.

—The way to forget our miseries is to remember our mercies.

—Trust that man in nothing who has not a conscience in everything.—Sterne.

—This world can not explain its own difficulties without the assistance of another.—Cotton.

—Faith is to believe what we do not see, and the reward of faith is to see what we believe.—Augustine.

—Consecration is not a religiously selfish thing. If it sinks into that, it ceases to be consecration.—Frances Ridley Havergal.

—I wonder many times that ever a child of God should have a sad heart, considering what the Lord is preparing for him.—Rutherford.

—There is, perhaps, no better test of a man's real strength of character than the way in which he bears himself under just reproof. Every man makes mistakes; every man commits faults; but not every man has the honesty and meekness to acknowledge his errors and to welcome the criticism which points them out to him. It is rarely difficult for us to find an excuse for our course, if it's an excuse we are looking for. It is, in fact, always easier to spring to an angry defense of ourselves than to calmly acknowledge the justice of another's righteous condemnation of some wrong action of ours; but to refuse to adopt this latter course, when we know that we are in the wrong, is to reveal to our own better consciousness, and often to the consciousness of others, an essential defect in our character. He is strong who dares confess that he is weak; he is already tottering to a fall who needs to bolster up the weakness of his personality by all sorts of transparent shams. It is not in vain that Scripture says: "Reprove one that hath understanding and he will understand knowledge;" for one of the best evidences of the possession of that discreet self-judgment which stands at the basis of moral strength, and one of the best means of gaining it when it is lacking, is just this willingness to accept merited reproof, and to profit by it when accepted.—S. S. Times.

—A man who died in Cincinnati a few days since, had suffered from a decayed tooth, and often determined to have it removed or filled. About two weeks ago he had it taken out, and was unfortunate enough to catch cold in the cavity. An abscess formed, and this, in breaking, let some of the poisonous virus into his blood. Medical aid was at once summoned, but the deadly poison had already done its work, and he died after only a couple of days' serious illness.—Cincinnati Times.

—Eight young women of Elizabeth, near Pittsburgh, Pa., were arrested recently for singing "Rock of Ages" under a window of Mrs. Martha Taylor's house. When the matter came before the Burgess Mrs. Taylor failed to make out a case and was obliged to pay the costs.—Pittsburgh Post.

Our Young Folks.

TWO LITTLE GIRLS I KNOW.

I know a little girl
(You! Oh, no!)
Who, when she's asked to go to bed,
Does just so—
She brings a dozen wrinkles out
And takes the dimples in;
She puckers up her pretty lips
And then she does begin:
"Oh dear me! I don't see why!
All the others sit up late,
And why can't I?"

Another little girl I know,
With curly pate,
Who says: "When I'm a great big girl
I'll sit up late;
But mamma says 'twill make me grow
To be an early bird."
So she and dolly trot away
Without another word.
Oh, the sunny smile and the eye so blue,
And—why, yes, now I think of it,
She looks like you.

—Youth's Companion.

A LITTLE WOMAN.

She was a very little woman, not more than four years old, and I am afraid she was running away.

Perhaps I ought not to say running; for she walked gravely and deliberately along the street, looking about her with an observant air. She had on a ruffled white apron, and a brown stuff dress, and over her head she had thrown an apron of blue and white check in place of a bonnet. The apron was so large, and the little woman so small, that, while the chubby hand held it snugly under her round chin, one corner trailed on the ground behind her. The apron also served as a shawl for a rag doll with no features to speak of, whose head, with a ghastly wound on top, peeped out under the little mother's arm. A great many people were coming and going, but the little woman did not notice them. She was singing to herself and the doll:

"'Tis His hand that leadeth me."

She only knew this one line, so she sang it over and over as she went on, walking close to the fences, and peeping into yards where flowers were growing, and into basements, where she had glimpses of tables covered with red cloths, and shining casters towering in the middle like revolving batteries. She was directly in the wake of a fat woman, who turned the stream of travel one side, and left a quiet little path for her small follower.

Presently the little woman stopped. She had come to a yard, filled with trees and flowers, around an old-fashioned brick house. The flowers were old-fashioned, too, but they were all of the sweetest, and over them the cherry-boughs were like one great white bouquet. The little woman forgot to hold the apron under her chin, and it slid down to the sidewalk. She took her doll from under her arm, and held her close to the fence that she might see, too, and smell the blossoms, and hear the fine, clear piping of the bees at work among them. There was a wonderful bird flashing about the trees like a great golden blossom. The bird seemed always just about to launch into a song, but was so busy he broke off at the first syllable. A man came across the lawn with a wheelbarrow, in which was a green shrub. He dug a hole in the turf, and began to plant the bush: but he saw the eager little face, and the dolly with her wooden brains oozing out behind. He nodded good-naturedly.

"Where you going, sis?"

"Anywhere," said the little woman.

"What you looking at?"

"God's flowers," was the grave answer.

The man laughed again, and pushed up his hat.

"Them's the Guv'nor's flowers; want some?"

The little woman only nodded, but her eyes grew large and round with wonder and expectancy as the man broke a white bough from the cherry-tree, and a purple spike of a hyacinth. He put them in her hand, saying: "Now run home, or that there young lady will be took up by the p'lice; looks like she'd had a row."

The little woman had neither eyes nor ears for anything but the flowers. The man went back to his work, and she went slowly on. One block, two blocks, six blocks, then she came to a little triangular park at the intersection of the streets—a very small park, with only grass and a few trees in it, and an iron drinking fountain for horses just outside the fence. Two dusty horses were drinking from the round iron bowl, and a dog was eagerly lapping the slender stream that spilled over upon the stones below. The little woman went into the park, and sat down under a tree. She was just beginning to be afraid she was lost, but she could not be very unhappy while she had her flowers. She sat very still looking at them, and to her great delight a brown bee came sniffing at the white cups for an instant as he passed. Stretched on the grass near her was a boy—a big boy; the little woman would have called him a man. He had red hands and a sunburned face, and coarse, clumsy clothes. You would not have looked twice at him, but the little woman looked and looked, and saw he was crying. She looked again, and then crept a little nearer, holding her doll very tight.

"Does you want some of God's flowers?" she asked, holding the sweet things toward him.

The boy took them eagerly—took them all; but just as the little woman was going to cry he gave them back to her, so she broke off a piece of the cherry bough and one little stemless hyacinth, and gave them to him. The boy had but lately come to the city. He was hungry, he was friendless, he was utterly discouraged, he had taken the first step downward. But when he smelt the familiar scent of cherry blossoms, and saw the pure, pitiful eyes of the little woman looking at him, it brought back the homely brown house among the hills, and the little sisters who believed in him and trusted him.

"I'll try one day more," he said resolutely, "and if I can't get work, I'll go home; I won't stay here and go to the bad."

Surely they were "God's flowers" which the little woman had given him.

She sat quietly under the tree, talking sometimes to her doll, and counting the hyacinth bells over and over. She knew now she was lost, but was not really frightened. She felt sure some one would come by and by and find her.

The market-house clock began to strike twelve. With the first stroke a babel of sounds broke in. Steam-whistles in every key, bells that clanged slowly, bells that rang wildly, clocks striking from a dozen steeples, and through them all the slow, deep poom of the market-clock. The street was full of hurrying people, going home to dinner. Clattering over the pavement came an empty express wagon; the driver hesitated, then turned up to the brimming water-basin, and let the big gray horse plunge his nose in the cool water. A flock of brown sparrows were taking shower-baths in the overflow; and as the driver waited his eyes followed them with amusement from the water to the branches where they dried their feathers. What was that under the tree? A child lying asleep on the grass?

"Looks like my little woman," said the driver, jumping over the fence, and coming up to the tree in three strides.

"Sure's you live it's herself," he said, as he picked the little sleeper up in his strong arms. He stooped again for the doll, and thrust it head first into his pocket; but the little hand clung to the flowers even in sleep. The big horse whisked away, but with the jolting of the wagon the blue eyes opened.

"What ye s'pose mother'll say?" asked the driver, pressing the soft cheek against his rough coat. "Where was ye goin', anyhow?"

"Just went a-walkin," said the little woman, "and I couldn't go back cause the house got lost."

When the terrified mother had assured herself that her darling was safe and sound, when the little woman was eagerly crowding her withered flowers into her tin cup, the father looked up from his dinner to say:

"Curious how I happened to drive by the park to-day; haven't been that way in a week."

"'Tis His hand that leadeth me," sang the little woman over her flowers.

The father looked at the mother and nodded.

"May be," he said, thoughtfully.—Emily Huntington Miller, in S. S. Times.

The Canoe of the Water Moth.

The gnat builds his egg boat. The water moth, another little creature, puts together a real canoe. It is a very curious thing, made of bits of straw and reeds all matted together. It is just the shape of the caterpillar that lives in it. The insect breathes with gills just like a fish, and yet can not swim.

So he fastens this straw and grass together, winding them all around with his own silk. The body of the caterpillar is soft and delicate, you know, and might get hurt if it was left exposed. This is the reason why he covers it so carefully, all but his head.

This funny sort of canoe is open at both ends. It is so fixed that when the grub is tired of sailing he can sink down upon the sand. Reaching out of the upper end are his six little feet, with which he drags his small boat after him whenever he wants to get his dinner or put up for the night. After several days he not only creeps out of this strange house, but out of his skin, at the same time taking on moth wings.

Many people call these queer creatures "laddis worms." If you hunt for them with your young eyes, you can find these little nests of stone, and gravel, and leaves, made by the grubs, though they are very small. They seem to have great taste in fixing them. You should see the houses they make of fresh leaves, curiously put together. They hang from their shoulders like so many wings. They are even more like a bud just ready to open.

These pretty cases of leaves are glued together, leaving an opening at its top just large enough for the little creatures to put out their head and shoulders when they want to look about for food; others of the same species cut pieces of reed or wood into lengths or strips, and join them together as they go on with their work. They use a certain kind of cement, which is better able to stand water than any ever made by man. And they often finish up the whole by putting a broad piece, longer than all the rest, overhead, to shade the doorway, so that no one shall see them work. Some of these funny grubs break off bits of the stems of rushes, which, you know, grow in the water, and weave them into a sort of round ball. Then they hang them together on the stem of some other water plant, making a little cell in the middle to live in. Some use tiny shells even, with snails and other animals alive in them. They keep these poor things just as if they were in prison, and drag them all about with them.—Our Little Ones.

A Queer Wedding Present.

This is a month of weddings, and what to send as a present is a vexatious subject to many. At a recent wedding in New York there were five card-receivers of the same kind, and inquiries on the part of the donors revealed the fact that all had been purchased at the same place, and because recommended by the storekeeper, who found they caught the fancy and consequently advised them to all. At another there were four sets of after-dinner coffee cups. In this connection a good story occurs. A gentleman in impecunious circumstances wished to make a handsome present to a friend entering the bonds of matrimony. He wrought out for himself a little scheme. He went to a wholesale store and asked to see some of their broken ware. Among other stuff he was shown a very handsome vase that was badly broken, which in a good condition would have been worth seventy-five dollars; the remains would sell for five dollars. He purchased the "remains" and had them carefully packed and forwarded with his card, the recipients, of course, imagining that they had got broken on the way, and not informing him of the fact lest he might go to additional expense. Rather a clever dodge, as dodges go! But he told this to a friend who went and did likewise. He, however, was misunderstood by the dealer who, in sending the "remains" had each piece carefully packed so as to prevent further breakages, and consequently, the ruse was exposed. The system, though, of wedding presents is carried to an absurd extent.—N. Y. Journal.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. JULY 25 .1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
½ "	"	40
¼ "	½ "	20
⅛ "	1 "	20
"	½ "	10
"	¼ "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (except ing the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.
Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

ISAAC COOPER, a pioneer citizen of Covington, died last Saturday.

DIRELY, the negro arrested by Alf Burnett, has obtained warrants for his arrest. Its Direly's day now.

IN a recent interview Hon. J. C. S. Blackburn says he will not support Randall for Speaker under any circumstances.

SAM BULGER, the negro who plead guilty of rape and was sentenced in the Mason circuit court last week, will be hung on the 4th of September.

JOE BLACKBURN refuses to daddy the Washington interview in which he is represented as saying that more than half the Kentucky delegation is pledged to him for Speaker.

HOGGISH—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $5 50@5 85; fair to good packers, at $5 25@5 60; fair to good light, $5 75@6 00; common, $4 50@5 20; culls, $3 50@4 25: stock hogs, $4 50@5 25.

THE Clinton Democrat says that the wheat crop in that section is proving a varied one. Some crops are yielding an increase over last year's while some are falling short. The quantity of grain is very good in the main. and the aggregate yield will be but little less than last year.

IF the representative that this county elects, votes for anyone but John G. Carlisle for United States Senator, he will make Rome howl in old Boone, for nineteen out of every tweenty voters in the county are for him. There seems to be no disposition to call the candidates out on that question, when it is really the question of the day.

THE crop is flourishing in Kentucky, Ohio, part of Tennesee, West Virginia, Indiana and Missouri, but is not doing so well in Virginia, North Carolina, Maryland and parts of Tennesee where the prospects for even a moderate yield of "bright" are not encouraging. In the Seed Leaf states the Tobacco is growing well and the yield will be an average one, as the decreased acreage in a few sections is offset by an increase in the balance.—Western Tobacco Journal.

W. H. O'BRIEN, the genial junior editor of the Lawrenceburg Register, and Secretary of the Lawrenceburg Fair, remained over night here last Tuesday. He was canvassing this part of Boone in the interest of his fair which commences on the 22d of next month, which will be unusually attractive this year. Liberal premiums will be given in the different departments. There will be a race each day, and the purses are such as will bring good horses into competition. Nothing short of a good fair can be anticipate. For further particulars see advertisement in another column.

IT may be interesting to know that the Kentucky Penitentiary was completed in 1799, and only had enrolled from 1799 to 1815 inclusive, the total of 184 convicts. The first prisoner was John Turner and the second Samuel Moss. Gov. Garrard was the first to issue a pardon, which he did in the following words, copied from the official record:

James Garrard Governor of Commonwealth of Kentucky, to all whom these presents may come greeting:.

WHEREAS, It has been presented to me by James Blair, Richard Apperson, Thomas Love and Daniel Weiser, Esq. inspectors of the jail and penitentiary-house, that Samuel Moss, who is confined therein, has, during his confinement, behaved in a very industrious and orderly manner and discovers a penitence for the crime of which he was convicted; and whereas, the exercise of mercy toward him may be productive of favorable impression on his mind, and may have a tendency to encourage a like industrious and orderly deportment in others; therefore, know ye, that by virtue of the power vested in me by the Constitution, I do pardon the said Samuel Moss for the offense of which he has been convicted, and do hereby order that he be discharged from confinement accordingly.

Given under my hand and the seal of the State the 18th of Mach 18[illegible].
By the Governer, JAMES GARRARD.
HENRY TOULMIN, Sec'ty of State.

THE question of calling a convention to amend the constitution of Kentucky, is to be voted upon at the ensuing election. Our present constitution, democratic as it is may be in most respects, cannot be considered so in its provisions regarding the mode of amending it.

The principle that a majority should rule, supposed to be fair and just in a democratic community, is most thoroughly ignored by article twelve in our constitution. By that article, the question of calling the convention, is not determined by the affirmative vote of a majority for the convention; but, on the contrary, every voter actually casting his vote on the question at the election, may vote for the convention, and yet no convention will be called, unless it should so happen that a majority of all the citizens of the State entitled to vote have voted for calling the convention, for upon one side is counted for the call only those who actually vote, while against it is counted every voter in the State who has not voted on the question, thus placing and counting against the call all who have no choice—all who favor the call but fail to vote as well as all who are against it. Thereby pursuing a mode of determining the result of a popular election at variance with the manner so well favored and known, and so general with us in all other questions submitted to the decision of the people through the plan of elections.

The people of this State, we presume, are not against the old idea of submitting to the will of the majority expressed by an actual vote at the polls, and should be as ready to apply that principle to a question of calling a convention as to anyother. A full vote, a free vote and a fair count are as necessary and proper now as at any time, and here as anywhere.

It seems that the wrong of counting a vote not cast, or of counting the vote of one not casting it for the the reason that the voter had no choice; or of counting the vote of one not casting it because of necessary absence from the polls, who, if present, would give it against the way his absence will cause it, by the law to be counted, is too palpable to need comment. Yet our present constitution permits all this on this question. But if by chance the friends of the convention should succeed at the ensuing election in mustering sufficient votes to overcome all these difficulties, and to poll a majority of all the votes in the State on their side of the question, they will then have accomplished only a part of the work necessary. The constitution, same article, as if to tie, as lastingly as possible, the hands of the people in this matter, requires that the vote shall be taken again two years hence on the same question, in the same way and the same result determined by the same unfair mode of computation.

This article twelve of our constitution tying the hands of the people as it does, and for so long a period, and permitting, under its sanction, such gross wrong and injustice, may at some future time, drive the people into revolution.

If our constitution was good in every other respect, this twelfth article, of itself, is so far undemocratic and unjust as to justify and demand the calling of a convention to amend it.

DAN TIMBERLAKE, COL., convicted of rape, was hung in Lexington, last Friday.

STATE NEWS.

—Boyle county has an immense crop of Irish potatoes.

—Columbia Spectator: Mr. Robert C. Gilmer found a guinea's nest on his farm last week containing sixty-three eggs.

—In the Lexington Insane Asylum there are 645 patients, and at Anchorage 623—a total of 1,268 in the two institutions.

—Prof. L. R. Martin, of Woodville, McCracken county, announces himself a candidate for Superintendent of Public Instruction on the Prohibition ticket.

—Bowling Green Gazette: The man who stole his girl from the upstairs window, with the aid of a ladder, is supposed to have belonged to a hook and ladder company.

—Lexington Press: Unless we greatly mistake the temper of the metal of which the General of the Army and Navy of Kentucky is composed, he will sit squarely down on Atjt. Gen. Nuckols' refusal to permit the use of the army tents of the State to the men of the Morgan reunion.

—Owingsville Outlook: A more luxuriant grass crop never grew than now carpets the pastures in this county. The wheat has been saved, corn looks well and the stand of tobacco is excellent. All in all, our farmers are a fortunate class, and should be the happiest set of men in the world.

—Lexington Press: Mr. S. K. Chevis, who got judgment against the State last April for something over $16,000, but on one excuse and another he has been kept out of his money and hasn't got it yet. The excuse now is that there is no money in the State Treasury. Mr. Chevis says that if he is not paid immediately he will stop the collection of taxes in the hands of every Sheriff in the State.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

[Courier-Journal.]

—There is $800,000 in the State Treasury of Texas.

—A snow white squirrel was killed a few days ago at Brazo Bend, Tex.

—The Natchez, Red River and Texas railroad is to be repaired and completed to Black River.

—Sassasfras root is on a boom in Winston, Miss., where a mill has been started to grind it.

—Very favorable reports come from the tobacco-raising districts of Virginia and North Carolina.

—An association of the farmers of West Tennessee will be organized at Jackson on the 16th of August.

—The owners of the oil mill at Port Gibson, Miss., have been indicted for running their mill on Sunday.

—Fifty-two students are registered at the colored National School at the Lincoln Academy, at Tallahasse.

—[illegible] Killberew, of Tennessee, has gone to Mexico to work the Polk mines. He says they are worth $3,000,000.

—Hale county, Ala., has a colored dwarf, a girl about twenty years old, who is only three feet and three inches in height.

—Eight of the graduating class of the University of Virginia, this year have been called to professorships in other colleges of the South.

—A band of men calling themselves "Second Adventists" are successfully playing an alleged religious racket in Fairfax county, Va.

—A petition is being generally signed in Baltimore asking the School Board to appoint colored teachers for the public schools of that city.

—The crop reports from all over Alabama say that corn is generally good, but behind last year. Cotton is from two to three weeks later than last year.

—Mr. William Brannan, of Fredericksburg, Va., has invented a fire escape by means of ladders, which are raised from a truck by an ingenious mechanical device.

—A herd of 4,000 cattle, mostly cows and heifers, passed through Fort Worth, Texas, the other day, for the New Mexico Land and Cattle Company, a Boston corporation.

—A company organized in Washington, D. C., lately has purchased six thousand acres of land in Polk county, Fla., and will raise oranges, limes, lemons and other tropical fruits.

—People of Graysville, Ga., are turning out en masse to slay the mad dogs, which are becoming very numerous. A goat bitten by one recently went mad and butted its brains out.

—It will require four cars to bring the Escambia county, Ala., big tree to the Louisville Exposition. It is 117 feet long, and will be used as a flag pole in front of the Exposition building.

—In a portion of Leak and Attala counties, Ala., a worm resembling the cotton-worm has made its apperance. Several head of mules have been killed by eating oats with the insect on them.

—Mrs. Mary Tanner, a widow lady of Walton county, Ga., has in the last eleven months wove over a thousand yards of cloth. One day she wove seven yards and made it into two shirts, and got through before sundown.

—An insect has appeared in Fauquier and neighboring counties in Virginia this summer which attacks peach and pear trees by perforating numerous little holes in the trunks and branches the size of a pin's point The tree soon withers and dies.

—An ex-soldier of the Confederacy, on trial for larceny at Beaufort, S. C., the other day, was defended by a colored lawyer, who made a pathetic appeal for the man who had lost an arm in the service, but all the same the court gave him two years in the penitentiary.

—It is stated that there is now living near Boydton, Mecklenburg county, Va., a colored woman, now in her hundreth year, who has never taken a dose of medicine of any kind in all her life. She is hale and hearty and seems likely to live quite a number of years longer.

—A colored divine down at Greensboro, Ala., belonging to the "A. M. E. Zion Convention," whatever that is, is peddling out among his people "A Copy of a letter from Jesus Christ," at ten cents a copy. He tells his breddren whoever buys a copy "de Lord will abide wid 'um an, bless 'um!"

—What may prove to be an important discovery was made near Vicksburg, Miss, a few days since. In digging in a gravel pile a substance believed to be kaolin was found. and is now in the hands of a scientific gentleman for analysis. The result of analysis thus far is encouraging. If proves to be kaolin, it is the first and only bed ever discovered in that state.

LOOK! LOOK!! LOOK!!!

From JULY 1st, to AUG., 1st, Custom Made suits will be on the average $5 less. Ready Made suits have been reduced 25 per cent.

The stock is large and must be disposed of to make room for my Fall Goods, let every one take advantage of the great reduction. H. F. BLASE, 540 Madison St., Covington, Ky.

A. M. Elliott and Co,
—DEALERS IN—
Threshers,
Engines,
SAW MILLS, HORSE POWERS, BUCKEYE
Reapers, Mowers and Self-Binders.
South Bend Chilled Plows, Furst & Bradley Steel Plows,
Buggies, Wagons and Farming Implements in General.
Give us a call. Satisfaction guaranteed in every sale. Corner second and Judiciary Streets, Aurora, Indiana. 33-6t

GRAND EVENT OF THE YEAR!

The Lawrenceburg Fair,

AUGUST 22nd to 25th, 1883.

RACES Every DAY.

PROGRAMME:

Wednesday, August 22.
Jack and Mules, Heavy Draft Horses.
Boone and Dearborn County Trot, Purse $60 00
Running Race, Purse, $100 00

Thursday, August 23.
Address by HON. JOHN G. CARLISLE.
Cattle, Saddle Horses, Hogs and Sheep.
Three minute trot, Purse, $200 00
Running Race, Purse, $150 00

Friday, August 24.
General Purpose Horses, Sweepstakes on Hogs and Sheep, Matched Horses, Sweepstakes on Stallions, Purse $50 00
Two Thirty Trot, Purse $200 00
Free for all Pace, Purse $300 00

Saturday, August 25.
Herds of Cattle, Purse $150 00
Light Harness Horses, Sweepstakes on General Purpose Horses, Purse $50 00
Running Race, Purse $200 00
Free for all Trot, Purse $400 00

STEAM FERRY at Lawrenceburg during Fair week, Commencing Wednesday, August 22nd.
No Entry Fees for Competition. Send for Premium Lists.
W. H. O'BRIEN, Secretary,
Lawrenceburg, Indiana.

REPORT OF THE CONDITION
OF THE
Farmers & Traders National Bank
AT COVINGTON,

In the State of Kentucky, at the close of business, June 22 1883.

RESOURCES.

Loans and discounts		$596,257 38
Overdrafts		137 20
U.S. Bonds to secure circulation		50,000 00
Due from approved reserve agents		56,025 45
Due from other National banks	5,440 88
Due from State banks and bankers	1,607 76	7,048 64
Real estate, furniture and fixtures		4,668 91
Current expenses and taxes paid		3,846 08
Premiums paid		9,000 00
Checks and other cash items		92 85
Bills of other Banks		940 00
Fractional paper currency, nickels and pennics		47 81
Specie		2,965 00
Legal tender notes		20,000 00
Redemption fund with U. S. Treasurer (5 per cent of circulation)		2,250 00
Total		$753,279 32

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock paid in		$300,000 00
Surplus fund	1,200 00
Undivided profits	26,730 65	27,930 65
National bank notes outstanding		45,000 00
Individual deposits subject to check	342,731 38
Due to other National Banks	23,809 31
Due to State Banks and bankers	13,807 98	380,348 67
Total		$753,279 32

State of Kentucky, County of Kenton, ss: I, John L. Sandford, Cashier of the above-named bank, do solemnly swear that the above statement is true to the best of my knowledge and belief.

J. L. SANDFORD, Cashier.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 22d day of June, 1883. GEO. H. DAVISON, Notary Public.

Correct—Attest:
E. J. HICKEY,
M. C. MOTCH,
J. H. MERSMAN,
} Directors.

ELECTION NOTICE.

BOONE COUNTY COURT.
Regular Term, April 2, 1883.

Numerous voters, (20 in number) of the HAMILTON voting precinct, of this county, having petitioned for the holding of an election on the first Monday in August, 1883, for the purpose of taking the sense of the legal voters therein on the proposition whether or not spirituous, vinous or malt liquors shall be sold therein, it is therefore ordered that the sheriff of Boone County be and he is hereby directed to hold said election at the time and place above directed. Said sheriff in his action herein will be governed by the law authorizing this proceeding. The fees were deposited as required by law.

Acopy Attest: M. T. GARNETT, Clerk.

Notice is hereby given that an election will be held on the 6th day of August, 1883, in pursuance of the above order, at the time and place for the purpose mentioned therein. J. R. CLUTTERBUCK, S. B. C.

LUMBER.

A. Corbin & Son.
—) BELLEVUE, KY., (—

Will sell the best Hemlock Stock Boards at $13 00.
Best Hemlock fencing at $13 00
Standard Shingles at $4 50
Weather boarding, white pine, $18
Flooring, yellow pine, at $35
Doors, Window Sash and blinds always on hands.

Prices subject to a chance without notice. Persons who contemplate building will do well to call and see us before purchasing.

A. Corbin & Son.,
Bellevue, Ky.

LUMBER.

Goe. M. Bedinger & Co.,
Erlanger, - - Ky.

We keep constantly on hand all kinds of Lumber, Laths and Shingles. Also Builder's supplies of all kinds.

—Come and see Us.—
may 9-tf

Farm for Sale.

I am offering for sale my farm, lying 8 miles south of Burlington on the Big Bone road, containing 55¼ acres, a part of the Mason Crisler farm. The land lays well and is conveniently located, the improvements are a good brick house and all necessary out buildings, and a variety of good fruit. Any person desirous of purchasing a nice farm will do well to come and examine the premises and learn terms. Title good. MRS. OSCAR CRISLER.

Farm for Sale.

A small farm of 11½ acres, on the Covington and Lexington pike, at the top of Willow Run Hill. On it are a commodious house, necessary out buildings and a good orchard. Title good. Call on W. C. Tupman, Sheriff's Office, Covington, Thomas Tupman, Kenton Heights or W. L. Riddell, Burlington.

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE.
GEORGETOWN, Ky.—On Cincinnati Southern R.R.
Located in the healthy and beautiful "Blue Grass" region of Kentucky, 55 session opens September 3rd, 1883. Instruction in all branches of a College education. Experienced Professor. The degree of B. S., A. B. and A. M., conferred. Useful course for those who can spend only one or two years in College. Terms low for advantages offered. For catalogue or particulars, address to R. M. DUDLEY, D. D., President.

Hay Conveyors.

We take this method of informing the public that we are MANUFACTURING and SELLING W. M. CONNER'S

HAY CONVEYORS.

Just the thing to use in large barns
35-4t BAKER & CRUTCHER, Florence X-Roads.

LOOK HERE!
when you go to Lawrenceburg, call on
Winegardner
He has a large assortment of
Wall Paper!
And is daily receiving additions to his stock. Call and examine before purchasing.
Inks, Pens and Stationary
constantly on hand.
Headquaters in Letton House.

Washington & Lee
UNIVERSITY, Lexington, Va.
Instruction in the usual academic studies, and in the professional schools of Law and Engineering. Location healthful. Expenses moderate. Next Sept. 20. For catalogues, address "Clerk of the Faculty." G. W. LEE. President.

LAW SCHOOL OF
WASHINGTON & LEE UNIVERSITY
GEN. G. W. LEE, President.
Instruction by text-book and printed lectures, with courses of lectures on special subjects by eminent jurists. Tuition and fees, $80 for session of nine months; beginning Sept. 20. For catalogue and full information, address CHAS. A. GRAVES, Prof. of Law, Lexington, Va.

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.
Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice,
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
33-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS
FOR THE LIVER
And all Billous Complaints
Safe to take, being purely vegetable; no griping. Price 25 cts. All Druggists.

INCORPORATED UNDER THE LAWS OF MISSOURI.
CENTRAL MEDICAL & SURGICAL INSTITUTE
OF ST. LOUIS, MO.
SUCCESSORS TO DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY. OFFICE & ROOMS, NO. 920 LOCUST ST.
CHAS. L. LaBARGE, M.D., Pres't & Physician in Charge.
NELSON CHESMAN, Treas. & Business Manager.
This Institute has ample facilities and an experienced Faculty. While it succeeds to a large business, which has been established for years, it will aim to extend its medical and surgical practice, giving skillful and scientific treatment to CHRONIC DISEASES of the Head, Spine, Lungs and Air Passages, Heart, Liver, Stomach and Bowels, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Consumption and Asthma.
BLOOD IMPURITIES, inherited or caused by impure association, Scrofula, Fever Sores, Ulcers, etc.
DEFORMITIES of the Limbs, Spinal Curvature, Wry-Neck, Diseases of the Joints, Piles, Fistula, Rupture, etc.
WEAKNESS and wasting diseases in old and young men, also all diseases of the genito-urinary organs.
FEMALE irregularities and weaknesses, causing pain in the back or side, etc.
Personal interviews with patients are always preferred. Those unable to visit the Institute will be furnished with blank lists of questions that will aid them in making a full statement of their cases and if not requiring a surgical operation they can be successfully treated by correspondence, and medicines sent by mail or express. To enable us to send proper list of questions applicants should give a brief statement of their trouble.
(The Treasurer of the corporation is of Nelson Chesman & Co. Advertising Agents, and refers to the publisher of this or any other newspaper in the United States or Canada regarding responsibility.)
Consultation at Office or by mail free and invited

TUTT'S PILLS
TORPID BOWELS,
DISORDERED LIVER,
and MALARIA.
From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect
ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.
Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.
GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.
Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.
TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

VIGOROUS HEALTH FOR MEN
THE PASTILLE CURE TRADE MARK FOR NERVOUS DEBILITY.
TESTED FOR 5 YEARS
by use in thousands of cases. Founded on scientific medical principles, it has been growing in favor and reputation while its numerous competitors have invariably failed. The direct application of this remedy to the seat of the disease makes its specific influence felt without delay. The natural functions of the human organism are restored. The animating elements of life which have been wasted are given back. The buoyant energy of the brain and muscular system renders the patient cheerful; he gains strength with rapidity.
NERVOUS DEBILITY, organic weakness, and numerous obscure diseases, baffling the skill of best physicians, result for youthful indiscretion, too free indulgence, and over brain work.
Do not temporize while such enemies lurk in your system. Take a remedy that has cured thousands, and does not interfere with you attention to business or cause any pain or inconvenience.
(Send for a Descriptive Pamphlet giving Anatomical Illustrations, which will convince the most sceptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fitted for the duties of life, same as if never affected. Sent free to any one. Remedy sold ONLY by the)
HARRIS REMEDY CO. MF'G. CHEMISTS.
306½ N. 10th St. ST. LOUIS, MO.
One Month's treatment $3. two months $5. three months $7

NAVAL Agents Wanted for Ancient & Modern BATTLES.
New and graphic Pictorial History of the great sea fights of the World. By Medical Director Shippen, U. S. N. Address J. C. McCURDY & CO., 180 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard works of character; great variety; Books & Bibles low in price, selling fast; needed everywhere. Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 30 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley.
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U. Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk A. G. DeJarnette, Commonwealths Attorney; N. E. Hawes, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

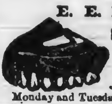
Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. Ed Fowler, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Rylo, Saturday after third Monday. Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and L. A. Loder fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

Beever—W. M. Rouse, Friday after the third Monday, and



E. E. IGOE,
Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun, Ind.

Rev. Father Wilds'
EXPERIENCE.
The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:
"78 E. 54th St., New York, May 16, 1882.
MESSRS. J. C. AYER & CO., Gentlemen:
Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSAPARILLA, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.
Yours respectfully, Z. P. WILDS."
The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality.
Ayer's Sarsaparilla
cleanses, enriches, and strengthens the blood, stimulates the action of the stomach and bowels, and thereby enables the system to resist and overcome the attacks of all Scrofulous Diseases, Eruptions of the Skin, Rheumatism, Catarrh, General Debility, and all disorders resulting from poor or corrupted blood and a low state of the system.
PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists; price $1, six bottles for $5.

AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS
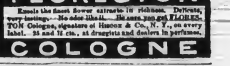
—Best Purgative Medicine—
cure Constipation, Indigestion, Headache, and all Billous Disorders.
Sold everywhere. Always reliable.

PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM
A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.
FLORESTON
Exceeds the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.
COLOGNE

Paynes' Automatic Farm Engines
OF ALL KINDS.—Established 1840.



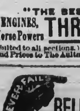
Our 10-Horse Spark Arresting Threshing Engine has cut 10,000 feet Pine Lumber in 10 hours. Will burn wood 6 feet long, coal, Straw and corn stalks. Send for Price List and Catalogue G.
B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1460, Corning, N. Y.

26.999 NOW IN USE.

All persons say their goods are the best. We ask you to examine our Improved Keller Positive Force Feed, Grain, Seed and Fertilizing Drill and our Hay Rakes. They are as good as the best, and can be sold as cheap. All are warranted. Circulars mailed free. Newark Machine Co., Newark, Ohio. Eastern Branch House, Hagerstown, Md.
W. N. STAGE, Gen. Traveling Agt. Louisville, Ky

STATE COLLEGE OF KENTUCKY.
UNSECTARIAN. Fall session begins Sept. 12, 1883. Fifteen Professors and Instructors. Scientific, Classical, Agricultural, Normal School and Commercial Courses of Study. Tuition and Matriculation fees, $20 per annum. Board in dormitory, $2.25 per week; in private families, $4.50. 320 students last year. Buildings, apparatus & machinery entirely new. Capacity for 600 students. Range of study wider and expenses less than any college in Kentucky. For catalogue apply to Judge W. B. KINKEAD or to JAMES K. PATTERSON, Ph. D., President of the College, Lexington, Ky.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST."
ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers
(Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.



FREE!
RELIABLE SELF-CURE.
A favorite prescription of one of the most noted and successful specialists in the U. S. (now retired) for the cure of Nervous Debility, Lost Manhood, Weakness and Decay. Sent in plain sealed envelope free. Druggists can fill it.
Address DR. WARD & CO., Louisiana, Mo.

Local News.

We are authorized to announce JAMES R. CLUTTERBUCK as a candidate for Sheriff at the August election, 1883, subject, however, to the action of the democratic party.

We are authorized to announce Dr. S. S. SCOTT as a candidate to represent Boone county in the next General Assembly, subject however, to the action of the democratic party.

We are authorized to announce N. S. WALTON as a candidate for the legislature, subject to the action of the democratic party.

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

Miss Sophia Finch is visiting friends in Frankfort.

John F. Green, of Patriot, Ind., was in town Monday.

Miss Nannie Bristow, of Union is the guest of Mrs. B. K. Sleet.

Oscar Huey, of Big Bone was registered at the Central, Friday evening.

Mrs. Hattie Arnold, of Williamstown, is visiting her sister at this place.

Mrs. Kate Ashburn, of Cincinnati, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Lillie Hall.

Mrs. Cy Bruce, of DeKalb county, Missouri, is visiting relatives in this county.

Mrs. Lettie Jett, who has been visiting here for several weeks returned to Frankfort last week.

Mrs. Leathers, wife of Sheriff Leathers of Kenton county, was visiting her sister at this place last week.

Misses Anna and Lina Loder, two of Indianapolis' fair danghters, spent the latter part of last week visiting relatives at this place.

Dry and hot.

Streets very dusty.

Threshing wheat is now in order.

The hot wave struck here on Saturday.

New wheat is bringing 90 cents a bushel.

The knowing ones say that the cholera will appear in this country next year.

The farmers north of here were very busy, last week, harvesting hay and oats.

The watermelon crop in the bottoms has been materially injured by the wet weather.

Burlington, at present, has three passenger conveyances to carry people to and fro.

The English sparrows are destroying much of the wheat since being cut and put in the shock.

John Stephens, of Bullittsville, has a 16 acre field of wheat that will make 35 bushels to the acre.

Children with weak eyes, sore ears, or any form of scrofula, should be treated with Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

We are for John G. Carlisle for United States Senator and Buddie Cropper for Coroner. Now, who are you for?

The Speedwell and Walton teams had a closely contested game here, Saturday, the score being 22 to 23 in favor of the former.

Elder Wm. Rupard, of Clark county, Ky., will preach in the Court-house in Burlington, on the third Saturday in August at 11 o'clock a. m. and at night.

On the fourth Sunday in this month Rev. J. A. Kirtley and E. N. Dicken will exchange pulpits, at which time the latter will preach a temperance sermon at Big Bone.

Bishop Kavanaugh will dedicate Hughes' Chapel on the first Sunday in August. There will be a basket dinner. Everybody is invited to bring a basket and eat dinner with us.

The trustees in school district No. 6, have employed W. T. German to collect the tax voted at the recent election there, and give this notice that all may be ready to settle same when called upon.

Petty thieves have been doing the county hereabout, and in the last few days Mrs. Kittie Gaines has lost a lot of side meat, G. T. Gaines a lot of chickens and A. O. Hall fourteen turkeys and twenty-two ducks.

Nice tombstones or monuments at the graves of the departed, are marks of respect which should not be neglected. Hurschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., have just what you want. John Beall, of Hebron, is their agent.

When congress meets we intend to petition it to redeem those tin tags put on tobacco and to pass a law prohibiting their further use, for every time we see one lying on the street we think we have found a dime. This deception causes a laboring man much loss of time.

Under the law providing for taking a vote on the proposition to call a constitutional convention, the County Judge appointed the following tellers. The law will be found in General Acts, page, 136:

Burlington, S. K. Dempsey, Oscar Gaines.

Florence, Perry Carpenter, Lewis Rice.

Taylorport, A. B. Whitlock, Ed Webb.

Petersburg, Jno. Berkshire, Sandford Botts.

Bullittsville, Thos. Watts, Abe Wainscott.

Bellevue, Albert Corbin, Harry Botts.

Carlton, Charles Wilson, John P. Craig.

Union, A. D. Riley, M. L. Rouse.

Hamilton, G. M. Allen, G. W. Baker.

Beaver, Andrew Ellis, J. S. Noell.

Verona, J. T. Roberts, S. R. McPherson.

Walton, W. G. Stansifer, Abe Stansifer.

If any of the tellers should fail to act, the law provides that the judges of the election shall appoint.

The Sunday-School Convention.

The Sunday-school convention convened in the Sand Run Baptist church last Friday morning. Rev. W. H. Felix delivered a very interesting introductory, after which the convention organized by electing N. S. Walton chairman and Mr. Avery, of Cincinnati, secretary. The ministers present were W. H. Felix, A. M. Vardiman, E. N. Dicken, J. A. Kirtley, R. E. Kirtley and Mr. Harvey, State Superintendent of Sunday-schools. The attendance was not large but was highly entertained by the able and earnest manner in which numerous questions pertaining to Sunday-schools were discussed. One of the interesting features of the day's programme, and an exercise in which all took part, was the sumptuous dinner spread for the occasion. When the church building was repaired a table was constructed beneath the trees just in front of the doors, and Friday it was laden with all the delicacies the season affords, prepared by the skillful cooks of that neighborhood.

SATURDAY

The attendance was largely increased, there being more than the seating capacity of the church could accommdate. The programme of the convention was concluded by noon, having been entertaining throughout the session of the convention, and no doubt the interchanging of views on the several questions pertaining to Sunday-schools will greatly increase the interest in that branch of religious duties in this county. At the conclusion of the business of the convention a collection for mission purposes was taken up when $59 was received. This was followed by the feast prepared for the day, and the large crowd was more than entertained in that particular. In the afternoon Rev. Dicken preached an interesting sermon to the large congregation. The convention was a success in every particultar, and much good will be the result of the meeting.

Ten is too many for Nine.

To the Editors of the Recorder:

In your communication from Petersburg last week there was a little "wind" item in regard to the game of base-ball that was commenced at Burlington between the Almonts and Speedwell nines on the 7th inst.

"He says that the Speedwells claimed the umpire was ruling unfairly." That is true they did claim unfairness from the umpire, and also did the majority of the outsiders.

Again he says: "The umpire was doing the best he knew how." We admit that, but it was plainly to be seen that he didn't know how. He makes a good umpire for nine men, but when it comes to umpiring for eighteen men he is N. G.

Again he says: "The Almonts were too many for the Speedwells." Everyone there could see the Almonts were too many for the Speedwells (one too many) as they did not agree to play but nine men, but when the tenth man was put in and he a better player than the other nine it was time for them to kick. We don't think the champions of Cincinnati could beat the Almonts if they had the same umpire and he would do the best he "knew how."

Again he says: "The Speedwells cannot play ball a little bit, and they would not give up the ball." It looks like the Almonts cannot play ball a "little bit" unless they have ten men, and the tenth man did the playing. As to their not giving up the ball, it would be a hard matter to decide who the ball belongs to the umpire or the players, but we think the umpire won the ball as he did the best he "knew how."

He says: "The Speedwells are good kickers." There we beg to differ with him, for if they had been good kickers they would have kicked that umpire out after the first inning was played.

A PROFESSIONAL.

Mrs. James Thomas, an aged lady who lived near Edgar Cropper's, died, last Saturday night, after several days illness. Her attending physician, Dr. Smith, says that she had every symptom of cholera, and suffered intense pain.

Rev. A. G. Gaines, of St. Lawrence University will preach at the Universalist Chuach in Burlington next Sunday at 10:30 a. m., and 4:30 p. m.

For sale—A good two-year-old bull.
L. S. POPE.

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Waterloo.

Farmers will finish their oats and hay harvest this week.

One of the candidates for the legislature was visiting friends here one day last week.

Mr. J. N. Humphrey is building a large tobacco barn. J. T. Marshall architect and builder.

Mr. A. J. Barker and Johny Stewart both claim to have the largest tobacco in the neighborhood. Both of them are topping.

Waller Marshall caught a large red fox in a steel trap. Reynard had been visiting Waller's hen roost.

Deputy Sheriff German was collecting school taxes here last week.

Hebron.

T. A. Rouse's team got frightened at a train of cars in the city, the other day, and ran off and crippled him badly.

The Sunday-school at this place is in a flourishing condition, there being about 175 scholars enrolled, 100 being in attendance last Sunday, the largest ever had.

Willis Clore and John Moxley have dissolved partnership.

Farmers are not through harvesting. Hay is not as good as it was last year.

Jeff Clayton has gone to Dayton, Ohio.

Mrs. W. C. C. Rouse died on the 17th.

Adam Zeter, of Cincinnati, is visiting Mr. Abe Clore.

Judge Riddell sold his farm near here for $3,000 cash.

Scattersville.

Everybody is about done cutting hay, and most all of it was saved in good order.

The oat crop is about all gathered.

Wheat stacking is the order of the day at present, but very few in this locality have commenced stacking.

J. O. Huey is going on crutches at present. He has a rising on one of his feet.

We began to think all of our candidates had forsaken us, (and you know we felt bad about it) but at last here came our friend N. S. Walton looking around to see if all was right.

One of our Boone county boys come from Rising Sun, one day last week, all fitted out for a fishing expedition, bringing with him plenty of that good 'old lager. The boys say they had lots of fun and took in a fine lot of fish. We did not ask the boys how they caught them, but of course they did it fair.

Well, well, Bobbie has taken to himself a fair young bride, to make him happy the remainder of his days. We wish them much happiness.

Our batchelor friend, Peter Lawell, has left our neighborhood. He has been working for John Mitchell.

Bullittsville.

Ripe home-grown tomatoes are one of our luxuries of the table.

Young grass of this year's sowing is of thrifty growth.

The majority of our farmers are industrious enough to raise plenty of blackberies for home use, and have some to spare.

New Irish potatoes bring forty cents per bushel in the Cincinnati market.

What say the the farmers about this year's harvest? Does it not surpass any year within the recollection of the oldest for lateness? For instance; the oat crop just ripe enough for the sickle July 24th.

Wilson Gaines and Charles Duncan after sojourning in the West a few weeks, concluded that pioneer life is not as pleasant as life at home, and hence both have returned to their native soil.

The many friends of the accomplished Miss Lou Kendall are honored with her presence in their midst.

Fred Youmans is a good harvester, when he becomes tired, as man naturally does, he rests.

The Misses Kennedy are visiting their relative G. C. Graddy.

Our new club has been named the Boone B. B. Club. J. C. Terrill, President; W. C. Watts, Secretary, and Ed Duncan, Captain.

Elder Thompson will preach at Mt. Pleasant next Sunday.

Petersburg.

Dr. Craig formerly of this place, but now of Rising Sun, was in town Monday.

W. R. Gordon is doing the carpenter's work on Mr. Chepin's new building.

Mr. Harry Newman, of Rising Sun, is the guest of our druggist, S. C. Buchanan.

Little Reuben, our genial barber, spent last Thursday with his brother barbers in Lawrenceburg.

Harry Lyon has made him a new paling fence around his house.

Our old friend Mr. Shepherd says he wants to marry and he'll be d—n if he don't marry—a wise idea Judge. Get a wife and settle down is our advice.

Mr. H. Appleton, of Pittsburg, was visiting Col. Wm. Appleton, last week,

Miss Nora Jackson was on the sick list last week.

The M. E. Church has got a new carpet and the old one was sold, last Thursday night, at public auction, to Dr. W. H. Terrill.

W. T. Snyder and wife attended the Sunday-school convention at Sand Run.

Smith McWethy on arriving home from East Bend last Thursday lost a fine piggie, weighing about 40 lbs. He brought it with him on the Steamer Queen and had it put off at the landing, and came up in town to get a team to haul it up. When the team got to the river the piggie was gone and has not been heard of since. The town was arroused but it could not be found. $1 00 reward is offered for its recovery.

Union.

Geo. W. Dunlap and wife, evangelists, are laboring again at Independence. Much religious enthusiasm prevails, and a union church will probably be built there soon.

DIED—At her home on Saturday last, Mrs. McHatton, wife of Mathew McHatton. She had been a confirmed invalid for many years—perfectly helpless. She was a sister of Gen. John Wallace and Mrs. Elzie Garrison. During all her year of helplessness, she was nursed by her daughter, Miss Herriet, whose pure and untiring devotion to mother, elicited the admiration of all who knew her. Deceased outlived the appointed days of man—three score and ten—had long been a member of Big Bone Church, and died as she had lived, in the full assurance of a home beyond the "tolling and the weeping," faithful to the end. Rev. James A. Kirtley preached her funeral at Union, last Sunday, from the text, "It is sown a natural body, it is raised a spiritual body," and appropriate and consoling were his remarks upon the central thought, the Resurrection of the body.

Her remains were committed to rest in the Hopeful vault, to be finally interred at Big Bone.

Miss Junia Crouch is the guest of her sister, Mrs. James Huey......Miss Bessie Dickey has returned from Louisville, where she has been visiting her sister......John Bradford is the happiest man in Union, all because he now has two beautiful little girls at his house......A basket-meeting will be held at Big Bone Church Saturday and Sunday, by Elders Kirtley and Dicken. Three immersions will be attended to at 3 p.m., and Sunday morning Rev. Dicken will preach. Subject—Temperance...... Mrs. Susie Wallace Parish and her handsome baby, and Mrs. Riley, her mother, are guests of Dr. Blanton and family ... . Mr. Weller, atty., of Virginia, has just been the guest Miss Theresa Lassing, at her elegant and hospitable home, Elm Tree,

CHAPTER 40.

AN ACT to take the sense of the people of this Commonwealth as to the propriety of calling a Convention to revise the Constitution, and to regulate the manner of taking the list of qualified voters.

WHEREAS, It is the sentiment of this General Assembly, and many good citizens of this Commonwealth, that experience has pointed out the necessity of calling a convention with the view of amending the Constitution of this State; therefore,

§ 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky: That it shall be the duty of the sheriffs and other officers, at the next general election held for Representatives after the passage of this act, to open a poll for, and make a return to the Secretary of State for the time being of, the names of all citizens entitled to vote for Representatives who have voted for calling a convention.

§ 2. Be it further enacted, That any sheriff or other returning officer failing to perform the duty imposed by the first section of this act, shall be subject to a fine of six hundred dollars, to be recovered by indictment by any grand jury in any court having jurisdiction thereof; and also subject, upon conviction of such failure, to removal from office.

§ 3. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the Secretary of State to have this act advertised in the columns of one weekly newspaper in every county in this State, for two consecutive weeks immediately preceding the election, and in one of the daily newspaper in the city of Louisville, for thirty days immediately preceding the election: Provided, however, There is no weekly newspaper in any one or more counties of this Commonwealth in which said advertisement can be made, it is made his duty to have posted a printed copy of said bill, in handbill form, at the courthouse door of such counties, for at least two consecutive weeks preceding said election.

§ 4 Be it further enacted, That the public printer shall, upon a separate sheet, print ten thousand copies of this act, and deliver them to the Secretary of State, who shall send 75 copies of the same to the clerk of the county court of each county in the State at the time of forwarding the Acts of the General Assembly; and said clerk shall deliver the same to the sheriffs of their several counties.

§ 5. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the clerks or judges conducting the said general election to propound to each voter the following question: "Do you vote for calling a convention or not?" and if he answers in the affirmative, his name shall be recorded as having voted for calling a convention.

§ 6. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the assessors of tax to open a column in their assessor's book, and enroll therein the name of each citizen entitled to vote for Representative in the year 1883; but the assessors shall only enroll the names of those whom they know to be entitled, at the time, to vote for Representatives, such knowledge to be based—1. Either upon the personal knowledge of the assessor; 2. Or upon satisfactory information obtained by the assessor directly from the person whose name is enrolled; 3. Or upon satisfactory information under oath, from those who, of their own knowledge, testify to the facts which are necessary to such qualification; and for enrolling names without such knowledge or information, such assessor shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined twenty dollars for each and every name so improperly enrolled, which fine shall be enforced in any court of competent jurisdiction, and be for the benefit of the common schools of the Commonwealth; and they shall be governed, in all cases, in ascertaining who is entitled to vote by the laws then in force to prevent illegal voting; and this column, written in a fair and legible hand, shall be transmitted, with the assessor's books, to the Auditor, who shall make out a copy thereof, and deposit the same in the office of the Secretary of State for the time being, who shall transmit the same to the next Legislature as a list of those who are entitled to vote for Representatives, in order that the Legislature may have the means to ascertain whether a majority of the citizens of the State entitled to vote for Representatives have voted for a convention.

§ 7. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of each assessor of tax, who shall be in office in the year 1883, as soon as he shall be advised of the passage of this act, to go before a justice of the peace and take the following oath: "I do solemnly swear I will, to the best of my ability, fairly ascertain the number of qualified voters in the district in which I was elected for the year 1883, and report the same, with my book made as assessor of tax, before the first day of May, 1883."

§ 8. Be it further enacted, That the assessors of tax may, and they are hereby required to, examine, on oath, any person in relation to his right to vote for Representatives when he has doubt as to his right to vote; and any person who shall knowingly swear falsely before the assessor, and shall thereof be convicted, shall be subjected to all the pains and penalties of the crime of perjury.

§ 9. Be it further enacted, That the assessor shall write "sworn" opposite the name of each person sworn by him.

§ 10. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the public printer to print five hundred copies of the seventh, eighth, and ninth sections of this act immediately after its passage, and deliver them to the Secretary of State for the time being, who shall transmit them forthwith to the county clerks, to be delivered by them, as soon as possible, to the assessors of tax for 1883.

§ 11. This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Approved January 7, 1882.

TO THE VOTERS OF BOONE COUNTY.

At the solicitation of many friends from different parts of the county, I was induced to announce myself a candidate for the Legislature. I hoped at that time to be able to visit the different voting precincts and exchange opinions with the people upon the probable issues before they were called upon to vote; but, after having made a partial canvass, my health has failed me to such an extent that I am now confined to the house, and will be compelled to confide my interests in the canvass to the care of my friends, hoping, at the same time, that I yet will be able to get out and see at least a portion of the people before the August election, as my health is now improving.

S. S. SCOTT.

Twists and Twinges.

"My brethren," shouted Dr. Talmage one bright autumnal Sunday, "here is a lesson from the cornfield. God has arranged that the ear and the husk shall be parted. Every rheumatic pain is but a thrust of the husking-peg, and every neuralgic twinge is only a twist of the husker."

Possible; but nobody wants to be husked, for all that, and nature teaches us to resist the process therefore, we accept with gratitude whatever helps us to suppress those very twists and twinges.

From his pleasant home, Greenmont, near Sing Sing, N. Y., M. Alfred Bour, a French gentleman, writes:

"I have suffered almost intolerable torments from rheumatism for many years. Of the numerous remedies which I tried, none benefited me. But PARKER'S TONIC gave me great satisfaction. I certify with pleasure that it restored my health. You are welcome to publish this and use my name.

Messrs Hiscox & Co., call especial attention to the fact that this preparation, which has been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be advertised and sold simply under the name of PARKER'S TONIC. As unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their customers by substituting inferior preparations under the name of ginger, and as ginger is really an unimportant ingredient, we drop the misleading word.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, contain the genuine medicine, if the facsimile signature of Hiscox & Co., is at the bottom of the outside wrapper.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

James West, Plff.
vs
James Marshall, Deft. } Notice of sale in equity

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April term thereof, 1883, in the above cause, the undersigned will, on Monday, the 6th day of Aug, 1883, at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabout (being County Court day) proceed to offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, on a credit of 6 and 9 months at the Court-house door, in the town of Burlington, the property mentioned in the judgment to wit:

A tract of land in Boone county, Ky., near Richwood church, beginning at a corner of Black, Hughes and Cleek; thence running with Cleek's line to a sugar tree; thence back into the farm of the granior so as to strike a point from which a line run to Hughe's line will include taking the line first run and Hughes' line for two of the boundary lines and the other two lines to be so run as to make the tract mortgaged contain 50 acres said tract is more completely bounded thus: Beginning at stone corner to H. Hughes and Thos. Finch, thence with said Finch's line N 38 W 23:10 chains to a stone, thence N 50½ E 31:20 ch. to a stone in Robt. Cleek's line, thence S 4 W 31 ch. to a stone, thence S 26¾ W 1:50 ch. to a stone corner to H. Hughes and Robt. Cleek, thence N 64 W 3:50 ch. to a stone, thence S 60 W 7:50 ch. to the beginning containing 50 acres.

Or sufficient thereof to produce the sums of money so ordered to be made. The purchaser will be required to give bonds with approved security, for the payment of the purchase money, to have the force and effect of a judgment, bearing legal interest from the day of sale, according to law. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms. Amount to be raised by sale, $983 39

Bonds payable to the undersigned.

W L RIDDELL, M C B C C

Notice to Contractors.

Sealed proposals will be received at Burlington, Boone county, Ky., until the 21st day of July, 1883, for hauling and breaking the following amount of lime-stone rock on the Burlington and Belleyne Pike, bids to be for sections and distributed according to directions of the Board of Directors on each section as follows: On section 1st, 10 rods; on section 2d, 8 rods; on section 3d, 8 rods; on section 4th, 10 rods; on section 5th, 5 rods; on section 6th 5 rods. A perch of stone broken to be 25 feet long, 1 foot wide and 1 foot in depth, and 12 perches as stated above to make 1 rod of broken stone, the stone to be broken so that the largest will pass through a 2½ inch ring. Contractors will be required to have the hauling and breaking done by the first of December next. The Directors reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

S. P. BRADY, President,
WM. WALTON, Secretary.

30-3t

J. W. KIRKPATRICK & SON,
—BURLINGTON, KY.—
UMDERTAKERS
—AND—
EMBALMERS,
Will furnish nice Hearse any reasonable distance for $10.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW,
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office over Dudley Rouse's Store.

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence,
Burlington. - - Ky.

L. C. NORMAN. R. I. STEPHENS.
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW,
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81.

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

S. W. TOLIN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. Aprompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.
Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
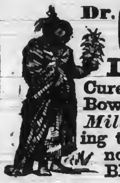
WORKS,
Aurora. Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.
N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky. | J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.
DIRECTORS.
LEGRAN GAINES, Jeff Utz,
JNO. M. MOODY.

DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS.
ROSE
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
SALT BY THE BARREL.
R O U S E.
BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS.
The Best of Flour
PATENT & HIGH GRADE
Always on Hand, and cheaper than the cheapest.
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE.
A fresh Stock of Garden Seed at
DUDLEY ROUSE'S.

M.L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEED.
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE.
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.
Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.
All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE
Petersburg Drug Store,
Where you can find everything in the
Drug line, such as——.
Well call and see and be convinced.
Respectfully, S. C BUCHANAN.



Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S
Indian Blood Syrup
Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the
BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.
TRADE MARK. Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.
AGENTS WANTED.
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St., New York City. Druggists sell it
D. CLARK JOHNSON:— This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. MCCAMC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '18

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300,000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK.
Covington, Kentucky.
DIRECTORS.
James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green,
J. S. Matson, J. H. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H. Dills, F. P. Helm,
L. C. Stephens.
The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.
The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank. dec. 20-6m

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar7-tf23 J. W. Talbott.

UNDERTAKING.

We keep Constantly on Hand all sizes of
Burial Cases and Caskets.
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES GUARANTEED LESS THAN CITY PRICES.
DAVIS BROS., - - HEBRON, KY.

KENTUCKY MILITARY INSTITUTE
At Farmdale, P. O., Franklin Co., Ky., six miles from Frankfort. Has the most healthful and beautiful location in the State. Lit by gas, as well as heated by steam. A full and able College Faculty. Expenses as moderate as ... Forty-fifth year begins Sept. 3. For Catalogues, etc., address as above. COL. R. D. ALLEN, Supt.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL, Publishers.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY

Perfumes from Flowers.

"Good perfumes are made directly from flowers, and not out of cheese, coal tar, and so on, as people have been led to suppose," said an up-town chemist. "Take the jessamine, for instance. That's always a favorite, and is used in the make-up of many perfumes. Two different specimens of the flower are used, but the perfume is made principally from the Jasminum grandiflorum. In France the cultivation of this plant for the perfumery trade is an important industry, though the plant is somewhat difficult to raise. Very hot seasons are most favorable for it—the hotter the weather the richer the perfume. Old ladies take to lavender in any shape, and the lavender shrub produces a powerful volatile oil that is used not only in perfumery and for flavoring dishes, but in medicine also. Lavender produces three distinct oils known to the trade. The poorest is commonly called spike oil. Two other kinds are distilled from a species of the shrub which is common in England and the French mountains. The English oil is the best—worth ten times as much as the French. The villagers about Bedington and Wellington, England, and other places at one time raised the entire supply. The supply is now growing less, and consequently the price is going up, and the business of raising lavender is a paying one. The English crop, if you can call it a crop, is gathered in July and August. Then the flowers are in full bloom and do not require any cleaning or trimming. Boys and girls pick them, and flowers and stalks are distilled together, every fifty pounds giving about ten ounces of oil. The imported oil mostly comes from France, though a great deal comes from Algeria and north Italy. Although the English oil is the best, the foreign grades probably sell better in England and this country, one reason being the cheapness and the fancy names the French put on the bottles. Lavender water finds an enormous sale among barbers, many of whom make their own decoctions out of anything they can get hold of. Real lavender water is made from lavender oil, mixed with rose and orange water. A cheap kind is called essence d'aspic, and is distilled from a wild plant and doctored with turpentine and camphor.

"Thyme is an old-fashioned sort of a plant, but thymus vulgaris, common in France, Greece, and many other countries, gives us a valuable perfumery oil. In France they take from it two entirely different oils, red and white, the gathering being done in the summer months. In the same localities the rosemary is cultivated, and, being a popular perfumery, is in great demand at a high price. Patchouli comes from the oil of the rogosteneon patchouli, a plant collected by the natives of the Malay islands. It is extremely powerful, a little of it going a great ways when the wind's fair. It is always in fashion and is used with attar of rose.

"In attar of rose there is probaly more deception than in any other perfume. Certain kinds come from Turkey, done up in curious bottles, and I learned some time ago, on good authority, that these bottles and their contents were manufactured in a Connecticut town, and the profits were about seventy-five cents on a dollar. Even in the East, where the genuine attar of rose is made, it is adulterated with oil of rose geranium and the oil of a grass found in India, and so great is the cheating that the trade in this grass alone is an important one. The headquarters of the trade are in Turkey. The genuine thing comes from Turkey and Bulgaria. Symrna furnishes a great deal. The natives of the valley of the Ganges also produce a great deal for home consumption, and some is produced in France. Any one who knows the business can tell the genuine article at a glance. To be good it should congeal at fifty-five degrees Fahrenheit, and in appearance the crystals should be rich, clear, and partly transparent. If the bottom of the bottle contains a sediment, you may know that some handler has adulterated it with paraffine wax or spermaceti. The rose from which this valuable oil is taken is the rosa Damascena, and rose water is made from a decoction of the leaves of the same plant. The petals of rosa Gallica, grown in Asa Minor and various parts of England and Europe, are greatly valued, and the leaves also bring a high price. The same deception is found in these, those imported from France being often dyed with some aniline. A drop of ammonia, however, detects the fraud.

"The funereal tuberose produces a powerful perfume, but the violet is most esteemed for its chaste odor. The viola odorata is the one we use, and in France its cultivation gives employment to hundreds of men, women and children. The harvest of violets is from February to April.

"Verbena was at one time a favorite perfume. It comes from the lemon-grass plant, common at Singapore. In Provence the cultivation of the rose geranium is an important business. From this plant also comes the famous essence of African geranium, valued as an adulterant for attar of rose, it being nearly as expensive, 2,000 pounds of the raw material producing only two pounds of the essence.

"Mignonette is liked as a perfume, and is variously imitated. Bergamot also has its admirers. The latter is an oil taken, not from a flower, but from the fruit of the lemon—like citrus bergamia. In Sicily the trees are cultivated in great numbers. The fruit is picked when green, about 200 producing six ounces of oil. Most of the oil is shipped from Palermo and Messina.

"One of the most popular perfumes is heliotrope, but it does not come from the flower of that name, as one might suppose, but is made from a combination of violet and vanilla. The beautiful lily of the valley is largely used in France for making perfumery. The daffodil, which is found everywhere, is also much used. The lemon also is used in perfumery, and so is the orange."—N. Y. Sun.

—The severe storm of the other day caused one of the most wonderful land slides on Flume Mountain, Franconia Notch, ever known in the White Mountains. About one mile from the Flume House, and plainly seen from there, a great volume of water rushed through the flume, carrying rocks weighing many thousand tons through to Pemigewasset River, half a mile below. It has made the celebrated place more wonderful than ever, having extended the high walls some 505 feet. The scene as the water subsided was grand beyond description. No pecuniary damage was done.—Boston Herald.

A Broken Neck Repaired.

Patrick Clarke, familiarly known as "Dublin Tricks" among his friends and acquaintances, is the most remarkable patient they have ever had in Bellevue Hospital. He is only the second person on record who survived after his neck was completely broken, and although he is greatly deformed, he finds no difficulty in performing all the necessary acts of eating and breathing, and is in good health and spirits. Clarke is a man with a history, even outside the fact that he still lives after having had his neck broken in an involuntary contest of "hard-heads" with an ice-barge in the North River. Born in Dublin, Ireland, and full of animal spirits and strength, he soon became known as a rounder in his native city. Among other feats which he performed at the rough-and-ready age of eighteen was to enter the prize-ring and keep up an hour's hard fighting with Jim Ringwood, a famous Dublin boxer, whom he defeated, spreading his nose all over his face, and leaving him with a couple of broken ribs as mementoes of his huge fists.

After this Clarke thought he was able to venture from home and take care of himself. He went out to the gold coast, Africa, with a party of adventurers and led a wild life there for two or three years, being finally recognized as the champion knocker-out of the coast. Like Alexander, longing for other worlds to conquer, he worked his way on a bark from the African coast to the United States twenty years ago. Since then he has made trips to Australia and to other countries, but always found his way back to New York as his favorite place of residence. On the 28th of December, 1881, while working on an ice-barge lying at the foot of Eleventh street, North River, he fell overboard, going down between the barge and the end of the wharf. He remained down long enough to drown a man, and when he was hauled up his body was twisted out of all natural proportions, and his face was crushed down flat against the chest. The vertebræ were completely broken, and the general spectacle he presented was horrible. It was considered a useless task to convey him to the hospital, but as he continued kicking and showing signs of life an ambulance was summoned, and he was taken to St. Vincent's Hospital, in Eleventh street, near Sixth avenue. Here he remained unconscious for nearly three days. The physicians there had no hopes of his recovery at first, and outside placing him in as easy a position as possible, they did not attempt to do anything for him. However, on the third day, when he recovered consciousness, the doctors began to think otherwise, and set to work upon him. It was a most difficult piece of surgery they were called to perform, to set a broken neck, but they went to work to do their best.

Clarke describes his sufferings as fearful; but, being a man of iron nerve and great courage, he bore it all in a spirit of desperate bravery and "never said die." He was not able to take any food, and the means of supplying nourishment usual in such cases was resorted to. In a week he was able to take liquid food, and the broken vertebræ began to knit. His suffering for weeks and months was excruciating, but this was compensated for to some extent by the assurances of recovery, which daily grew stronger. He remained in St. Vincent's hospital until the 18th of December, when he was transferred to Bellevue and placed in Ward No. 2. The deformity of his huge frame and neck gave him an almost hideous appearance. The neck shot out behind like a good sized bump, the head bent forward and the back retreated way in, crushing the chest out very prominently. Prof. Smith and Dr. Nichols consulted regarding straightening him out, but that the crooks had got into such a firm, fixed set that this could no more be done than to mold him all over again. Under their care, however, Clarke progressed rapidly in gaining strength, and when seen by a Mercury reporter last Friday, looked decidedly healthy and vigorous. In appearance he is the most remarkable specimen of humanity the Mercury ever saw. The back being concaved in, the head bent forward, and the back of the neck protruding out in very bold relief, and himself standing over six feet in height, he looks like a twisted and gnarled old trunk of a tree. His hands, which are of huge size, look like oaken buckets slung to his sides, and the three last fingers on each hand are bent inward, giving them the appearance of grappling-irons.

He works around the hospital and goes messages for the doctors. Being possessed of a pure streak of genuine Irish wit, full of anecdotes and stories of adventure, and still retaining a Dublin brogue, he is a source of great amusement to the hospital people. His wit has even been able to overcome the moroseness of the man with the finger-nose—that is, a nose supplied from his own finger, the original one having been eaten away by cancer. Clarke is now forty-five years of age, and says he has a green old age before him, and if his neck ever gets broken again he hopes it will not be by an ice-barge or on the gallows. He has a wife and four children in the city, and the wife provides for the family. Clarke says he does not care so much for the loss of physical beauty as for the obstacle that his contorted form may be to his getting employment when he feels thoroughly strong to engage again in laboring work.—N. Y. Mercury.

Hog Against Rattlesnake.

A friend tells us of a fight he witnessed, last week, between a rattlesnake and a hog. To use his own language: "I had just started up the steep hill beyond Toms Creek, going to Roans Creek, when my attention was attracted to a hog near the road, champing and walking around with bristles erect, with two smaller hogs some few feet away looking on. Reining to a better view I saw a good size rattlesnake coiled, head erect, and his rattles sounding the note of anger. The sow, with head down and bristles erect, was slowly walking around the snake, champing her teeth together and the foam running from her mouth. Presently the snake struck at her but missed his aim, the sow springing to one side at the moment the snake struck. Instantly the snake was again coiled and his rattle ringing. The sow renewed her circling, the snake following, with his head always facing the hog. Soon he struck again and fastened his fangs on her jaw below the ear. She raised her head and the snake was raised to her. Instantly she caught the snake in her mouth, put her feet on his tail and stripped the skin up. Renewing her foothold on the body of the snake, she took another pull and tore the snake in two, and then, tearing off a part of the quivering snake, she complacently set to eating it up. The other two hogs now advanced, but the sow took up the pieces of the snake and walked off a few steps, and set to finishing the feast. I had seen enough and rode on."

HOME AND FARM.

—Nice Corn Bread: One egg, one teacup of sugar, two cups of corn meal, two cups of flour and two large teaspoonfuls of baking powder sifted together, two-thirds cup of lard, two cups of sweet milk, and one teaspoonful of salt. Should only the half be required, be sure and use the one egg.—The Household.

—A large and good "batch" of cookies can be made from this receipt: One cup of butter, two cups of sugar, four eggs, two tablespoonfuls of sour or butter milk, half a teaspoonful of soda, with flour enough to make a moderately stiff dough.—N. Y. Post.

—Purslane, or "Pussley," as we were taught to call it, is, like green clover, excellent for pigs. Hens in confinement also eat it readily. It is a great nuisance in the garden, and the best way to get rid of it is to cut it off with the hoe or pull it up and take it to the pig-pen or the poultry-yard.—Prairie Farmer.

—The following remedy, when applied within six hours after a bite from a rabid animal, has been successful in preventing hydrophobia: Make a strong wash, by dissolving two tablespoonfuls of chloruret (chloride) of lime in half a pint of water, and instantly and repeatedly bathe the part bitten. The poison will in this way be decomposed. The fact "that chlorine has the power to decompose and destroy the deadly poison of the saliva of the mad dog" was first published in this country by Prof. Silliman.—N. Y. Tribune.

—A celebrated military surgeon recommends for quenching thirst and sustaining strength oatmeal water as superior to any other drink. Boil a quarter pound of the meal in two or three quarts of water, add one and a half ounces of sugar, if sweetening is desired; use cold in summer and hot in winter, shaking before taking. If a supper is to be missed, or extra demand made on the system, as some day in harvest time, the proportion of meal may be advantageously increased to half or three-quarters of a pound.—Exchange.

For mice-gnawed trees, a correspondent of the Germantown Telegraph recommends covering the wounds with grafting-wax at once, then pile earth and pack it around high above the place to keep covered, as it will settle and wash down some. This, if done early, will save thousands of trees that have been injured by mice and rabbits. Make wax of one pound beeswax to four pounds resin and a half pint of linseed oil. If too soft, add more resin; if too hard, more oil. The wounds must not be neglected until they are hard and dry.

Hints on Bathing.

All are agreed that bathing is a healthful practice; first, because it is cleanly, and second, because it is a precautionary measure against risk to life by drowning. We are fully prepared to indorse the proposition that boys should be allowed to bathe as often and as freely as may be practicable. It is, however, necessary to raise a protest against the recklessness which too commonly attends the recourse to bathing as an exceptional, or at most a seasonable, exercise by those who are, though eager, perhaps not always physically fit to bathe. There is, practically, less danger in bathing all the year round than doing so only at certain periods. When to begin bathing, in what weather to bathe, and under what conditions of the bodily state to bathe, are questions of considerable perplexity, and by no means always easy to answer. The general rules which should guide the judgment are doubtless, in the main, physiological—that is to say, they relate chiefly to the functions of life and their healthy performance. Obviously, it is not right to dare the dangers of a "chill" either when undressing or by immersion in the cold water. Speaking generally, the "reaction," on which everything depends, will take place in proportion to the healthy circulation of the blood and the natural heat of the body when the bath is taken. If there be much moisture on the surface, it is difficult to tell what the actual temperature of the organism really is. In most cases a sweating surface indicates some measure of exhaustion already set in. In any case, it is unwise to bathe when copious perspiration has continued for some hour or more, unless the heat of the weather be excessive, or the sweating has been induced by loading with clothes rather than by exertion. When much perspiration has been induced by muscular exercise, it is unsafe to bathe, because the body is so fatigued or exhausted that the reaction—that is, the return of the momentarily displaced blood to the surface—can not be insured, and the effect may be to congest the internal organs and notably the nerve centres.

It is from congestion of the nervous center we get cramp, so often fatal in bathing. The fact of the "reaction" does not, of course, constitute the whole phenomena of bathing; but it is so important and comprehensive that we may take this as the point on which everything turns. Conditions under which a vigorous return of blood to the surface can not be confidently counted upon are not favorable to bathing. If, therefore, the weather be "chilly," or there be a cold wind so that the body may be rapidly cooled at the surface while undressing, it is not safe to bathe. Under such conditions the further chill of immersion in cold water will take place at the precise moment when the reaction consequent upon the chill of exposure by undressing ought to occur, and this second chill will not only delay or altogether prevent the reaction, but convert the bath from a mere stimulant to a depressant, ending in the abstraction of a large amount of animal heat and congestion of the internal organs and nerve centers. The actual temperature of the water does not affect the question so much as its relative temperature as compared with that of the surrounding air. Practically, there ought to be a good deal of difference between the two, the water being much lower than the air, and the body being—without great or long persisting perspiration—much warmer than the water, of course, but not so much warmer than the atmosphere as to be chilled by undressing. In short, the aim must be to avoid two chills; first, from the air, and second, from the water, and to make sure that the body is in such a condition as to secure a quick reaction on emerging from the water, without relying too much on the possible friction by rubbing. Thinking these brief hints out, it will be obvious that both weather and wind must be carefully considered before bathing is commenced, and that the state of the organism as regards fatigue and the force of the circulation should also be considered, not merely as regards the general habit, but the special condition when a bath is to be taken. These precautions are eminently needful in the case of the young or weakly.—London Lancet.

The Motherly Affection of a Bird.

A very pretty little story comes from a neighboring town, and it is true. A nest of the orchard oriole (improperly called the "English robbin") was discovered by the owner of the lot, whose child wanted the young birds, and the child was duly gratified. The nest was taken home, to the delight of the child and the grief of the parent birds, and the fledgelings were placed in a cage, outside the house. To the surprise of the persons who had put them there, he found, one day, that the mother bird had discovered her lost children, and were feeding them through the wires of the cage. This proof of parental affection was continued, till at length the person who had removed the nest from its place and put it in the cage was moved to restore it to its place on the tree, with the young birds in it. The unbounded delight of the old birds proved a full compensation for the sense of his (or rather his child's) loss by the restoration of the young birds to their mother.—Hartford Times.

No Trouble to Show Goods.

"Good morning, Smith. How's the grocery trade?" "Slow—very slow." "Let's see. How long have you been here in business?" "Seven years." "And how many times have you failed?" "Never, sir." "Ah! I see. Well, I'll put you down for a September failure; creditors accept ten per cent.; business removed to larger and more commodious quarters. Mr. Smith, let me call your attention to $10,000 worth of worthless railroad, canal and bridge securities which I can lump you off at $75. They'll count you face value in settling with creditors, and show where your profits went. Busy? Ah! I'll call again. No trouble to show goods."—Wall Street News.

—Quite gorgeous railroad cars are run between Paris and Bucharest. They are carpeted with Smyrna rugs two inches thick, and the sides of the compartments are covered partly with embossed Japanese leather paper and partly with Gobelin tapestry. The dining-room cars, in which triumphs of French cookery are served, are supplied with handsome clocks, damask curtains, and Venetian mirrors. Breakfast consists of five courses and dinner of eight. The sleeping cars are splendidly furnished, and have hot as well as cold water. The average speed is forty miles an hour.

—A new postal regulation in regard to letters went into effect July 1, of which many people are not aware. It compels the prepayment of all letter postage as a condition of the letter being forwarded. If the postage is deficient and there is a return card on the envelope the letter will be returned to the writer. If not, notice will be forwarded to the party to whom the letter is addressed that such a letter awaits him upon which there is so much postage due, and that the same will be forwarded upon receipt of the postage. The order of the department for the enforcement of this rule is peremptory.—N. Y. Tribune.

—An amateur snake-charmer in the Yellowstone region has twenty-nine adders that think so much of him that they follow him around like dogs. On washday each one takes the tip of a companion's tail in his mouth, and the allow themselves to be hung up on poles for clothes-lines. In the summer time they braid themselves into a most ingenius hammock, in which the snake-charmer lies and and reads novels on the front stoop.—Chicago News.

—The deepest running stream that is known is the Niagara river, just under the suspension bridge, where it it seven hundred feet deep by actual measurement.—N. Y. Times.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—For many months I was a great sufferer. Physicians could afford me no relief. In my despair I commenced the use of your "Favorite Prescription." It speedily effected my entire and permanent cure. Yours thankfully, MRS. PAUL R. BAXTER, Iowa City, Ia.

WHY are hens immortal? Because their sons never set. Why have they no hereafter? Because they have their necks twirled in this.—Golden Days.

IF you are bilious, take Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets," the original "Little Liver Pills." Of all druggists.

LOGIC is logic, and it does not follow that Noah brewed beer in the ark because the kangaroo went on board with hops.—Chicago Tribune.

DR. PIERCE'S "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Pleasant Purgative Pellets" purify the blood and cure constipation.

A SWAIN who is courting a girl and trying to please the old man at the same time is said to be very par tickler in his attentions.

Terrible Sufferings.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.:—I have a friend who suffered terribly. I purchased a bottle of your "Favorite Prescription," and, as a result of its use, she is perfectly well. J. BAILEY, Burdett, N. Y.

WOMAN'S sphere—The darning-ball. In fact, many a woman fears it.—Boston Times.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, July 20, 1883.

LIVE STOCK—Cattle—common	$2 25 @ 3 50
Choice butchers	4 70 @ 5 40
HOGS—Common	5 00 @ 5 70
Good packers	5 75 @ 6 10
SHEEP	4 00 @ 4 75
FLOUR—Family	5 25 @ 5 75
GRAIN—Wheat—Long berry red	1 09 @
No. 2 winter red	1 06½ @
Corn—No. 2 mixed	58 @
Oats—No. 2 mixed	38 @
Rye—No. 2	54 @
HAY—Timothy No. 1	10 00 @ 10 50
HEMP—Double dressed	8 @ 9
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	14 75 @
Lard—Steam	8¼ @
BUTTER—Western Reserve	30 @ 32
Prime Creamery	25 @ 28
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per bar. from store	2 15 @ 2 50
Apples, prime, per barrel	4 00 @ 4 50
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 40 @ 4 00
Good to choice	4 50 @ 6 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 14 @
No. 1 white	1 13 @ 1 14
Corn—No. 2 mixed	58 @ 51
Oats—mixed	40 @ 43
PORK—Mess	16 00 @
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50 @ 4 25
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 06 @
Corn—No. 2	50¾ @ 51
Oats—No. 2	34 @ 34½
Rye	58½ @
PORK—Mess	14 25 @ 14 30
LARD—Steam	8 82½ @ 8 85
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 00 @ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 14½ @ 1 15
Corn—mixed	58½ @ 59
Oats—mixed	38 @ 40
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	16 50 @
Lard—Refined	11 @
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—A No. 1	$4 25 @ 4 50
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red, new	98 @ 1 00
Corn—mixed	51½ @
Oats—mixed	35 @
PORK—Mess	16 00 @
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 red	$1 07 @
CORN—mixed	50½ @
OATS—mixed	33½ @
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	2 75 @ 4 50
Shipping cattle	5 25 @ 6 50

A QUEEN OF THE STAGE.

"Her Second Love," and the Important Secret She Reveals for the Benefit of Women.

(New York World.)

Several years ago the American public were aroused by the entree upon the stage of a little lady who had been previously but little announced. She was one of an innumerable number of aspirants for public favor and had no instrumentality, aside from her own talents, to cause recognition. In spite of this fact, however, she quickly achieved a warm place in the heart of the public which she has continued to hold ever since. When it was announced, therefore, that Miss Maude Granger would star the coming season in the play "Her Second Love," written by Mr. John A. Stevens, it was only natural that unusual interest should be manifested not only in theatrical circles, but in other branches of the community. This was specially the case, as it was known that Miss Granger had, for the past year, been in exceedingly delicate health, and the determination to star in a strong emotional play was the more surprising. One of the staff of this paper was accordingly deputized to see the popular lady and verify the rumor or announce its incorrectness.

Miss Granger's countenance is familiar to nearly every one in the United States. It is a face once seen never to be forgotten. Features remarkable in their outline and contour are surmounted by a pair of large and deep eyes indicative of the greatest soul power. It is easy to see where Miss Granger obtains the ability to portray characters of the most emotional nature. She possesses within herself the elements of feeling without which no emotion can be conveyed to an audience. The man of news found the lady at her home in this city and was accorded a quiet welcome. It was evident at once that she was in greatly improved health, which the expression and color of her countenance both indicated.

"Is it true, Miss Granger, that you contemplate a starring tour the coming season?"

"Yes, indeed. My season begins in Chicago on the 16th of July. From there I go to San Francisco and then play the remainder of the season through the Eastern and Western States."

"Are you confident your health will permit such an undertaking?"

A ringing laugh was the first reply to this question, after which she said:

"Certainly. It is true I have been ill for the past two years, but now I am wholly recovered. Few people can have any idea of the strain a conscientious actress undergoes in essaying an emotional part. It is necessary to put one's whole soul into the work in order to rightly portray the character. This necessitates an utter abandonment of one's personality and an assumption of the character portrayed. If this is an emotional part it is necessary to feel the same emotions the part is supposed to feel. For more than a year I actually cried each night in certain passages of a part I was playing. The audience considered it art. Probably it was, but those were none the less real tears and the effect was none the less trying upon my health."

"But do you anticipate avoiding this in the future?"

"Not in the least. I expect to have just as great a strain as before, but with restored health and a knowledge of how to retain it I do not fear."

"You speak of a 'knowledge of how to retain health.' Will you please explain what you mean by that?"

"You must be aware that woman by their very natures are subject to troubles and afflictions unknown to the sterner sex. The name of these troubles is legion, but in whatever form they may come they are weaknesses which interfere with every ambition and hope in life. I believe thousands of noble women are to-day suffering agonies of which even their best friends and relatives know little or nothing, and when I reflect upon it I confess it makes me sad. Now all this misery arises largely from an ignorance of the laws of life or a neglect to carefully observe them. I speak from the depths of a bitter experience in saying this, and I am thankful I know the means of restoration, and how to remain in perfect health."

"Please explain more fully."

"Well, I have found a remedy which seems specially adapted for this very purpose. It is pure and palatable and controls the health and life as, I believe, nothing else will. It is really invaluable and if all the women in America were to use it I am quite sure most of the suffering and many deaths might be avoided."

"What is this wonderful remedy?"

"Warner's Safe Cure."

"And you use it?"

"Constantly."

"And hence believe you will be able to go through the coming season successfully?"

"I am quite certain of it."

"A few questions more, Miss Granger. Will you please give me a list of the parts you have created and the plays you have taken part in since your first appearance in public?"

"I first played for some time with the amateurs in New York and Brooklyn. I then went to the Union Square theater for two seasons, after that to the Boston Globe for one season and then to Booth's theater in this city. Next I supported John McCullough and afterwards starred in Juliet, Camille, Rosalind, etc. Subsequently I created the part of Cicely Blaine in the Galley Slave and also starred in Two Nights in Rome, playing the part of Antonia. The past year I have been playing in the Planter's Wife and the coming season, as I have said, will be devoted to Her Second Love."

As the writer was returning home he fell into a train of musing and wondered if all the women in this land who are suffering could only know Miss Granger's experiences and the remarkable results achieved by the pure remedy she used, how much suffering might be avoided and how much happiness secured.

A HOG may be considered a good mathematician when it comes to square root.—Tennessee Contributor.

NERVOUS debility, the curse of the American people, immediately yields to the action of Brown's Iron Bitters.

A DELAWARE man keeps his favorite fruit in a refrigerator because he believes in freeze peach.

HAY-FEVER. I have been a Hay-Fever sufferer for three years; have often heard Ely's Cream Balm spoken of in the highest terms. I used it, and with the most wonderful success. T. S. GEER, Syracuse, N. Y.

A PITTSBURGH clothier advertises "Gents' Refrigerator Clothing." The outfit probably includes a nice chest protector.—Pittsburgh Telegraph.

HAY-FEVER. I can recommend Ely's Cream Balm to all Hay-Fever sufferers, it is, in my opinion, a sure cure. I was afflicted for 25 years, and never before found sure relief. W. H. HASKINS, Marshfield, Vt.

WHY is conscience like the strap on an omnibus? Because it's an inward check on the outward man.

KEOKUK, IOWA.—Dr. E. E. Fuller says: "I have used Brown's Iron Bitters in my own family with excellent results."

KEPT on draught—the blast furnace.—Boston Star.

ELM GROVE, N. C.—Dr. G. N. Roberson says: "I prescribe Brown's Iron Bitters and find it all it is recommended to be."

A LAUGHING stock—A collection of good jokes.—Boston Courier.

INVENTORS' HAND-BOOK—FREE.—Just out. How great fortunes have been made. History of inventions; valuable to all who read and think. Order it by postal card. N. W. Fitzgerald, Solicitor, Washington, D. C.

Stinging, irritation, all Kidney and Bladder Complaints, cured by "Buchu-Paiba." $1.

RUSSIA Salve is the universal remedy for burns, scalds, cuts, bruises and flesh wounds.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer

Is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which Sulphur, Sugar of Lead and Nitrate of Silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. JOHN D. PARK & SONS, Wholesale Agents, Cincinnati, Ohio, and C. N. CRITTENTON, New York.

Skinny Men. "Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia.

IF afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 25c

STRAIGHTEN old boots and shoes with Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners, and wear them again.

Wells' "Rough on Corns." 15c. Ask for it. Complete, permanent cure. Corns, bunions.

Glenn's Sulphur Soap

Is recommended for salt-rheum, itch, scald head, impetigo or any other skin eruption.

WHY don't you use St. Patrick's Salve? Try it. Use it. 25c at all druggists.

Don't Die in the House. "Rough on Rats," clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs. 15c.

CHROLITHION Collars are made in different styles, both standing and turn-down. The cuffs are reversible.

Flies, roaches, ants, bed-bugs, rats, mice, crows, cleared out by "Rough on Rats." 15c.

THE PROFESSION A UNIT.

MR. C. H. DRAPER, of No. 223 Main Street, Worcester, Mass., volunteers the following:

"Having occasion recently to use a remedy for kidney disease, I applied to my druggist, Mr. D. B. Williams, of Lincoln Square, this city, and requested him to furnish me the best kidney medicine that he knew of, and he handed me a bottle of Hunt's Remedy, stating that it was considered the best because he had sold many bottles of it to his customers in Worcester, and they all speak of it in the highest terms, and pronounce it always reliable. I took the bottle home and commenced taking it, and find that it does the work effectually; and I am pleased to recommend to all who have kidney or liver disease the use of Hunt's Remedy, the sure cure."

April 11, 1883.

WE ALL SAY SO.

MR. GEORGE A. BURDETT, No. 165 Front Street, Worcester, Mass., has just sent us the following, directly to the point:

"Being afflicted with ailments to which all humanity is subject sooner or later, I read carefully the advertisement regarding the remarkable curative powers of Hunt's Remedy, and as it seemed to apply to my case exactly, I purchased a bottle of the medicine at Jannery's drug store in this city, and having used it with most beneficial results in my own case, my wife and son also commenced its use, and it has most decidedly improved their health, and we shall continue its use in our family under such favorable results."

April 17, 1883.

CATARRH

HAY-FEVER

ELY'S CREAM BALM will, when applied by the finger into the nostrils, be absorbed, effectually cleansing the nasal passages of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membranal linings of the head from additional colds; completely heals the sores and restores the sense of taste and smell. Beneficial results are realized by a few applications. A thorough treatment will cure. Unequaled for cold in the head. Agreeable to use. Send for circular. 50 cents a package, by mail or at druggists.

ELY'S CREAM BALM CO., Owego, N. Y.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS

No time should be lost if the stomach, liver and bowels are affected, to adopt the sure remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Diseases of the organs named beget others far more serious, and a delay is therefore hazardous. Dyspepsia, liver complaint, chills and fever, early rheumatic twinges, kidney weakness, bring serious bodily trouble if trifled with. Lose no time in using this effective and safe medicine. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

PENSIONS speedily procured; delayed cases completed; Lost Horse claims collected; no advance fee; experience 18 years; write for circular; best references. A. W. McCORMICK, Pike's B'd'g, Cincin't, O.

$65 A MONTH and BOARD for three live Young Men or Ladies, in each county. Address P. W. ZIEGLER & Co., Philadelphia.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

AGENTS Coin Money by selling Dr. Chase's Family Physician and Second Receipt Book. $2. Address A. W. HAMILTON & CO., Ann Arbor, Mich.

80 Sheets fine writing paper in Blotter Tablet, with calendar, 25 cts., by mail. Agents wanted. Economy Printing Co., Newburyport, Mass.

OPIUM and WHISKY HABITS cured at home without pain. Book of particulars sent free. B. M. WOOLLEY, M. D., Atlanta, Ga.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Me.

Blessed Benefactors.

When a board of eminent physicians and chemists announced the discovery that by combining some well-known valuable remedies, the most wonderful medicine was produced, which would cure such a wide range of diseases that most all other remedies could be dispensed with, many were skeptical; but proof of its merits by actual trial has dispelled all doubt, and to-day the discoverers of that great medicine, Hop Bitters, are honored and blessed by all as benefactors. These Bitters are compounded from Hops, Buchu, Malt, Mandrake and Dandelion and other oldest, best, and most valuable medicines in the world and contain all the best and most curative properties of all other medicines, being the greatest Blood Purifier, Kidney and Liver Regulator, and Life and Health Restoring Agent on earth. No disease or ill health can possibly long exist where these Bitters are used, so varied and perfect are their operations.

They give new life and vigor to the aged and infirm. To all whose employments cause irregularity of the bowels or urinary organs, or who require an Appetizer, Tonic and mild Stimulant, these Bitters are invaluable, being highly curative, tonic and stimulating, without intoxicating.

No matter what your feelings or symptoms are, what the disease or ailment is, use Hop Bitters. Don't wait until you are sick, but if you only feel bad or miserable, use the Bitters at once. It may save your life. Hundreds have been saved by so doing. ☞$500☜ will be paid for a case they will not cure or help.

Do not suffer yourself or let your friends suffer, but use and urge them to use Hop Bitters.

Remember, Hop Bitters is the purest and best medicine ever made; the "Invalid's Friend and Hope." No person or family should be without them.

"I was troubled for many years with serious Kidney and Liver Complaint, Gravel, etc.; my blood became thin; I was dull and inactive; could hardly crawl about, and was an old worn out man all over, and could get nothing to help me, until I got Hop Bitters, and now I am a boy again. My blood is pure, kidneys are all right, and I am as active as a man of 30, although I am 72.—FATHER."

"For ten years my wife was confined to her bed with such a complication of ailments that no doctor could tell what was the matter or cure her, and I used up a small fortune in humbug stuff. Six months ago I saw a U. S. flag with Hop Bitters on it, and I thought I would be a fool once more, and I tried it, but my folly proved to be wisdom, and two bottles cured her, she is now as well and strong as any man's wife, and it cost me only two dollars.

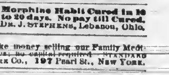
"H. W——, Detroit, Mich."

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED!

DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE Lungs.

Cures Consumption, Colds, Pneumonia, Influenza, Bronchial Difficulties, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough, and all Diseases of the Breathing Organs. It soothes and heals the Membrane of the Lungs, inflamed and poisoned by the disease, and prevents the night sweats and tightness across the chest which accompany it. CONSUMPTION is not an incurable malady. HALL'S BALSAM will cure you, even though professional aid fails.

$1000 REWARD For any machine hulling and cleaning as fast as market as much Clover Seed in one DAY as the VICTOR



VICTOR ILLUSTRATED Pamphlet mailed FREE. NEWARK MACHINE CO., NEWARK, O.

Double Huller.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. 25 100

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST." ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers (Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

CUT THIS OUT And Return to us, with TEN Cents, and you'll receive by mail, a Golden Box of Goods, that will bring you in more money in One Month than anything else in America. Absolute Certainty. M. Young, 173 Greenwich St., New York.

OPIUM Morphine Habit Cured in 10 to 20 days. No pay till Cured. DR. J. STEPHENS, Lebanon, Ohio.

AGENTS make money selling our Family Medicines; no capital required. STANDARD CURE Co., 197 Pearl St., New York.

Sure Cure for Epilepsy or Fits in 24 hours. Free to poor. DR. KRUSE, 2844 Arsenal St., St. Louis, Mo.

-✦1883.✦-

—THE—

GRAND EVENT OF THE YEAR.

11TH Cincinnati Industrial Exposition.

OPENS SEPT. 5th—CLOSES OCT. 6th.

A WONDERFUL DISPLAY OF

MANUFACTURES—ARTS—INVENTIONS—PRODUCTS.

RECOGNIZED EVERYWHERE AS THE National Exhibition of Industry and Art.

ADMISSION 25 CENTS.

☞ Exhibitors from every State in the Union.

No charge for space or steam power. Special arrangements made for transportation of exhibits and visitors. For full particulars, address, Wm. H. STEWART, Sec'y.

-✦1883.✦-

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD

And will completely change the blood in the entire system in three months. Any person who will take ONE PILL EACH NIGHT FROM ONE TO TWELVE WEEKS, may be restored to sound health, if such a thing be possible. For curing Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. Physicians use them in their practice. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. Send for pamphlet. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

A SURE RECIPE For Fine Complexions.

Positive relief and immunity from complexional blemishes may be found in Hagan's Magnolia Balm. A delicate and harmless article. Sold by druggists everywhere.

It imparts the most brilliant and life-like tints, and the closest scrutiny cannot detect its use. All unsightly discolorations, eruptions, ring marks under the eyes, sallowness, redness, roughness, and the flush of fatigue and excitement are at once dispelled by the Magnolia Balm.

It is the one incomparable Cosmetic.

Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass TARE BEAM. JONES, HE PAYS THE FREIGHT. Sold on trial. Warrants 5 years. All sizes as low. For free book, address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE to sell the best Family Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit a pair of stockings with HEEL and TOE complete in twenty minutes. It will also knit a great variety of fancy-work for which there is always a ready market. Send for circular and terms to the Twombly Knitting Machine Co., 163 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

BEFORE YOU BUY A BICYCLE Of any kind, send stamp to GUMP BROS., Dayton, Ohio, for large Illustrated Price List of New and Second Hand Machines.

EDUCATIONAL.

CHICAGO MUSICAL COLLEGE.

CENTRAL MUSIC HALL.

DR. F. ZIEGFELD, PRESIDENT. All Instruments and Voice taught by the most skillful Instructors. Fall Term opens September 10, 1883. Send for Catalogue.

Young Men learn TELEGRAPHY here and we will give you a situation. Circulars free. VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

A. N. K.—E. 935

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KY., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 1, 1883. NUMBER 40.

PITH AND POINT.

—The duration of a kiss has been found to be from half a second to one and a quarter minutes, according to who you are kissing.

—A pawnbroker named his boy Cyclone because he thought people would come to him sooner when they wanted to raise the wind.—Detroit Post.

—When Henry was courting Sarah he used to boast that he had a "boss" girl; now that he is married he finds that he has a "boss" wife; but he never mentions it.—Boston Transcript.

—Alaska diamonds are made in New York at about $1.15 per quart. It doesn't seem as if one of the little pieces of glass would make a young man think he owned half a town, but it somehow does.—Detroit Free Press.

—A blundering compositor, in setting up the toast: "Woman—without her, man would be a savage," got the punctuation in the wrong place, which made it read: "Woman, without her man, would be a savage.—Earlier Jokes of Ancient Greece.

—"I detest slang phrases," said an old lady to the pastor, "especially when used by women. Why, the other day I heard a girl say that she had flirted with a fellow, and made a 'mash.' She thought I didn't know what she meant, but I tumbled to it, all the same."—Chicago Tribune.

—Some clever young ladies have invented a new plan for securing husbands. They go out boating with the man of their choice, contrive to upset the boat, and then grab him and save his life. The victim, in the first burst of gratitude and admiration, generally makes the desired proposal to his heroic preserver.

—A Frenchman, living in Louisiana, whose wife deserted him, amused his neighbours by telling how he got her back without trouble. "Did I run after her and beg her to come back?" he dramatically asked. "No, I did not run after her. I zhust publish in ze papaire zat I have drawn fifty tousand dollaire in ze lottery, and she vas back much quicker as no time."—N. O. Picayune.

—"What is the difference, George," said Mr. Dusenberry to the dude reporter, "between a bag of salt and a man whose eyesight has been impaired by working in a cloth renovating establishment?" George said it would be too fatiguing, you know, to try to guess. "Why," said Mr. Dusenberry, "one is chloride of sodium, the other sore-eyed-of-clo' dye-em."—Jersey City Journal.

—We all know, or profess to know, and it is even patent to those who are not cognizant of the fact, that in all ages, from the very remotest to the æons in the misty future, man has, or has not, according to his inalienable rights and prerogatives in the premises, through the organism of the mind—which connects the understandableness with the intelligibility of the dynamic energy of the body—an underlying, inherent inclination, on multifarious occasions, as if propelled by an unseen force, to seek the magnetism and stimulation that is co-existent with, and analogous to, a fermentous extraction of.—Concord School Philosopher, in Puck.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—The Gloversville (N. Y.) business directory contains the names of 122 glove manufacturers.

—Flour mills are being erected this summer in various parts of Nevada. Those already in operation make excellent flour and are kept running steadily.

It is a fact not generally known that most of the stems from North Carolina tobacco factories are shipped to Germany to be manufactured into snuff for the German peasants. They are collected by a Winston firm and shipped thence in immense quantities.—Chicago Herald.

—A railroad only six thousand feet long, but with a grade of one-fifth rise in every five on the average, and at the steepest one in three, has been built straight up Green Mountain, near Bar Harbor, Maine. The roadbed is solid rock, cut away to a plane, upon which the ties are bolted. The locomotive pushes a passenger car up the ascent by means of cog-wheels plying in a center rail, as on the Mount Washington road.—Boston Herald.

—Dr. Horace T. Evans, of Philadelphia, believes mushrooms contain some of the poisonous property which, when present in excess, cause accidents—that is, sickness and death from eating mushrooms. Even those which are ordinarily considered safest and best are at times objectionable, owing to conditions affecting their growth. This explains why experts in the selection of edible fungi are sometimes mistaken. It isn't their fault, but the fault of the mushrooms, which are evidently a dangerous luxury.—Health Monthly.

—The production of sugar cane is increasing in Mexico. The climate and soil are reported as well adapted to it. It is stated that there is nothing in the form of sugar cane in Louisiana which can compare with the luxuriant growth to be found in Mexico. Many of the largest sugar districts in Mexico have abundant water which can be utilized for machine power as well as for irrigation. As for facilities for transportation, Mexican sugars are put up in small packages of conical shape, which are easily transported by pack animals to any distance required.—Chicago Times.

—Massachusetts has the credit of having the largest shoe manufacturing interest of any State in the Union, and it is due chiefly to her enterprise that America is conceded to have attained the highest perfection in the art of shoemaking of any country in the world. Perhaps few are aware that the shoe and leather interest of the United States is next in importance and value to the agricultural, and largely exceeds that of iron, coal, woolen, or even cotton. The annual sales of shoes and leather mount up to something like $250,000,000.—Boston Transcript.

* * *

—Up in the Catskills the Mountain House has been conducted by the Beach family for fifty-two years.—N. Y. Times

New York's Pet Dogs.

Come with me to Central Park. There are miles and miles of beautiful drives, and thousands of every sort and kind may be seen there every pleasant afternoon. It is an even bet that in right out of ten carriages, single or double, in which there are ladies, there will be dogs. I remember when Lina Edwin, a charming comedienne, who, with George Clark, now of the Madison Square theater, had a little bandbox for comedy up town, startled the proprieties by appearing on Broadway with a beautiful silken-haired lap-dog under her arm. Little by little the exception became the rule, and to-day fat women, thin women, old girls, young girls, every variety of the feminine gender has its dog. There are pretty little silken-haired dogs, slender little greyhounds, funny little tootsie-wootsies, apparently all hair, with an apology for a tail and two twinkling black eyes, hidden in hairy recesses. These, and now and then a magnificent Newfoundl and or a superb and stately greyhound, are what can be seen on the promenade of Fifth avenue and Broadway, in stages, in buggies, in little jerk-me-up and jerk-me-down dog-carts, in barouches and in every place known to feminine caprice. This morning I rode from South ferry in a Broadway omnibus. There were six men and six women all told. One woman had a black and tan in her lap. The dog may have been six inches long and three inches high, but I doubt it. Next to her sat a very uncomfortably fat woman. She had a long, thin dog, with a face like an Irish setter. The dog was too unwieldy for her to hold in her lap—in fact she had no lap to speak of. She was chiefly stomach and knees. So she placed the dog between herself and a Chinaman who sat next her. The Chinaman didn't like the dog, and the dog knew it. The dog didn't like the Chinaman, and the Chinaman knew it. Hostilities were early developed, greatly to the amusement of everybody except the old lady and the Chinaman. The fun continued for some time, when, the day being hot, the dog grew tired and indicated his desire to suspend hostilities by jumping from the seat clear across the stage into the lap of a very pretty girl, one of the prettiest sixteen-year-olders I ever saw, with long braids down her back, beautiful blue eyes and charming red cheeks, in whose arms (one in each) were cuddled two of the cunningest little Skyes. Precisely what the setter intended he alone knew. The effect was patent. The girl was frightened, and with a sudden twist to the left unfortunately threw one of the dogs into the street, and in less time than it takes to tell it the heavy wheel of the lumbering stage put an end to his suffering, too clearly indicated by two short, sharp, decisive yelps. The agitation of the girl may be imagined. The general upsettedness of the stage-load of passengers may possibly be conceived, but the astonishment of the setter, who was grabbed quickly by his hind leg, and also by the Chinaman, and slung with inconceivable rapidity through the open window in the door, it would be difficult to depict. So would the universal roar that followed the Chinaman's ejaculation of exultation, and so, too, would the indignation of the fat woman whose dog had been thrown away, when, rising upon her sturdy limbs, with one hand she yanked the strap leading to the driver's foot, and with the other, holding her parasol, she belabored the grinning Chinaman over the head and shoulders until the stage was stopped, and with difficulty she got out. Whether she secured her dog or not, I don't know, for the stage moved rapidly on.

We are used now to dogs in public conveyances, to dogs in restaurants, to dogs in parlors, in bed-rooms, in ladies' laps, but it will take us some time to become accustomed to dogs in churches, although it is but a week since I looked into the cooling interior of Trinity church, where possibly 150 fortunate sinners were loudly proclaiming themselves as miserable sinners, following the lead of a $50,000 a year rector, Morgan Dix. Accepting the courteous invitation of the sexton, I took a seat in the aisle on a tolerably hard bench, although there were at least 1,200 nicely-cushioned seats unoccupied. Hardly had I accustomed myself to the board beneath me when my eye detected in a pew occupied by a well-known millionaire, his wife, one son, and two little girls, the prettiest black and tan I think I ever saw—the merriest, jolliest, waggiest-tail, black and tan in the world. The youngest child held him in her arms as she might a baby. His little head rested lovingly on her shoulder, while his black eyes merrily twinkled as he took the congregation in. If I had been as nearly ten years of age as I am fifty, that little girl and that little dog would have had a cheerful time during the rest of the service, for I certainly should have attracted the attention of both. As it was I contented myself with making a series of grimaces, unseen by any but the dog. At first he regarded me with unfeigned amazement. Gradually his little tail withdrew from its convenient shelter between his hind legs and waved over his back. He pricked up one ear, then the other, until, exasperated beyond endurance, he stiffened himself up, and, standing straight in the little girl's arms, gave one, to me, tremendous bark. The miserable sinners, with one accord, forsook their pious endeavor and turned to see the source of the unaccustomed noise. The slipper-shod sexton moved gently down the aisle. I, of course, was immersed in thought, but the speedy exit of the little girl, accompanied by her elder brother, who buried the dog's head in the roomy recesses of his hat, afforded me ample revenge upon the sexton for having given me a board when I asked a cushion. Had I behaved, the dog would have behaved, and the little girl wouldn't have had a chance to play among the graves as she did, until the fifteen minutes' sermon was over, when her father joined her, and, having administered a parental rebuke, took her, with the rest of the family, to a roomy barouche waiting for them in front of the church.

That was the only time I have ever seen a dog in the sacred precincts; but if it was possible for one little girl to take one little dog into one church it is possible for 100,000 little girls to do the same thing with 100,000 little dogs, and the consequences you can tell as well as I. Precisely what effect this mania for dogs will have upon the rising generation it is difficult to predict. The dog that I saw in the stage was not a pleasantly-odored dog, and his hair didn't seem to be securely fastened to his skin. The consequence was that he was offensive to the nostrils of all that sat near him, and when he was flung from the stage at least 150 of his chestnut-colored hairs flew from his back and found lodgment on our respective coats and trousers. A magnificent Newfoundland, a full-booded Siberian greyhound, a noble mastiff, these are delights to the eye and companions to the best of men. But these are rarely seen in New York, and we are compelled to watch the tender affections of the female sex expended upon the pet poodles, of no earthly value either as objects of interest, of curiosity, or worth. Children are neglected for dogs. Women who would never think of taking a child to walk with them absolutely love to promenade our prominent streets carrying in their arms these precious pets. Miss Rose Coghlan, the popular leading actress in Wallack's Theater, is often seen upon the street with two dogs, one under each arm. Clara Morris has all sorts of dogs, and other ladies in that line of life are noted for canine pets, costing all the way from fifty dollars to $500 each. Some of the members of our codfish aristocracy make themselves peculiarly conspicuous in the dog line, all of which can be borne if such things must be, like the old-time bustle, the hoopskirt, the French heel, and the make-believe stomach. Dogs in the back yard, dogs upon the hearthstone, dogs on the steps in front of the house, dogs on the promenade are well enough and in certain times and places are desirable; but these little make-believe dogs, hugged to bosoms intended for other purposes, attended and nursed in place of children, receiving the homage, the attention, and the lavish care which might much better be bestowed upon animals with more brains and fewer legs—this sort of thing is obnoxious and offensive to the last degree.—Cor. Philadelphia Press.

A Live Man in the Hearse.

When returning to this city a few days ago from Belle Isle, where he had made a burial, an undertaker overtook a decrepit old German who had scarcely vitality enough to drag himself out of the way of the undertaker's team. Perceiving the condition of the old man, the undertaker reined his horses and asked him where he was going. "Hotel, Geddes," he said. "Would you like to ride?" the undertaker asked. "Yah!" was the curt reply. The undertaker got down from his high seat and told the worn travler that the only place he had for him to ride was within the hearse, and if he would accept such accommodations he was perfectly welcome to do so. "All right," he said, and the undertaker threw open the doors of the hearse and assisted the old man into it. He placed his bundle underneath his head, lay down on the floor of the hearse, and the undertaker closed the doors and resumed his journey. Canal boys stopped their horses, passers-by gazed in amazement, small boys followed the hearse for miles, and dumfounded people looked out from their windows or front yards at the strange spectacle. "Stop! the man's not dead!" shouted a crowd just outside the limits of Geddes, but the undertaker drove on all the more rapidly, with the threatening yells of the crowd ringing in his ears. When the undertaker reached Geddes he released his passenger, who was profuse in his thanks for the hospitality extended. Between one and two hundred people collected at the spot where the man was let out and demanded an explanation of the undertaker, who drove away without satisfying them.—Syracuse (N. Y.) Herald.

A Wag Wants Postage Stamps.

Sometimes clerks in the departments (a Washington correspondent says) do not read letters exactly as they are written. This occurred not long since in the office of the Third Assistant Postmaster-General. An assistant postmastmaster at a very considerable office sent in a requisition for stamps, postal cards, etc., and signed it in his official capacity as assistant postmaster. He was answered by an overworked clerk that supplies could not be furnished him as acting postmaster unless the postmaster was actually dead, etc. To this he replied:

"Your communication received, in which you state that supplies cannot be furnished upon my signature unless the postmaster is dead and I am acting on authority of the sureties of the deceased postmaster. This starts up a circus. What are we to do? This is a two-horse office, and we are out of stamps and in the fix the boy was after the ground hog—we must have 'em. I have purchased stamps of neighboring offices with my personal funds, but they vanished like fresh butter before a pack of hungry hounds. Our postmaster is not dead, but alive and kicking in jail charged with prevaricating on the stand in favor of a young dude who was sued for breach of promise to marry one of our flirts. The citizens sympathized with him and willeth not his demise unless the department demands it, and then, like obedient servants, we can get him on a shutter. We anxiously await your reply whether we shall kill him here or send him securely sacked to Washington to be slaughtered. The stamps we ought to and must have. Please wire your choice or answer by letter at your convenience.

ASSISTANT POSTMASTER."

"By authority of the sureties."

* * *

—After shooting at it eight or nine times, Mr. W. H. Richardson finally killed, with a ninth shot, a few days ago, a milk-white deer in the forest near Bigbee, Ala. The negroes think that white deer are akin to witches, and are probably delighted that one of them has been laid low. Two more of the beautiful creatures have been seen recently in the forests of Washington County, Ala.

* * *

—Mustardville is the name of a new town in Washington Territory.

Religious.

"THY ROD AND THY STAFF."

Erstwhile I looked across the Valley's border,
Where lie Death's shadows desolate and drear,
And held strange parley with its ghostly warder,
While one I loved to his domain drew near.

I trembled, in Life's twilight, as I pleaded
That he would spare the idol of my heart;
That as my stay and staff my boy was needed,
And my half-wearied feet should first depart.

The warder of the vale in voice grew tender,
As my wild prayer he answered with a sigh:
"'Twas his—obedience to his Lord to render,
And the beloved lad's—not mine—to die."

On the drear margin of that valley's darkness,
I felt amazed, my terror fainter grew;
And a soft veil fell o'er the warder's starkness,
As, in his arms, I saw my darling go.

For the dread shape, less drear, had softly spoken,
Or, somehow, to my tranced sense had come,
Across the shadowy edge, a blessed token
That he I'd loved and lost was taken home.

"Thy 'stay and staff' of which Death has bereft thee,
Were but ill-chosen for thy coming stress;
And in their stead my rod and staff I've left thee,
For comfort when thy feet the dark paths press."

And now, I humbly say, or sing, with David:
"Though I walk through the Valley of Death's shade,
From all its evils and its perils saved—
Since God is with me—I am unafraid!"

—William C. Richards, in Youth's Companion.

The Preacher and His Sermons.

The preacher can hardly give too much pains to the preparation of his sermons. Let him dismiss from his mind the canting temptation to imagine that he renders himself liable to the charge of egotism if he makes much of the business in which he is the sole actor, or the [illegible] influence, timed to fit his presence in the pulpit, will, if he is earnest in the main, save him the necessity of previous human trouble. Let him rather encourage the thought that when he preaches the interest and influence of his sermon depend upon the serious and honest pains he has taken in its preparation. A gardener who wants a good crop is not content with reliance on the beneficent aid of nature. He choses the best seed he can get. He takes the utmost care to see that it is sown under the most promising conditions. He feels that his personal credit is at stake in the matter, and that the blame for failure can not be altogether thrown upon the weather and the soil. And, in like manner, the preacher who desires his seed to bring forth well will neglect nothing which is likely to make it wholesomely acceptable. And he can not do this in a hurry. He can not do it when he has allowed his power of application to be frittered away by a multitude of petty interruptions. He must sit down to his work, whether he preaches what is called "extempore" or not, with a reserve of force. He must have a good head of steam in his boiler, which is hardly possible if he has been whistling and shunting himself about in sidings all day. Look at an engine waiting to drag a train. See how it glows and bubbles with suppressed energy as it stands ready in the shed. We may be sure that the preacher will acquit himself best, and make the best impression upon his people, who deliberately assists the accumulation of his power before he settles himself down to the preparation of his sermon, and who dares to resent the pressure of other less important business that he may seat himself at his desk with a clear head and a warm interest in the work to be done. He never approaches that work without secret prayer; but he locks his door, and does his utmost to put his message into a shape most likely to invite healthy attention and leave a wholesome result. Whether he preaches with or without a book, he uses his pen. He arranges his subject, he chooses his words with care, and patiently reconstructs clumsy or dull sentences, until he feels that, according to his abilities, he has created a fresh and original fabric. He will then go into his pulpit with the encouraging reflection that he has something to say, and that he is prepared to say it in the best way within his power. And I would ask whether a higher influence is not then most likely to accompany his work.—Cornhill Magazine.

How to Meet Temptation.

The experience of temptation is universal. No one can pass through this world and escape. We hear a great deal in pulpits and elsewhere about the solemn nature of death; we are exhorted to make preparation for it as for the most critical point in all human experience. Yet, when we think seriously of it, it is not half so solemn a thing to die as it is to live. To one who lives aright, death is but the passage from surroundings of sin and sorrow to a realm of purity and joy. No Christian was ever lost, or even harmed, in the experience of dying. * * * *

Just how to live so as to be victorious is the present question of practical interest. We may be sure, at the very outset, that Christ does not help us by keeping us out of the conflicts. All the best things in life lie beyond the fields of struggle, and we can get them only by overcoming. Temptation met and victoriously resisted puts new fiber into our souls. It would be no kindness to us were God to withdraw us into some sheltered spot whenever there is danger, or if He were so to fight our battles for us that we should never ourselves have to struggle. "I pray not that thou shouldest take them out of the world," was our Lord's prayer for His loved ones, "but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil one."

"He who hath never a conflict hath never a victor's palm,
And only the toilers know the sweetness of rest and calm."

We must meet temptations, and we must make up our minds, also, that we have something to do in getting the victory over the temptations which we are called to meet. Men and devils may tempt us, but men and devils can not make us yield to sin. We are sovereigns in our choices while the right and the wrong stand before us. Other wills may seek to influence us, may plead, entreat, persuade, but they can not compel. We can not avoid being tempted, but we ought to avoid yielding to temptation. An old divine said, in illustration of this truth, that "we can not keep the birds from flying around our heads, but we can prevent them building their nests in our hair." We can not hinder temptations from buzzing about our ears, but it is our own fault if they make their nests in our hearts. We must not expect God to lock the doors, and hold His hand on the lock all the time, to keep us, by force of omnipotence, from letting the tempter in. This shutting and opening is our part of the responsibility. Even God Himself will never come into our heart unless we voluntarily open it to Him. We are never forced to do wrong. Our duty, therefore, is unwavering resistance—an unalterable no to every solicitation to sin. If we settle this point, we have learned one of the best lessons in spiritual strategy.

Often, however, avoidance of temptation is the true course of wisdom. Because Christ does not keep us out of all struggles, we are not, therefore, to rush presumptuously into danger at every opportunity. We pray daily: "Lead us not into temptation." We must not, therefore, enter into temptation voluntarily. Lord Macaulay tells us that at the siege of Namur, while the conflict was raging, William, Prince of Orange, who was giving his orders under a shower of bullets, saw with surprise and anger, among his staff officers, Michael Godfrey, the deputy-Governor of the Bank of England. He had come to the King's headquarters on business, and was curious to see real war. "Mr. Godfrey," said King William, "you ought not to run these hazards; you are not a soldier; you can be of no use to us here." "Sir," answered Godfrey, "I run no more hazard than your Majesty." "Not so," said William, "I am where it is my duty to be, and I may without presumption commit my life to God's keeping; but you—" Before the sentence was finished a cannon-ball laid Godfrey dead at the King's feet. The King's words were true, and the truth is just as applicable to temptations and spiritual dangers as to the perils of war. When duty calls us into any place we are safe; God will protect us. But otherwise we venture without any promise or claim to protection. It is not courage, but foolhardiness, that prompts one to rush into temptations, uncalled, unled and without necessity of duty; and it can only lead to ruinous consequences. The true rule is: Never seek a temptation: meet one only as God leads you up to it in the path of duty. Most people who fall, fall in places where they ought never to have gone at all.

When we are doing God's will, we may confidently count on protection, however sore are the dangers. "He shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways." And, even more than this: Christ Himself is personally interested in each individual soul in its earthly struggles, and watches from Heaven, ready, when the enemy seems about to gain the advantage, to give instant help, or to provide some way of escape. When our duty leads us through perilous paths—but only then—we may intrust ourselves with unwavering confidence to the Divine protection, assured of victory.

"I have known a timid traveler," says one, "whose route lay across the higher Alps, on a path that, no broader than a mule's foothold, skirted a dizzy precipice, where we saw the foaming river, far below, diminished to a silver thread—find it safest to shut her eyes, nor attempt to guide the course, or touch the bridle, where a touch were fatal, throwing the steed and rider over, to bound from shelf to shelf, and be dashed to pieces in the valley below. And there are times and circumstances when to be saved from falling . . . the believer must, if we may say so, shut his eyes, and, committing his way to God, let the bridle lie on the neck of Providence, and walk, not by sight, but faith. . . . When we are walking in darkness and have no light, there is nothing for it but to trust in the Lord and stay ourselves on God."

There come times in every life when this is just the picture for us, when all that we can do is to shut our eyes and let God lead us through the peril. In such cases He will never fail; and if we are faithful in our duty, we shall not fail.—S. S. Times.

He Left It.

They told Lord Erskine that a certain man was "dead, and that he had left £200,000." His lordship replied: "That's a poor capital to begin the next world with." What a failure was that man's life! He got no good of his £200,000 in this world and did not get himself ready for the next. What did he do? What is the grand result of his life, of his toil, of his anxious days and sleepless nights? He raked together £200,000. What did he do with it? Kept it as long as he could. Why did he not keep it for ever? He died. What became of it? He left it! To whom? To those who came after and to the squabbles of courts. If any good to the world ever came out of this £200,000 no thanks are due to him. He kept it as long as he could, and left it only because he could not bring it with him. There was not room enough in old Charon's boat for him and his £200,000. If he had only "converted" it, as the bankers say! And it was convertible into the blessings of the poor, into the sweet consciousness of having done some good while he lived, into the good hope of perpetuating his influence when he was dead and gone. But he did none of these things. He raked it together, kept it, died, left it, and made his last bed no softer.—Dr. J. B. Thomas.

Gems of Thought.

—Christianity gave mankind the idea and word humanity.

—There is no refuge from God except in God.—Persian Proverb.

—Consolation is the dropping of a gentle dew from Heaven on desert-hearts beneath; it is one of the choicest gifts of Divine mercy.—Spurgeon.

—If on our daily course our mind
Be set to hallow all we find,
New treasures still of countless price
God will provide for sacrifice;
Old friends, old scenes will lovlier be,
As more of Heaven in each we see;
Some softening gleam of love and prayer,
Shall dawn on every cross and care.

—John Keble

Our Young Folks.

MISS FRET AND MISS LAUGH.

Cries little Miss Fret,
In a very great pet:
"I hate this warm weather: it's horrid to tan.
It scorches my nose,
And it blisters my toes,
And wherever I go I must carry a fan."

Chirps little Miss Laugh:
"Why, I couldn't tell half
The fun I am having this bright summer day.
I sing through the hours,
I cull pretty flowers,
And ride like a queen on the sweet-smelling hay."

—M. E. Sangster, in Harper's Young People.

A TRUE STORY.

Over twenty-five years ago, in a small Indiana village, which was situated on the banks of a pleasant stream, stood an old, red-brick school-house. The village is still there. It has not yet grown into city ways, and probably never will. The river, too, is there, and is still the same pleasant, high-banked stream it was twenty-five years ago. But the dear, old red-brick school-house has given place to a more pretentious modern structure, and the little boys and girls who romped upon the school-house play-ground then are all men and women now, with little boys and girls of their own.

Children have grand events in their lives, as well as older people. Wonderfully exciting incidents occur to them, narrow escapes and startling adventures which they remember all their lives. It is one of these narrow escapes, one of these startling adventures of child-life, that I am about to tell to the little boys and girls of to-day, and the story is no "make believe;" it is true—terribly true it seemed to six little girls who attended school at the old red-brick so long ago.

Just back of the school-house was the play-ground, and just back of the play-ground, with only a high board fence between, was the railroad track, where trains thundered past at all hours of the day.

The fence between us was high, and the most agile boy in the play-ground could not climb to its top, but they could, and did, beat down the boards with miniature battering-rams, constructed for this purpose.

These openings would sometimes escape the notice of the teacher for days, even weeks, at a time, and the children would crowd their round, bright faces into them to watch the trains go past.

At first they remained within the inclosure, and only glanced through at the forbidden grounds beyond, but they finally grew bolder, and ventured into the tall grass which grew on either side of the track.

The boys converted the newly-acquired territory into a ball ground, while the girls began to search for a suitable location for a play-house.

There were six little girls who belonged to one play-family, representatives of six different real families in the village. Minnie Wells, the minister's little daughter, was only six years old; Dot Williams belonged to the village merchant, Nellie Dodd to the grocer; Fay Ferris represented the aristocracy, in French merino and high-heeled boots, while Sallie McConald came from the lower ranks of society.

These little girls were all about seven years of age; but the mother of this interesting family, Mary Washburn, was older and was also the cause of the terror and humiliation which came to them one autumn day.

It was during the noon intermission that Mary joined her family, with eyes aglow with excitement, exclaiming:

"Oh, my! I guess I've found a house for us now—a really, truly house—and we can have a bed-room, and a kitchen, and a parlor, and everything we want, and we won't let a single boy into it—not a single boy!"

"Oh, where is it?" chorused the other voices, excitedly.

"You just follow me, and see what I've found," Mary answered, as she led the way, with grave importance.

And, sure enough, there it stood, a "really, truly" house, as Mary had said, with roof, and floor, and great slide doors on either side—just the loveliest play-house in the world, the children thought—and they prepared to move in and take possession at once.

"But there ain't any steps to it, and how'll we ever get in?" asked Fay, dolefully, as she glanced up at the great, open door, so far above.

"We'll make us some steps," answered Mary, who was equal to almost any emergency.

A large box lay near, and the six little girls set to work to roll it to the side of the new house, under the door, regardless of white aprons and clean hands; and then, with shrieks of delight, they clambered in and explored the premises.

"The family that moved out wasn't the leastest bit neat," said Nellie, viewing the floor in dismay.

"We'll have a thorough house-cleaning," said Mary, energetically. "Now, children," she added, "I want you to all go to the old play-house, and move the furniture and dishes to our new house just as quick as ever you can. I should be mortified to death if Mrs. Judge Baxter or the minister's wife should call and find us in such a muss."

And then, oh, how hard they did work, those six little girls! Pieces of carpets, bits of broken crockery, odds and ends of almost everything, which the real mothers at home had contributed to the play-house at different times, were brought by armfuls to the new house, and great drops of perspiration stood out under the edge of brown, yellow and sandy hair, the result of their energetic enthusiasm.

Water was brought, in an old, battered tin dinner-pail, from the depot, which was quite near, and the floor was scrubbed with an old cast-away broom, until, as Susie remarked, "'twas plenty clean enough to eat off from."

"And, oh my! Just the cutest little shelf for our dishes!" said Dot, as she placed them carefully in a row on a beam which extended across the end of the house.

"It's the nicest house I ever did see," exclaimed Sallie, drawing in a long, delighted breath.

By this time the household goods had all been conveyed to the new house, and lay in piles of confusion on the floor.

"Now, do work spry, children!" said the busy mother, brushing about excitedly. "We must get things straightened before the school-bell rings. There it goes," she cried, in dismay. "Oh, dear me! It's just as I expected. I know that Mr. Donald hasn't given us half an hour's nooning to-day."

"The mean old thing!" cried Nellie, indignantly.

At that instant, without a moment's warning, the two great doors on either side of the house slid to with a bang, that brought six wildly palpitating hearts into six throbbing little throats, as the terror-stricken children stood in the awful darkness of their prison-house.

They were too frightened and astonished to speak or move for a moment, and during that short space of silence they heard a great, rough voice, just outside, say:

"I can get a good big price for 'em out West, where there ain't no little girls. I'll couple this 'ere night-car right on to the engine, an' take 'em off afore they're missed."

And then the "new home" began to move along the track, slowly at first, but gaining rapidity at every turn of the wheels, and a wail of anguish, which was simply terrific, went up from the entire family within.

Dot and Nellie danced right up and down, and screamed at the top of their voices, tossing their chubby hands about in a most frantic manner.

Sallie and Fay lifted up their voices in a dismal wail of anguish. Little Minnie dropped on her knees, and began to say: "Now I lay me," getting it sadly mixed with "Oh, I want my mamma!"

While Mary threatened her captor with every conceivable manner of vengeance if he did not release her at once; but her terrible threats were drowned by the united voices of her sobbing children.

"Oh, what shall we do? What shall we ever do?" cried Nellie, in despair.

"I s'pose he's goin' to sell us to the people who eat up fat little girls—and what will our mamma do then?" sobbed Dot.

Then followed another burst of uncontrollable grief and lamentation, louder and longer than the first, in the midst of which the giant's heart must have relented, for one of the great doors slid suddenly open, letting in a flood of sunlight—letting out six sorrowful little girls, with tumbled clothes and tear-stained faces.

They did not wait to find the step, but jumped out in such reckless haste that they fell upon each other in a bewildering heap of bright-colored dresses, from which protruded six pairs of small shoes struggling to extricate their owners from the heaving mass. This was finally accomplished, and just as the second reading class were taking their places on the recitation seats, six forlorn little objects filed into the school-room.

But their troubles were not at an end. To be sure, they had lost all of their household goods; had bruised themselves dreadfully in their fall from the car; had soiled and torn their dresses, so that an explicit explanation must be rendered at home; but the most terrible part was yet to come. They fully realized this when Miss Birch bade them stand in a line, and await Mr. Donald's verdict. Trembling with apprehensive forebodings they stood there, while the copious tears flowed afresh.

At length they heard his step in the hall, the step which they feared at any time, but which seemed like a knell of doom as they awaited his coming.

He entered the room, heard their pitiful story, and then their punishment began.

Mary, being the oldest, was placed foremost, and the rest directly behind her, in a line.

"Forward, march!" said the principal, in a voice of stern command; and the melancholy line advanced.

Mr. Donald stood at the door, leading into the hall, and as they passed him he administered a stinging box on the six left ears turned toward him. He then marched solemnly in advance, and led them up the stairs into the august presence of the young ladies and gentlemen of the school, after which he again took his station at the door, and administered a box of equal severity on the six right ears.

The little culprits then took their seats, with hot cheeks and hotter ears as reminders of their offense.

For days afterward they took no interest in play-houses or games, but would go away by themselves and talk over their dreadful adventure, and surmise and wonder what terrible things would have happened to them if their captor had not finally relented and set them free.—Ruth Hartwick, in Golden Days.

Incubation of the Ostrich.

Some will sit throughout with the most solicitous maternal instinct; . . . others manifest such anxiety that, when the hen has been a little late in taking her morning turn upon the nest the male has gone out, and, hunting her up, has kicked her to the nest in a most ungentlemanly manner. Some are very affectionate over their young, others the reverse; thus do individuals differ even among ostriches. As a rule the cock-bird forms the nest, sits the longest, and takes the burden of the work of hatching and rearing. Contrary to what has been currently understood, and what is still stated in recent colonial accounts, the cock-bird sits at night. In this peculiarity, the London Field thinks the hand of Providence may be seen, for the worst enemies of the nest appear at night, and the cock, being stronger and braver, is better able to resist them; moreover, the same authority concludes that, the feathers of the cock being black, night-sitting does not expose him to the exhaustion from the sun's rays which would ensue if he sat during the day; while at the same time the gray feathers of the female are less conspicuous while she sits during the day.—Scientific American.

* * *

—The American half-dollar and quarter-dollar are taken at a discount in Canada. It is suggested that business men on this side fix a date beyond which they will not receive Canadian coins at their face value.—Utica (N. Y.) Herald,

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. AUG. 1 .1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
"	½ "	40
½	½ "	25
¼ "	1 "	20
"	½ "	10
"	¼ "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (except in the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

THE Owen Democrat was full of Knott-(y) editorials last week.

THE county needs a good rain worse than it needs a representative.

THE Southern Exposition was opened to visitors in Louisville today.

MONTGOMERY BLAIR died in Washington on the 27th ult. He was an ex-Postmaster General.

THE body of Charles Menninger, of Cincinnati, was taken to Washington, Pennsylvania, and cremated last Friday.

GOV. FOSTER and Judge Hoadley, of Ohio, have indulged in a card writing, but pistols and coffee have not been ordered yet.

THE other day a New York lady bought 30,000 acres of Martin county, Kentucky land. Real estate has taken quite a raise in price.

THE Teachers Institute for this county will be held in Morgan Academy August 28th, 29th and 30th. Programmes will be out to-day.

THE attendance at the Corinth Camp Meeting last Sunday was near 12,000. John Ninor, son of Orrin Minor, has charge of the grounds.

ANOTHER editor has developed pugilistic accomplishments. Capt. Murphy, editor of the Danville Tribune, and Logan McKee had an old fashioned fisticuff the other day.

HOGGISH—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $5 50@5 85; fair to good packers, at $5 25@5 60; fair to good light, $5 75@6 00; common, $4 50@5 20; culls, $3 50@4 25: stock hogs, $4 50@5 25.

THE reunion of Gen. Morgan's men at Lexington, last week, was a grand success in every particular, and many a hearty hand shake was indulged by those who fought side by side in the dark and bloody days of late unpleasantness. About 2,000 of the old command were present.

THE election of a United States Senator is a matter in which the people of Boone county are interested, and how many of them know how the candidates for the legislature would vote on that subject? The people have a right to know who they are for and ought to make them say.

MONDAY morning the body of a boy that went down with the Southern depot in Cincinnati when it gave way during the flood last February, was exhumed. It was standing upright with hat and overcoat on and was well preserved The head was near the surface. The boy's father had spent $2,000 hunting him.

THE jury in the case of ex-Treasurer Polk, at Nashville, Tenn., brought in a verdict of guilty of embezzlement, and fixied the penalty at imprisonment in the penitentiary for twenty years, and imposed a fine to the full amount of his embezzlement, $336,540 10. A motion for a new trial was enter d.

IF those chronic grumblers about the inefficiency of the laws would turn their attention to the officers to whom the laws are entrusted for enforcement, they would discover that inefficiency lies at the door of the officers. A large array of officers are out of their sphere when in official position, and so long as such men are elected, just so long will the evils complained of continue to exist.

IT is asserted that one of the candidates for United States Senator is furnishing money to many of the candidates for the Legislature in this State, and to reciprocate the favor the candidates are to cast their votes for the Senatorial aspirant next winter. The candidate who would accept money from such a source is not only selling his own vote, but the votes of the people he represents."—Owen News.

Just so, Judge Orr. It seems that money and not brains is to be made the qualification for United States Senator in this State.

IN our last issue we attempted to present to our readers the reason why the twelfth article of our constitution should be amended. The question now presenting itself is, supposing we are correct in all we said last week in relation to the difficulties to be overcome before a constitutional convention can be called, and as to the undemocratic character and wrongs fastened upon us by that article of the Constitution: what can a constitutional convention do to help us? We do not know what the wisdom of the convention might point out as the most suitable method of making future amendments to the Constitution; but we believe that a Constitution like ours recognizing all power as inherent in the people, and that all free governments are formed upon their authority; and that the people have, at all times, an inalienable and indefeasable right to alter or abolish their government in such manner as they think proper, should contain within itself some appropriate method by which that right, when necessary, might be exercised in such reasonable time as would surely prevent actual revolution, or to at least remove all reasonable excuse for such a step.

It requires about five years time to make an amendment to our Constitution as it now reads—longer than it took the United States to put down the rebellion, restore the union and amend the Federal Constitution in more than one respect. Would it not be better to remove from the Constitution article twelve with all its circumlocution and costly machinery, and substitute something less intricate, more economical and more speedy in its action, and more democratic in principle? Would not it be more in harmony with the idea of popular government to provide a plan by which amendments to the Constitution may be proposed and voted upon directly by the people at any general election, as we now vote upon laws submitted by the legislature? In that way any proposed amendment to the Constitution may be submitted to the people, and be considered and acted upon by them, entirely freed from all obscurity. Each proposed amendment would then stand upon its own merits or fall by its own demerits.

We say let a majority of those voting decide all elections, whether it be on local option or amending the Constitution; and let the people have, at all times, ready at hand, suitable and speedy means for the removal of their grievances arising from defects in their laws.

Section 10, article 3, of the Constitution, gives the governor, we might say, unlimited power to pardon criminals, remit fines, &c. A jury may convict, the judge pronounce the sentence of the law, and the sheriff take to the penitentiary or the gallows, but the governor can annul it all and say "go" to the vilest wretch. So our Constitution has it. Our present governor is charged with an abuse of this power—not an illegal use of it, however, for the Constitution makes him sovereign in that matter. If he were to turn every convict in the penitentiary loose, the Constitution would say, "bully boy" to it, and we have no power to put one of them back without violating that instrument. He can remit all the fines, turn lose all the convicts legally, says our supreme state law. Now, is such a power to be entrusted to any human? We don't care what has been the course in this or other States, no human should be trusted with such authority. Cannot this be bettered? We do not doubt it. Cannot the pardoning power and the power to remit be so hedged about by checks and common sense as to leave those who are entitled to relief from unjust judgments, in a condition to get it, without leaving it possible for the governor to open all the jails and the penitentiary, and give back all the fines in all the courts assessed for misdemeanors? What our governor has done may be a president to be greatly improved upon hereafter.

The constitution is, also, in some particulars objectionable in its qualifications for office. By it a justice of the peace may be the most ignorant and corrupt man in his district; he need not know how to read, write, cipher, or spell his name; yet, under our law he may become county judge in some instances, and at all times constitutes one of the county court in doing the county's financial business. A constable needs no higher qualifications than the justice. The county judge may be an ignoramus; may never have read a law-book or a line of law; may be unable to read or write; have so little intelligence and mind as not to be able to comprehend his duty as judge of the court, or to understand the laws he is called to apply and enforce.

Now let us amend and place the qualifications for these offices on a higher level and by constitutional provisions guard securely these official positions from the intrusion of those who, from ignorance and want of ability can bring but disrepute upon themselves and the offices they mayhold, and, it possible, let us exclude, all dishonesty and unfitness in all its phases from such seemingly public approval.

The people need have no fear that if the convention is called, that we will thereby haul in the anchor and start out on a cruise we know not where to end. They have within their control all the protection necessary against such a result. If the convention is called, elect only men of good, strong, practical, common sense, the best who will accept the trust. Let the idealist and the visionary alone, and then a great improvement in our organic law will be assured. Voter: when the officers of the election, at the polls, ask you if you are in favor of the convention, say yes.

MONDAY William Gibson and Grant Hensley were adjudged lunatics. Hensley had been taken to the Asylum some days previous, and Tuesday morning George Blythe left for Anchorage with Gibson.

CHAPTER 40.

AN ACT to take the sense of the people of this Commonwealth as to the propriety of calling a Convention to revise the Constitution, and to regulate the manner of taking the list of qualified voters.

WHEREAS, It is the sentiment of this General Assembly, and many good citizens of this Commonwealth, that experience has pointed out the necessity of calling a convention with the view of amending the Constitution of this State, therefore,

§ 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky: That it shall be the duty of the sheriffs and other officers, at the next general election held for Representatives after the passage of this act, to open a poll for, and make a return to the Secretary of State for the time being of, the names of all citizens entitled to vote for Representatives who have voted for calling a convention.

§ 2. Be it further enacted, That any sheriff or other returning officer failing to perform the duty imposed by the first section of this act, shall be subject to a fine of six hundred dollars, to be recovered by indictment by any grand jury in any court having jurisdiction thereof; and also subject, upon conviction of such failure, to removal from office.

§ 3. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the Secretary of State to have this act advertised in the columns of one weekly newspaper in every county in this State, for two consecutive weeks immediately preceding the election, and in one of the daily newspaper in the city of Louisville, for thirty days immediately preceding the election: Provided however, There is no weekly newspaper in any one or more counties of this Commonwealth in which said advertisement can be made, it is made his duty to have posted a printed copy of said bill, in handbill form, at the court-house door of such counties, for at least two consecutive weeks preceding said election.

§ 4 Be it further enacted, That the public printer shall, upon a separate sheet, print ten thousand copies of this act, and deliver them to the Secretary of State, who shall send 75 copies of the same to the clerk of the county court of each county in the State at the time of forwarding the Acts of the General Assembly; and said clerk shall deliver the same to the sheriffs of their several counties,

§ 5. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the clerks or judges conducting the said general election to propound to each voter the following question: "Do you vote for calling a convention or not?" and if he answers in the affirmative, his name shall be recorded as having voted for calling a convention.

§ 6. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the assessors of tax to open a column in their assessor's book, and enroll therein the name of each citizen entitled to vote for Representative in the year 1883; but the assessors shall only enroll the names of those whom they know to be entitled, at the time, to vote for Representatives, such knowledge to be based—1. Either upon the personal knowledge of the assessor; 2. Or upon satisfactory information obtained by the assessor directly from the person whose name is enrolled; 3. Or upon satisfactory information under oath, from those who, of their own knowledge, testify to the facts which are necessary to such qualification; and for enrolling names without such knowledge or information, such assessor shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and fined twenty dollars for each and every name so improperly enrolled, which fine shall be enforced in any court of competent jurisdiction, and be for the benefit of the common schools of the Commonwealth; and they shall be governed, in all cases, in ascertaining who is entitled to vote by the laws then in force to prevent illegal voting; and this column, written in a fair and legible hand, shall be transmitted, with the assessor's books, to the Auditor, who shall make out a copy thereof, and deposit the same in the office of the Secretary of State for the time being, who shall transmit the same to the next Legislature as a list of those who are entitled to vote for Representatives, in order that the Legislature may have the means to ascertain whether a majority of the citizens of the State entitled to vote for Representatives have voted for a convention.

§ 7. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of each assessor of tax, who shall be in office in the year 1883, as soon as he shall be advised of the passage of this act, to go before a justice of the peace and take the following oath: "I do solemnly swear I will, to the best of my ability, fairly ascertain the number of qualified voters in the district in which I was elected for the year 1883, and report the same, with my book made as assessor of tax, before the first day of May, 1883."

§ 8. Be it further enacted, That the assessors of tax may, and they are hereby required to, examine, on oath, any person in relation to his right to vote for Representatives when he has doubt as to his right to vote; and any person who shall knowingly swear falsely before the assessor, and shall thereof be convicted, shall be subjected to all the pains and penalties of the crime of perjury.

§ 9. Be it further enacted, That the assessor shall write "sworn" opposite the name of each person sworn by him.

§ 10. Be it further enacted, That it shall be the duty of the public printer to print five hundred copies of the seventh, eighth, and ninth sections of this act immediately after its passage, and deliver them to the Secretary of State for the time being, who shall transmit them forthwith to the county clerks, to be delivered by them, as soon as possible, to the assessors of tax for 1883.

§ 11 This act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Approved January 7, 1882.

Subscribe for the RECORDER.

LOOK! LOOK!! LOOK!!!

From JULY 1st, to AUG., 1st, Custom Made suits will be on the average $5 less. Ready Made suits have been reduced 25 per cent.

The stock is large and must be disposed of to make room for my Fall Goods, let every one take advantage of the great reduction. H. F. BLASE, 540 Madison St., Covington, Ky.

A. M. Elliott AND Co,

—DEALERS IN—

Threshers, Engines, SAW MILLS, HORSE POWERS, BUCKEYE Reapers, Mowers and Self-Binders.

South Bend Chilled Plows, Furst & Bradley Steel Plows.

Buggies, Wagons and Farming Implements in General.

Give us a call. Satisfaction guaranteed in every sale. Corner second and Judiciary Streets, Aurora, Indiana. 33-6t

GRAND EVENT OF THE YEAR!

The Lawrenceburg Fair,

AUGUST 22nd to 25th, 1883.

RACES Every DAY.

PROGRAMME:

Wednesday, August 22.

Jack and Mules, Heavy Draft Horses.

Boone and Dearborn County Trot, Purse $60 00

Running Race, Purse, ... $100 00

Thursday, August 23.

Address by HON. JOHN G. CARLISLE.

Cattle, Saddle Horses, Hogs and Sheep.

Three minute trot, Purse, ... $200 00

Running Race, Purse, ... $150 00

Friday, August 24.

General Purpose Horses, Sweepstakes on Hogs and Sheep, Matched Horses, Swepstakes on Stallions, Purse ... $50 00

Two Thirty Trot, Purse $200 00

Free for all Pace, Purse $300 00

Saturday, August 25.

Herds of Cattle, Purse $150 00

Light Harness Horses, Sweepstakes on General Purpose Horses, Purse ... $50 00

Running Race, Purse $200 00

Free for all Trot, Purse $400 00

STEAM FERRY at Lawrenceburg during Fair week, Commencing Wednesday, August 22nd.

No Entry Fees for Competition. Send for Premium Lists.

W. H. O'BRIEN, Secretary,
Lawrenceburg, Indiana.

A. G. P. DODGE, of the Kentucky Union railway, has donated $7,500 to aid education in Breathitt county; $3,000 to go toward building an academy at Jackson, to which also citizens of that town will contribute; the residue, $4,500 is to assist deserving youths on the road to learning.

Thanks! Thanks!! Thanks!!!

PETERSBURG, July 30th, 1883,

To the Editors of the Recorder:

Permit us, through the medium of your excellent paper, to extend to the citizens of Petersburg and vicinity, our sincere thanks for their alacrity, endurance and efficiency in arresting the progress of what threatened to be a most destructive fire, occurring on our premises on Sunday morning, 29th inst, Our thanks are also due to the Aurora, Ind., fire department for their ready response to a call for their service, being on the way, and eager to render assistance, were notified by special messenger, that the fire was under control, reluctantly turned back. We also heartily thank Mayor Roberts and the gallant fire company of Lawrenceburg, Ind., who on being notified that a fire was raging here, boarded the ferry-boat, and arrived in time to put a quietus to all danger, and allay all fear of a further spread of the burning ruins; and replenish several cisterns that were exhausted in subduing the fire. Great praise is due all, and we thank you all. BOONE CO. DISTILLING CO.

Twists and Twinges.

"My brethren," shouted Dr. Talmage one bright autumnal Sunday, "here is a lesson from the cornfield. God has arranged that the ear and the husk shall be parted. Every rheumatic pain is but a thrust of the husking-peg, and every neuralgic twinge is only a twist of the husker."

Possible; but nobody wants to be husked, for all that, and nature teaches us to resist the process Therefore, we accept with gratitude whatever helps us to suppress those very twists and twinges.

From his pleasant home, Greenmont, near Sing Sing, N. Y., M. Alfred Bear, a French gentleman, writes:

"I have suffered almost intolerable torments from rheumatism for many years. Of the numerous remedies which I tried, none benefited me. But PARKER'S TONIC gave me great satisfaction. I certify with pleasure that it restored my health. You are welcome to publish this and use my name.

Messrs HISCOX & CO., call especial attention to the fact that this preparation, which has been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be advertised and sold simply under the name of PARKER'S TONIC. As unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their customers by substituting inferior preparations under the name of ginger, and as ginger is really an unimportant ingredient, we drop the misleading word.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, contain the genuine medicine if the facsimile signature of HISCOX & CO., is at the bottom of the outside wrapper.

AYER'S Ague Cure

IS WARRANTED to cure all cases of malarial disease, such as Fever and Ague, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Bilious Fever, and Liver Complaint. In case of failure, after due trial, dealers are authorized, by our circular of July 1st, 1882, to refund the money.

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists.

ELECTION NOTICE.

BOONE COUNTY COURT.
Regular Term, April 2, 1883.

Numerous voters, (20 in number) of the HAMILTON voting precinct, of this county, having petitioned for the holding of an election on the first Monday in August, 1883, for the purpose of taking the sense of the legal voters therein on the proposition whether or not spirituous, vinous or malt liquors shall be sold therein, it is therefore ordered that the sheriff of Boone County be and he is hereby directed to hold said election at the time and place above directed. Said sheriff in his action herein will be governed by the law authorizing this proceeding. The fees were deposited as required by law.

A copy Attest: M. T. GARNETT, Clerk.

Notice is hereby given that an election will be held on the 6th day of August, 1883, in pursuance of the above order, at the time and place for the purpose mentioned therein. J. R. CLUTTERBUCK, S. B. C.

LUMBER.

Goe. M. Bedinger & Co.,
Erlanger, - - Ky.

We keep constantly on hand all kinds of Lumber, Laths and Shingles. Also Builder's supplies of all kinds.

—Come and see Us.—

may-9-tf

Farm for Sale.

I am offering for sale my farm, lying 8 miles south of Burlington on the Big Bone road, containing 65½ acres, a part of the Mason Crisler farm. The land lays well and is conveniently located, the improvements are a good brick house and all necessary out buildings, and a variety of good fruit. Any person desirous of purchasing a nice farm will do well to come and examine the premises and learn terms. Title good. MRS. OSCAR CRISLER.

Farm for Sale.

A small farm of 11½ acres, on the Covington and Lexington pike, at the top of Willow Run Hill. On it are a commodious house, necessary out buildings and a good orchard. Title good. Call on W. C. Tupman, Sheriff's Office, Covington, Thomas Tupman, Kenton Heights or W. L. Riddell, Burlington.

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE.

GEORGETOWN, Ky.—On Cincinnati Southern R.R.

Located in the healthy and beautiful "Blue Grass" region of Kentucky, 55 session opens September 3rd, 1883. Instruction in all branches of a College education. Experienced Professor. The degree of B. S., A. B. and A. M., conferred. Useful course for those who can spend only one or two years in College. terms low for advantages offered. For catalogue or particulars, address to R. M. DUDLEY, D. D., President.

Hay Conveyors.

We take this method of informing the public that we are MANUFACTURING and SELLING W. M. CONNER'S

HAY CONVEYORS.

Just the thing to use in large barns

BAKER & CRUTCHER,
35-4t Florence X-Roads.

LOOK HERE!

when you go to Lawrenceburg, call on

Winegardner

He has a large assortment of

Wall Paper!

And is daily receiving additions to his stock. Call and examine before purchasing.

Inks, Pens and Stationary constantly on hand.

Headquaters in Lotton House.

Washington & Lee UNIVERSITY, Lexington, Va.

Instruction in the usual academic studies, and in the professional schools of Law and Engineering. Location healthful. Expenses moderate. Next Sept. 20. For catalogues, address "Clerk of the Faculty." G. W. LEE, President.

LAW SCHOOL OF WASHINGTON & LEE UNIVERSITY

GEN. G. W. LEE, President.

Instruction by text-book and printed lectures, with courses of lectures on special subjects by eminent jurists. Tuition and fees, $80 for session of nine months; beginning Sept. 20. For catalogue and full information, address CHAS. A. GRAVES, Prof. of Law, Lexington, Va.

W. J. RICE, CARPENTER & BUILDER, BULLITSVILLE, KY.

Is prepared Raise or Move EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS On Short Notice, And at the Lowest Possible Figures.

38-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS FOR THE LIVER And all Billous Complaints

Safe to take, being purely vegetable; no griping. Price 25 cts. All Druggists.

INCORPORATED UNDER THE LAWS OF MISSOURI.

CENTRAL MEDICAL & SURGICAL INSTITUTE OF ST. LOUIS, MO.

SUCCESSORS TO DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY. OFFICE & ROOMS, NO. 920 LOCUST ST.

CHAS. L. LABARON, M.D., Pres't & Physician in Charge. NELSON CHESMAN, Treas. & Business Manager.

This Institute has ample facilities and an experienced Faculty. While it succeeds to a large business, which has been established for years, it will aim to extend its medical and surgical practice, giving skillful and scientific treatment to CHRONIC DISEASES of the Head, Spine, Lungs and Air Passages, Heart, Liver, Stomach and Bowels, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Consumption and Asthma. BLOOD IMPURITIES, inherited or caused by impure associations, Scrofula, Fever Sores, Ulcers, etc. DEFORMITIES of the Limbs, Spinal Curvature, Wry-Neck, Diseases of the Joints, Piles, Fistula, Rupture, etc. WEAKNESS and wasting diseases in old and young men, also all diseases of the genito-urinary organs. FEMALE irregularities and weaknesses, causing pain in the back or side, etc.

Personal interviews with patients are always preferred. Those unable to visit the Institute will be furnished with blank lists of questions that will aid them in making a full statement of their cases and if not requiring a surgical operation they can be successfully treated by correspondence, and medicines sent by mail or express. To enable as to send proper list of questions applicants should give a brief statement of their trouble.

(The Treasurer of the corporation is of Nelson Chesman & Co., Advertising Agents, and refers to the publisher of this or any other newspaper in the United States or Canada regarding responsibility.)

Consultation at Office or by mail free and invited

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.

TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

VIGOROUS HEALTH FOR MEN

TESTED FOR 5 YEARS

by use in thousands of cases. Founded on scientific medical principles. It has been growing in favor and reputation while its numerous competitors have invariably failed. The direct application of this remedy to the seat of the disease makes its specific influence felt without delay. The natural functions of the human organism are restored. The animating elements of life which have been wasted are given back. The buoyant energy of the brain and muscular system renders the patient cheerful; he gains strength with rapidity.

NERVOUS DEBILITY, organic weakness, and numerous obscure diseases, baffling the skill of best physicians, result for youthful indiscretion, too free indulgence, and over brain work.

Do not temporise while such enemies lurk in your system. Take a remedy that has cured thousands, and does not interfere with you attention to business or cause any pain or inconvenience.

(Send for a Descriptive Pamphlet giving Anatomical Illustrations, which will convince the most sceptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fitted for the duties of life, same as it never affected. Sent free to any one. Remedy sold ONLY by the)

HARRIS REMEDY CO. MF'G. CHEMISTS. 306½ N. 10th. St. ST. LOUIS, MO.

One Month's treatment $3. two months $5. three months $7

NAVAL Agents Wanted for Ancient & Modern BATTLES.

New and graphic Pictorial History of the great Sea fights of the World. By Medical Director SHIPPEN, U. S. N. Address J. C. McCURDY & CO., 180 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard works of character; great variety; Books & Bibles low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere. Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 30 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley.
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U. Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk A. G. DeJarnette, Commonwealths Attorney; N. E. Hawes, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

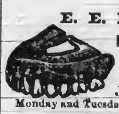
Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. Ed Fowler, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday. Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and L. A. Loder fourth Saturday. Geo. Comar, Constable.

Union—N. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

Beever—W. M. Rouse, Friday after the third Monday, and



E. E. IGOE,
Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun, Ind.

AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

PREPARED BY

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

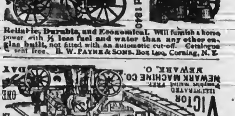
A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON COLOGNE

Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.

Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines. 2 to 100 Horse Power.

Reliable, Durable, and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ⅓ less fuel and water than any other engine built, not fitted with an automatic cut-off. Catalogue sent free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1490, Corning, N. Y.



VICTOR
NEWARK MACHINE CO.
NEWARK, O.
$100 REWARD

W N. STAGE, Gen, Travelling Agt. Louisville, Ky

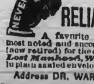
STATE COLLEGE OF KENTUCKY.

UNSECTARIAN. Fall session begins Sept. 12, 1883. Fifteen Professors and Instructors. Scientific, Classical, Agricultural, Normal School and Commercial Courses of Study. Tuition and Matriculation fees, $20 per annum. Board in dormitory, $2.25 per week; in private families, $4.50. 320 students last year. Buildings, apparatus & machinery entirely new. Capacity for 600 students. Range of study wider and expenses less than any college in Kentucky. For catalogue apply to Judge W. B. KINKEAD, or to JAMES K. PATTERSON, Ph. D., President of the College, Lexington, Ky.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST."

ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers

(Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.



FREE! RELIABLE SELF-CURE.

A favorite prescription of one of the most noted and successful specialists in the U. S. (now retired) for the cure of Nervous Debility, Lost Manhood, Weakness and Decay. Sent in plain sealed envelope free. Druggists can fill it.

Address DR. WARD & CO., Louisiana, Mo.

PAYSON'S INDELIBLE INK

Is the BEST. No preparation. Used with any clean pen for marking any fabric. Popular for decorative work on linen. Received Centennial MEDAL & Diploma. Established 50 years. Sold by all Druggists, Stationers & News Agt's.

Local News.

We are authorized to announce JAMES R. CLUTTERBUCK as a candidate for Sheriff at the August election, 1883, subject, however, to the action of the democratic party.

We are authorized to announce Dr. S. S. SCOTT as a candidate to represent Boone county in the next General Assembly, subject however, to the action of the democratic party.

We are authorised to announce N. S. WALTON as a candidate for the legislature, subject to the action of the democratic party.

BASE-BALL.

RED STOCKINGS, of Riverside, O.

AGAINST,

BOONE'S, of Boone County.

At Bullittsville, Saturday, Aug., 4th, Game called at 2:30 sharp.

Rain badly needed,

Locust leaves are dying rapidly.

No applicants for teachers' certificates last Saturday.

Blackberry pickers have been on the alert for several days.

Three deaths in the county near Burlington last Wednesday.

Happy Jack has chartered an ox team to haul voters with next Monday.

Next week we will tell our readers who Boone's next representative will be

Wonder if our Union correspondent has ever seen any snakes about his boots?

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hughes entertained a party of Burlington belles last Friday.

Rev. A. G. Gaines occupied the pulpit in the Universalist Church at this place last Sunday.

Work has commenced on the Lawrenceburg levee. They are going to build a substantial one.

Ayer's Pills are palatable, safe for children, and are more effective than any other known cathartic.

Croquet has broken out again in Burlington. The ring of the mallet accompanies the 9 p. m. breezes now.

Wood Sullivan says he expects to have to cut some of his tobacco in a few days to save it. It is firing badly.

J. W. Kirkpatrick left, Monday morning, for J. H. Hughes' where he will build a large barn. In his absence, W. E. Piper will attend to his undertaking business.

The Southeastern Indiana Agricultural Association failed to raise sufficient means to make their tract ½ of a mile. Aurora ought to have a good tract at her Fair grounds.

This end of the county is pretty well plastered over with posters proclaiming the advent of the Lawrenceburg Fair. O'Brien, the Secretary, championed the bill poster on his tour through Boone.

Mat Coffman, a few days since, added to our agricultural display by bringing to us a mammoth raddish, which measured 17 inches in circumference and 15 inches in length. It had not gone to seed.

Nice tombstones or monuments at the graves of the departed, are marks of respect which should not be neglected. Hurschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., have just what you want. John Beall, of Hebron, is their agent.

Much complaint is being made about the corn and tobacco crops, which at present are said to indicate small returns. Corn has tassled very low, and has not a healthy look. Some tobacco has commenced firing, while some has ceased to grow, but tobacco is a crop that comes out wonderfully in a very short time.

The following is the republican State ticket:

For Governor, Col. T. Z. Morrow; for Lieutenant-Governor, Gen. Speed S. Fry; for Attorney General, Lewis C. Garrigus; for Auditor, Leroy R. Hawthorn; for Treasurer, Capt. Edward Farley; for Superintendent of Public Instructions, Prof. J. P. Pinkerton; for Register of the Land Office; Rev, J. W. Asbury.

The other night Dudley Rouse went into his store when he scented burning sulphur as he thought. He commenced searching the room and upon lifting the lid of a large tin match safe a dense volume of smoke arose from it, when he hastily carried the box and contents to the cistern to extinguish the conflagration; but before water was obtained the smoke all disappeared and there were no signs of fire. Dud says he was badly fooled, but what was the matter with the matches?

Drowned in a Spring.

Last Wednesday afternoon Church Deer, who lives on Gunpowder, was found dead with his head lying in the spring from which his family used water. He had been missing for several hours, and his wife and children had been up and down the creek in search of him, and when she returned to the house she went to the spring to get a bucket of water when she made the horrible discovery. He was subject to fits and it is supposed that he had a fit, fell into the spring and drowned. Esquire Baker held the inquest, and the following verdict was returned:

"We, the jury having heard the evidence and examined the body of Churchwell Deer of Boone county, find that he came to his death by drowning on the 25th inst., he having accidentally fallen in a spring."

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

Mrs. J. M. Grant is visiting her parents in Newport.

Col. M. F. Crigler, of Hebron, made our office a pleasant call last Friday.

Mrs. Dempsey and her son, Grant, are visiting relatives in Ohio.

Mr. Ed Grant and wife, of Carrollton, passed through town Sunday.

R. H. Sandford and family, went to Corinth, last Saturday, to attend the camp meeting.

Dr. J. F. Smith has been on the sick list for several days, but is about able to be out again.

Mrs. W. F. Ashburn, who has been visiting her sister at this place, has returned home.

Mr. S. A. Palmer and family, were visiting his brother at Lawrenceburg, Saturday and Sunday.

Mr. Jimmie Campbell and family, of Covington, were the guests of Mrs. J. O. Campbell, Sunday.

Dr. Cowen and Miss Ella Hastings, of East Bend, were the guests of Samuel Cowon and family, Monday.

Misses Fannie and Sallie Campbell, of Cincinnati, are the guests of Misses Fronie and Jennie Campbell, Omer Perkins and sister, Miss Milly, of Rising Sun, Indiana, were visiting Mrs. R. C. Green, Sunday.

Mr. Sam Hall and sister, Miss Louisa were attending camp meeting at Loveland, Ohio, Sunday and Monday.

Miss Wilson, daughter of Richard Wilson, who lives near town, died of congestion of the brain one day last week. The young lady was sick but a short time.

The Fair Grounds are beginning to glow with the activity of the fair. Norris and Riddell have the following horses in the stables, some of which are in training on the tract every morning:

Allie N., (Almont) a fine red chesnut sorrel stallion, well known and approved in this vicinity; Bird Holabird, red sorrel stallion of good point and reputation, of fine form and handsome appearance; Black Gelding, L. A. Hogan, has many admirers; has fine style and movement; bay mare Bessie G., the property of J. Frank Grant, Petersburg is a promising trotter; Grafton, a dark chesnut four-year-old, is a very promising trotter; Anna T., a fine young Hambletonian mare, three-years-old, is a finely gaited colt of her years; red sorrel gelding, three years, has just begun his training; Joe Davis, a bright bay four-year-old gelding, Bidwell Almont stock, a very promising colt; sorrel mare by Crittenden, six years old. The trainer is Morgan Davis, of Lexington, Ky., in which good school for a horse trainer he seems to have learned his business thoroughly, as the rapid progress of his pupils on the Fair Grounds will testify. —Lawrenceburg Press.

Petersburg came near having a very large fire last Sunday morning at the distillery. About the time the people had donned their Sunday duds the carpenters shop at the mill was discovered to be on fire, and for two hours the citizens battled against the flames which were not controlled till the carpenters shop, a large ice house and about 27,000 staves were destroyed, entailing a loss of about $2,500. A fire engine from Lawrenceburg was sent down on the ferry-boat and arrived in time to render great assistance. The Minnie was cut loose and let float to Aurora, by which time she had gotten up steam, but the fire was under control before she could load the engine and start back. There are various opinions as to how the fire originated. The citizens of Petersburg are loud in their praise of the heroic manner in which the Lawrenceburg fire boys aided in subduing the fire, and recognize in the Aurora company a willingness to fly to the relief of their distressed neighbors. The fire was within 12 ft. of the mill, which was saved only by well directed efforts.

Several of the Petersburg men were slightly burned about their faces and hands.

Base-ball.

The Boone base-ball club, a new aggregation of base ballists, being run by a stock company of the north part of the county, played its initial game at Bullittsville, last Saturday with the Cleves, Ohio, team, a strong amateur club. The Boone boys played almost a faultless game, succeeding in presenting their opponents with nine goose eggs while they made 24 scores. Duncan and Fowler were the battery for the home team. The game was witnessed by a crowd of five hundred enthusiastic spectators who cheered lustily the good playing of both clubs.

The following were the positions of the Boone club: E. W. Duncan, c; Chas. Fowler, p; Jeff Snyder, 1b; C C Hughes, 2b; Wat Brown, 3b; R Gordon, s s; H Quick, r f; C Hankins, c f; Jack Smith, l f.

NOTES.

The boys looked dandy in their new suits.

Instead of base-ball shoes, the president, Dr. Jonas Terrill, furnished each player with a pair of new yarn socks,

Elijah Howard had charge of the turn-stiles.

With a little work the ground can be made as good as any in the city.

Quick was quick enough to make a home run.

N. B.—People in Bullittsville and vicinity must not get sick on Saturday.

The Speedwells and the Burlington Clippers, the strongest amateur nine in Kentucky (?), had a very close contest last Saturday at this place. The Clippers made the remarkable score of 23 runs and 240 errors, while the Speedwells made 40 runs and twice as many errors. Time of game 4½ hours; Col. J. F. Blythe umpire; water very bad

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Hebron.

W. E. Rouse is painting for Willis Clore.

Conner & Clayton sold 19 mowing machines this season.

Frank Clayton is very sick.

Misses Annie and Belle Clayton are visiting at Fairfield, Indiana,

Charlie Davis has returned from Rushville, Indiana.

Rev. Grau will preach at this place next Sunday morning and evening,

Scattersville.

We are having some fine weather at present; a good shower would help things.

Most of our farmers are about up with their work, and are now ready for the first threshing machine that comes around.

We are sorry to learn that old father Mitchell, of Gunpowder, is quite low.

Now is the time to clean your garden and sow your turnips.

John Rue is feeding a small lot of hogs. He says they are looking nice, Look out Conner.

Taylorport.

Morgan Helm is quite ill with malarial fever.

Dr. Smith's new residence will be completed some time in September.

Wm. Sprague has resigned his position as second baseman of our base-ball club.

The latest report from Wall street is to the effect that Wesley Quick will open one of the largest general stores in Boone Co. He will begin operation August 1st.

The authorities have erected a new station house on the corner of 2d and Walnut streets,

Beaver Lick.

The past week has given the farmers a fine opportunity to put up their hay and quite a lot of it has been put up.

Mr. J. C. Hughes, who had a tobacco barn covered with pitch paper recently, found it no good, so he removed the "stuff" and put on a good pine shingle roof.

John S. Moore has a number of hands engaged on the farm of Joe Hughes, sawing and hauling walnut logs to the saw-mill. When Mr. Moore gets through with this lot of timber the Beaver precinct will be about clear of walnut timber.

John S. Johnson, one of our best farmers, was compelled to top several acres of his tobacco, week before last. He says it is a little the earliest topping he has ever done, in a long experience in tobacco culture,

Born—To Eddie Williams and wife, on the 15th, a bouncing baby boy. Ed says "dare vas nodding dot gifs a feller more bleasure den dot very leedle ding."

Bullittsville.

Mr. James W. Howe has been in this neighborhood trying to buy a farm.

Miss Ella Gaines, daughter of Logan Gaines, of Carrollton, is the guest of Miss Fannie Duncan,

Moses Rice and family, of Covington, were the guests of W. J, Rice and wife, Sunday.

A number of young people were handsomely entertained by John S. Gaines and wife Saturday evening.

A. S. Gaines and wife entertained a number of friends from the city Saturday and Sunday,

Miss Lou Kendall has purchased a fine $600 piano.

Thieves have been raiding the bee-hives of James E. Duncan and Edgar Cropper.

Tomatoes, 25 cents a bushel. Blackberries, 50 cents a bucket.

Waterloo,

Health of the neighborhood not very good. Mrs. Jane Kelly has been on the sick list for several weeks. Uncle Tudor Marshall was quite sick a few days last week, but is now convalescent.

Farmers are busy killing weeds in their tobacco patches. Since the dry weather set in crops are beginning to suffer for rain.

Canning and preserving blackberries are the order of the day with our house-keepers.

Mrs. Ellen Rice is visiting her son-in-law, John Humphrey and wife.

Our School Commissioner Snyder says that the Teachers Institute will be held at the Morgan Academy about the last of August. Due notice will be given. Dave has always been a friend to the cause of education and will do all in his power to make it a success.

Mr. John P. Ryle, of Rabbit Hash, has announced himself a candidate for sheriff, at the August election.

Constance.

Blackberries are plentiful indeed. The market is running over, prices ranging from 50 to 75 cents.

Mashes are not uncommon these days. Doc Anderson had his foot badly mashed at the saw mill, but is rapidly improving.

The saw mill is coming out—a plaining mill and a new partner has been attached.

J. T. Heley and wife left last Wednesday for Watertown, Tenn., where they will make their future home.

Geo. Brown has sold his steam thresher to Dr. Bruce Grubbs who has quit making pills and gone to earning bread by the sweat of his brow.

Al, a colored man driving team for J. L. Riley, was attacked on the river hill Wednesday evening and robbed of $34. Another negro came out from the city with him, and when half way up the hill hit him on the head with something knocking him senseless, he then took his money and started for Cincinnati, being unable to cross at Anderson's Ferry he made for fifth street, where he was captured, but being unable to prove anything he was let lose again.

Union.

Leonard Lassing, mine host of Elm Tree, lost a horse valued at $250 from over heating. A month since he lost a very superior mare.

Meadows fine. Small grain making about one-third crop. Corn promises an abundant yield and is measurably clean.

A fine young mule colt of little Bob Adams had a foot cut off in attempting to jump the cutter-bar of a mower.

Many of the blue-grass pastures in this and the Richwood neighborhood are being taken by the Canada thistle.

Many plum orchards are dying because of a superfluous growth along the branches. Will some one name the disease and suggest a preventative or cure. [Cut the trees down that will stop it. The disease is dzrqhkdtaahstsfgpy.—EDS.]

Wanted—72 fat, fine chickens at $1 80 for 12 to be furnished by the RECORDER team.

The Richwood and Big Bone pike is progressing rapidly, and some progress is being made on the Hamilton, Big Bone pike and a pike from Leander Setter's place to intersect the Richwood and Big Bone pike at Elzy Garrison's gate, is under contemplation and subscription,

Larry Judge, last week, found a snake athwart his path, when walking home at night, and thought to kill it by jumping on it. His snake-ship, an immense copperhead, dodged Larry's No. 10 carlisles, and seized him by the pants leg, and persistently held on until it was finally killed. No native snake is so poisonous as the copperhead, and happily there are but few of them in Boone,

L. B. Stephens, a Richwood farmer, found a black snake upon his premises, a few days since, at least 10 feet long and large around in proportion. This is one of what he calls his pet snake, and all tenants and hands on his place are strictly forbidden to kill this one, or indeed, anyother black snake. [This is the worse case of snakes we ever heard of,—EDS.]

Petersburg.

Our old friend Mr. Trummell Passon, who moved to Illinois some time ago, has returned, and is once more a citizen of this place.

Born—To Capt. Fenton and wife, a girl on the 25th. ult.

The Almonts crossed bats with the Rabbit Hash club Saturday week and put it on them to the tune of 38 to 15.

Rev. W. S. Keene preached here last Sunday morning and night to quite a large and attentive audience.

Misses Sue and Ida Smith, Anna Bolen, Lina Loder and Theresa McNeely, accompanied by Chas. Schramm, Bob and John Bolen and Charley McWethy started out for a skiff ride last Monday and landed at Lawrenceburg where they visited several places of business, such as the court-house and—we won't say what their business at the court-house was, as we failed to learn.

Mr. Clarence Gleason, of Rising Sun, was in town Saturday......Miss Mamie Stewart, of East Bend, was the guest of Mrs. Rena McWethy, last week......Mrs. T. B. Mathews, of Covington, is visiting her many friends here......Miss Nannie Whitlock is the guest of L. A. Loder and family......Misses Anna and Lina Loder, of Indianapolis, are spending a few days with relatives here...... John Williams, of Newport, Ky., is the guest of Mrs. Levi Lemons...Jas. Salt, of Covington, who is visiting Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Wade was here last Thursday shaking hands with his many friends.

Rabbit Hash.

Two threshing machines are at work in our midst, and that branch of business will soon be completed. The yield of wheat is generally very light.

Henry Berkshire will begin at once to have an addition built to his house on Maple Hill, and when completed will take up his residence there.

Miss Millie Perkins and neice, of Rising Sun, spent several days last week, with friends in our midst,

The skiff race last Saturday afternoon from Middle Creek to Rising Sun drew an immense crowd to the river on both sides. The first prize was awarded to the Long Bros., of Rising Sun.

Quarterly meeting was held at East Bend M. E. Church, Saturday and Sunday, Rev. Taylor, presiding elder, was present and preached able and interesting sermons. A basket meeting was the order of the day on Sunday, which was attended by an immense crowd, and surpassed anything of the kind ever held here in abundance, variety and delicacies of viands. Among the visitors present were Mrs. Cy Bruce and son, of DeKalb county, Mo.; Richard Ryle and wife, near Burlington; Chas. Baker and wife, near Union; Messrs Snyder and Barrett, near Petersburg and Messrs Leathers and Rich, of Kenton county,

D. W. Calvert, of the News Journal, spent Sunday in our neighborhood.

Plattsburg

Self praise is half slander,

Mrs. J. C. Hensley is in bad health.

The blackberry trade from this place to Aurora is immense.

There are seven masons at work on the abutment of the Woolper bridge.

Tobe Kidwell, of Bellevue, is camping in town, and hauling the stone for the bridge,

A little son of Elijah Parkers, swallowed a pin last Sunday, and for a while it was thought the little fellow would choke to death.

The Jews had a picnic at Splitrock last Sunday, and some of the boys were immersed in beer.

John Thomason, of Aurora, is in town this week.

In Ohio, John Kollick married Sallie Cramp. From cramp to colic is out of the frying pan into the fire.

Ed Botts has sold his fine young Almont horse to J. Frank Grant for $300.

The town folks of sweet Pete pay 5c, for Sunday's Enquirer, and country jakes have to pay 6c. How is this, Allen?

Subscribe for the RECORDER if you want the news from the Woolper valley.

Capt. A. B. Praker was in town last Monday. The Capt. says since the cattle have been moved from the distillery in Petersburg, the flies have taken the town.

Old Aunt Polly Grant, of Bellevue, and Mrs. Lizzie Kelly, of East Bend, are visiting relatives here.

Prof. O. Snyder has bought him a brand new threshing machine, and—we were going to say something else, but then everybody knows that, and w wont say anything about it this time.

Tobacco is looking fine in this part of the county. Ben Grant has 20 acres; Jim Thompson 20 a; Jake Klopp 10 a, and they are all nearly done topping.

A party of Lawrenceburg ghouls come over on this side, every once in awhile, and make themselves very prominent by carrying on in a hilarious manner. They seem to think the Kentuckians have no law or order in their State, and they come over here to take advantage of it and make a show of themselves.

The turnpike fever has broke out in this neighborhood again, and there is strong talk of building a pike from the Aurora ferry through W. H. Grant's to the Woolper pike.

WHAT WE DON'T LIKE TO SEE.

Our school-house go to rack.

The boys seine the creek about every other night.

Our Petersburg man so badly pumeled by a professional.

Members of a church go to a picnic and dance.

So much dry weather when the corn crop depends on an immediate shower.

Bellevue was beaten by the Walton nine Saturday, 28 to 27.

Dr. Ed. Terrill and Mr. Botts, of Petersburg were in town Tuesday!

Joshua Rice, a prosperous farmer from the vicinity of Waterloo, was on our streets Monday.

D. D. Grant, after a lingering illness with consumption, died at his residence near Florence, Monday morning.

A Stroke of Paralysis.

Malinda, wife of Walker Gaines, co'., dropped dead last Wednesday while preparing dinner. It is thought she had a stroke of paralysis, as she had been attacked by it once before.

Some person or persons tried to break into the bar-room at the Boone house last Saturday night. Joe Hitter heard them, and before he could arouse Mr. Crisler, the proprietor, they "smelled a rat" and took their departure.

SCIENCE HILL.
(A SCHOOL for Girls,) Established 1825
By MRS. JULIA A TEVIS,
Located at SHELBYVILLE, KENTUCKY,
Aims to give its pupils the elements of a complete education. Pretense and show are discarded and all the force of a competent faculty directed toward the essentials of Education. Terms reasonable. Send for catalogue.
W. T. POYNTER, D. D., Principal.

J. W. KIRKPATRICK & SON,
—BURLINGTON, KY.—
UNDERTAKERS
—AND—
EMBALMERS,
Will furnish nice Hearse any reasonable distance for $10.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office over Dudley Rouse's Store.

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence,
Burlington, - - Ky.

L. C. NORMAN. H. J.
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW,
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

DR. A. B. HARRY AN

RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES.
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

S. W. TOLIN.
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. A prompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

H. KASSEN & CO,
(Formerly of Covington.)
=Dealers in Fine=
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.
Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
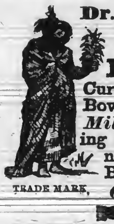
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.
N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.
DIRECTORS.
LEGRAN GAINES, Jeff Utz,
JNO. M. MOODY.

DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS.
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
SALT BY THE BARREL.
R O U S E.
BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS.
The Best of Flour
PATENT & HIGH GRADE
Always on Hand, and cheaper than the cheapest.
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE
A fresh Stock of Garden Seed at
DUDLEY ROUSE'S,

M.L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEED.
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE,
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky,
Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping,
All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE
Petersburg Drug Store,
Where you can find everything in the
Drug line, such as——.
Well call and see and be convinced.
Respectfully, S. C BUCHANAN.



Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S
Indian Blood Syrup
Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood, Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the
BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN,
Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.
TRADE MARK,
AGENTS WANTED.
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St, New York City. Druggists sell it.
D. CLARK JOHNSON:— This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. MCCAMC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '18

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300,000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK.
Covington, Kentucky.
DIRECTORS.
James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green,
J. S. Matson, J. H. Meysman, A. R. Mullen, L. H Dills, F. P. Helm,
L. C. Stephens.
The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.
The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank, dec. 20-6m

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT, mar7-tf73
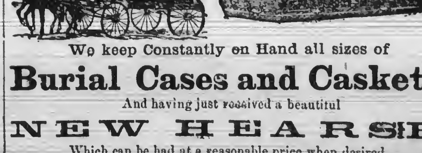
J. W. Talbott.

UNDERTAKING.


We keep Constantly on Hand all sizes of
Burial Cases and Caskets,
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES GUARANTEED LESS THAN CITY PRICES,
DAVIS BROS., - - HEBRON, KY.

KENTUCKY MILITARY INSTITUTE
At Farmdale, P. O., Franklin Co., Ky., six miles from Frankfort. Has the most healthful and beautiful location in the State. [illegible] and able College Faculty. Expenses as [illegible] begins Sept. 3. For Catalogues, etc., address [illegible] COL. R. D. ALLEN, Supt.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL, Publishers.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY

THE BEAUTIFUL CITY.

The Beautiful City! Forever
Its rapturous praises resound,
And we fain would behold it—but never
A glimpse of its glory is found.
We slacken our lips at the tender
White breasts of our mothers to hear
Of its marvelous beauty and splendor;—
We see—but the gleam of a tear!

Yet never the story may tire us—
First graven in symbols of stone—
Rewritten on scrolls of papyrus,
And parchment, and scattered and blown
By the wings of the tongues of all nations,
Like a litter of leaves wildly whirled
Down the rack of a hundred translations,
From the earliest lisp of the world.

We compass the earth and the ocean,
From the Orient's uttermost light,
To where the last ripple in motion
Laps hem of the skirt of the night,—
But The Beautiful City evades us—
No spire of it glints in the sun—
No glad bannered battlement shades us
When all our long journey is done.

Where lies it? We question and listen;
We lean from the mountain, or mast,
And see but dull earth or the glisten
Of seas inconceivably vast:
The dust of the one blurs our vision—
The glare of the other our brain,
Nor city nor island elysian
In all of the land or the main!

We kneel in dim fanes where the thunders
Of organs tumultuous roll,
And the longing heart listens and wonders,
And the eyes look aloft from the soul,
But the chanson grows fainter and fainter,
Swoons wholly away and is dead;
And our eyes only reach where the painter
Has dabbled a saint overhead.

The Beautiful City! O mortal,
Fare hopefully on in thy quest,
Pass down through the green grassy portal
That leads to the valley of rest,
There first passed the One who, in pity
Of all the great yearning, awaits
To point out the Beautiful City
And loosen the trump at the gates.
—James W. Riley, in Indianapolis Journal.

BORN TO GOOD LUCK.

Patrick O'Rafferty was a small farmer in the County Leinster. He and his father before him had been yearly tenants to Squire Ormsby for fifty years on very easy terms.

Patrick—more uneasy than his sire—now and then pestered the Squire for a lease. Then the Squire used to say: "Well, if you make a point of it, I will have the land valued and a lease drawn accordingly." But this iniquitous proposal always shut O'Rafferty's mouth for a time. He was called in the village Paddy Luck; and certainly he had the luck to get into a good many fights and other scrapes, and to get out of them wonderfully. It was he who set the name rolling; his neighbors did but accept it.

He professed certain powers akin to divination, and they were not generally ridiculed, for he was right one time in five, and that was enough, for credulity always forgets the usual and remembers the eccentric.

This worthy had a cow to sell, and drove her into the nearest fair. He put twelve pounds on her and was laughed at. She was dry and she was ugly. "Twelve pounds! Go along wid ye." "Never mind her," was Pat's reply. "I'm Paddy Luck, and it's meself that will sell the baste for twelve pounds, and niver a ha'penny less." This was his proclamation all the morning. In the afternoon he condescended to ten pounds, just to oblige the community. At sunset he managed to get eight pounds, and a bystander told him he was a lucky fellow.

"That is no news, then?" said he. It was dark, and he was tired; his home was twelve Irish miles off. He resolved to sleep in the town. In the meantime he went to a tavern and regaled his purchaser, drank, daffed, danced, showed his money, got drunk, and was robbed by one of the light-fingered gentry who prowl about a fair.

The consequence was that the next time he ordered liquor on a liberal scale—for he was one who treated semicircularly in his cups—he could not find a shilling to pay, and the landlord put him out into the street. He cooled himself at a neighboring pump, and went in search of gratuitous lodgings. The hard-hearted town did not provide these; so he walked out of it into sweeter air. He was not sick nor sorry. Quite the reverse. He congratulated himself on his good luck. "Sure, now," said he, "if I had sold her for twelve pounds, its four pounds I'd be losing by that same bargain."

Some little distance outside the town he found a deserted hovel; there was no door, window nor floor; but the roof was free from holes in one or two places, and there was a dry corner, and a heap of straw in it. Paddy thanked his stars for providing him with so complete and gratuitous a shelter, and immediately burrowed into the straw, and was about to drop asleep when the glimmer of a lantern shot in through the doorway, and voices muttered outside.

Patrick nestled deeper in the straw; he was a trespasser, and it seemed too late and yet too early for the virtues, charity included, to be afoot.

Two men came in with a sack, a spade and a lantern; one of them lifted the lantern up and took a cursory glance over the premises. Patrick, whom the spade had set a-shivering, held his breath. Then the man put the lantern down, and his companion went to work and dug, not a grave, as poor Pat expected, but a big round hole.

This done, they emptied the sack; out rolled and tinkled silver salvers of all sizes, coffee-pots, tea-pots, forks, spoons, brooches, necklaces, rings—a mine of wealth that glowed and glittered in the light of the lantern.

Patrick began to perspire as well as tremble. The men filled in the hole, stamped the earth firmly down, and then lighted their pipes and held a consultation. The question was how to dispose of these valuables. After some differences of opinion they agreed that one Barney was the fence they would invite to the spot, and if he would not give £100 for the spoil they would take it to Dublin. It transpired that Barney lived at some distance, but not too far to come to-morrow evening and inspect the booty. Then, if he would spring to their price, they would go home with him and receive the coin.

"My luck!" thought Patrick. "What need had they to light their pipes and chatter like two old women about such a trifle, without searching the straw first, the omadhauns!" The thieves retired, and lucky Pat went quietly to sleep.

He awoke in broad daylight, and strolled back into the town. He walked jauntily, for, if he had no money, he possessed a secret. He was too Irish and too sly to go to the police office at once; his little game was to try and find out who had been robbed, and what reward they would give.

Meantime he had to breakfast off a stale roll given him by a baker out of charity. About noon he passed through a principal street, and lo! in a silversmith's shop was a notice, written very large:

"FIFTY GUINEAS REWARD!

"Whereas, these premises were broken into last night, and the following valuable property abstracted—"

Then followed an inventory a foot long.

"The above reward will be paid to any person who will give such information as may lead to the conviction of the thieves and the recovery of the stolen goods, or any considerable part thereof."

Patrick walked in and asked to see the proprietor. A little fussy man in a great state of agitation responded to that query.

"Are you in arnest, now, sorr?" asked Pat.

"In earnest! Of course I am."

"What if a dacent poor boy like me was to find you the silver and thieves and all?"

"I'd give you the fifty guineas, and my blessing into the bargain."

"Maybe ye wouldn't like to give me my dinner an' all, by raison I'm just famishing with hunger?"

This proposal raised suspicion, and the proprietor asked his name.

"Patrick O'Rafferty. I'm tenant to Squire Ormsby."

"I know him. Well, Patrick, I suppose you can give me some information. I'll risk the dinner, anyway."

"Ah, well, sorr," said Patrick, "they say 'fling a sprat to catch a whale.' A rump steak and a quart of ale is a favorite repast of mine; when I have had 'em I'll ar'n 'em, by the holy poker!"

"Step into my back parlor, Mr. O'Rafferty," said the silversmith.

He then sent for the rump steak very loud, and for a policeman in a whisper.

The steak came first, and was most welcome. When he had eaten it the modest O'Rafferty asked for a pipe and pot.

Whilst he smoked and sipped calmly the disguised policeman arrived, and was asked to examine him through a little window.

"Does he look like crime?" whispered the silversmith.

"No," said the policeman. "Calf-like innocence and impudence galore."

The jeweler asked O'Rafferty to step out. "Now, sir," said he, "you have had your dinner and I don't grudge it you; but if this is a jest let it end here, for I am in sore trouble, and it would be a heartless thing to play on me."

"Och, hear to him!" cried Patrick, with a whine as doleful as sudden. "Did iver an O'Rafferty make a jest of an honest man's trouble, or ate a male off his losses? But what is a hungry man worth? I could not see how to do your work whilst I was famished, but now my belly is full, and my head fuller, glory be to God!"

"I don't know how it is," said the jeweller, aside to the detective, "he tells me nothing, and yet somehow he gives me confidence. But, Mr. O'Rafferty, do consider: time flies, and I'm no nearer my stolen goods. What is the first step we are to take?"

"The first step was to fill my belly; the next step is to find me—och, murther, it is a rarity!"

"Never mind," said the disgusted officer. "Find you what?"

"A policeman—that isn't a fool."

II.

This was a stinger, and so sudden; his hearers looked rather sheepish at him. It was the policeman who answered:

"If you will come to the station, I will undertake to find you that."

Patrick assented, and on the way they made friends; his companion revealed himself, and forgave the stinger, and Patrick, pleased with his good temper, let him into the plan he had matured while smoking his pipe and appearing to lose time. All Patrick stipulated was that he should be the person in command; and as he alone knew where the booty was, and was manifestly as crafty as a badger, this was cheerfully acceded to. So, an hour before dusk, four fellows that looked like countrymen drove a cart full of straw up to the hovel, and made a big heap by adding it to what was there already.

Then two drove the cart back to the edge of the town, and put the horse up, and rejoined their companions in ambush, all but one, and he hid in a dry ditch opposite. They were all well armed, and the outside watcher had a novel weapon—a powerful blue-light in the shape of a fat squib.

It is a dreary business waiting at night for criminals who may never come at all, or, if they do, may be desperate and fight like madmen or wildcats.

Eight o'clock came—nine—ten—eleven—twelve; the watchers were chilled and stiff, and Patrick sleepy.

One of the policemen whispered him: "They won't come to-night. Are you sure they have not been and taken up the swag?"

"Not sure; but I think not." The policeman growled and muttered something about a mare's-nest.

"Hush!" said another.

"What?" in an agitated whisper.

"Wheels?"

Silence.

They all remained as still as death. The faint wheels, that would have been inaudible by day, rattled nearer and nearer. It was late for a bona-fide traveler to be on the road. Would the wheels pass the hovel?

They came up fast; then they stopped suddenly. To the watchers everything was audible and every sound magnified. When the drag stopped it was like a railroad train pulling up. Men leaped out, and seemed to shake the ground. When three figures hustled into the hovel it sounded like a rush of men. Then came a thrilling question. Would the thieves examine the premises before they looked for the booty? The chances were they would.

Well, they did not. They were in great anxiety, too, but it took the form of hurry. They dug furiously, displayed the booty to Barney all in a hurry, and demanded their price.

"Now, then, £100, or take your last look at 'em."

"One hundred pounds!" whined Barney. "Can't be done."

"Very well; there's no time to bargain."

"I'll give eighty pounds. But I shall lose money by 'em."

"Blarney! They are worth a thousand. Here, Jim, put 'em up: we can do better in Dublin."

Barney whined and remonstrated, but ended by consenting to give the price.

The words were barely out of his mouth when the hovel gleamed with a lurid fire, so vivid and penetrating that every crevice of it and the very cobwebs came out distinct.

The thieves yelled with dismay, and one ran away from the light, slap into danger, and was dazzled again with opening bull's-eyes, and captured like a lamb. The other rushed blindfold at the entrance, but his temple encountered a cold pistol, and a policeman immovable as a statue. He recoiled, and was in that instant of hesitation pinned from behind and handcuffed—click! As for Barney, from whom no fight was expected, he was allowed to clamber up the walls like a mouse in a trap, then tumble down, until the four-wheel they had come in was brought up by Paddy O'Rafferty. Then the thieves were bundled in, and sat each of them between two honest men, and the fence was attached by the wrist to a policeman, who walked him to the same destination; but like Virgil's bull, multa reluctantem, hanging back in vain, and in vain bribing the silent, impenetrable Bobby.

Pat slept at the station, and next morning the jeweler gave him his fifty guineas with a good heart, but omitted the blessing. Patrick whined dismally at this very serious omission, and the worthy little fellow gave it him with glistening eyes. "For," said he, "I'll own now the loss would have ruined me. I find by my books they cost me £1,300." So then he blessed him solemnly, and Pat went home rejoicing. "I'll have more luck than ever now," said he. "I'll have all sorts of luck—good, bad and indifferent."

When he got home he told the story inaccurately, and like a monomaniac; that is to say, he suppressed all the fortitude and sagacity he had shown. These were qualities he possessed, so he thought nothing of them.

Luck and divination were what he prided himself on. His version ran thus: He had the luck not to sell his cow till nightfall, the still better luck to be robbed of his money and compelled to sleep in the neighborhood. Then, thanks to his superlative luck, the Queen's jeweler had been robbed of silver salvers the size of the harvest-moon, two-gallon tea-pots, pearls like hazelnuts, and diamonds as big as broad beans, and seeing no other way to recover them, and hearing that the wise man of Ganachee was in the town, had given him a good dinner and his pipe, and begged him to use all his powers as a seer; of all which the upshot was that he had put the police on the right track, and recovered the booty, and caged the thieves, and marched home with the reward.

In telling this romance he was careful to take out the fifty sovereigns and jingle them, and this musical appeal to the senses so overpowered the understandings of his neighbors that they swallowed the wondrous tale like spring water.

After this a few were bold enough to resist his pretentions to luck and divination. He was often consulted, especially about missing property, and as he now and then guessed right, and sometimes had taken the precaution to hide the property himself, which materially increased his chances of finding it, passed for a seer.

One fine day Squire Ormsby learned to his dismay that his pantry had been broken into and a mess of valuable plate taken. Mr. Ormsby was much distressed, not only on account of the value but the length of time certain pieces had been in his family. He distrusted the police and publicity in these cases, and his wife prevailed on him to send for Patrick O'Rafferty.

That worthy came and heard the story. He looked at the lady and gentleman, and his self-deception began to ooze out of him. To humbug his humble neighbors was not difficult nor dangerous, but to deceive and then undeceive and disappoint his landlord was quite another matter.

He put on humility, and said this was a matter beyond him entirely. Then the Squire was angry, and said bitterly: "No doubt he would rather oblige his neighbors, or a shopkeeper who was a stranger to him, than the man whose land had fed him and his for fifty years." He was proceeding in the same strain when poor Pat, with that dismal whine the merry soul was subject to occasionally, implored him not to murder him entirely with hard words; he would do his best.

"No man can do more," said Mr. Ormsby. "Now how will you proceed? Can we render you any assistance?"

Patrick said, humbly and in a downcast way, he would like to see the place where the thieves got in.

He was taken to the pantry window, and examined it inside and out, and all the servants peeped at him.

"What next?" asked the Squire.

Then Patrick inwardly resolved to get a good dinner out of this business, however humiliating the end of it might be. "Sorr," said he, "ye'll have to give me a room all to myself, and a rump-steak and onions; and after that your servants must bring me three pipes and three pints of home-brewed ale. Brewers' ale hasn't the same spiritual effect on a seer's mind."

The order was given, and set the kitchen on fire with curiosity. Some disbelieved his powers, but more believed them, and cited the jeweler's business and other examples.

When the first pipe and pint were to go to him a discussion took place between the magnates of the kitchen who should take it up. At last the butler and the housekeeper insisted on the footman taking it. Accordingly he did so.

Meantime Patrick sat in state digesting the good food. He began to feel a physical complacency, and to defy the future; he only regretted that he had confined his demand to one dinner and three pots. To him in this frame of mind entered the footman with pipe and pint of ale as clear as Maderia.

Says Patrick, looking at the pipe, "This is the first of 'em."

The footman put the things down rather hurriedly and vanished.

"Humph," said Pat to himself, "you don't seem to care for my company."

He slipped and smoked, and his mind worked.

The footman went to the butler with a scared face, and said: "I won't go near him again; he said I was one."

"Nonsense!" said the butler; "I'll take up the next."

He did so. Patrick gazed in his face, took the pipe and said, sotto voce:

"This is the second;" then, very regretfully? "Only one more to come."

The butler went away much discomposed, and told the housekeeper.

"I can't believe it," said she. "Anyway, I'll know the worst."

So in due course she took up the third pint and pipe, and wore propitiatory smiles.

"This is the last of 'em," said Patrick, solemnly, and looked at the glass.

The housekeeper went down all in a flutter. "We are found out, we are ruined," said she. "There is nothing to be done now but——. Yes, there is; we must buy him, or put the comether on him before he sees the master."

Patrick was half dozing over his last pipe when he heard a rustle and a commotion, and lo! three culprits on their knees to him. With that instinctive sagacity which was his one real gift—so he underrated it—he said, with a twinkling eye:

"Och, thin, you've come to make a clane hrist of it, the three Chrischin vartues and haythen graces that ye are. You may save yourselves the throuble. Sure I know all about it."

"We see you do. Y'nre wiser than Solomon," said the housekeeper. "But sure ye wouldn't abuse your wisdom to ruin three poor bodies like us!"

"Poor!" cried Patrick. "Is it poor ye call yourselves? Ye ate and drink like fighting cocks; y'are clothed in silk and plush and broadcloth, and your wages is all pocket-money and pin-money. Yet ye must rob the man that feeds and clothes ye."

"It is true! it is true!" cried the butler.

"He spakes like a priest," said the woman. "Oh, alanna! don't be hard on us: it is all the devil's doings; he timpted us. Oh! oh! oh!"

"Whisht, now, and spake ," said Patrick, roughly. "Is it melted?"

"It is not."

"Can you lay hands on it?"

"We can, every stiver of it. We intinded to put it back."

"That's a lie," said Patrick, firmly, but not in the least reproachfully. "Now look at me, the whole clan of ye, male and faymale. Which would you rather do—help me find the gimcracks, every article of 'em, or be lagged and scragged and stretched on a gibbet and such like iligant diversions?"

They snatched eagerly at the plank of safety held out to them, and from that minute acted under Mr. O'Rafferty's orders.

"Fetch me another pint," was his first behest.

"Ay, a dozen, if ye'll do us the honor to drink it."

"To the dickens wid your blarney! Now, tell the master I'm at his sarvice."

"Oh, murder! what will become of us? Would you tell him, after all?"

"Ye omadhauns, can't ye listen at the dure and hear what I tell him?"

With this understanding Squire Ormsby was ushered in, all expectation.

"Yer honer," said Patrick, "I think the power is laving me. I am only able to see the half of it. Now, if you plaze, would you like to catch the thieves and lose the silver, or to find the silver and not find the thieves?"

"Why, the silver, to be sure."

"Then you and my lady must go to mass to-morrow morning, and when you come back we will look for the silver and may be, if we find it, your honnor will give me that little bit of a lease."

"One thing at a time, Pat; you haven't found the silver yet."

At nine o'clock next morning Mr. and Mrs. Ormsby returned from mass, and found O'Rafferty waiting for them at their door. He had a long walking-stick with a shining knob, and informed them, very solemnly, that the priest had sprinkled it for him with holy water.

Thus armed, he commenced the search. He penetrated into outhouses, and applied his stick to chimneys, and fagots, and cold ovens, and all possible places. No luck.

Then he proceeded to the stable-yard and searched every corner; then into the shrubbery; then into the tool-house. No luck. Then on to the lawn. By this time there were about thirty at his heels.

Disgusted at this fruitless search, Patrick apostrophized his stick: "Bad cess to you, y'are only good to burn. Ye kape turning away from every place; but ye don't turn to anything whatever. Stop a bit! Oh, holy Moses! what is this?"

As he spoke, the stick seemed to rise and point like a gun. Patrick marched in the direction indicated, and after a while seemed to be forced by the stick into a run. He began to shout excitedly, and they all ran after him. He ran full tilt against a dismounted water barrel, and the end of the stick struck it with such impetus that it knocked the barrel over, then flew out of Patrick's hand to the right, who himself made a spring the other way, and stood glaring with all the rest at the glittering objects that strewed the lawn, neither more nor less than the missing plate.

Shouts and screams of delight. Everybody shaking hands with Patrick, who, being a consummate actor, seemed dazzled and mystified, as one who had succeeded far beyond his expectations.

To make a long story short, they all settled it in their minds that the thieves had been alarmed and hidden the plate for a time, intending to return and fetch it away.

Mr. Ormsby took the seer into his study and gave him a piece of paper stating that for a great service rendered to him by Patrick O'Rafferty he had, in the name of him and his, promised him undisturbed possession of the farm so long as he or his should farm it themselves and pay the present rent.

Pat's modesty vanished at the Squire's gate; he bragged up and down the village, and henceforth nobody disputed his seership in those parts.

But one day the Sassenach came down with his cold incredulty.

A neighbor's estate, mortgaged up to the eyes, was sold under the hammer, and Sir Henry Steele bought it, and laid some of it down in grass. He was a breeder of stock. He marked out a park wall, and did not include a certain little orchard and a triangular plot. The seer observed, and applied for them. Sir Henry, who did his own business, received the application, noted it down, and asked him for a reference. He gave Squire Ormsby.

"I will make inquiries," said Sir Henry. "Good morning."

He knew Ormsby in London, and when he became his neighbor the Irish Gentleman was all hospitality. One day Sir Henry told him of O'Rafferty's application, and asked about him.

"Oh," said Ormsby, "that is our seer."

"Your what?"

"Our wise man, our diviner of secrets; and some wonderful things he has done."

He then related the loss of his plate, and its supernatural recovery.

The Sassenach listened with a cold, incredulous eye and a sardonic grin.

Then the Irishmen got hot and accumulated examples.

Then the Sassenach, with the obstinacy of his race, said he would put these pretensions to the test. He had picked out of the various narratives that this seer was fond of a good dinner and pretended it tended to enlighten his mind; so he laid his trap accordingly.

At his request Patrick was informed that next Tuesday, at one o'clock, if he chose to submit to a fair test of his divining powers, the parcel of land he had asked for should be let to him on easy terms.

Patrick assented jauntily. But in his secret soul he felt uneasy at having to encounter this Sassenach gentleman. Sir Henry was the fortunate possessor of what Pat was pleased to call "a nasty glittering eye," and over that eye Pat doubted his ability to draw the wool as he had done over Celtic orbs.

However, he came up to the scratch like a man. After all, there was nothing to lose this time, and he vowed to submit to no test that was not preceded by a good dinner. He was ushered into Sir Henry Steele's study, and there he found that gentleman and Mr. Ormsby. One comfort, there was a cloth laid, and several silver dishes on the hobs and in the fender.

"Well, Mr. O'Rafferty," said the host, "I believe you like a good dinner?"

"Thrue for you, sorr," said Pat.

"Well, then, we can combine business with pleasure; you shall have a good dinner."

"Long life to your honor!"

"I cooked it for you myself."

"God bless your honor for your condescinsion."

"You are to eat the dinner first, and then just tell me what the meat is, and the parcel of land is yours on easy terms."

Patrick's confidence rose. "Sure, this, it is a fair bargain," said he.

The dishes were uncovered. There were vegetables cooked most deliciously; the meat was a chef-d'œuvre—a sort of rich ragout done to a turn, and so fragrant that the very odor made the mouth water.

Patrick seated himself, helped himself and took a mouthful; that mouthful had a double effect. He realized in one and the same moment that this was a more heavenly compound than he had ever expected to taste upon earth, and that he could not and never should divine what bird or beast he was eating. He looked for the bones; there were none. He yielded himself to desperate enjoyment. When he had nearly cleaned the plate he said that even the best-cooked meat was none the worse for a quart of good ale to wash it down.

Sir Henry Steele rang a bell and ordered a quart of ale.

Patrick enjoyed this, too, and did not hurry; he felt it was his last dinner in that house, as well as his first.

The gentlemen watched him and gave him time. But at last Ormsby said:

"Well, Patrick——"

Now Patrick, whilst he sipped, had been asking himself what line he had better take; and he had come to a conclusion creditable to that sagacity and knowledge of human nature he really possessed and underrated accordingly. He would compliment the gentlemen on their superior wisdom, and own he could not throw dust in such eyes as theirs; then he would beg them not to make his humble neighbors as wise as they were, but let him still pass for a wise man in the parish, whilst they laughed in their superior sleeves. To carry out this he impregnated his brazen features with a world of comic humility.

"And," said he, in cajoling accents, "ah, your honors, the old fox made many a turn, but the dogs were too meay for him at last."

What more of self-depreciation and cajolery he would have added is not known, for Sir Henry Steele broke in loudly: "Good heavens! Well, he is an extraordinary man. It was an old dog-fox I cooked for him."

"Didn't I tell you?" cried Ormsby, delighted at the success of his countryman.

"Well, sir," said Sir Henry, whose emotions seldom lasted long, "a bargain's a bargain. I let you the orchard and field for—let me see—you must bring me a stoat, a weasel and a polecat every year. I mean to get up the game."

Mr. O'Rafferty first stared stupidly, then winked cunningly, then blandly absorbed laudation and land; then retired, invoking solemn blessings; then, being outside, executed a fandango, and went home on wing; from that hour the village could not hold him. His speech was of accumulating farms at peppercorn rents till a slice of the county should be his. To hear him, he could see through a deal-board, and luck was his monopoly. He began to be envied, and was on the way to be hated, when, confiding in his star, he married Norah Blake, a beautiful girl, but a most notorious vixen.

Then the unlucky ones forgave him a great deal; for sure wouldn't Norah revenge them? Alas! the traitress fell in love with her husband after marriage, and let him mold her into a sort of angelic duck.

This was the climax. So Paddy Luck is now numbered amongst the lasting institutions of ould Ireland (if any).

May he live till the skirts of his coat knock his brains out, and him dancing an Irish fling to the "wind that shakes the barley!" —Harper's Magazine.

Getting Furs Ready.

Manufacturers of fur garments are making up sacques, dolmans, muffs, tippets and other articles for the fall and winter trade, which begins in August and lasts until February. There are not half a dozen houses making any quantity in New York. The head of one of the largest houses in the trade said that only from six to eight thousand seal skin sacques were made in New York, and the number for the whole country was from twelve to fourteen thousand. There is an ample supply of sealskin, and all other skins as well, this year, so sealskin sacques will not be higher in price than usual this fall. They will be worth from $125 to $250, according to the style and quality. A sacque can be turned out of a shop in less than two days, and an endless amount of work is put on in that time. One who sees the back of the skin is apt to think the body is all made up of little pieces. That is not the case, although the skins have often to be patched to make them the required size. The slits are where imperfections are cut out of the skin, and frequently they are made to lengthen out the skin while decreasing the width. All this requires great dexterity. The skin has to be cut in such a way that the fur will join nicely when sewed together and not show the existence of the seam. The workmen ply their knives rapidly, and when they get through the skin looks more like a lot of holes than anything else. Skilled women sew up the slits; the skin is saturated and nailed on a board and then cut for the garment. It takes four or five skins to make a sacque. With good care and usage, a sacque will last four or five seasons.

Moths are the destroyers. Furriers say they have seen every particle of fur, where moths had been at work, drop off when a sacque was taken from its resting-place, leaving the skin bare. In the shops the furs are constantly beaten to keep the moths from destroying them. A man takes a long, limber stick in each hand and beats them with vigor. In beating muffs he shows much adeptness. Under the beating the muff rolls back and forth, and the sharp blows make a clatter like boys pounding on a barrel with sticks. The natural color of seal is light brown after the hair is pulled out of the fur. The fur is dyed to give it the rich dark-brown color. The dying is done in England mainly, where the greatest perfection is attained and the facilities are adequate. Trouble is experienced in matching skins in color exactly. Mink will be the popular lining for sacques and dolmans this season, the dealers say. Ermine and squirrel skins also. Fox-hair trimmings are said to be out of date. Imitations of seal are made of muskrat, rabbit and mink skins, but they can be easily detected. In Europe skunk skins are much worn in muffs and trimmings, but not here. Beaver is made up in this country, to a large extent, into muffs, tippets and trimmings. Otter is to be worn by children. In Canada beaver sacques are sold largely. They are considered too heavy in the United States. Cat, dog, wolf and nutria skins are used for robes.—N. Y. Times.

"Mind Your Business."

An anecdote is told of a clockmaker who, being employed to construct a new clock for the Temple, London, was desirous of a suitable motto to be placed under the clock. One day he applied to the benchers of the Temple for the motto, while they were at dinner, and one of them annoyed at the unseasonable interruption, testily replied: "Go about your business." Understanding this to be the selected motto, the clockmaker inscribed it under the clock, where it still remains to admonish all to attend to business.

The Continental cent, usually known as the Franklin cent, because its legend was proposed by him, gives the same advice in the words: "Mind your business." This is frequently misquoted and corrupted to "Mind our own business," which, instead of a counsel to business is a rebuke to meddling. Franklin's advice was an admonition to perform duty and to care for the concerns which make life successful. It contains the very kernel of all business wisdom. A homely adage is that "It is better to drive your business than to let your business drive you," better to be a master and manager of your business than to be its slave and victim. This is the essence of the Franklin cent motto, and, whether acknowledged in so many words or not, it is the actuating principle and the underlying cause of all business management and business success.—Scientific American.

Was Into Oil.

"Now, then, what is it?" queried a New York broker as his daughter came tripping into the library.

"Father, Charles Henry has asked me to marry him."

"He has, eh? Wants to marry you, eh? Well, what are his prospects?"

"He has $40,000 up on a deal in oil. What answer shall I give him?"

"None at all, my love—not just now. Wait and see how oil goes. If it goes booming, answer him yes. If it drops tell him that you have made up your mind that you can never be happy except with a husband who deals in railroad stocks. Never put yourself in a condition to be closed out.—Wall Street News.

—Prof. John Stuart Blackie has enlisted with all his soul in behalf of the Highland crofters. At a recent meeting in London he said that he had resigned the Greek chair at Edinburgh that he might do something better, and he had found something immeasurably better in aiding the crofters. "Let Greek die," he cried; "Let Hebrew die; let learning go to the dogs; but let the human beings live, and let human brotherhood and charity live."

—Jay Gould—now here; we know there is such a man, we are confident we have seen his name in print somewhere about something; he was one of the injured in the Brooklyn bridge disaster or got squeezed or squeezed somebody; we don't recall how it is just now, but he's a newspaper correspondent or play actor or something. We know there is such a man, but we don't just exactly get on to his identity.—Burlington Hawkeye.

—Two youths, Rutschi and Ehrsam, pupils in the superior cantonal school of Aarau, Switzerland, and fast friends, spent an evening in a tavern, departed amicably, and were never seen alive again. The next morning they were found lying side by side, dead, each with a bullet in his head. It is supposed that, by arrangement, one first shot the other and then himself, but as to their motive nothing is known.

—Hidesabro Saze, a Cornell University graduate of last year, has returned to Japan, his native country, after marrying a young lady of Indianapolis, and is employed at a salary of $13,000 a year by the Japanese Government in its Agricultural Department.

—The Monroe (Ga.) Advertiser reports that people in that section have begun to dig pits near their residences for hiding places in case of a visitation by tornadoes.

If you experience bad taste in mouth, sallowness or yellow color of skin, feel stupid and drowsy, appetite unsteady, frequent headache or dizziness, you are "bilious," and nothing will arouse your liver to action and strengthen up your system equal to Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." By druggists.

Some men are known by the company they—can't get into.

A Bonanza Mine

of health is to be found in Dr. R. V. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," to the merits of which as a remedy for female weakness and kindred affections thousands testify.

"I have struck bed rock," said the tired baby when they put him in the cradle.

"Enjoy Your Life"

is good philosophy, but to do so you must have health. If bilious and constipated, or blood is out of order, use Dr. Pierce's "Pleasant Purgative Pellets," which are mild, yet certain in their operation. Of all druggists.

The farmer should be a man able to talk on anything that comes up.—N. O. Picayune.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, July 27, 1883.

LIVESTOCK—Cattle—common	$2 25	@ 3 25
Choice butchers	4 50	@ 5 25
HOGS—Common	4 60	@ 5 25
Good packers	5 25	@ 5 70
SHEEP	3 75	@ 4 50
FLOUR—Family	5 25	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—Long berry red	1 12	@
No. 2 winter red	1 08	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	51¼	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed	35½	@
Rye—No. 2	56	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	10 50	@11 50
HEMP—Double dressed	8	@ 9
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	16 00	@
Lard—Steam	8-85	@ 8-60
BUTTER—Western Reserve	30	@ 32
Prime Creamery	25	@ 28
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per bar. from store	2 15	@ 2 50
Apples, primo, per barrel	4 00	@ 4 50
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 40	@ 4 00
Good to choice	4 50	@ 6 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 14¼	@ 1 14½
No. 1 white	1 15¾	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	62½	@
Oats—mixed	39	@ 43
PORK—Mess	16 00	@
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$4 50	@ 4 25
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 07	@
Corn—No. 2	52¼	@
Oats—No. 2	34¼	@
Rye	56½	@
PORK—Mess	14 10	@15 00
LARD—Steam	9-07½	@ 9-10
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 25	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 15¾	@ 1 16
Corn—mixed	60½	@ 60¾
Oats—mixed	41	@ 44
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	16 50	@
Lard—Refined	11	@
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—A No. 1	$4 25	@ 4 50
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red, new	1 00	@ 1 03
Corn—mixed	52	@
Oats—mixed	35½	@
PORK—MESS	15 75	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 red new	$1 05	@
CORN—mixed	49	@
OATS—mixed	33½	@
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	2 75	@ 4 50
Shipping cattle	5 25	@ 6 50

The reason we are proud of summer is because pride goeth before a fall.—N. Y. Post.

Hay-Fever. My brother Myron and myself were both cured of Catarrh and Hay-Fever last July and August by Ely's Cream Balm. Up to Dec. 28 these troubles have not returned. Gabriel Ferris, Spencer, N. Y.

Why do white sheep eat more than black sheep? Because there are more of them.

Lewis, Iowa.—Dr. M. J. Davis says: "Brown's Iron Bitters give the best of satisfaction to those who use it."

Stands to reason—A debater who won't sit down.

Garfield, Iowa.—Dr. A. T. Hensk says: "Once using Brown's Iron Bitters proves its superiority over all other tonic preparations."

When credulity comes from the heart it does no harm to the intellect.—Joubert.

Hay-Fever. I was afflicted for twenty years with Hay-Fever. I used Ely's Cream Balm with favorable results, and can recommend it to all. Robert W. Townley, (ex-Mayor) Elizabeth, N. J.

When is a man like a brick? When he is hard pressed.—Baltimore Every Saturday.

THE DANGER OF OVER-EXERTION.

A Stalwart Man Becomes Weaker Than a Child and Then Recovers His Former Strength.

(Waterloo, N. Y., Observer.)

In these days of rowing giants and athletic heroes fine physical development is more observed than ever before since the time of the Athenian games. A man who shows the elements of physical power is looked up to far more than in the days of our ancestors possibly because there are fewer specimens of well-developed manhood than then. An emissary of this paper met a magnificent specimen of physical power a few days since in the person of Dr. A. W. McNames, of Waterloo. His muscles, which showed unusual development, were as hard as wood. At his request the writer sought to pinch him in the arms or legs, but found it wholly impossible. A realization of what is meant by an iron man was fully made manifest.

"Have you always been so stalwart as this?" inquired the news gatherer.

"Not by any means," was the reply. "When a young man I was always strong and active and felt that I could accomplish anything. This feeling so took possession of me on one occasion that I attempted to lift a box which four men found it impossible to move. I succeeded in placing it on the wagon, but in two minutes from that time I was unconscious and remained so for hours and when I recovered consciousness I vomited a large quantity of blood. From that day I began to grow weak and sickly. I believed that I had suffered some internal injury and experienced a general debility, which seemed similar to the effects produced by malaria. My back was very weak. I had no appetite, and at times loathed food. My lips were parched and cracked. My head felt as though it were entirely open at the top and it pained me on the side intensely. In six weeks' time I had fallen away from 208 pounds to less than 170. I was in a most wretched condition. I was completely discouraged."

"What did the doctors say about you?"

"Almost everything. I consulted no less than six different physicians. They all treated me and none did me any good. At that time I was suffering intensely. I could not sit upright but was obliged to rest in a cramped, uneasy position. I was compelled to urinate every five minutes and I passed over three quarts every day. I was not living, I was existing.

"One night (how well I remember it!) my wife had put the children all in bed when the feeling came over me that I should live but a very short time. My wife and I talked matters all over and I gave the minutest directions as to what she should do after I was gone. I was not in a flighty condition by any means, for the doctor, on leaving town the day following, bade me good-bye, saying he never expected to see me again, for I was suffering with Bright's disease of the kidneys in its last stages. Within the next few days more than twenty friends came to bid me good-bye. Among the number was Dr. John L. Clark. He asked me what I had used in the way of medicines. I told him. He then recommended a remedy of which I had heard much, but about which I was very skeptical. If faith were an element of power it certainly was lacking in my case."

"And so you did not try it?"

"On the contrary, I did try it, and to my surprise it seemed to go to just the spot. Indeed, it was the most palatable thing I had taken into my mouth for months. I relished it."

"And did it cure you?"

"Do I look as if it did?"

"Yes, indeed. What was it?"

"Warner's Safe Cure."

"A proprietary medicine!"

"Of course. What of that? I suppose I once had as great a prejudice against advertised medicines as any one could have. When I was studying medicine at Ann Arbor, Michigan, I used to vow with the rest of the class that we would fight all such remedies at all times. When a man comes down to the last hour, however, and bids his wife and friends good-bye, such bigoted prejudices as these all vanish, I can assure you, and any remedy that can cure is gladly welcomed."

"And how have you been since then?"

"As well—or better, than before."

"Do you still exert your strength?"

"Certainly. But I do not over-exert, as formerly. My strength is increasing every day, and my health is number one. I know that my life was saved by Warner's Safe Cure, and I believe it is the best medicine that was ever compounded by any chemist or physician. I am willing the doctors should sneer at me for such a statement if they choose, but I have proven its truth, and am prepared to stand by it."

The above experience should be of great value to all who are suffering. It shows the deceptive nature of this terrible malady; that all symptoms are common to it and that there is but one way by which it can be absolutely avoided.

The distance between New York and Brooklyn is only a span.

"Buchu-paiba." Complete cure, all annoying Kidney Diseases, irritation. $1.

Wells' "Rough on Corns." 15c. Ask for it. Complete, permanent cure. Corns, bunions.

25c. buys a pair of Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners and make a boot or shoe last twice as long.

"Rough on Rats." Clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs, ants, vermin. 15c.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer

Is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which Sulphur, Sugar of Lead and Nitrate of Silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. John D. Park & Sons, Wholesale Agents, Cincinnati, Ohio, and C. N. Crittenton, New York.

"Mother Swan's Worm Syrup," for feverishness, restlessness, worms. Tasteless.

Glenn's Sulphur Soap

Is a common remedy for skin diseases. Hill's Hair Dye, black or brown, 50c.

Skinny Men. "Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia.

Liver disease, headache, and constipation, caused by bad digestion, quickly cured by Brown's Iron Bitters.

"Anytime" is the name of a post-office in Kentucky.

NO REST DAY OR NIGHT.

In the fall of 1873 my sufferings were terrible. I was swollen to such proportions that I feared my limbs would burst. I had the best medical talent obtainable, and at the worst stage of my illness, when my husband and many friends had given me up to die, the late Dr. John Woodbury made a thorough examination of my water, and pronounced my case acute kidney disease, bordering on Bright's disease, and accompanied by gravel, and recommended the immediate use of Hunt's Remedy. At this time I was suffering most terrible pain in my back, limbs and head, and could find no rest day or night for weeks, and I was growing weaker daily until this kind physician ordered me to take Hunt's Remedy. Before taking half of one bottle I commenced to improve, and after taking six bottles was entirely cured. This was nearly eight years ago, and I have had no return of the disease. I have recommended Hunt's Remedy to others in similar cases, and it has never failed to cure. I have also used it for sick headache, and found in it a sure relief. I think it the best medicine made, and cheerfully recommend it to all. MRS. W. H. STILSON

No. 16 Tyler St., Boston, Mass.

April 18, 1883.

A WELL-KNOWN MAN.

Hunt's Remedy having been recommended to me for kidney and liver complaints, I purchased some at the "People's Drug Store" and used it in my family, and found it to be a very valuable medicine, and I gladly recommend it highly to my friends, knowing it to be beneficial to those troubled with kidney or liver disease. Respectfully yours,

ELISHA NOYSE.

April 14, 1883. 63 G St., South Boston, Mass.

A LAST MANUFACTURER.

I have used Hunt's Remedy for the kidney complaint, and, having been fully restored to health by its use, I can testify to its value.

Daily I recommend it to some one of my friends, all of whom I know have been benefited by its use.

Gratefully, GEO. P. COX.

MALDEN, MASS., April 23, 1883.

CATARRH ELY'S CREAM BALM

ELY'S CREAM BALM CURES COLD IN HEAD CATARRH ROSE-COLD HAY-FEVER DEAFNESS HEADACHE PRICE 50 CENTS ELY'S CREAM BALM CO. OWEGO N.Y. U.S.A.

HAY-FEVER

will, when applied by the finger into the nostrils, be absorbed, effectually cleansing the nasal passages of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membranal linings of the head from additional colds; completely heals the sores and restores the sense of taste and smell. Beneficial results are realized by a few applications. A thorough treatment will cure. Unequaled for cold in the head. Agreeable to use. Send for circular. 50 cents a package, by mail or at druggists.

ELY'S CREAM BALM CO., Owego, N. Y.

"DRINK FAIR, BETSEY, WOTEVER YOU DO."
—Martin Chuzzlewit.

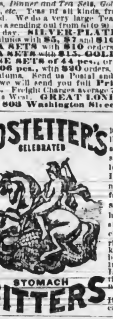
TEA CLUB ORDERS.

We have made a specialty for five years of giving away as Premiums, to those who get up clubs for our goods, Dinner and Tea Sets, Gold Band Sets, Silverware, etc. Teas of all kinds, from 30 to 75 cents per pound. We do a very large Tea and Coffee business, besides sending out from 60 to 90 CLUB ORDERS each day. SILVER-PLATED CASTERS as Premiums with $5, $7 and $10 orders. WHITE TEA SETS with $10 orders. DECORATED TEA SETS with $13. GOLD BAND or MOSS ROSE SETS of 44 pcs., or DINNER SETS, of 106 pcs., with $20 orders, and a Host of other Premiums. Send us Postal and mention this Paper, and we will send you full Price and Premium List. Freight Charges average 75 cents per 100 lbs. to points West. GREAT LONDON TEA CO., 803 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.



HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

No time should be lost if the stomach, liver and bowels are affected, to adopt the sure remedy, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Diseases of the organs named beget others far more serious, and a delay is therefore hazardous. Dyspepsia, liver complaint, chills and fever, early rheumatic twinges, kidney weakness, bring serious bodily trouble if trifled with. Lose no time in using this effective and safe medicine. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

Grocers and Dealers

-IN-

TEA AND COFFEE.

Send for Wholesale Price List of our goods. Lowest possible prices. GREAT LONDON TEA CO., 801 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

ST. PATRICK'S SALVE

TRY IT USE IT

It relieves at once Burns, Piles, Chapped Hands or Lips, Corns, Bunions, Scalds, Bruises, Soreness of feet, hands, eyes, etc.; Itching from any cause. 25c. Ask your druggist, or send to 92 Fulton Street, N. Y.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST."

ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers

(Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.

25 CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. 100

Lady Agents can secure permanent employment and good salary selling Queen City Skirt and Stocking Supporters, etc. Sample outfit Free. Address Queen City Suspender Co., Cincinnati, O.

PATENTS NO PATENT, NO PAY! N. W. FITZGERALD Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Full instructions and New Book on Patents sent free.

WHEAT GERMAN AMBER. FIFTY bushels to acre. Send for testimonials to PHIL CHEW, St. Louis, Mo.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

PENSIONS speedily procured; delayed cases completed; Lost Horse claims collected; no advance fee; experience 18 years; write for circular; best references. A. W. McCormick, Pike's B'd'g, Cincin'i, O.

BOYS GET RICH. Send Postal to COVERT BROS., 12 Prospect, CLEVELAND, O.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co. Augusta, Me.

EDUCATIONAL.

EDUCATIONAL.

1883. The NEW CALENDAR of the NEW ENGLAND 1884

CONSERVATORY of MUSIC

Beautifully illustrated, 64 pages. SENT FREE to yourself and musical friends. Send names and addresses to E. TOURJEE, Frankl'n Sq., Boston, Mass. The Largest and best appointed Music, Literary and Art School, and HOME for young ladies, in the world.

COLEMAN BUSINESS COLLEGE, Newark, N. J. Terms $40. Positions for graduates: write for circular.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD

And will completely change the blood in the entire system in three months. Any person who will take ONE PILL EACH NIGHT FROM ONE TO TWELVE WEEKS, may be restored to sound health, if such a thing be possible. For curing Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. Physicians use them in their practice. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. Send for pamphlet. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

AGENTS make money selling our Family Medicines; no capital required. STANDARD CURE CO., 197 Pearl St., NEW YORK.

HAIR Wigs & Waves sent C.O.D. anywhere. Wholesale & Retail. Price-list free. Goods guaranteed. B. C. STREHL, 157 Wabash-av., Chicago.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

BEFORE YOU BUY A BICYCLE Of any kind, send stamp to GUMP BROS., Dayton, Ohio, for large Illustrated Price List of New and Second Hand Machines.

A. N. K.—E. 936

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KY., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 8, 1883. NUMBER 41.

PITH AND POINT.

—Five Polish poets have been arrested in Europe. Poets in this country are occasionally killed, or crowded out.

—One of the charges against tobacco is that its use has a dwarfing effect. That's true. Many men get short by buying cigars.—Chicago Times.

—Worcester has an "R. A. T." club, which entertains the public with plays, operettas, and the like. "Hear me gnaw-ma," ought to be a favorite air.

—A young correspondent complains that "there are too many lawyers in the country." Oh, no, my boy, there aren't too many lawyers. There aren't half enough clients, that's all.—Burdette.

—"What is true bravery?" asks a New York paper. It is going to the door yourself when you don't know whether the caller is a dear friend, a book agent, or a man with a bill.—Philadelphia News.

—When the hired girl was asked to put an extra plate on the table she said she wasn't much of an arithmetician, but she could work an example in add-dish-on like that.—Cincinnati Merchant and Traveler.

—The fellow at the other end of the telephone wire may be perfectly sound financially, but the man at this end should reflect, as he listens, that his business is in the hands of a "receiver."

—Clara Jane says that she shall never be satisfied until women are permitted to sue as well as to be sued. Perhaps it would be unkind to say that Clara Jane has never been sued; therefore we shall not say it.—Boston Transcript.

—Swimming is becoming a favorite amusement with the New York ladies. It has long been known that the husbands of New York ladies often find it difficult to keep their own heads above water, and now, perhaps, their wives will help them.—New York Graphic.

—"Did you find the people indigent?" asked a clergyman of a wealthy member of his church, who had been calling on some very poor families. "Oh, dear, no," answered the lady, "they were respectable, but as poor as poverty."—Yonkers Gazette.

—A Philadelphia woman was poisoned by holding a cent in her mouth while hunting street car change, and one in Chicago was similarly afflicted by holding a street car ticket. This causes the Detroit Free Press to ask: "Why doesn't the sex take a walk instead of riding?"

—"Why do young men remain single?" asks a newspaper writer. An old philosopher once observed that if more young men were to marry, there would be fewer old bachelors in the land, and the more we reflect on the subject the more it strikes us that the old philosopher hit the bull's-eye. Young men remain single because they don't marry.—The Judge.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—Knoxville, Tenn., is entering largely into the manufacturing enterprises, and among its latest industries are car-works.

—The making of sassafras oil is now a leading industry in many parts of Virginia. The raw root costs $1.50 for 1,000 pounds.

—In the United States, Ontario and Manitoba the increase of the lumber product this year over last is estimated at 750,000,000 feet.

—Washington Territory fir is in demand in San Francisco for car building, and a very large trade is expected to spring up in this lumber for the East, as it can be profitably used instead of hardwood for finished work.—Chicago Times.

—Scientific engineers say that the bridge over East River is the last long bridge that will ever be erected, and that, had engineers known as much in 1870 as they do now, this bridge would not have been erected. Tunnels are to take the place of bridges.—N. Y. Tribune.

—The Rio Grande Sugar Company Cape May County, N. J., have now 1,300 acres of sorghum under cultivation. They have more than doubled the capacity of their works, and look forward to a very prosperous season. The cane is growing finely, and an excellent crop is anticipated.

—A "Commission," presumably of experts, appointed by the French Society of Hygiene, has studied the condensed milk question, and reports that when it is diluted with twice or four times its weight of water it may in some cases be useful as a food for infants, but is always to be considered "incontestably inferior to good cow's milk."—Health Monthly.

—The dredging of South Carolina rivers for phosphates is a new industry of considerable importance to the territory surrounding Charleston. Some of the crude rock is shipped to Europe, but most of it is ground at home before it goes to market. At the present time the demand is great, and all the companies are working on full time.—Chicago Herald.

—An organization has been incorporated in New York, under the name of the National Horse Show Association of America, with a capital of $100,000, in shares of one hundred dollars each. This association will hold its first show of horses next fall, at which time it is announced liberal premiums will be offered for all classes of horses. It is expected that this will be the largest and most notable exhibition of horses held in this country, and will occupy the same position here that the horse shows held at the Agricultural Hall, London, do in England.—N. Y. Sun.

—A company has been formed in New York, it is stated, with a capital of $4,250,000, for constructing a pneumatic tube between that city and Chicago for the purpose of transmitting letters, grain samples, jewelry, and other small, light packages. Way stations will be established at Cleveland, Buffalo, and other points. The pipes will be of iron, four inches in circumference, and the cost of laying them is estimated at $4,000 per mile. The price for carriage will be five cents for letters and ten cents for parcels; and the boxes holding the goods will make the trip between the two points, it is believed, in four hours.—N. Y. Herald,

His Niece.

Mr. J. S. Brown was in a gloomy frame of mind. Mr. J. F. Brown, on the contrary, was as smiling and chipper as a spring morning. Mr. J. S. Brown crooned moodily over the ledgers and complained of the pale ink and rusty pens, while Mr. J. F. Brown smiled and smirked, and hummed a gentle lullaby over the pages of figures before him. M. J. S. Brown's countenance was dark and forbidding. From Mr. J. F. Brown's face there beamed a radiance which illumined every nook and corner of the counting-room.

"Humph!" grunted Mr. J. S. Brown bitterly.

"Ha, ha, ha," softly laughed Mr. J. F. Brown.

"Brown," said Mr. J. S. Brown, lifting himself up from his desk and turning around on his stool; "Brown, I feel called upon to reprove you for the frivolity you have exhibited during the past week. You have neglected your work—you have arrived here late every morning and left here early every afternoon—your business has been done in a loose and incompetent manner, and as a natural result our mutual interests are suffering."

Mr. J. F. Brown looked grieved. Never before had he been addressed in terms of reproach by Mr. J. S. Brown.

"But, Brown," expostulated Mr. J. F. Brown, "you seem to forget that —"

"I forget nothing," interrupted Mr. J. S. Brown: "I am perfectly well aware that you have a new baby-daughter up at your house. How could I forget it, when I am reminded of the fact every fifteen or twenty minutes? A daughter, Brown, is good enough, and has, I admit, certain advantages in her way, but I submit, Brown, that a daughter is no excuse for the excessive levity and coltishness of which you have been guilty for the past week."

"I—I—I don't understand;" stammered Mr. J. F. Brown, blushing deeply.

"I will be more explicit—I will explain," continued Mr. J. S. Brown, still maintaining an air and tone of frigid austerity. "Since the birth of your daughter you have been worldly and fleshly in your manner and conversation. Do you think it was in keeping with your dignity to make your appearance in this store that morning in a condition bordering, I may say, upon hilarity? Was it right that you should execute secular saltatory movements up and down this counting room while advising our employes of the fact that you had a spick-and-span new daughter? Was it proper that you should subsequently invite us all out for a lemonade and a cigar apiece? Have I not heard you, every hour of the day since that event, whistling—yes, Brown—I will repeat with increased vehemence—whistling to yourself certain lullabies and tunes supposed to have been invented purely for the solace and edification of the cradle and the nursery? Need I remind you that frequently when you should have been making out invoices of canned tomatoes and pickled codfish, I have found you dreamily humming a frivolous song entitled 'Peek-a-boo' to yourself? And is it for me to recall that frequently, when you should have been here receiving consignments of dried apples and brown sugar, you have been skylarking about town, squandering your money for nursing bottles and paregoric and tin rattles and flummery of that kind?"

"Ah, my dear Brown," sighed Mr. J. F. Brown, sadly, "you do not appreciate how sweet a boon one's daughter is to one."

"There you go again!" exclaimed Mr. J. S. Brown. "There you go again, with your maudlin sentiment. Your daughter, indeed! Brown, I am sick and tired of hearing eternally and everlastingly about your daughter. Your daughter—your daughter—your daughter—it's the same old song from morning till night, day in and day out! Well—I—I—well—oh, bah!"

And Mr. J. S. Brown nearly choked with chagrin and disgust, while Mr. J. F. Brown sat mutely by and nervously bit his finger nails, and vainly tried to keep the tears from brimming over his eyelids.

"You seem to forget, Brown," said Mr. J. F. Brown, finally, very tremulously and very tenderly, "you seem to forget that while she is my daughter she is your niece."

Mr. J. S. Brown started as if he had been toying with the business end of an electric battery. A new and bright idea seemed to have dawned upon him. His lower jaw fell, his eyes opened to their widest capacity, and a look of combined astonishment and pleasure crept over his face. His whole appearance was that of a man before whose comprehension a mighty revelation had been spread.

"Brown," murmured Mr. J. S. Brown, faintly and unsteadily, "say it again and say it slow."

"You seem to forget," repeated Mr. J. F. Brown, "that while she is my daughter, she is at the same time your niece."

"Well, I snum!" exclaimed Mr. J. S. Brown, "I never thought of that."

"It is, nevertheless, an incontrovertible fact," solemnly added Mr. J. F. Brown.

"So it is, Brown, so it is!" cried Mr. J. S. Brown. "And I am indeed an uncle! Ha, ha, ha—an uncle—whoopee! We'll close up the store—the clerks shall have a holiday—and, Brown, come closer to me, we'll have lemonade and cigars all around till we can't rest! Your daughter, my niece—Brown, old fellow, I congratulate you!"—Denver Tribune.

—How a little boy, eight years old, died on Staten Island last week: He found a demijohn of applejack. Of which he drank a great deal. Then he slept. On waking he went to swim. He stayed too long in the sun, and was prostrated by the heat. On waking he made a feast of green apples and ice water. Next morning he was dead.—N. Y. Graphic.

—A man one hundred years old recently filed a claim at the Huron (Dak.) Land-Office, and says he came West to "grow up with the country."—Chicago Tribune.

How Screws Are Threaded.

Screw threads are "originated" in the lathe usually. All lathe turning, with regular—constant—feed of the turning tool, is screw cutting, or threading; the tool cuts a spiral around a revolving cylinder.

It is evident, therefore, that by increasing the speed of the feed relative to that of the revolving cylinder, and having the point of the cutter properly shaped, a screw thread would result, instead of a paring off of the entire surface of the cylinder. All important actuating or working screws, as those for feeding on machine tools, are formed in this way, and large numbers, also, of ordinary machine screws, which when once seated are expected to remain in situ until the machine or implement of which they form a part is worn out.

Wood screws, as screws for fastening wood to wood, metal to wood, etc., are threaded in a similar manner, the thread being cut from the solid by a single cutter removing the material between the threads.

Large numbers of screws are threaded by dies, which may be called hollow screws, or nuts with cutting edges. These, by rotating, form the feed as well as the cutting device for threading the smooth cylindrical rod or bar. Some of these dies are worked by hand, others by power, but in either case the cut, by modern and improved dies, is clean, and the thread is formed from the solid. The old fashioned dies were adjustable so as to be "set up," and could be made to cut several sizes of diameters. Much of their work was done by pressure, or squeezing, and a part of the thread was "raised" instead of being cut from the solid material. There are adjustable dies made now, but they are so formed as to do solid cutting.

There is another method of cutting threads direct from the solid, and that is by milling. The machine is entirely automatic, the blank to be cut being rotated as in a lathe, and a rotary milling tool rotating against it at an angle adapted to the pitch of the thread desired. As the blank revolves slowly toward the cutter, the cutter revolving more rapidly forms the thread by being fed along over the blank as is the cutting tool in a lathe. The milling tool is so formed in cross section as to produce any shape of thread desired.

Threads on large cast iron screws are sometimes formed simply by being cast, and formerly there was much cheap small work of that sort in the market.

Threads may be raised by forging in dies, and some good work by this is produced. In both these cases, however, an after finish in the lathe is desirable.

For some peculiar purposes threads are formed by twisting a square or a flat bar; a common form of hand drill that has superseded the bow drill being a case in point. The stock of this drill is a bar, square in cross section, twisted, and which is rotated by sliding a loosely fitting nut rapidly back and forth over its length. A familiar instance of a screw thread of this description is the ordinary auger or bit, the cross section of which is a flattened parallelogram like a flat bar.

One peculiar method of forming screw threads remains to be mentioned. It is that of raising a thread by rolling between dies under pressure. There is a great deal of what is known as "bright wire goods" in the market, which are threaded. In many cases these threads are formed by simply rolling—one revolution, or a little more—the wire between two hardened steel plates that are corrugated spirally to form, when combined, a continuous thread. Sufficient pressure is applied during the rolling—which, however, is very rapid—to raise the metal from the annealed wire enough to make a thread. In this case the threaded portion is considerably larger than the stock or wire, at least half the depth of the thread on each side.

The threads in nuts are produced either by the "originating" method, cutting them in a lathe, by being tapped, or sometimes by being cast of soft metal, as brass, on a threaded core of hard metal, as iron or steel. But nuts are mostly threaded by tapping, running one, two, or three successive taps through them either by hand or in a power machine. Nuts of very thin material, as sheet brass for lamp tops, jar covers, etc., are formed simply by rolling between spirally corrugated rolls, a work analogous to "beading" on tin ware.—Scientific American.

"Too Awfully Funny."

Miss Birdie Mellennipin is one of the belles of Austin. Her intellect, however, does not tower into the sublime heights reached by Susan B. Anthony, but, to use the cold language of truthfulness, she is very much the same kind of a young lady as Gus De Smith is a young man. Not long since he proposed in good faith, in a solemn, impressive manner, upon which Miss Birdie inaugurated a giggle, until Gus was very much disgusted, and, arising from his knees, his anger found vent in words. He was mad, too too mad almost to speak.

"Miss Hennipin," he finally ejaculated, "with me this is no laughing matter. Why should you see anything ridiculous about it?"

"You must excuse me, Mr. DeSmith—really you must, for I am not laughing at you; really, now, I am not. I am laughing at ma. Ma's so funny, you know. Really, she is just too funny for any use. Yes, I was laughing at ma."

"At your ma!"

"Yes, you see ma she told me only this morning: 'Birdie, you are so green that some donkey will take you yet,' and here you come——"

But he was gone. He was it the past tense. It was he who banged the door so violently.

"I wonder," cooed the suddenly deserted Birdie, "I wonder, now, really, if he is offended at what ma said. But then, ma always was too awful funny for any kind of use."—Texas Siftings.

—In a garden at Bowling Green, Ky., is a bush that bears a large deep red rose, with two perfect small roses in the center which are miniature copies of the big one.—N. O. Picayune.

Religious.

A SABBATH HYMN.

Lord, with the Sabbath's earliest rays,
Wake in our hearts the notes of praise,
And when we to Thy house repair,
O, let Thy Spirit meet us there.

Under the preaching of Thy word,
Be faith and hope within us stirred;
Teach us the strains of that new song,
Which thrills the Heavenly harps along.

Soon shall our earthly race be run,
And work and warfare soon be done;
Then with Thy saints may we arise,
And join the worship of the skies.
—Charles E. Lindsley, in N. Y. Observer.

Sunday-School Lessons.

THIRD QUARTER.

Aug. 5	—The Cities of Refuge	Josh. 20: 1-9
Aug. 12	—The Last Days of Joshua	Josh. 24: 14-29
Aug. 19	—Israel Forsaking God	Judg. 2: 6-16
Aug. 26	—Gideon's Army	Judg. 7: 1-8
Sept. 2	—The Death of Samson	Judg. 16: 21-31
Sept. 9	—Ruth and Naomi	Ruth 1: 14-22
Sept. 16	—A Praying Mother	1 Sam. 1: 21-28
Sept. 23	—The Child Samuel	1 Sam. 3: 1-19
Sept. 30	—Review

"LEARN OF ME."

The world is filled with a weary, anxious, heavy-laden humanity. It is through weakness that we must gain strength; through ignorance, wisdom; through experience of the past, the way toward the future; through our love and faith, the true "way of life." When we wander astray we must be turned back to the straight and narrow way. Our burdens are heavy, our pains wearisome, our sorrows deep and seemingly unavailing. To this erring, striving, struggling people comes the tender invitation—an invitation extended to us all, for all are "weary and heavy-laden"—"Come unto Me all ye that are weary and heavy-laden, and I will give you rest. Take My yoke upon you and learn of Me, for I am meek and lowly of heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls."

Not only is the invitation given, but the way to accept it is also given. He gives us His own life as an example, and tells us to follow it. His life-work is before us, and we are told to follow Him. We can do this; not to be able to live as He lived, but we can try; we can do the best we can, and never cease trying. That is all that is asked of us.

"Take My yoke upon you," He says, "and learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly of heart." We are to accept, to take upon us the yoke of Divine love, and thus bind together in its "silken bonds" every thought, affection, capacity of our own minds and hearts, that they may unitedly and harmoniously engage in the warping and weaving of the web of a true and noble life.

He does not say "learn of Me," because I am your superior, because I have knowledge, culture, experience, but because I am meek and lowly of heart. Meek, in the sense of being receptive, willing to be instructed, to be led and guided. We must have the lower nature subject to the higher; not crushed out or unrecognized, but held as itself a gift of God, and having its own proper uses and needs. These uses and necessities, under proper control and education, add to and aid in the development of the higher nature. The material and spiritual must work together, hand in hand, in this life.

Christ in His meekness acknowledges the leading He receives. "The Father that dwelleth in Me, He doeth the works. I do always those things that please Him." We must not rest in our self-satisfaction, in our pride of intellect, of power, of acquirements, but seek to hold ourselves in a state to humbly receive the truth and to abide by it.

"Learn of Me." We look to see what the example is which His life teaches us. It teaches obedience to the present duty. It teaches that there is no duty, so humble or seemingly unimportant that we do not owe it perfect faithfulness of trust and execution, even as He was faithful to the humble duties in His earthly father's house and work as long as it was right for Him to remain there. Nor was His life of service there ended. This was, indeed, but the beginning; the faithfulness in little things that led to the devotion and ultimate sacrifice of His life for humanity.

He met and overcame temptation. He passed through the dark valleys in which our feet stumble. His Divine nature was assailed, through its human, by all the ills and evils, the dangers, the beguilements, to which humanity is prone. Scathless, pure, sinless, He speaks to us, tenderly, saying: "Learn of Me; I will aid you, help you, bear your burdens, comfort you, rest you. If you are guilty," He says, "sin not, but come unto Me." Is not this the invitation of a tender, yearning, brooding love like unto a mother's for her children, only deeper and holier than any earthly love can be? There are none from whom He would turn away, if only they would "go and sin no more," and follow in the way He led.

What, then, should we learn of Him? Dependence on the Divine will; the meekness and loveliness that says: "Not My will, but Thine be done;" the clinging to truth and goodness and rightness through all pains, sorrows and discouragements; meekness, patience, perfect uprightness, honesty, faithfulness, gentleness, forgiveness, long-suffering, charity—every good thing that the mind can conceive, and more, because His goodness is limitless.

He asks us to learn of Him because of the spiritual qualities He possessed; because He had a warm and loving heart which pulsated for all mankind; not because of the strength of His intellect, the power of His brain. And He promises that if we learn we shall find rest unto our souls. We shall find the rest of a freedom from the thralldom of sin. We shall love good, and in seeking its innermost essence we shall find ourselves linked to the Divine life, which is goodness itself. We shall love our neighbors, and in this love we will be conscious of another link uniting us to the Divine life, which is love itself. We shall find rest in the sense of nearness to the best of life, its purity, holiness, usefulness, charitableness, goodness and truthfulness; a rest underlying all weariness and care, a foretaste of the rest we shall experience when "the last fear is quieted, the last doubt dispelled, the last labor ended, the last burden lifted from the heart, the last tear shed, the last pain suffered; when we shall be lifted up and borne onward to higher truths and purer joys ever nearer to the Lord."—Golden Rule.

The Gospel of the Hand.

This was the Gospel of the first century. "We read of "the Acts of the Apostles;" the work of faith and labor of love;" and are told to "work out our own salvation."

The Gospel has more to do than just to get individual souls to Heaven. It is to rear a Christian civilization, to build up righteousness in the earth, to redeem society from the evils that prey upon it, to lift from the heart of humanity the burdens under which "the whole creation groans and travails in pain."

Our view of the "Kingdom of God" is too meager if we do not take in all this. And how much the hand has to do in bringing this to pass! We need converted hands, consecrated hands, as well as hearts.

Some of you, brethren, think you have very little talent to talk; a very poor gift at prayer; and so it may be. But God has given you two good strong hands. Use them for him. The Gospel of the hand is as Scriptural as the Gospel of the heart; the Gospel of work is as orthodox as that of prayer. Without the two together, the world has no Gospel at all. The Bible order is to pray out your work, and then to work out your prayers. So the Psalmist prayed: "Establish thou the work of our hands upon us, yea the work of our hands establish thou it."

All honest, manly, womanly work in which you can make yourself useful to your fellow-men—earning bread for your family, if you have one; training of your children in virtuous ways; cooking, mending, washing for them, as a Christian mother;—there's the Gospel of the hand.

And how Christ preached this Gospel in the shop in Nazareth! And so can you in your shop, too. Why not? Your saw, your auger, your plane, your hammer, your hoe and plow and yard-stick and scales may be just as consecrated instruments of religion as those which Jesus used when he worked in the carpenter's shop; and be just as truly devotional as your Bible or your hymn-book.

People get a notion that religion is something connected with churches, and what are called religious exercises; and that is all. It is a great misleading, fundamental error, propagated by "the father of lies," and which the whole life of Christ ought to explode.

Of course, mere work is not religion. But work inspired, enthused by the love of God and the Spirit of Christ and "good will to man"—this is religion; the kind the world needs most, and out of which its regeneration is to come. Christian love and loyalty and principle put into the Gospel of the hand.—S. S. Graves, D. D., in Michigan Herald.

Choice Selections.

—To-day is ours; the future belongs to God.—Horace Greeley.

—What we ought not to do, we should not ever think of doing.—Epictetus.

—Choose always the way that seems the best, however rough it may be. Custom will render it easy and agreeable. —Pythagoras.

—God's mercy as naturally covers the great sins of those who love Him and keep His commandments as the ocean covers the great rocks that sleep in its bed.

—Religion gives part of its reward in hand, the present comfort of having done our duty; and for the rest, it offers us the best security that Heaven can give.—Tillotson.

—People may make injuries worse by unreasonable conduct, by giving way to anger and satisfying that for the moment, instead of thinking what will be the effect in the future.—George Eliot.

—How beautiful is that simple prayer, which, it is said, the Breton sailors are wont to utter when lauching out upon the heaving ocean: "Keep me, my God; my boat is so small, and Thy ocean is so wide!"

—Experience is the Lord's school; and they who are taught by Him usually learn by the mistakes they make that they have no wisdom, and by the slips and falls they meet with that they have no strength.—John Newton.

—I do not find that to give up anxiety and to trust in God is difficult now, though it used to be. Blessed be my Lord, I can not help believing Him, for He loads me down with evidences of his truth and fidelity.—C. H. Spurgeon.

—Mr. Emerson wrote to a friend in 1829: "I suppose that prosperity is always dangerous, especially for the very young. In college I used to echo an ejaculation of my wise aunt: 'Oh, blessed, blessed poverty!' when I saw young men of fine capabilities, whose only and fatal disadvantage was wealth."

—Materialists are always in trouble. They build theories on nothing, and change with the seasons. They glory in facts, and build largely on imagination. They boast of logic, and bridge chasms by assertions to conceal their poverty of connecting links. They leap from nothing to matter and from matter to life, though an unabridged gulf divide them. They evolve the highest from the lowest, and yet ridicule the thought of the Highest creating the lower. They assume the eternity of mind. They imagine force before substance, yet discard the Almighty and Infinite God. They scorn the faith of the Christian, but build on their imagination. They confess their reasoning unsatisfactory, and still plod in the dark, insisting that facts must justify them, though unable to find them. They treat living as if it were the offspring of dead matter, though no case of life out of dead substance is recorded. Thus they flounder, imagine, guess, dogmatize, and end where they begin, in agnosticism. We need not fear their bite, for they knock out their own teeth; Christianity will not suffer, for it rests on a Rock.—Morning Star.

—Selma, Ala., has over sixty artesian wells, and the water from no two of them is exactly alike.

Our Young Folks.

TOMMY AND THE PLUMS.

It was a summer morning.
Said Tom: "I'll have some fun."
He started for the orchard
As fast as he could run.

He stood beneath the plum-tree,
And this is what he said:
"Those plums must be delicious,
They look so ripe and red.

"If I could only reach 'em
I'd have a splendid treat.
It's very tantalizing:
They must be very sweet."

Then Tommy jumped his highest,
But couldn't reach the limb
On which the plums were hanging,
And seemed to mock at him.

They nodded and they nodded,
And they really seemed to say:
"We know you can not reach us,
And you'd better go and play."

The very leaves seemed laughing
As they rustled overhead,
Till Tom got tired and angry,
And this is what he said:

"I really wouldn't touch one
If it was in my power;
They can't be worth the trouble;
They must be green and sour."
—Harper's Young People.

THE DIANA MONKEY.

This native of Western Africa inhabits the woods of the Guinea Coast, and of the banks of the Congo, and it is found in the island of Fernando Po. It was known to European naturalists before the year 1700, and it has always been prized for its pretty fur and gay temper. The goddess Diana has been honored by being associated with this monkey, on account of a crescent-shaped white band of long hair stretching across the forehead (she being goddess of the crescent-shaped moon). It is about eighteen inches long when full grown, the tail is longer than the body, and the fur is very pretty. The crescent of white hairs has dark edges, and the top of the head is broad and dull gray, spotted with green; the ears are dark and the face also; the beard and whiskers are white, and the first of these projects like a goat's. As another monkey from the same region has a white band across the forehead, the Diana has been confounded with it. Even F. Cuvier jumbled the Diana and the Diadem monkey together. Very little is known about them in their wild state, and in captivity they show very adverse dispositions. Sometimes they are gay and full of fun, and at others they are morose and snappish. We once saw one in its cage in the Zoological Gardens pull its mate, a small Sykes monkey, from the top to the bottom, by a well-directed pull of its tail, and the proceeding reminded one of a very energetic mistress, whose servants were inattentive, tugging at a bell-rope. The puller was chattering and grimacing at his visitors all the time that the pulled was hanging on to everything that came in its way during its forced descent; and when it came to the bottom, it scrambled about and rushed up to its little house again, as if it were a frequent and unwilling exercise. The Diana also stole its companion's food, such as a piece of apple, by putting her arms around its neck, and squeezing the morsel against its nose, so that it was obliged to drop it.

Mrs. Bowditch, in describing her voyage from Western Africa, gives an interesting account of a Diana monkey which was on board. "We made acquaintance," she says, "very suddenly, and to me disagreeably, for I had not till then conquered the foolish aversion with which these animals always inspired me. It was a dead calm, the wheel was lashed, and all save myself below, nothing around us but sea and sky, and I had sheltered myself with a book in a corner protected from the equatorial sun. Suddenly, and without noise, something leaped upon my shoulders, and the tail which encircled my throat convinced me that Mr. Jack was my assailant. My first impulse was to beat him off, in which case I should probably have received some injury, but fortunately I sat perfectly still, and twisting himself around, he brought his face to mine, and stared at me, I endeavoring to speak kindly to him, upon which he grinned and chattered, seated himself on my knees, and carefully examined my hands. He then tried to pull off my rings, and was proceeding to a bite for this purpose, when I gave him some biscuit which happened to be beside me, and making a bed for him with a handkerchief, he settled himself comfortably to sleep, and from that moment we were sworn allies.

The amusement furnished to me and others by Jack made him tolerated when his mischievous propensities would otherwise have condemned him to perpetual confinement. He was often banished to an empty hen-coop, but as this made no impression upon him, I always tried to prevent it, which he knew so well, that when he had done wrong he either hid himself or sought refuge near me. Much more effect was produced by taking him in sight of the panther, who always seemed most willing to devour him. On these occasions I held him by the tail, in front of the cage, but long before I reached it, knowing where he was going, he pretended to be dead; his eyes were closed quite fast, and every limb was as stiff as if there were no life in him. When taken away he would open one eye a little to see whereabouts he might be, but if he caught a glimpse of the cage, it was instantly closed and he became as stiff as before. He clambered into the hammocks, stole the men's knives, tools, handkerchiefs, and even the nightcaps off their heads, all of which went into the sea. When biscuits were toasting between the bars of the caboose, and the dried herbs boiling in the tin mugs, he would take the former out and carry it way, and take out the latter and trail them along the planks; if he burnt his hands, he desisted for a day or two, and he often regaled the parrots with the biscuit, biting it in small pieces, and feeding them with the utmost gravity. At other times he would knock the cages over, lick up the water thus spilled, eat the lumps of sugar, pull the birds' tails, and in this manner he killed a beautiful green pigeon belonging to the steward, a specimen of which I never saw in any collection. For this he was flogged and imprisoned three days; and half an hour after he was let out I met him scampering around the deck with two blue-faced monkeys on his back, which he often carried about in this manner. When he thought fit to ride, he would watch behind a cask on the days the pigs were let loose, dart on to their backs as they passed, dig his nails into them to keep himself on, and the faster they ran, and the more they squealed, the happier he seemed to be. His most important misdemeanors, however, were performed to the injury of his fellow-monkeys, of whom he was very jealous. The smaller ones were very obsequious to him, and when he called them by a peculiar noise, they came, hanging their heads and looking very submissive. During one of the calms we so often met with, the men had been painting the outside of the ship, and leaving their pots and brushes on the deck, went down to dinner. No one was above but myself, the helmsman and Jack. The latter beckoned and coaxed a small black monkey to him, then seizing him by the neck, took a brushful of white paint, and deliberately covered him with it in every direction. The helmsman and I burst into a laugh, upon which Jack, dropping his victim, flew up the rigging into the maintop, where he stood with his black nose between the bars, peeping at what was going on below. The little metamorphosed beast began licking himself, but the steward being summoned, he washed him with turpentine, and no loss was sustained. Many attempts were made to catch the rogue aloft, but he eluded all, and when he was driven down by hunger he watched his opportunity, and sprang from one of the ropes on to my lap, where he knew he should be safe. I fed him and interceded for him, so he escaped with only a scolding, which he received with an appearance of shame, which in him was rather ludicrous."—Cassell's Natural History.

Elsie Learning to Mind.

Elsie is only two years old, and does not talk very plainly. When any one asks her for her name she says: "I's Sassy." And a pretty good name for her it is, for she does not mind mamma or grandma very well, and when they try to train her to be a good girl she sometimes looks very saucy indeed. Grandma has a great many beautiful flowers, and Elsie knows very well she ought not to touch them; but for all that she will pick some whenever she goes into the garden alone for a moment. One day she came into the house with a lovely lily hanging its yellow head sadly over the back of her fat hand. She did not say anything, but she looked half-ashamed and half-defiant when grandma took it from her and scolded her, saying she was a naughty, naughty little girl to pick grandma's flowers, and if she did so any more she would have to be shut up in the closet. After awhile grandma thought she would get more flowers to put with the lily, for a mantel bouquet; so she went out into the garden and picked a great handful. When she came into the house with them Elsie looked from grandma to the flowers and back to grandma again, and, shaking her head with a stern frown that looked very comical on her chubby face, she said: "Ah, ah! naughty grandma pick 'o f'owers. Shut'e up in c'oset!" That lesson had to be taught over again. Elsie loves to look at pictures, and her mamma often shows her those in bound volumes of illustrated magazines. In some of these are birds flying high in the air, where they look like specks of tiny crosses, and mamma tells her they are birdies.

One day a wasp came in at the window, and flew around the upper part of the room, bumping his head against the ceiling every minute. This made it very angry, and it buzzed very loudly, indeed. Elsie shouted: "A birdie! a birdie!" and reached for it with both hands. Just then it flew down toward the little girl, and grandma, afraid that it might sting her, hit it with a book. It fell to the floor, and lay as if it were dead; so grandma went for the dust-pan and brush to sweep it up and carry it away; but first she told Elsie not to touch it, for it might sting her. When grandma was gone, Elsie went close to the wasp and looked at it. It lay very still, and she felt sure that such a quiet birdie, such a lovely yellow-and-black birdie, would never hurt a little girl; so she stooped over and took it between her thumb and finger; but oh! how quickly she dropped it, and how she ran screaming to grandma, holding up that poor little thumb, that turned red and then white, and swelled up as big as two thumbs, all in a minute; for though the head of the wasp seemed dead, the sting was very much alive, indeed. It took a strong bath of soda and water for the suffering thumb, two big ginger-snaps, and a great deal of kissing and petting to soothe "grandma's baby," and even then she nearly cried again when grandpa came home, and she tried to tell him how she "des pult 'e birdie leg, an' 'e birdie bit Sassy." That lesson did not have to be learned again. —N. Y. Evangelist.

Poisoned by Polka-Dot Shirts.

Mrs. Cortes Poak, the wife of a fireman, is the victim of serious and malignant blood poisoning. Last week while cutting bread a slip of the knife made a small and harmless scratch upon her left hand. Before the wound had perfectly healed, and while engaged in washing some of the new regulation "polka-dot" shirts, her hand was seized with a sharp, stinging pain, accompanied with rapid swelling. Dr. Capener was called, and pronounced it a dangerous case of blood-poisoning. The arm to the finger tips was swollen to twice its normal size, and heroic treatment and severe lancings were the only life-saving resorts. Though still suffering, she is thought to be out of danger. —Cleveland (O.) Herald.

—Mrs. Clinton, of Buffalo, called in the police, alleging that $190 had been taken from a bureau. The officers made an examination of the premises and flatly told her that no burglary had been committed. She owned up that she had lost the money out of her pocket, but had been afraid to tell her husband.—Buffalo (N. Y.) Express.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL.
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. AUG. 8. 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
½ "	1 "	40
¼ "	1 "	20
[illegible] "	½ "	20
"	¼ "	10
"	⅛ "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 10 lines free; over that number (excepting the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.
Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

JUDGE HARGIS has withdrawn from the race for re-election as Appellate Judge.

LOUISVILLE is having a grand time with the Southern Exposition. It is no white elephant.

PARIS has a circus epidemic this week, one on the 9th and the other on the 10th, both advertised as the greatest shows on the road.

LAST Thursday's edition of the Louisville Courier-Journal was a daisy. The C.-J. always makes a big thing of any enterprise it undertakes.

HOGGISH—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $5 50@5 85; fair to good packers, at $5 25@5 60; fair to good light, $5 75@6 00; common. $4 50@5 20; culls, $3 50@4 25: stock hogs, $4 50@5 25.

THE Courier-Journal gives an account of two little girls, sisters, aged respectively three years and two and one-half years, leaving Yorkshire, England, and coming to Louisville unaccompianed. The C.-J. must be off on the ages of the two sisters.

JNO. P. RYLE, of Carlton precinct, who announced himself a candidate for sheriff on the eve of the election, withdrew, concluding that it was too late to make a canvass. He says he is under many obligations to his many friends for the cordial reception they gave him in his short tour through the county.

IT is anticipated that Governor Blackburn will make liberal use of the pardoning power during the remainder of his term, and turn loose some of the long termed prisoners. Last week he pardoned Dave Furguson, the defaulting back-tax collector, who was sent up last April, and the noturious Grove Kennedy expects to be pardoned in a few days.

IT is stated, and from pretty good authority, that Mrs. Stewart, (that is to say Judge Hilton), proposes to bulid a Convention Hall in Saratoga, so that all State Political Conventions and perhaps National Conventions may meet at the Springs. There is an entire block between the Grand Union and the Colombian Hotels, directly opposite Congress Park, which at present is unoccupied save by little one story structures occupied by stores.

WE take the following from the Rising Sun, Indiana, Recorder, and only hope that Mr, Sutton's theory will prove correct:

Before the American Association for the Advancement of Science at its meeting in Cincinnati in August, 1881, Dr George Sutton, of Aurora, delivered an exhaustive address on the "Goldbearing drift of Indiana." He maintained that on the highlands of Boone county, Kentucky, and on the hills and in the valleys of southeastern Indiana, there are glacial deposits which existed before the formation of the valleys. Dr. Sutton then demonstrated that in the valley of Laughery creek dividing Ohio and Dearborn connties, gold could be seen with the naked eye in the form of dust, flattened scales and small nuggets: and in an excavation six feet long, five feet broad, and two feet deep, $8 worth of gold had been obtained.

This address was published by the society, and attracted the attention of scientists all over the country. Recently the scientific societies of Cleveland and Chicago sent out Professor Lewis, of the former, and Professor Kedzie, of the latter place, to investigate Dr. Sutton's theory. During the past week those gentlemen visited the highlands of Ohio county and the Laughery valley and hills, and after careful investigation they are able to verify Dr. Sutton in every particular. They have already spent a week in the vicinity engaged in the research, and they are now in Ripley county, near Osgood. They will, we are informed, remain in southeastern Indiana during the month of July. That many discoveries of interest to science will be made there is no doubt. Their reports to the Chicago and Cleveland societies will be looked for with great interest, as Professor Lewis and Kedzie are eminently qualified to make a thorough and complete investigation.

To Morgan's Men.

BEAVER, KY., Aug. 3, 1883.

To the Editors of the Recorder:

I visited Lexington during the reunion of Morgan's men and I am free to confess it the most pleasant experience of my life. Not from any partisan feeling engendered by the actions of the old veterans, there was none of that there, but to witness the brotherly greeting of those noble men, who for long years rode, stood or lay side by side amid the environing dangers and vicissitudes of modern warfare, awoke in my breast a sensation of human greatness never before realized by me. To view those eyes which once could flash the fiery light of insulted revenge, now melting with the moistening tears of brotherly love, was a contrast with which the memory of a life time is seldom adorned.

Those who dwell in Boone deserve a double reprimand for not attending this reunion; for without boasting, Boone could have sent the youngest, handsomest and most complete remnant of Morgan's once great command, of any county in the State and then, to think, that only one of, the many who reside in the county went, casts a stain upon your manly duty. Boys, (military sulutation) a life-time will never afford you another occasion wherein so much gratification to yourself and your old comrades could have been mutually enjoyed.

Miss Johnnie H. Morgan, a beautiful and accomplished daughter of Gen. Morgans was present, and seemed to be the idol of the old soldiers, in whom they seemed to behold the subdued charactistics of thier knight and honored leader. A gold watch and diamond ring were the soldiers largess to the eloquent young lady. She stepped forward on the rostrum, surrounded by three thousand people, acknowledged her gratitude in the following appropriate language, "I can't begin to tell you how I appreciate the kindness of you fellow comrades of my father, but I can assure you, he never loved you better than I do; I only hope your lives may ever be as happy as I am now."

The above coupled with the masterly addresses of orators like Duke Breckenridge, Gano Saufley and other equally distinguished soldier citizens, formed a social fete that commends itself to your consideration.

A POINTER.

THERE was a queer case of drowning at Covington a few days ago. It was that of the boy Holgroff. It is said that after the body was recovered it was still warm and placed on the bank, and the boy vomited; but it being supposed unlawful to take a dead body from the water without notifying the Coroner, and instead of trytrg to bring the boy to life, they placed the body back in the water, and, of course, it sank.—Sate Journal.

A BANQUET.

Tuesday night a crowd of 300 or 400 met at the residence of N. S. Walton, and with two bands of music, one from Aurora and one from Lawrenceburg, spent the evening most pleasantly listening to good music and several speeches. The oratorical feature of the meeting was introduced by Mr. A. W. Gaines, city attorney of Lawrenceburg, who was followed by Mr. N. S. Walton in a very neat and well dolivered speech, thanking the people of the county for the honor they had bestowed upon him, and closing in a beautiful tribute to the ladies of his native county. Frank Dorman, of Lawrenceburg, was then introduced to the crowd, which he addressed in a style that convinced his hearers that he had on previous occasions in his state viewed crowds from the summit of a stump, and that he is fast approaching that period in his political age when he will be dubbed a "war-hoss." The oratorical artillery having performed its part of the evening's programme the smaller arms, such as J. Frank Grant and others, were called to the front to regale the audience, which had been enjoying the eloquence of older and wiser heads.

The banquet was one of the most entertaining that ever followed the election of a representative in Boone, and well may Mr. Walton be proud of the general out-pouring of the surrounding country, increased by a host of friends from Aurora and Lawrenceburg, who came over to congratulate in his success a man known to them from boyhood.

The ladies present, and there were scores of them, seemed to be as enthusiastic friends of the representative elect as his most ardent male supporter and their presence added brilliancy to the occasion.

All present enjoyed the hospitality of Mr. Walton and his estimable wife, and were sorry when the arrival of the parting hour was proclaimed by that silver-tongued orator, and master of ceremonics, J. Frank Grant.

STATE NEWS.

—Woodford Sun: The corn crop bids fair to make a very large yield.

—The New Era estimates the wheat crop of Christian county sixty per cent. short of last year.

—Twenty five acres of Barley in Boyle county threshed out 1,112 bu. an average of forty-five bushels to the acre.

—From Glasgow there has been an average of over one lunatic sent to the asylum for every month in the year.

—S. L. Woolridge, of Woodford county, threshed out fifty-two acres of wheat that yielded thirty-three bushels to the acre.

—Mrs. Tom Spink, of Hardin county, gave birth to three children August 24, 1881, and on July 24, 1883, gave birth to two more.

—Lexington Press: The gallows on which Timberlake, the Lexington rapisit, was executed, will be used in inflicting the death penalty upon Bulger.

—Mt. Sterling Sentinel: A dispatch from Ashland says it is definitly settled that Judge Brown will call for the State troops to protect Neal during his trial at Grayson.

—Nicholasville Journal: One day last week the Cincinnati Southern road hauled 130 car-loads of Georgia watermelons into Cincinnati at a cost of one cent per mile.

—Flemingsburg Times and Democrat: James McIntosh, a young man about nineteen years of age was found hanging by the neck in his father's barn, in Mt. Carmel precinct.

—A Bourbon county man has a game rooster which has won four battles and $125 in his life, and besides has raised four broods of chickens, hovering them the same as a hen.

—Paris Kentuckian: Bourbon Current has 900 young turkies which he he herds like sheep. His three small boys are his herdsmen, and when it looks like rain they drive them into his large tobacco barn.

—Flemingsburg Times-Democrat: Sam Bulger, the Maysville fiend, has been sentenced to be hanged on Tuesday, September 4, 1883. Judge Cole is not a believer in the time abused custom of fixing Friday as hangman's day, and we agree with him. It is time the old superstitions about Friday were wiped out.

—Woodford Sun: Thornton Perry, charged with killing a man named Malayer in this county, on the river above Shryock's Ferry, in January, 1882, was captured in Anderson county, Monday the 30th ult., and brought to Versailles and lodged in jail. The killing was done with an ax, and Perry has been at large since the commission of the deed.

—Nicholasville Journal: The better class of people have become thoroughly disgusted with camp-meetings. As a rule they are a penny-making scheme under the guise of religion, and without exception they are places where many immortal practices are indulged. There is more sin committed against God and society in one day at a camp meeting than in a whole week on the grounds of the Kentucky Association race course.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

[Courier-Journal.]

—Florida has seventy-one newspapers.

—A Kansas stock-raiser is in Georgia buying cattle for his ranch.

—The orange crop of Valusia county, Florida, is estimated at $200,000.

—Savannah shipped 40,944 watermelons to Boston by one steamer last Thursday.

—The cisterns at Starkville, Miss. are dry. The citizens are on short water rations.

—The vegetables of Brooks county, Ga., have yielded a net revenue of $100,000 this season.

—A Yazoo City doctor has raised a tomato this season that weighed one and a half pounds.

—One hundred and six houses have been erected at Cullman, Ala., within the last six months.

—Some level-headed boys at Atlanta have associated themselves together and taken a pledge not to ice cream any girl who bangs her hair.

—The grading is finished on the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley railroad and thirteen miles of track have been laid on the Jackson end of the line.

—Macon Telegraph and Messenger: Two Mormon elders are sojourning in Clayton county. They ought to be soundly thrashed and then run out.

—A marriage license was issued in Darian, Ga., last week to Abram Livingston, aged 100 years, and Margaret Jones, aged eighty-three years.

—South Georgia Clarion: There are more hogs in this section than at any time since the war. But for the drouth our farmers, as a rule, would soon be independent of Western smoke-houses.

—The Macon, Ga., City Council has passed an ordinance prohibiting the blowing of steam whistles in the city limits. The proprietors of factories and machine shops were notified to blow no more.

—The contract for building the Army and Navy Hospital, at Hot Springs, Arkansas, has been awarded to Cyrus Fistol, of that place. His bid was $86,335.

—A wind-storm in Ellis county, Texas, stirred up the sand and wafted it about in such dense clouds as to not only blind those who were caught in it, but to make breathing very difficult.

—Walton, (Fla.) Signal: To-day the freight train passed here with a flat car of native timber for the Louisville Exposition. We measured a cypress that was nine feet in diameter, besides many choice pieces.

—Allen P. Morris was the first confederate soldier to draw a pension under the Tennessee law allowing $10 per month to confederates in the army. Mr. Morris had both eyes shot out in the battle at Stone river, December 31, 1862.

—Southern Enterprise: The Savannah, Florida and Western railway, all the way to Savannah, is literally clogged up with watermelon trains. The fruit is very cheap in consequence, and it looks as if the profits were about gone for the present, at any rate.

—At a meeting of the managers of the Centennial Cotton Exposition of New Orleans, to receive the report of the Canvassing Committee, which had just returned from a Northern tour, the reports showed a total subscription of $503,000.

—Walton (Ga.) News: The veterans of the noble old Third Georgia regiment are very much worried because Mahon, the Virginia scalawag, and their former commander, has been invited to attend their reunion at Tallulah Falls, August 9. He had better stay away—Third Georgians do not want any of his sort, and his appearance at their reunion is sure to cause things to be said that will not be pleasant for the archtraitor of the South.

Twists and Twinges.

"My brethren," shouted Dr. Talmage one bright autumnal Sunday, "here is a lesson from the cornfield. God has arranged that the ear and the husk shall be parted. Every rheumatic pain is but a thrust of the husking-peg, and every neuralgic twinge is only a twist of the husker."

Possible; but nobody wants to be husked, for all that, and nature teaches us to resist the process. Therefore, we accept with gratitude whatever helps us to suppress those very twists and twinges.

From his pleasant home, Greenmont, near Sing Sing, N. Y., M. Alfred Bear, a French gentleman, writes:

"I have suffered almost intolerable torments from rheumatism for many years. Of the numerous remedies which I tried, none benefited me. But PARKER'S TONIC gave me great satisfaction. I certify with pleasure that it restored my health. You are welcome to publish this and use my name.

MESSRS HISCOX & CO., call especial attention to the fact that this preparation, which has been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be advertised and sold simply under the name of PARKER'S TONIC. As unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their customers by substituting inferior preparations under the name of ginger, and as ginger is really an unimportant ingredient, we drop the misleading word.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, contain the genuine medicine if the facsimile signature of HISCOX & CO., is at the bottom of the outside wrapper.

LOOK! LOOK!! LOOK!!!

From JULY 1st, to AUG., 1st, Custom Made suits will be on the average $5 less. Ready Made suits have been reduced 25 per cent.

The stock is large and must be disposed of to make room for my Fall Goods, let every one take advantage of the great reduction. H. F. BLASE, 540 Madison St., Covington, Ky.

A. M. Elliott and Co,

—DEALERS IN—

Threshers,
Engines,
SAW MILLS, HORSE POWERS, BUCKEYE
Reapers, Mowers and Self-Binders,
South Bend Chilled Plows, Furst & Bradley Steel Plows,
Buggies, Wagons and Farming Implements in General.

Give us a call. Satisfaction guaranteed in every sale. Corner second and Judiciary Streets, Aurora, Indiana. 33-6t

GRAND EVENT OF THE YEAR!

The Lawrenceburg Fair,

AUGUST 22nd to 25th, 1883.

RACES Every DAY.

PROGRAMME:

Wednesday, August 22.
Jack and Mules, Heavy Draft Horses.
Boone and Dearborn County Trot, Purse $60 00
Running Race, Purse, ...$100 00

Thursday, August 23.
Address by HON. JOHN G. CARLISLE.
Cattle, Saddle Horses, Hogs and Sheep.
Three minute trot, Purse, ...$200 00
Running Race, Purse, ...$150 00

Friday, August 24.
General Purpose Horses, Sweepstakes on Hogs and Sheep, Matched Horses, Swepstakes on Stallions, Purse...$50 00
Two Thirty Trot, Purse $200 00
Free for all Pace, Purse $300 00

Saturday, August 25.
Herds of Cattle, Purse $150 00
Light Harness Horses, Sweepstakes on General Purpose Horses, Purse...$50 00
Running Race, Purse $200 00
Free for all Trot, Purse $400 00

STEAM FERRY at Lawrenceburg during Fair week, Commencing Wednesday, August 22nd.

No Entry Fees for Competition. Send for Premium Lists.

W. H. O'BRIEN, Secretary,
Lawrenceburg, Indiana.

LUMBER.

Goe. M. Bedinger & Co.,
Erlanger, - - Ky.

We keep constantly on hand all kinds of Lumber, Laths and Shingles. Also Builder's supplies of all kinds.

—Come and see Us.—
may 9-tf

Farm for Sale.

I am offering for sale my farm, lying 8 miles south of Burlington on the Big Bone road, containing 55¼ acres, a part of the Mason Crisler farm. The land lays well and is conveniently located, the improvments are a good brick house and all necessary out buildings, and a variety of good fruit. Any person desirous of purchasing a nice farm will do well to come and examine the premises and learn terms. Title good. MRS. OSCAR CRISLER.

Farm for Sale.

A small farm of 11½ acres, on the Covington and Lexington pike, at the top of Willow Run Hill. On it are a commodious house, necessary out buildings and a good orchard. Title good. Call on W. C. Tupman, Sheriff's Office, Covington, Thomas Tupman, Kenton Heights or W. L. Riddell, Burlington.

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE.

GEORGETOWN, Ky.—On Cincinnati Southern R. R. Located in the healthy and beautiful "Blue Grass" region of Kentucky, 55 session opens September 3rd, 1883. Instruction in all branches of a College education. Experienced Professor. The degree of B. S., A. B. and A. M., conferred. Useful course for those who can spend only one or two years in College. Terms low for advantages offered. For catalogue or particulars, address to R. M. DUDLEY, D. D., President.

Hay Conveyors.

We take this method of informing the public that we are MANUFACTURING and SELLING W. M. CONNER'S

HAY CONVEYORS.

Just the thing to use in large barns

BAKER & CRUTCHER,
85-4t Florence X-Roads.

SCIENCE HILL.
(A SCHOOL for Girls,) Established 1825
By MRS. JULIA A TEVIS,
Located at SHELBYVILLE, KENTUCKY,

Aims to give its pupils the elements of a complete education. Pretense and show are discarded and all the force of a competent faculty directed toward the essentials of Education. Terms reasonable. Send for catalogue.

W. T. POYNTER, D. D., Principal.

AYER'S
Ague Cure

IS WARRANTED to cure all cases of malarial disease, such as Fever and Ague, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Billous Fever, and Liver Complaint. In case of failure, after due trial, dealers are authorized, by our circular of July 1st, 1882, to refund the money.

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists.

LOOK HERE!

when you go to Lawrenceburg, call on

Winegardner

He has a large assortment of

Wall Paper!

And is daily receiving additions to his stock. Call and examine before purchasing.

Inks, Pens and Stationary

constantly on hand.

Headquaters in Lotton House.

Washington & Lee
UNIVERSITY, Lexington, Va.

Instruction in the usual academic studies, and in the professional schools of Law and Engineering. Location healthful. Expenses moderate. Next Sept. 20. For catalogues, address "Clerk of the Faculty." G. W. LEE. President.

LAW SCHOOL OF
WASHINGTON & LEE UNIVERSITY
GEN. G. W. LEE, President.

Instruction by text-book and printed lectures, with courses of lectures on special subjects by eminent jurists. Tuition and fees, $80 for session of nine months; beginning Sept. 20. For catalogue and full information, address CHAS. A. GRAVES, Prof. of Law, Lexington, Va.

W. J. RICE.
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.

Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice,
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
98-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS
FOR THE LIVER
And all Bilious Complaints

Safe to take, being purely vegetable; no griping. Price 25 cts. All Druggists.

INCORPORATED UNDER THE LAWS OF MISSOURI.

CENTRAL MEDICAL & SURGICAL INSTITUTE
OF ST. LOUIS, MO.

SUCCESSORS TO DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY. OFFICE & ROOMS, No. 920 LOCUST ST.
CHAS. L. LaBARGE, M.D., Prest & Physician in Charge.
NELSON CHESMAN, Treas. & Business Manager.

This Institute has ample facilities and an experienced Faculty. While it succeeds to a large business, which has been established for years, it will aim to extend its medical and surgical practice, giving skilful and scientific treatment to CHRONIC DISEASES of the Head, Spine, Lungs and Air Passages, Heart, Liver, Stomach and Bowels, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Consumption and Asthma. BLOOD IMPURITIES, inherited or caused by impure association. Scrofula. Fever Sores, Ulcers, etc. DEFORMITIES of the Limbs, Spinal Curvature, Wry-Neck, Diseases of the Joints, Piles, Fistula, Rupture, etc. WEAKNESS and wasting diseases in old and young men, also all diseases of the genito-urinary organs. FEMALE irregularities and weaknesses, causing pain in the back or side, etc. Personal interviews with patients are always preferred. Those unable to visit the institute will be furnished with blank lists of questions that will aid them in making a full statement of their cases and if not requiring a surgical operation they can be successfully treated by correspondence, and medicines sent by mail or express. To enable us to send proper list of questions applicants should give a brief statement of their trouble. The Treasurer of the corporation is of Nelson Chesman & Co., Advertising Agents, and refers to the publisher of this or any other newspaper in the United States or Canada regarding responsibility. Consultation at Office or by mail free and invited.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1. Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.

TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

VIGOROUS HEALTH FOR MEN

THE PASTILLE CURE TRADE MARK FOR NERVOUS DEBILITY

TESTED FOR 5 YEARS by use in thousands of cases. Founded on scientific medical principles, it has been growing in favor and reputation while its numerous competitors have invariably failed. The direct application of this remedy to the seat of the disease makes its specific influence felt without delay. The natural functions of the human organism are restored. The animating elements of life which have been wasted are given back. The buoyant energy of the brain and muscular system renders the patient cheerful; he gains strength with rapidity. NERVOUS DEBILITY, organic weakness, and numerous obscure diseases, baffling the skill of best physicians, result from youthful indiscretion, too free indulgence, and over brain work. Do not temporise while such enemies lurk in your system. Take a remedy that has cured thousands, and does not interfere with your attention to business or cause any pain or inconvenience. Send for a Descriptive Pamphlet giving Anatomical Illustrations, which will convince the most sceptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fitted for the duties of life, same as if never affected. Sent free to any one. Remedy sold ONLY by the HARRIS REMEDY CO. MFG. CHEMISTS. 306½ N. 10th St. ST. LOUIS, MO. One Month's treatment $3, two months $5, three months $7.

NAVAL Agents Wanted for Ancient & Modern BATTLES. New and graphic Pictorial History of the great Sea fights of the World. By Medical Director SHIPPEN, U. S. N. Address J. C. McCURDY & Co., 210 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard works of character; great variety; Books & Bibles low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 20 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. W. [illegible]
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U. Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk A. G. DeJarnette, Commonwealths Attorney; N. E. Hawes, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

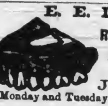
Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. Ed Fowler, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday. Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and L. A. Loder fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

Beever—W. M. Rouse, Friday after the third Monday, and



E. E. IGOE,
Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun, Ind.

SCROFULA

and all scrofulous diseases, Sores, Erysipelas, Eczema, Blotches, Ringworm, Tumors, Carbuncles, Boils, and Eruptions of the Skin, are the direct result of an impure state of the blood.

To cure these diseases the blood must be purified, and restored to a healthy and natural condition. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has for over forty years been recognized by eminent medical authorities as the most powerful blood purifier in existence. It frees the system from all foul humors, enriches and strengthens the blood, removes all traces of mercurial treatment, and proves itself a complete master of all scrofulous diseases.

A Recent Cure of Scrofulous Sores.

"Some months ago I was troubled with scrofulous sores (ulcers) on my legs. The limbs were badly swollen and inflamed, and the sores discharged large quantities of offensive matter. Every remedy I tried failed, until I used AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, of which I have now taken three bottles, with the result that the sores are healed, and my general health greatly improved. I feel very grateful for the good your medicine has done me. Yours respectfully, MRS. ANN O'BRIAN."
148 Sullivan St., New York, June 24, 1882.

☞ All persons interested are invited to call on Mrs. O'Brian; also upon the Rev. Z. P. Wilde of 78 East 54th Street, New York City, who will take pleasure in testifying to the wonderful efficacy of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, not only in the cure of this lady, but in his own case and many others within his knowledge.

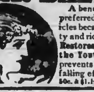
The well-known writer on the Boston Herald, B. W. BALL, of Rochester, N.H., writes, June 7, 1882: "Having suffered severely for some years with Eczema, and having failed to find relief from other remedies, I have made use, during the past three months, of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which has effected a complete cure. I consider it a magnificent remedy for all blood diseases."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

stimulates and regulates the action of the digestive and assimilative organs, renews and strengthens the vital forces, and speedily cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, Catarrh, General Debility, and all diseases arising from an impoverished or corrupted condition of the blood, and a weakened vitality.

It is incomparably the cheapest blood medicine, on account of its concentrated strength, and great power over disease.

PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists; price $1, six bottles for $5.



PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff & falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON COLOGNE

[illegible] the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No other like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N.Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts. at druggists & dealers in perfumes.

Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines.
2 to 100 Horse Power.
Established 1840.

Reliable, Durable and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ½ less fuel & water than any other engine built, not fitted with an automatic cut-off. Catalogue sent free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box [illegible], Corning, N.Y.

26,999 NOW IN USE.

All persons say their goods are the best. We ask you to examine our improved Keller Positive Force Feed, Grain, Seed and Fertilizing Drill and our Hay Rakes. They are as good as the best, and can be sold as cheap. Agents wanted. Circulars mailed free. Newark Machine Co., Newark, Ohio. Eastern Branch House, Hagerstown, Md.
W. N. STAGE, Gen. Traveling Agt. Louisville, Ky.

STATE COLLEGE OF KENTUCKY.

UNSECTARIAN. Fall session begins Sept. 12, 1883. Fifteen Professors and Instructors. Scientific, Classical, Agricultural, Normal School and Commercial Courses of Study. Tuition and Matriculation fees, $30 per annum. Board in dormitory, $2.25 per week; in private families, $4.50. 250 students last year. Buildings, apparatus & machinery entirely new. Capacity for 600 students. Ranges of study wider and expenses less than any college in Kentucky. For catalogues apply to Judge W. B. Kinkead or to JAMES K. PATTERSON, Ph. D., President of the College, Lexington, Ky.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST."
ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers
(Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

FREE!
RELIABLE SELF-CURE.

A favorite prescription of one of the most noted and successful specialists in the U. S. (now retired) for the cure of Nervous Debility, Lost Manhood, Weakness and Decay. Sent in plain sealed envelope free. Druggists can fill it. Address DR. WARD & CO., Louisiana, Mo.

PAYSON'S INDELIBLE INK

Is the BEST. No preparation. Used with any clean pen for marking any fabric. Popular for decorative work on linen. Received Centennial MEDAL & Diploma. Established 50 years. Sold by all Druggists, Stationers & News Ag'ts.

Local News.

Ice cream but no supper.

Burlington has a bad case of fleas.

Our town has another prospect for a shoemaker.

Teachers can now begin preparing for the institute.

Water-mills have had a vacation the past few days.

Hold on to your trade dollars, they are getting better.

Born—On the 6th inst., to Mrs. Laura Martin, a daughter.

Several steam threshers are in operation in the county.

Meats, meats, Tebbs Bros., Lawrenceburg have a large supply.

Tobacco growers are not much encouraged by their crops.

Thanks to Everett Walton for Bates county, Missouri papers.

No watermelons of home production have been on the market yet.

Talmage was the camp-meeting Jumbo at Corinth and Highbridge.

Burlington needs a dose of mowing-scythe administered to its weeds.

Programms announcing the meeting of the Boone county pedagogus are out.

Nearly all the young lads of the town have been provided with base-ball suits.

Farmers are not so pressed with work now, their harvest having been completed.

Ho, for Dearborn County Fair, Tebbs Bros., Lawrenceburg will have a supply for all.

We have Landreths celebrated purple top turnip seed. Tebbs Bros., Lawrenceburg, Ind.

James Conner drove some very fine cattle to market from this part of the county last week.

The shower that visited this section last Wednesday night was very refreshing to vegetation.

The katie-dids have commenced their nightly carrols, and frost may be expected in six weeks.

The bridge across the second Gunpowder on the Burlington and Florence pike has been repaired.

We delayed our paper one day this week that we might get the vote of each district for representative.

Mr. John M. Reed and wife, of Florence, made one of his semi-occasional visits to our town Tuesday.

Whether to die or not is a mere matter of taste; it is good taste to use Buckingham's Dye for the Whiskers.

Proff. P. T. Gallagher will open a ten months school in the Morgan Academy, Monday, September 3d, 1883.

Every district in the county, except Walton, Verona and Beaver, was represented at the Walton banquet.

Rev. A. M. Vardiman's residence in Covington was robbed the other night of a lot of silverware and a suit of clothes.

Joseph H. Walton sent to Scott Co., and paid $10 each for two Southdown lambs. He intends improving his flock of sheep.

Wonder if the article copied from the Rising Sun Recorder will pop up the price of real estate on Woolper and Middle Creek.

St. George's Chapel is now ornamented with a belfrey and a bell. The colored brethren can now be rung to meeting as other people are.

J. S. Balsly, of North Bend, had a large, new barn and contents destroyed by fire one day last week, supposed to have been the work of an incendiary. Loss, about $1,000, no insurance.

Jeff Crittenden Dowden fell from the fourth story of the Union Hotel in Aurora and died from the effects in a few hours. It is thought that he got up in his sleep and walked out of a dormo window.

Nice tombstones or monuments at the graves of the departed, are marks of respect which should not be neglected. Hurschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., have just what you want. John Beall, of Hebron, is their agent.

B. W. Adams, of Union, has in his possession, "Belle," the mare that he rode through the war, and which was the first nag given him by his father. She was raised by the late B. W. Sherrill, of this place, and she is about 27 years old.

Mr. Leonard Clore's daughter, in the absence of her parents, last Sunday, eloped with a Mr. Satchwell, of Carroll county. Satchwell had a friend who accompained her to Indiana, where they met and pursued the journey none knows whither.

We have before us a copy of the premium list of the 15th annual fair of the Southeastern Indiana Agricultural Society to be held at Aurora, September 4th, 5th, 6th, 7th, and 8th. The list of premiums is comprehensive and liberal and doubtless the fair will be the best ever held at that place.

Geo. Blythe and Thomas Cowen, who took the colored man, Gibson, to the Anchorage Asylum, say that the institution has all the colored patients that it can accommodate, and Dr. Gale hardly knew where to put Gibson. They saw young Hensley who was taken there a few days before and say that he is raving and has to be closely watched.

A Trip to Big Bone.

A select party under the "chaperonage" of Mr. Alfred S. Gaines, of Bullittsville, consisting of Mrs. A. S. Gaines, Pearl and Edwin, Misses Lizzie Stephens and Lula Kendall, Mr. Fred Youmans and Benj. Stephens, of Boone county, Ky., Mr. and Mrs. Frank Pfau and family, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Humphreys and daughter, Nettie, of Cincinnati, Ohio, guests of Mr. Alfred S. Gains made an early start on the morning of Friday last for this beautiful and romantic spot. The atmosphere modified by a rain the night before was cool and refreshing. After journeying over hills and dale by the way of Florence, Union and Big Bone Church, the party arrived at the Springs at about 12 o'clock tired and ravenously hungry. A great disappointment being met with here owing to the great lack of accommodations for visitors. But thanks to the genial Alfred S. Gaines, quite a favorite with the ladies, who prevailed upon the attaches of the hotel, all were provided with a sumptuous dinner, of which all eat heartily. After dinner a visit to the Springs and surrounding valleys and hills, where nature seems to hold its own, endowing the spot with great beauty. The clear babbling water as it rushes up from the earth and shaking of the surrounding grounds, make a sight never to be forgot.

No discoveries were made of the remains of the mastadon however. After lingering at this, "Natures Own," the party returned toward home, but night coming on, were hospitably entertained by Mrs. Grant, of Florence, over night. In the cool of the early morn returning to their homes delighted at their never to be forgot trip to Big Bone Springs.

Base-ball.

Between two and three hundred people witnessed the game played between the Boones and the Riverside, Ohio, team, on the grounds of the former, last Saturday. The Riversides were short two men whose places were supplied by Jack Smith and Dode Clore, of the Boones, both good players. The game was called at 3:30 p. m., with the Boones at the bats. In the first inning the Riverside pitcher sprained his ankle and carried it in a sling the balance of the game, and Dode Clore, who was in the left field, while running after a ball slipped and threw his knee out of place, which caused the second hault in the game. Clore was assisted in and Jim Beall substituted, when the game proceeded slowly to the end of the fourth inning, when the umpire, Crit Gordon, refused to call the game further, owing to the Riversides repeatedly criticizing his decisions. After some considerable caucussing a Mr. Eaton, of Indianapolis was agreed upon to complete the umpiring, when the fun again began. At the end of the fourth inning the Riversides lead by one score and in the sixth inning whitewashed the Boones and increased their score 2. At this juncture the spectators considered the game irretreavably lost to the Boones, but in the sixth inning they were convinced that very sick children sometimes get well. The Boones had three men on the bases and two men out when Chas. Fowler was called to the bat. Charles took a good grip on the willow, gritted his teeth, threw himself into Ajax's position when defying the lightning, and batted a clean two-bagger out of one of Wright's curves, letting in the three men before him, and finally made his own tally. Another run made in this inning placed the score so far ahead of the Riversides that they were unable to overcome it, and victory once more perched upon the Boones' banner.

Neither club did the playing of which it seemed capable, and especially was this the case with the Boones. Below is the score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Boones	2	1	2	0	0	5	1	1	0—12
Riverside	0	2	2	2	2	1	0	0	0— 9

NOTES.

Crit Gordon was chosen by the Riversides to call the game, and they did all the kicking.

A seat in the grand stand gave away causing some commotion, but luckily no one was hurt.

President Terrill don't allow the lemonade vendor to climb over the audience.

Elijah Howard and his camp-stool are good colectors.

Dr. Terrill makes the base-ballists feel at home on his premises.

Duncan and Fowler made a strong battery, till Duncan got a thumb disabled.

Fowler's changing victory into defeat made one of the spectators feel a half century younger.

Dr. Cropper was on hand, but it was not necessary to hold any inquests.

The Boones and Riversides met again Monday afternoon and the Riversides were again defeated. Below is the score by innings:

Innings.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9
Riverside	1	0	0	1	5	0	0	0	0— 7
Boones	0	0	8	2	0	4	1	0	..—15

Monday, Aug. 6.—

The game at Bellevue between the Speedwells and the Bellevue teams was won by the latter, by a score of 17 to 7.

In the afternoon the Speedwells beat the White Oaks by a score of 18 to 12, on the Burlington ground.

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

Miss Alice Graham is visiting friends at Greensburg, Indiana.

Dr. L. H. Piatt, of Bellevue, has been quite sick with flux the past few days.

W. H. Soards and family, of Cincinnati, are visiting friends in the Hebron neighborhood.

Mr. Shropshire, of Scott county, is visiting his daughter, Mrs. David Hogan, who lives near this place.

The Election.

The battle is over and the smoke blown away, and so far as heard from the election passed off with about the usual excitement, there being a much larger vote cast than was anticipated. Knott on the Democratic ticket, and Asbury on the Republican ticket were badly scratched. At Union several voted for Thos. L. Jones for governor. In one district a large vote was cast for M. S. Rice for County Surveyor.

The following is the vote cast for representative:

	Walton.	Scott.
Rabbit Hash	97	93
Hamilton	90	111
Bellevue	147	12
Petersburg	317	13
Florence	101	209
Burlington	273	90
Verona	103	42

The above districts are the only ones from which we could obtain the vote cast for the respective candidates for representative. Walton received majorities in other districts as follow:

Union, 21; Taylorport, 125; Beaver, 36.

Scott received a majority of 61 in the Walton distric. None of the above figures are official, but the official count will vary the majority but a few votes either way.

The above figures make Walton's majority in the county, 679.

The constitutional convention was badly snowed under in this county.

Local option carried in Hamilton district by 26 majority.

Most of the districts cast a very large vote.

It will take the official count to decide who is elected coroner.

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Hebron.

Warren Clore is finishing up the hay harvest in this neighborhood.

Wheat threshing is next in order.

Rain is badly needed, and corn will be short.

Mr. George Knap will give a ball in the Hebron Hall on the night of the 15th. It will be for his benefit, and a grand time is anticipated.

Mr. Samuel Wells was bitten by a moccasin. The snake was a very large one.

Mr. A. J. Clayton was married to Miss Anna Persa, of Fredericksburg, Ohio, on the 25 ult.

Scattersville.

We had a good rain and need more.

A good many of our farmers went to Bellevue a few Saturdays ago. Some went to see about lumber and others to buy fish, while two went for the purpose of helping the Red Oaks put it on a pick nine of that place.

We have a young man who lives not far away from here who calls himself a horse trainer, or, at least we do, for he has a sulky and one horse, and we think he has drove it long enough to break it—in two.

Fine weather for threshing, and the majority of the farmers are through. The wheat turned out as well as was expected.

James Eddins attended the reunion at Lexington. He claims that he had a good time. Wonder if he fell in love while gone.

Bullittsville.

Ben Stephens lost a pocket book containing $50 and valuable papers, but luckily for Ben it was found by Mr. Manin in his passenger wagon.

Mrs. Jane Graves and daughter, with the daughter of Jerry Graves, all of Saline county, Mo., have been visiting in the Gainesville neighborhood the past month.

Our young folks were made happy last Saturday evening by Jas. Gaines and wife, instrumental and chin music were the order of the day.

Lucy A. Rice has been spending several days with Lucy and Anna Gaines.

Fred Youmans has been appointed assistant principal in the Cin. public schools.

Susie Graves is visiting M. T. Graves

Florence X-Roads.

Harvest is one of the things of the past.

The health of the neighborhood is not good at this time, and the M. D.'s are on the go night and day.

Died—On the 31st ult., Mrs. Mary Eliza Rouse, wife of J. W. Rouse. She had not been in good health for a great while, and on the 16th ult., she took the flux, from which she died. Rev. A. J. Douglas preached her funeral in the Hebron church, after which the remains were placed in the Hebron vault. The bereaved husband has the sympathy of an extensive circle of friends and relatives.

Mrs. Rosa Barnett, of Antwerp, Ohio, when informed of the death of Mrs. Rouse, hastened to her friend's, Mrs. Strafer, of Cincinnati, thence to this place.

Cool, dry weather, and crops are suffering for rain.

The roar of the threshing machine is heard again. Wheat small yield.

A. F. Crigler is no better.

Union.

The Wesley Chapel, near Beaver was dedicated Sunday last. Bishop Cavanaugh preached the dedicatory sermon, and a grand and masterly effort it was. Bishop is now 82 years old, and yet preaches with all the energy and pathos of youth. The audience in attendance was variously estimated from 600 to 1000. Some gentlemen were curious enough to count the number of vehicles present and report 203, and there were as many horse-back riders.

Died—On Saturday evening at 6 o'clock, Squire Matson. He was buried Monday at 8 p. m., at Richwood church.

Volney Dickerson is convalescent from a severe fall

Much rain is needed to save our crops of corn and tobacco.

A protracted meeting begins Tuesday evening at the Wesley Chapel, and another on Wednesday evening at the Presbyterian church in Union.

Julius L. Bristow addressed the Union Baptist Sunday-school last Sunday.

Big Bone.

Not having an opportunity of giving the the news of our own favorite village, we take the liberty of giving a few items from this point. In the first place, we will mention that we have been engaged the past two weeks in building a vault at the cemetry here. Will complete the masonry next week, and when finished, it will be the best piece of work of the kind in the county. While here we are shareing the hospitality of Mr. John S. Mason and his estimable lady, two of the kindest and most generous people it has been our fortune to meet in a long time. During our sojourn here we have visited the celebrated Springs known as Big Bone Lick, and for the edification of those who have never seen them we would like to encourage all such to go while the opportunity offers, and they will be amply paid for their visit. The surrounding scenery is fully as romantic as the hills and valleys of Sand Run, at Francesville; but then the Springs here make it a more noted resort. The waters are said to contain many medicinal proprieties, while the odor arising from the water is fragrant and really pleasant to the smell. The accommodations for visitors are good and we cannot see why Boone county cannot boast of its watering places as well as the eastern and northern states do of resorts of its kind. During our short stay at the Springs we met several gentlemen from Europe, but whether they had come over expressly to see the Springs or not, we were not informed; but it is our opinion they had. So readers, you that have never drank of the waters of Big Bone Lick, and have never seen the Switzer land of America, we say go and satisfy your own curiosities.

The Rev. Dicken, of Bellevue, delivered a very able temperance sermon at the church at this place on last Sabbath. He gave some broad hints to those in favor of selling whisky.

There were three additions to the church at this place by baptism last Saturday. The Rev. Kirtley officiated.

Mr. Hite Clore, living in this neighborhood had the misfortune to loose one of his children, last week from cholera infantum. Mr. Clore and wife have the sympathy of the entire neighborhood.

Mr. Elijah Batterson, of Delhi, Ohio, Mr. Henry Long, of Hebron, and Mr. Thomas Howard, formerly of Bullittsville, Ky., are spending the heated term at the Big Bone Springs.

The corn and tobacco crops in this vicinity are looking well, though a good rain would be beneficial to both. Blackberries have been plenty though about gone. There will be a good many peaches in this neighborhood this season while apples there are none.

John Patmore lost quite a valuable horse one day last week, from sunstroke.

The Teachers' Institute

WILL BE HELD IN THE

MORGAN ACADEMY,

BURLINGTON, KY.

AUGUST 28th, 29th and 30th, 1883.

Programme:

FIRST DAY—Forenoon.

Organization and enrollment—10 a. m.
Opening Address.......................C. S. C.
Education.......................Prof H. Newton.
Reading, class exercises...Wm. Barkley.

AFTERNOON.

Primary Grammar...Miss Allie Carson.
Eliments of Arithmetic, class exercises.............Miss Eliza Lampton.
Queries, to be answered next morning.
Demonstration of Cube Root.............Conner Yager.
Report of Critic.

SECOND DAY—FORENOON.

Roll call and hearing excuses for absence.
Orthography and Orthoepy, class exercises....................Wm. Conner.
Penmanship.......Miss Hallie Stephens.
Miscellaneous exercises.

AFTERNOON.

Motions of the Earth and effects produced thereby.............B. F. Belle.
What should be the legal standard of morality required of teachers?......I. J. Daughters.
Queries.
Report of Critic.

THIRD DAY—FORENOON.

Grammar, class exercises......O. Snyder.
Proper method of grading teachers......Prof. Newton.
Duties of parents and school officials....Rev. Froh.

AFTERNOON.

Closing Address..................J. C. Clore.
Report of Critic.

One hour will be devoted to the examination of teachers, beginning at 9 a. m.

The law revokes the certificates of teachers who fail to attend unless they have a good excuse, and requires the Commissioner to make such entry on his record, which will be done.

All persons interested in the cause of education, and especially School Trustees, are invited.

Boarding and lodging for those who attend the Institute, at the Boone House or Central Hotel at $1 per day.

D. M. Snyder, Com'r.

In memory of our beloved little friend—
SISSIE GAINES.

Gone in the bloom of sweet maidenhood's purity—
Gone to the realms of bliss and futurity—
Safe in the haven of rest and security—
Anchored in peace on the shores of eternity,
White-robed she dwells with the saints all victorious—
Praising in rapture her Saviour so glorious.
Redeemed from all suffering and sorrowing here,
To that Heaven that knows neither anguish nor tear.

We shall miss thee, oh Sissie! thy friends here below,
Weep and grieve for the loved one, who comes never more—
A father—a mother their darling lament—
They have drained the cup of anguish, in mystery sent.
Their fairest, their youngest, their loviliest flower!
They miss thee, oh Sissie! each day and each hour!
So gentle thy words—so clinging thy ways—
Lonely and dreary without thee, will seem the sad days.

A sister, a brother thy absence bemoan—
Thy chair is left vacant—thy homestead is lone—
Thy schoolmates and teacher will miss the sweet child—
Who in play or in work, was thoughtful and mild.
Long, long they'll remember thy kindness to all—
And with fond recollection, thine image recall.
Yet we must not repine, 'nor bitterly weep—
'Nor grieve that in Jesus, thou art fallen asleep.

Yes Sissie has gone, and we'll greet her no more—
Though we long for her presence in our homes as of yore—
And with agonized heart, and fast falling tear
That mother doth yearn for her darling so dear—
But time in sweet mercy will bring us relief—
For mem'ry doth soften and sanctify grief—
Our sorrows are silvered with Hope's mystic light—
And our darlings seem near in eternity bright.

For we know that our God is all mercy and love—
He loans us our darlings—then calls them above—
They cannot return, but to them we can go—
In our Father's bright mansions—our loved ones we'll know—
Not wandering 'nor lost—but just gone before—
To welcome us home on that beautiful shore.
Then grieve not sad mother—though lonely you feel—
Our earth has no sorrow, that Heaven cannot heal.
A. C. G.

J. W. KIRKPATRICK & SON,
—BURLINGTON, KY.
UNDERTAKERS
—AND—
EMBALMERS,
Will furnish nice Hearse any reasonable distance for $10.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office over Dudley Rouse's Store.

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence,
Burlington, - - Ky.

L. C. NORMAN. H. J. STEPHENS.
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW,
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

S. W. TOLIN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - - KY
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. Aprompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.
Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.
N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.
DIRECTORS.
LEGRAN GAINES, Jeff Utz,
JNO. M. MOODY.

DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS.
R O S E
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
SALT BY THE BARREL.
R O U S E.
BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS.
The Best of Flour
PATENT & HIGH GRADE
Always on Hand, and cheaper than the cheapest.
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE.
A fresh Stock of Garden Seed at
DUDLEY ROUSE'S.

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEED,
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES.)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE.
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.
Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.
All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE
Petersburg Drug Store,
Where you can find everything in the Drug line, such as——.
Well call and see and be convinced.
Respectfully, S. C BUCHANAN.

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S
Indian Blood Syrup
Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the
BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.
TRADE MARK.
Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.
AGENTS WANTED.
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St, New York City. Druggists sell it.
D. CLARK JOHNSON:—This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever use in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. McCAMC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '83

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300,000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK.
Covington, Kentucky.
DIRECTORS.
James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green,
J. S. Matson, J. H. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H Dills, F. P. Helm,
L. C. Stephens.
The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.
The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank. dec. 20-6m

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar7-tf23 J. W. Talbott.

UNDERTAKING.

We keep Constantly on Hand all sizes of
Burial Cases and Caskets.
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES GUARANTEED LESS THAN CITY PRICES.
DAVIS BROS., - - HEBRON, KY.

KENTUCKY MILITARY INSTITUTE
At Farmdale, P. O., Franklin Co., Ky., six miles from Frankfort. Has the most healthful and beautiful location in the State. Lit by gas as well as heated by steam. A full and able College Faculty. Expenses as moderate as any first-class college. Fortieth year begins Sept. 3. For Catalogues, etc., address as above COL. R. D. ALLEN, Supt.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL, Publishers.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY

LEFT ALONE AT EIGHTY.

Put up the old pipe, my dear,
I couldn't smoke to-day;
I'm sort of dazed and frightened,
And don't know what to say.
It's lonesome in the house here,
And lonesome out of door,
I never knew what lonesome meant
In all my life before.

The bees go humming the whole day long,
And the first June rose has blown;
And I am eighty, I am to-day—
Too old to be left alone.
O Heart of Love, so still and cold!
O precious lips, so white!
For the first sad hours in sixty years,
You were out of my reach last night.

I can't rest now—I can not rest;
Let the old man have his will,
And wander from porch to garden-post,
The house is so deathly still—
Wander and long for a sight of the gate
She has left ajar for me.
We had got used to each other, dear—
So used to each other, you see.

Sixty years, and so wise and good!
She made me a better man
From the moment I kissed her fair, young face,
And our lovers' life began.
And I held her hand—was it yesterday
That we stood up to be wed?
And—no, I remember: I'm eighty to-day,
And my dear, loving wife is dead.

—Christian at Work.

DOWN IN A DIVING-BELL.

Deep Sea Diving Experiences—A Veteran Diver in the Briny Deep Who Found His Long-Lost Wife in a Sunken Hulk—A Queer Life on Land, and a Queerer Life in the Sea.

He was a queer-looking man, with shaggy eye-brows overhanging sharp, bright eyes, set deep in their sockets, a prominent nose, a sallow complexion, a slow, shuffling gait, a lank, bony frame, slightly stooped with the burdens of some fifty odd winters and summers. He was wandering, apparently quite aimlessly, among the sailors who frequent the warf in front of the Lumberman's Exchange, at the end of Franklin street.

"Who is that man?" a Herald reporter inquired of a lake shipper, with whom he had observed the stranger in conversation a few minutes before.

"That—that's Holmes, the famous ocean diver. He lives in the East, but I understand he's on his way to the Pacific coast just now to manage a difficult job of raising a valuable cargo, which went down during the April storms near Seattle. He's a man who could tell stories which would make your hair stand on end, if he had a mind to."

"Go go and see him, then," said the reporter.

A few moments later the twain, the reporter and the old sea dog, were seated comfortably in a cool place, the breeze playing with the scant crop of hair on Mr. Holmes' head. While sipping a cooling beverage the old diver gradually filtered out reminiscences, about in the proportion of one to every tumbler he emptied.

"It's a queer business," he said, "and it seems the queerer the longer you're in it. The way I got into it was this: I was born in 'Little Rhody,' not far from Newport, nearly half a century ago. In my young days I followed the seafaring trades, and I've been to most every country and climate on the globe—in Brazil as well as on the African Gold Coast, in the East Indies and in China. On a British vessel I was for some time in the opium smuggling trade. I've visited nearly every port on the Mediterranean shore as well as on the Black Sea. Well, being back home one day from a long trip, there was considerable talk over a slave vessel which had been pursued by a cruiser, and had been scuttled and sunk in Newport harbor a number of years ago. How the rumor started I don't know, but anyhow the papers at that time, about '52, told long yarns about the wealth that was hidden in the vessel, the gold dust and ivory, and so forth. A proposition was made to me to go down in a diving bell, which had just come into practical use about that time, and investigate the hulk. I had always been a good diver and could hold my breath an awful long time. But I lacked experience as a practical diver. Well, I undertook the job for a good, round sum. This was the means of my leaving seafaring and engaging in the profession of a diver. As I said before, it's a queer calling, and one never gets used to it. It isn't for the fun I do it, it's for the money I earn. I own a fine little farm and a cozy cottage in Rhode Island, not far from Woonsocket, and have a couple of thousands in the bank—all made by diving. Besides, I own a complete outfit, and that is worth considerable money. Married and children? Well, yes, and no. You see, the way of it was this. After I married, my young wife didn't like my trade and my long absences from home, and she ran off in 1857 with an old shipmate of mine to the gold fields of California, while I was attending to a job on the New Jersey coast. She took all the money with her I had saved up for her and our two children. I heard nothing of her for a number of years. It was in 1863, when I had to go down to save the mail and the cash freight of the Antelope, a passenger clipper vessel running between San Francisco and New York, that had foundered in a stormy night near Cape Hatteras on her trip East. I was then diving in my armor suit, that being much more handy and expedient than the bell. I was down in the cabin groping my way to the safe when a corpse stuck fast in my armor. It proved to be a woman's body. She was poorly dressed, and had a nursing in her arms. The body floated face down in the water, but in tearing myself away from it the face turned almost beneath my eyes, and met mine with a glassy stare. It was my Annie's face, my wife's. It gave me an awful turn, down there under the water, and for a moment I felt faint. But I had the body hauled up to the surface, and afterward had it buried near our old home. I made inquiries in Californy. Her letters and papers in her pocket had already given me a clue, and on that I worked. I found that my faithless wife had married Charles Rumsey, for whom she had deserted me, and had borne several children to him. Only two of these lived, besides the two she had borne to me, when Charlie left her. Then she had thought of me, but had vainly endeavored to obtain my address. On her way East to find me she had met her dreadful fate on board the Antelope. I went to Californy, fetched the children home, and have treated them since as if they were all my own, and when I die I'll leave them equal shares of my property. They've been educated carefully at my expense, and they are all well established in life now, and don't know anything of their mother's shame.

"Now you've heard a bit of my own private troubles, of which every man has a peck or two, I reckon," remarked Holmes reflectively. "One does see awful things sometimes down in these vessels on the bottom of the sea. The first time that I did some work that made me feel bad was in '54. A three-masted schooner, a fishing vessel belonging to Bedford, Mass., had broken in two on a reef not many miles from port. It was early in spring, just about the time of the 'aquenackshels.' That part of the vessel containing the cabin seemed to be well preserved, as could be seen on any clear day looking down into the depth. And it was in there that 'Capting' Willis had kept his little pile. He must have been a queer nut if half the stories the people told about him were true. He never would leave any money on shore, thinking his vessel a much safer bank than any on terra firmy. Well, he and his whole crew had gone down, and so I undertook the job of getting at the old man's pile if I could. On a fine afternoon in the latter part of April I went down in my suit. Everything went all right till I stalked into the cabin. There was the 'capting's' berth, and I made for that. It was dark in there, and I bumped my head against various objects repeatedly. Finally I got to the berth where I understood the money was. Feeling my way, my hand ran against something soft and shifting. What do you think it was? The 'capting,' sure enough. He had got his head tightly wedged in between the ceiling and his bedclothes, and both his arms were in there, too, while his legs and body stuck out, bobbing up and down with the motion of the water. I set him loose, and then I found that his hands were clasped around a big oilcloth bag. It was with great difficulty I could detach the corpse's hands from it. His ruling passion had been strong even in death. When the body had been hauled up it was seen that the face wore a look of iron determination, as if he had resolved to save his gold or perish. His widow is still living in comfortable style on the money left her in that bag. That was a real little adventure, but there are often times when a man gets scared at nothing.

"Once I remember I was overhauling the wreck of a steamer that lay in ten fathoms of water on the Florida coast. There were a good many passengers of all sorts that had perished with the vessel. Bodies, you know, act very strange when confined in a closed space under the water. They are buoyed up by the pressure from below and can't get out. So they all float under the ceiling. And that was the case when I entered the dining saloon of the steamer, into which the unfortunate passengers had fled half-clad to escape on deck, but had drowned before reaching it. The sight of it was enough to make any one feel that he's got nerves. Mothers and fathers in their night robes, pressing their children to their bosoms; husbands and wives clasped in each other's arms to meet death unitedly; one couple, probably lately married or lovers, had their lips sealed in one last parting kiss. While disentangling myself from all these bodies that would get twisted up with the pipe and the connecting line on my armor, and thus endanger my safety, I all to onst caught sight of a horrible-looking object right opposite me. It stood upright, and was more than a man's size, black in appearance, and with tremendous big goggles in the place of eyes. As often as I would move, my 'vicy versy' would move too. I felt a chill creeping over me when I saw that the object was getting nearer and nearer as I approached the wall. Whether the monster was a fish or what it was I couldn't decide, but I quickly made up my mind it was to be either me or him, so I drew my knife and made for it. Coming nearer, what was my surprise to find that the terrible object was merely the reflection of my own self in a large mirror made indistinct by the water. That was about the worst scare I ever had in the course of my professional experience.

"Danger from fish, did you say? No, not generally, and not the way people imagine. It ain't sharks and devil fish that trouble us. It's these little critters, jelly fish, sun fish, algae, and the like, that we're afraid of. They clog up the armor and impede our movements, after threatening to break the connection between the diver below and the boat above water. And it's that danger, too, that one has to fear with big fishes powerful enough to break the line with a single blow of their tail. Sharks? Not much. I never heard of a diver that was attacked by a shark. And if it came to a submarine duel between such a beast and the diver, the latter would have all the odds in his favor.

"There's been a good many improvements made in the diving business since I've been in it. The world does move, even in our profession. The rig-out of a diver nowadays, if everything is first-class, is a very expensive thing, often costing $600 and over. The top, head and shoulder gear weigh about eighty pounds, and each boot twenty pounds, so you see I carry 120 pounds in addition to my own weight when I go down to the bottom. Once below, the heavy weight on the soles of the feet are no more noticeable than a pair of ordinary boots would be in walking the streets. The buoyancy of the water counterbalances the weight, you see.

"Is there a limit to the depth in which a diver can work? Certainly there is; seventy to one hundred feet is about the average depth in which one can work with anything like ease, and two hundred feet is as deep as anybody has dared to go for practical purposes. Most of the diving work is done at a depth of fifty feet or less. It's dark and dismal enough that deep, especially when the sky is overcast or during the cool seasons. But that last bother is pretty near done away with now, since electric lights have come into fashion, by means of which a man can go down and see as clear as daylight in the darkest nook of a vessels hold. That's a very good thing, as it saves much trouble and money, and often allows the owners of vessels to have a leak mended in a few hours' time by the diver, when formerly it took weeks on the dry docks, occasioning an outlay of thousands of dollars. But now I'll bid you good day, Mr. Herald; you know about as much of the diving business now as I do."—Chicago Herald.

—Miss Nannie Lee and her sister, aged twelve years, attempted to cross Buck Creek, Ky., on horseback. The horse's feet became entangled, and he threw the girls into the stream. Nannie had sunk twice when her sister caught her by the hair, and the horse swam to them. The younger sister caught him by the tail with one hand, and, holding Nannie with the other, they all reached the shore safely. The horse started home on a gallop, and neighed as if in great trouble; but, getting no one to notice him, started back at full speed to the girls. Finding them both alive and on their way home, he ran up to them, rubbed his head on their shoulders and neighed as if he was very glad to see them alive.—Chicago News.

—In a garden at Bowling Green, Ky., is a bush that bears a large deep red rose, with two perfect small roses in the center which are miniature copies of the big one.—N. O. Picayune.

THE DAIRY.

—Cream from Jersey cattle is said to require less churning than that of any other breed.

—The purest butter ever made may become tainted and poisoned in one short hour by objectionable surroundings.

—The Farm Journal says, the cow that loses her milk ought to be milked three times a day. This is the best remedy.

—A Hollander's maxims: When you see a good cow buy her. When you have a good cow keep her. When you find you have a bad cow sell her.

—The practice of feeding whey to cows in Herkimer County, N. Y., proved injurious to cheese and has been discontinued.

—Thus far this season the exports of butter show an immense increase over those of a corresponding period last year, while those of cheese exhibit a marked decrease.

—Henry Stewart says that when a dairyman intends to permanently pasture his cows, he can recommend the common quack grass as a splendid early pasture, orchard grass next, then red-top and blue grass, with white clover mixed in; and red clover or lucerne to help out deficiencies. He considers these the most productive milk materials.

—New York parties are now engaged in exporting milk to Europe. The milk is cooled as soon as drawn from the cow, placed in glass cans which are hermetically sealed, and then placed in cases, covered with ice. The only attention needed while en route is to occasionally have the ice renewed. The milk arrives in London in good condition and is pronounced to be as good as that obtained there. Quite an export trade may grow out of the venture.

—Butter that has been washed in pure cold water until the buttermilk is all extracted will not require the excessive working so often necessary to take out the buttermilk when not washed. Butter thus washed will be less liable to have the oily look which it gets often by too much working, especially if done with the hand. It will require less salt to keep it and have the fine waxen appearance that forms so great a part of the attractiveness of the "gilt-edge" butter. Great care should be taken to have the water pure and of a temperature not exceeding 8°, about the temperature of cold well-water, and it will be still better if a little ice is used, and the temperature lowered to 40°.

—Cows in milk drink from twenty-seven to fifty quarts of water a day and farmers should bear this fact in mind these hot days and see that the cows have a full supply, for without it no good result can reasonably be expected from the milk yield. It must also be remembered that cows are a lazy set and they will suffer much for the want of water on a hot day before they will walk far to get it. It is, therefore, a good idea to pasture them in lots far from good water only on cool days when they will have no serious objection to taking long walks. This is one of the points that a dairyman should use discretion in.

Making Skimmed Milk Cheese.

Skim-milk cheese of a very good quality may be made as follows: The milk is warmed to 80° by heating a portion up to 160 and adding it to about three times as much of the milk as it comes from the coolers. It would not be advisable to let the milk stand, as it sours rapidly in warm air, after coming from the cooler. A wooden tub is the best for setting the curd, as it retains the heat of the milk and hastens the action of the rennet. The tub should have a spigot at the bottom with a strainer over the hole inside to let out the whey. The temperature should not go over 80, and if a soft cheese is desired 72° would be better. When the milk has been thoroughly stirred and evenly warmed through, the rennet is well stirred into it. This is made by steeping the salted and dried stomach of an unweaned calf in warm water for twelve hours previously. For one hundred quarts of milk at 80°, half an ounce of rennet steeped in a pint and a half of tepid water for twelve hours should be sufficient. The curd should come in about thirty minutes; when the curd breaks as the finger is drawn through it, it is cut with a long blade; a piece of thin, straight hoop iron ground to an edge and put in a handle makes a good curd knife. The curd is cut in lines an inch apart both ways and is left for the whey to separate. After standing twenty or twenty-five minutes, some of the whey is drawn off and heated to 150 or 160 degrees and enough of it poured over the curd, which is well stirred with the hot whey to bring it up to 100 degrees or until it is hot enough for the hand to bear comfortably. The tub is covered to keep in the heat and the curd left for twenty-five or thirty minutes. The whey is again drawn off and the curd broken up finely with the hand; then the hot whey is returned, the whole stirred again and brought up to the former heat once more. The curd should be stirred now and then to prevent it adhering together. The tub is then covered and the curd left until it is hard enough to squeak when bitten by the teeth. A better test is the hot iron test: this is to take an iron rod, as a stove poker, and make it black hot and not red; when the curd touched to this hot iron adheres and makes strings when drawn from it, the curd is cooked enough. The whey is then drained off and the curd cooled and broken up fine. Salt is mixed with it at the rate of an ounce for twenty pounds of milk, or the salt may be added afterwards by rubbing it on the cheese.

The curd is evenly mixed and put into the hoop. This is a wooden ring of the size the cheese is to be. The ring is lined with a cloth which is folded down over the curd. The hoop is then put under a press and pressed for tweve hours. It is then taken out carefully, wrapped in a fresh cloth, turned and again put in the press for twenty-four hours. It is then taken from the hoop, left to dry for an hour and then well greased with lard or butter and put on a shelf and turned and rubbed daily for forty or sixty days. No bandage is required for home-made cheese. By using a hoop perforated at the sides and with covers like those of a box at each end, the cheese may be made without pressing if the curd is put in warm and as soon as it is drained from the whey. The curd is dipped into the hoop, the bottom cover being first put on; the top cover is then put on. After the curd has stood a few minutes the hoop is reversed and the curd falls to the bottom, and by so reversing it several times after short intervals, the curd soon becomes firm enough to be taken from the hoop. If not salted before it is now rubbed and turned daily.—Rural New Yorker.

—The firemen of Boston are allowed a vacation of ten days each year.

Auction Snaps.

"Do we sell goods for less than they're worth? Well, I hope you don't take us for fools," said the auctioneer.

"But how do you work it?"

"Dummies."

"What's a dummy?"

"A man who bids for us. You see, before we begin a sale we set our minimum price on everything in stock. If two or more men get to bidding honestly, of course we don't need the dummy's bid, but if only one man seems to want the article, the dummy bids him up to the minimum figure and then keeps still. The auctioneer takes care of the rest. If he thinks the customer will stand another rise he pretends to recognize a bid from the dummy. If the customer doesn't raise that the dummy declares he didn't bid, so the article is knocked down at the price last named by the customer. Sometimes we do 'em up on the double-bid scheme."

"What's that?"

"Well, say the customer bids $10 for a watch. If we can't get a better bid, we declare it sold for $10. The dummy steps up and says that was his bid, and the customer does the same. The auctioneer settles the dispute by selling it again, and nine times out of ten a customer will pay a dollar more just to keep the dummy from beating him. A man is always willing to pay something for having revenge."—Chicago Herald.

A Philosophic Mexican.

I heard of a Mexican living near Socorro, N. M., whose thrift has amassed him a fortune, all in bullion, which he is said to keep under the floor of his house. He demands invariably thirty days time in which to pay for purchases, however small, and, promptly on the day that payment becomes due, he turns up with bullion to the amount of the bill exactly weighed out. But even what he has did not come from trade, but from a silver mine that he has worked for years with only occasional help. His adobe hut is little better than the common run of mud hovels that are called houses hereabouts. His family has been raised on the staple diet of beans and jerked beef, with two or three mixtures of corn, and he expects to go to the grave with as little comfort as surrounds him now. Some one asked him not long since why he did not take his family traveling and avail himself as well as them of the means at his command to see something of the world. "I am happy where I am," he replied. "If I see more I shall want more, and my savings might slip away, while by staying here and knowing of nothing beyond I shall be sure of taking care of myself. When what I have falls to my children they may judge for themselves how to take care of it. My way is to keep it at home."—Santa Fe (N. M.) Cor. Boston Herald.

A Brave Deed.

A Boston paper tells this story of a gentleman who placed his wife and children upon an outgoing steamer and remained upon the wharf to catch a final glimpse of his dear ones. He leaned against a post to which one of the steamer's ropes had been made fast. As the boat moved out the rope was loosened, and a crack in the post suddenly closed with a vice-like grip upon one of the gentleman's hands, badly crushing it, and causing agonizing pain. With rare nerve and thoughtfulness for his wife, who was watching him, he made no outcry, but composedly waived his handkerchief with the other hand until the boat moved slowly out of sight. Not till then did he make known his situation to the bystanders. With much difficulty the hand was freed, and was found to be so severely injured that amputation was necessary.

—Some of the laws which Bismarck has got engrafted on the German statute books are ridiculous. One of them prescribes that a peddler shall behave politely, clean his boots when entering a house and bow to the owner while offering his wares. Another prescribes that public showmen, dancing-masters, theater directors must satisfy the police as to their good moral character, and their license can at any time be withdrawn, thus preventing a large investment in a business of this character.—Chicago Journal.

—President George B. Roberts, of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, live in a house near Merrion, Montgomery County, Pa., which has been occupied by his own family for nearly twenty years. The twentieth anniversary is to be celebrated in September. Mr. Roberts is of Welsh descent, and his ancestors were among the first settlers in Montgomery County.—Philadelphia Press.

—How many know that a horse gets up before and a cow gets up behind, and the cow eats from her and the horse eats to him. How many know that a surveyor's mark upon a tree never gets any higher from the ground, or what trees bear fruit without bloom?—Chicago Herald.

—Fashionable New York tailors say they have orders for several hundred pairs of kee-breeches for next winter.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, August 3, 1883.

LIVE STOCK—Cattle—common	$2 [illegible]	@ [illegible]
Choice butchers	4 50	@ 5 25
HOGS—Common	4 65	@ 5 35
Good packers	5 35	@ 5 50
SHEEP	3 50	@ 4 50
FLOUR—Family	5 25	@ 5 75
GRAIN—Wheat—Long berry red	1 10	@
No. 2 winter red	1 05	@ 1 06
Corn—No. 2 mixed	49½	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed	34	@
Rye—No. 2	56	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	10 50	@ 11 50
HEMP—Double dressed	8	@ 9
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	15 50	@ 16 00
Lard—Steam	8½	@
BUTTER—Western Reserve	30	@ 32
Prime Creamery	25	@ 28
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per bar. from store	2 15	@ 2 50
Apples, prime, per barrel	4 00	@ 4 50

NEW YORK.

FLOUR—State and Western	$3 40	@ 4 00
Good to choice	4 50	@ 6 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 13	@ 1 13¼
No. 1 white	1 13½	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	52½	@ 60¼
Oats—mixed	36	@ 40
PORK—Mess	15 62½	@

CHICAGO.

FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@ 4 25
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 03½	@ 1 00
Corn—No. 2	49¾	@ 49¾
Oats—No. 2	25¼	@ 28½
Rye	56	@ 56½
PORK—Mess	13 10	@ 13 12½
LARD—Steam	8 37½	@ 8 40

BALTIMORE.

FLOUR—Family	$5 25	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 15½	@ 1 15¾
Corn—mixed	59	@
Oats—mixed	40	@ 42
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	16 50	@
Lard—Refined	10⅜	@

LOUISVILLE.

FLOUR—A No. 1	$4 25	@ 4 50
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red, new	1 00	@ 1 03
Corn—mixed	51	@
Oats—mixed	28	@
PORK—MESS	15 25	@

INDIANAPOLIS.

WHEAT—No. 2 red, new	$1 04½	@
CORN—mixed	43	@ 44
OATS—mixed	29	@ 32
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	2 75	@ 4 50
Shipping cattle	5 25	@ 6 50

Dangerous Soda Water.

Dr. George Hay, of Pittsburg, writes to the Philadelphia Medical Times: "The other day I walked into a drug store in Pittsburg, and was soon engaged in conversation with the druggist. 'My soda water has a strange taste,' observed the pharmacopolist. He drew a little of the water, and I tasted it. I then requested him to put up half a pint of it in a clean bottle, and told him that I would take it to my laboratory and examine it. This I have done, and I find the water to be dangerously impregnated with copper—in proof of which I enclose a small piece of iron heavily coated with metallic copper, which coating was derived from only two fluid ounces of the soda water. The copper no doubt existed in this water as carbonate of copper, held in solution by excess of carbonic acid, and was doubtless derived from the saturators, which are in all cases made of that metal, and, I believe, generally coated inside with tin. By and by, however, the tin gets dissolved (as carbonate held in solution in excess of carbonic acid), and then (if not before) the copper is exposed. I say nothing about tin here, as I have not examined for it."

Beautiful Women
are made pallid and unattractive by functional irregularities, which Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription" will infallibly cure. Thousands of testimonials. By druggists.

THE bootblack shines while he works, but the lazy man whines while he shirks.—N. Y. Journal.

"GOLDEN MEDICAL DISCOVERY" is not only a sovereign remedy for consumption, but also for consumptive night-sweats, bronchitis, coughs, influenza, spitting of blood, weak lungs, shortness of breath, and kindred affections of the throat and chest. By druggists.

BLOSSON calls accompaniments "bald-headed music"—because they haven't got any air.—Burlington Free Press.

DR. PIERCE'S "Pellets"—little liver pills (sugar-coated)—purify the blood, speedily correct all disorders of the liver, stomach and bowels. By druggists.

ROEBLING has resigned from the charge of the Brooklyn bridge, and it can be said of him that he is an engineer without a pier.

HAY-FEVER. I have used Ely's Cream Balm for Hay-Fever, and have experienced great relief. I recommend it as the best of all the remedies I have tried. T. B. JENKS, Lawyer, Grand Rapids, Mich. Price 50 cts.

A MAN can afford to lose a bad temper, and by not advertising for its return make money.

WALTERBORO, S. C.—Dr. J. M. Klein says: "Brown's Iron Bitters gives universal satisfaction."

THERE is seldom any danger in intrusting a secret to a distiller. He knows how to keep still.—Somerville Journal.

For years I have been afflicted with Hay-Fever. I gave Ely's Cream Balm a trial. The relief was immediate. I regard myself cured. G. SCHREIBER, Supt. of Cordage Co., Elizabeth, N. J. Price 50 cents.

BEATS awl—the shoe machine.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

NOT a drink, not sold in bar-rooms, but a reliable, non-intoxicating tonic medicine, useful at all times, and in all seasons, is Brown's Iron Bitters.

"OUIDA" has had a town in Dakota named after her. It must be a novel place.

CONYERS, GA.—Dr. W. H. Lee says: "Brown's Iron Bitters is a good medicine and many are using it in this place."

LITTLE gold pigs are worn as ornaments—probably because they are stylish.

INVENTORS' HAND-BOOK—FREE.—Just out. How great fortunes have been made. History of inventions; valuable to all who read and think. Order it by postal card. N. W. Fitzgerald, Solicitor, Washington, D. C.

THE turn of the "tied"—starting homeward after the wedding trip.—Oil City Derrick.

Glenn's Sulphur Soap
Supersedes oily unguents or salves for cutaneous eruptions.

EVEN when trade is rather dull in other lines, there is generally a bustle in dry goods stores.

TORNADOES.

Scientifically Accounted for, and Some Remote Causes that Produce Painful Results Explained.

The following synopsis of a lecture delivered by Dr. Horace R. Hamilton before the New York Society for the Promotion of Science contains so much that is timely and important that it can be read with both interest and profit:

There is probably no subject of modern times that has caused and is causing greater attention than the origin of tornadoes. Scientists have studied it for the benefit of humanity; men have investigated it for the welfare of their families. It has been a vexed subject long considered, and through all this investigation the cyclone has swept across the land carrying destruction to scientists as well as to the innocent dwellers in its track. One thing, however, is certain; the cause of the cyclone must be sought far away from the whirling body of wind itself. Its results are powerful; its cause must also be powerful. Let us therefore consider a few facts. First, the appearance of a cyclone is invariably preceded by dark spots upon the face of the sun. These spots, indicating a disturbed condition of the solar regions, necessarily affect the atmosphere of our earth. An unusual generation of heat in one part of the atmosphere is certain to cause a partial vacuum in another portion. Air must rush in to fill this vacuum. Hence the disturbances—hence the cyclone. This theory finds additional confirmation in the fact that tornadoes come during the day and not at night. The dark spots upon the surface of the sun, whatever they may be, seem to cause great commotion in the atmosphere of the world, and it is almost certain that the extremely wet weather of the present season can be accounted for on precisely this basis. Is it reasonable to suppose that the marvelous effect of the sun on vegetation and life in general shall be less than upon the atmosphere itself through which its rays come? The cause is remote, but the effect is here.

After describing some of the terrible effects of the cyclone, the speaker went on to say:—

This rule finds its application in nearly every department of life. An operator is in San Francisco—the click of the instrument manipulated by his fingers, in New York. The President makes a slight stroke of the pen in his study at the White House, and the whole nation is aroused by the act. An uneasiness and disgust with everything in life, commonly called home-sickness, is felt by many people, when the cause is to be found in the distant home thousands of miles away. An uncertain pain may be felt in the head. It is repeated in other parts of the body. The appetite departs and all energy is gone. Is the cause necessarily to be found in the head? The next day the feeling increases. There are added symptoms. They continue and become more aggravated. The slight pains in the fee'd increase to agonies. The nausea becomes chronic. The heart grows irregular, and the breathing uncertain. All these effects have a definite cause; and, after years of deep experience upon this subject, I do not hesitate to say that this cause is to be found in some derangement of the kidneys or liver far away from that portion of the body in which these effects appear. But one may say, I have no pain whatever in my kidneys or liver. Very true. Neither have we any evidence that there is a tornado on the surface of the sun; but it is none the less certain that the tornado is here, and it is none the less certain that these great organs of the body are the cause of the trouble although there may be no pain in their vicinity.

I know whereof I speak, for I have passed through this very experience myself. Nearly ten years ago, I was the picture of health, weighing more than 200 pounds, and as strong and healthy as any man I ever knew. When I felt the symptoms I have above described, they caused me annoyance, not only by reason of their aggravating nature, but because I had never felt any pain before. Other doctors told me I was troubled with malaria, and I treated myself accordingly. I did not believe, however, that malaria could show such aggravated symptoms. It never occurred to me that analysis would help solve the trouble, as I did not presume my difficulty was located in that portion of the body. But I continued to grow worse. I had a faint sensation at the pit of my stomach nearly every day. I felt a great desire to eat, and yet I loathed food. I was constantly tired and still I could not sleep. My brain was unusually active, but I could not think connectedly. My existence was a living misery. I continued in this condition for nearly a year; never free from pain, never for a moment happy. Such an existence is far worse than death, for which I confess I earnestly longed.

It was while suffering thus that a friend advised me to make a final attempt to recover my health. I sneered inwardly at his suggestion, but I was too week to make any resistance. He furnished me with a remedy, simple yet palatable, and within two days I observed a slight change for the better. This awakened my courage. I felt that I would not die at that time. I continued the use of the remedy, taking it in accordance with directions, until I became not only restored to my former health and strength, but of greater vigor than I have before known. This condition has continued up to the present time, and I believe I should have died as miserably as thousands of other men have died and are dying every day had it not been for the simple yet wonderful power of Warner's Safe Cure, the remedy I employed.

The lecturer then described his means of restoration more in detail, and concluded as follows:

My complete recovery has caused me to investigate the subject more carefully, and I believe I have discovered the key to most ill-health of our modern civilization. I am fully confident that four-fifths of the diseases which afflict humanity might be avoided were the kidneys and liver kept in perfect condition. Were it possible to control the action of the sun, cyclones could undoubtedly be averted. That, however, is one of the things that can not be. But I rejoice to say that it is possible to control the kidneys and liver; to render their action wholly normal and their effect upon the system that of purifiers rather than poisoners. That this end has been accomplished largely by means of the remedy I have named I do not have a doubt, and I feel it my duty to make this open declaration for the enlightenment of the profession and for the benefit of suffering humanity in all parts of the world.

HARRY thinks that the locomotive is the most faithful car "conductor" in the world.—Golden Days.

ONE pair of boots or shoes saved every year by using Lyon's Patent Metallic Heel Stiffeners.

REDDING'S Russia Salve is the most wonderful healing medium in the world. Try it.

Skinny Men. "Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer
Is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which Sulphur, Sugar of Lead and Nitrate of Silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. JOHN D. PARK & SONS, Wholesale Agents, Cincinnati, Ohio, and C. N. CRITTENTON, New York.

Wells' "Rough on Corns." 15c. Ask for it. Complete, permanent cure. Corns, bunions.

FOR burns, scalds, bruises, chapped hands, sores or piles, use St. Patrick's Salve.

Don't Die in the House. "Rough on Rats," clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs. 15c.

THE button-holes of Chrolithion Collar and Cuffs are made so they will not tear out like other kinds.

Flies, roaches, ants, bed-bugs, rats, mice, crows, cleared out by "Rough on Rats." 15c.

IF afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 25c.

Stinging, irritation, all Kidney and Bladder Complaints, cured by "Buchu-Paiba." $1.

GOOD NEWS FROM TEXAS.

MR. THOMAS A. HOWARD, of Honey Grove, Fannin County, Texas, under date of April 5, 1883, writes as follows:

"I have been suffering during several years from severe illness, and a general breaking down of my physical system, and have tried the treatment and prescriptions of many doctors far and near, and traveled to the Hot Springs and other mineral springs famous for their remedial qualities, drinking the waters and bathing systematically in their healing depths, but all to no avail, as I steadily failed in health; and although informed by my physicians that my ailments and weaknesses were the result of kidney disease of a dangerous character, they could give me nothing to cure me. During the past two years my sufferings at times were dreadful, and I had the most indescribable pains in the regions about the kidneys, the paroxysms of which were so severe as to render it impossible for me to sleep. While in this deplorable and discouraged condition I was persuaded to try Hunt's Remedy, and after using less than half a bottle my great sufferings and paroxysms of pain were entirely relieved, and I could sleep better and longer than I had in two years before, and although I am now on my third bottle only my improvement is very remarkable, and I regret that I did not know of the wonderful curative powers of Hunt's Remedy before, as it would have saved me years of suffering. I heartily recommend it to all afflicted with any kidney disease or disease of the urinary organs."

"HIT MY CASE EXACTLY."

"Please allow me to speak in the highest terms of "Hunt's Remedy," for it hit my case exactly. I had kidney and urinary trouble pretty bad. I was recommended Hunt's Remedy. I took one teaspoonful as directed. I felt a decided change at the first dose. I took two bottles, and have felt like a new man ever since. Please receive the sincere thanks of myself for the benefits which I sought vainly for and found only in Hunt's Remedy.

"I will cheerfully give this same opinion of Hunt's Remedy to any one who wishes it, by addressing

"ROBERT D. ARCHER,
"811 Linnard Street, Philadelphia.
"March 14, 1883."

Home Items.

—All your own fault
If you remain sick when you can Get hop bitters that never—Fail.

—The weakest woman, smallest child, and sickest invalid can use hop bitters with safety and great good.

—Old men tottering around from Rheumatism, kidney trouble or any weakness will be almost new by using hop bitters.

—My wife and daughter were made healthy by the use of hop bitters and I recommend them to my people.—Methodist Clergyman.

—Ask any good doctor if hop
Bitters are not the best family medicine
On earth.

—Malarial fever, Ague and Billousness, will leave every neighborhood as soon as hop bitters arrive.

—"My mother drove the paralysis and neuralgia all out of her system with hop bitters."—Ed. Oswego Sun.

—Keep the kidneys healthy with hop bitters and you need not fear sickness.

—Ice water is rendered harmless and more refreshing and reviving with hop bitters in each draught.

—The vigor of youth for the aged and infirm in hop bitters!

—"At the change of life nothing equals
Hop bitters to allay all troubles incident Thereto."

—"The best periodical for ladies to take monthly and from which they will receive the greatest benefit is hop bitters."

—Mothers with sickly, fretful, nursing children, will cure the children and benefit themselves by taking hop bitters daily.

—Thousands die annually from some form of kidney disease that might have been prevented by a timely use of hop bitters.

—Indigestion, weak stomach, irregularities of the bowels, can not exist when hop bitters are used.

—A timely * * * use of hop
Bitters will keep a whole family
In robust health a year at a little cost.

—To produce real genuine sleep and child-like repose all night, take a little hop bitters on retiring.

—That indigestion or stomach gas at night, preventing rest and sleep, will disappear by using hop bitters.

—Paralytic, nervous, tremulous old ladies are made perfectly quiet and sprightly by using hop bitters.

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, by increasing vital power, and rendering the physical functions regular and active, keeps the system in good working order, and protects it against disease. For constipation, dyspepsia and liver complaint, nervousness, kidney and rheumatic ailments, it is invaluable, and it affords a sure defense against malarial fevers, besides removing all traces of such disease from the system. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

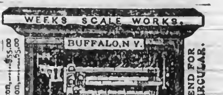
CATARRH ELY'S CREAM BALM

when applied by the finger into the nostrils, will be absorbed, effectually cleansing the head of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membrane of the nasal passages from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores taste and smell. A few applications relieve. A thorough treatment will positively cure. Agreeable to use. Send for circular. Price 50 cents by mail or at druggists. Ely Brothers, Owego, N. Y.

HAY-FEVER

MILL STONES,
Under & Upper Runner Mills
J. W. Pyne's Purifier,
Dufour & Co's Bolting Cloth,
BELTING,
SHAFTING, PULLEYS and GEARING,
Wheat Cleaning Machinery of all makes.
We can furnish anything needed by millers. Send for descriptive catalogue. Address plainly THOS. BRADFORD & CO., 174, 176 and 178 W. Second St., Cincinnati, O.

Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass TARE BEAM. JONES, HE PAYS THE FREIGHT. Sold on trial. Warrants 5 years. All sizes as low. For free book, address
JONES OF BINGHAMTON,
BINGHAMTON, N. Y.



WEEKS SCALE WORKS.
BUFFALO, N.Y.
3-ton,—$55.00
4-ton,—$55.00
SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE to sell the best Family Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit a pair of stockings with HEEL and TOE complete in twenty minutes. It will also knit a great variety of fancy-work for which there is always a ready market. Send for circular and terms to the Twombly Knitting Machine Co., 163 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

$65 A MONTH and BOARD for three live Young Men or Ladies, in each county. Address P. W. ZIEGLER & Co., Philadelphia.

AGENTS Coin Money by selling Dr. Chase's Family Physician and Second Receipt Book. $2. Address A. W. HAMILTON & CO., Ann Arbor, Mich.

80 Sheets fine writing paper in Blotter Tablet, with calendar, 2 cts., by mail. Agents wanted. Economy Printing Co., Newburyport, Mass.

OPIUM and WHISKY HABITS cured at home without pain. Book of particulars sent free. B. M. WOOLLEY, M. D., Atlanta, Ga.

AGENTS make money selling our Family Medicines; no capital required. STANDARD CURE CO., 197 Pearl St., NEW YORK.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

Sure Cure for Epilepsy or Fits in 24 hours. Free to poor. DR. KRUSE, 2844 Arsenal St., St. Louis, Mo.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Me.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS
MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD
And will completely change the blood in the entire system in three months. Any person who will take ONE PILL EACH NIGHT FROM ONE TO TWELVE WEEKS, may be restored to sound health, if such a thing be possible. For curing Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. Physicians use them in their practice. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. Send for pamphlet. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

SOMETHING
EVERY LADY
OUGHT TO KNOW.

There exists a means of securing a soft and brilliant Complexion, no matter how poor it may naturally be. Hagan's Magnolia Balm is a delicate and harmless article, which instantly removes Freckles, Tan, Redness, Roughness, Eruptions, Vulgar Flushings, etc., etc. So delicate and natural are its effects that its use is not suspected by anybody.

No lady has the right to present a disfigured face in society when the Magnolia Balm is sold by all druggists for 75 cents.

Grocers and Dealers
—IN—
TEA AND COFFEE.
Send for Wholesale Price List of our goods. Lowest possible prices. GREAT LONDON TEA CO., 801 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

PISO'S CURE FOR 25
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good.
Use in time. Sold by druggists.
100
CONSUMPTION.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

EDUCATIONAL.

CHICAGO
MUSICAL COLLEGE.
CENTRAL MUSIC HALL.
DR. F. ZIEGFELD, PRESIDENT. All Instruments and Voice taught by the most skillful Instructors. Fall Term opens September 10, 1883. Send for Catalogue.

Young Men learn TELEGRAPHY here and we will give you a situation. Circulars free. VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

ADRIAN COLLEGE, Adrian, Mich. Five Schools. Term opens Sept. 14. Add. D. S. STEPHENS, Pres't.

A. N. K.—E. 937

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KY., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 15, 1883. NUMBER 42.

THE ERA OF DEADLY TOYS.

The days of marbles, top and kite,
And all the toys that boys excite,
Will soon have passed away;
And in their stead, that thing of dread,
The pistol toy their blood will shed
In a most wholesale way.

This is the great progressive age;
We've left the embryonic stage,
And now, on higher plane,
In dynamite we take delight,
E'n though it fill the Czar with fright,
And causes England pain.

Give us the dynamite gun,
So that our boys can have some fun
With giant powder toys;
Let's have benzine and kerosene
Worked up with nitro-glycerine
For our dear little boys.

What though the cannon's cruel boom
Prepares them for an early tomb
Before they're fully ripe?
It has been sung: "The good die young,"
And, though our withers are unwrung,
Our tears are left to wipe.

Now that the Fourth has passed away,
With all its noise and revels gay,
Let powder-fiends prepare
A deadlier toy for every boy,
To help him join the hosts of joy,
And climb the golden stair.
—N. Y. Journal.

WOODEN COINS.

A Story of California Banking in Early Days.

"You see," he continued, "I'm a carpenter, and when I landed in San Francisco I opened a shop and did better than some huckies in the mines. I did mostly fine jobs, such as fitting up saloons, cabinet work and making gambling truck—the last queer things, I tell you, full of tricks to cheat the greenies.

"One day, I got an order for a lot of wooden adobes. 'Adobes' were gold pieces of the value of fifty dollars each, and the man who gave the order—the played-out Secretary now hauling up a tom cod yonder—wanted 1,000. I smelled a rat, but kept mum, as secrecy was the keystone of half my trade. I set my lathe to work in a room carefully locked, and in due time had the contract filled. 'Now, I want you to gild these slugs,' said the Secretary, 'and send them down to Adams & Co.'s office about the time the mail steamer gets in. Keep dark and send in your bill. I did. Old Moise let me have one of his gilders, and he did the work in good style. But for the weight, you would never have taken those 'slugs' for anything but the simon-pure article. In the drawers they made a fine display—looking what they were intended to represent—$50,000 in gold. I boxed them up, and sent them to Adams & Co.'s under cover of night, and read in the papers next morning of the arrival of $50,000 in 'adobes,' consigned to the banking house of—well you know the place on Montgomery street, near Clay—as for the name, that's nothing—it's as dead as the bank, its President, and its Board of Directors. I smiled, but said nothing. The addition of those 1,000 'slugs' helped the concern amazingly; it was only three month's old, but it stood on its legs at once. I took some pride in the affair myself, as I was the creator of its financial support.

"Thirty days passed. Then I saw the Secretary. We met on the 'old corner' one rainy night, and, after a drink, fell a chatting. Jenkins had just been hanged on the Plaza for safe-cracking, and this brought up the subject of robbery.

"'Come over to the bank,' said the Secretary; 'I've got something privately to tell you. This place is too public.'

"We crossed the street, entered a small room, and resumed the conversation. It lasted till midnight and was rather interesting.

A CURIOUS PLOT.

"The Secretary had received an anonymous letter stating that an attempt would be made to rob the bank on Thursday night. He said the directors had given him full power to act; that he wanted a reliable man to watch the bank, and his watchman could not be trusted, adding he wished me to accept the position. I agreed, and the pay was big; and, arming myself, went on duty. This was Saturday night following the conversation. I went on at nine o'clock. When the Secretary left he gave me a pitcher of toddy, also a handful of cigars. He told me to drink whenever I was dry, and cautioned me not to use my pistol unless absolutely necessary. Something in his manner as well as language aroused my suspicions. I tasted the liquor in the pitcher. It did not taste like very good toddy. It had a brackish taste, and added to my misgivings. I thought it drugged, yet was so fond of liquor that in spite of this I took a glassful. I soon felt its effects, grew stupid, and at last sank into a sort of semi-doze. I was drugged! Another glass would have stupefied me completely. As it was, I was helpless, yet cognizant of events. About eleven o'clock, as I learned afterward, I heard the door in the rear of the room open. I had forgotten to lock it when the Secretary went out.

"I was unable to move, but saw a man with his face masked enter, look at me a moment, then pass rapidly to where the safe stood. He unlocked it, took out a bag of gold dust and moved toward the door. There another man received the bag and passed it out. The second man then came back and seized a pan of doubloons, which he passed to his confederate. These put away, the bogus 'adobes' were next carried out; in fact, the burglars seemed most anxious to secure these, which circumstance I afterward easily explained. All this occurred in a space of a few minutes, as the burglars seemed thoroughly posted in regard to the location of their plunder. All this time, too, I lay motionless upon the settee, anxious and willing to act, but unable to move a muscle. At last the last pan of 'adobes' was removed.

"The men then paused near the door, and I heard one say, 'Is that all?' 'All,' was the reply. 'Then fix him,' said the first speaker. 'All right,' answered his fellow, drawing a slung-shot from under his coat. My blood ran cold, for I saw the villains had resolved to murder me as a clincher to their crime. The shock roused me from my trance. I made one desperate effort, silently cocked the 'Allen's pepper-box' with which I was armed, and I fired at the two men as they stood together. A yell followed the report, the slugs fell rattling on the floor, and the miscreants beat a hasty retreat. I heard the groans of the wounded man as he passed along the corridor, but was unable to rise or fire a shot after him; in fact, I lost consciousness; did not wake till it was daylight, when I found a crowd around me. I then told my story to the officers of the bank, who cautioned me to 'keep quiet,' which I did. The affair soon blew over, for in those days all was excitement, and the robbing of a bank, even with the wounding or killing of a man, was but a trifle on a boiling ocean."

"But how about the Secretary?"

"Jim Casey, who was afterward hanged by the Vigilance Committee of '56, took me to see him the next morning.

"The Secretary was in bed—sick, I was told, with rheumatism, but I learned afterward he had 'accidentally' shot himself in the leg! Casey got me to sign a paper, in which I stated that I knew the men who robbed the bank, and knew them to be well-known jail-birds. Warrants were procured for the arrest of the rascals, but, I believe, were never served. I drew a check for $500 the same day, and was sent on a voyage to Honolulu; cautioned as usual to keep my mouth shut. I was absent nearly a year, drawing $100 a month for the privilege of staying away. At the end of that time the 'pension' stopped, and I returned, working my way as carpenter on a whaler. I found the bank had ceased to exist—a gambling saloon taking its place. I felt I had been ill-used, went in and fought the tiger, losing everything, even to the pistol with which I shot that rascal hauling in that tomcod."

"What do you suppose was the object in robbing the bank?"

"Why, to corral those 1,000 'adobes.' Some malicious individual, who doubted the bank's solvency, put an item in a picayune sheet to the effect that those slugs wouldn't ring if thrown into a saw pit. A little spark in a paper often starts a blaze, and a 'run' was imminent on the bank. The directors, of course, kept stiff upper lips, appeared to treat the matter with contempt, but concluded to yank off their bogus coin under cover of a robbery. Another glass of punch in my stomach would have made it a success. Confound that Secretary! I sometimes feel like chucking him into the bay. He would have killed me as coolly as he would a rat."

"Did the 'adobe' fraud ever leak out?"

"Yes, but counted nothing. The bank was smashed the moment the 'run' was started. Ralston, who had a weakness for institutions of that kind, tried to save it, but couldn't put up enough coin. He retired, and the balloon collapsed."—San Francisco Bulletin.

The Hooded Leopard.

In Africa and Southern Asia the cheetah or hunting leopard is important to the sportsman. The animals resemble the common leopard in their markings, but are more slender, having long legs and certain external canine characteristics that are very noticeable, so that it was long thought a connecting link between the dogs and cats. In Persia it is called the youze, and they are carried to the field in low cars, whereon they are chained. Each leopard is hooded. When the hunters come within view of a herd of antelopes the leopard is unchained, his hood is removed, and the game is pointed out to him, being directed in the pursuit by his sight. Then he steals along cautiously and crouchingly, taking advantage of every means of masking his attack, till he has approached the herd unseen within killing distance, when he suddenly launches himself upon his quarry with five or six vigorous and rapid bounds, strangles it instantaneously, and drinks its blood. The huntsman now approaches the leopard, caresses him, wins him from his prey by placing the blood which he collects in a wooden ladle under the nose of the animal, or by throwing to him pieces of meat, and while he is thus kept quiet hoods him, leads him back to his car, and there chains him. If the leopard fails, in consequence of the herd having taken timely alarm, he attempts no pursuit, but returns to his car with a dejected and mortified air.

The hyena and ounce have also been used in hunting, while the wild dog of Africa is often in demand. In Asia tiger-hunting would be practiced less were it not for the elephants, who seem to enjoy the dangerous sport as well as their riders, who are safely housed on their backs. These intelligent animals are also used in capturing wild animals of their own kind, and are important factors in the training and subduing process that comes later. The horse was formerly used in England to stalk animals. They were trapped so that the rider was concealed, and so feeding along the animal gradually brought the sportsman nearer the game. In the inventories of the wardrobe belonging to King Henry VIII. is the allowance of certain qualities of stuff for the purpose of making stalking coats and stalking hose for the use of his Majesty.—N. Y. Evening Post.

—An intelligent young Englishman of good family, a baronet's son, who has been investing largely in lands in Texas, was asked how it was that so many of his countrymen were buying land in this country just at this time. "I will tell you," he said. "There is a very general feeling that there will be a great change in England soon, equal to that made in the South by your civil war. Although they would laugh at the idea if you suggested it, nine out of ten men in England believe that Albert Edward, Prince of Wales, will be the last king England will ever have. A revolution is silently but surely preparing that will uproot all the remnants of the old feudal system."—Chicago Times.

—In a recent conversation Representative Carlisle, of Kentucky, who two years ago visited Parliament, said our House of Representatives is in all respects superior to the British House of Commons. With the exception of Bright and a few other noted members, he thinks that our lower house possesses more intellect than the British House, and that our Representatives personally look hotter, and that better order is observed.—Chicago Journal.

—A Kansas witling suggests that as Iowa doesn't owe a dollar she ought to change her name.—Chicago Tribune.

PITH AND POINT.

—This is one of the best mottoes ever followed: Never trouble trouble until trouble troubles you.

—"Boys and women," says an experienced observer, "always want to be where they aint."

—"No," said Mrs. McGill, "we didn't celebrate All Fool's Day at our house. The 'Squire never pays any attention to legal hollow days; and as for me, I feel just as foolish one Day as another."—Marathon Independent.

—There are few things so irritating in this life as to wait half an hour for your adversary at checkers, and then have him look up, as just aroused from a nap, and stupidly inquire, "Whose move is it?"—Boston Transcript.

—When travelling on a railroad it is said that lying with the head toward the engine will often cure a headache. A more effective remedy is to lie with the head on the railroad track in front of an engine. The latter recipe is warranted or the money refunded.—Norristown Herald.

—"My son," said an Arkansaw colonel of the reformed school, "in life always make it a point not to fight." "Suppose a man calls me a liar, what must I do?" "Find out whether he has told the truth or not. If he has, acknowledge the accusation, and if he has not, move to another neighborhood."—Arkansaw Traveler.

—A friend in the suburbs has a gem of a servant girl. Her latest achievement was to use pain-killer as a flavoring for ice-cream. She builded better than she knew, and the bane and the antidote for stomach-ache were dished out at the same time. And yet the ice-cream was not such as one would wish to partake of more than once.—Boston Herald.

—Scene in a kindergarten. The teacher had been telling stories suitable for very young minds. Pupil (aged seven years)—"I can tell a story, too." Teacher—"What is it about?" Pupil—"A story of the lion and the flea." Teacher—"Tell it." Pupil—"The wicked flee when no man pursueth; but the righteous are as bold as a lion."—Golden Days.

—"Mr. Blifkins, I do wish you would give up that abominable practice of punning," said the good lady to her man at breakfast the other morning. "You don't like punning, my dear?" said old B., with affected surprise. "You know very well that I don't. I'd rather have a hedgehog in the house than a punster." "I see," said the incorrigible brute. "Hedgehog, eh? H'm—hog. Ah, yes—it's for pork-you-pine," and he slipped under the end of the table just in time to dodge the missile hurled at his head by the now thoroughly exasperated woman.—N. Y. Post.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—In Oregon 8,000 men and $1,500,000 capital are employed in the salmon fishing industry. The fishermen make as high as $2,000 for four months' work.

—There are three sardine factories, and a fourth nearly completed, in Lubec, on the Maine coast. Between two hundred and three hundred men are employed.

—A shipment of three hundred bushels of red acorns has been made to Germany for planting on untillable lands and hillsides. This tree is found to do well in Europe, and its wood is valuable. The acorns were gathered in Missouri at an average cost of one dollar a bushel.—N. Y. Examiner.

—Within the past four years 9,500 acres of land in and around Charlemont, on the James River, in Virginia, have been sold in farms ranging from twenty to three hundred acres to a thrifty class of Northern and Western people. They are prospering beyond their expectations, and delighted with the promise for the future.

—A stone of purplish brown color has been found in inexhaustible quantities near Summitville, in Coffee County, Tenn. It is susceptible of a fine finish. Samples of another kind have also been shown which are claimed to be of the kind used for lithographing. Specimens of both have been sent to the State Agricultural Commissioner.

—Bread has at times been put to curious uses, but it remained for a Peruvian to make a practical application of the old saw that bread, being a necessity, is the mother of invention. He has just made a clock out of bread. He was too poor to get metal, so he used the soft part of the bread that made up his daily meals, contenting himself with the crusts. He employed a certain salt to solidify the material, and so manufactured a hadsome clock that keeps excellent time. Next.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Cool.

The Amesbury (Mass.) News relates that a trader of that town, accompanied by his wife, visited a friend in Merrimac, a provision-dealer, who invited him to examine his ice-closet. The Amesbury gentleman left his wife in the carriage and proceeded with his friend to an inspection of the ice-closet, which they entered, the former pulling the door to after him. A spring lock being attached to the outside of the door, they were prisoners in the coolest place the town could provide. In vain they shouted—their cries could not be heard. The wife, tired of waiting, took a short drive about town, and her husband not appearing on her return, she entered the store, but no one was to be seen. In passing a particular place she thought she heard voices, and upon opening the door of the closet was surprised to see the gentlemen, who had become nearly exhausted by their close confinement and endeavors to escape.

—Lordsburg, New Mexico, is a frontier paradise. It has five hundred inhabitants and thirty-seven saloons, besides a choice collection of dance-houses and gambling dens. Since July 8, 1882, fourteen persons have died in the town, and the causes of death may be classified as follows: Lynched, one; murdered, three; suicides, six; small-pox, three; doubtful, one.—Chicago Herald.

Religious.

EVANGELISTE.

The Sabbath morn was fresh and cool,
And all along the quiet street
The children came from Sunday-school,
I heard the pattering of their feet.
I saw their faces fair,
Their gravely happy air;
The sweetest sight in all the land,
It was to see them meet or part;
Each with a Bible in her hand,
A holy lesson in her heart.

One child more fair than all the rest
(I wish that I could sing her name),
In richest silk and velvet dressed,
When school was over, onward came,
With childhood's beaming face,
And childhood's winsome grace,
Holding her mother's hand; her eyes
Were homes of holy love and prayer,
And kept the color of the skies,
Untroubled by a tear or care.

And as they trod the quiet street,
They met a poor, toil-weary child;
The children stopped, as glad to meet,
And each upon the other smiled.
"Good-bye," I heard them say,
"You'll come next Sabbath day?"
"Oh, yes! I'll come." And on she went,
Beguiled of half her care and fear;
The mother to her daughter bent:
"How do you know that child, my dear?"

"I know her lately," she confessed;
"Just since this morning, when she came
To Sunday-school, so badly dressed—
I do not think I know her name—
But she looked tired and shy,
And almost like to cry,
And half ashamed to onward pass;
I could not bear her face to see,
And no one knew her in the class,
And so I made a place by me.

"And smiled to her; the place she took,
And then she smiled right back to me;
I let her read out of my book,
And she was glad as she could be.
And when the school was o'er,
And we were at the door,
She smiled again as I stood near,
And I smiled back, and so you see
We got acquainted, mamma dear."
The mother kissed her tenderly,

And onward went with solemn face,
Thinking, no doubt, how childhood's love,
How childhood's kindly care and grace,
Is most like that which is above.
—Lillie E. Barr, in S. S. Times.

Futility and Utility.

The trouble with people who set up a utilitarian standard and subject everything to that, generally is that they leave out of their calculations the most important aim and attainment of life—character. Anything that fits a person to do the immediate work in hand is placed under the head of utility, and commended. Anything other is placed under the head of futility, and condemned. The work in hand, moreover, is almost invariably that which tends to the getting of bread and butter, and after that to the accumulation of wealth. To minister to the material wants is utility. To minister to the spiritual wants is—well, perhaps it would not be called futility: but these wants would be supposed to provide for themselves. The effects of work and thought upon the forming character—this is the thing overlooked.

It is a dangerous thing to set up a standard of utility. It is likely to be fatal when the standard is fixed in materialism. There is much greater need to see to it to-day that the rising generation shall not be imbued with the idea that the end-all is to get-all, than there is to revise a tariff or build a navy. A false view of utility and futility will destroy a nation far sooner than oppression or hostile fleets. When character is lost sight of in the greed for gain: when the parents decide everything for their children on the simple ground of whether it will or will not better enable them to "get on" in the world; when the cultivation of the mind and heart are made of no account beside the equipment for trade; when to be prosperous is made to stand for being good; when individual wealth is everything and individual character a matter of indifference, then manhood and the nation are in peril.

Character can never rightly be made secondary. Whatever conduces directly or indirectly to the formation of good character is useful in the highest and truest sense. Whatever conduces to anything else is worse than futile, and in tendency is fatal. Christianity is the only sun that can penetrate the fog covering the question of utility and futility. When the standard of utility is fixed according to the Christian standard, that rates a man by what he is, not by how much money he can make—that measures him by spiritual not material possessions, and that measures human activities and pursuits by the effects they will produce upon the character that must eternally endure rather than upon the accumulation of riches that must soon be left—then and then only can it be a safe standard to live by and educate children by. The true utilitarian view is that nothing is useful that does not tend to develop high, noble, pure and Christian character; nothing is useless that does. The life that is sordid and selfish is futilitarian; the true utilitarian is the life that develops character along the lines laid down by Him who, seeing the end from the beginning, said: "The life is more than meat and the body than raiment;" and "a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things which he possesseth."—N. Y. Examiner.

Strong Foundations.

A story is told of Lepaux, a member of the French Directory, that with much thought and study he had invented a new religion, to be called "Theophilanthropy," a kind of organized Rousseauism, and that, being disappointed in its not being readily approved and adopted, he complained to Talleyrand of the difficulty he found in introducing it.

"I am not surprised," said Talleyrand, "at the difficulty you find in your effort. It is no easy matter to introduce a new religion. But there is one thing I would advise you to do, and then, perhaps, you might succeed."

"What is it? what is it?" asked the other, with eagerness.

"It is this," said Talleyrand, "go and be crucified, and then be buried, and then rise again on the third day, and then go on working miracles, raising the dead, and healing all manner of diseases, and casting out devils, and then it is possible that you might accomplish your end!" And the philosopher, crestfallen and confounded, went away silent.

The anecdote shows, in a fresh and striking light, how firm the foundation on which Christianity and the faith of the Christian rest. "Ransack all history," says an able writer, "and you can not find a single event more satisfactorily and clearly proved than the resurrection of Christ from the dead." And says another, a distinguished jurist: "If human evidence ever has proved, or ever can prove anything, then the miracles of Christ are proved beyond a shadow of a doubt." And yet the miracles and resurrection of Christ prove His divinity; and, as Napoleon said: "His divinity once admitted, Christianity appears with the precision and clearness of algebra; it has the connection and unity of a science."

And on this strong foundation it is that Christianity and Christian faith rest. And how absolutely immovable that foundation is, how absolutely convincing the evidence from this source, we hardly realize until, like Talleyrand, we call on the objector himself to be crucified, himself to rise from the dead, and himself to work miracles, as Christ did throughout Jerusalem, and all Judea, in the presence of thousands and tens of thousands, both enemies and friends.

It is a most assuring as well as comforting thought that this external evidence from without can never be shaken while human testimony has value or meaning. And when we add to this the internal evidence—the fact that thousands and millions of Christians have felt, in their own experience, that the Gospel is true, just as the hungry man knows that he is fed, or the thirsty when he has drank, just as we know the existence of the sun because we see its light and feel its heat—then the foundation on which, as Christians, we rest stands doubly sure to the soul. Heaven and earth may pass away, but God's word and all that rests upon it shall abide forever.—American Messenger.

The Temptations of Prosperity.

We may be "tried" by riches as well as by poverty; by health and strength prolonged through many years as well as by sickness; by public honor as well as by slander and unmerited censure; by appointment to an office of high responsibility, and carrying with it public distinction, as well as by unmerited dismissal from it; by the fulfillment of our brightest hopes as well as by the catastrophes which quench them; by the ease of our life as well as its hardships; by its unbroken peace and untroubled security as well as by the perils which shake the heart with fear. Many a man who has nobly stood the test of sorrow and loss has failed when the dark and evil days have passed by and his life is bright with joy.

We are not accustomed to describe our successes, our prosperous fortunes, the sources of our flowing happiness, as "trials;" but by these, too, God may "prove thee, to know what is in thine heart," and whether thou wilt keep His commandments or no. These, too, may bring us discoveries of moral weakness and defect with which we had never charged ourselves. These, too, may be necessary to provoke into activity elements of righteousness which are wanting in alertness and vigor. They are among the "manifold" trials which contribute to Christian perfection. That we never think of them as trials may suggest to us the exceptional danger to which they expose us. They do not alarm us, and therefore do not excite us to vigilance and compel us to invoke that Divine defense and support which, even in times apparently most free from peril, can alone give us perfect safety. * *

Life, from first to last, is a perpetual "trial," and the "trial" is perpetually varied. In the school of God there are no vacations. His "mercies are new every morning;" on our part there should be a new depth of trust and a new rapture of praise. We have more to thank Him for to-day than we had yesterday: our thankfulness should be inspired with more intense passion. We are nearer Heaven to-day than we were yesterday; our hope should rise to diviner heights, and there should be a more exulting joy in the prospect of going to the blessed home of God. If our environment remains the same, we ourselves have changed: and, with the change in ourselves, our environment becomes a new test of our fidelity to God. We should, therefore, be thankful for long life, and for the discipline—painful as it must sometimes be—which extends from youth to manhood, and from manhood to old age. We should count it all joy that the "temptations," the "trials," of life are "manifold;" for every one of them may add to us some new element of force, some new touch of grace and beauty. The development of Christian righteousness is the Divine end of human life: when we accept that end, its sorrows and its joys alike will have a new aspect and a new meaning. The transitory delights and the transitory sufferings of this mortal condition will then alike contribute to the wealth of our eternal blessedness, and the splendor of our eternal glory.—R. W. Dale, in Expositor.

Choice Extracts.

—If there is any person whom you dislike, that is the very person of whom you ought never to speak.—Cecil.

—The work an unknown good man has done is like a vein of water flowing hidden underground, secretly making the ground green.—Carlyle.

—There's no music in a "rest" that I know of, but there's the making of music in it. And people are always missing that part of the life melody, always talking of perseverance, and courage, and fortitude; but patience is the finest and worthiest part of fortitude, and the rarest, too.—Ruskin.

—I do wish that all tired people did but know the infinite rest there is in fencing off the six days from the seventh—in anchoring the business ships of our daily life as the Saturday draws to its close, leaving them to ride peacefully upon the flow or the ebb until Monday morning comes again.—Anna Warner.

—God's house is not the place for aching heads; it is the place to heal aching hearts. The most outrageous nonsense that is current in theological seminaries is that which deludes young men into the folly of aiming at the profound and philosophic treatises for the pulpit.—Rev. T. L. Cuyler.

Our Young Folks.

MY BABY BOY.

My baby boy, o'er whose golden head
But two short years had their brightness shed,
Had dropped his playthings, and climbed with care
Till he stood erect in a neighboring chair,
With his dainty ankles and bare white feet
Half hid in the depths of the cushioned seat.

He poised himself as he caught a view
Of the pleasant picture the mirror drew
Of his own sweet face. The violet eyes
Were lifted a moment in glad surprise,
As, with smile as sweet as my baby's own,
The other Charley looked kindly down.
"Dot boo eyes, too? dot my pritty dess?
You're the other Tarley boy, I guess."
Then his face was grave, and he nearer bent,
Stroking his cheek with a look intent;
He touched his chin, and the ripe red lips,
Sweet as the bloom the honey-bee sips.
"What is it, Charley? what do you see?"
With an air of conscious dignity
This man in miniature turned to speak,
And said, still stroking his rosy cheek,
And touching his chin with his small pink thumb:
"I'm lookin' to see has my 'isters tome."
—Mrs. Mary H. Taylor, in Harper's Young People.

LINDY.

"Oh, daddy!" called a clear, girlish voice.

"Yes, Lindy; what's wanted?"

"Ma wants to know how long it'll be 'fore you're ready."

"Oh, tell her I'll be at the door by the time she gets her things on. Be sure you have the butter and eggs all ready to put into the wagon. We're makin' too late a start to town."

Butter and eggs, indeed! As if Lindy needed a reminder other than the new dress for which they were to be exchanged.

"Elmer and I can go to town next time, can't we, ma?" she asked, entering the house.

"Yes, Lindy; I hope so," was the reply. "But don't bother me now; your pa is coming already, and I haven't my shawl on yet. Yes, Wilbur; I'm here. Just put this butter in, Lindy; I'll carry the eggs in my lap. Now, Lindy, don't let Elmer play with the fire or run away."

And in a moment more the heavy lumber wagon rattled away from the door, and the children stood gazing after it for awhile, in a half-forlorn manner. Then Lindy went in to do her work, Elmer resumed his play, and soon everything was moving along as cheerfully as ever.

After dinner, Elmer went to sleep, and Lindy, feeling rather lonely again, went out-of-doors for a change. It was a warm autumnal day, almost the perfect counterpart of a dozen or more which had preceded it. The sun shone brightly, and the hot winds that swept through the tall grass made that and all else it touched so dry that the prairie seemed like a vast tinder-box. Though her parents had but lately moved to this place, Lindy was accustomed to the prairies. She had been born on them, and her eyes were familiar with nothing else; yet, as she stood to-day with that brown, unbroken expanse rolling away before her until it reached the pale bluish-gray of the sky, the indescribable feeling of awe and terrible solitude which such a scene often inspires in one not familiar with it stole gradually over her. But Lindy was far too practical to remain long under such an influence. The chickens were "peeping" loudly, and she remembered that they were still without their dinner.

As she passed around the corner of the house with a dish of corn in her hands, the wind almost lifted her from the ground. It was certainly blowing with greater violence than during the morning.

Great tumble-weeds went flying by, turning over and over with almost lightning-like rapidity; then, pausing for an instant's rest, were caught by another gust and carried along, mile after mile, till some fence or other obstacle was reached, where they could pile up in great drifts, and wait till a brisk wind from an opposite direction should send them rolling and tumbling all the way back. But Lindy did not notice the tumble-weeds. The dish of corn had fallen from her hands, and she stood looking straight ahead with wide-open, terrified eyes.

What was the sight that so frightened her?

Only a line of fire below the horizon. Only a line of fire, with forked flames darting high into the air and a cloud of smoke drifting away from them. A beautiful relief, this bright, changing spectacle, from the brown monotony of the prairie.

But the scene was without beauty for Lindy. Her heart had given one great bound when she first saw the red line, and then it seemed to cease beating. She had seen many prairie fires; had seen her father and other men fight them, and she knew at once the danger her home was in. What could she, a little girl, do to save it, and perhaps herself and her little brother, from the destroyer which the south wind was bringing straight toward them?

Only for a moment Lindy stood, white and motionless; then with a bound she was at the well. Her course was decided upon. If only time and strength were given her! Drawing two pails of water, she laid a large bag in each, and then, getting some matches, hurried out beyond the stable. She must fight fire with fire. That was her only hope; but a strong, experienced man would have shrunk from starting a back-fire in such a wind.

She fully realized the danger, but it was possible escape from otherwise inevitable destruction, and she hesitated not an instant to attempt it. Cautiously starting a blaze, she stood with a wet bag ready to smother the first unruly flame.

The great fire to the southward was rapidly approaching. Prairie chickens and other birds, driven from their nests, were flying over, uttering distressed cries. The air was full of smoke and burnt grass, and the crackling of the flames could plainly be heard. It was a trying moment. The increased roar of the advancing fire warned Lindy that she had but very little time in which to complete the circle around house and barn; still, if she hurried too much, she would lose control of the fire she had started, and with it all hope of safety.

The heat was intense, the smoke suffocating, the rapid swinging of the heavy bag most exhausting, but she was unconscious of these things. The extremity of the danger inspired her with wonderful strength and endurance. Instead of losing courage, she increased her almost superhuman exertions, and in another brief interval the task was completed. None too soon either, for the swiftly advancing column had nearly reached the wavering, struggling, slow-moving line Lindy had sent out to meet it.

It was a wild, fascinating, half terrible, half beautiful scene. The tongues of flame, leaping above each other with airy, fantastic grace, seemed, cat-like, to toy with their victims before devouring them.

A sudden, violent gust of wind, and then with a great crackling roar the two fires met, the flames shooting high into the air as they rushed together.

For one brief, glorious moment they remained there, lapping the air with their fierce, hot tongues; then, suddenly dropping, they died quickly out; and where an instant before had been a wall of fire was nothing now but a cloud of blue smoke rising from the blackened ground, and here and there a sickly flame finishing an obstinate tuft of grass. The fire on each side, meeting no obstacle, swept quickly by, and Lindy stood gazing, spell-bound, after it as it darted and flashed in terrible zigzag lines farther and farther away.

"Oh, Lindy!" called a shrill little voice from the house. Elmer had just awakened.

"Yes, I'm coming," Lindy answered, turning. But how very queer she felt! There was a roaring in her ears louder than the fire had made; everything whirled before her eyes, and the sun seemed suddenly to have ceased shining, all was so dark. Reaching the house by a great effort, she sank, faint, dizzy and trembling, upon the bed by her brother's side.

Elmer, frightened and hardly awake, began to cry, and, as he never did anything in a half-way manner, the result was quite wonderful. His frantic shrieks and furious cries roused his half-fainting sister as effectually as if he had poured a glass of brandy between her lips. She soon sat up, and by and by color began to return to the white face and strength to the exhausted body. Her practical nature and strong will again asserted themselves, and instead of yielding to a feeling of weakness and prostration, she tied on her sun-bonnet firmly, and gave the chickens their long-delayed dinner.

But when, half an hour later, her father found her fast asleep, with the glow from the sky reflected on her weary little face, he looked out of the window for a moment, picturing to himself the terrible scenes of the afternoon, and then down at his daughter. "A brave girl!" he murmured, smoothing the yellow hair with his hard, brown hand—"a brave girl!"—Charlotte A. Butts, in St. Nicholas.

Beavers and Their Houses.

What queer little things beavers are. What strange houses they can build! They make a sort of cabin of branches of trees and mud. The mud answers nicely for mortar.

They have large, strong teeth. When they are cutting the branches for use they gnaw them off with their teeth. They make the sticks just as nearly the same length as they can. They dig up the mud with their paws, for they are great diggers. When they are ready to build their cabin, they use their flat tails just as masons use a trowel. With it they spat and smooth the coat of mud as they put it on.

The beaver's tail is very short, and well adapted to this purpose. As the wall of the cabin rises higher, it is hard for the builder to reach the top. What do you think he does? Why, he props himself up on it and goes on with his work.

These little creatures lead an idle sort of life during most of the summer months and keep by themselves; but the last of August they form into companies and begin to cut down their timber.

The beavers always select a place for building close to a stream of water. To get to the entrance, they must go down under the water. In order to keep the water over the doors just high enough, they make a perfect dam. This dam is also built of branches and mud. For fear the branches might move and get out of place, they fix stones upon them, sometimes of large size, to keep them down.

Do you see how they can understand all this? If they did not have a dam, the door of the cabin might be closed up with ice if the water got low in the stream in winter.

In this cabin there are two little rooms. They are shaped like an oven. The beavers live in the upper one, and in the lower they store away their food. They eat the roots and branches of different vegetables in the winter. They often lay up food in very large quantities.

This wonderful little animal is about three feet long. His tail is eleven inches long. He uses it as a rudder in swimming, as well as a trowel. This rudder, with his web feet, enables him to swim much faster than he can walk.

So you see that God gives to every creature certain tools to do his own work.—Our Little Ones.

A Swimmer's Experience.

The late Captain Webb, the swimmer, a short time ago performed the feat of plunging twice into the water at Pemberton, Mass., from a tower sixty-five feet high. Of this experience he said afterward: "I hit with an awful crack, and a very small object in the water would cause an inconvenience if I struck upon it. I must have struck a chip on the surface, for, as you will notice by my eye, there is a slight disfigurement of the lid. In every descent I make I run a risk. A log hidden beneath the surface, for instance, might cause me instant death." "How far do you go down below the surface?" "Not more than ten feet. The water even at that depth is very cold, but the crack I get by the fall warms me all over. I have jumped from a height ten feet greater than this."

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL, Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. AUG. 15. 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
[illegible]	[illegible]	40
[illegible]	[illegible]	20
[illegible]	[illegible]	20
[illegible]	[illegible]	10
[illegible]	[illegible]	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (excepting the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.
Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

ONLY three states yield more internal revenue than Kentucky.

THE election is over, and the next thing on docket is the Lawrenceburg Fair.

THE Crittenden Press got its rooster knocked heels over head in the election last week.

A HARD fight was made on local option in Georgetown, but it was defeated by 297 majority.

TRUSTEES are now in possession of data upon which to base their contracts with teachers for the fall and winter schools.

J. W. PERRY was reelected in Owen, and will be a candidate for Speaker of the Lower House of the next General Assembly.

ALL the heads of departments left Washington, a few days since, on a junketing tour, and the government survived without a struggle.

IN one of the Owen county voting districts a man was so enraged at the success of local option, that he seized the poll book and destroyed it.

AT a convention in St. Louis the colored folks resolved that their proper name as a race is negro, and that it should be spelled with a big N.

THE RECORDER was one among the few local papers that gave its readers the result, last week, of the election for contested county offices.

HON. J. T. SIMON was defeated for reelection to the legislature in Pendleton county. The indiscretion of some of Simon's friends did him no good.

THE shank of Gov. Blackburn's administration is going to be productive of pardons, and the worst characters in the penitentiary are being liberated.

JAMES ALFRED, a prominent young doctor, suicided on the 7th inst., in Owen county, by shooting himself through the head. Too much morphine is said to be the cause.

AN Illinois woman has done no work since her recent conversion, and her husband has sued the revivalist who was instrumental in destroying her household usefulness.

THE Richmond Herald has changed hands, and B. J. Newlon is now its editor. He is an experienced newspaper man, and will keep the Herald up to its present standard of excellency.

HOGGISH—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $5 30@5 60; fair to good packers, at $4 90@5 35; fair to good light, $5 50@5 75; common, $4 3 @4 85; culls, $3 25@4 25: stock hogs, $4 25@5 25.

ELIJAH HOGAN was elected representative in Gallatin county. Mr. H. represented Gallatin in the legislature some time since, when Gallatin and Grant together were entitled to but one representative.

HERE is the Dearborn Independent's opinion in regard to certain matters concerning the next Presidential canvass:

"If Indiana is certain to be a pivotal state in 1884 and the Democracy should be wise enough to nominate Holman for President the Republicans can not win."

SOME of our exchanges speak of Col. T. L. Jones' voting the democratic ticket from "eend to eend" as though it was a remarkable thing for him to do. Why, any body with three grains of knowledge of the man would have known that was exactly what he would do.

THE voters of this county have again said that they do not desire a convention called to revise the Constitution. The people seem utterly indifferent as to whether their Constitution is consistent or not. The Constitution of Kentucky is practically a defunct instrument, and the indications are it will remain in its present impracticable shape for some time to come.

THE cholera is not so bad in Egypt, but its ravages are yet very great.

A CANADIAN dealer has bought 5,000 bushels of potatoes in Lexington.

PRESIDENT ARTHUR tapped the drum for the starting of the Southern Exposition at Louisville.

THE sheriff of Graves county was the first sheriff in the state to make a payment on the revenue for 1883.

THE next House of National Representatives will be composed of 323 members as follows: Democrats, 192; Republicans, 116; Readjusters, 6; Independents, 6; Greenbackers, 2.

AN alarming epidemic has made its appearance near Wilton Junction, Iowa. At first it was thought to be cholera infantum, but several grown persons have died from the disease.

THE art gallery, at the Southern Exposition, is the finest display of pictures ever witnessed in the United States. The pictures displayed represent more than one million dollars.

THE Superintendent of Public Instruction announces that the per capita for the school year 1883-4 is one dollar and forty cents. The school commissioner is now disbursing the July draft.

THE Georgetown Times has concluded that free whisky is a bad thing to be allowed to circulate on election days, but 684 of its town people say it is a good thing to have in town, nevertheless.

THE vote in this county for Governor four years ago was, Blackburn, 924; Evans, 162. The vote Monday is much larger, which will increase Boone's representation in the State conventions for the next four years.

BULGER, the negro rapist, who is to be hung on the 4th of next month, is being guarded at a cost of $60 a day to the state. This is certainly an unnecessary expense, as there is no danger of his being lynched while awaiting execution.

THE treatment of Senator Beck at the hands of the management of the Southern Exposition is simply outrageous. They solicited Mr. Beck's services in securing the President's visit and presence at the opening of the exposition, and then neglected to extend to him the courtesy of an invitation.

WONDER if President Arthur will want to take up his residence in this state when his term of office expires? He seems to be somewhat infatuated with Kentucky productions, and says as follows: "I had a chance to see two things on which Kentucky plumes herself—her horses and her beautiful women—and now I am a believer in both of them."

WHO shall decide when Republican doctors disagree? Judge Foraker says the country is highly prosperous because of the Republican protective tariff. The Commercial Gazette says that business is greatly depressed because of over production. The Chicago Tribune, a very staunch Republican paper, says the depression and the failures, which threaten to become epidemic, are the result of the protective tariff.—News Journal.

THE pardon mill at Frankfort, a few days since, ground out the following pardons:

For Grove Kennedy, sentenced to the penitentiary in 1876, for the murder of his uncle at Lancaster. Previous to his trial it was thought he would be lynched, the people considering his crime so outrageous.

For Alexander Oder, who shot and killed his brother-in-law in Cynthiana, and was sent up for two years.

For Clarence Rutherford, sentenced for life for the murder of a man in Logan county.

For Ren Garrity, ex-police officer of Louisville, sentenced to one year for obtaining money from the state by fraudulent claims.

For Dave Furguson, defaulting back tax collector of Louisville, sentenced last April for five years.

With such lavish use of the pardoning power, it is not surprising that the efficacy of our criminal laws is regarded a failure. It seems that the more terrible the crime, the more certain the perpetrator is of Executive clemency.

Rough on Carpenter.

Three of the prisoners who recently escaped from jail here—Marion Roe, Warren Roe and William Roe—all under the charge of murder, were returned to their former quarters last Monday night. Their capture was affected by Nelson Carpenter at Rock Lick, Jackson county, on Saturday night. They were not as careful as they might have been, considering there was a reward of $50 each offered by the jailer for their capture There were 6 old indictments against Carpenter, the captor, a former resident of this county, and as soon as he returned the prisoners, he was taken in charge also and placed in jail.—Richmond Herald.

Subscribe for the RECORDER.

QUITE an excitement was created in Lawrenceburg, Ind., last Saturday morning, when a notice stating that the Lawrenceburg City National Bank had suspended business, was discovered on the bank door just previous to business hours. There were various rumors as to what precipitated the suspension, but the uneasiness of the local depositors was greatly relieved when the Cashier, D. W. C. Fitch, a man in whose integrity everybody has implicit confidence, assured them that every dollar that the bank held on deposit would be paid in full. The popular theory is that the heavy loss sustained by Henry Fitch in saw-mill and lumber business during the last February flood, and his embarking in the business on a more extensive scale than before, entangled the bank, which was endeavoring to assist him. The suspension is regarded as only temporary, as the Fitch family are so abundantly blessed with this world's goods. Among the stockholders there is but one Boone county man, Ben R. Gaines, who has stock to the amount of $5,000.

OF State Senators elected the first Monday in August but one was a republican, and of the nineteen holding over, four are republicans—just one too many for a game of croquet.

COL. E. POLK JOHNSTON, of Louisville has announced himself as a candidate for Clerk of the House at the ensuing session of the General Assembly.

STATE NEWS.

—Frankfort Yeoman: Mr. Charles E. Green has a stalk with 173 sunflowers upon it.

—Joe Rice, of Paducah, has a potato petrified as hard as stone. It is on its way to the Exposition.

—Louisa Index: A white crow has made its appearance about the mouth of Nats creek, this county.

—Henry Stanton is the only editor in the state who has funds enough to take him to a watering place.

—Zoller, of the Mt. Olivet Tribune, has recently spent much of his time at the bedside of his hogs, the supply of which is increasing rapidly.

—Lexington Transcript: Mr. J. K. Watts, of Toronto, Canada, has been in the city for several days. He has purchased 5,000 bushels of Irish potatoes to ship to Canada, for which he paid forty cents per bushel.

—Bracken County Democrat: We have heard that cholera never prevails where flies are plentiful. It this be true, it will not be likely to make its appearance in this country, as the house-fly is more numerous this year than for several years past.

—Clinton Democrat: The Clark county Democrat says Wm. Strode, of Henry county, is over seventy years old, but has no gray hairs on his head. Ballard county has a man over twenty years old who hasn't a hair of any sort on his head, and never did have.

—Hartford Times: Woman who has been looking over blankets in a Main-street store: "Well, I didn't mean to buy, am just looking for a friend." Clerk, politely: "Don't think you'll find your friend among the blankets. We've looked 'em all through."

—Jerry Henderson, at Filmore, caught on the morning of the 15th ult., with a trot line, a cat fish eighteen inches between the eyes and weighing 500 pounds. It and two others weighing 100 pounds, can be seen at the ferry landing at Filmore. So says the Wickliff Plaindealer.

—Maysville Eagle: The breeding of fast horses has been much condemned, but it has done immense good to agricultural interests. It has turned the farmer's pot-bellied, hang-headed, stumbling, staggering plug into a smart, bright, quick-stepping horse that can do twice the amount of work his predecessor was capable of, and trot off to market or to church in a quarter of the time.

—New Castle is having quite a sensation over the death of Mrs. Jane Cogles whose body was found in a well on her premises last week. The general impression at first was that Mrs. Cogle had committed suicide but certain facts have been brought to light which tend to show foul play. The coroner's jury brought in a verdict of death from other means than drowning, but the whole affair is still shrouded in mystery.—Carrollton Democrat.

—Last Saturday, John Perry, who is raising a crop on the Sam Bledsoe farm, near Craig's Creek, noticed a lot of cattle, which had apparently been turned into his corn field. In putting them out, some one fired upon him from ambush, the bullet passing very close to his head. He attempted to discover who the would be assassin was, but only caught a glimpse of his shirt as he escaped through the bushes. He says he has an idea who the assailant is, and that he will keep a sharp lookout for him in the future. He believes it is an effort to drive him away from his present abode.—Warsaw Independent.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

[Courier-Journal.]

—Houston, Tex., is receiving over 100 bales of cotton daily.

GRAND EVENT OF THE YEAR!

The Lawrenceburg Fair,

AUGUST 22nd to 25th, 1883.

RACES Every DAY.

PROGRAMME:

Wednesday, August 22.
Jack and Mules, Heavy Draft Horses.
Boone and Dearborn County Trot, Purse.......$30 00
Running Race, Purse,.......$100 00

Thursday, August 23.
Address by HON. JOHN G. CARLISLE.
Cattle, Saddle Horses, Hogs and Sheep.
Three minute trot, Purse,.......$200 00
Running Race, Purse,.......$150 00

Friday, August 24.
General Purpose Horses, Sweepstakes on Hogs and Sheep, Matched Horses, Sweepstakes on Stallions, Purse...$50 00
Two Thirty Trot, Purse.......$200 00
Free for all Pace, Purse.......$300 00

Saturday, August 25.
Herds of Cattle, Purse.......$150 00
Light Harness Horses, Sweepstakes on General Purpose Horses, Purse...$50 00
Running Race, Purse.......$200 00
Free for all Trot, Purse.......$400 00

STEAM FERRY at Lawrenceburg during Fair week, Commencing Wednesday, August 22nd.

No Entry Fees for Competition. Send for Premium Lists.

W. H. O'BRIEN, Secretary,
Lawrenceburg, Indiana.

—A tomato cannery at Austin, Texas, puts up 4,000 cans a day.

—Electric matches are made by a match company at Pierce city, Mo.

—Salt water has invaded the rivers in South Carolina, and fears are felt as to the effect on the rice crop.

—Nashville American: New Orleans is taking notes at the Louisville Exposition to aid in starting her own show next year properly and on time.

—The Rome Courier is endeavoring to digest the statement of an exchange to the effect that "a dog bit a little boy in the West End the other day."

—Mountain Grove (Mo.) Times: A Springfield burglar broke into an editor's house the other night, and the authorities can not decide whether he should be in the penitentiary or an insane asylum.

—After taking out the amount of a fare a Texas railroad conductor handed $19 20 to the wrong passenger, who pocketed it and refused to give it up on the ground that he did not ask the conductor for it.

—The press of Opelika, Ala., supplies a temperance influence over that community. There is not a printer, editor, local editor, or any person connected with the printing business there that drinks intoxicating liquors of any kind.

—A band of Second Adventists which a short time since established themselves at Fairfax Court-house, Va., appeared to have carried everything before them in that village, and it is said that in a short time they will have a large church, which a number of their converts will build for them.

—Baltimore American: People at the Hygeia Hotel, Old Point Comfort, Va., drive over to St. John's Protestant Episcopal church at Hampton, which is the oldest sacred edifice in the country. It was built of brick brought from Holland in 1658. Its bell, given by Queen Elizabeth, was melted in a fire that once burned in the structure for three days.

—The war between the whites and blacks of Hempstead county, Ark., which has been going on for a week, is being brought to a close. Six were killed and four wounded during hostilities, but about seventy of the belligerent blacks have surrendered to Gen. Newton, and have been given secure quarters in various jails, but the ringleaders of the lawless band are afraid to surrender, and are hiding in the woods.

—The Texas Patron: An incident occurred at the marriage at Mr. John Prewit's, that was amusing, and at the same time provoking. While the marriage ceremony was being performed every one gathered around to witness it, and the supper room was left without a guard. Upon return of the family and friends it was discovered that some one had gone in and stolen all the chickens that had been prepared. This loss was amusingly deplored, especially on account of the Methodist preachers who were present. Nothing else was taken, so far as known.

Twists and Twinges.

"My brethren," shouted Dr. Talmage one bright autumnal Sunday, "here is a lesson from the cornfield. God has arranged that the ear and the husk shall be parted: Every rheumatic pain is but a thrust of the husking-peg, and every neuralgic twinge is only a twist of the husker."

Possible; but nobody wants to be husked, for all that, and nature teaches us to resist the process Therefore, we accept with gratitude whatever helps us to suppress those very twists and twinges.

From his pleasant home, Greenmont, near Sing Sing, N. Y., M. Alfred Bear, a French gentleman, writes:

"I have suffered almost intolerable torments from rheumatism for many years. Of the numerous remedies which I tried, none benefited me. But PARKER'S TONIC gave me great satisfaction. I certify with pleasure that it restored my health. You are welcome to publish this and use my name.

Messrs Hiscox & Co., call especial attention to the fact that this preparation, which has been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be advertised and sold simply under the name of PARKER'S TONIC. As unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their customers by substituting inferior preparations under the name of ginger, and as ginger is really an unimportant ingredient, we drop the misleading word.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, contain the genuine medicine if the facsimile signature of HISCOX & Co., is at the bottom of the outside wrapper.

ATTENTION!

Attention! Attention

If you want to buy a first-class organ If you want to buy a first-class Piano. If you want to exchange your old instrument. If you want to receive their full value. If you want an instrument of any kind If you want to exchange your old sewing machine. If you want to buy the best new sewing machine. If you want to receive a five years warrant with every purchase, bring or send your orders to G. S. Lozier Gen. Agent, Lawrenceburg, Indiana, Office & Sales Room in Dr. C. G. Walters' building, Corner Short and Tate Streets. Send for Prices and Circulars.

All mail orders filled promptly.

A fine display of Organs, Pianos and Sewing Machines will be on exhibition at Lawrenceburg and Aurora Fairs. Call and examine them and leave orders.

LUMBER.

Goe. M. Bedinger & Co.,

Erlanger, - - Ky.

We keep constantly on hand all kinds of Lumber, Laths and Shingles. Also Builder's supplies of all kinds.

—Come and see Us.—

may 9-tf

Farm for Sale.

I am offering for sale my farm, lying 3 miles south of Burlington on the Big Bone road, containing 65½ acres, a part of the Mason Crisler farm. The land lays well and is conveniently located, the improvments are a good brick house and all necessary out buildings, and a variety of good fruit. Any person desirous of purchasing a nice farm will do well to come and examine the premises and learn terms. Title good.

MRS. OSCAR CRISLER.

Farm for Sale.

A small farm of 11½ acres, on the Covington and Lexington pike, at the top of Willow Run Hill. On it are a commodious house, necessary out buildings and a good orchard. Title good. Call on W. C. Tupman, Sheriff's Office, Covington, Thomas Tupman, Kenton Heights or W. L. Riddell, Burlington.

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE.

GEORGETOWN, Ky.—On Cincinnati Southern R.R.

Located in the healthy and beautiful "Blue Grass" region of Kentucky, 55 session opens September 3rd, 1883. Instruction in all branches of a College education. Experienced Professor. The degree of B. S., A. B. and A. M., conferred. Useful course for those who can spend only one or two years in College. Terms low for advantages offered. For catalogue or particulars, address to

R. M. DUDLEY, D. D., President.

INJECTION SANTINELI

Cures all recent and chronic secret diseases of the Urinary passages in both sexes. Directions in all languages. $1.00 a bottle Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of price secure from observation Fairmount Chemical Co. Cincinnati, Ohio, U. S. A. Sold by W. F. M'Kim, Burlington.

LOOK HERE!

when you go to Lawrenceburg, call on

Winegardner

He has a large assortment of

Wall Paper!

And is daily receiving additions to his stock. Call and examine before purchasing.

Inks, Pens and Stationary

constantly on hand.

Headquaters in Lotton House.

Washington & Lee UNIVERSITY, Lexington, Va.

Instruction in the usual academic studies, and in the professional schools of Law and Engineering. Location healthful. Expenses moderate. Next Sept. 20. For catalogues, address "Clerk of the Faculty." G. W. LEE, President.

LAW SCHOOL OF WASHINGTON & LEE UNIVERSITY

GEN. G. W. LEE, President.

Instruction by text-book and printed lectures, with course of lectures on special subjects by eminent jurists. Tuition and fees, $80 for session of nine months; beginning Sept. 20. For catalogue and full information, address CHAS. A. GRAVES, Prof. of Law, Lexington, Va.

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.

Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice,
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.

83-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS FOR THE LIVER

And all Bilious Complaints

Safe to take, being purely vegetable; no griping. Price 25 cts. All Druggists.

INCORPORATED UNDER THE LAWS OF MISSOURI.

CENTRAL MEDICAL & SURGICAL INSTITUTE OF ST. LOUIS, MO.

SUCCESSORS TO DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY. OFFICE & ROOMS, NO. 920 LOCUST ST.

CHAS. L. LaBARTE, M.D., Pres't & Physician in Charge. NELSON CHESMAN, Treas. & Business Manager.

This Institute has ample facilities and an experienced Faculty. While it succeeds to a large business, which has been established for years, it will aim to extend its medical and surgical practice, giving skillful and scientific treatment to CHRONIC DISEASES of the Head, Spine, Lungs and Air Passages, Heart, Liver, Stomach and Bowels, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Consumption and Asthma.

BLOOD IMPURITIES, inherited or caused by impure association, Scrofula, Fever Sores, Ulcers, etc.

DEFORMITIES of the Limbs, Spinal Curvature. Wry-Neck. Diseases of the Joints, Piles, Fistula, Rupture, etc.

WEAKNESS and wasting diseases in old and young men, also all diseases of the genito-urinary organs.

FEMALE irregularities and weaknesses, causing pain in the back or side, etc.

Personal interviews with patients are always preferred. Those unable to visit the Institute will be furnished with blank lists of questions that will aid them in making a full statement of their cases and if not requiring a surgical operation they can be successfully treated by correspondence, and medicines sent by mail or express. To enable us to send proper list of questions applicants should give a brief statement of their trouble.

The Treasurer of the corporation is of Nelson Chesman & Co., Advertising Agents, and refers to the publisher of this or any other newspaper in the United States or Canada regarding responsibility.

Consultation at Office or by mail free and invited

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold every where, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.

TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

VIGOROUS HEALTH FOR MEN

THE PASTILLE CURE TRADE MARK FOR NERVOUS DEBILITY

TESTED FOR 5 YEARS by use in thousands of cases. Founded on scientific medical principles, it has been growing in favor and reputation while its numerous competitors have invariably failed. The direct application of this remedy to the seat of the disease makes its specific influence felt without delay. The natural functions of the human organism are restored. The animating elements of life which have been wasted are given back. The buoyant energy of the brain and muscular system renders the patient cheerful; he gains strength with rapidity.

NERVOUS DEBILITY, organic weakness, and numerous obscure diseases, baffling the skill of best physicians, result for youthful indiscretion, too free indulgence, and over brain work.

Do not temporize while such enemies lurk in your system. Take a remedy that has cured thousands, and does not interfere with you attention to business or cause any pain or inconvenience.

Send for a Descriptive Pamphlet giving Anatomical Illustrations, which will convince the most sceptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fitted for the duties of life, same as if never affected. Sent free to any one. Remedy sold ONLY by the

HARRIS REMEDY CO. MF'G. CHEMISTS.
306½ N. 10th. St. ST. LOUIS, MO.

One Month's treatment $3. two months $5. three months $7

NAVAL Agents Wanted for Ancient & Modern BATTLES,

New and graphic Pictorial History of the great Sea fights of the World. By Medical Director SHIPPEN, U. S. N. Address J. C. McCURDY & Co., 180 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard works of character; great variety; Books & Bibles low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 30 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

AYER'S Ague Cure

IS WARRANTED to cure all cases of malarial disease, such as Fever and Ague, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Bilious Fever, and Liver Complaint. In case of failure, after due trial, dealers are authorized, by our circular of July 1st, 1882, to refund the money.

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists.

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley.
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U. Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk A. G. DeJarnette, Commonwealths Attorney; N. E. Hawes, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. H. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. Ed Fowler, Constable.

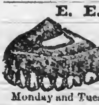
Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday.
Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and L. A. Loder fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister. Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

Beever—W. M. Rouse, Friday after the third Monday, and

E. E. IGOE,



Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun. Ind.

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER

was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE FOR THE WHISKERS

Will change the beard to a natural brown, or black, as desired. It produces a permanent color that will not wash away. Consisting of a single preparation, it is applied without trouble.

PREPARED BY

R. P. HALL & CO., Nashua, N.H.

Sold by all Dealers in Medicines.

FOR ALL THE FORMS OF Scrofulous, Mercurial, and Blood Disorders, the best remedy, because the most searching and thorough blood-purifier, is

Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Sold by all Druggists; $1, six bottles, $5.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON

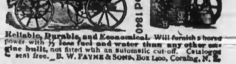
Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label... 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.

COLOGNE

Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines. 2 to 100 Horse Power.

Reliable, Durable, and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ⅓ less fuel and water than any other engine built, not fitted with an automatic cut-off. Catalogue sent free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

$1000 REWARD For any machine hulling and cleaning $1 for market as much Clover Seed in one DAY as the VICTOR



VICTOR ILLUSTRATED Pamphlet mailed FREE.
NEWARK MACHINE CO. NEWARK, O.

W. N. STAGE, Gen. Traveling Agt., Louisville Ky

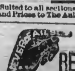
STATE COLLEGE OF KENTUCKY.

UNSECTARIAN. Fall session begins Sept. 12, 1883. Fifteen Professors and Instructors. Scientific, Classical, Agricultural, Normal School and Commercial Courses of Study. Tuition and Matriculation fees, $20 per annum. Board in dormitory, $2.25 per week; in private families, $4.50. 320 students last year. Buildings, apparatus & machinery entirely new. Capacity for 600 students. Range of study wider and expenses less than any college in Kentucky. For catalogues apply to Judge W. B. KINKEAD, or to JAMES K. PATTERSON, Ph. D., President of the College, Lexington, Ky.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST."

ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers

(Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.



FREE! RELIABLE SELF-CURE.

A favorite prescription of one of the most noted and successful specialists in the U. S. (now retired) for the cure of Nervous Debility, Lost Manhood, Weakness and Decay. Sent in plain sealed envelope free. Druggists can fill it.

Address DR. WARD & CO., Louisiana. Mo.

PAYSON'S INDELIBLE INK

Is the BEST. No preparation. Used with any clean pen for marking any fabric. Popular for decorative work on linen. Received Centennial MEDAL & Diploma. Established 50 years. Sold by all Druggists, Stationers & News Agt's.

Local News.

Now cut your briars.

Jumbo literature is around again.

A good shower will secure fine fall pastures.

Lickskillet is the name of a neighborhood in this county.

The damp weather last week greatly benefitted the blackberry crop.

The cemetery at this place has at last received a much needed cleaning up.

Elder Rupard will preach in the Court-house, this place, next Saturday.

Mittie Acra exeurted to High Bridge Sunday. He took it all in by himself.

The RECORDER is under obligations to Mr. M. S. Rice for many favors extended it.

The worst blood diseases are cured by Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Its effects are felt immediately.

The colored folks have commenced the foundation for a parsonage, next to their church.

Rev. A. G. Gaines occupied the pulpit in the Universalist church, at this place, Sunday morning and afternoon.

Solon Rice, of Bellevue, had 70 acres of wheat that made 1,200 bushels. It was the best crop in that neighborhood.

The gentle rain that visited this section last Thursday night did much good, and was badly needed. It was not as general as we hoped.

The North Bend Association of Baptist will be held with the Bullittsburg Church this year. We have not learned the date of its meeting.

Ras Huey and Geo. Hammon have a "three mile" contract for hauling and breaking stone on the Burlington and Bellevue pike, at $1 a perch.

County Clerk Garnett and Attorney Tolin visited the city Saturday, and while there took in the game between the Eclipse and Cincinnatis.

A band of horse traders, equipped for camp life, passed through town Monday morning. They made a short stop, but exchanged none of their stock.

If some fellow would invent a flea trap, he could find a ready sale for many of them in this town. We'd take a dozen and if they did good work, would duplicate the order.

Elzie Harper, an extensive tomato raiser, of the Hebron neighborhood, says that that crop will be very short in his section of the country. The market price is 25 cents per bushel.

Last Friday a company commanded by C. L. Crisler, made a raid on the finny tribe in the Ohio, near Bellevue, and captured a fine lot of fish. They have a good sein and always bring fish home when they go.

Posters are out announcing a grand afternoon and moonlight pic-nic in Wm. Walton's woods on the 18th inst. Robert Carver, Pink Rice, Herbert Walton, Paul Walton, Ed Cloud and John Cloud compose the committee.

Nice tombstones or monuments at the graves of the departed, are marks of respect which should not be neglected. Hurschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., have just what you want. John Beall, of Hebron, is their agent.

Wheat is coming into our market this week in large quantities. The price paid ranges from $1@$1 30. The average quality is reported as not being above that of last year,—a considerable quantity being somewhat shrunken from the effects of rust.—Lawrenceburg Press.

George Huschart & Co. put up two of their fine monuments in the cemetery at Bullittsville, Boone county, Ky. One was erected by E. M. Gaines for his daughter, Mrs. Mary. M. Duncan, at a cost of $200; and the other by Mrs. Cooper for her husband, Robert W. Cooper, at a cost of $150.—Lawrenceburg Press.

The Walton authorities had a young fellow lodged in jail here Sunday charged with housebreaking. He and a negro entered a house near that place, the negro got the biggest part of the steal and skipped out. The little fellow is but 16 years old, and says that his home is at St. Louis, and was on his way home when put off the train at Walton. His name is Charles Morris.

J. L. Johnson, of Hamilton, was present at the counting of the vote, and protested against the board's recognizing the vote cast on the local option question in that district. His grounds were that nothing showed that the officers of the election were sworn as by law required, the oath and certificate attached to the poll book being blank. The board decided that it could not pass upon the legality of the vote and declared the result as shown by the poll book. We did not learn whether Mr. Johnson will appeal to the court to pass upon the legality of the vote.

The Aurora Distilling Company are doing the handsome thing by offering an elegant premium for the best lady rider at the Aurora Fair. The prize will be a solid silver tea set, costing $136 50, and is a genuine beauty. The probability is that a large number will compete for this prize and it will be something worth winning. At least seven ladies must compete and no doubt this will be the finest and most exciting ring of the fair.—Aurora Independent.

Now, Brother Cobb, if some of our handsome Boone county ladies don't capture that elegant tea set, it won't be because they will not try. We'll bet you a glass of Aurora beer that that premium comes across the Ohio.

Official Vote.

Precincts	Governor.			L. Gov.		At. Gen		Auditor		Treas.		Supt. In.		Register.		Represen.		Sheriff.
	Knott	Morow	Jones	Hindm'	Fry	Hardin	Gar'gus	Hewitt	Haw'th	Tate	Farley	Pickett	Pink'n	Cecil	Asbury	Scott	Walton	Clut'ck	Ryle
Florence	171	35	......	174	28	175	25	176	26	173	26	168	36	168	26	209	101	276	......
Burlington	167	86	......	185	80	187	75	187	76	173	74	185	75	185	62	90	273	275	......
Bullittsville	81	17	27	122	14	120	14	124	14	124	14	124	14	121	14	32	127	140	1
Petersburg	197	80	......	202	62	203	61	200	62	200	61	202	60	200	60	13	317	121	93
Bellevue	69	27	......	73	25	73	23	72	23	74	23	75	23	74	24	12	146	59	......
Carlton	99	23	......	101	22	101	21	95	21	102	19	103	19	100	14	93	97	52	......
Hamilton	135	61	......	136	54	136	51	136	51	137	54	134	51	136	50	111	90	160	......
Union	125	15	16	130	9	148	9	153	9	157	9	147	9	144	9	108	129	192	12
Beaver	99	7	......	99	6	99	6	99	6	100	6	99	6	99	7	41	77	114	......
Verona	126	1	......	126	1	129	......	128	......	128	......	128	......	112	......	45	106	151	......
Walton	155	54	......	153	52	154	51	132	51	153	52	132	52	150	52	158	97	226	......
Taylorport	44	31	1	48	11	48	31	48	31	38	31	47	31	48	31	19	59	66	......
Total	1468	437	44	1549	384	1573	357	1570	364	1570	368	1544	376	1532	344	931	1619	1832	106
Majorities	1031			1165		1216		1206		1210		1168		1188			688	1725

For Coroner, Maratt received 287 votes; Whitson, 711; Cropper, 299; Kite, 2.

On the local option question in the Hamilton district 119 voted against the sale of whisky and 83 voted for it.

John M. Moody was elected Constable in the Bellevue district by 4 majority over Thompson.

Petersburg elected Mahan Constable.

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

Miss Sallie Rich is visiting her sister, Mrs. McKim.

Miss Mattie Winston is visiting Lake Chautauqua.

Miss Sophia Finch has returned from her visit to Frankfort.

Shelby Rich, of Kenton county, spent Sunday in Burlington.

H. C. White, of Williamstown, Grant county, was in town Tuesday.

Miss Kittie Riddell, of Hebron, is the guest of Miss Nettie Gardner.

Mrs. Kittie Strong, of Cincinnati, is visiting James Westbay and family.

Miss Sallie Hyatt, of Newport, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Grant of this place.

Mr. and Mrs. Fagon, of Illinois, were the guests of Mrs. Dempsey, last week.

Mrs. Florence McKim returned home last Wednesday, from a visit to her father's.

Miss Lura Palmer, of Lawrenceburg, is visiting her uncle, S. A. Palmer, of this place.

Mr. Jacob Kyle and daughter, Miss Nannie were visiting in Burlington a few days last week.

Mrs. Gullion, of Eagle Station, Carroll county, is visiting her mother, Mrs. Campbell, at this place.

Mrs. Rose Powell, of Waynetown, Indiana, was visiting Mrs. W. F. McKim, Saturday and Sunday.

R. O. Hughes, of Richwood, was in town Tuesday negotiating with John Cropper, Legrand Gaines and Dr. Jonas Terrill for the Bullittsville school.

Base-ball.

About 250 people were on the Boones' grounds at Bullittsville, Saturday, to witness a game between the Boones and the Miamatowns. The latter club failed to put in an appearance, but it having been learned by the management of the Boones that such would be the case, a game was arranged with the Standards, of Aurora, which claims to be the strongest country amateur club in this section.

The Boones won the toss and the game opened with the Standards at the bats. The Boones lead the Standards up to the fourth inning when bad throwing allowed the Standards to take the lead which they held till the 9th inning when the Boones tied the score. Excitement at the beginning of the tenth inning, ran high and when the Boones went to the bat the last time they wanted two scores to tie and three to win, but succeeded in making but one and the Standards walked off with but one score the advantage in ten innings.

The features of the game on the Boones' side was Fowler's pitching and Quicks catching. Below is the score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	10	T
Standards	1	0	0	5	3	0	0	0	2	2	13
Boones	3	0	0	0	4	1	2	0	1	1	12

To-day, Wednesday, the Boones play a club from Walnut Hills, and Saturday they go to Cleves, Ohio, to play.

We call the attention of our readers to the advertisement of G. S. Lozier. If you want anything in his line don't fail to give him a call.

The southern part of the county was visited by a glorious rain last Friday about five p. m. The rain approached within a mile of this place.

The Methodist Sunday-school, of Petersburg, will give a pic-nic in Collin's Grove, Friday, August 17th, '83. An invitation is extended to all.

While some young men were shooting a target gun, in Hebron the other day, a spent, wild ball struck a little girl, but fortunately she was not hurt to speak of.

The Late V. T. Chambers.

The following is taken from the Covington column of the Cincinnati Enquirer. Mr. Chambers had many acquaintances in this county, who are sorry to hear of his death.

"Vactor T. Chambers, the son of Charles and Anna Tousey Chambers, was born at Burlington, Boone County, Ky. on the 6th day of August, 1830. He attended the school conducted by Mr. Sackett Mead, now of Covington, at that place, and after completing the course he entered the Louisville Law School, where he remained for the full term of two years, and from which he bore the first honors of his class. He also pursued the study of his profession under Judge James Pryor, at Carrollton, Ky. He removed to Covington in 1854, and on the 12th day of March, 1857 married Miss Nannie Pryor, daughter of Judge Pryor, his former instructor, and in this place he continued to reside and practice his profession until the time of his death. He was once a partner of Gen. John W. Fennell and afterward of Judge Pryor, his father-in-law."

"Mr. Chambers was an entomologist of high and extensive reputation. He was for two years President of the Cincinnati Society of Natural History, and a constant and valued contributor to the journal of that society. His articles on entomology were noted for great research, careful observation and originality. His style was singularly pleasing, investing even the dryest scientific subjects with interest and attractiveness. He was also for years a contributor to the Canadian Entomologist, a journal of world wide and great reputation, and was employed by the United States Government in the survey of Colorado on his favorite subject. His works have been read by all lovers of science in the civilized world, bringing him praise and honor, and remaining an enduring monument to his memory."

"On the 6th day of August, 1883—his fifty-third birthday—Mr. Chambers was stricken with apolexy, within a few squares of his home. He lingered for about twelve houas in an unconscious state, and then, at two o'clock on August 7th, surrounded by his family and friends, laid down the cares, the vexations and sorrows that are the common lot of all, and took in immortality. A glorious immortality for him! The end, the crown and the reward of a life spent in honor and purity and closed in faith and in a full reliance that the blood of Christ had opened to him the portals of an eternal and blessed home."

County Court.

Churchwell Clore's will probated, and Henry and William Clore qualified as executors with Charles and Noah Clore securities.

Rosa King was granted license to keep hotel in Walton.

Conrad K. Karnser made declaration of his intention to become a citizen of the United States.

B. L. Rice resigned as commissioner and treasurer of the W. B. B., T. P. R.

Tavern rates were fixed as follows for the ensuing year:

Breakfast, Dinner & Supper, each	40c
Lodging for night	40c
Whisky, brandy, rum, gin and wine per drink	10c
Grain and hay per feed	40c
Grain or hay alone	25c

These mornings are cool enough for a small quantity of fire.

Phillip Seniour was ordained as a deacon by the Florence Baptist church last Saturday.

A stock company is organizing for the purpose of building a fish pond in Gabriel T. Gaines' field near town.

W. B. Adams claims that he has, on C. L. Crisler's farm near Piles' mill, the finest crop of corn and tobacco in the county.

We are sorry to hear of the death of our old friend, W. S. Ryle, of Gunpowder, who died last Friday of consumption and kidney disease.

Mr. McFarland has opened up a shoe shop in Mr. Cowen's old stand, where he is prepared to do all kind of shoemaking, and would be pleased to have the trade of the surrounding country.

The carriage in which Rev. George Buffington and wife, of Florence, were going to Hughes' Chapel to meeting one evening last week, was upset by their horse searing near Wolf's shop on the Richwood and Beaver pike, and Mrs. Buffington was considerably hurt.

1

A PURE strengthening tonic, free from whisky, cures dyspepsia, indigestion, and similar diseases. It has never been equaled. Brown's Iron Bitters.

WADLEY, GA.—Dr. H. L. Battle, Jr., says: "Brown's Iron Bitters are very popular in this section and give entire satisfaction."

SHEBOYGAN, WIS.—Dr. S. B. Myers says: "I recommend Brown's Iron Bitters for general debility, loss of appetite, and want of strength."

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Waterloo.

A fine shower of rain fell in this neighborhood last Friday night, which was reviving to the people as well as the vegetation.

Tobacco was firing badly before the rain especially new ground tobacco.

Grain in this neighborhood is about all threshed.

Our School commissioner informs us that the July draft is ready for distribution.

Miss Emma Wise, of Carroll county, is visiting relatives here.

John N. Humphrey says that he has tobacco that will do to cut this week.

Constance.

The election is over, and as usual after an election, some of our prominent citizens are going around with sore heads and black eyes.

We congratulate the Boone boys on their success.

The rain came just in time to save some corn in our neighborhood.

We are sorry to say that we have no school-house in our village. People ought to be ashamed.

Miss Emma Sutphin, the fair young lady who has for the past month been visiting relatives at this place has returned to her home in Middletown, Ohio.

Hebron.

Alfred Gaines has handled about 3,500 lambs this season.

John Tanner, of Ludlow, are visiting friends in this neighborhood.

The game of ball at this place between the Favorites and Taylorports resulted in favor of the latter in a score of 20 to 17.

Rev. Rouden, of Springfield, Ohio, will preach at this place next Sunday.

Henry Quick took a glass of turpentine for Vanilla Cream, and it made him very sick for a while.

Mrs. Amanda Rouse killed a snake the other day, which measured three feet in length, and had two horns.

Petersburg.

Let everybody attend the Lawrenceburg fair next week.

Dr. Ed Terrill and F. M. Cox were on the sick list last week.

Mr. Lime Harding was here last Monday to see Squire Shepherd.

Miss Elena Alden has returned home from Carrollton, Ky., where she has been visiting her sister.

Pete has captured another dude, for the upper end of town, and it can be seen any time at the little store on the corner near the school-house.

Miss Sue Smith was visiting at Jonas Terrill's last week.

Rev. Keene has left with us two stalks of timothy, one measuring 6 ft. 6 in. in length the other 6 ft. 4 in. How is that for timothy?

Reese Gordon received from Freiburg $20 for the injuries he received at the fire. Reese has not been able to work since he got burnt, and it was right to pay him for his lost time.

Miss Ida McClain, of Cincinnati, Ohio, is visiting her many friends here.

Elmore Wingate left last week for Memphis, Tenn. He expects to do a staving business while there, making barrels, but he had bedder look a leedle oudt, he might catch the fever.

Why don't the Boone base-ball club send the Almonts a chalenge? We would like to see them play.—[They will when they commence playing these little amateur clubs.—EDS.]

J. H. Green has taken charge of the grocery here, and Alonzo has gone to the city, where he will start another grocery.

Walton.

Our little village, located as it is, with two railroads emptying their usual quantity of mixed human freight, naturally throw in our midst an unusual number of dead beats and scallawags who subsist on the products of midnight rambles to the quiet resting place of some unprotentious old cock's lair, or some isolated dwelling, or deserted counting room. On Friday, the tenth inst., your humble servant unexpectedly came in contact with a squad of these suspicious characters, lounging around the Cincinnati & Louisville depot—three white boys and two negroes,—and after a careful survey of the premises, the little band of amateur thieves located the dwelling of Mr. Warren Lermond for their nefarious designs. Mr. Lermond's business calls him away from home at all times, and Mrs. L. was away at that time visiting her father's. The consequence was the house was burglarized at noon on Fridry, by two of the gang, one white boy name Charles Morse, of St. Louis, and a negro boy who were chosen to do the work. They secured some booty in the shape of jewelry, soap towels, etc., but no money. The little negro escaped, but Morse was captured with his other confederates. He confessed his guilt and now languishes in your refuge for criminals.

Last Thursday John Ransler and Elzie Gorman were arrested and brought before Esquire Curley, charged with an assault upon one "Misther" John Fink, one of our functionaries. Mr. Fink's testimony goes to show that he had imbibed too freely while awaiting the election returns, and at low 12 left his downy couch, and wandered forth in the darkness, and came in contact with the above named young men. They viewed him and discovered his nervous system was all broke up, and an antidote was administered by placing Fink in a barrel and rolling him up and down the street. Fink claims that after his release from the barrel, he knew not whither he was going, and strayed from home as far as Richwood (4 miles) without shoes, hat or coat. The boys were exonerated through some technicality, we know not what.

Miss Alice Beasly, of Henry county, is the guest of Mrs. Steven Waite.

Misses Katie and Louisa Stamler are visiting friends at Dry Ridge, Grant co.

Miss Yetchy King entertained quite a small audience of ardent admirers, last Sunday.

Mr. Geo. Southgate has returned from Nashville, where he has been egaged surveying.

The evangelical work of Rev. Dunlap, at this place, has awakened an unusual interest in the hitherto unprotentious village. Vast throngs assemble to hear the Word. All denominations have laid aside their animosities for the time, and join in sweet accord, and thus surround the throne. The meeting is to continue during the present week including next Sabbath, services to be held at night only, beginning at 8 o'clock promptly.

Bro. Vaughter preached at the Christian church here, last Sunday, to a large congregation. Mrs. Wilhoit, nee Miss Stevens officiated at the organ.

Prof. Newton's High-school will open here September first, under favorable circumstances. An overly large school is anticipated.

Prof. Ricketts, we learn, is engaged to officiate in the public school.

A ball was given in the hall at this place last week, and it was well attended. All the gallantry and beauty of this and the adjacent neighborhoods assembled, and spent a pleasant time. Prof. Bagby's string band discoursed sweet music for the occasion.

The grandest and noblest designs of art eminate from the fashionable millinery establishment in this place, and Miss Mollie Fry, the proprietoress, had a very satisfactory dress parade, last Sunday. We delight in viewing, critically, the same designs.

A. M. & S. L. Edwards have sold, for winter consumption, up to this time, 5,000 bushels of coal, this, too, in a timbered country. Soon the old, cherished wood fire will be a thing of the past.

We were favored with a negro shooting here on election day. Phil Sleet, colored, figured conspicuously in the fray. The hat and scalp were the only parts wounded.

The marriage of W. W. Grimsley, of Big Bone, and Miss Sarah Hance, of Gallatin county, escaped our attention till a few days since. It is not now too late to extend our congratulations, William.

NOTICE.

A dividend of 50 cents on each share of the Burlington and Florence turnpike is declared and ordered to be paid on demand by the treasurer DUDLEY ROUSE.

Aug. 11th, 1883.

SCIENCE HILL.
(A SCHOOL for Girls,) Established 1825
By MRS. JULIA A TEVIS,
Located at SHELBYVILLE, KENTUCKY,
Aims to give its pupils the elements of a complete education. Pretense and show are discarded and all the force of a competent faculty directed toward the essentials of Education. Terms reasonable. Send for catalogue.
W. T. POYNTER, D. D., Principal.

J. W. KIRKPATRICK & SON,
—BURLINGTON, KY.—
UNDERTAKERS
—AND—
EMBALMERS,
Will furnish nice Hearse any reasonable distance for $10.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - UNION, KY.

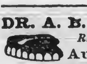
F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office over Dudley Rouse's Store.

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence,
Burlington, - - Ky.

L. C. NORMAN. R. T. STEPHENS.
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW,
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81



DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Court and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application to G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

S. W. TOLIN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. Aprompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.
Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
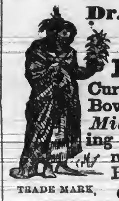
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.
N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky. | J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.
DIRECTORS.
LEGRAN GAINES, Jeff Utz,
JNO. M. MOODY.

DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS,
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
SALT BY THE BARREL.
ROUSE.
BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS.
The Best of Flour
PATENT & HIGH GRADE
Always on Hand, and cheaper than the cheapest.
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE
A fresh Stock of Garden Seed at
DUDLEY ROUSE'S.
I now have on hand a full Stock of SCHOFIELDS Flannels, Jeans, and Yarns. Call early and make a Purchase.

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEED.
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES.)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE.
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.
Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.
All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE
Petersburg Drug Store,
Where you can find everything in the Drug line, such as——.
Well call and see and be convinced.
Respectfully, S. C BUCHANAN.

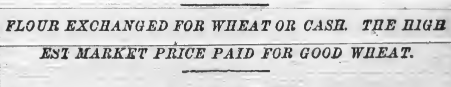


Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S
Indian Blood Syrup
Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the
BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.
Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.
AGENTS WANTED.
TRADE MARK.
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St, New York City. Druggists sell it.
D. CLARK JOHNSON:—This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. McCAMC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '83.

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300,000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK.
Covington, Kentucky.
DIRECTORS.
James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green,
J. S. Matson, J. H. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H. Dills, F. P. Helm,
L. C. Stephens.
The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.
The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank. dec. 20-6m

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar7-tf23
J. W. Talbott.

UNDERTAKING.



We keep Constantly on Hand all sizes of
Burial Cases and Caskets.
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES GUARANTEED LESS THAN CITY PRICES.
DAVIS BROS, HEBRON, KY.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL, Publishers.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY

Fickle Fashion.

Nothing deader than the city of New York in July could be imagined. The theaters and several other things will open in August, but this month folks are doing nothing except grumble and sweat under the stress of the weather. Like everybody else who can get away I have had a trip this week out of town. On the steamboat down the bay I remarked the sordid character of the talk. Stocks and merchandise were the only subjects which I overheard discussed. The brokers and merchants were by no means leaving their business cares behind, but were carrying their minds off full of them. Their demeanor, too, had the alert briskness usual to men of tangible affairs. The exception in this respect fixed my attention at once by his rarity. His uncropped hair, dreamy eyes and careless dress convinced me that he was a poet. He sat in a retired and breezy corner of the boat and was in deep revery. That his thoughts were in rhyme and rhymth I did not for an instant doubt. At length he drew out a note-book and pencil, gazed abstractedly skyward and then wrote hastily. I took a seat close by—very softly, so as not to disturb him, and yet I was glad when an acquaintance of his came along, slapped him disturbingly on the shoulder and asked what he was writing. I pricked up my ears to hear the reply. It shocked me very much.

"I was trying to figure out whether this cursed rage for velvet," he said, "is going to let up enough to give plush a show next winter."

Not poetry, but woman's prosy finery! However, what he said is worth writing out.

"In all the time I've been in the dry-goods trade," he continued, "I never knew any fabric to have such a run as the one on velvet. It was used for all millinery and dress purposes, and it wasn't any use to put anything else on the counter in the way of heavy goods. Well, I thought the rage was done with when hot weather set in; and as something or other must take the place of velvet when fashion does discard it, I thought that plush would be in order for autumn. The American silk manufacturers and the importers of foreign goods were of the same opinion. Great quantities of plush are being made in Paterson and ordered from abroad. I have made heavy purchases for my retail trade. Now come premonitions that velvet will last and that plush won't have a chance. That doesn't exactly mean bankruptcy for me, but I shall lose heavily if it turns out as I fear. Talk about gambling in stocks. There is just about as much an element of chance in the dry-goods business as there is in Wall street operations—more sir, for the prices of stock can be controlled by the big dealers to a certain extent; but I defy anybody to more than guess at the fancy of fashionable women six months ahead."—N. Y. Cor. Albany Journal.

Does the Day Increase in Length?

It is well known that Professor G. Darwin has associated what may be regarded as a new theory of cosmical evolution with the gradual retardation of the earth's rotation spin, and consequent lengthening of the day. Mr. E. Stone, formerly chief assistant at Greenwich, and now the head of the Radcliffe Observatory, Oxford, has just published some calculations, which, though they do not actually disprove the change in the earth's rotation rate, throw grave doubt on the only direct evidence ever recognized in its favor. When it was found that Hansen's lunar tables do not accord with the evidence respecting the moon's movements derived either from actual observation or from the study of ancient eclipses, it was suggested in explanation of the discrepancy (corresponding to an apparent gain of the moon on her calculated place) that it may be apparent only, and due to change of the rate of going of our great terrestrial timepiece the earth, by which, of course, we time the moon's movements. Delaunay showed that, owing to the movement of the tidal wave in a direction opposite to that of the earth's rotation, the rotation rate must diminish, though very slowly. Sir George Airy, going through the same process of inquiry, obtained at first a negative result, but later recognized the existence of certain terms indicating a retardation. Since then it has been regarded as an accepted doctrine that the length of the day must gradually increase until the day is as long as the lunar month. Nay, Professor Ball, Astronomer Royal for Ireland, goes further than this, and considers that the solar tide must eventually lengthen the day until it is equal to the year, overlooking apparently the fact that the lunar action will prevent any increase beyond the length of a lunar month. But Mr. Stone has found reason for believing that the discordance between theory and observation, which has been thrown on the earth's rotation, does not exist, so that "so far as we know at present, the time of the earth's rotation is constant." If his calculation should be confirmed it would not prove that there is no retardation in the earth's rotation, but that the length of the day is changing much more slowly than had been supposed—too slowly in fact, to be recognized.—Contemporary Review.

What is Farming?

"What is farming?" says the Golden Rule. "It is something more than staying on a farm. It is something more than selling hay and potatoes and bulky crops unanimalized. Farming is a business, a profession, a practical and scientific operation whereby the soil is used for profit and improved under the operation. The processes of nature must be understood and worked in harmony with the chemistry of earth and air. The processes of the elements must be understood, if not in their technical terms and language, in that sensible understanding, that commonsense way, that their own advantage and capabilities may be turned to the best account. The lawyer works by law and precedent, the physician works by symptoms and indications, the merchant by rules and observations, the mechanic by measures and capacities. The farmer must work by all—by rules, laws, observation and experience. He must be a practical lawyer, doctor, merchant and mechanic of the vegetable, the animal and the trade world about him. He must be a skilled workman in the productive, operative and commercial circles in which his business lies and his sphere of circulation extends."

—Queen Victoria is four feet eight inches high. Prince Albert was fifteen inches taller.

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

—It is believed that Salvini, who is fifty-two, and intends retiring at fifty-five, is worth $300,000. He has been playing since he was fourteen.

—Field Marshall Von Moltke, of Germany, was taken for a tramp recently and ordered out of one of the Prussian inland villages.

—The Duke and Duchess of Villavlosa travel together in Europe rather quietly. When they are at home they are King and Queen of Portugal.

Martin Luther's own Bible is in a Berlin museum. On the title page is written: "If thy word, O Lord, do not comfort me, I should perish in misery. 1542, Mart. Luther, D."

—John Bunyan was not appreciated by the Church of England while living, but a stained-glass window has now been placed to his memory in Elston Church, his native town.

—"Why am I not a nephew or niece of Mr. Benjamin Hammond of Walmas-villas, Bradford?" exclaims the editor of London Truth. "Last week he celebrated his seventy-fifth birthday, on which occasion he presented thirty nephews or nieces with £740 each."

—Mr. Labouchere thus raps the knuckles of some of his contemporaries: "Apropos of matters Russian I notice that several of my contemporaries talk of 'Mr. Gospodin Lubimoff, the eminent Russian tradgedian.' Seeing that Gospodin is the Russian equivalent for Mr., I think one of the titles might be omitted with propriety."

—The King of Bavaria has for six years been building at the entrance to the Tyrol a palace, said to surpass in artistic splendor all other royal residences in the world. The main building is finished, and from the vari-colored marbles with which the walls are lined to the minutest detail every resource of art has been taxed. The palace is not visible from any road, complete privacy being an object.

—An engineer and a fireman on an English locomotive had been at work fifteen hours, previous to which they had been out all night on a spree. The consequence was that they fell asleep simultaneously at their posts while on a rapid run, and as their locomotive had no train attached, there was no body to discover the danger until they dashed past a siding where they should have stopped. The word was telegraphed ahead, and they were awakened by torpedoes on the rails.

—The habits of ostriches are as well known to the breeders at the Cape of Good Hope as those of hens to our farmers. Most people suppose that ostriches always lay their eggs in holes in the sand. This is true of ostriches living in large flocks in the burning deserts of Africa, but at the Cape they build nests of grass and similar materials, and male and female birds take turns in hovering over the eggs. The same habit has been observed recently at Cape York, Australia, and in the Phillipine islands, but in other parts of Oceanica the ostriches gather up in advance a large quantity of vegetable matter, which they allow to decompose in the sun, and in which they bury their eggs, leaving to the hotbed thus formed the responsibility of hatching the eggs.

Keeping the Peace.

A mother whose duties called her away two or three days in every week from her large family of little children, purchased an illuminated motto—"Blessed are the Peacemakers"—and had it framed and hung in the family room. For many weeks after the ceremony of placing it on the walls, and the talk that accompanied the ceremony, whenever any unpleasant difference threatened to arise between the children, some one of them would shout out, "Blessed are the Peacemakers," with perceptible happy effect. After a while, however, the novelty wore out, and when a call was made for pictures to cover the bareness of the walls of the new school-house, a consultation was held by the family to see which of their precious pictures could be spared. Each one had a history; almost every one was framed with associations and memories that made it precious. At last the younger little girl exclaimed: "Why, send 'Blessed are the Peacemakers;' we're all through with that."

Now, it does seem sometimes as though that beatitude—the natural pendent to the Golden Rule—was quite ignored and forgotten in some professedly Christian households, as though they had got "all through with that;" and yet what is a family where there are no peacemakers, where each seeks his own and none "follow after the things which make for peace, and things wherewith one may edify another?" Whatever such a family may be, it is not an Eden, not a Paradise, not a little "heaven to go to Heaven in."

These are noble quarrels. The fight going on within us all between the evil and the good, between Apollyon and God, is a noble fight. The fight against ignorance, poverty, intemperance, is noble; the fight for any true principle is noble. But it is not always easy to distinguish between principle and people; we are apt to get them confused with each other, and sometimes we turn upon our friends the energy that should be used only in fighting our foes, and even in fighting them we are to "hate the sin with all our hearts, yet still the sinner love." A great many people of executive, aggressive temperaments strike because they feel like striking, not because they see some great wrong to be righted, some abuse to be corrected, some evil to be rebuked. Wisdom suggests getting out of the way of such folk till the paroxysm be past. Sharp words flow as naturally from some lips as gentle words from others. Is any emollient better in such cases than utter silence? Some are never so happy as when they can "stir up the animals" and set them all to howling. Prudence suggests that when such persons appear all the clubs and long sticks lying round be carefully put away out of reach.

"A soft answer turneth away wrath, but grievous words stir up anger." "The bale of a pail measures no more lying down than it does standing up." Engineers never go over a mountain or tunnel through it, when they can more advantageously go around it. The self-respected person will not permit himself to be dragged into a petty quarrel and suffer all his fine enthusiasms to be worn away by such mean attrition. He will rather with both fingers in his ears run away, crying "Life, life." Silence has a wonderfully healing influence when properly employed. If people can be induced to keep their voices keyed low when they are in an irritable humor, this will allay strife. Children rarely disagree widely in whispers, or grown people, either; as their tempers rise their voices rise, until high words are followed by hard blows. We knew a man once who was married to a woman who had a temper of her own, and he kept her so smothered with honeyed words and actions that to him she was always sweet.

The love of whatsoever things are lovely and of good report, will keep people from evil as effectually as the intense and active hatred of evil, and the cultivation of this principle of love, of the good for its own sake, brings with it mildness and gentleness; brings with it balmy airs in which the genial fruits of charity and peace naturally ripen. If people could divest themselves of exaggerated ideas of their own self-importance there would be far less strife than there is. If "he who would be greatest of all" were content to be "servants of all," social and domestic quarrelling would be rare.

A man drunk with wine can not really insult a gentleman. The gentleman appeals from "Philip drunk to Philip sober." A man crazy with passion or anger is a lunatic to a degree, and is to be treated accordingly. When he "comes to himself" he may be induced to make amends for what he has done when he was beside himself. The person who can hold himself true to truth and virtue, and front with a serene face fretfulness, unreasonable irritation, unjust accusations, groundless fault-finding, and that ceaseless friction that is found in all grades and stations in life, has wealth within himself beyond computation. Such a person is a treasure in the family circle, in the church and in society.

A little girl in the midst of a large family once set herself the task of keeping the peace among those around her. She tried to ease at every point she could the burdens of her parents; she did not answer back when reproved, or say biting words when provocations arose. She constituted herself the guardian of the children younger than she was, and had "leagues" with them of mutual kindness and forbearance. She tried to pour oil on the waters whenever they were troubled, and remove all causes of strife she could reach. As "one sinner destroyeth much good," so one peacemaker not only planted the seeds of concord but destroyed much evil in that family, and received ample recompense for her labor.—N. Y. Tribune.

How Spools are Made.

Our representative recently visited the spool factory in Searsport Village, Maine. The company own large tracts of land in Northern Maine, from which the lumber for spool making is cut, white birch being used exclusively.

The wood is first sawed into pieces four feet in length, and of nine sizes, varying by sixteenths, from an inch to an inch and a half square. It is then dried as thoroughly as it can be out of doors. Inside the factory it first goes to the "rougher," where the strips are cut into cylinders of the length of a spool, and the hole bored, the turning and boring being performed at one operation, and the cutting off, with a small circular saw, at another, all on one machine. These little cylinders drop from the rougher into the barrel whence they are removed to the "rollers," or revolving slatted cylinders, in which the fine dirt and fuzz left by the saw and bits are removed. The pieces are then picked over by hand and all imperfect ones are sorted out to feed the ever hungry fires under the boiler.

The next process is a more thorough seasoning of the blocks in a loft, and then they go to the "reamer," where the center holes are made to the exact size required, which can not be done by the rougher on account of the shrinkage of the wood after leaving that machine. Until lately the reaming has been done by an ordinary reaming tool working in a lathe, the work being fed by hand, but a new machine has been lately put in, which will ream the spools as fast as two boys can feed them into the spouts.

The machine in use in the Searsport shop has some features which the builders claim are improvements over the original, which was imported from Scotland, it having lately been invented in that country, and not yet patented in the United States. It consists of a short revolving shaft, with a reaming tool at each end, working endwise, backward and forward about four inches. At each end spouts are arranged with feeding apparatus, which forces the spools into the proper position to be bored, and then allows them to drop out into a barrel below. At each oscillation of the shaft two spools are reamed, one at each end, the machine turning out about 240 per minute.

The next machine is the "finisher," which is an attachment to an ordinary lathe by which the spools are turned into shape, at one operation, at the rate of from ten to fifteen hundred per hour. There are eight cutting knives on this machine; one at each end standing up perpendicular to the length of the spool for trimming the end; one at each end, horizontally, for turning the outside of the flange; between these two, others standing diagonally, for the inside of the flange; another horizontally, for turning out the space between the two flanges; and a small circular chisel for cutting the finish on the top of the spool.

The spools have now received their shape, and need only the finishing touches. These are given first by the "polishers," which are the same as the rollers above described, the friction of the spools against each other giving them the required polish. Then they are again sorted by hand, and all imperfect ones removed, after which they go to the "embosser," a sort of printing machine which stamps the number of the thread and some ornamental devices upon the head of each spool. They are then packed in stout sacks, holding from thirteen to sixty-six gross each, according to the size of the spools.—Belfast (Me.) Age.

How Playing Cards Are Made.

The cardboard is procured from Holyoke, Mass. It is made in sheets large enough for fifty-four cards. The printing has to be done in six impressions—two colors for the back and four for the face. The pattern for the back is generally an interwoven check in green and yellow. When this is printed the cards are reversed and the red plate put on. This prints the hearts and diamonds, the king's scabbard, crown and nose, jack's hat and mantle, and several portions of the queen's dress. The blue and yellow colors follow in succession, both being used mainly in giving additional luster to the court costumes. Then the black plate finishes. When the cards are printed they are cut in long strips, each strip showing six cards placed lengthways. Then the cutting machine clips them out with rounded corners ready for the packer. At this stage only half the work is done. The sorting, counting and folding require as many hands to perform as do the printing and clipping. The work is done mainly by girls.—Chicago Tribune.

—Prince Lucien Bonaparte, nephew of the great Napoleon, is to be given a £250 pension by Queen Victoria, because he is very poor and has done some remarkable philological work. He is seventy years old.

HOME AND FARM.

—Cucumbers, according to M. Dellea, caterer of the New York Club, should be peeled and put to soak in ice-salt water at least an hour before served. The salt extracts the poison and the ice renders them brittle and easier to be digested.

—For breakfast try this: Take the skin off a nice piece of salt codfish; wash it in several waters, and lay it on a gridiron to broil. It should be broiled for about twenty minutes, and must be turned often to prevent burning. This is nice for tea also.—Chicago Journal.

—A correspondent of the Husbandman uses his buckwheat chaff as an absorbent in cow-stables. One and a half bushels will be sufficient for ten cows over night, keeping them clean and dry. In addition to his own he buys from his neighbors, paying one dollar for a load of fifty bushels.

—It is advisable to give the chicks which are with their mother a feed early in the morning, another feed in the middle of the forenoon, then at noon, followed by a feed in the middle of the afternoon, and again late in the evening.—Cincinnati Times.

—To expedite the making of a lemon pie use hot water in place of cold, stir the cut-up lemon, the sugar and corn starch or flour and eggs together, as if you were making pudding sauce; then pour in hot water; if the pail or basin containing this is then placed in a vessel of boiling water it will cook in five minutes.—N. Y. Post.

—If it is possible so to arrange the order of dinner getting, do not shell the peas until a few minutes before they are to be cooked. They lose much of their fine, distinctive flavor if shelled some time before cooking; and do not wash them. What water is so clean as the lining of the pod?—Exchange.

—Early Hoeing: By this we do not mean hoeing early in the season, but early in the morning. In the early morning the dew is on, and this is charged with an available amount of ammonia, which, of course, feeds the roots below. If the surface is neglected a crust forms and the air does not circulate in the soil. Get the farm hands to begin work a couple of hours earlier in the morning, and give them the same time at noon to rest.—N. Y. Herald.

—Farmers, observes a recent writer, are very negligent in regard to keeping well-informed as to prices. Two cents, or even one cent, on the yearly butter product of twenty or thirty cows, is no small loss for any ordinary farmer. No loss can be averted and gain insured without radical improvement in the manufacture of the butter. The best brings the top price: the poorest is hard to sell.—Prairie Farmer.

Moral Influences of the Orchard.

While there is so much of the practical to demand space in a journal wholly or partly devoted to horticulturists, it is by no means useless to give some attention to what are regarded as the lighter, and, perhaps, as the more fanciful features of the subject. To those who have watched the influences of horticultural pursuits, however, their moral aspects are by no means fanciful. Horticulture has a substantial moral influence upon both the horticulturist and the community. If there is a person living who ever saw a well-kept bed of strawberries or a grand orchard about the home of a thoroughly bad man, he has the advantage of us. Fine fruit growing and worthlessness of character do not, and can not, harmonize; and we have seen characters that have been polished, and manners that have been improved, and morals that have been strengthened by the preaching and influence of lovely fruit. There is no mistake about this matter. A community is greatly improved by fruit. Go into sections where there is no fruit, and no attempt to grow any, and, unless it is a new community, you will find it anything but pleasant in almost all of its characteristics. But a neighborhood that has fine orchards and fruit gardens will be a superior neighborhood in every respect—intelligent, moral, and public spirited.

There are well defined reasons, too, for some of these results. A fruit eating people are a healthier people than those who are not; and people will not eat fruit unless it is fit to eat. When it is really fine they can not resist the temptation to partake. Hence in a neighborhood of fine fruit growing, the people will be large consumers, good health being thus almost assured, increased intelligence and morality result, for a mind unclogged by a sluggish or feeble physical system is necessary to the former, and a stomach unclogged can almost be said to be necessary to the latter. A healthy person has a better chance to be what a human being ought to be, in all respects, than one who is not healthy. No mistake about the matter. Dyspepsia makes some people not only very disagreeable, but it positively makes them wicked. Therefore, in a moral point of view, we believe fruit growing of vast utility to the country.—Western Rural.

Fencing Out the Rabbits.

In Contra Costa and Alameda Counties there are sections in which the land is almost useless unless it is inclosed by rabbit-proof fences. A Livermore farmer has devised a cheap fence for this purpose, which is very effective. It is made of split pickets or shakes, posts and wire. The four-foot redwood shake bolts cost $9.50 per cord in Santa Clara, or $12 delivered in Pleasanton. These were split so as to make three shakes to the inch, as near as practicable. A furrow was plowed on the line of the fence, six inches in depth, and a post set every sixteen feet. A plain No. 9 wire was stretched at three and a half feet from the ground. The shakes were set at a proper distance apart, with their butts in the bottom of the furrow and their tops bound to the top wire by means of strong spool wire. A furrow was turned against the bottom of the fence, burying the shakes to a depth of twelve inches. A barbed wire was stretched on top of the posts. To guard against decay, the butts of the shakes were treated with pyroligneous acid, being set upright in a trough containing a foot in depth of the liquid, and allowed to stand for twelve hours. The acid actually impregnated about half the length of the shakes, and left them black. A mile and three-quarters of this fencing cost $500, less than $1 per rod.—San Francisco Alta.

—Dr. C. C. Abbott, of Trenton, N. J., has destroyed another old belief in weather lore. For twenty years he has kept a record of the building of their winter houses by the muskrats, the storing of nuts by squirrels, and other habits of the mammals which are commonly regarded as indicating the character of the coming winter. His conclusion is that the habits referred to have no connection with the rigor or mildness of the approaching season.

An Apple-Growing Experiment.

Mr. Asa S. Curtis, of Stratford, Conn., has tried an experiment in apple growing the result of which will be of interest to all those who raise apples for their own use or for the market. Having an orchard which produced fruit only every other year, and hearing that the trees could be made to change their bearing season so that every year might be fruitful, he selected a healthy young apple tree eight years ago, and for four successive bearing seasons carefully rubbed off every bud as fast as it appeared. For the first three seasons this made no apparent difference, the tree omitting all blossoms the next season, but putting out its blooms again on the regular year. Last year Mr. Curtis repeated the experiment for the fourth time, and this season the tree appears to have given up its old habit and to have concluded to let its owner have his own way, for it is in full bloom at last in the "off season." If a part of the trees of an orchard can thus be made to bear one year and the others the next, there need be no "off year" at all for the apple crop so far as the bearing habits of the trees are concerned, and this fact is worth the attention of apple raisers.—Hartford (Conn.) Times.

Bluffing a Boy.

A Detroit physician who had business on Woodbridge street yesterday had his attention called to a boy about twelve years of age who had picked up a cracked watermelon from a commission house and was eating it in the alley.

"Boy, that melon isn't ripe," warned the doctor.

"I didn't say it was," was the blunt reply.

"And it's sour."

"Well, I kin sweeten her, I guess."

"You look out for the cholera morbus!"

"I've had 'er, and the small-pox, too."

"See here, boy," said the doctor, thinking to make a last appeal, "if you eat that melon you'll be dead inside of twenty-four hours."

"And you look-a-here!" replied the boy, as he cut off another slice with a piece of iron hoop, "you may chin and talk and scare all you want to, but I'm no kid! I know what yer want, but yer can't have it! You kin take this melon home for fifteen cents in cash, but yer can't scare me into letting it go for nothing! You'd better buy your melons in the reg'lar way and save yer chin for next year's campaign."—Detroit Free Press.

How to Tell Ripe Melons.

The rinds of melons, when left on the vines to mature, generally become hard and the pulp brittle. If the melon be gently borne on and you hear the inside crack or give way it may be regarded as a sure sign that the melon matured on the vine and consequently is a good one. Another good plan for selecting a melon is to examine the side that lay on the ground. If the melon remained on the vine until properly matured this portion will be found to have changed from a white to a pale yellow, and, upon close examination numerous small pimples, somewhat like the measles, as it were, will be noticed on the surface, particularly on the outer edge. These pimples may be regarded as a sure indication that the melon remained on the vine until mature, as they never appear on those that have been prematurely pulled. Sometimes the desirable pale yellow is produced prematurely by turning this portion of the melon to the sun for a day or two. In this case the yellow is apt to be too deep. This fact, in connection with the absence of pimples, will readily tell the experienced eye how said color was produced.—Washington Star.

—It is interesting to look back of the finery which wealth has put on the backs of the women, at the watering places, to see how the money has been obtained. "Do you see that lady in the white ottoman silk?" a correspondent was asked. "The one with the shapely figure?" he responded. "Yes, that's the one; but her shape always seems to me like a certain bottle of bitters." "Why?" "Because her father's fortune came from the manufacture of a constituent of cocktails. Over yonder in a dainty mull, is the wife of a face powder; going down the hallway are the two daughters of a cough syrup, and the swell who drove past a few minutes ago in a dog cart tandem was a son of a pill."—N. Y. Sun.

—Chinese priests have a way of imposing on the credulity of the pearl fishermen. They secure live pearl oysters and place in them flat leaden figures of Buddha. In time the images are sunk into the mother-of-pearl linings of the shell and beautifully coated with the lustrous substance. Years pass, perhaps, before they are discovered, but when opened they are prized as special gifts of the god.—Chicago Herald.

—There is death to bangs in every breeze that blows from France. Parisian beauties now wear their hair combed back from the forehead. The bangs "must go."—Chicago Journal.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, August 10, 1883.

LIVE STOCK—Cattle—common	$2 00	@ 3 25
Choice butchers	4 50	@ 5 25
HOGS—Common	4 25	@ 4 90
Good packers	4 40	@ 5 00
SHEEP	4 00	@ 4 75
FLOUR—Family	5 00	@ 5 75
GRAIN—Wheat—Long berry red	1 10	@ 1 11¼
No. 2 winter red	1 07	@ 1 08
Corn—No. 2 mixed	50	@ 51½
Oats—No. 2 mixed	30	@ 31
Rye—No. 2	58	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	10 50	@11 50
HEMP—Double dressed	8½	@ 9
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	15 00	@15 25
Lard—Steam	8	@ 8¼
BUTTER—Fancy Dairy	14	@ 15
Prime Creamery	22	@ 23
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per bar. from store	90	@ 1 00
Apples, prime, per barrel	2 00	@ 3 00
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 00	@ 4 00
Good to choice	4 00	@ 6 50
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 13	@ 1 14
No. 1 white	1 05	@ 1 12½
Corn—No. 2 mixed	62	@ 62½
Oats—mixed	39	@ 41
PORK—Mess	15 25	@15 50
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@ 4 25
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 08	@
Corn—No. 2	50¼	@ 50⅜
Oats—No. 2	26⅜	@ 26¾
Rye	60½	@
PORK—Mess	15 50	@16 00
LARD—Steam	8 37	@ 8 40
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 25	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 17⅛	@ 1 17¾
Corn—mixed		@ 62½
Oats—mixed	39	@ 41
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	16 00	@16 25
Lard—Refined	10½	@
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—A No. 1	$4 50	@
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red, new	1 03	@ 1 04
Corn—mixed	52	@
Oats—mixed	30	@
PORK—MESS	15 00	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 red, new	$1 05½	@
CORN—mixed	49	@
OATS—mixed	27	@
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	2 75	@ 4 50
Shipping cattle	5 25	@ 6 50

—Everybody who has dyspeptic friends, which, unfortunately, in this country is equivalent to saying everybody, must have heard of a new and wonderful cure for that dismal complaint and of its brilliant achievements. Fortunately this blessed remedy cannot be patented, for it is nothing more nor less than hot water—a couple of glasses of hot water taken before meals each day. It is cheap and not nasty, and though its efficiency may have been exaggerated, and the doctors may some day discover that it is a dreadful insult to the stomach, there can be no doubt that its popularity is great and rapidly increasing.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

—Elephants sometimes live to the age of two hundred years. Jumbo is a youngster.

Hard Lumps in Breast.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I wrote you some time ago that I thought I had a cancer. There was a large lump in my breast as large as a walnut, and had been there four months. I commenced taking your "Golden Medical Discovery," "Favorite Prescription" and "Pellets" in June, and the lump is gone.

Yours gratefully, MRS. R. R. CLARK,
Irvington, Mich.

"SAFE blowing" is looming up as a business. It has always been a phase of human nature to indulge in blowing from a safe standpoint.—Pittsburgh Telegraph.

No Trouble to Swallow

Dr. Pierce's "Pellets" (the original "little liver pills") and no pain or griping. Cure sick or bilious headache, sour stomach, and cleanse the system and bowels. 25c a vial.

A FASHION item announces that ladies are wearing V-shaped bodices. A V-shaped bodice spoils an X-shaped note.—Norristown Herald.

"Became Sound and Well."

R. V. PIERCE, M. D.: Dear Sir—My wife, who had been ill for over two years, and had tried many other medicines, became sound and well by using your "Favorite Prescription." My niece was also cured by its use, after several physicians had failed to do her any good. Yours truly, THOMAS J. METHVIN, Hatcher's Station, Ga.

IF a man can not cut the grass in front of his house he might as well be no mower.—N. O. Picayune.

PARALYTIC strokes, heart disease, and kidney affections, prevented by the use of Brown's Iron Bitters.

THERE is said to be a jolly old dog—a setter—in London, who is nearly eighty years old. He is a type setter.

ANAMOSA, IOWA.—Dr. J. G. McGuire says: "I know Brown's Iron Bitters is a good tonic and gives general satisfaction."

ONE of the best stops for a hand-organ is a pewter dime.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

HAY-FEVER. One and one-half bottles of Ely's Cream Balm entirely cured me of Hay-Fever of ten years' standing. Have had no trace of it for two years. ALBERT A. PERRY, Smithboro, N. Y. Price 50 cents

WHAT is the difference between costumers and customers?—O U know. "Hot love soon runs cold."—That's owing to the sighs of it.—Boston Traveller.

WADLEY, GA.—Dr. B. R. Doyle says: "I consider Brown's Iron Bitters superior as a tonic to any preparation now in use."

AN enterprising reporter, writing of a wreck at sea, stated that no less than fourteen of the unfortunate crew and passengers bit the dust.

HAY-FEVER. I was severely afflicted with Hay-Fever for 25 years. I tried Ely's Cream Balm, and the effect was marvelous. It is a perfect cure. WM. T. CARR, Presbyterian Pastor, Elizabeth, N.J. Price 50 cts.

HE said her hair was dyed; and when she indignantly said: "'Tis false!" he said he presumed so.

"Buchu-paiba." Complete cure, all annoying Kidney Diseases, irritation. $1.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer

Is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which Sulphur, Sugar of Lead and Nitrate of Silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. JOHN D. PARK & SONS, Wholesale Agents, Cincinnati, Ohio, and C. N. CRITTENTON, New York.

Wells' "Rough on Corns." 15c. Ask for it. Complete, permanent cure. Corns, bunions.

Glenn's Sulphur Soap.

No specific for skin ailments can cope with it. Hill's Hair and Whisker Dye, 50c.

"Rough on Rats." Clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs, ants, vermin. 15c.

THE Monarch Lightning Potato Digger stands without a rival. Every farmer should have it. Read advertisement elsewhere in this paper.

"Mother Swan's Worm Syrup," for feverishness, restlessness, worms. Tasteless.

GET Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners for those new boots or shoes before you run them over.

Skinny Men. "Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia.

HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED

STOMACH
BITTERS

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, by increasing vital power, and rendering the physical functions regular and active, keeps the system in good working order, and protects it against disease. For constipation, dyspepsia and liver complaint, nervousness, kidney and rheumatic ailments, it is invaluable, and it affords a sure defense against malarial fevers, besides removing all traces of such disease from the system. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

CATARRH ELY'S CREAM BALM

when applied by the finger into the nostrils, will be absorbed, effectually cleansing the head of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membrane of the nasal passages from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores taste and smell. A few applications relieve. A thorough treatment will positively cure. Agreeable to use.

HAY-FEVER

Send for circular. Price 50 cents by mail or at druggists. Ely Brothers, Owego, N. Y.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS
MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD

And will completely change the blood in the entire system in three months. Any person who will take ONE PILL EACH NIGHT FROM ONE TO TWELVE WEEKS, may be restored to sound health, if such a thing be possible. For curing Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. Physicians use them in their practice. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. Send for pamphlet. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

Grocers and Dealers
-IN-
TEA AND COFFEE.

Send for Wholesale Price List of our goods. Lowest possible prices. GREAT LONDON TEA CO., 801 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

TELEGRAPHIC MATTER.

Our latest correspondence, May 16, 1883, brings to us the narrative of HENRY B. INGRAM, the General Superintendent of the District Messenger Co. of New Haven, Conn. Mr. Ingram says: "For many months I had been sorely troubled with a weak and tired feeling across the loins, almost invariably accompanied with a headache. I had noticed also that at stated periods following these pains my urine would be highly colored, and leave a heavy brick-colored sediment when allowed to stand in the vessel. I could not work, and I was discouraged to an alarming degree. Nothing helped me. I was prescribed for by some of the best physicians in New York City, where I was located at that time, but derived no benefit or relief. When almost ready to give up in despair an acquaintance said to me, 'I want you to try Hunt's Remedy.' I did so, and hardly twenty-four hours had elapsed before I obtained relief, and in three weeks' time all the aforesaid ailments had disappeared, and I improved steadily, and was infused with new life, so that I could resume my business again, which is one that subjects me to strains of all kinds, which are likely to affect the kidneys, namely: Erecting telegraph and telephone lines. Hunt's Remedy now occupies the most honored place in my cabinet of medicines. I would not be without it, and I cheerfully and heartily recommend it to all who are troubled with diseases of the liver, kidney, or urinary organs. It never fails to cure."

83 CENTER STREET.

TOWN CLERK FORTY-TWO YEARS.

The following is from Mr. OTHNIEL GAGER, the well known and respected Town Clerk of Norwich, Conn. Mr. Gager is 89 years old, and has held this position of trust for 41 years, and his word is as good as his bond. On May 5, 1883, he writes as follows: "For years I have suffered with disease of the kidneys and bladder, and have no hesitancy in recommending Hunt's Remedy as a specific for these complaints. It has not only been the means of relieving me of terrible pain, but has cured a number of my acquaintances. To-day I am performing the duties of the office of Town Clerk, which I have held for forty-two years, which I could not be able to do were I not in a fair state of health owing to the use of Hunt's Remedy."

"DRINK FAIR, BETSEY, WOTEVER YOU DO."
—Martin Chuzzlewit.

TEA CLUB ORDERS.

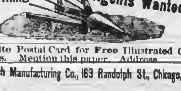
We have made a specialty for five years of giving away as Premiums, to those who get up clubs for our goods, Dinner and Tea Sets, Gold Band Sets, Silverware, etc. Teas of all kinds, from 30 to 75 cents per pound. We do a very large Tea and Coffee business, besides sending out from 60 to 90 CLUB ORDERS each day. SILVER-PLATED CASTERS as Premiums with $5, $7 and $10 orders. WHITE TEA SETS with $10 orders. DECORATED TEA SETS with $13. GOLD BAND or MOSS ROSE SETS of 44 pcs., or DINNER SETS of 106 pcs., with $20 orders, and a Host of other Premiums. Send us Postal and mention this Paper, and we will send you full Price and Premium List. Freight Charges average 75 cents per 100 lbs. to points West. GREAT LONDON TEA CO., 803 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED!

DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE Lungs.

Cures Consumption, Colds, Pneumonia, Influenza, Bronchial Difficulties, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough, and all Diseases of the Breathing Organs. It soothes and heals the Membrane of the Lungs, inflamed and poisoned by the disease, and prevents the night sweats and tightness across the chest which accompany it. CONSUMPTION is not an incurable malady. HALL'S BALSAM will cure you, even though professional aid fails.

Fast Potato Digging!



The Monarch Lightning Potato Digger Saves its cost yearly, FIVE TIMES OVER, to every farmer. Guaranteed to Dig Six Hundred Bushels a Day!

Sent on 30 Days' TEST TRIAL.

Agents Wanted.

Write Postal Card for Free Illustrated Circulars. Mention this paper. Address Monarch Manufacturing Co., 163 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

ST. PATRICK'S SALVE
TRY IT USE IT
It relieves at once Burns, Piles, Chapped Hands or Lips, Corns, Bunions, Scalds, Bruises, Soreness of feet, hands, eyes, etc.; Itching from any cause. 25c. Ask your druggist, or send to 93 Fulton Street, N. Y.

PILES "Anakesis" gives instant relief, and is an infallible cure for Piles. Price $1 from druggists, or sent prepaid by mail. Samples free. Ad. "ANAKESIS" Makers, Box 2416, New York.

25 PISO'S CURE FOR 100
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION

Lady Agents can secure permanent employment and good salary selling Queen City Skirt and Stocking Supporters, etc. Sample outfit Free. Address Queen City Suspender Co., Cincinnati, O.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Address H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

HAIR Wigs & Waves sent C.O.D. anywhere. Wholesale & Retail. Price-list free. Goods guaranteed. B. C. STREHL, 157 Wabash-av., Chicago.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Me.

FREE! BY RETURN MAIL—A full description of Moody's New Tailor System of Dress Cutting. D. W. Moody & Co., 31 W. 9th, Cincinnati, O.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

EDUCATIONAL.

COLLEGE OF PHYSICIANS and SURGEONS, BALTIMORE, MD.

The practical advantages of this school are unsurpassed. Clinics held at City Hospital, Maternite and Maryland Woman's Hospital, all of which belong to this school. Physiological and Chemical Laboratory Work required of every Student. Apply for a catalogue to DR. THOMAS OPIE, Dean, 39 North Carey Street.

EDUCATIONAL.

1883. The NEW CALENDAR of the 1884. NEW ENGLAND CONSERVATORY of MUSIC. Beautifully illustrated. 64 pages. SENT FREE to yourself and musical friends. Send names and addresses to E. TOURJEE, Franklin Sq., Boston, Mass. The Largest and best appointed Music, Literary and Art School, and HOME for young ladies, in the world.

PEEKSKILL (N. Y.) MILITARY ACADEMY. For circulars, address Col. C. J. WRIGHT, B.S., A.M.

COLEMAN BUSINESS COLLEGE, Newark, N. J. Terms $4. Positions for graduates; write for circular.

ADRIAN COLLEGE, Adrian, Mich. Five Schools. Term opens Sept. 14. Add. D. S. STEPHENS, Pres't.

PATENTS NO PATENT, NO PAY! N. W. FITZGERALD Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Full Instructions and New Book on Patents sent free.

AGENTS make money selling our Family Medicines; no capital required. STANDARD CURE Co., 197 Pearl St., New York.

A. N. K.—E. 938

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS, please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KY., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 22, 1883. NUMBER 43.

ARGUMENTATIVE POETRY.

I.

The maiden doffed her shoes and hose, and then, in girlish glee,
She drew her skirts around her, and she waded in the sea.
Among the wavelets waded she, for half an hour or more,
Then, growing weary with the play, she tripped again to shore;
But who shall tell the misery that filled her heart that day?
The cruel tide had flowed and washed her shoes and hose away!
O maidens at Nantasket, at Swampscott, or at Lynn,
Beware of going wading "when the flowing tide comes in."

—Somerville Journal.

II.

We never saw a maiden so happy, gay and free,
Pull off her socks and shoes and go a wading in the sea,
But it sorter seems to us that it would be safe to say,
It was the tide a-flowing out that washed her things away;
For if the tide was coming in we think it's very plain
She'd find them on the upper beach when she came out again.
Then, sitting pensive on the rocks, and picking out the sand
Between her ootsy tootsey toes, with manner arch and bland,
She'd wait till socks and shoes were dried; and if we were about,
We'd try and keep her waiting till the ebbing tide went out.

—Cambridge Chronicle.

III.

It seems to us that when the maiden doffed her shoes and hose
The tide must have been coming in, for everybody knows
That when the tide is going out it always leaves the land,
And must recede from objects that are lying on the strand.
So had the tide been going out upon that summer day
It could not have flowed in and washed those pretty things away.
We doubt not you know more than us concerning hose and shoes,
But we know all about the tides, and these, friend, are our views.

—Somerville Journal.

THE PROVINCE MAN'S STORY.

"Yes, I've no doubt that blizzards are fearful to encounter, but I do not think they can be much worse than a downright north-easter of the Province," said a gray-bearded New Brunswicker to a Western man, who had been relating to the few passengers of the steamer plying on the river between Tobique and St. John his experience of one of those terrible winter storms which so frequently sweep down upon the exposed people of the Northwest.

"I remember one in particular," he said, "for it gave me a lameness that's going to stay by me as long as I live."

After listening to the Western man's adventure, we were all anxious to hear that of the Province man's, and urged him to favor us. He at last assented.

"I was eighteen," he said, "that winter, and tough as a young buffalo. I had never been sick, and scarcely knew what it was to be tired. My father was a lumberman. He went into the logging-swamp that winter, toward the head of the Miramichi River, and left me to take care of the family—a pretty large one, counting in all the children. I was the oldest.

"The winters are long in that part of New Brunswick, and a good deal of snow falls. At that time there were but few settlements, the one nearest to where we lived being about forty miles away; so you may know there wasn't much going back and forth for the women-folks.

"But for that matter, there were five or six families living in our settlement, and I will say we used to have some pretty good times together. We seemed almost like one family, and when one was in need of help the others were sure to give it.

"One of our neighbors was a Mr. Moore. He married a girl who lived in the settlement next to ours, and all her folks lived there. In the winter he worked in the woods with the rest of the men, and as his children were small, he used to hire me to look after the chores that were necessary about his house.

"Well, about the middle of that winter—it was in February, I think—Matildy, that was Mrs. Moore, got word that her mother was sick, and that, if she wanted to see her alive, she must go to her at once.

"The poor woman was nearly frantic with anxiety. Her husband was in the woods, and she had no way of getting to her father's house. I think she had not seen her mother for two years.

"'William,' said my mother, coming home from the Moore cabin, where she had been to spin flax and comfort the sorrowing woman, 'I think you'll have to go.'

"'I'm going at once, mother,' I said, for I thought she meant I must go to Mrs. Moore's and attend to the chores.

"'Not that,' she replied, surmising what I was thinking about. 'You must go to the settlement with Matildy. How should I feel if my mother was dying, and I could not see her? Now, get your chores all done up to-night, so you can start in the morning by daylight. I'll see to things while you're gone.'

"'But what's to be done with the children?' I asked.

"'They're coming to stay with me until Matildy gets back.'

"So it was settled that I should go with Mrs. Moore, and if she did not stay more than a day or two, I was to bring her home. The sky had threatened a storm for a number of days, and I expected to get up the next morning and see a snow-storm. But it was a bitter cold morning—too cold to snow then, though the sky was still gray and heavy, showing plainly enough that there'd be a heavy fall of snow as soon as the weather was warmer.

"It didn't take long to get the horse and sled ready, and putting on father's moose-skin coat, we started, Matilda carrying her baby, that was not more than six months old, in her arms, swathed in a blanket of lynx-skins.

"It was scarcely light when we set off, and it was very slow traveling through the narrow, rough road. We had not got more than three miles from the settlement when it began to sprinkle snow, and in an hour more the flakes were coming down thick and fast. A cutting wind swept through the woods, driving the snow into our faces, and it looked doubtful to me whether we should ever get to the next settlement in such a storm.

"I wanted to turn back, but Matildy would not consent to this. So I had nothing to do but to whip up old Bob and get on as fast as we could.

"But the storm grew worse and worse. The wind kept rising, and the air was so thick with the driving snow that I could scarcely see a rod beyond the horse's head. Noon came, and we were not over ten or twelve miles from the settlement. The snow was now so deep that the horse could make but little headway through it and against the heavy wind.

"We had food with us, but we could not stop for luncheon with the storm piling the big drifts all about us. Part of the time I walked behind the sled to lighten the load, and when it got so deep that Bob—the horse—couldn't pull through, I tramped a path; and so, tramping and wallowing, we managed to get on a few miles further.

"But toward night the horse showed signs of giving out, and we had not gone over two-thirds of the way. I can assure you, it made me feel about sick to think of being out in that storm all night. Not that I feared so much for myself, for, as I said, I was tough as a buffalo, and could have found some snug corner to stow myself away in, and in the big moose-skin coat could have been quite comfortable; but there was Matildy, and the baby, poor thing, was beginning to cry. I feared they both would perish before morning.

"By jerking and encouraging, Bob was made to start again. But his strength and courage did not last, and after another half-mile of plunging and tramping he lurched over the thills into the snow and gave out entirely. All my urging couldn't get him on his legs again.

"What to do then I didn't know. Matildy was actually weeping from anxiety and the cold, and the baby cried now harder than ever. For a few minutes I could not see anything but death before them.

"Suddenly I got an idea, and untackling Bob from the sled, I tied his legs together with the straps of the harness, so that he could neither get up nor thrash about. Then, drawing the sled alongside of him, I canted it up sideways, setting the stakes to keep it from turning over fully, and thus made a sort of shelter to break off the wind.

"Going into the edge of the woods, I cut a lot of fir-boughs with my big knife and made a sort of bed for Matildy and the child, snug up against Bob's back, covering them over with the quilts and skins, tucked in warm about them; and then I covered all with another thick coat of boughs.

"Then I went on toward the settlement, fifteen miles distant, for help. It soon became dark, and I never can tell you half what I suffered stumbling along through the drifts, half blinded by the whirling snow and nearly breathless; sometimes laying down and feeling that I never could go another rod; but the thought of Matildy and the baby in the snow drove me on—and I've no doubt saved my life.

"When within two miles of the settlement the road came out near the river, and for the rest of the way it was mostly cleared land. But it troubled me to keep the road. I was afraid I should wander off and never find the settlement.

"But there was a Hand leading me through that night and storm that I had never known before—and it led me safe; for, after wandering around till I was so exhausted that I was about to lay down in despair, I caught the glimmer of a light ahead.

"Ah, never was a half-drowned sailor more thankful for the sight of a life-boat than I was for that little spark of light! I crawled toward it, shouting with all my strength.

"It came from a little log-hut on the outskirts of the settlement, where a logger's wife was nursing a sick child. Hearing my cries she roused her husband, who came out to my assistance.

"As soon as it began to grow light the man got one of his neighbors—for I was too badly frozen to go back with him—and taking a horse and sled, started after Matildy and the baby."

"And did they find them alive?" asked a listener, furtively brushing away the tears.

"Yes, ma'am, they did. The snow had drifted over them, and so kept out a good deal of the cold, though Matildy was considerably frost-bitten. The baby was asleep, as comfortable as though it had been at home. But old Bob was dead. The journey and the cold had been too much for him.

"That spring the people at the settlements contributed money and bought my father another horse, so we wa'n't much the worse off," concluded the old man, seeming to be quite unconscious of his own heroism.—Youth's Companion.

Vines on Houses.

It is generally supposed that vines make houses damp, for which reason there are not nearly as many cottages and houses beautified with vines as there should be. It is only when the climbers are allowed to cover the eaves and obstruct the gutters, or find their way under the shingles, that they become objectionable, and these conditions should, of course, be carefully guarded against. The Gardener's Monthly's remarks in this respect are well taken: "Vines should always be kept cut down below the roof. It is a little trouble to do this once a year, but we can not get even our shoes blackened without some trouble. Those who know how beautiful and how cosey looks a vine-covered cottage will not object to the few hours' labor it requires to keep vines from stopping up the gutter. Vines really make a wall dry. The millions of rootlets by which they adhere to the wall absorb water, and an examination will prove a vine-covered wall to be as 'dry as an old bone.' One great advantage of a vine-covered cottage, not often thought of, is that it is cooler in summer and warmer in winter than when there is but a mere naked wall."—American Garden.

* * *

—It is a significant fact that while Maine and Missouri were admitted into the Union in the same year, Maine, with seven Representatives in Congress, and Missouri with one, the former now has four members, and the latter fourteen.—N. Y. Herald.

PITH AND POINT.

—The lunatics on Blackwell's Island are going to follow the example of lunatics in other parts of the country and start a newspaper.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

—Flies have their uses. Their persistency in lighting on unprotected noses lessens the amount of piano practice in summer time, when all the windows are open.—Philadelphia News.

—A few moments sometimes makes a great change. A man with blue eyes was seen going into a beer saloon yesterday, and when he came out a little later he had black eyes.—Rochester (N. Y.) Post-Express.

—An exchange says that "Earl Dufferin has been presented with the insignia of the Order of Bath," which is a very neat way of stating that his lordship has been presented with a bar of soap.—Marathon Independent.

—"Your mother coming!" exclaimed Smithers; "why, they say the old Harry couldn't live with her." "But," replied Mrs. S., in her most taunting manner, "you will try to, for my sake, won't you, Charley?"—Boston Transcript.

—A Mount Holyoke girl, who was studying to be a missionary, wrote the following on the fly-leaf of her text-book on moral science:

If there should be another flood,
For refuge hither fly;
Though all the world would be submerged,
This book would still be dry.

—Boston Post.

—A New York boy drank a pint of whisky, went swimming, ate a lot of green apples, drank a large quantity of ice water, and went to bed. Next morning he was found dead. About the worst thing a boy can do in hot weather is to fill himself up with ice water.—Norristown Herald.

—The American Printing House for the Blind, recently dedicated at Louisville, is the first building ever erected in the world for that sole purpose. It stands in a large yard, surrounded with trees, and is of brick, three stories high, with an ample basement.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

—Ten years ago two loving hearts were separated by a little quarrel owing to the miscarriage of an explanatory letter. He went West and married; she stayed East and married, and now both are once more free. He has eight children and the jaundice and she seven and the dyspepsia, and neither has any idea of ever marrying again. Truth may be stranger than fiction, but it is not so romantic.—Philadelphia News.

—Mrs. Parvenu had recently furnished her new house, and it was gorgeously done. Everything was in style, and the carpets were woven in one piece to fit each room. Mrs. Parvenu has a daughter, and of her she was talking to a visitor. "Ah, Mrs. Parvenu," said the lady, "your daughter doesn't go out much?" "No, not a great deal. It tires the poor dear so much." "Indeed? Isn't she well?" "Oh, yes, well enough; but, you see, at so many of the houses where she must call she has to walk over the seams in the carpets, and it hurts the poor dear's feet and makes her so tired."—Merchant Traveller.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—The Bessemer Steel Works of Bethlehem, Pa., will go into extensive mining operations in Cuba, with the intention of importing ore into this country.—Pittsburgh Post.

—A church in Bavaria, accommodating 1,000 people, has been almost entirely built of paper mache, which can be supplied at a cost little above that of plaster. It can be made to imitate the finest marble, as it takes a polish superior to slate.

—The ship-building interest at Bath, Me., is very active at present. The yards are crowded, and the tendency is to build larger vessels than in former years. One now upon the stocks, a ship of 2,600 tons, is the largest ever built in Bath, and is believed to be larger than any built before in the State.

—It seems that electricity was applied to a locomotive long before the Chicago Railroad Exposition. A Salem man constructed a locomotive which was run by electricity in 1851. In experiments on the Baltimore & Ohio Road, nineteen miles were made in thirty-nine minutes.—Chicago Times.

—White of an egg, heated to 212 degrees, and kept there awhile, will become dry, shrunken and horny. If the heat is carried a little further, it becomes converted into a substance which is so hard and tough that a valuable cement is obtained by simply smearing the edges of the article to be cemented with the white of egg, and then heating it to a little above 212 degrees.

—The potters have some reason for regarding their trade prospects as improved by the new Tariff law. They were evidently in need of a larger measure of protection. The importations of crockery up to July 1 of this year increased in value $2,000,000 over the same time last year. The pottery industry is yet comparatively in its infancy, but there is no reason it should not rapidly improve.—N. Y. Tribune.

—Two thousand miles of switches laid during the first six months of the year by the tireless railroad men. This example should not be lost upon parents and guardians. About a mile of switch laid daily, where it would do the most good, and put down tight and sealed with whacks, would safely side-track lots of boys now making limited express time on the broad gauge, down grade, which leads to destruction.—Pittsburgh Telegraph.

—The successful results attending the putting down of wells for gas illuminating and heating purposes, at Painesville and Willoughby, O., during some years past, has induced other persons to decide on similar enterprises. Not long ago, a gentleman living about two miles from the center of Willoughby decided to bore for gas and commenced operations. His well has now reached a depth of 476 feet, and he is getting already a fine supply of gas. He expects to push the well down 200 feet more, when he will doubtless have enough gas to light and heat his residence and illuminate his grounds. The gas well of W. C. Andrews at Willoughby has been in operation for about ten years, and shows no signs of exhaustion.—Chicago Herald.

Religious.

HOW SHALL I PRAY?

Father, how can I thus be bold to pray
That Thou shalt grant me that or spare me this?
How should my ignorance not go astray,
How should my foolish lips not speak amiss
And ask for woe when fain they would ask bliss?

How shall I dare to prompt Thee, the All-wise,
To show me kindness?—Thou art ever kind.
What is my feeble craving in Thine eyes
Which view the centuries vast, before, behind,
And sweep unnumbered worlds like viewless wind?

Thy goodness ordereth what thing shall be,
Thy wisdom knoweth even my inmost want;
Why should I raise a needless prayer to Thee,
Or importune Omnipotence to grant
My wishes, dim, short-sighted, ignorant?

And yet I come—for Thou hast bidden and said—
But not to weary Thee, or specify
A wish, but rather with this prayer instead:
"O Lord, Thou knowest: give it or deny,
Fill up the cup of joy, or pass me by."

Just as Thou wilt is just what I would will;
Give me but this, the heart to be content.
And if my wish is thwarted, to lie still,
Waiting till puzzle and till pain are spent,
And the sweet thing made plain which the Lord meant.

—Susan Coolidge, in S. S. Times.

SCIENCE AND PRAYER.

President Anderson, of the Chicago University, has an article on "Sience and Prayer" in a recent number of the North American Review, from which the following is taken:

The real difficulty in the way of God's answering prayer, according to the able scientists, is the fact that the laws of the material universe are absolutely unchangeable. This has led some theistic scientists to affirm that prayer for spiritual blessings may be answered, while prayer for physical good—for example, for rain in time of drought—is folly. But if fixity of law makes prayer for physical good absurd, it must make equally foolish prayer for spiritual blessings, since law is just as fixed in the realm of mind or spirit as in the realm of matter. The laws by which the mind is developed are just as immutable as the laws by which the oak is unfolded from the acorn; the laws by which we think are as rigid and fixed as those which regulate the rivers in their flow or the clouds that sweep across the sky. If, on account of the fixedness of law, it is absurd to pray for rain, it is for the same reason equally absurd to pray that the Divine Spirit may illuminate our minds and guide our thoughts. If, then, God may answer prayer for spiritual gifts, He may, in spite of the unchangeableness of law, answer prayer for physical blessings.

But we also suggest that the position which we combat is probably untenable, on the ground that these able scientists do not, in stating their objections to prayer, use the term law with that precision of meaning that is requisite in scientific discussion. Sometimes they personify it. It seems clothed with personality, as when they tell us that the laws of nature do this and that. They often deify it, ascribing to it attributes which the devout theist ascribes only to God. This is the method of poetry rather than of science. Every thinker knows that the term law has several distinct meanings. It will be sufficient for our purpose to note barely two. We call attention to the first simply because of its diversity from the second, so that by the contrast we may add to the vividness of the second meaning, on which we propose to comment. We are so made that we discern a distinction between right and wrong; we know intuitively that they are opposites. Men universally recognizing this distinction feel that they ought to do the right and shun the wrong. This ought is mightier than all other forces which impel men to action. This distinction of right from wrong, and the oughtness which presses a man, as with the superincumbent weight of a mountain, to do the right, constitute the essence of moral law. Bentham, in his utilitarian argument in reference to morals, was so troubled with this element of oughtness that he declared that the word ought "ought to be banished from the vocabulary of morals." From the inexorable necessities of his own being he could not say it in any other way.

Now, when we come to talk of the laws of the material universe, we have in mind a very different conception. No oughtness appears. We mean simply the processes of nature—the ways in which things, so far as the observation of men has extended, come to pass. When the cold reaches a given degree of intensity water freezes; we say that that is a material law. When the high temperature of spring comes the ice melts and vegetation starts; we call these processes laws. When vapor freezes it takes the forms of crystals; and this process we call a material law. The profoundest scientist can not carry his analysis any further. He knows more than a clown or a child only because, by study and extended observation, he has seen more of the processes of nature, and has generalized and grouped them. In any single example, he can only see what the ignorant may see—that a law of nature is simply the way in which a thing, in the material world or in the world of mind, is done.

Now, since in these varied laws of nature we see that certain useful ends are met, the suggestion inevitably comes that intelligence established these laws, or now works out these varied and beneficent processes. Since a law of nature is nothing more than the way in which a certain thing is accomplished, it is certainly not contrary to anything which science has discovered to consider the laws of nature simply as God's methods of doing things. Such a supposition does no violence to scientific method, while it provides a suitable cause for the beneficent element in these laws. If it is asked why these processes or laws of nature, on the supposition that they are God's ways of working, are fixed, invariable, we find a ready answer in the Biblical revelation of God's nature and character. Being absolutely perfect, when, for the first time He did anything, He did it with absolute perfection. When a thing is perfect, there can be no change for the better, since nothing can be any more than perfect; but God can not change, in these processes of nature, to that which would be in any sense imperfect, since that would be a contradiction of His own absolute perfection. So we find in the character of God, as presented to us in the Bible, the sufficient reason for the immutability of natural laws, when we regard them as simply His methods of acting. So when David sang: "The Lord also thundered in the heavens, and the Highest gave His voice," he may not even in his imaginative song have uttered anything opposed to the strictest science; it may be that in such diction, poetry and science met together and kissed each other. Yet if these processes of nature may, without the slightest conflict with science, be considered simply the actings of God immanent in His own creation, it is not impossible that, working by those unchangeable processes, He may answer the prayers of His children.

And it will not be difficult for us to discover by analogy how, in perfect harmony with the fact of the immutability of natural laws, God may do this. The perfect confidence of men in the fixity of natural laws underlies all their acts. Without such confidence they could not construct or work the simplest machinery. They would not dare to sail lake or ocean, lest by a change of natural laws their vessel should suddenly sink rather than float. But because they know these laws to be immutable, they use them with confidence in all their manifold activities. Now, from analogy, we are able to see how the immutability of natural laws, instead of being an obstacle standing in the way of God's answering prayer, may become rather the very means by which He answers every prayer of faith. Men, because these natural laws are unchangeable, are able by the adjustment to each other of even very few of them to secure the most wonderful results. The adjustment to each other of a few immutable laws gives us the steam-engine, which moves most of the machinery of the civilized nations. The adjustment of a few immutable laws drives our great merchant ships around the globe. The bird which darts upward into the air and onward through it with such great velocity, instinctively adjusts a few unchangeable laws to bring about this surprising result. If men, with their limited knowledge, and the birds of the air by instinct, can use unchangeable laws to reach such marvelous and varied results, can not God, who established these laws, so adjust them to each other as to answer every true prayer breathed into His ear? Immutability of law, then, does not make prayer even for physical blessings a folly, but rather suggests to us how God, because of this very immutability, may answer every true petition.

Then we are never to forget that at best we know but little. La Place is reported to have said, just before he died: "What we do not know is enormous." We have discovered, by centuries of toil, a few natural laws. As the circle of our knowledge has widened we have become aware of a still greater circle just beyond that no human mind has ever explored. And in the future, as our knowledge extends, we shall ever grow more and more keenly alive to the infinite reaches of being and of law which we do not know. What we know of the laws of the material universe compared with what we do not know, is like the handful of sand in the hour-glass compared with the great Sahara. If man, with his very limited knowledge of unchangeable laws, can by their adjustment to each other achieve so much, who shall limit in his achievements Him who understands all laws, and who, by the simple act of His will, can adjust these myriads of laws to each other so as to satisfy the cry of every one of His creatures?

Moreover, those who have arrayed science and prayer against each other have sometimes complacently sneered at those who still believe that God answers prayer as being honest enough, but pitiably unscientific. Now, such men ought not to complain if we demand in them what they demand in others. No theory designed to account for any class of phenomena is worth anything unless it takes into consideration all the known facts, and makes suitable provision for them. Those who contend that on the basis of the immutability of natural laws it is folly to pray, have never in their theory made full provision for the entire contents of the fact of prayer. If one thing in reference to man has been established beyond every other, it is the fact that he has distinctively a religious nature. Wherever found, be he savage or civilized, he is religious. He universally has his places of worship, rude or artistic; he has his shrines and altars, and offers to his god or gods sacrifices bloody or unbloody. Heathen, Mohammedan and Christian alike pray. Even men who declare themselves atheists will sometimes pray, when they get into a pinch; and in their highest and best moods will utter words of praise to Him whom they declare not to exist. Now, a fact so universal as prayer must be in some way accounted for. Does it not carry the evidence in itself that there is an answer to it? We find it to be a general law of our being that satisfaction is provided for every natural and right desire. We hunger—without us are manifold harvests and barns bursting with plenty; we thirst—without us are lakes, bubbling fountains and purling brooks; we long for the beautiful—without us in myriads of objects is beauty more subtle and delicate than was ever expressed by the brush of the painter or the pen of the poet; we crave the sublime—and cataract, and mountain, and heaving ocean, and the awful storm, answer the inward desire. As, in these cases, the hunger, the thirst, the longing and the craving are evidences within us of the satisfaction without us, so prayer, the deep longing or craving of man's religious nature, carries with it the decisive evidence that there is without an answer which will meet and satisfy it. If this be not so, then for our physical and in[illegible] cravings answers beautiful and complete have been provided, while the cravings of our higher religious nature have been left uncared for and unsatisfied. This a school-boy could not fail to stamp as the rankest absurdity. Prayer is either answered, or else those desires which impel man to come into communion with God are, of all the desires of his being, alone a mockery. Is any one credulous enough to believe that? Any sound theory of prayer must also take into account another fact, namely, that of testimony. Men affirm that God has heard their prayers. From the number of witnesses let us exclude all those who might reasonably be accused of fanaticism; yet we have failed to see why the testimony of a fanatical Christian is not just as trustworthy as that of a fanatical skeptic. We will exclude, too, all witnesses who may be reasonably suspected of having had collusion with each other. Then we will sift the testimony of the clear-headed, unbiased witnesses, striking out every statement which may, with the slightest show of reason, be considered as an illusion of honest but mistaken men. Even then, the testimony gathered from the witnesses of all time that would remain, all bearing on this one point, would, if printed in books, make a vast library. Can any just theory in reference to prayer omit a fact of such magnitude? Would it be scientific to ignore all this testimony of the purest and best men that ever lived? If their testimony is declared fanatical, would that not prove too much, if mere assertion ever proves anything? Would it not show that the fanaticism of the ages has contained within itself the godliness, the purity, the virtue of the ages? No, there is no way in which we can scientifically thrust such testimony out of sight. It stands solid as granite, as clear as crystal, and he who would be scientific in handling the fact of prayer must take it up into his theory and account for it.

If it should be said that prayer and its supposed answer is simply a happy coincidence we might grant that in one, or two, or three cases it may be, and do no despite to science. But take fifty cases, or five hundred, or ten thousand, and declare in every case that we have only a lucky coincidence, and such a number of coincidences would tax our credulity far more than to admit that God in reality answered the prayers; so large a number of coincidences would be a thousand-fold more mysterious than the fact that these men cried unto the Lord, and that He, in mercy and love, heard their cries and satisfied their wants. By no device can we, with a strict scientific spirit and method, brush aside the vast mass of testimony that God has answered prayer.

Our argument in brief, then, is this: From any proper definition of science and prayer, we can not discover anything within them that brings them into conflict. Those who rule out prayer for physical blessings on the ground of the immutability of natural laws must, if consistent, rule out prayer for spiritual blessings also, since law is as fixed in the realm of spirit as in the realm of matter. Confusion often results from a lack of precision in the use of the term law—a physical law being, to our observation, only a process in the material world; but as we see that in the process beneficent ends are reached, that fact suggests that the process may be simply God's method of acting. By these very processes, therefore, God may answer prayer. As men, by adjusting to each other the few immutable laws of the material world which they have laboriously learned, reach all the varied and marvelous results which we see produced by mechanical contrivances, so God, who works in and through all the laws of His universe, by their adjustment, without in the slightest degree infringing them, may answer every prayer of His people. Any truly scientific theory of prayer must account for the fact of prayer and deal dispassionately with the mass of testimony given, down through all the ages, that God has, in almost innumerable instances, answered prayer.

After a calm, dispassionate examination of all that has been written by materialistic scientists about the impotence and folly of prayer, we may, without the slightest danger of being unscientific, still believe and obey Him who, speaking with unerring wisdom, said: "Ask, and it shall be given you."

Choice Selections.

—How few people experience the delight of loving their neighbors as they love themselves.

—No man ever prospers in the high sense on selfishness. He thrives best who strives for the universal betterment of mankind.—Golden Rule.

—I do not find that to give up anxiety and to trust in God is difficult now, though it used to be. Blessed be my Lord, I can not help believing Him, for He loads me down with evidences of His truth and fidelity.—C. H. Spurgeon.

—As a rule, we are far readier to ask God for what we want than to thank Him for what we have. Our prayers are commonly more specific in their petitions than in acknowledgments.—W. M. Taylor.

—An absorption in the affairs of this life will make us to forget there is another and better existence. The true way would, then, seem to be not to neglect the duties of this life, but to resolve, with all our strength, and above all, with the grace that God gives us, to never forget that we are immortal beings, and that this life is but a starting place (but all important) to a grand hereafter. Nothing, it seems to me, should persuade otherwise, and if it be some of the dearest objects in life that cause us to forget our high destiny, they should be sundered and dissolved rather than that we should perish. It may take aching hearts and choking sighs and groans to accomplish this, but is it not our bounden duty to ourselves and Creator to do so? Or may we live aimlessly and carelessly and still find Heaven and happiness at last? These questions come home to all and must be answered.—Alexander Macaulay.

Our Young Folks.

SIX LITTLE MAIDENS.

I'll tell you a story, I'll sing you a song—
It's not very short and it's not very long—
Of six little maidens: in white they were dressed,
And each was the sweetest and each was the best.

Invited for four—well, now, let me see:
Waiting was dull, so they got there at three.
There were little Miss Katie and Nellie and Sue,
And little Miss Bessie and Polly and Prue.

It might have been June, if it hadn't been May,
The first of the month, and a beautiful day;
They kissed when they met, as the ladies all do—
Kate, Susie and Nell; Bess, Polly and Prue.

They danced and they skipped, and they sang and they played,
And they formed pretty groups in the sun and the shade;
And I said, when they asked me of which I was fond:
"Brunettes are the dearest, and so are the blonde."

And that night, as I bade them adieu at the gate—
Bess, Polly and Prue, and Sue, Nellie and Kate—
How I wished that "good-bye!" could have been "how-d'y-do!"
And I said: "Come at three!" so as to get them at two!

—R. W. Lowrie, in St. Nicholas.

ABOUT CRYING.

A Lecture by John Spicer.

I know what crying means, but it is so funny to talk about that I do not know how to tell what it is, very well, but I will tell as well as I can. When water comes into your eyes, and your face puckers itself up, and you make noises with your mouth and nose, all that is crying. Sometimes you make a howling kind of noise, and sometimes you make a squealing kind, and sometimes you only sniffle with your nose. I know a good many reasons why people cry. I do not mean grown-up people, I mean boys and girls. You cry when you get hurt, and when you have to do things you do not want to, and when you can not do what you want to, and when you can not have what you want, and when anybody plagues you. I do not know what makes the water come into your eyes when you get hurt, or when you have to do what you do not want to, or can not do what you want to, or can not have what you want, or anybody plagues you, and my father does not know; but it comes there, and comes without your trying to make it come, and my father thinks this is quite curious; and no matter how far off the hurt is from your eyes, if it is on the end of your little finger, or of your little toe, the cry-water does not come there, it comes to your eyes. Cry-water is called tears. When more cry-water comes into your eyes than they can hold, then it runs over, and runs down your face in little round drops, and these are tear-drops. Sometimes they run down so fast you have to take your handkerchief, if you have one in your pocket; but if 'tis lost, your fist will do. When I was a little fellow I cried a good deal and my father used to say: "Get a bottle, quick! A bottle to catch the tears! Johnny's tears are running away! They'll get lost! Get a bottle!" If tears get into your mouth they taste salt. Once when it was my bed-time and I cried to stay up longer, my brother told me there was too much salt in my tears, and said if I would cry some fresh water tears he would ask my mother to let me stay up till her bed-time, and I took a piece of a tear on the tip end of my finger, and touched it to my tongue, and it was salt, every time I tried.

Boys and girls cry more than grown-up people, and small boys and girls cry more than large ones, and babies cry more than anybody. The ones who are crying do not know how funny their faces look and what bad noises come out of their mouths. If they knew, maybe they would stop. The best way to stop is to shut your teeth tight together and your lips tight together. If that does not stop it, then take hold of your nose, hard, with your pocket-handkerchief; but if that is lost then take hold with your thumb and finger, but keep your lips and teeth shut, too. The best time to stop it is just before it comes; just when it is beginning. A fellow told me he had tried it, and stopped it every time by doing all these things.

My brother made this verse when I was a little fellow:

"What is it to cry?
'Tis to have a wet eye,
And to sob and to sigh,
With your face all awry,
And to lift your voice high,
So that no one who hears you will want to come nigh.
Some cry with a wou! wou! wou!
And some with a wi! wi! wi!
And some with a squealy, wealy, wealy,
Like piggywiggywigs in a stye-i! i!"

When I was a little fellow they used to call me Fretter-and-Growler, because I cried so much, and my grandma used to tell me stories to try to cure me of crying. I will tell you two of them: When grandma was a child there was another child lived in the next house. He was a boy and his name was Jerry. He cried so much that when the people about there heard any strange noise they would say: "What's that noise? Jerry crying?" No matter if it was a cow mooing, or a cat squalling, or a dog howling, they would say: "What's that noise? Jerry crying?" He cried when he was being dressed, and when he had his face and hands washed; cried for things to eat that he mustn't have, and cried to go to places, and for what he wanted, if he couldn't have it; cried if he fell down; cried if the boys laughed at him, and if they just touched him without hurting him hardly any, he would cry about it. And if the boys called him "cry-baby," he would cry because they called him cry-baby. His real name was Jeremiah, and when the boys found that out they used to say:

"Jeremi knows how to cry:
Jeremiah's a very good cry-er."

One time a kind lady stayed at his house, and she said she could make a better rhyme than that, and it was:

"Jerry, Jerry, knows how to be merry!"

and asked him if he had not been

"Jeremiah, a very good cry-er."

long enough; and he said he had, and when he began to cry she would say:

"Jerry, Jerry, knows how to be merry!"

and that made him laugh, and pretty soon he thought of it himself, and he grew to be quite a merry Jerry.

Now I will tell you the other story: Once when grandma was a child she knew two children, a boy and a girl. They did not live in the house with each other. The girl was named Ruth Holmes, and the boy was named James Adams, and Ruth Holmes learned how not to cry. Somebody told her how. Once a great ugly boy pounded her and she did not cry then, for she was very brave about crying. She was a hop-skip-and-jump little girl, grandma said, and liked to play out doors. One time she fell off a fence and broke her arm, and while the doctor was taking hold of it, and it was aching a good deal, she cried only two tears, and they came of themselves, just at the end when the pain was very bad. Somebody asked her how she kept herself from crying, and she said she kept thinking to herself, fast as she could: "I can bear it; I can bear it." This was the way the one told her that showed her how to keep from crying. Grandma said the boy, James Adams, was a kind of a cry-baby. He heard how it was that Ruth Holmes kept herself from crying when she had her broken arm, and he thought he would try the same way and stop himself from being such a cry-baby. So every time he got hurt or the boys plagued him, or he could not do as he liked to, or had to do what he did not like to, or could not have what he wanted, he said to himself—said it thinking, not talking—"I can bear it; I can bear it," and he stopped himself from being a cry-baby. And after he was a man he told grandma that when very bad things happened to him he remembered that little girl, Ruth Holmes and thought to himself, "I can bear it; I can bear it;" and he remembered it till he was an old man.

At the close of the lecture Superintendent Dick asked that all who never cried should raise their hands. Next he asked that all who would like to hear crying should raise their hands. Not a hand went up. Next he asked that all who liked to hear themselves cry should raise their hands. Three hands went up slowly, part way, and then went down. Lastly he asked them all to show how they cried; whether with a wou, wou, wou, or a wi, wi, wi, or a squealy, wealy, wealy. They all began to show how they cried, but this made them laugh, and some of them laughed so, trying to cry, that they tumbled over in a heap together.—Mrs. A. M. Diaz, in Wide Awake.

Willie and Dobbin.

Willie was visiting his grandmother, who lived in the country. He thought he was quite a man, but he was only seven. His grandmother had a very wise horse named Dobbin. Sometimes John would put Willie on the horse's back while he led him to water. He was never allowed to ride him alone, though he often wanted to do so.

One day every one in the house was busy, and no one thought of Willie. He thought of himself, the naughty boy! and this is what he did. He went to the stable just to look at Dobbin. John was not there. Willie thought he would take a little ride. He managed to untie the halter and climb upon Dobbin's back.

Slowly he walked the horse out of the stable, in the yard, and to the road. No one saw him. He wanted but one thing, a whip! Just then he saw a tree with a little branch growing on it that would do. He rode up, and with some trouble broke it off. Then he struck Dobbin a sharp blow—harder than he meant to. The good old horse was much surprised. He kicked up his heels and started at a quick pace down the road. Willie could not stop him. He did his best, but the old horse was too much for him. The poor little boy was very much frightened. He dropped his whip and clung to Dobbin's neck.

Soon they came to a large mud-puddle in the middle of the road. Willie could hold on no longer. He slipped off, and fell with a splash into the muddy water. Dobbin turned and trotted home.

Willie's mother happened to look out of the window as Dobbin came into the yard. She ran to see what it meant. Willie was missed, and his frightened mother and grandmother ran down the road to find him. They were much relieved to see a muddy little figure coming toward them. He was too muddy and too much ashamed to look at them, but he was not hurt.

Not very much was said; but for one month Willie, the seven-years-old, almost a man, had to be followed about by a nurse, because he could not be trusted!—Our Little Ones.

Chinese "Futures."

There is no such speculation in China as buying and selling futures. Two or three years ago the chief official of a province heard how Americans raked in showers of golden ducats in this manner, and he used the funds of the Government to speculate on the outcome of the opium yield. He sold short and was busted all to shingles, and soon found himself in the presence of the chief Wang-Doodle of the Flowery Kingdom.

"Where's them cash?" was demanded in a voice of thunder and lightning.

"Slid out," was the reply, in tones which betrayed a desire to go off on a blackberry excursion as soon as possible.

"How-Hop, you are a defaulter! Get ready to see the angels!"

And he was taken out and his paper collar torn off without regard to his ears, and a Chinese Sullivan walked up to him and spit on his hands and clutched a sharp sword and whacked his head off as slick as molasses running down the outside of a dog. Since that little episode no Chinaman wants any "future" in his. If he knew that the country was certain to raise five hundred million bushels of turnips he wouldn't dare sell for November delivery at ten dollars per bushel.—Wall Street News.

* * *

—The Mexican dollar is worth only ninety cents in Canada, but our ninety-cent dollar passes at par. Our money is worth more because of the picture of the Philadelphia girl which goes with it to every subscriber.—Chicago News.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. AUG. 22, 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
½ "	"	40
¼ "	"	20
1 "	½ "	20
½ "	½ "	10
¼ "	½ "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (excepting the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

THE telegrapher's strike which has been on for several weeks has colapsed.

THE Louisville and the Cincinnati papers do not agree as to the success o' the Southern Exposition.

GALVESTON, Texas, is on the verge of a water famine. Cisterns are exhausted and vegetation perishing.

BOONE gave much the largest democratic majority for Governor of any county in this Congressional district.

BOTH parties have their tickets in the field in Hamilton county, Ohio, and now the fight will begin sure enough.

IT is said that the rain shall descend upon the just and the unjust. Reckon we are all just in this neck 'o woods, else the rain would descend.

MARTIN BRADLEY was lynched at Terrill, Texas, one morning last week and the negroes were so incensed that they threatened to destroy the town.

Two trains of cars collided at Winchester, Friday morning, and a lot of giant powder on one of them exploding, killing several persons and destroying the new depot building.

VINC SHINKLE, one of the leading business men in Covington, made an assignment last week. His liabilities are about $80,000, but it is thought that he has sufficient property with to pay his debts.

HOGGISH—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $5 30@5 60; fair to good packers, at $4 90@5 35; fair to good light, $5 50@5 75; common, $4 35@4 85; culls, $3 25@4 25: stock hogs, $4 25@5 25.

AN Enquirer correspondent, in North Carolina, has discovered a mighty monster "that roams in the wilds of the Appalachian Mountains, carries off and devours children and live stock, is human-headed, serpent-tailed and alligator-bodied." Of course it makes things lively among the tar-heels. Let's get up a mill between this fellow and John L. Sullivan.

THE official vote of 111 counties will be found in another column, giving Knott 130 669 against 87,212 for Morrow, a majority of 43,457 for Knott. There now remains only six more counties to be heard from, viz: Breathitt, Elliott, Letcher, Marshall, Martin and Perry. The vote in these counties in 1879 gave a Democratic majority of 1,525, so that Knott's majority will be within a few votes on one side or the other of 45,000.—Frankfort Yeoman.

Senator Williams is rapidly acquiring the reputation of a bar'l candidate. Charges are made in some of the papers that he distributed money in Clark, Mason, Bath and other counties to assist in the election of the Democratic nominees for the Legislature, though why he should take such an earnest interest in such matters we are sure we can not tell.

The above is from the Lexington Press, and it seems to be a prevalent opinion that Senator Williams is relying on his money rather than his merits to return him to the United State Senate, and next winter will be a good time to excuse the gentleman from further public service.

IT seems from the blundering manner in which the vote in reference to the constitutional convention was taken in some counties, and the want of uniformity of the labors of the tellers, that it will be some time before the result of the vote on the convention can be learned. The Secretary of State, to whom the law directs the official returns shall be made, has received a deskfull of papers, some purporting to be names of those entitled to vote for Representatives, and still others without any mark or reference as to their meaning or the district whence they came. A number have no mention of the county and others are so illegibly and inaccurately made up that it is doubtful whether the new Secretary of State and a corps of clerks can tabulate anything like a correct statement for three months to come.

A CARD

To the Trustees, Patrons and Teachers of the Common Schools of Boone County:

As the time is near when our schools should begin, a few remarks and suggestions will not be out of place, and I trust, of some benefit.

I find a great negligence or indifference on the part of the trustees in keeping a record of their official business, properly filling out their annual report, employing teachers without even knowing whether or not they are in possession of certificates, &c. I would suggest that Trustees and patrons attend the Institute during its entire session.

I think with the increase of the per capita, and the growing interest in the cause of education that now exists, we may, as school officials, succeed, this year, in improving, very much, the common schools of our county.

I also find Teachers' registers, to a very great extent, left blank, when it would be but little trouble to correctly fill out the same.

Also a lack of interest on the part of the patrons to visit the schools, provide fuel, &c.

I have distributed some forty copies of the latest School Law, and have a few copies left, and anyone who desires a copy will receive the same by addressing me at once.

It is utterly impossible for the Commissioner to perform the duties required of him in making his annual report to the Superintendent, and supplementary, &c., as long as this state of matters exist.

The Board of Examiners will hold no special sessions, except in cases where it is an extreme necessity.

The Board of Examiners have adopted the following for First Class-First Grade Certificates:

Orthography	90	per cent.
Reading	90	"
Arithmetic	90	"
Grammar	90	"
Geography	90	"
Composition	90	"
History	70	"
Penmanship	70	"
Average	85	"

Those holding certificates with the above percent or higher will be rescinded.

D. M. SNYDER,
Commissioner.

A FEW days more and Gov. Blackburn loses his grip on the pardoning power.

INSTEAD of a falling off in the democratic majority in this State, it has been increased.

THE Penitentiary convicts are wondering how dexterously Knott will handle the pardon mill.

FRANKFORT is cleaning house preparatory to the inauguration of the new governor of Kentucky.

THOS. G. STUARD, of Clark county, has designs on the next Speakership, in the lower-house of the legislature.

THE yellow fever has made its appearance in the Pensacola Navy Yard, and strong efforts are being made to stamp it out.

TEACHERS should not forget to attend the Institute next week. The law requiring their attendance is very strict, and the School Commissioner says that he is going to enforce it to the letter.

THE "Straightout" Republicans in Virginia have held a convention endorsing James G. Blaine for the Presidency and condemning the action of the administration in aiding Mahone in the repudiation of one-third of the State debt.

STATE NEWS.

—Near Midway a field of wheat averaged 40½ bushels per acre.

—A Carlisle firm shipped 421 bushels of blackberries this season.

—Asbury ran behind the republican ticket 529 votes in Fleming co.

—Lexington is to have locomotive shops started under a charter from the last legislature.

—Lexington had a $50,000 fire last week. Several valuable horses were burned.

—The democrats made a gain of 2,550 in Carter, Boyd, Geenup and Lawrence counties in the last election.

—Thirty-six head of Jessamine county cattle were sold recently to a Baltimore party at $100 per head. The cattle averaged 1,800 pounds.

—James M. Griffin, says the Warsaw Independent, sowed 30 bushels of wheat on 20 acres of land last fall, and when his crop was threshed it turned out 31 bushels.

—The Richmond Register says Col. C. R. Estill raised on thirty acres this season 720 bus. of wheat or an average of 24 bushels to the acre. The grain used was the new variety of Fultz wheat.

—There is a man living in Caldwell county who chews tobacco habitually, but somewhat different from the common mode. He swallows the juice, and when the quid is sufficiently masticated he swallows that also.

—For several days Mrs. John Malsby has been keeping a nice pound cake in her bureau, which she was saving for the first preacher who might drop in. Imagine her surprise when she opened the drawer to fine a highland moccasin two feet long, coiled up on her nice white cake.—Walton News.

—There's a kind of "Huckelberry Hell" in a sequested glen near the Parks' Hill Camp Grounds, where they sell cider, cordial, brandy, peaches, run cap guns, shake chuckaluck, etc. Every three steps a broken bottle that once contained brandy peaches, marks the way of wickedness.—Bourbon News.

—The Fleming county Gazette says: "We Republicans elected a constable in this precinct, and a magistrate in Plummer's precinct, for which we are truly thankful. We are glad that we are living and that the election was no worse than it is. Of the colored people only three of them voted for R. K. Hart.

—A few days since Col. Bruce was in Frankfort, and seeing the Governor, was addressed as Colonel Bruce. Col. Bruce said: "Governor, my name is Bruce, but the 'Colonel' is a fraud. But I wish you would make me a Colonel." On Friday night last the Governor's commission making him colonel was received.—Transcript.

—Doctor Cooper, while digging for gold on his place in Grayson county, near the Breckinridge line, had penetrated the earth about sixty feet, when all at once the bottom fell out of the hole and the earth and stones dropped to an unknown depth in a black cavity. The Doctor produced a line a couple of hundred feet in length and sounded the abyss, but did not succeed in finding bottom.—Breckinridge News.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

[Courier-Journal.]

—Palestine, Texas, has had but one shower of rain in the past eight weeks.

—The free mail-delivery system will go into effect at Chattanooga September 1st.

—The Illinois Central railroad shops at Water Valley, Miss., are turning out four twenty-ton coal cars every twenty-four hours.

—Forty-three cities and towns in Texas have assumed separate control of their schools and will conduct them independent of the state system

—The highwayman who laid siege to so many pocket-books in Austin, Texas, a week or two ago, has been captured alive and made to disgorge his gatherings.

—Henry Clay Thurston, of Mt. Pleasant, Texas, is the tallest man in America. He is seven feet, seven and one-half inches high, fifty-three years old, and weighs 280 pounds.

—A mining company have sunk a shaft near Cold Springs, in Greene county, Tenn., to the depth of six feet in a rock, and have struck a large vein of silver that pays at that depth $34 71 per ton.

—The river eight miles above Natchez is caving rapidly in a direct line on the Mississippi side through the old Nevite chute, which was once the bed of the Mississippi river. The distance across the point is less than a mile. More than a quarter of a mile has caved into the river during the last twenty months, and it is only a matter of time, or in the near future, when the river will resume its old bed, abandoned more than forty years ago.

Subscribe for the RECORDER.

Twists and Twinges.

"My brethren," shouted Dr. Talmage one bright autumnal Sunday, "there is a lesson from the cornfield. God has arranged that the ear and the husk shall be parted. Every rheumatic pain is but a thrust of the husking-peg, and every neuralgic twinge is only a twist of the husker."

Possible; but nobody wants to be husked, for all that, and nature teaches us to resist the process Therefore, we accept with gratitude whatever helps us to suppress those very twists and twinges.

From his pleasant home, Greenmont, near Sing Sing, N. Y., M. Alfred Bear, a French gentleman, writes:

"I have suffered almost intolerable torments from rheumatism for many years. Of the numerous remedies which I tried, none benefited me. But PARKER'S TONIC gave me great satisfaction. I certify with pleasure that it restored my health. You are welcome to publish this and use my name.

Messrs HISCOX & Co., call especial attention to the fact that this preparation, which has been known as PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, will hereafter be advertised and sold simply under the name of PARKER'S TONIC. As unprincipled dealers are constantly deceiving their customers by substituting inferior preparations under the name of ginger, and as ginger is really an unimportant ingredient, we drop the misleading word.

There is no change, however, in the preparation itself, and all bottles remaining in the hands of dealers, wrapped under the name of PARKER'S GINGER TONIC, contain the genuine medicine if the facsimile signature of HISCOX & Co., is at the bottom of the outside wrapper.

For Sale.

70 Stands of Bees.

I will sell the entire lot at $5 per stand, or will sell 35 stands at $6 per stand. Persons buying one or two stands can get them at $10 per stand. A larger number will be sold proportionally cheaper. No honey has been taken from the brood department, and the stands are all in good order.

E. E. UTZ.

Strayed.

A red and white speckled heifer, two years old, will weigh about 750 pounds—left the pasture about the first of July. Any one giving information as to her whereabouts will be thankfully received.

JERRY BEEMON, Florence X-Roads.

SCIENCE HILL.

(A SCHOOL for Girls,) Established 1825

By MRS. JULIA A TEVIS,

Located at SHELBYVILLE, KENTUCKY,

Aims to give its pupils the elements of a complete education. Pretense and show are discarded and all the force of a competent faculty directed toward the essentials of Education. Terms reasonable. Send for catalogue.

W. T. POYNTER, D. D., Principal.

Just From New York

WITH A

Full LINE of FALL SUITINGS,

—AND—

OVERCOATS.

The above stock was carefully selected, and consists of all the NEW STYLES of FALL GOODS, and you can not fail to be pleased with the Goods and Prices.

H. F. BLASE,

540 Madison St, - COVINGTON, KY.

GRAND EVENT OF THE YEAR!

The Lawrenceburg Fair,

AUGUST 22nd to 25th, 1883.

RACES Every DAY.

PROGRAMME:

Wednesday, August 22.

Jack and Mules, Heavy Draft Horses.

Boone and Dearborn County Trot, Purse $50 00

Running Race, Purse, ... $100 00

Thursday, August 23.

Address by HON. JOHN G. CARLISLE.

Cattle, Saddle Horses, Hogs and Sheep.

Three minute trot, Purse, ... $200 00

Running Race, Purse, ... $150 00

Friday, August 24.

General Purpose Horses, Sweepstakes on Hogs and Sheep, Matched Horses, Swepstakes on Stallions, Purse... $50 00

Two Thirty Trot, Purse $200 00

Free for all Pace, Purse $300 00

Saturday, August 25.

Herds of Cattle, Purse $150 00

Light Harness Horses, Sweepstakes on General Purpose Horses, Purse... $50 00

Running Race, Purse $200 00

Free for all Trot, Purse $400 00

STEAM FERRY at Lawrenceburg during Fair week, Commencing Wednesday, August 22nd.

No Entry Fees for Competition. Send for Premium Lists.

W. H. O'BRIEN, Secretary,

Lawrenceburg, Indiana.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE.

Boone Circuit Court Kentucky.

Clara G Botts' Gud. Plff.
vs } Notice of sale in equity
Clara G Botts, Deft.

By virtue of a Judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April Term thereof, 1883, in the above cause, the undersigned will, on Monday, the 3d day of Sept., 1883, at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabout (being County Court day), proceed to offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, on a credit of 6 & 12 months, at the Court-house door, in the town of Burlington, the property mentioned in the Judgment to wit:

Lot No. 3 in the division of Rowland Botts' lands, described as follows: Beginning at a stone on the Burlington and Petersburg road, corner of lot No. 2; thence with said road N 32¼ E 13¾ poles, N 45¼ E 29 poles to a stone on said road; thence N 50¼ W 29⅔ poles passing east of the grave yard to a stone; thence N 66¼ W 40¼ poles to a stone, corner of lot No. 4, in a line of lot No. 2, thence with said line S 30¼ E 48 poles to the beginning, including the dwelling house, containing 9¼ acres.

The purchaser will be required to give bonds with approved security, for the payment of the purchase money, to have the force and effect of a judgment, bearing legal interest from the day of sale, according to law. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

Bonds payable to the undersigned.

W. L. RIDDELL, M C B C

Also at the same time and place the following lot of land will be offered, adjoining the above, containing acres and bounded east by Joseph G. Botts and Clara G. Botts', lots south by the Petersburg & Burlington road, west by T. E. Randall and north by J. D. Willis' heirs—this sale will be made on the following terms: One-half cash; the remainder due in six months, to bear interest from day of sale, with a lien reserved on the land for the deferred payment.

F. P. WALTON, Agt.
For MARY SARGANT.

NOTICE.

All persons having claims against the estate of Churchell Clore, decd., will present them properly proven as by law required.

HENRY CLORE, WM. CLORE,
Executors.

NOTICE.

A dividend of 50 cents on each share of the Burlington and Florence turnpike is declared and ordered to be paid on demand by the treasurer DUDLEY ROUSE.

Aug. 11th, 1883.

Farm for Sale.

I am offering for sale my farm, lying 3 miles south of Burlington on the Big Bone road, containing 55½ acres, a part of the Mason Crisler farm. The land lays well and is conveniently located, the improvements are a good brick house and all necessary out buildings, and a variety of good fruit. Any person desirous of purchasing a nice farm will do well to come and examine the premises and learn terms. Title good.

MRS. OSCAR CRISLER.

Farm for Sale.

A small farm of 11½ acres, on the Covington and Lexington pike, at the top of Willow Run Hill. On it are a commodious house, necessary out buildings and a good orchard. Title good. Call on W. C. Tupman, Sheriff's Office, Covington, Thomas Tupman, Kenton Heights or W. L. Riddell, Burlington.

INJECTION
SANTINELI

Cures all recent and chronic secret diseases of the Urinary passages in both sexes. Directions in all languages. $1.00 a bottle Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of price secure from observation. Fairmount Chemical Co. Cincinnati, Ohio, U.S.A. Sold by W. F. M'Kim, Burlington

ATTENTION!

Attention! Attention

If you want to buy a first-class organ
If you want to buy a first-class
Piano. If you want to exchange your old instrument. If you want to receive their full value.

If you want an instrument of any kind If you want to exchange your old sewing machine. If you want to buy the best new sewing machine. If you want to receive a five years warrant with every purchase, bring or send your orders to G. S. Lozier
Gen. Agent,
Lawrenceburg,
Indiana,
Office & Sales Room in Dr. C. G. Walters' building, Corner Short and Tate Streets.

Send for Prices and Circulars.

All mail orders filled promptly.

A fine display of Organs, Pianos and Sewing Machines will be on exhibition at Lawrenceburg and Aurora Fairs. Call and examine them and leave orders.

LUMBER.

Goe. M. Bedinger & Co.,

Erlanger, - - Ky.

We keep constantly on hand all kinds of Lumber, Laths and Shingles. Also Builder's supplies of all kinds.

—Come and see Us.—

may 9-tf

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE.

GEORGETOWN, Ky.—On Cincinnati Southern R.R. Located in the healthy and beautiful "Blue Grass" region of Kentucky, 55 session opens September 3rd, 1883. Instruction in all branches of a College education. Experienced Professor. The degree of B. S., A. B. and A. M., conferred. Useful course for those who can spend only one or two years in College. Terms low for advantages offered. For catalogue or particulars, address to R. M. DUDLEY, D. D., President.

LOOK HERE!

when you go to Lawrenceburg, call on

Winegardner

He has a large assortment of

Wall Paper!

And is daily receiving additions to his stock. Call and examine before purchasing.

Inks, Pens and Stationary

constantly on hand.

Headquaters in Lotton House.

Washington & Lee

UNIVERSITY, Lexington, Va.

Instruction in the usual academic studies, and in the professional schools of Law and Engineering. Location healthful. Expenses moderate. Next Sept. 20. For catalogues, address "Clerk of the Faculty." G. W. LEE, President.

LAW SCHOOL OF

WASHINGTON & LEE UNIVERSITY

GEN. G. W. LEE, President.

Instruction by text-book and printed lectures, with courses of lectures on special subjects by eminent jurists. Tuition and fees, $80 for session of nine months; beginning Sept. 20. For catalogue and full information, address CHAS. A. GRAVES, Prof. of Law, Lexington, Va.

W. J. RICE,

CARPENTER & BUILDER,

BULLITSVILLE, KY.

Is prepared Raise or Move

EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS

On Short Notice,

and at the Lowest Possible Figures.

33-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS

FOR THE

LIVER

And all Bilious Complaints

Safe to take, being purely vegetable; no griping. Price 25 cts. All Druggists.

INCORPORATED UNDER THE LAWS OF MISSOURI.

CENTRAL MEDICAL & SURGICAL INSTITUTE

OF ST. LOUIS, MO.

SUCCESSORS TO DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY. OFFICE & ROOMS, NO. 920 LOCUST ST.

CHAS. L. LaBARRE, M.D., Pres't & Physician in Charge.

NELSON CHESMAN, Treas. & Business Manager.

This Institute has ample facilities and an experienced Faculty. While it succeeds to a large business, which has been established for years, it will aim to extend its medical and surgical practice, giving skillful and scientific treatment to CHRONIC DISEASES of the Head, Spine, Lungs and Air Passages, Heart, Liver, Stomach and Bowels, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Consumption and Asthma. BLOOD IMPURITIES, inherited or caused by impure association, Scrofula, Fever Sores, Ulcers, etc. DEFORMITIES of the Limbs, Spinal Curvature, Wry-Neck, Diseases of the Joints, Piles, Fistula, Rupture, etc. WEAKNESS and wasting diseases in old and young men, also all diseases of the genito-urinary organs. FEMALE Irregularities and weaknesses, causing pain in the back or side, etc. Personal interviews with patients are always preferred. Those unable to visit the Institute will be furnished with blank lists of questions that will aid them in making a full statement of their cases and if not requiring a surgical operation they can be successfully treated by correspondence, and medicines sent by mail or express. To enable us to send proper list of questions applicants should give a brief statement of their trouble.

(The Treasurer of the corporation is of Nelson Chesman & Co., Advertising Agents, and refers to the publisher of this or any other newspaper in the United States or Canada regarding responsibility.)

Consultation at Office or by mail free and Invited

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.

TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

VIGOROUS HEALTH FOR MEN

THE PASTILLE CURE TRADE MARK FOR NERVOUS DEBILITY.

TESTED FOR 5 YEARS

by use in thousands of cases. Founded on scientific medical principles, it has been growing in favor and reputation while its numerous competitors have invariably failed. The direct application of this remedy to the seat of the disease makes its specific influence felt without delay. The natural functions of the human organism are restored. The animating elements of life which have been wasted are given back. The buoyant energy of the brain and muscular system renders the patient cheerful; he gains strength with rapidity.

NERVOUS DEBILITY, organic weakness, and numerous obscure diseases, baffling the skill of best physicians, result for youthful indiscretion, too free indulgence, and over brain work.

Do not temporize while such enemies lurk in your system. Take a remedy that has cured thousands, and does not interfere with you attention to business or cause any pain or inconvenience.

(Send for a Descriptive Pamphlet giving Anatomical Illustrations, which will convince the most sceptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fitted for the duties of life, same as if never affected. Sent free to any one. Remedy sold ONLY by the)

HARRIS REMEDY CO. MFG. CHEMISTS.

306½ N. 10th. St. ST. LOUIS, MO.

One Month's treatment $3. two months $5. three months $7

NAVAL Agents Wanted for Ancient & Modern BATTLES.

New and graphic Pictorial History of the great Sea fights of the World. By Medical Director SHIPPEN, U. S. N. Address J. C. McCURDY & CO., 180 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard works of character; great variety; Books & Bibles low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co. 21 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

AYER'S
Ague Cure

IS WARRANTED to cure all cases of malarial disease, such as Fever and Ague, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Bilious Fever, and Liver Complaint. In case of failure, after due trial, dealers are authorized, by our circular of July 1st, 1882, to refund the money.

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists.

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley,
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U. Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk; A. G. DeJarnette, Commonwealths Attorney; N. E. Hawes, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney; M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clotterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. Ed Fowler, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday. Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and L. A. Loder fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

Beever—W. M. Rouse, Friday after the third Monday, and

E. E. IGOE,

Resident Dentist,

Rising Sun, Ind.

WITH

J. P. Ulrey.

Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun. Ind.

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral.

No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.

"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me. HORACE FAIRBROTHER."

Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.

"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,

MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."

159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."

Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.

"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. JOSEPH WALDEN."

Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.

"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRAGDON."

Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.

No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.

PREPARED BY

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists.

PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON

Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.

COLOGNE

Paynes' Automatic Farm Engines

OF ALL KINDS.—Established 1840.

Our 10-Horse Spark Arresting Threshing Engine has cut 10,000 feet Pine Lumber in 10 hours. Will burn wood 6 feet long, coal, Straw and corn stalks. Send for Price List and Catalogue G.

B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1900, Corning, N. Y.

26.999 NOW IN USE.

All persons say their goods are the best. We ask you to examine our Improved Keller Positive Force Feed, Grain, Seed and Fertilizing Drill and our Hay Rakes. They are as good as the best, and can be sold as cheap. All are warranted. Circulars mailed free. Newark Machine Co., Newark, Ohio. Eastern Branch House, Hagerstown, Md.

W. N. STAGE, Gen. Traveling Agt. Louisville Ky

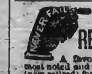
STATE COLLEGE OF KENTUCKY.

UNSECTARIAN. Fall session begins Sept. 12, 1883. Fifteen Professors and Instructors. Scientific, Classical, Agricultural, Normal School and Commercial Courses of Study. Tuition and Matriculation fees, $30 per annum. Board in dormitory, $2.25 per week; in private families, $4.50. 320 students last year. Buildings, apparatus & machinery entirely new. Capacity for 600 students. Range of study wider and expenses less than any college in Kentucky. For catalogues apply to Judge W. B. Kinkead or to James K. Patterson, Ph. D., President of the College, Lexington, Ky.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST."

ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers

(Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.



FREE!
RELIABLE SELF-CURE.

A favorite prescription of one of the most noted and successful specialists in the U. S. (now retired) for the cure of Nervous Debility, Lost Manhood, Weakness and Decay. Sent in plain sealed envelope free. Druggists can fill it.

Address DR. WARD & CO., Louisiana, Mo.

PAYSONS INDELIBLE INK

Is the BEST. No preparation. Used with any clean pen for marking any fabric. Popular for decorative work on linen. Received Centennial MEDAL & Diploma. Established 50 years. Sold by all Druggists, Stationers & News Ag'ts.

Local News.

Some tobacco is being cut.

Read the advertisement of bees for sale.

The second crop of clover is being harvested.

Croquet by moonlight is quite a fashionable game in Burlington.

The Lawrenceburg Fair commenced yesterday. It will be one of the best fairs in Indiana.

The sale of the personal property of the late Churchell Clore comes off August 28th, next Tuesday.

Don't waste the water. There is no telling when it will rain again. The water courses are getting dusty.

Our local harnessmaker is working on a set of harness which he will exhibit at the Lexington Fair next week.

To see a man having coal shoveled into his coal-house such a day as last Monday, looks like—we won't say it.

D. M. Snyder was in town Saturday, and was particularly happy, because he has another fine daughter at his house.

The tobacco crop in the southern part of the county has been growing nicely since the fine rain that visited that section.

The indications are that the next term of the Circuit Court will be short picking for both lawyer and court officials.

Gentlemen who desire to retain a youthful appearance, preserve and invigorate the hair with Ayer's Hair Vigor.

Last week we said John Moody was elected constable in the Bellevue district, when we should have said James Snyder.

The Salem Association meets with the Gunpowder church this year, and will be held in the woods near Jams Delph's, commencing to-day.

The Clore boys weighed their threshing machine here Monday morning. The thresher weighed 3,810 pounds and the engine and boiler, 4,280 pounds.

James Smith, of Bellevue, brought to town last Thursday, a yellow catfish that weighed 40 pounds. It was caught in a set-net in the river opposite Bellevue.

In some localities in this county the corn crop looks exceedingly poor. Corn on sod land stood the dry weather much better than that growing on other land.

Mr. McFarland, the shoemaker who came her a week or two since, and opened up a shop moved his family over last Friday, and is now a citizen of the town.

Mrs. Edward Grant, who was quite sick at her aunt's, near Florence, for several days, recovered sufficiently to return, last week, to her home in Carrollton.

Another piscatorial excursion from this place to the river last week. They made an abundant haul. If these visits are kept up we fear the supply of fish in the Ohio will be exhausted.

There will be eight herds of cattle on exhibition at the fair this week. This will make the largest cattle show ever brought together in this section of the State.—Lawrenceburg Register.

The whistle of the steam thresher can be heard in all directions. Some of the crops of wheat are so small that the machine has not time to whistle more than twice before the crop is threshed.

Saturday the Boone team goes to Aurora to meet the Standards again. The last game was 12 to 13 in favor of the Standards, and the game Saturday will be fought for hard by both clubs.

Atty. Hughes had the largest threshing of any person heard from so far this season. The yield was entirely satisfactory, and when measured up there was exactly one gallon—of mustard seed.

We acknowledge the courtesy of a complimentary ticket to the Fifteenth Annual Fair of the South-Eastern Indiana Agricultural Society, to be held at Aurora from Sept. 4th to 8th, inclusive.

Joseph Saddler, who lives on this side of the river, just above Lawrenceburg came near colliding with a flash of lightning a few days since. It struck a willow bush near him and knocked him down.

Nice tombstones or monuments at the graves of the departed, are marks of respect which should not be neglected. Hupschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., have just what you want. John Beall, of Hebron, is their agent.

The ball given at the Hebron hall last Wednesday night for the benefit of Geo. Knapp, was largely attended, and the tripping of the light fantastic was continued till nearly dawn. All who attended enjoyed themselves hugely.

Some section hands living in a shanty near Ludlow, on the C. S. R. R, got into a dispute then into a fight, in which one of them was fearfully beaten about the head. Dr. Crisler was called in to dress the wounds, and thought that congestion of the brain might be the result.

James H. Mirrick, of Waco, Texas, was visiting his friends and relatives in Boone last week. It has been about seven years since he left here for Texas, and time has wrought many changes in this county, and the people, which are very perceptible to him. "Bud" is looking well, is highly pleased with Texas and says he is prospering finely.

The [illegible], last Saturday, was all that those who participate in out-door sports could ask, and a large crowd of pleasure seekers attended the moonlight pic-nic in Walton's Grove, that evening where they enjoyed themselves till low twelve, when they reluctantly wended their way homeward, to spend the remainder of the night in sweet repose and pleasant dreams of the evening's enjoyment.

Patker, the man who had the contract for carrying the mail on this route, sent an agent here last week to adjust the mail carrying from Erlanger to Burlington. R. C. Rice was employed to carry the mail for the remainder of the time for which W. R. Terrill had contracted to carry it, and took charge of the pouch last Friday morning.

H. F. Blase, of Covington, returned from New York, last week, where he had been laying in a fall and winter stock of goods. He purchased a very large supply of the best quality of suitings, and now has the best stock ever in Covington. He is always up with the styles and allows no tayloring establishment in that city to surpass his goods, work and prices. See his ad in another column.

I take this means of notifying the public that I am prepared to grind corn at my mill on the Burlington and Petersburg pike near Legrand Gaines' and solicit the patronage of the surrounding country. Will grind every Friday.

4t-43 LEWIS GRAHAM.

Our Plattsburg correspondent recites, this week, a snake story of large dimensions, which, were it not for our personal knowledge of the geography of his country, and its ability to produce wonders, would make us slightly skeptical.

Mrs. Sebern Berkshire, who had a cancer cut from her breast about one year ago, died last week, after a protracted period of suffering. Her funeral was preached by Rev. E. N. Dicken in the Baptist church at Bellevue, last Sunday.

Commissioner Snyder and Examiner Conner were in town last Saturday to examine all pedagogues who desire a license to instruct the young idea, in Boone, how to shoot. Dr. Kirtley was the only applicant.

A hat renovator struck the town last week, and the old hats must have thought that the day of resurrection had come. Nearly everybody in town now has a nice new hat made out of an old one.

To-day, Wednesday, at 4:30 p. m. Mr. John Huey and Miss Lucy Ryle will be married at the residence of Rev. James A. Kirtly. They have the best wishes of the RECORDER for their future happiness.

Elder Wm. Rupard, old Baptist, of Clark county, this State, preached two sermons at this place last Saturday, one in the Court-house in the morning and one in the Baptist church in the evening.

The time is near at hand when those young ladies and gents who attend foreign schools will have to pack their grip sacks and march, and the procession from Boone will be a long one.

It has been many years since the prospects for a crop of corn in this locality were as bad as they are at present. There some fields that will not make one barrel to the acre.

The first load of home-grown watermelons struck this market last Saturday. They were of very nice size, but there was some complaint as to the quality.

Walton's tobacco shop shut down for the summer, last Saturday. During the the summer vacation Frank will have his tobacco house raised one story higher.

Judge Youell, of Walton, was kicked by a horse and badly hurt one day last week. We understand that one of his arms was broken in two places.

Ho for the Lawrenceburg Fair this week! Remember that Hon. John G. Carlisle is billed to make a speech there to-morrow, Thursday.

The protracted meeting at the Baptist church, in Florence, will continue through this week. There were six additions last week.

Henly Smith is now out of employment, and will turn his attention to the welfare of the fair sex.

This section of God's flower garden needs a fence bursting, gully-washing, drenching rain.

Prof. Stevenson will probably teach school, this fall and winter, in Florence.

The public pump is on a strike again.

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

B. K. Sleet made Burlington a flying visit last week.

A. W. Smith was considerably on the sick list last week.

W. E. Piper and wife visited friends in Covington Sunday.

Miss Dell Platt, of East Bend, was the guest of Miss Katie Platt, Sunday.

We are glad to hear that Dr. L. H. Platt, of Bellevue, is getting well.

Miss Mamie and Lottie Riggs, of Covington, are visiting Mrs. Dempsey, of this place.

Mr. Johnnie Hoggins and Miss Sallie Hind, of Walton, spent Sunday in Burlington.

Miss Pussie Smith returned home, last Sunday, from a two weeks visit to her aunt's, near North Bend.

Mrs. Charlotte Reed, of the Union neighborhood, was visiting her daughter, at this place Sunday and Monday.

Base-ball.

The Boone Base-ball club met the Walnut Hill club, on the ground of the former last Wednesday, and won an easy victory. The home team expected to face a much stronger club than the visitors proved to be, and after the first inning had things pretty much their own way. The visitors were fine catchers, but the Boones were much the strongest batters, and pounded their pitcher all over the field. Clore, as short stop, was particularly lively, and was always backing up in the proper place. Below is the score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	T
Walnut Hill	3	0	0	1	0	1	0	2	0	7
Boones	1	2	2	5	3	0	0	4	..	17

NOTES.

Henshaw plays with all the clubs from across the waters.

Hankins smiles when he sees a fly start for the center field—it is his.

M. D., Atty. Youmans, of Cincinnati witnessed the game.

Ott Gaines still cherishes a love for the sport.

Dave Beall was present expatiating on the fine (?) points of the game.

Prof. Daughters viewed the contest from a seat in the grand stand.

Visiting clubs always feel easier when the audience keeps quite, and a good play on the part of the visitors should be applauded as heartily as one made by the home boys.

The boys have downed every club met, except the Standards, and they are not certain of winning the next game.

Next Saturday the Boones go to Aurora to play the Standards another game.

The question has been asked: What does the umpire get for his services? Lots of cursing and occasionally a lick by the ball.

The Elijah's Creek and the Speedwell teams measured willows at this place last Saturday, the former winning in a game of 21 to 16.

The Boones crawled out at a very small hole, at Cleves, Ohio, last Saturday, defeating the Cleves club in a score of 10 to 7 when in the seventh inning the score was 7 to 1 against the Boones.

Cincinnati has an epidemic of [illegible] deeds. They are averaging two murders a day over there during the hot weather.

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Scattersville.

Everything is growing fine at present.

Our farmers have caught up with the tobacco worms, and are now trying to over take the briars.

Wm. Clore and O. P. Conner have commenced feeding hogs for the fall market.

O. P. Conner has been hauling lumber from Bellevue for fencing.

Lewis Conner is stocking his farm with sheep.

O. P. Conner and family were visiting his brother at Aurora one day last week.

Mrs. Lewis Connor and Misses Ora and Irva spent the day with Mrs. O. P. Conner last week.

Verona.

The farmers are about through threshing their wheat which was a poor crop. Some did not cut their wheat at all, while others cut part and hauled to their neighbors threshing yards. One crop as small as five bushels—not many go over 100 bushel. Oats, grass and potatoes good. Tobacco is on a stand for the want of rain

Health of the neighborhood good at present.

Miss Francis Rowland is making an effort to get the school at the Fry school-house.

The protracted meeting held in the M. E. Church, closed on last Tuesday, with one addition. The services were conducted by Revs. Bristow and Overstreet.

Hebron.

Howard Thompson and wife, of Indiana, are the guests of Mrs. Mike Clore.

Miss Ella Sederberg, of Parlor Grove, is visiting Mike Clore's.

Henry Crigler got his hand caught under the corner of a building and it was badly mashed.

The ball on the 15th inst., for the benefit of Geo. Knapp was well attended by the gallantry and the beauty of this and adjacent neighborhoods. Prof. Jno. Furlong and Prof. Knapps string bands discoursed sweet music for the occasion. Thirty-two ladies and sixty gents were present. James Mirrick, of Waco, Texas, entertained the crowd by singing a song of the cow-boys.

Plattsburg

Fall work soon in order.

There will be no basket meeting at Ashbyfork this year from some cause or other

Rev. A. G. Grines left for his home in New York last Thursday.

W. T. Crisler will start to New York next Monday to attend a ten months term of school at the St. Lawrence University.

About two-thirds of our town took in the camp meeting at Acton, Ind., last Sunday.

Miss Ella Platt, of Glendale, Ohio, is visiting relatives here.

The abutment of the Woolper bridge is completed and is the finest and most substantial piece of masonry in the county.

Bud Walton of the White Oaks is a regular long John Riley kind of a fellow, when it comes to batting long balls.

Mont Balsly had about 200 bu. of barley burned in his father's barn.

The Woolper bridge will not be finished until the first of October.

H. P. Crisler fell from a wagon and hurt himself quite badly a few days ago. He is hardly able to be about at present.

We met our old friend Perry Kirtley a few days ago. Perry is not in the best of health, and is talking of taking a trip to Missouri.

About one year ago George Voshell saw near a large sink hole, in one of his meadows, a monster snake of the adder species. George had been missing lambs and shoats from his flock for nearly a year, but supposed that the foxes' had been taking them but, to his surprise, the other morning he found several of his lambs lying dead near the entrance of the cave, and a large snake, with one of them almost swallowed down, being so startled at his discovery, he started back to town to relate what he had found, but when your scribe arrived at the spot named, his snakeship had swallowed the lamb (as it was missing) and gone back into his den. Only a few days ago Oscar Whitaker, colored, missed one of his fast fox hounds, and in passing near this place he heard the howls of a dog, and in going to this cave discovered his hound, but this monster reptile had swallowed him almost down. Oscar made war on the snake and it released its hold upon the dog, but, too late, the hound expired in a few minutes after being released.

Bullittsville.

Health of the neighborhood good.

The supply of water is getting scarce.

The crops are suffering for rain, and the pastures are very dry.

Elder Thompson, of Ohio, will preach at Mt. Pleasant church, Saturday and Sunday.

Mark Whitaker, wife and son, of Saline county, Mo., are visiting relatives in this neighborhood.

Mrs. Samuel Jack, of Covington, has been the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Joel Conner for a week.

Mrs. H. J. Casey, of Richmond, Va., is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Conner, of this place.

Some of our citizens await, anxiously, the developments of the Fitch bank of Lawrenceburg, Ind., being owners of deposits therein.

We have heard of the growing corn being badly damaged by wind, but it would take a hurricane indeed to do any damage to some of our corn, if it might be called such.

Ben Stephens spent week before last in Lexington and vicinity.

Allie Graves and wife, of Covington, spent last week with their country cousins here.

Geo. Kreylich and Mex Clevland were here Sunday.

A bicycle carried through town a man from the city, the other day.

The time of holding meeting at the Christian church has been changed to the second Sunday.

Miss Belle Terrill spent last week with Nettie Graves, Miss Nettie accompanied her home Sunday.

E. K. Stephens has rented a farm in Mo. and will make that state his home.

Temp Gaines celebrated his fiftieth birthday on the 14th inst. There were about 50 invited geuets present.

Mr. J. M. Huslal lost, by fire, a stack of hay, cause of fire unknown.

ALL ABOUT THE BOYS.

Ed Duncan will attend medical lectures at Cin., this coming term, and be on hand with the Boones when they are likely to win

Crit Gordon will umpire no more ball games, but will wield the rod and give directions to the youthful minds in Fayette county.

Dode Clore will make the closing speech at the Teachers' Institute, and if he does not bring down the Morgan Academy, he will return to school at Springfield, O.

Willie W. Gaines will go to the same place. Hubert thinks he will the first chance. Batterson will conduct a camp meeting in the near future. Jeff Snyder will assist Ben Stephen in mixing drugs, &c. Charley Clore will not join the strikers, but will take the best telegraphic situation he can get. Richard Utz will know for a certainty whether there is to be preaching here or not, the next time he comes. Dick was twice fooled, if not oftener. Bud Cropper will have a complete walk over in the next race for coroner.

About the Boones and Almonts.

It seems that in some parts of this county a settled animosity is felt toward the Almont B. B. C. Just why it is we can not say. We have a most friendly feeling towards all the boys who have met our nine, and we hope we have done nothing to arouse feelings of anyother nature in them. But it seems that we have; for first a "Professional" gives us a blast, and now we see that "the Boones will not challenge the Almonts until they go to playing little amateur clubs." Well, gentlemen, the Almonts are amateurs, and never claimed to be anything else; but they can play a moderately good game of ball, nevertheless. Perhaps the Speedwell and Burlington combination think so. Perhaps the Aurora, Riverside, Burlington and Bullittsville nine have a slight recollection of a game they played them. Then there was a nine which should have been from Hebron; may be they could give you a few points.

Although the Almonts are amateurs, they have been known to beat "Professionals" and about 19 to 5 at that.

If the Pete correspondent really wants to know why the Boones did not play the Almonts, we can tell him. The Boones' representative offered the Almonts the following most favorable terms the time he asked them to play the Boones as a favor, because they had advertised, and the Miamitowns not coming to time they must get someone else: The Almonts to go 8 miles out in the country with but one day's notice, pay their own expenses (about $8) and play them. They condescend to play and pocket all the gate fees. Strange to say, the Almonts refused to play on these terms, but asked the terms always demanded by the Standards, viz.: 40 per cent. of the gate fees if they lost and 60 per cent. if they won the game. The aforesaid representative was horrified at this and went on to Aurora and got the Standards on the same terms, and paid their expenses and board-bill besides. That is the way they treated their own county boys. We don't know why you dislike the Almonts. Can any of you tell of a single encounter with them, in which you were not treated like gentlemen? Or is it just a little jealousy? The clubs play about Sept. 1st. Then we shall see which is the best. But we are confident the Almonts will amuse them at least. J. E. TERRILL, M. D., Capt. B. B. C.

[Doc., we are responsible for what was said at the foot of our Petersburg communication, in regard to the Boones playing amateur clubs, and we assure you it was not prompted by jealousy, but was simply intended as a piece of pleasantry with our correspondent.—EDS.]

2

A TRUE assistant to nature in restoring the system to perfect health, thus enabling it to resist disease, is Brown's Iron Bitters.

COCHRAN, GA.—Dr. A. J. Lamb says: "I never met with a remedy that gave more satisfaction in cases of debility and prostration than Brown's Iron Bitters."

OWENTON, KY.—Rev. J. W. Waldrop says: "Brown's Iron Bitters greatly relieved me of general debility and indigestion."

COMMISSIONER'S SALE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

Joseph Botts', Gur'd, Plff vs Joseph Botts, Deft.	Notice of sale in equity

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April term thereof, 1883, in the above cause, the undersigned will, on Monday, the 3d day of Sept, 1883, at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabout (being County Court day) proceed to offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, on a credit of 9 months at the Court-house door in the town of Burlington, the property mentioned in the judgment to wit:

Lot No. 4 in the division of Rowland Botts lands described as follows: Beginning at a stone in a line of lot No. 2, a corner of lot No. 3; thence with a line of lot No. 3, N 60½ E 40 3-5 poles to a stone corner of lot No. 3, in a line of parcel "B" of lot "C"; thence with the line of parcel "C" N 30¼ W 30 to a stone; thence N 60 E 27 1-5 poles to a stone; thence N 28 W 10 poles to a stone in a line of Mrs. Nancy Arnold's dower; thence with said line N 31 W 16 3-5 poles to a stake James D. Willis' coner near the gate across the Bullittsville meeting-house road; thence S 79½ W 35 ⅗ poles to a stone in the road; thence S 7¼ W 35½ poles to a stone in J. D. Willis' line corner of lot No. 2, thence S 30¼ E 63 poles to the beginning, containing 22 acres.

The purchaser will be required to give bond with approved security, for the payment of the purchase money, to have the force and effect of a judgment, bearing legal interest from the day of sale, according to law. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

Bonds payable to the undersigned.

W L RIDDELL, M C B C C.

Cut This Out & Return to us with TEN CTS. Silver, & you'll get by mail, a GOLDEN BOX OF GOODS that will bring you in MORE MONEY in One Month than anything else in America. Absolute Certainty. Either Sex. No capital. M. Young, 173 Greenwich St. N. York.

J. W. KIRKPATRICK & SON,
—BURLINGTON, KY.—
UNDERTAKERS
—AND—
EMBALMERS,
Will furnish nice Hearse any reasonable distance for $10.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office over Dudley Rouse's Store.

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence,
Burlington, - - - Ky.

L. C. NORMAN. S. J. STEPHENS.
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Court and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application to G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

S. W. TOLIN.
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - - KY
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. Aprompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.
Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.
N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.
DIRECTORS.
LEGRAN GAINES, Jed Utz,
JNO. M. MOODY.

DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS.
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
SALT BY THE BARREL.
ROUSE.
BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS.
The Best of Flour
PATENT & HIGH GRADE
Always on Hand, and cheaper than the cheapest.
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE
DUDLEY ROUSE.
I now have on hand a full Stock of SCHOFIELDS Flannels, Jeans, and Yarns. Call early and make a Purchase.

M.L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEED.
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSORS TO ALONZO GRAVES.)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE,
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.
Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.
All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE
Petersburg Drug Store,
Where you can find everything in the
Drug line, such as———
Well call and see and be convinced.
Respectfully, S. C BUCHANAN.

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S
Indian Blood Syrup
Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood.
Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the
BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.
TRADE MARK.
Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.
AGENTS WANTED.
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St, New York City. Druggists sell it
D. CLARK JOHNSON:—This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. B. MCCABE, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, 1883

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300,000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK,
Covington, Kentucky.
DIRECTORS.
James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, S. J. Hickey, E. J. Green,
J. S. Matson, J. H. Meraman, A. R. Mullen, L. H. Dills, F. P. Helm,
L. C. Stephens.
The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.
The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank. dec. 20-6m

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar7-tf23 J. W. Talbott.

UNDERTAKING.
We keep Constantly on Hand all sizes of
Burial Cases and Caskets.
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES GUARANTEED LESS THAN CITY PRICES.
DAVIS BROS., HEBRON, KY.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL, Publishers.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY.

The Value of Gibraltar to England.

It will be evident that the value of Gibraltar to England in war-time depends entirely upon the inviolability of the adjacent bay. Our merchant steamers and war-ships must be able to coal, our transports to embark men and stores, in perfect security. Gibraltar Bay is inviolable only so long as Spain permits it to be so. Varying in breadth from 8,000 to 9,000 yards, it is now throughout its length brought within practicable range of modern guns mounted along the Spanish shore; while of its total circumference of more than fifteen miles, only about three miles belong to England. Krupp or Armstrong is doubtless able and willing to supply the guns in a very short time. The cost of mounting them in simple earthworks will be comparatively small, and if Plevna has any meaning, the Remington rifle will make them perfectly secure against a landing party. All this is thoroughly well understood in Spain, where the Gibraltar question has been much discussed of late.

But, it may be said, our ironclads would at the outbreak of war easily silence and destroy these guns. The experience of Alexandria points entirely in the other direction, and as artillerymen the Spaniards might prove very different to Egyptians. Or, it may be urged, the range, after all, is great, the Spanish guns on the other side of the bay would never hit our ships. But, ex hypothesi, it is necessary that the latter should be able to lie safely at anchor. The Spaniards have merely to shoot deliberately and in perfect safety all day. Expenditure of ammunition need be no object to them, with Spain at their backs and a railway line (now on the point of being constructed) to connect them with their arsenals. Allowing for plenty of bad shooting, there will still be quite enough hitting to deny Gibraltar Bay to unarmored and lightly armored ships, except by night. It is conceivable that people will be found to propose that we should not permit Spain to mount these guns and to construct this railway, but such a view hardly seems to need refutation. Considering that our guns now command the Spanish town of Linea, at short range, and that Gibraltar is undergoing a continuous process of strengthening and rearmament, it would be an outrage upon international justice to deny to the Spaniards the right to mount what they pleased whenever they pleased.

The unavoidable conclusion, that Spain can now, without any grand effort, render the bay and with it the fortress of Gibraltar useless to England, should not be shirked or lightly put aside. Per contra, the guns of Gibraltar render the bay useless to Spain or her allies. In case of war, therefore, the military position is one of stalemate. There is an alternative, however, which must be stated. At the outset of war, England might seize Algeciras and the adjacent territory across the bay. This means, practically, the occupation of Andalusia, and those who know the country are best able to form an idea of the magnitude of the operation. In other words, if involved in a European war, Spain being hostile, it may be necessary for us to embark on a considerable campaign for the indirect object of securing the advantages of the possession of Gibraltar, though it might well happen that this campaign would have no direct bearing on the main issue. To enter on a war with hands tied in a way perfectly understood by possible enemies, is never a satisfactory position. But the very possession of Gibraltar means a hostile Spain, and the weight of that hostility is limited only by her military strength. That strength may at any time assert itself to an extent which has not been suspected, and the recovery of Gibraltar, or the neutralization of its value to England, is to such a nation precisely the kind of object to arouse enthusiasm and to create a new point of military departure. Moreover, even if the power of Spain were to remain as weak as it is sometimes assumed to be, nothing short of an unquestioned military advantage of primary importance should determine us to accept her certain hostility, in the event of a war with a Mediterranean power. The cession or exchange of Gibraltar may at any time become a political question of the first order, and its aspects should be studied in advance; while the comparative advantages of Ceuta call for careful consideration. At least, it is to be hoped that the retention of the place may not ignorantly be deemed a test of patriotism, as was the idle abuse of Russia a few years ago. The moral aspects of the question have been carefully avoided. It is sufficient to note that, while Nature seems to have decided that Gibraltar should belong to Spain, it may prove, strangely enough, that modern artillery will vindicate her decision.—London Spectator.

The Story of an Elopement.

Talking of elopements, Paris society is greatly exercised at the present moment on account of the elopement of a Northern Prince with a young and beautiful Italian Contessa, under the age of sixteen, whose father is an officer of high rank, and whose duties take him a great deal away from home. The fugitives left Florence at night and proceeded to Paris, where they took up their quarters at one of the best hotels in the Champs Elysee, and were soon surrounded by an army of milliners, jewelers and the rest of their crew. However, as soon as the hotel bill was presented the Prince was unable to meet it, and as, in addition to this, he had lost heavily at the tables, he had recourse to the device of ordering some very costly jewels from an unsuspecting tradesman, which he sold on the same day for about one-half their price. This happened to come to the ears of the jeweler, who at once communicated with the police, and as complaints had reached them from other quarters, his highness was at once arrested.

The Commissary, who went to the hotel for this purpose, was met there by a colleague in plain clothes sent from the Italian Embassy, together with the mother of the fair Contessa, who had followed her erring daughter all the way from Italy. To everybody's surprise the Prince was released after a few hours' detention, the mother of the girl having, it is rumored, paid all the claims against him in order to avoid the scandal which a public expose might entail.—London Life.

—The stage, near Santa Barbara, Cal., went over a bank the other day, falling two hundred feet. The driver and passengers jumped from the stage when they saw the horses were unmanageable and escaped. The horses were killed.

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

—The Paris correspondent of the London Times receives £2,500 a year.

—A mother and her four children were killed by one flash of lightning in Saxony recently.

—Rosa Bonheur, in the sixty-first year of her age, paints incessantly and still dresses in male attire.

—The Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin, who recently died, was a pious prince, and built many churches.

—Melih Sarkissoff shot his brother in the streets of Tiflis. A Commissary of Police, curiously bearing the same name as the fratricide, decapitated the assassin with a single blow.

—There was recently in London "the pretty spectacle of the performance of the young ladies' string band, which took place, under the lead of Lady Folkestone, in the Princes' Hall."

—Two sub-lieutenants in the "Queen's Navee" were recently dismissed from the service for swearing with a "big, big D." There were no other charges against them, but they had been duly warned.

—The parents of fifteen Chinese ladies in Canton had arranged for a wholesale marriage of their daughters on a certain feast day. The girls didn't like their prospective husbands, and went in a body to the river and drowned themselves on the eve of the feast.

—An English paper says of Mrs. Cady Stanton's address at a female suffrage meeting in London, "Mrs. Cady Stanton made what one may suppose to be the speech of the evening, but it was couched in too transatlantically high a key for ordinary Englishmen and Englishwomen, and made less impression than less eloquent and more practical arguments."

—Prof. Welckers, of Halle, announces that the body resting in the Welmar mausoleum is not really that of Schiller. This he professes to have proved by comparing the skull with the cast of the poet's face taken immediately after his death; and he intends to ask permission to make excavations in Schiller's original burying-place, in search of his real remains.

—The London Crystal Palace is in decay. The great building, still a marvel of construction and convenience, still singularly impressive and curious, can not much longer hold its place among the sights and wonders of the city. It has never paid since it was bought to be used as a place for popular entertainment. The company has the structure and vast grounds upon its hands like a white elephant.

—The opera-going portion of the Swedish population must be exceedingly honest, for a visitor to a Gothenburg Opera-house says that every one hung up his hat and coat in the lobby, without apparently any watchful eye over them. No tickets were given, and those who chose to take fresh air or anything else between the acts, passed in and out without return checks or any heed being paid to their movements, and this in a house packed by 1,800 persons.

Turanian Courtships.

Courting is a matter which must be treated of very cautiously and only in the abstract, notwithstanding Sydney Smith's strictures on the damsel whom he overheard in an Edinburg ball-room. The youth in love is looked upon by his friends as a fool, and to be avoided like a man with the small-pox or an Irishman with views on the Land act. His rhapsodies make the Benedick smile, or shudder, and the ungalled bachelor yawn. In the East it is different.

It is a matter of common knowledge that pretty well all over India marriages are arranged for the young persons by their parents, sometimes before the victims have got beyond toddling about naked and making mud-pies. No very enthusiastic passion is to be expected of young couples thus contracted to one another. The young male always appears at a disadvantage in affairs of the heart, but it is a thousand times more embarrassing for him when these soft things have to be addressed to the fair one in the presence of three or four other girls and a companion or two of his own, all of them presumably bored, and therefore viciously critical. But we have nothing to do with the actual agencies of the martyrs to such a style of love-making. The proceedings which go before the interview are a more public matter, and eminently calculated to exasperate testy neighbors.

Courting in Burmah is all done at night. Burmese houses are all on piles, and never more than one story high. As a general rule there are only two or three rooms altogether, and there are, therefore, but two courses open to the elders. They must either go out and wander about while the courting goes on, or they must go to bed. The former alternative does not commend itself to the mother, who likes to superintend operations for herself through a convenient slit in the bamboo walls; and going off to bed as it were at word of command is only compatable with a most mild and yielding disposition in the father. Consequently when the girl is arrayed for conquest—flowers twined in her hair, fragrant cosmetics on her cheek and neck, and her finger-nails delicately tinted—it is not always possible to summon the ardent youth forthwith. He is outside, dressed in his smartest and with a couple of companions bent possibly on the same errand as himself, but he is obliged to stay there till he gets the signal that the coast is clear and that he may come up. Every youth has his own private signal by means of which he announces to his lady-love his arrival in the street. This is almost invariably effected by means of a fiddle with two strings. It is a sad fact that Young Burmah is a lamentable failure on the fiddle. Each youth must have his own particular call, that the lady may know who it is that is coming, and not be imposed upon by mischievous jokers or roving, irresponsible gallants. Paganini is said to have played bewitchingly on one string. The Burman is successful only in producing horrible sounds on two. There is a great lack of inventiveness in these courting calls. One youth confines himself to the downstroke, and drones away monotonously, but with great staying power. When at last the happy man receives his summons there is peace again for a time, only, however, to be interrupted in something less than an hour, when, the sweet nothings having all been said as best they can be before an unsympathetic audience, the young men issue forth to go to some other girl's house, where another of the party is interested. And so it goes on until it is too late to make further rounds, and a relieved neighborhood sighs with delight.

Lightness of color combined with plumpness of figure forms the Turanian idea of feminine charms. Old courting customs are found among the Talaings also, and may frequently be observed in Maulmein, and somewhat less commonly in Rangoon. The Talaing maiden does not admit her lover into the room with her. That is a freedom which she considers a little less shocking than the custom of the West. He has to creep between the posts on which the house is supported, and hold sweet converse through the chinks of the bamboo floor. There is nobody to listen to all that is said as long as the happy pair speak in sufficiently guarded whispers. No malicious friends can hint at the maiden's forwardness, or freeze by their looks the ardent emotions of the young man into platitudes. The duration of the interview is not so long as that granted to the Burman, but, considering the circumstances, it is probable that more actual courting business can be got through in the time. The Talaing lover does not use a fiddle unless he is pressing his suit with a Burmese girl, and even then he frequently holds by his own national custom. He whistles. When, therefore, the Talaing falls in love he may at once be detected by the assiduous way in which he practices whistling at furtive moments during the day. He never attains to excellence, and often, at the end of a long courtship, makes wild slips and puffs in ungraceful and jerky fashion before he gets to the sounding point. It is, of course, very nearly quite dark, and she may be imposed upon by a bold adventurer who simulates the favored man, and comes up the moment the neckerchief is dangled through the chinks of the door as a signal to announce that the coast is clear. Accordingly, the visitor is required to put his hand through between the interstices of the bamboo floor. The girl recognizes her lover's hand, and if it is all right, and she is inclined to favor his suit, she takes hold of it, and thus, hand in hand, they unfold their hearts to one another. But, if it is a strange hand, or if she is inclined to be coquettish, she clips his finger with a pair of betel-nippers, and tales are told of overenergetic damsels who have actually nipped a man's finger-joint off with that formidable instrument. Courting on these terms is rather perilous work, and the ladies have gallant gay Lotharios very completely under their control.—Exchange.

Rotterdam.

Rotterdam, with the exception of the church of St. Lawrence, of the construction of which Washington Irving gave a comic sketch in his "Knickerbocker," is in some respects one of the most prosaic cities in the world. Hood hit it off happily enough when he called it a kind of vulgar Venice, though, like Venice, its commerce and commercial arrangements have been indefinitely developed since Hood's days. But, vulgar or not, there is much that is picturesque about it, as any one must admit who has admired the studies of its streets and canals by the most eminent of the Dutch masters on the walls of the picture galleries. It is not everywhere that you can see a fairly-sized East Indiaman berthed full in front of the mansion of its owner, so that the skipper leaning over the quarter-rails can deliver a parcel on the doorstep. Then the visitor can study original fashions of existence in the lives of the crews of those cargo boats on the canals, which are in some sort a survival of the comfortable old treykschuyt. The boat is generally occupied by the master and his mate and his wife, with a family more or less numerous. The cooking goes forward in the half-decked caboose, and you can watch all the other details of the domestic arrangements. Nor is due attention to the graces and adornments of life by any means neglected, although the man in command seems the very embodiment of the prosaic, in voluminous undergarments which emerge from the tobacco smoke that invariably envelops his upper person. There is pretty sure to be a hanging garden on the stern, with the gayest flowers that may be blooming in the season; and the skipper of each canal craft is as enthusiastic a horticulturist in his way as any of the tulip-fanciers of Haarlem or Leyden. Moreover, on board as on shore, you are equally struck by the intensity of the cleanliness that has become proverbial in Holland. "Water, water everywhere," you murmur again, should you venture out for a stroll in the early morning. The housewives are splashing pailfuls of water about your legs as they are dashing them against the speckless doors and windows. Each brazen knocker glistens like burnished gold, brought to the extremity of polish by an excess of hand friction; while the very buckles on the harness of the dog teams in the milk-barrows sparkle to each gleam of the watery sunshine.—Saturday Review.

Small Wastage on a Large Amount of Work.

The annual settlement of accounts of the Philadelphia Mint for the last fiscal year closed July 6. Representatives of the Treasury Department by weighing up enormous amounts of gold and silver on hand arrived at the actual loss in the operations of the institution for the period named. The result of the examination discloses the fact that the wastage of gold and silver in the operations of last year were the smallest on the amount of bullion operated upon in the history of the Mint. The total amount of gold bullion operated upon during the past year was 2,210,944.82 ounces, equal to seventy-six tons. The total amount of silver operated upon was 45,591,338.72 ounces, equal to 1,563 tons. The gold coinage for the year consisted of 415,486.56 ounces, equal to fourteen tons, the value being $7,729,982.50. The number of gold pieces struck and issued was 941,680. The total silver coinage issued weighed 10,551,908.88 ounces, equal to 362 tons, value $12,325,470.15. The number of pieces of silver coined was 18,798,076. The total minor coins issued weighed 7,315,135.30 ounces, equal to 251 tons, value $1,428,307.16. The number of minor coins was 60,951,526.

The legal wastage allowed by law on the gold operated on during the year was $32,018.33. The actual wastage was $20.77, showing the wastage on gold to be $31,997.56 less than the legal allowance. The legal wastage on the silver allowed by law was 57,293.5 ounces, equal to $57,293.05, at $1 an ounce. The actual wastage on silver worked was 809.23 ounces, equal to $809.23, or $56,483.82 less than the legal allowance. In other words, the actual wastage at the Mint upon the operations on the precious metals was $830.12, while the legal allowance was $89,311.38.—Scientific American.

—Kate Field says: "The way women travel with miserable little dogs fills me with amazement. Men don't; and when I think of the pampering these creatures get, and what a nuisance they are to travelers, and how the same amount of care bestowed upon children would result in untold benefit to mankind, I become cynical. The affection wasted upon poodles would, if properly distributed, supply all poor orphans with homes."

HOME AND FARM.

—The Germantown (Pa.) Telegraph says it is a help to keeping cisterns pure to have the supply-pipe run to the bottom of the cistern.

—Spiced plums are delicious. To eight pounds of plums allow four of sugar, one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and cloves, one small cup of vinegar. Cook until they are as thick as jelly.—Exchange.

—In removing hay from the field, says an Eastern exchange, that portion known as rakings should be allowed to remain, for two reasons—one is that it will not pay for gathering it up; the other, that it does pay, and twice over, in being scattered over the field and acting as a mulch to the exposed roots of the stubble.

—A Pennsylvania farmer says that his system of "fence farming" is to farm all middle fences out. As the New York law for the protection of farmers' fields and hockets against stock depredations is wanting in Pennsylvania, road fences have still to be maintained; but it is a great saving to dispense with the interior fencing.

—The fruit-grower who rubs off the "suckers" or little sprouts which have started on the limbs of fruit trees will save himself a good deal of work next winter or spring. A simple brushing of the hand over a limb will often remove scores of these sprouts now, which would need the use of knife or saw at the end of the year.—N. Y. Examiner.

—Stewed Mushrooms: Slice the mushrooms into halves. Stew ten minutes in a little butter seasoned with pepper and salt and a very little water. Drain; put the mushrooms into a pie dish; break enough eggs to cover them over the top; pepper, salt and scatter bits of butter over them, stew with bread crumbs and bake until the eggs are set. Serve in the dish.—Boston Transcript.

—Great care should be taken in seeding with clover to leave no gaps, for such will inevitably be covered with weeds, a worse than useless waste of ground. It is a good plan to top the seed a trifle and then sow crosswise, to make sure that all is evenly distributed. A peck per acre, sown four quarts each way, gives a good stand.—Chicago Times.

—As early as the time of Alexander II. of Scotland a man who let weeds go to seed on a farm was declared to be the king's enemy. In Denmark farmers are compelled to destroy all weeds on their premises. In France a man may prosecute his neighbor for damages who permits weeds to go to seed which may endanger neighboring lands.

—Baked Turnips: Pare and cook until nearly tender in salted boiling water; drain and lay in a baking dish and pour over them a sauce made as follows: Two large tablespoonfuls of butter and two heaping tablespoonfuls of flour stirred together in a skillet; when thoroughly heated and mixed add a teacupful of milk, stirring it in gradually with a little pepper and salt. Add little bits of broken butter over the tops of the turnips. When you have poured on the sauce bake in a brick oven twenty minutes.—Cincinnati Times.

Advance in Agriculture.

But few readers or farmers are aware of the advance in agriculture in the past fifty years, or within the recollection of many of the older citizens. Fifty years ago the only means of cutting the grain harvest was the hand sickle, and of cutting hay the hand scythe. The grain was threshed with a flail, and the hay raked with a hand rake. Grain was cleaned by letting it fall and the wind blowing out the chaff, or by making wind with a sheet—those who lived in those days recollect it without explanation. Plows were mostly wood, the coulter, shire and bar only being iron. The moldboard was wood exclusively. At that day farming was conducted by muscular power. There were no agricultural newspapers to stir up the mind to advance and improve.

Nor was the absence of improved agricultural implements the only hindrance to prosperous husbandry. There was virtually no attention paid to the improvement of stock. The cattle, horses, hogs or sheep were a mixture brought together from different counties. There was no more attention paid to better stock than there is now in the improvement of the human race. Nor was there any particular age at which steers or hogs could be prepared for market. They grew slowly and fattened indifferently, and had to be kept and fed until they could be sold. They were small and commanded a less price.

Fruits of all kinds were far inferior to the present. Nearly all of the orchards of apple, pear or peach were of the natural fruit. If grafting was known it was practiced by but few. The varieties of grafted fruit even in the best orchards or nurseries were but few. In the smaller fruits the same was the case. None but the wild strawberry were cultivated. If, however, they did not have such large ones as the present, they were rich, luscious and highly flavored, or our appetite was better then than now. There were no improved raspberries or strawberries.

Nor has the advance been solely in stock and fruits, but in vegetables there has been a wonderful change for the better. Potatoes, squashes, tomatoes, beans, peas, melons, and all other classes of garden vegetables have been so improved that if the kind which were raised fifty years ago were offered in the market now they could not be sold at any price. It seems almost incredible that the world in all the past ages previous to fifty years ago made so little efforts at improving anything intended for human food, or the implements for producing them.

When the writer first performed labor on the farm, there was a continual strain on the physical powers of the farmer. And in the house, whether on the farm or in town, the females of the family (and mainly the wife) had to card, spin, weave and make the clothing with which to keep the whole family warm or respectable.

And there are needed improvements yet to be made, and great inventions to be accomplished. There are laurels to be won, and riches to be accumulated in the future, by those who will by mental and moral energy solve the great problems of the world's further advancement.—Iowa Register.

—A man at East Dougherty, Ga., has a front tooth which he plugged with lead with his own hands over thirty years ago. He used an awl to clean out the cavity, and packed the lead in with the same instrument, after beating it out as thin as possible on an anvil. The tooth is in a good state of preservation, and is likely to last as long as the man.—Chicago Times.

—An enormous spider's web seen recently in Franconia Valley, N. H., was of the geometrical kind, stretched between two trees. The guys or supports were fifteen feet long, while the web was three feet in circumference.

Confederate Bonds.

A broker who has purchased large amounts of the Confederate bonds furnishes this explanation of the apparent European lunacy on this subject: "The reports of the Treasury Agents of the United States some time after the close of the Rebellion showed that there was deposited in the Bank of England and in banks of France, Holland and Belgium $11,000,000 belonging to the Confederate Government, the proceeds of the sale of cotton. This money was pledged to pay the interest on the Confederate loan. The January interest of 1865 was paid, and money was set apart to pay the coupons for the July interest when the Rebellion collapsed. The European syndicate of bankers is seeking to obtain all the Confederate bonds for the purpose only of collectin the July, 1865, coupons, with accumulated interest resulting from non-payment. The talk about attempting to boycott the Southern States, or to collect the principal of the bonds, or any interest-coupons after that month (July, 1865,) is shere nonsense. But this syndicate has good legal advice that the money set apart for a specific purpose—namely: the payment of the July coupons, must be paid on the presentation of that coupon, and if you will inquire you will observe that all the orders to brokers to purchase the Confederate bonds specify that they must contain the July coupon and must not be mutilated. A bond presented without the July coupon would not be purchased, and that is all there is in the Confederate bond story. The European syndicate intends to secure, if it can, these $11,000,000 to the credit of the Confederate States Government in European banks, and it proposes to do this in the only way that it possibly can, if it can do it in that way, by presenting these coupons for payment. If the syndicate does not succeed, the European banks will be $11,000,000 ahead, as there is no doubt that that amount of cash to the credit of the Confederate States is deposited there. It is a fact that the report presented to the Treasury Department some time after as to the Confederate assets in Europe contained the item of $11,000,000 cash.—Washington Special.

—In a Hungarian village church thieves stole the sacramental wine, and in its place poured ink. The trick was not discovered until the priest took a swallow of the liquid during service.

—Near Salinas City, Cal., recently, a swarm of bees attacked a team of horses attached to a freight wagon and stung one of the horses to death. The driver and his remaining horse escaped.

Startling Debility,

both Nervous and General, Lack of Self-confidence and Will Power, Impaired Memory, Despondency, Weak Back, and kindred affections, are common results of youthful follies and pernicious practices. Means of unfailing and perfect cure are suggested in large illustrated treatise, sent for three letter postage stamps. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

WATER is the boss summer drink, but don't give it away to the milkman.—Chicago Inter Ocean.

Could Hardly Stand on Her Feet.

R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I must tell you what your medicine has done for me. Before taking your "Favorite Prescription" I could hardly stand on my feet, but, by following your advice, I am perfectly cured. The "Favorite Prescription" is a wonderful medicine for debilitated and nervous females. I can not express how thankful I am to you for your advice. Yours truly,

MRS. CORNELIA ALLISON, Peosta, Ia.

AN American artist has succeeded in drawing a breath as natural as life.

HAY-FEVER. After trying in vain for eleven years to cure my Hay-Fever, I purchased a bottle of Ely's Cream Balm, which entirely relieved me. B. W. HARRIS, Letter Carrier, Newark, N. J.

WHAT kind of blasting-powder is used to explode an idea?

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, August 17, 1883.

LIVE STOCK—Cattle—common	$2 00	@ 3 00
Choice butchers	4 25	@ 4 50
HOGS—Common	4 35	@ 4 85
Good packers	4 90	@ 5 35
SHEEP	4 15	@ 4 75
FLOUR—Family	4 40	@ 4 45
GRAIN—Wheat—Long berry red	1 11	@ 1 12
No. 2 winter red	1 08	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	52½	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed	29½	@
Rye—No. 2	60½	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	10 50	@11 50
HEMP—Double dressed	8½	@
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	14 25	@14 50
Lard—Steam	8	@ 8¼
BUTTER—Fancy Dairy	14	@ 15
Prime Creamery	15	@ 20
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per bur. from store	1 15	@ 1 25
Apples, prime, per barrel	2 25	@ 3 00
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 00	@ 4 25
Good to choice	4 50	@ 7 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 18¼	@
No. 1 white	1 16	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	61½	@
Oats—mixed	37	@ 40
PORK—Mess	14 50	@15 00
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$4 50	@ 4 25
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 00¼	@
Corn—No. 2	51¼	@
Oats—No. 2	26¾	@
Rye	61	@ 61½
PORK—Mess	12 15	@12 20
LARD—Steam	8 20	@
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 25	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 17¾	@ 1 17¾
Corn—mixed	61	@ 62
Oats—mixed	37	@ 41
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	16 00	@16 25
Lard—Refined	10¼	@
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—A No. 1	$4 50	@ 4 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red, new	1 04	@
Corn—mixed	51	@
Oats—mixed	30	@
PORK—MESS	14 50	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 red, new	$1 05½	@
CORN—mixed	48	@
OATS—mixed	26	@
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	2 75	@ 4 50
Shipping cattle	5 25	@ 6 50

Mischievous Malaria.

To say that malaria is mischievous is to put it very mildly. It is all that and more. It is cunning, deceitful, treacherous, sly, and underhanded. It does its work in the dark, and in such a sly way that much of the mischief is done before it is discovered. It saps the foundations of a healthy system. It robs the blood of its vitality, demoralizes the liver, confounds the stomach, and makes the victim wish he were in his grave. It is sad to see people sit down in their misery, content to be the victims of mischievous malaria, and thinking that nothing can be done for them. The power of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS over the mischiefs of malaria has been so amply proved that there is no reason why anybody who can procure a bottle of this Prince of Tonics shall suffer. Great is the power of malaria, and great are its disastrous effects. But greater far is the beneficent influence of BROWN'S IRON BITTERS. The preparation of iron in this favorite family remedy can be taken without ruining the teeth or producing constipation and headache. 1

"Their Occupation Gone."

R. V. PIERCE, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.: I was attacked with congestion of the lungs, soreness over the liver, severe pain in the joints, a burning fever, and general giving way of the whole system. Failing to find relief in remedies prescribed, I tried your "Golden Medical Discovery." It effected my entire cure. Your medicines have only to be used to be appreciated. If every family would give them a trial, nine-tenths of the doctors would, like Othello, find their occupation gone. Yours truly, L. B. McMILLAN, M. D., Breesport, N. Y.

"COME in out of dat hot sun, you Lafayette! De fust ting you know you'll be burnt as brack as de nigger de next doah!"

FOR twenty years I was a sufferer during the summer months with Hay-Fever. I procured a bottle of Ely's Cream Balm, and was cured before it was used. CHARLOTTE PARKER, Waverly, N. Y. Price 50c.

"WHAT did you say your friend is, Tommy?" "A taxidermist." "What's that?" "Why, he's a sort of animal upholsterer."—N. Y. Advertiser.

SPARTA, TENN.—Dr. W. B. Cummings says: "I am strongly convinced of the efficacy of Brown's Iron Bitters and recommend them."

A LAUGHING "stock"—The collar of our great granddaddies.—N. Y. Advertiser.

A FULL feeling after meals, dyspepsia, heart-burn and general ill-health relieved by Brown's Iron Bitters.

A LITTLE knoll-edge is a dangerous thing in turning a sharp corner with a heavy load.

LEWISVILLE, IND.—Rev. J. S. Cain says: "I used Brown's Iron Bitters for nervous prostration and found it entirely satisfactory."

A MAN who breaks his word—The stutterer.—N. Y. Advertiser.

Wells' "Rough on Corns." 15c. Ask for it. Complete, permanent cure. Corns, bunions.

INVENTORS' HAND-BOOK—FREE.—Just out. How great fortunes have been made. History of inventions; valuable to all who read and think. Order it by postal card. N. W. Fitzgerald, Solicitor, Washington, D. C.

Skinny Men. "Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia.

Glenn's Sulphur Soap.

Purifies the skin. Use instead of unwholesome cosmetics. Hill's Hair and Whisker Dye, 50c.

Don't Die in the House. "Rough on Rats," clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs. 15c.

STRAIGHTEN your old boots and shoes with Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffener, and wear them again. Sold by shoe and hardware dealers.

FOR sore feet, swollen joints, sprains, corns or bunions, use St. Patrick's Salve.

SAVE trouble and expense in washing and always have nice fitting collars and cuffs by wearing Chrolithion.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer

Is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which Sulphur, Sugar of Lead and Nitrate of Silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. JOHN D. PARK & SONS, Wholesale Agents, Cincinnati, Ohio, and C. N. CRITTENTON, New York.

Flies, roaches, ants, bed-bugs, rats, mice, crows, cleared out by "Rough on Rats," 15c.

WOULD not be without Redding's Russia Salve, is the verdict of all who use it. Price 25c.

Stinging, irritation, all Kidney and Bladder Complaints, cured by "Buchu-Paiba." $1.

IF afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 25c.

RAILROAD EMPLOYES.

The leading business men of Providence, R. I., compose the Hunt's Remedy Co., and they guarantee all testimonials published by them to be genuine. The following, dated May 4, 1883, from Mr. W. H. Blanchard, Lowell, Mass., is but one of the thousand remarkable cures that are being made by this wonderful medicine. Mr. Blanchard says: "I have been greatly troubled for over six years with acute kidney disease, with severe pain in my back and hips. I was formerly employed on the Boston and Lowell Railroad, but was obliged, owing to the constant jar, to give up the railroad business, as many others have been obliged to do, on account of kidney disease. I have tried many medicines, but received no permanent relief. A friend recommended me to use Hunt's Remedy. I purchased a bottle of one of our druggists in Lowell, and commenced to improve at once, and after using two bottles I was entirely free from all pain, and consider myself cured, and I cheerfully recommend this wonderful medicine, Hunt's Remedy, to all the sufferers from kidney and liver disease."

AT LIBERTY.

For a number of years I was afflicted with kidney and gravel disease, and suffered with pains in my limbs and back at times so severely that it seemed that I could not endure it. I used several so-called cures recommended for these diseases, but they did me no good. A friend of mine that had used Hunt's Remedy, and pronounced it the best in use, urged me to try it, and I purchased a bottle at George E. Hall's drug store in Manchester, and before I had used one bottle I began to feel much better, the pains in the bladder and kidneys were reduced a good deal, and after using five bottles I found that Hunt's Remedy had done all that it was recommended to do. It had removed all the pain, my appetite improved, and I gained several pounds in a few weeks. I have renewed vigor and strength for one of my years (64), and I can only thank the proprietors of Hunt's Remedy for my good health of to-day, and you are at liberty to publish this, that it may be the means of some one being cured by the use of your truly wonderful remedy. W. H. TERRILL.

GOFFSTOWN, N. H., May 7, 1883.

80 Sheets fine writing paper in Blotter Tablet, with calendar, 25 cts., by mail. Agents wanted. Economy Printing Co., Newburyport, Mass.

OPIUM and WHISKY HABITS cured at home without pain. Book of particulars sent free. B. M. WOOLLEY, M. D., Atlanta, Ga.

$65 A MONTH and BOARD for three live Young Men or Ladies, in each county. Address P. W. ZIEGLER & Co., Philadelphia.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD

And will completely change the blood in the entire system in three months. Any person who will take ONE PILL EACH NIGHT FROM ONE TO TWELVE WEEKS, may be restored to sound health, if such a thing be possible. For curing Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. Physicians use them in their practice. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. Send for pamphlet. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

AN OPEN SECRET AMONG THE LADIES

The brilliant, fascinating tints of Complexion for which ladies strive are chiefly artificial, and all who will take the trouble may secure them. These roseate, bewitching hues follow the use of Hagan's Magnolia Balm—a delicate, harmless and always reliable article. Sold by all druggists.

The Magnolia Balm conceals every blemish, removes Sallowness, Tan, Redness, Eruptions, all evidences of excitement and every imperfection.

Its effects are immediate and so natural that no human being can detect its application.

Thousands Hastened to Their Graves!

Relying on testimonials written in vivid glowing language of some miraculous cures made by some largely puffed up doctor or patent medicine has hastened thousands to their graves; believing in their almost insane faith that the same miracle will be performed on them, and that these testimonials make the cures, while the so called medicine is all the time hastening them to their graves. We have avoided publishing testimonials, as they do not make the cures, although we have

THOUSANDS UPON THOUSANDS of them, of the most wonderful cures, voluntarily sent us. It is our medicine, Hop Bitters, that makes the cures. It has never failed and never can. We will give reference to any one for any disease similar to their own if desired, or will refer to any neighbor, as there is not a neighborhood in the known world but can show its cures by Hop Bitters.

A LOSING JOKE.

A prominent physician of Pittsburgh jokingly said to a lady patient who was complaining of her continued ill health, and of his inability to cure her, "Try Hop Bitters!" The lady took it in earnest and used the Bitters, from which she obtained permanent health. She now laughs at the doctor for his joke, but he is not so well pleased with it, as it cost him a good patient.

FEES OF DOCTORS.

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in. We believe the schedule for visits is $3.00, which would tax a man confined to his bed for a year, and in need of a daily visit, over $1,000 a year for medical attendance alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1,000 and all the year's sickness.

A LADY'S WISH.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend. "How?" inquired the first lady. "By using Hop Bitters that makes pure, rich blood and blooming health. It did it for me, as you observe."

GIVEN UP BY THE DOCTORS.

"Is it possible that Mr. Godfrey is up and at work, and cured by so simple a remedy?"

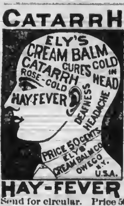
"I assure you it is true that he is entirely cured, and with nothing but Hop Bitters, and only ten days ago his doctors gave him up and said he must die, from Kidney and liver trouble!"

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED

STOMACH BITTERS

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, by increasing vital power, and rendering the physical functions regular and active, keeps the system in good working order, and protects it against disease. For constipation, dyspepsia and liver complaint, nervousness, kidney and rheumatic ailments, it is invaluable, and it affords a sure defense against malarial fevers, besides removing all traces of such disease from the system. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

CATARRH ELY'S CREAM BALM



HAY-FEVER

when applied by the finger into the nostrils, will be absorbed, effectually cleansing the head of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membrane of the nasal passages from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores taste and smell. A few applications relieve. A thorough treatment will positively cure. Agreeable to use. Send for circular. Price 50 cents by mail or at druggists. Ely Brothers, Owego, N. Y.

Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass TARE BEAM, JONES, HE PAYS THE FREIGHT. Sold on trial. Warranted 5 years. All sizes as low. For free book, address JONES OF BINGHAMTON, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

Grocers and Dealers —IN— TEA AND COFFEE.

Send for Wholesale Price List of our goods. Lowest possible prices. GREAT LONDON TEA CO., 801 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

WILKINSON RUBBER TARGET GUN.

Graves' Patent. The genuine and best. Shoots arrows, bullets and shot. Sends bullets 1,000 feet. Don't kick. Shoots straight. Gun, with 5 steel pointed arrows, shot and bullet attachment, delivered free on receipt of one dollar. Send for price list of Scroll Saws, Bicycles, Fishing Tackle, Hammocks, &c. THE JOHN WILKINSON CO., 78, 80 and 82 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE to sell the best Family Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit a pair of stockings with HEEL and TOE complete in twenty minutes. It will also knit a great variety of fancy-work for which there is always a ready market. Send for circular and terms to the Twombly Knitting Machine Co., 163 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION. .25 100

PILES "Anakesis" gives instant relief, and is an infallible cure for Piles. Price $1 from druggists, or sent prepaid by mail. Samples free. Ad. "ANAKESIS," Makers, Box 2416, New York.

FREE! BY RETURN MAIL—A full description of Moody's New Tailor System of Dress Cutting. D. W. Moody & Co., 31 W. 9th, Cincinnati, O.

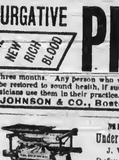
$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

RUBBER STAMPS, with your name 30 cents; scrap pictures, 15c a sheet, Cards, Type, Etc. Agents Wanted. List free. THALMAN M'F'G Co., Baltimore, Md.

AGENTS make money selling our Family Medicines: no capital required. STANDARD CURE Co., 197 Pearl St., New York.

Sure Cure for Epilepsy or Fits in 24 hours. Free to poor. DR. KRUSE, 2844 Arsenal St., St. Louis, Mo.

AGENTS Coin Money by selling Dr. Chase's Family Physician and Second Receipt Book. $2. Address A. W. HAMILTON & CO., Ann Arbor, Mich.



MILL STONES, Under & Upper Runner Mills J. W. Pyne's Purifier, Dufour & Co's Bolting Cloth, BELTING, SHAFTING, PULLEYS and GEARING. Wheat Cleaning Machinery of all makes. We can furnish anything needed by millers. Send for descriptive catalogue. Address plainly, THOS. BRADFORD & CO., 174, 176 and 178 W Second St., Cincinnati, O.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Me.

EDUCATIONAL.

COLLEGE OF PHYSICIANS and SURGEONS, BALTIMORE, MD.

The practical advantages of this school are unsurpassed. Clinics held at City Hospital, Maternite and Maryland Woman's Hospital, all of which belong to this school. Physiological and Chemical Laboratory Work required of every Student. Apply for a catalogue to DR. THOMAS OPIE, Dean, 39 North Carey Street.

Young Men learn TELEGRAPHY here and we will give you a situation. Circulars free. VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

COLLEGE PHYSICIANS & SURGEONS, CHICAGO. Elegant building. Experienced Faculty. Low fees. For catalogue address D. K. STEELE, M. D., 1801 State St.

ADRIAN COLLEGE, Adrian, Mich. Five Schools. Term opens Sept. 14. Add. D. S. STEPHENS, Pres't.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KY., WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 29, 1883. NUMBER 44.

THE GLORIOUS DAYS OF COLD.

I remember, I remember,
My boyhood's blizzard blight;
The broken window where the snow
Came drifting in at night.
It came whene'er the fire was out.
When ma had gone away;
But now I wish that icy night
Would come again to stay.

I remember, I remember,
The noses red and white,
The frozen ears that tingled so—
Oh! what a cooling sight!
The show-house that my brother built,
And where I used to lie
Until my bones were quite congealed—
Oh, would it now were nigh!

I remember, I remember,
Where I was wont to skate;
The pond was smooth as glist'ning glass
Whereon I broke my pate.
My buoyant spirit, then so light,
Is hot and heavy now,
And summer's pool can no more cool
The fever on my brow.

I remember, I remember,
The cold and icy church;
I used to think the minister
Would freeze fast to his perch.
Those frigid days have passed away,
And now 'tis little joy
To feel that I'm much nearer heat,
Than when I was a boy.

—N. Y. Morning Journal.

◆

COUSIN TOM'S WEDDING.

It was to be in the church, with music and flowers, and my brother Claude and I were to walk up the middle aisle and lead the procession.

"Now you must both put on your best behavior," said mother, after we had worried ourselves into our new clothes on the all-important night; then she kissed us just as if we'd been going to bed, and sent us off to the church an hour before the time.

We found the sexton just opening the doors, and he let us go round with him while he lighted up, and then I proposed that we should stand outside and watch the people come.

"I wonder if Cousin Tom feels nervous," said Claude, as we walked down the steps under the awning. "I shouldn't think he would, though, for you know doctors— But I say, Bert, what's the matter down the street there? See all that crowd? Let's run and find out."

"Come on," I cried; "I'll beat you there," and forgetting all about our good clothes and "best behavior," we both started off down the block.

"Oh, somebody's been run over, or something!" I exclaimed, as I won the race and found a lot of people bending over the form of a man lying on the grass in front of the Baptist Church.

We both stood still for a minute, and I was trying to listen to what a gentleman next to me was telling a policeman, when Claude pulled me by the sleeve and whispered that it might be the very case Cousin Tom, who had just graduated at the Medical School, was waiting for.

"Let's tell him all about it!" I cried. "Quick, before they get somebody else;" and then we both tore off to his lodgings, around the corner, and pulled the bell as if the house was afire.

I tell you, the girl came to the door in a hurry, and without waiting for her to announce us we bolted up-stairs to Cousin Tom's room, and rushed in to find him just putting on his white satin neck-tie.

"Oh, do come quick!" we both fairly shouted. "Such a—"

"Why, boys, what's the matter?" he exclaimed, making a muddle of his cravat. "Has Alice fainted, or the dress-maker forgotten to send her dress home, or what?"

"No, no," cried Claude, "There's a man hurt, and an awful crowd, and—"

"Quick, how far from here?" interrupted Cousin Tom, leaving the two ends of his tie hanging, and snatching his pea-jacket. "I can spare just twenty minutes."

"Why, it's only around the corner, in front of the Baptist Church," I replied, dancing around the room in great excitement; and then we all three raced off.

"Where is he, boys?" cried Cousin Tom, and Claude pointed inside the railing that ran in front of the church, and against which, strange to say, nobody was leaning.

Then, not waiting to hunt up the gate, our cousin, who was a great strapping fellow, shouldered his way through the crowd, and without paying any attention to the efforts some of the people made to hold him back, he placed his hands on the top rail of the fence to vault over.

The next instant he gave a spring backward instead of forward, and fell against Claude, who, of course fell against me, and we all three went down one after another like a row of bricks, while the people set up such a yell that you might have thought they had all turned into wild Indians on the war-path. Being boys, and quite used to hard knocks, neither Claude nor I was hurt, and we sprang up as lively as ever when Cousin Tom was lifted off of us. But there was not much spring about him, and we were awfully frightened when we found that he couldn't even speak.

Then they explained the whole thing to us, which was something like this: there was an electric light in front of the store next the church, and in some way the stuff—the electric fluid or whatever it is—had got off the track, or the wires, and run into the fence, and so whoever touched it got a most tremendous shock. That was what was the matter with the man inside, and the crowd had tried to warn Cousin Tom, but he was too excited about getting an interesting case to listen.

"Oh, if he's killed, it's all our fault for telling him about it!" moaned Claude.

"And he was going to be married in half an hour," I added, despairingly. "And Miss Lord'll be in the church waiting for him, and when he don't come she may have a fit or something, and oh, Claude, how can we tell her?"

By this time they had picked Cousin Tom up and carried him into a drug store a few doors off. They told as he was only stunned, and would probably be able to sit up in the course of half an hour. As he hadn't lived in town a week yet, nobody in the crowd knew who he was, and so the burden of carrying the dreadful knews to the wedding party fell upon Claude and me.

"It's five minutes to eight now," announced my brother, nervously, as having left word with the druggist that we would soon be back with friends and a carriage, we hurried off to the Episcopal Church. "Cousin Tom was to be in the vestry by this time, and, oh my! won't it be awful to have Miss Lord walk up the aisle on her father's arm, and then find nobody to marry her?"

"But, Claude," I proposed, a bright idea suddenly striking me, "if we can only get to the church soon enough to see her drive up, we can tell her then, and have the coachman keep right on to the drug store."

"The very thing!" cried Claude. "Let's run for it."

And run we did, but, alas! arrived at the church just in time to see the bride's carriage drive away from the awning—empty.

We could hear the organ playing and the people whispering that the procession would soon begin to move toward the altar.

"Oh, why don't they make sure Cousin Tom's here first?" I exclaimed, in a whisper.

"Perhaps they will," returned Claude. "At any rate they ought to wait for us to lead off; but, stop, I've got a plan, and though it's a kind of desperate one, it 'll save Miss Lord having a scene before everybody. I'll—" and he spoke the rest very softly in my ear.

"Why, Claude, dare you?" I cried, under my breath. "And do you know how to do it?"

"Yes, I noticed the place when we were in here with the sexton. Now do you think you can get up close to Miss Lord before I count twenty slowly?"

I nodded and hurried into the church, leaving Claude to take up his station in a dark corner of the vestibule. The procession was evidently waiting for us, and as fast as I could I squeezed a way through the crowd to take my place in front of the bride. She smiled when she caught sight of me, and put out her hand. Then just as I took it every light in the church went out, and I knew Claude had succeeded in his plan of turning off the gas.

"Don't be frightened, Miss Lord," I whispered, still keeping hold of her hand, "but come out with me to the carriage, because Cousin Tom's hurt, but not very bad, only he can't stand up long enough to be married yet, and — But I'll take you to him right away."

Well, she didn't scream nor say she was going to faint, but just held on to my hand tight, and let me lead her out in the dark. We found Claude on the sidewalk, holding the door of the carriage open; and ordering the coachman (who looked as if he thought we were eloping with the bride) to drive to the drug store. We all three got in, and were off before the people in the church had a chance to think of anything else but the darkness into which they had so suddenly been plunged.

"But—but did the electric fluid put out the lights in church?" asked Miss Lord, after we had explained to her about Cousin Tom's shock.

"Oh no; I turned off the gas," said Claude, promptly. "Don't you think it was a good way to keep people from staring at you and gossiping when they found the groom didn't come?"

"Yes, I see now, and I am sure I am very much obliged for your thoughtfulness; but what will papa and mamma think has become of me?"

"That's so!" I exclaimed. "We forgot all about that part of it. Stop the carriage, and I'll run back;" which I did, and found the church lighted up again, a bigger crowd than ever inside, and Mr. and Mrs. Lord rushing about in every direction in search of their daughter.

I was a little frightened at first, but remembering how much the bride had been spared by our plan, I walked boldly up to the "distracted parents," and began to explain the whole thing. This took some time, but I told the story as quick as I could, and I had scarcely finished when back came the carriage with Cousin Tom and Miss Lord both in it.

I jumped as if I had seen a ghost, and indeed Tom looked like one, but declared that he was every bit strong enough to go through with the ceremony. Miss Lord was already in her mother's arms, and I was awfully afraid we'd have a scene, after all, but luckily everybody thought it was because the gas had gone out, and in ten minutes they were safely married, and nobody out of the family the wiser.—Harper's Young People.

◆

Poetry of the Railroad.

But if you wish a spectacle of surpassing picturesqueness, take post upon a railroad, at a safe distance from the track, of a dark night, about the time a train is expected to arrive. First you hear a low thunder reverberating among distant hills; anon a bright point of light appears, like a star on the drapery of evening. It grows with astonishing rapidity, and now it glares like the fierce red eye of a monstrous demon, becomes larger, redder, fiercer every moment, while the roar of the engine it heralds becomes more appalling and voluminous as it approaches. An earthquake—a wirlwind—a shower of fire—and the train is passed. If there be not more poetry in this than in an old night-coach, with its dim lamps, drowsy driver, piled-up baggage-rack, snoring passengers and weary cattle, then we give up our point. To us a railway train is a relization of the wildest fancies of eastern romances, the fireman an Afrite, the conductor a magician, the brakeman attendant genii.—Boston Globe.

◆

—Felix, the man-milliner rival of Worth, made twenty-five visiting dresses, twenty-five ball dresses, twenty morning and five o'clock dresses and undresses too numerous to count, for Miss Murphy, the California heiress, who recently married Lord Wolseley, in England.

◆

—During a heavy thunder-storm at Taunton, Mass., the other morning lightning struck the house occupied by Peter Fitzpatrick, running on a wire clothes-line attached to the corner of the house, doing considerable damage and stunning Mrs. Fitzpatrick.

◆

—A one-legged man of Talbot County, Georgia, is attracting much attention at Augusta, Ga., by his performances on one foot. He walks a wire rope, dances jigs and hops a mile in thirteen minutes.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—The goat is in danger of losing his main article of diet. A new industry is the collection of tin cans for melting into window weights.

—Dr. Freize, a Brazilian physician, has discovered in the blood of yellow-fever patients a minute parasite which, he believes, is the cause of yellow fever.

—A stock company has been formed in Schuyler, Neb., with a capital stock of $10,000, for the purpose of manufacturing syrup from the amber sugar-cane.—Chicago Tribune.

—A gentleman living in Florida has patented a process for making sugar and syrup from cassava, and, after experiment, writes that he has no doubt cassava cultivation will, in a few years, be the most profitable employment of the people in that State.—Chicago Journal.

—A San Francisco inventor claims to have constructed a life-saving raft capable of accommodating 500 passengers. It is 108 feet long and twenty-eight feet wide when inflated, yet can be stowed away under the bulwarks of a vessel, occupying a space only three feet wide, three feet high and twenty-eight feet long.

—Miss Ada Parker is a girl of eighteen who lives on a cotton plantation two miles from Monroe, La. For the last four years she has had exclusive charge of the place, upon which her widowed mother, sister and two younger brothers reside, supporting them all by her own industry. She is her own overseer, supervising all work done in person.—N. Y. Sun.

—Hay grown west of the Mississippi is fed in Charleston, after having been carried 2,000 miles. It has not been many years since the idea of profitably carrying so bulky a product one-fifth of that distance would have been laughed at. Since that time freights for long distances have been much reduced, and farmers have learned how to put their hay and straw in much better shape for shipment.—Chicago Herald.

—"Mr. Serrell, of New York," says the Philadelphia Press, "has received the gold medal of the Lyons (France) Academy for his invention for the automatic reeling of silk by electricity. Mr. Serrell went to Lyons some years ago and won the confidence of the great capitalists there, getting them to accept his labor-saving machinery, which will work much the same revolution that was accomplished by the cotton-gin. The fortunate inventor is still a young man, and his friends believe he has an extraordinary career before him."

—A second electric boat has been launched upon the Thames. It is forty-six feet long and can carry fifty passengers. Its motive force lies concealed in seventy boxes, each of one horse power stored under the floor of the boat, and at the end there is a Siemens dynamo, the spindle of which is continued so as to form the screw, without intermediate gearing. A speed of nine miles an hour can be maintained for six or seven hours, when the secondary batteries have to be replenished. There is no noise, or heat, or smoke, or smell, or waste, and the machinery takes up so little room that practically the entire boat is available for passenger accommodations.

◆

PITH AND POINT.

—The report comes from New York that the dudes are taking to drinking absinthe. Sh! don't say a word: absinthe is said to be fatal in three years.—Rochester (N. Y.) Express.

—A Boston school girl can not be made to speak of overalls. She prefers to call them super-ounces. Now let some of those wild Western sheets again sneer at our culture, if they dare!—Boston Transcript.

—A man who paid a plumber $500 for putting the water on every floor of his house, said when the kitchen chimney caught fire the engine company did the same job without charging him a cent.—Chicago Times.

—An enthusiastic country exchange remarks: "The hills and valleys are carpeted with the verdant growing crops." A neat idea. The carpet, strictly speaking, is of the ingrain variety.—Pittsburgh Telegraph.

—Ice-cream is now made from kaolin, a white clay, sweetened with glucose and flavored with chemicals, and yet, notwithstanding all this extra trouble, it is sold at the same price as the old-fashioned kind.—Philadelphia News.

—"My case is just here," said a citizen to a lawyer. "The plaintiff will swear that I hit him. I will swear that I did not. Now what can you lawyers make out of that if we go to trial?" "A hundred dollars easy," was the reply.—N. Y. Independent.

—"A Word and a Blow!"—First Gent (Celt): "Ye met 'm at me brother's, the mimber, I think?" Second Gent (Saxon): "Yes, but I haven't any favorable impression of him—'n factum—he struck me as a liar." First Gent: "Did he, thin? I hope ye hit 'm back, sur!"—Punch.

—A conundrum constructor, whose name is unknown to fame, has found out by experience the difference between a sweetheart and a wife is almost akin to the difference between a gold-headed cane and a wart on your nose. You carry the one around with you because you like to and the other because you've got to.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

—A schoolmistress of Yreka, Cal., while on her way to school was attacked by an infuriated steer. "She seized the animal by the horns and held him until help came." The next day she saw a rat in the school-room, when she hastily gathered her skirts about her, jumped up on a desk, and yelled murder. A rat has no horns for a woman to grab hold of.—Norristown Herald.

—An ambitious Burlington woman ordered a new poke bonnet: "Make the bonnet as big as the price." In about a week a hay wagon, having scared all the street cars off the track on its way, halted and drew up in front of her house with a thing on it so much bigger than the block that the woman couldn't keep it in town without paying storage to the city.—Burlington Hawkeye.

Our Young Folks.

HE COULDN'T SAY "NO!"

O, it was sad and it was strange!
He just was full of knowledge,
His studies swept the whole broad range
Of High-school and of College;
He read in Greek and Latin, too,
Loud Sanscrit he could utter;
But one small thing he couldn't do
That comes as pat to me and you
As eating bread and butter:
He couldn't say "No!" He couldn't say "No!"
I'm sorry to say it was really so!
He'd diddle and dawdle, and stutter, but oh!
When it came to the point he could never say "No!"

Geometry he knew by rote,
Like any Harvard Proctor;
He'd sing a fugue out, note by note;
Knew Physics like a Doctor;
He spoke in German and in French;
Knew each Hotanic table;
But one small word, that you'll agree;
Comes pat enough to you and me,
To speak he was not able:
For he couldn't say "No!" He couldn't say "No!"
'Tis dreadful, of course, but 'twas really so!
He'd diddle, and dawdle, and stutter, but oh!
When it came to the point he could never say "No!"

And he could fence, and swim, and float,
And use the gloves with ease, too,
Could play base-ball, and row a boat,
And hang on a trapeze, too;
His temper was beyond rebuke,
And nothing made him lose it;
His strength was something quite superb,
But what's the use of having nerve
If one can never use it?
He couldn't say "No!" He couldn't say "No!"
If one asked him to come, if one asked him to go,
He'd diddle, and dawdle, and stutter, but oh!
When it came to the point he could never say "No!"

When he was but a little lad,
In life's small ways progressing,
He fell into this habit bad
Of always acquiescing;
'Twas such an amiable trait,
To friend as well as stranger,
That half unconsciously at last
The custom held him hard and fast
Before he knew the danger,
And he couldn't say "No!" He couldn't say "No!"
To his prospects, you see, 'twas a terrible blow.
He'd diddle, and dawdle, and stutter, but oh!
When it came to the point he could never say "No!"

And so for all his weary days
The best of chances failed him;
He lived in strange and troublous ways,
And never knew what ailed him;
He'd go to skate where ice was thin;
He'd join in deeds unlawful;
He'd lend his name to worthless notes,
He'd speculate in stocks and oats;
'Twas positively awful!
For he couldn't say "No!" He couldn't say "No!"
He would veer like a weather-cock turning so slow;
He'd diddle, and dawdle, and stutter, but oh!
When it came to the point he could never say "No!"

Then, boys and girls who hear my song,
Pray heed its theme alarming;
Be good, be wise, be kind, be strong—
These traits are always charming;
But all your learning, all your skill
With well-trained brain and muscle,
Might just as well be left alone,
If you can't cultivate backbone
To help you in life's tussle,
And learn to say "No!" Yes, learn to say "No!"
Or you'll fall from the heights to the rapids below!
You may waver, and falter, and tremble, but oh!
When your conscience requires it, be sure and shout "No!"

—Wide Awake.

◆

GRANDMA THOMPSON'S WONDERFUL DREAM.

The new kittens lay upon an old coat on top of a barrel of shavings in the woodshed. There were six of them—perfect beauties; two all black, two black and white, one of no particular color and one lively little tiger-cat, black and gray with yellow stripes.

"Well," said Grandma Thompson, when she had admired them duly, "we will keep one. I think this one is the prettiest," and grandma touched the little tiger-cat with her forefinger; "but you may choose, Mary. Silas will drown the others in the mill-pond."

"Oh!" Mary looked at Grandma Thompson with a vague idea that she had turned into a monster, like the wolf in "Red Riding-Hood," but as grandma's face wore its usual peaceful aspect, instead of "O grandma! what a big mouth you've got." Mary ventured to say: "O grandma! why can't we keep them all! Poor, poor little things!"

Grandma Thompson laughed one of her funny laughs. First she tossed her head to one side and half shut her eyes, so that you would not have thought that she was going to laugh at all, then came a little scream, another pause, and at last such a jolly "ha! ha! ha! ha-a-a-a!" that all the merriment of her soul seemed to be coming out in little bubbles.

"O Mary! seven cats in one house! It's enough to distract a person to think of it. Why, their noise would drive me wild, and besides, they would eat us out of house and home."

"But poor Tabby'll miss them so!" pleaded Mary.

"Pooh!" said grandma, contemptuously, "she won't care: she can't count, you know, and if she has one left, it will be all the same to her," and Grandma Thompson waddled off into the house to take her afternoon nap.

Grandma Thompson lay down upon the wide lounge—it had to be wide, for grandma was so fat that she reminded one of the pictures of Santa Claus—and little Mary sat down upon a hassock, with a box of gaudy-colored paper and a pair of scissors, to cut "paper-hash" for the doll's breakfast.

Pretty soon grandma began to toss and moan in her sleep, and to wave her arms wildly. Mary, who had been taught what she must do when grandma did that, went and patted her gently, saying:

"Wake up, grandma! wake up! It's only a bad dream."

But it seemed to take grandma a long time to wake up. Even when she had so far roused herself as to sit up, she still kept her eyes shut and moaned. But when she really was fairly awake, she laughed until the tears rolled down her fat cheeks.

"O Mary, Mary, child!" said grandma, "I have had such a dream!"

Mary brought her hassock and sat down at grandma's feet, to prepare for the treat which awaited her, for Grandma Thompson, who was a great dreamer, loved dearly to tell her dreams, and Mary, who was the only one in the house who liked to hear them, thought they were as good as fairy-tales.

"I dreamed," began grandma, "that we were all in India. At least, the boys were; I'm sure I don't know where I was." Grandma Thompson stopped to wipe her glasses, for her seven sons, two of whom slept beneath the daisies on the hillside, while the rest were in foreign lands, were still "the boys" to her, though they were brown and bearded men.

"I saw them all, Mary," said grandma, impressively, "sitting around a camp-fire. I tried to get to them, but the jungle was so thick that I could not. I called them, but they only said: 'The wind is rising;' and once, when I broke a dry twig, they said: 'There is a wild beast near.' Oh, it all seemed so real!"

Grandma stopped to laugh again, though I do not believe that the tears which she wiped away were entirely caused by her laughter.

"And then," she continued, "I heard a terrible roar, and looking around—what do you suppose I saw? It was Tabby and all the kittens, but they had all turned into ferocious tigers, and were crouching, just ready to spring upon the boys—my boys," said grandma, with a little quiver in her voice, though she laughed at the idea.

"But, Mary, what do you suppose Tabby did? She lifted up one paw, and pointed right at your father, and she said—oh dear, it just kills me to think of it!—she said: 'There! I think that one is the prettiest; we'll save him, but kill all the others. All spring now when I do.' Yes, Mary, Tabby really did say that. But that blessed little tiger-cat, Mary, she looked up into her mother's face, just as you did into mine, and said, oh so pityingly: 'O mammy, let's save them all!' But Tabby said: 'Seven boys in one house! Why, it's enough to distract a person to think of it; their noise would drive one wild; and, besides, they would eat us out of house and home.'

"Why, Tabby must have understood every word that I said," said Grandma Thompson, as eagerly as if she were telling a real incident, "she repeated my very words almost."

Then Grandma Thompson recollected herself, and she and Mary laughed in concert. "And the little tiger-cat, Mary, she said: 'But the poor mother'll miss them so!' and, Mary, did you ever hear of such a thing? Tabby turned right around and looked at me and said: 'Pooh! she won't care; she can't count, and if she has one left, it will be all the same to her.' Oh, the idea of such a thing as a mother having to count to know whether she has all her children or not!

"Well, Mary," said Grandma Thompson, after a long and solemn pause, during which her indignation seemed to be struggling with her amusement. "I can't have seven cats in the house, really I can't; but I'll keep two—the little tiger and one other. But I am sure, I shall never think again that a mother doesn't know whether she has lost any of her children or not, because she can't count them."—Kate Lawrence, in Youth's Companion.

◆

How Jessie Helped Mamma.

Tinkle, tinkle, tinkle! That was the telephone bell. Mamma dropped Neddy and her sewing, and ran down-stairs.

"Halloo! Is that you, papa?"—"Yes—of course, all right"—"Good bye," said mamma; then she rang off, and went up-stairs again.

"Papa has just sent word that Aunt Kate and Uncle Joe are in town; and will be here at dinner," she said to Lucy. "The cook is sick in bed, and I must make a cake to eat with the frozen custard. Jessie can go down stairs with me, and you must take care of Neddy until I come back."

"All right, mamma, said Lucy, "but I wish I could help you make the cake."

"Some other time, Lucy; but to-day help mamma by keeping Neddy out of mischief."

"Me help mamma make cake to-day," said Jessie, "me and my dolly."

Then they went into the kitchen. Mamma put her two little helpers in a high chair, and then got the things ready for the cake.

"One cup of sugar, four eggs, a cup of butter, three cups of flour," said mamma, as she put them on the table, "and two spoonfuls of baking powder stirred into the flour."

Just then the milkman came, and mamma ran to get the dish for him. The box of baking-powder stood by the snowy heap of flour within Jessie's reach.

"I s'pect I must help mamma," she said.

Mamma came back soon, stirred up the cake, poured it into the pan, and popped it into the oven.

"Uncle Joe always likes cake, and I think that will be a nice one, don't you, Jessie?" giving the dear little girl a kiss on the tip of her floury nose.

"I think so, too, mamma, 'cause I helped."

Pretty soon mamma opened the oven door. What in the world was the matter with the cake? Up! up! It was going, over the top of the pan, higher, higher, until it dropped down an ran all over the bottom of the oven. Mamma was used to Jessie's ways of helping; so she only groaned, and shut the oven door. Then she looked into the baking-powder box. It was empty! Jessie had put half a pint of baking-powder into three cups of flour!

No wonder the cake tried to climb out of the oven. It was too late to make another. Mamma told Uncle Joe about it. He laughed so hard that Lucy thought he would choke. Then he said: "If you will come and be my cook, Jessie, I'll give you three dollars a week." But Jessie shook her curly head, and said: "I can't, 'cause I have to help mamma."—Our Little Ones.

—As an illustration of the extent to which the practice of duelling is spreading in Germany, it may be mentioned that an advocate not long ago challenged the presiding Judge of a Court at Bromberg on account of some observation officially made by the latter in the course of a trial.

◆

—A new law of Missouri allows nobody to practice medicine unless holding a diploma from a medical college of recognized standing. This statute applies also to dentists and bone setters. Dealers in patent medicines are required to take out a special license.—St. Louis Republican.

◆

—It is announced that W. H. H. Murray is to publish a book on Texas, and two volumes of Adirondack stories.

Religious.

"THY WILL BE DONE."

"Thy will be done!" O simple little words!
And yet so hard for us to truly say—
To bow unquestioning before Thy will,
And meekly bear the burdens of To-day.
Pity our weakness, O Most Holy Son,
And teach our murmuring lips to say:
"Thy will be done!"

"Thy will be done!" See where the widow mourns,
As o'er her dead companion sad tears fall!
Alone she stands—her heart's dear comrade gone,
Nor answers to her wild, despairing call.
O dry your eyes, poor mourner! Think for him
Has risen up Eternity's glad sun!
O, may He help your stricken soul to say:
"Thy will be done!"

"Thy will be done!" The mother sobbing stands
Beside the coffin of her cherished one—
The baby snatched from off her loving breast
Before his little life had scarce begun.
Beside her, Lord, in pitying kindness stand,
And hold her hand, Most Gracious Holy One!
Thou know'st how hard for her poor lips to say:
"Thy will be done!"

"Thy will be done!" O how we need Thy help
To say those words with humble, trustful heart—
To bow before Thy will in everything,
As in this weary world we take our part.
Thou know'st our weakness, and how prone to stray,
Rebellious, leaving all Thy work undone;
Yet, Lord, forgive, and help us all to say:
"Thy will be done!"

—Chicago Tribune.

◆

SYSTEMATIC BIBLE STUDY.

There perhaps never was a time when the Bible, as a book, was so much in men's thoughts as is the case at present. The fact is a remarkable one, considering how old a book the Bible is, and considering how few writings of the ancient world have even survived to the present hour. In the measure of this interest, too, the Bible stands alone. There are ancient writings which are of great interest still to scholars, and which still to a certain extent inspire and guide the thought of the world; but even when these writings are translated and put within reach of those conversant only with their own language, they do not take a place in popular literature, least of all do they become household books. It is remarkable that the Bible, not only in respect to its great antiquity, but in respect, also, to its hold on the common mind, and its power to move, to interest, to sway, to teach all sorts of men, is even more to-day than it has ever before been, the Book.

One part of this wide interest is due, unquestionably, to the interest of those critical questions which have been raised touching certain portions of this book, or collection of books, and to the bearing these have upon vital matters of religion. The adversary overreaches himself when by instigations of hostile criticism he thus makes more conspicuous the remarkable character of the literature contained in the Bible. As those who in places of worship "came to scoff" sometimes "remain to pray," so it may happen, and we believe does happen, that men drawn to read or study the Bible by the excitement of current controversy find, much to their astonishment, what a book the Bible after all is. But meantime there are important interests of truth at stake, and it is still a question of much moment how dangerous attacks may best be met, and how, for students of this book, right views of it may best be secured.

The attention of the writer of this article has recently, by some experiences of his own, been led to a view of this subject which he begs to lay before his reader. Mentioning the same matter to an eminent Christian scholar a few days since, he was gratified to learn that other men, whose example is entitled to far more weight than his own, not only have the same convictions as to methods of Bible study, but have for years acted upon them. The point in question was suggested and impressed by the occasion which arose, in what way need not be mentioned, for an expository examination of one of the most difficult Biblical books, leading to an almost daily study of it, verse by verse, for more than three years. It was a first experience in this line, after many years of such random study, with its imperfect results, as is usual, alike with ministers and with laymen. The result in the present case was to some extent a surprise, and in all respects a matter of joy and thankfulness. A book of the Bible which, as read or more closely examined in the usual method, had always seemed hopelessly mysterious, and commentaries upon which had been consulted in vain, began, little by little, to reveal its great and wonderful secret. The connection of the thought, the idea of the book began to disclose itself. The clue to its chief difficulties was in the hand almost before such a result had been thought of as possible. Its outlook upon the past, present and future of God's infinite kingdom, its interpretations of the vast perplexities of human history, its rich and gladdening revealings of Divine purpose, its personal comfort, its inspiration to a larger faith, a higher life and a more self-forgetting devotion—all these, as coming along in the process of daily study often unlooked for, always most welcome, made the three years given to this verse-by-verse study of that one book the most remarkable period of any in what now begins to seem like a long life. The practical inference in the case described is that the sort of Bible study which is alone sure of answering the highest ends of such is that which, in a right and true meaning of the word, is study.

We have the names, recently given to us, of eminent men with whom this method, or something equivalent to it, has been habitual for years. Some of these are men widely known for their soundness in doctrine, their ability to cope with hostile criticism, the spiritual unction alike of their preaching and of their published writings. They know the Bible, not simply by what it is upon its surface, or by appreciative study of specially interesting portions, but they know it in its unity, in the scope of its teachings, in the vital connection between its several books however widely differing in date and authorship, however, to a superficial view apparently unrelated in subject or substance to other books or to the Bible as a whole. They have reached the heart of the Bible as a revelation, and have had their own heart brought in daily contact with it. They may be said to understand the book so far as finite can compass infinite. Their faith in it is steady under any manner of attack, and they are "able to give a reason of the" faith "that is in them to every man that asketh."

If we mistake not, this method of study is after the manner of those who aforetime lived so truly "by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." It is fairly open to question, we think, whether in one direction, at least, Sunday-school teaching has not been of doubtful tendency; and whether the present international lesson method, with all its admitted advantages, does not encourage that tendency. Doubtless the Sunday-school makes study of the Scriptures an occupation for thousands and thousands who might never be drawn to it in any other way, and a far greater proportion, in any community, than was ever the case in times preceding the institution of this valuable means of religious knowledge. But those who did study the Bible in those older days knew the whole of it as is rarely the case now. It is not uncommon for those who have for years been scholars in the Sunday-school to be utterly at a loss when questioned upon any point, however simple, history, biography, or what not, apart from such portions of the book as have been studied in the "lessons." The tendency alluded to is toward this fragmentary method, as the only one ever adopted, with its fragmentary result as the only good ever realized. When those who know the Bible only in this way are confronted by some question of hostile criticism, they are at a stand. They know only here and there a portion of this great book, and even this perhaps so imperfectly that, having no answer provided, even where the answer is such as a fairly instructed Bible student might find ready at hand, they are thrown into perplexities, perhaps into disbelief.

Of course, it is not to be expected that every Bible student will pursue his work as if writing a commentary. Not even every minister can do this. Yet surely something of the careful expositor's way of work may be adopted by the minister, in his private study and in his preaching, while he may, as regards his people, press them with the truth that to know something about a few detached passages of the Bible is not to know the Bible. He can also urge them with the evident fact that whether or not systematic study, of the kind hinted at, be always practicable for them, systematic reading of the Bible always may be.—Chicago Interior.

◆

Toleration.

It is very hard for us all to see alike. We have been differently educated. We have had a wide diversity of experience in our Christian warfare. Some have enjoyed the calm repose of a professor's chair; some have contended, as for dear life, against the godless host that is finding its home on the hitherto unoccupied lands of the Republic. Some have settled in the quiet and restful parishes of the older States; others have carried the Gospel to the heathen, and without losing hold of the doctrines of sin and salvation, have been drawn toward those among whom they have labored with a tenderness and affection to which the church at large is almost a stranger. How can we look for complete uniformity of opinion from those who have had or are having such a variety of experience! Why should the pastor whose chiefest anxiety is to persuade his hearers to become Christians, be blamed if he preaches few doctrinal sermons, or the professor of theology if, in his class-room he insists upon the thorough mastery of the system he is set to teach? Can not both do their work without jealousy of the other? The preacher may be somewhat loose in his theological definitions; if he succeeds in presenting the Gospel so that men accept it and live in accordance with its precepts, can not we trust the grace of God to destroy the error, and give efficacy to the truth?

So great is the difference in mental habit, and in the demands which different fields make upon pastors, that it is not strange if certain doctrines and certain methods are made prominent at the expense of others. Can we not tolerate differences in each other?

Have we no place for the evangelist or the teacher in contrast with the pastor; for the literary preacher in contrast with the theological; for the man whose sympathy is with the new rather than with the old? May not these "diversities of gifts" be of the "same Spirit?" May not the Master have need of them? It is not enough if the aim be the same? We need union, concentration of effort. There were never such opportunities for Christian usefulness as to-day. We never were in greater danger of letting them slip. Shall we divide our forces in the face of the enemy? Why seek for an impossible unanimity in doctrinal belief? Why not be satisfied, as we have been for the most part for many years, with a substantial agreement upon the great verities, and cure our infirmities, and get rid of our jealousies, if we have any, in earnest work for men!

It is easy to misunderstand and misrepresent. People in regard to whom there is some little suspicion, are not always correctly reported. No man of power ever gives more than a partial representation of himself on any single occasion. Yet words which have a definite aim and a legitimate place at the time of their utterance are often made the ground of charges hard to bear, and injurious to the cause of truth. Shall we not be tolerant of each other's deficiencies, and bid God-speed even to those who think that their mission is in the discerning or the setting forth of new phases of divine truth, as well as to those who know that they have been called to stand in the old paths, and therein find rest for their souls?—Chicago Advance.

◆

—Nothing is easier than to doubt. A man of moderate ability and learning can doubt more than the wisest men believe. Christianity is a matter of intelligent faith, but infidelity requires no one to give a reason for the doubt that is in him.—Exchange.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. AUG. 29. 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
1 "	½ "	40
1 "	¼ "	20
½ "	1 "	20
¼ "	1 "	10
¼ "	½ "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices over 20 lines free; over that number (except the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.
Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

TODAY is Cincinnati day at the Lexington Fair.

SCARCITY of water in the river is interfering with navigation.

OUR advice to the next legislature to adjourn so soon as it has elected all the offices it is required to elect.

A SHIPMENT of 180 Percheon stallions arrived in New York the other day. It was the largest shipment of stallions ever shipped from Europe.

OUR postmaster informs us that at the next letting of the mail on the Erlanger and Burlington route the department proposes giving Burlington two mails a day. We say amen to it.

THE colored brethren of the State, known as Christians or Deciples, will locate the Bible College at Mt. Sterling. The business of the college will be to educate young men for the ministry.

HOGGISH—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $5 10@5 30; fair to good packers, at $4 50@5 10; fair to good light, $5 50@5 75; common, $4 00@4 70; culls, $3 00@4 00: stock hogs, $4 25@5 25.

HON. J. PROCTOR KNOTT will be inaugurated Governor on Tuesday, September 4th, the constitution providing that the Governor-elect shall enter upon the discharge of his duties on the fifth Tuesday succeeding the day of his election.

COL. STODDARD JOHNSTON says: "That our Common School System is an excellent one, and with but few defects, and those easily remedied. The fault lies with the people themselves and their failure to do the part which is essential to success.

WE will have to admit to Bro. Cobb, of the Aurora Independent, that his boys can beat ours playing ball; but when it comes to riding for that $136 premium at the Aurora Fair, we are satisfied that some of Boone's fair daughters will win it. We have great faith in our ladies accomplishing anything they undertake.

THE Falmouth Democrat finds the following indictment: "The stay-at-home Democrats are responsible for the fact that the Sixth District will only be represented in State Conventions by fifty-five votes. The following is the apportionment of delegates: Kenton 10, Campbell 11, Pendleton 8, Trimble 5 Grant 6, Boone 7, Carroll 5, and Gallatin 3.

THE Teachers' Institute which met here yesterday is of interest to every citizen of the county, and especially is it of interest to those who have children to educate and, by attending it parents will, to some extent, be benefited by becoming acquainted with the qualifications of those to whom they will entrust the business of instructing their children which is one thing in which they should exercise great care.

IT has been several years since this particular locality was in as dire need of rain as at present. The corn and tobacco crops are, and have been for several weeks, in need of wet weather, and now the prospects for fall pastures are not at all flattering, and unless a good rain visits us in a few days the farmers may expect to have to commence feeding their stock early in the fall. To say the least, the crop outlook hereabout is not flattering to the farmers.

PROF. GALLAGER will commence a ten months school in the Morgan Academy at this place next Monday. We understand that he has met with considerable encouragement in soliciting patronage, and will endeavor to establish himself here. We have often laid before our readers the great benefits to be derived from maintaining a good school at this place, and we hope that Mr. Gallager will be given a fair trial in his undertaking to build up a school in the Academy. His terms will be found elsewhere in this impression.

IN his address before the Teachers' Institute at Carrollton, Col. J. Stoddard Johnston gives this bit of information among other interesting facts referred to in his address:

"The school statistics in other States show that the system is most flourishing—not where the per capita from the State is largest, but where each district contributes the most. While the State per capita in Kentucky is $1 40, in Massachusetts it is but forty-five cents, but the sum contributed by the districts and raised by local taxation amounts to $14 23 per child. In New York the State per capita is only $1 78, while that of the district is $4 94. In Pennsylvania the State per capita is seventy-three cents, and in the district $5 14. In Illinois the State is $1 58 and the district $5 67, and so on, but in all where the common school system is successful the State contribution is merely an incident, while the principal of the schools comes from local taxation."

COL. J. STODDARD JOHNSTON, in his recent address before the Carroll County Teachers' Institute, said he had "found a number of cases in which School Trustees could not sign their names and had to make their mark." This is a black record for Kentucky, and true enough; but it is right to set forth such humiliating facts that intelligent public sentiment may be more thoroughly aroused to the importance of making the common school question, the living question, the fully discussed question of the day. It is of course, no marvel that, with a grossly illiterate element among the country school officers themselves, there are still in Kentucky many localities blasted with stupidity and ignorance, Are intelligent Kentuckians willing that such a condition of affairs should any longer exist?—Courier-Journal.

WHAT Gov. Knott intends to do in the way of continuing the officers or the various institutions over which he has the appointing power has become a leading question. There does not appear any necessity for changes in the Eastern Kentucky Lunatic Asylum, but the one at Anchorage evidently needs a severe overhauling. The management of that institution has been guilty of various faults which show that a change is almost a necessity. A trial of new men will do no harm, to say the least.—Lexington Transcript.

No; but Gov. Knott will not oust Dr. Gail.

STATE NEWS.

—A Fine vein of alum water has been discovered near Lebanon Junction.

—Horse-thieves have been operating in Scott county and have secured several valuable animals.

—A jack valued at $1,200, belonging to Lew Cunningham, of Bourbon was killed by a railroad train.

—Lexington Transcript: "Man that is born of woman is of few days and full of trouble." Woman that is born of woman is in the same fix.

—Owen has 3,500 democratic votes, but in failing to turn out in full at the late election the county loses one of its thirteen delegates.

—Lexington Gazette: The farmer's heart is made glad with the copious and timely rainfall. The corn is growing without let or hindrance and the prospect is cheering.

—Mountain Echo: A boy was tried recently in Clay county for carrying a concealed weapon and acquitted upon the ground that he was too small to conceal it.

—Bourbon News: Thus far there have been 75,000 bushels of wheat sold here this year, against 100,000 last year at this time. The crop has fallen short forty per cent. in this county.

—Mr. Robert S. Lander, near Cerulean Springs, Trigg county, raised 660 bushels of beardless Mediterranean wheat from twenty acres of land being an average of thirty-three bushels per acre.

—Franklin Favorite: We have in our sanctum a corn tassel that has fifty-two ears of corn on it. It was presented to us by Mr. Ezra Offutt, of Shoeloh, who is one of the most successful farmers in Logan county.

—Danville Advocate: There is some talk again about starting a creamery at this place. Certainly if these enterprises pay such handsome dividends in the Northern States, we don't see why they should not do much better in our famous Bluegrass region.

—Richmond Register: The drouth was beginning to affect the corn in this county very seriously, when a splendid rain fell on Friday, another on Monday night, and still another on Wednesday night. With a few more rains now the crop will be equal to that of last year.

—Bourbon News: We are told by a respectable citizen of Carlisle that after the closing of the camp-meeting the bottles were gathered up Tuesday and brought to town, and that there were at least four gross of all sorts and sizes—almost enough to fill a car when loaded in.

—Nelson Record: Last Sunday one of the largest rattlesnakes ever seen in this section was killed in the front yard of Mr. Jas. Willett, near Gethsemane. It was discovered fighting a chicken, and killed. It measured five feet in length and about twenty inches around the largest part of the body.

—The Licking Valley Scorcher, in an issue since the election, has a chicken cock standing on the dead coon of the Danville Tribune, with the following exultant crow:

The Danville Tribune has lost its coon.
And I'm the bird that got him;
He left his hole a spell to soon,
And I nabbed the brute, dad drot him.

—Danville Tribune: We saw Grove Kennedy at Lancaster the other day. He is in fine health and spirits, and is received with congratulations by his many Garrard friends. To all appearance the penitentiary has left no brand upon him, socially or personally. He has promised to be good in the future, and is said to entertain the idea of selling out and leaving this part of the country.

—The Owingsville Outlook says: Mr. D. Ellis Conner has discovered a new and simple rule for ascertaining the number of feet of lumber in a log. Multiply the diameter in inches by one-half the diameter; then then multiply this product by the length of the log in feet and divide by eight. The quotient will be the number of feet in the log.

—The Farmers Home Journal, Louisville says: Farmers who intend to buy hogs to feed this fall should buy very close. Statistics show that there is considerable of the product on hand with a rather limited demand. Indeed, at the present rate of consumption the new crop will have to contend with the old. In this condition of the market there is no great encouragement to expect very high prices for hogs in November or December.

—The Woodford Sun says: We have been requested to suggest to farmers the advisability of placing their names on their front gate-posts. This would be a great convenience to all persons having business with farmers, and would save very many vexatious blunders and delays. This has already been adopted by a few who find it a great convenience. A small board or sheet of tin plainly lettered in black and white is all that is necessary.

—Richmond Register: A bully in one of the precincts of Owsley county took the polls on election day with his double-barreled shotgun, and announced that he could whip his weight in wildcats, or clean out any ten men in the county. The words had scarcely left his mouth when the crack of a gun was heard from the bushes, and the bully lay dead upon the ground. The citizens standing around pronounced it a righteous act, and no investigation of the affair was made. It served him right.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

[Courier-Journal.]

—From present indications it is probable that Galveston, Texas, will receive for the season 1882-83 about 900,000 bales of cotton, leaving every port except New Orleans in the race.

—In Wautauga county, N. C., is an apple tree fifty years old which has on it about fifty bushels of fine apples, and has nine large branches, which give rise to thirty-two branchlets, is seven and a half feet in diameter, and covers twenty-nine yards.

—Two of the best farms in Culpepper county, Va., exchanged hands recently. One of them, containing 1,300 acres, situated on the Rappahannock river, was purchased by Thomas B. Nalle for $50,000 cash; the other, containing 200 acres, near Brandy Station, was sold at $10,000 to the County Treasurer, S. Sussell Smith.

—A correspondent from Cuthbert, Ga., says: The long drouth has not broken yet in this section, and vegetation is almost extinct in many localities. As I write I see a patch of corn that bade fair five weeks ago to make at least twenty-five bushels per acre that won't make two bushels. The corn crop is a complete failure and cotton cut off fully one-half. The catterpillar is playing havoc in the counties below this; so the cotton crop in Calhoun, Earley and Baker counties will be short one-half.

Subscribe for the RECORDER.

Mother's Spinning Wheel.

Concerning One Article that was Not For Sale, and Another which is Cheap at Any Price.

"No, sir, I wouldn't sell you that for any money; that spinning-wheel was my mother's. It was one day, when she was singing like a lark and making this old wheel hum, that my father, then a young medical student, afterwards a farmer, fell in love with her—some fifty years ago."

So spoke the proprietor of a rough bit of farm land in Ulster county, N. Y., to a relic-hunter, and "mother's" spinning-wheel remained among her children and grandchildren.

"My mother," writes Rev. J. W. Phelps, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. Church, Chicago, has used PARKER'S TONIC, and wishes me to say that she has found it more effective than anything she ever used for invigorating and strengthening the system debilitated by malaria. She desires me also especially to mention the certainty with which it aids digestion and overcomes exhaustion."

Ever since the first household was established "mother's" opinion has been more potent in this world than that of judge, jurist or physician. Her hand has always cooled the fever and her voice has been filled with hope. With each day's decline. PARKER'S TONIC, is becoming more deservedly popular with the women who guard alike husband and children. It eradicates malarial poison from the blood, from which there is now such widespread suffering.

Please observe: DR. PARKER'S TONIC is not an intoxicant. It is a combination of several ingredients, of which none singly can produce anything like its effect. For Kidney, Stomach and Liver troubles, it is the standard and unfailing remedy. In two sizes: 50 cents and $1. The latter the cheaper. HISCOX & CO., Chewlats, New York

Notice.

500 stock sheep for sale. Call on the undersigned at Bullittsville Boone county, Kentucky. ALFRED S. GAINES.

Just From New York
WITH A
Full LINE of FALL SUITINGS,
—AND—
OVERCOATS.

The above stock was carefully selected, and consists of all the NEW STYLES of FALL GOODS, and you can not fail to be pleased with the Goods and Prices.

H. F. BLASE,
540 Madison St, - COVINGTON, KY.

MORGAN ACADEMY

—BURLINGTON, KY.—

This School will be opened to pupils on Monday, Sept. 3d. Tuition will be charged at the following rates, established by the Board of Trustees.

Primary Grade, per term of 20 weeks $8 00; Intermediate, $12 00; Grammar and High School, $16 00.

P. T. GALLAGHER, Principal.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE.

Boone Circuit Court, Ky.

Joseph Botts', Gur'd, Plff
vs
Joseph Botts, Deft.
Notice of sale in equity

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April term thereof, 1883, in the above cause, the undersigned will, on Monday, the 3d day of Sept, 1883, at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabout (being County Court day) proceed to offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, on a credit of 9 months at the Court-house door in the town of Burlington, the property mentioned in the judgment to wit:

Lot No. 4 in the division of Rowland Botts lands described as follows: Beginning at a stone in a line of lot No. 2, a corner of lot No. 3; thence with a line of lot No. 3, N 66¼ E 40 3-5 poles to a stone corner of lot No. 3, in a line of parcel "B" of lot "C"; thence with the line of parcel "C" N 30¼ W 30 to a stone; thence N 60 E 27 1-5 poles to a stone; thence N 28 W 10 poles to a stone in a line of Mrs. Nancy Arnold's dower; thence with said line N 31 W 16 3-5 poles to a stake James D. Willis' corner near the gate across the Bullittsville meeting-house road; thence S 70½ W 35 ⅗ poles to a stone in the road; thence S 70¼ W 35½ poles to a stone in J. D. Willis' line corner of lot No. 2, thence S 30¼ E 63 poles to the beginning, containing 22 acres.

The purchaser will be required to give bond with approved security, for the payment of the purchase money, to have the force and effect of a judgment, bearing legal interest from the day of sale, according to law. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

Bonds payable to the undersigned.

W L RIDDELL, M C B C C.

COMMISSIONER'S SALE.

Boone Circuit Court Kentucky.

Clara G Botts' Gud. Plff.
vs
Clara G Botts, Deft.
Notice of sale in equity

By virtue of a Judgment and order of sale of the Boone Circuit Court, rendered at the April Term thereof, 1883, in the above cause, the undersigned will, on Monday, the 3d day of Sept., 1883, at 1 o'clock p. m., or thereabout (being County Court day), proceed to offer for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder, on a credit of 6 & 12months, at the Court-house door, in the town of Burlington, the property mentioned in the Judgment to wit:

Lot No. 8 in the division of Rowland Botts' lands, described as follows: Beginning at a stone on the Burlington and Petersburg road, corner of lot No. 2,; thence with said road N 32½ E 13¾ poles, N 45½ E 29 poles to a stone on said road; thence N 80½ W 29¾ poles passing east of the grave yard to a stone; thence N 66½ W 40½ poles to a stone, corner of lot No. 4, in a line of lot No. 2, thence with said line S 30½ E 48 poles to the beginning, including the dwelling house, containing 9½ acres.

The purchaser will be required to give bonds with approved security, for the payment of the purchase money, to have the force and effect of a judgment, bearing legal interest from the day of sale, according to law. Bidders will be prepared to comply promptly with these terms.

Bonds payable to the undersigned.

W. L. RIDDELL, M C B C

Also at the same time and place the following lot of land will be offered, adjoining the above, containing acres and bounded east by Joseph G. Botts and Clara G. Botts', lots south by the Petersburg & Burlington road, west by T. E. Randall and north by J. D. Willis' heirs—this sale will be made on the following terms: One-half cash; the remainder due in six months, to bear interest from day of sale, with a lien reserved on the land for the deferred payment.

F. P. WALTON, Agt.
For MARY SARGANT.

NOTICE.

A dividend of 50 cents on each share of the Burlington and Florence turnpike is declared and ordered to be paid on demand by the treasurer DUDLEY ROUSE.
Aug. 11th, 1883.

NOTICE.

All persons having claims against the estate of Churchell Clore, decd., will present them properly proven as by law required. HENRY CLORE, WM. CLORE, Executors.

Strayed.

A red and white speckled heifer, two years old, will weigh about 750 pounds—left the pasture about the first of July. Any one giving information as to her whereabouts will be thankfully received.

JERRY BEEMON, Florence X-Roads.

For Sale.
70 Stands of Bees.

I will sell the entire lot at $5 per stand, or will sell 35 stands at $6 per stand. Persons buying one or two stands can get them at $10 per stand. A larger number will be sold proportionally cheaper. No honey has been taken from the brood department, and the stands are all in good order.

E. E. UTZ.

Farm for Sale!

35 acres of good rolling bottom land, 3½ miles below Aurora ferry, ½ mile from Bellevue and ¼ mile from the Ohio river, being part of the Warren Rogers farm. For particulars call on or address T. H. SUTTON, Grant P. O., Ky., or at this office. 44-2-m

ATTENTION!
Attention! Attention

If you want to buy a first-class organ
It you want to buy a first- class-
Piano. If you want to exchange your old instrument. If you want to receive their full value.
If you want an instrument of any kind If you want to exchange your old sewing machine. If you want to buy the best new sewing machine. It you want to receive a five years warrant with every purchase,
bring or send your orders to G. S. Lozier
Gen. Agent,
Lawrence-
burg,
Indiana,
Office & Sales
Room in Dr. C. G.
Walters' building, Corner Short and Tate Streets.
Send for Prices and Circulars.
All mail orders filled promptly.
A fine display of Organs, Pianos
and Sewing Machines will be on exhibition at Lawrenceburg and Aurora
Fairs. Call and examine them and leave orders.

LUMBER.

Goe. M. Bedinger & Co.,
Erlanger, - - Ky.

We keep constantly on hand all kinds of Lumber, Laths and Shingles. Also Builder's supplies of all kinds.

—Come and see Us.—
may 9-tf

GEORGETOWN COLLEGE.

GEORGETOWN, Ky.—On Cincinnati Southern R.R.

Located in the healthy and beautiful "Blue Grass" region of Kentucky, 55 session opens September 3rd, 1883. Instruction in all branches of a College education. Experienced Professor. The degree of B. S., A. B. and A. M., conferred. Useful course for those who can spend only one or two years in College. Terms low for advantages offered. For catalogue or particulars, address to R. M. DUDLEY, D. D., President.

Farm for Sale.

I am offering for sale my farm, lying 3 miles south of Burlington on the Big Bone road, containing 55½ acres, a part of the Mason Crisler farm. The land lays well and is conveniently located, the improvments are a good brick house and all necessary out buildings, and a variety of good fruit. Any person desirous of purchasing a nice farm will do well to come and examine the premises and learn terms. Title good. MRS. OSCAR CRISLER.

Farm for Sale.

A small farm of 11½ acres, on the Covington and Lexington pike, at the top of Willow Run Hill. On it are a commodious house, necessary out buildings and a good orchard. Title good. Call on W. C. Tupman, Sheriff's Office, Covington, Thomas Tupman, Kenton Heights or W. L. Riddell, Burlington.

SCIENCE HILL.
(A SCHOOL for Girls,) Established 1825
By MRS. JULIA A TEVIS,
Located at SHELBYVILLE, KENTUCKY,

Aims to give its pupils the elements of a complete education. Pretense and show are discarded and all the force of a competent faculty directed toward the essentials of Education. Terms reasonable. Send for catalogue.

W. T. POYNTER, D. D., Principal.

INJECTION
SANTINELI

Cures all recent and chronic secret diseases of the Urinary passages in both sexes. Directions in all languages. $1.00 a bottle Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of price secure from observation Fairmount Chemical Co. Cincinnati, Ohio, U. S. A. Sold by W. F. M'Kim, Burlington

LOOK HERE!
when you go to Lawrenceburg, call on
Winegardner
He has a large assortment of
Wall Paper!
And is daily receiving additions to his stock. Call and examine before purchasing.
Inks, Pens and Stationary
constantly on hand.
Headquarters in Lotton House.

Washington & Lee UNIVERSITY, Lexington, Va.

Instruction in the usual academic studies, and in the professional schools of Law and Engineering. Location healthful. Expenses moderate. Next Sept. 20. For catalogues, address "Clerk of the Faculty." G. W. LEE, President.

LAW SCHOOL OF WASHINGTON & LEE UNIVERSITY

GEN. G. W. LEE, President.

Instruction by text-book and printed lectures, with courses of lectures on special subjects by eminent jurists. Tuition and fees, $80 for session of nine months beginning Sept. 20. For catalogue and full information, address CHAS. A. GRAVES, Prof. of Law, Lexington, Va.

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.

Is prepared Raise or Move EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS On Short Notice, And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
33-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS FOR THE LIVER
And all Bilious Complaints

Safe to take, being purely vegetable; no griping. Price 25 cts. All Druggists.

INCORPORATED UNDER THE LAWS OF MISSOURI.

CENTRAL MEDICAL & SURGICAL INSTITUTE
OF ST. LOUIS, MO.

SUCCESSORS TO DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY. OFFICE & ROOMS, NO. 920 LOCUST ST.
CHAS. L. LaSANE, M.D., Pres't & Physician in Charge. NELSON CHESMAN, Treas. & Business Manager.

This Institute has ample facilities and an experienced Faculty. While it succeeds to a large business, which has been established for years, it will also to extend its medical and surgical practice, giving skillful and attentive treatment to CHRONIC DISEASES of the Head, Spine, Heart, Liver, Stomach and Bowels, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Consumption and Asthma. BLOOD IMPURITIES, inherited or caused by impure association, Scrofula, Fever Sores, Ulcers, etc. DEFORMITIES of the Limbs, Spinal Curvature, Wry-Neck, Diseases of the Joints, Piles, Fistula, Rupture, etc. WEAKNESS and wasting diseases in old and young men, also all diseases of the genito-urinary organs. FEMALE irregularities and weaknesses, causing pain in the back or side, etc. Personal interviews with patients are always preferred. Those unable to visit the Institute will be furnished with blank lists of questions that will [illegible] them in making a full statement of their cases and if not requiring a surgical operation they can be successfully treated by correspondence, and medicines sent by mail or express. To enable us to send proper list of questions applicants should give a brief statement of their trouble. The Treasurer of the corporation is of Nelson Chesman & Co., Advertising Agents, and refers to the publisher of this or any other newspaper in the United States or Canada regarding responsibility. Consultation at Office or by mail free and invited.

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.
Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.
GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.
Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.
TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

VIGOROUS HEALTH FOR MEN

THE PASTILLE CURE TRADE MARK FOR NERVOUS DEBILITY

TESTED FOR 5 YEARS by use in thousands of cases. Founded on scientific medical principles, it has been growing in favor and reputation while its numerous competitors have invariably failed. The direct application of this remedy to the seat of the disease makes its specific influence felt without delay. The natural functions of the human organism are restored. The animating elements of life which have been wasted are given back. The buoyant energy of the brain and muscular system renders the patient cheerful; he gains strength with rapidity.

NERVOUS DEBILITY, organic weakness, and numerous obscure diseases, baffling the skill of best physicians, result from youthful indiscretion, too free indulgence, and over brain work.

Do not temporize while such enemies lurk in your system. Take a remedy that has cured thousands, and does not interfere with your attention to business or cause any pain or inconvenience.

Send for a Descriptive Pamphlet giving Anatomical Illustrations, which will convince the most skeptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fitted for the duties of life, same as if never affected. Sent free to any one. Remedy sold ONLY by the

HARRIS REMEDY CO. MF'G. CHEMISTS.
306½ N. 10th St. ST. LOUIS, MO.
One Month's treatment $3. two months $5. three months $7

NAVAL Agents Wanted for Ammen's Naval & Modern BATTLES, New and graphic Pictorial History of the great Sea fights of the World. By Medical Director SHIPPEN, U. S. N. Address J. C. McCURDY & Co., 26 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard works of character; great variety; Books & Bibles low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 30 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

AYER'S Ague Cure

IS WARRANTED to cure all cases of malarial disease, such as Fever and Ague, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Bilious Fever, and Liver Complaint. In case of failure, after due trial, dealers are authorized, by our circular of July 1st, 1882, to refund the money.

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists.

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley.
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U. Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk A. G. DeJarnette, Commonwealths Attorney; N. E. Hawes, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. Ed Fowler, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday.
Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and, L. A. Loder fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

Beever—W. M. Rouse, Friday after the third Monday, and

E. E. IGOE,

Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun. Ind.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla

cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, General Debility, Catarrh, and all disorders caused by a thin and impoverished, or corrupted, condition of the blood; expelling the blood-poisons from the system, enriching and renewing the blood, and restoring its vitalizing power.

During a long period of unparalleled usefulness, AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has proven its perfect adaptation to the cure of all diseases originating in poor blood and a weakened vitality. It is a highly concentrated extract of Sarsaparilla and other blood-purifying roots, combined with Iodide of Potassium and Iron, and is the safest, most reliable, and most economical blood-purifier and blood-food that can be used.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

"AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has cured me of the Inflammatory Rheumatism, with which I have suffered for many years. W. H. MOORE."
Durham, Ia., March 2, 1882.

"Eight years ago I had an attack of Rheumatism so severe that I could not move from the bed, or dress, without help. I tried several remedies without much if any relief, until I took AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by the use of two bottles of which I was completely cured. I have not been troubled with the Rheumatism since. Have sold large quantities of your SARSAPARILLA, and it still retains its wonderful popularity. The many notable cures it has effected in this vicinity convince me that it is the best blood medicine ever offered to the public. E. F. HARRIS."
River St., Buckland, Mass., May 13, 1882.

"Last March I was so weak from general debility that I could not walk without help. Following the advice of a friend, I commenced taking AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, and before I had used three bottles I felt as well as I ever did in my life. I have been at work now for two months, and think your SARSAPARILLA the greatest blood medicine in the world. JAMES MAYNARD."
520 West 42d St., New York, July 19, 1882.

AYER'S SARSAPARILLA cures Scrofula and all Scrofulous Complaints, Erysipelas, Eczema, Ringworm, Blotches, Sores, Boils, Tumors, and Eruptions of the Skin. It clears the blood of all impurities, aids digestion, stimulates the action of the bowels, and thus restores vitality and strengthens the whole system.

PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists; price $1, six bottles, $5.

PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON
Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.
COLOGNE

Paynes' Automatic Farm Engines
OF ALL KINDS.—Established 1840.

Our 10-Horse Spark Arresting Threshing Engine has cut 10,000 feet Pine Lumber in 10 hours. Will burn wood 6 feet long, coal, Straw and corn stalks. Send for Price List and Catalogue G.
B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

$1000 REWARD
For any machine hulling and cleaning fit for market as much Clover Seed in one DAY as the VICTOR
Double Huller. It has made $100 often in ONE DAY
VICTOR ILLUSTRATED Pamphlet mailed FREE. NEWARK MACHINE CO. NEWARK, O.

W N. STAGE, Gen, Traveling Agt, Louisville. Ky

STATE COLLEGE OF KENTUCKY.

UNSECTARIAN. Fall session begins Sept. 12, 1883. Fifteen Professors and Instructors. Scientific, Classical, Agricultural, Normal School and Commercial Courses of Study. Tuition and Matriculation fees, $20 per annum. Board in dormitory, $2.25 per week; in private families, $4.50. 320 students last year. Buildings, apparatus & machinery entirely new. Capacity for 600 students. Range of study wider and expenses less than any college in Kentucky. For catalogues apply to Judge W. B. KINKEAD, or to JAMES K. PATTERSON, Ph. D., President of the College, Lexington, Ky.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST."
ENGINES, Horse Powers THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Clover Hullers
(Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

NEVER FAILS
FREE!
RELIABLE SELF-CURE.
A favorite prescription of one of the most noted and successful specialists in the U. S. (now retired) for the cure of Nervous Debility, Lost Manhood, Weakness and Decay. Sent in plain sealed envelope free. Druggists can fill it.
Address DR. WARD & CO., Louisiana. Mo.

PAYSON'S INDELIBLE INK
Is the BEST. No preparation. Used with any clean pen for marking any fabric. Popular for decorative work on linen. Received Centennial MEDAL & Diploma. Established 50 years. Sold by all Druggists, Stationers & News Agt's.

Local News.

Native watermelons have been plentiful the past two weeks.

Jumbo is calling on our town, this week, for its small change.

The Lawrenceburg Fair came near depopulating our town last Saturday.

The north end of the county emptied itself into Lawrenceburg last Saturday.

Mrs. Nancy Snyder, one of our pioneer citizens, has been very sick for some time.

Rev. Bacon occupied the pulpit in the Universalist church at this place last Sunday.

The North Bend Association begins with the Bullittsburg Church next Wednesday.

Some of the early cutting of tobacco will be cured enough to strip by the time the last is cut.

There were three applicants for certificates before the board of school examiners last Saturday.

Dr. Isaac Wilson, of Quincy, Illinois, was at the association, last week, renewing old acquaintance.

We need expect but little more hot weather, and there has not been an excess of hot weather anyway this year.

The reservoir which was to be constructed just west of town has gone the way of many other great undertakings of its kind.

There was a large attendance at the Old Baptist Association last week. Several ministers from a distance preached during the meeting.

Ed Rice was in town the other day. It now takes two buggies for him to travel in. In one he hauls a cable with which to hitch his horse.

The Boones have played seven games and won five, which is a good average; besides, being beaten by the Standards is no discredit to the boys.

The rain that fell here last week did some good, but the quantity of water was far short of that needed. Cisterns were replenished none to speak of.

Everett Walton was made happy last Friday by the advent of a fine daughter. Everett now has a nice little family to take West to grow up with the country.

The trial of C. B. Clarkson, indicted for horsestealing, was set for Monday in the Nicholasville Circuit court. Several witnesses from this county were summoned in the case.

Phillip Lindenburg, of Bellevue, is the boss fisherman in these diggings. He caught on a trot line, one day last week, a monster cat fish that kicked the beam at 75 pounds.

Nice tombstones or monuments at the graves of the departed, are marks of respect which should not be neglected. Hurschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., have just what you want. John Beall, of Hebron, is their agent.

I take this means of notifying the public that I am prepared to grind corn at my mill on the Burlington and Petersburg pike near Legrand Gaines' and solicit the patronage of the surrounding country. Will grind every Friday.

4t43 LEWIS GRAHAM.

The nuptials of Johnny Huey and Miss Lucy Ryle were celebrated as announced in this column last week. The wedding was a very quiet affair, and the young couple started on their journey as husband and wife with the best wishes of a host of friends.

For some time Patrick Shannon, who lives near Hebron, had been trying to solve the mystery of a sudden decrease in his cow's flow of milk, and had concluded that a snake must be responsible for it, when he discovered, the other day, that one of his hogs was the robber.

Wish some friend would chain that brother of ours at Rabbit Hash before he gets his neck broken playing baseball. His hands are now so deformed from contact with "red-hot ones" that he'll never be able to get a pair of wedding gloves on. We are getting uneasy about him.

Two young men, Allen and Thompson, attended the Lawrenceburg Fair last Saturday, where their temperature got too high, and when they crossed the river at Aurora that evening they got into an altercation with Zimmerman, the ferryman who got the worst of the fight.

Henry Bates, colored, while waiting for the ferry boat at Lawrenceburg, last Saturdar morning, fell from the wharf into the river, and was rescued just in time to escape being mashed by the boat which was about three feet from the landing. Henry is well known in the Burlington precinct.

When returning from the Lawrenceburg Fair last Saturday, Jas. T. Grant, of the Bullittsburg neighborhood, in trying to get on the ferry boat dropped two baskets in to the river containing a wash bowl and pitcher and other articles to the amount of $15, which he had purchased while in the burg.

TO TEACHERS.—In setting the School Commissioner's article last week, we read the word "renewed" rescinded, which destroyed the meaning of the paragraph in regard to certificates. The Commission says that teachers holding First-Class First-Grade certificates can have them renewed if they have an average of 85 per cent., provided their per cent. in orthography, arithmetic, reading, grammar, composition and geography is 90 per cent. each, and in history and penmanship, 70 per cent. each.

The rain that put in an appearance Wednesday night soon revived both the animal and vegetable kingdom.

Mr. G. T. Gaines' colt is one of the animals that wore a blue ribbon home from the Lawrenceburg Fair last week.

Yesterday, Tuesday, Commissioner Snyder and his force of pedagogues commenced holding forth in the Morgan Academy.

Henly Smith had a surgical operation performed on the side of his neck, last Monday, which somewhat impedes the movement of that member.

Wm. Walton's sale of personal property, preparatory to his departure to Missouri, takes place on the 27th of September. There will be much to sell.

The handsomest lady we saw at the Lawrenceburg Fair, last Saturday was from Burlington. Although Boone sent a great many across the water that day.

Although the dryweather created much dissatisfaction hereabouts, all are willing to admit the weather boss is better posted in agriculture than any of our local farmers.

Monday morning Jas. Conner drove through town 25 head of sheep that originally cost $25 per head. They were bought by Geo. E. Rouse of William Points, of Grant county.

The Walton correspondent of the Western Tobacco Journal reports no tobacco in first hands in this county, which is a mistake, as there are several crops that have not been sold yet.

Wm. Walton has received cheering news from out west. Since he purchased his farm in Missouri, coal oil has been found within a few miles of his farm on two sides. The discovery of the oil created considerable excitement, and the value of real estate went up immediately.

Last Wednesday afternoon the lightning struck a ceader tree in Cy Riddell's yard near Hebron. The tree was but a few feet from the hall door, and at the time the Judge, his wife and F. Riddell's wife and little daughter were in the yard near the tree and the writer's wife and child and Miss Kittie, were in the hall. Some of them were slightly stunned and all were badly frightened. A ball of fire, they think, entered the hall and exploded.

The weather, last week, was all that the management of the Lawrenceburg Fair could desire, and day by day saw the attendance increase till on Friday and Saturday each the crowd was estimated at 10,000. The Fair was extensively advertised, which, together with liberal premiums, brought people and stock from far and near, and makes the Lawrenceburg Fair now rank as the most successful fair ever held in Southeastern Indiana. The exhibition in all the departments was good, and among the Kentuckians taking premiums on horses there were W. S. Walton, R. A. Brady, Robert Clore, G. T. Gaines and Riddell & Norris.

Geo. E. Rouse took two premiums on his fine bull, and Shropshire, of Scott county, was very successful with his cattle.

Base-ball.

The Boones and the Standards, of Aurora, met again last Saturday, on the Old Hoosier Grounds at Aurora. The Standards won an easy victory defeating the Boones in a score of 15 to 9. The Boone team seemed to have been all to pieces, and their fielding was miserable, while their opponents played a good game in that particular. Fowler's throwing was very effective, as evidenced by his putting out 17 men, and had the infield been able to made a few good stops, and then properly handled the ball, the score would be quite different. Clore made a clean three-bagger, and by the assistance of a wild throw made a home-run. The Standards made some nice plays, and did good base running. Quick, Sayder, Fowler and Clore did all the good work for the Boones.

The Association.

The Salem Association held its annual meeting Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of last week in the large and beautiful grove near Jonas Delph's, a place suited in every particular for such a meeting. The weather was fine for outdoor assemblies, and the attendance, throughout, was large, appreciative and attentive. On Friday, the last day, there were near one thousand people on the ground, who came from all parts of the county. It did one much good to see with what rapt attention the good, old brethren and sister, sat and listened to the eloquent preaching of their beloved ministers. Nor were the younger members lacking in respect.

At noon each day the multitude was invited to partake of a bountifully spread table of all the luxuries that could be collected. At such times many were the happy greetings exchanged by friends, many of whom had not met for years. Memory flew back and recalled to mind other faces who were wont to meet with the association; but who have gone on that long journey to return no more.

It was about three o'clock, Friday, when with great reluctance, the many farewells were spoken, brightened with the hope of meeting a year hence upon a like occasion.

The following array of ministers was present and preached:—P G Lester, of Virginia; Levi Bavis, of Ludlow, Ky.; J H Wallingsford, of Chester, Ky.; S F Jones, of Sharpsburg, Ky.; E M Reeves, of Lynchburg, Ohio; R M Thomas, of Newmarket, Missouri; J T Moore, of Georgetown, Ky.; J M Demaree, of Pleasureville, Kentucky; Jas. Martindale, of Indiana; J Cox, of Ind.; John M Biggs, of Leonardsburg, Ohio.

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

Dr. Cowon, of Rabbit Hash, was in town Saturday.

Emmett Gullion, of Eagle Station, spent Sunday in Burlington.

Miss Sallie Rich returned to her home in Kenton county, last Thursday.

Miss Lottie Reed, of Cincinnati, is visiting her sister at this place.

Harmon Polly, of Beaver, was in town Monday. He was in the dashing business.

Miss Katie Arnold, of Bellevue, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Saxton, at this place.

Dr. L. H. Platt and wife, of Bellevue, spent several days with his mother at this place, last week.

Mrs. Kittie Strong, who has been visiting relatives at this place for some time returned home Monday.

E. E. Foster returned Sunday morning from Chattanooga, at which place he had an attack of typhoid fever.

The Aurora Fair is now in sight.

Rev. G. W. Dunlap attended the Institute Tuesday.

Miss Fannie Rice gave her pupils a vacation last week.

W. F. Piper and C. L. Crisler are the melon brokers for this place.

The hotels are giving the teachers who attend the Institute, excursion rates.

For a family medicine Ayer's Sugar Coated Pills are unrivaled. They root out disease, as if by magic.

The game of ball between the Kentons and the Boones on the grounds of the latter next Saturday, will be interesting to those who enjoy such sport.

Master Gaines Rice placed on our table, the other day, a basket of delicious apples, pears and grapes, for which he has our thanks. His father has a fine collection of fruit.

CANCELED—Manager Ed Terrill of the Almonts B. B. C, is hereby notified that the games between them and the Boones for Sept. 1st, 5th and 8th are canceled. E. W. DUNCAN, Manager
Of the Boone Baseball Club.

Last week John Acra swore out a warrant charging Henry Mallory, jr., Geo. Kiser, Kirb Sullivan, —Gardner and Sam Cantwell, all young fellows, with breaking into his house. All the boys except Cantwell, who could not be found, were arrested, and brought before Esquires Sutton, of Bellevue, and Baker, of this place, Tuesday week. Gardner turned State's evidence, Kiser was dismissed and Mallory cleared and Sullivan held over under bond of $100. Monday another warrant for the arrest of Gardner for some offense was placed in Deputy Sheriff German's hands, who arrested Gardner and delivered him to Esquire Baker from whom he escaped before the hour for the trial arrived. Esq. Wngstaff, of Florence, was sent for to sit with Esq. Baker on the trial when he arrived the bird had flown. It seems that when Acra's house was raided nearly all his provisions were destroyed.

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Constance.

Davis Bros. are having the front of their store painted green by Geo. Brown.

Coaling seems to be the order of the day. The river being low much coal can be obtained.

Mr. Wm. Souther is up every morning with the rest of the chickens. He is always the first one to crow.

A few congregated at the residence of Ephraim Helm several nights during the association for the purpose of worship.

If some of the old maids don't curl their hair and paint a little more than they have been doing here of late, we are afraid we will not have any weddings to report soon.

Florence X-Roads.

Health generally good around here.

The dry weather still holds on. Corn will make about half a crop.

Mrs. Rosa Barnett and Miss Octavia Rouse started for Paulding county, Ohio, last week.

A. F. Crigler and son are visiting in Logan county, Ohio.

Miss Bell and Bertha Conrad left Monday for Harrodsburg, Ind., Seminary.

Jefferson Riggs is visiting his mother and sister in Indiana, who he has not seen for thirty years.

W. A. Crigler and G. E. Rouse captured some of the premiums at the Lawrenceburg Fair, last week.

Bullittsville.

Some unknown person or persons visited at night the wardrobe of Ben Stephens and Jeff Snyder. Ben is minus two pair of pants, a coat and vest, Jeff mourns the loss of a hat and overcoat, shoes, and if we mistake not a full suit. At last accounts the clothes had not been returned.

Miss Jennie Tanner is visiting Lizzie Stephens.

W. J. Rice is engaged in the erection of a tobacco barn for C. S. Balsly.

Temp was the only person presens at the ball game Saturday to halloo for the Boones.

It is thought that the Grange hall will be secured for Prof. Hughe's school.

Eldor Thompson preached here Sunday morning and evening, a large crowd was present.

Scattersville.

Well, well! what big snakes we have in our county.

The farmers have been blessed with a good shower, which was very refreshing indeed.

We understand that Bobbie Huey has finished cutting his crop of tobacco. This is pretty early cutting, while a good many of the farmers have just commenced.

Well, here comes a man saying he has the finest crop of tobacco in his neighborhood, and he is very anxious indeed that it should come out in our county paper. Please don't fail to oblige him.

Born—On the 23d inst., to Mrs. Lizzie Rue, a handsome girl. Mother and daughter doing well.

One of our gallant young men has enlisted in the ranks of the benedicts, by taking unto himself a handsome bride. We allude to Mr. Johnny Huey, and we wish him and his wife all the happiness this life affords.

Waterloo.

A fine shower fell in this vicinity Thursday which helped the corn and tobacco very much.

The tobacco crop will be very light in this part of the county, owing to the late drouth. Some tobacco in this neighborhood has been cut.

The population of Waterloo has increased since our last. A Miss Snyder, a Miss Rue and a Miss Wingate have been added to the list. Dave, Tony and Scott are happy fathers. May their shadows never grow less.

James McIntire and son are building an addition to Uncle Tudor Marshall's barn, and roofing his house.

Ira Marshall, formerly of this place, is now mail-carrier on the Burlington and Erlanger route.

Corbin Bros. are selling some very fine melons here and elsewhere.

John T. Marshall contemplates spending the coming winter in the south.

Joseph Riddell and daughter were visiting his brother-in-law, Morgan Rice, near Lawrenceburg, last week. He says that Wib Rice has the finest crop of tobacco he has seen this year.

Health of the neighbobood good.

Hebron.

The pastures need rain badly, and farmers fear they will have to commence feeding stock at an early day.

Prof. W. S. Hankins, of Springfield, O., preached here last Sunday.

Alonzo Gaines has orchard grass that measures 6 feet 9 inches. How's that for high?

Ed Hamel is very ill with typhoid fever, at this writing.

Johnny Beall is the proprietor of a fine seven-pound daughter, born the 22d.

Geo. Knapp run an accommodation train from this place to Lawrenceburg last week. It was liberally patronized, and all had a gay time.

Prof. I. J. Daughters will commence instructing the young idea in this district, how to shoot, next Monday. The Professor is a very successful educator.

The remains of Wm. Jones, who died at Bromley on the 27th, were placed in the tomb at this place, and yesterday they were interred here.

Mrs. Foulke, of Taylorport died Monday. She was placed in the tomb at this place, and will be interred at Francisville.

Beaver Lick.

Our old friend, T. M. Rich, who has been confined to his room for several days with a sprained back, is now able to resume business in his shop. T. M. and lots of our other boys took in the excursion to Vevay, and they say it was just the thing for town people. It gave them a chance to air.

Z. T. Baker is building a nice barn on his farm in which to house his tobacco, of which weed he and his industrious tenant have a lage field. Z. T. is shaping up the old Buffalo trace to suit the taste of the most finical farmer. His possessions lie near the Springs, hence a little trimming will greatly enhance their value.

George Miller is having his newly finished house painted, and after that is done it will be the most beautiful residence on the pike from Hamilton to Union, a thing of which Geo. might boast, barring modesty.

Quite a nice building is going up between Hamilton and Normansville at present. The building, when completed will be two stories high, the upper story to be used as a Masonic Hall, the lower as a school room. This speaks well for the citizens of the Hamilton school district, as nothing better bespeaks the prosperity of a community than comfortable school houses.

Our turnpike is now progressing finely. It is all under contract and ere another year rolls around, we will have a splendid road from Hamilton to Union. Won't Big Bone Springs take the cake then?

The base-ball fever has attacked our colored boys and they organized a club under the formidable title of Black Bears. They then challenged an amatuer club of the Springs known among themselves as the Lone Stars. The Stars accepted and at it they went. The tally sheet stood, officially, as recorded below, Bears, 31; Stars, 60. "The B'ars called it a close game 'sidern their 'sperience umpaired wid de Sta's."

Francesville.

Again we furnish a few items from this port. Having been absent for several weeks, we find on our return that many valuable items and incidents have taken place that should have been reported when they occurred, but owing to our limited space, and the vast quantity of news that accumulates daily, we will be obliged to omit the preliminaries of the past, and give the local items of to-day.

One of the enjoyable events of the season here, was a birthday party given at Mr. Temp Gaines' a few days since. Some forty odd guests were in attendance, mostly relatives of the family.

The Rev. Mr. Dicken begins a protracted meeting at this place in two weeks.

Quite a number of our boys took in the Lawrenceburg Fair, last week; but, as we never go to such places, we made no enquiries as to how they enjoyed themselves, although we hear that some of them were awarded medals for their good behavior.

The continued drouth is doing great damage in this neighborhood. The corn crop will be almost a failure, while the fall pastures are about burned up. Tobacco is firing and will also be a poor crop this season.

That garden of ours begins to show signs of dry weather, and unless it rains shortly there are several kinds of weeds that will not mature, and we will be obliged to lose the seed of them entirely; but then those who have must lose.

At the last meeting of our town council an ordinance was passed, making it a criminal offense for any person or persons to be caught running horses, passing a base ball or blowing a harp on the streets, unless it be done on Sunday. As yet there have been no arrests.

Billy Hayes is fitting up his match fillies for the Aurora Fair. He will hold the strings, if you please.

Robert White is engaged at present in remodeling the residence of Joseph Graves near this ville.

Bruce Henry is having a large barn built.

John R. Smith is cutting and housing his tobacco. His crop is above an average.

Mrs. Ann Graham and husband, and Mrs. Batterson and husband, contemplate an extended trip to the Zoo in the near future.

Several of our citizens are billed to see Jumbo this week.

Miss Ida Baker, quite an accomplished Miss, of Willmington, Indiana, was visiting the Misses Hayes, of this place last week.

Mr. Charles Robinson, of Taylorport, is spending the heated term at this place.

—3—

AN Invaluable tonic for the nerves, muscles, and digestive organs, producing strength and appetite, is Brown's Iron Bitters.

Rev. W. B. SMITH, Grafton, Mass., says: "I have derived benefit from using Brown's Iron Bitters for a low state of blood."

FLORENCE, GA.—Dr. W. B. Prather says: "Brown's Iron Bitters has given satisfaction in every instance I have known it used."

J. W. KIRKPATRICK & SON,
—BURLINGTON, KY.—
UNDERTAKERS
—AND—
EMBALMERS,
Will furnish nice Hearse any reasonable distance for $10.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office over Dudley Rouse's Store.

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence,
Burlington. - - Ky.

L. C. NORMAN. [illegible]
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW,
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

A J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES.
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

S. W. TOLIN.
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. Aprompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.
Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
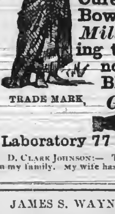
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.
N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.
DIRECTORS.
LEGRAN GAINES, Jeff Utz,
JNO. M. MOODY.

DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS.
R O
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
SALT BY THE BARREL.
R O U S E.
BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS.
The Best of Flour
PATENT & HIGH GRADE
Always on Hand. and cheaper than the cheapest.
S E
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE
DUDLEY ROUSE'S.
I now have on hand a full Stock of SCHOFIELDS Flannels, Jeans, and Yarns. Call early and make a Purchase.

M.L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEED.
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE.
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.
Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold,
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.
All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE
Petersburg Drug Store,
Where you can find everything in the
Drug line, such as——.
Well call and see and be convinced.
Respectfully, S. C BUCHANAN.



TRADE MARK.
Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S
Indian Blood Syrup
Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the
BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.
Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.
AGENTS WANTED.
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St, New York City. Druggists sell it
D. CLARK JOHNSON:— This certifies that your Indian BloodSyrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. MCCAMC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '183

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300,000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK.
Covington, Kentucky.
DIRECTORS.
James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green,
J. S. Matson, J. H. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H Dills, F. P. Helm,
L. C. Stephens.
The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.
The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank. dec. 20-6m

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar7-tf23 J. W. Talbott.

UNDERTAKING.

We keep Constantly on Hand all sizes of
Burial Cases and Caskets.
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES GUARANTEED LESS THAN CITY PRICES.
DAVIS BROS., - - HEBRON, KY.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL, Publishers.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY

A Counterfeiter's Trick.

"Yes, we used to have some very fine ones to deal with," said a retired employe of the Government Secret Service. "Of course, you know who Pete McCartney, the counterfeiter, is. Well, what he can't figure out may be set down as beyond the possibility of man's work. There is a bit of his history that I have never seen in print. Some time ago the Treasury Department got together all the plates they had—plates of all bonds and Treasury notes—and printed a book as big as an atlas. On the first page, say, they printed the face of a thousand-dollar note, and then on the tenth-page the back of the same note, keeping the face and back apart so that they couldn't be cut out and used, for the leaves of the book were of Government note paper, the book being intended for the big bankers to use in detecting counterfeit notes and bonds. In order to make it still more secure against being cut out, a dark-shaped place was left blank across the middle of each impression.

"Well, Pete got hold of a number of these books—ten or a dozen at least. Of, course, they represented a very large amount of money if they could only be made available as such. Pete was equal to the task. Cutting out the front and the back of a bill, he applied the paper to a very fine emery stone until it was worn down to about half its original thickness. Then he stuck the two pieces together, and had a genuine Government note or bond, save that the white dart appeared in the middle of each side. This Pete fixed by cutting from a one dollar bill a corresponding piece, which, having been reduced to the proper thickness, was carefully pasted over the blank space. Now he was ready to go to market with his product."

"How did the Government learn about this?"

"One day some mutilated currency was being counted in the Treasury, when the piece over the blank dart fell from one of the bills. Of course, investigation followed, and discovery of the fraud was made."

"But how did they know McCartney did the work?"

"When it was turned over to us men of the secret service we recognized it as Mac's kind of a job. You know detectives become familiar with a crook's style of work, and it is almost as impossible for him to do a job without slipping in one of his personal characteristics as it is for a man to disguise himself and impose on his most familiar acquaintances."

"What did the Government do to him when you caught him?"

"What could they do? He had not made a counterfeit or an imitation; he had simply adapted, so to speak, a genuine article, and he had not altered the denomination of any bill. As these were the only things prohibited by the law, of course they had no case at law against him. However, at the time he was captured we found a counterfeiting plate which we proved he had made use of, and he got fifteen years for that."—Washington Letter.

A Happy Ending.

Shortly before seven o'clock yesterday morning a milk-wagon with red wheels turned into Charlotte avenue from Woodward. At the same moment a milk-wagon with a view of the Yosemite on the cover turned into Charlotte from Park.

They met.

The driver of one had a long nose and a melancholy look. The driver of the other had a fat face and was minus two front teeth.

They stopped.

The driver of one turned red and green, and his eyes flashed, and his hair stood up, and there was murder in his eye. The driver of the other seemed to sink down into his boots, and he looked wildly around for a club.

"You hyena!" yelled the first.

"You calf!" was the prompt reply.

At that moment a policeman came up and remarked that if there was any row going on he wanted to take a hand in it.

"I'll crush him!" howled the one with the long nose.

"I defy you!" whooped the one with the missing teeth.

Then the melancholy driver of the milk-wagon with red wheels told a story. He had courted a girl in the suburbs for five years. They loved and were engaged. They were to have been married this fall, but he with the Yosemite landscape came along, wearing a new brand of paper collar, smoking a seventy-five cent pipe and using real hair oil on his locks, and he won the girl's admiration and affection. She had left the old for the new.

"And I'll pulverize him!" howled the rejected.

"I'll leave him a corpse!" chirped the accepted.

By and by they agreed to leave the settlement of the case to the officer, and both made a solemn promise to abide his decision.

"Well," said the officer, after deliberating awhile, "a girl should marry where she loves. She evidently prefers a man with two teeth gone to one with a long nose. Still, the rejected has taken her on two excursions, given her a fifty-cent fan, and bought more or less candy. He should have some damages."

"I'll give him three quarts of milk," announced the lucky man.

"And I'll never take it," said Melancholy.

"My decision is that you must allow him nine quarts," remarked the officer. "I figure his actual damages at three dollars, but knock off twenty shilling for the comfort he has taken in sparking the girl."

There was a war of words over the decision, but the one finally gave in, and the other accepted, and the milk changed cans and the men shook hands.

"That's what I like to see," observed the officer. "Why should two men fight over a woman when a little candid talk and nine quarts of milk will bring about a happy arrangement. Drive on, my children, and may the cream of happiness attend you."—Detroit Free Press.

—Beautiful flowers can be kept fresh by mixing a little carbonate of soda with the water in which the flowers are placed. Common saltpetre is likwise used for the same purpose.—Chicago Journal.

—A California lion, measuring some eight feet from tip to tip, was killed in the mountains near San Luis Obispo the other day.

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

—Two one-armed men applauded in a Stockholm theater by slapping their remaining hands together.

—The supply of amber on the shores of the Baltic is said to be sufficient to last the world thirty thousand years.

—In consideration of the continued depression in agriculture, the Duke of Newcastle has returned to his tenants twenty per cent. of their rents for the past half year.

—Innocent men have been so frequently convicted of crime in Germany of late that the press of the country is calling earnestly for a law to secure indemnification at the hands of the government in such cases.

—The wife of the editor of the Sydney Herald, a lady of great beauty, personified "The Press" at the Savage Club ball in London recently. The dress was made of white satin on which actual copies of her husband's paper had been printed in colored inks.

—The widow of Lord Frederick Cavendish, who was murdered in Phœnix Park, Dublin, will be married again before the termination of the present year. The second marriage, it is stated, has the approval of her late husband's relatives.

—The visitor to the Cologne Cathedral is met at the entrance by a shaven-crowned, serge-robed and sandal-footed monk, whose duty it is to present with his left hand a card printed in German, English and French, politely requesting a contribution for the building fund of the church, while with his right hand he holds out a silver platter.

—Monte-Christi, Ecuador, has recently been the scene of a bloody affair. A Colonel captured the town and imprisoned the prominent citizens. A rescuing party in turn captured the place, but found the prominent citizens murdered during the action. Such of the first capturing party as could be caught were then tried, and four of them were publicly shot in the square.

—Some fishermen near Lustruy captured a few days ago a thrasher shark over fourteen feet long. It was exhibited in a stall at the Fisheries' Exhibition, where it attracted a good deal of attention. Professor Huxley went to see it, and pronounced it to be the largest and finest specimen of the thrasher shark seen in England during the last forty years. He purchased it for scientific purposes.

—The death of King Mtesa, of Uganda, removes a very picturesque African potentate. His chair used to be placed on a leopard skin in the hall of audience, so that the hind claws served as a footstool, while the tail stretched along the floor in front. A number of charms and a tusk were piled in a heap beside him, and his Grand Vizier and other courtiers were constantly employed in smoothing down the creases in his trousers. The late Khedive sent two sheikhs to convert him to Mohammedanism, but in vain.

Taking Stock.

One of the most graphic incidents in the tale of "Locke Amsden, or the Green Mountain Schoolmaster," is the trial of a case in which the old-fashioned "store keeping" system is amusingly delineated. The trader sued one of his customers to recover the value of a cheese, which he swore most positively that he had sold him. The defendant confessed to buying a grindstone, but swore as positively as did the plaintiff that he never bought a cheese of him in his life. Both parties were honest men, and the whole difficulty, which culminated in a neighborhood row, arose from the defective methods of the trader. He knew nothing of double entry, he didn't understand single entry: he could neither read, write nor cipher with any fluency, but he did keep his accounts after a fashion. When he sold a cheese he drew a circle against the man's name. When he sold a grindstone, he also drew a circle, but put a dot in the middle, the latter to represent the crank shaft on which it hung. In the case litigated, he really had sold a grindstone, but failed to put a dot in the circle of his entry. This incident well illustrates the carelessness and inefficiency of the business methods of thousands of retail dealers in every department of trade. A "good stand" in country trade a generation and more ago would almost run itself without any brains, and prove a paying investment. A dealer who got a good living out of his store, kept his store full of goods and found a respectable surplus of cash or "good accounts" on hand at the end of the year, never cared to probe his business any deeper. He never knew how much money he made—in fact, he never considered the question. If the remarkable notion had seized his mind of ascertaining the percentage of his gains, he could by no possibility have determined the question. Such a thing as "taking account of stock" would have appeared a herculean task. Your old-fashioned trader, with his groceries on one side of the store and his calicoes on the other, would have laughed derisively at the idea of measuring up his molasses, oil, etc., as a basis of determining his business standing. He knew that he was making money; the community rated him as a prosperous merchant, and that was enough for him. But times have changed, and yet there are country merchants to-day who do not take account of stock, or "take stock," in the city merchants' shorter phrasing, oftener than once in five years. But in city and country all merchants doing a considerable business take stock as often as once a year, while some of the larger dry goods houses of this city take stock twice a year. In the wholesaling or retailing of every kind of merchandise "taking stock" is an absolute necessity in these days of sharp competition, in order to determine upon which side of the loss and gain account the balance is to fall, and resultantly whether the business has been a paying or a losing one. Everything turns upon the inventory. Bookkeeping in a great dry-goods store is now the marvel of elaborateness and perfection. Every bit of lace and dozen of buttons is so focused under ingenious figures that it can not, on paper, stray far out of place in the columns of sales and profits. But, as will be seen, figures, while they will not lie, because in this business they are not juggled with, still they will not go out of their way to tell the whole truth. Figures in a store will account for all purchases and sales. Once they would not, but merchants have advanced to that point of scrutiny where actual purchases and sales are very reliably recorded. But for the goods unsold, for the goods which should be on the counters and in stock—no account books nor tags—the goods themselves alone must answer. There is a wonderful system of checks and balances in the modern dry-goods establishment, but there is an element in the problem of sales and profits which old-time and smaller dealers were not obliged to consider. The country storekeeper of a quarter of a century ago had to take account of stock in order to learn his standings because he never knew how much he had either bought or sold. He never knew how much cash he ought to have in the drawer, nor how many goods he ought to have in stock. The city merchant of to-day knows all that every Saturday night, and perhaps at the close of each day's business, solely by consulting the footings of his complete account books. The extraordinary advertising of recent times, by means of displaying the goods, involves a hazard of loss which in practice is reduced to the certainty of an immense amount of stealing. No system of accounts foots up the columns of stealings. In former generations, the art of goods display was unknown. Goods in the store were safe from all petty thefts. There were no crowds, few mistakes, and little stealing. At present, there were never so many shrewd precautions taken against loss of goods, and never was there such an outgo in an illegitimate manner. There are three channels of stock depletion which books can not record, i. e., sampling, mistakes, and stealings. To ascertain this aggregate, an inventory is essential, and until this aggregate is recorded the profits or losses of the business can not be known. The knowledge of the results of business is largely dependent upon the system of management and accounts employed in the establishment.—Boston Herald.

Lawn-Tennis.

Foot-ball is too rough, cricket is too skilful a game, for everybody to aspire to its honors and delights. But lawn-tennis is within the reach of almost any man, and of any woman under forty. A distinguished statesman could be named, the leader of a great party, and, pace Mr. Chamberlain, an indefatigable toiler, who not unfrequently is carried by his boys down to the lawn-tennis ground, where he acquits himself with zeal, if not with dexterity. There are many hard-working professional men who, if pursued to their suburban retreats, would be found exhibiting as much eagerness to send a deadly "service" as if they were still school-boys, and had nothing else to think of but the triumphs of muscles and sinews. No clergyman need fear to be seen handling a racquet; and if the dream of some reformers is to become a reality, and Sunday afternoon is ever to see revived the antique glories of the village green, surely it is by lawn-tennis that the tempting goal will be reached. As yet the game has not permeated all classes of the community; nor will its lasting character be assured until this is achieved. What has conferred continuous vitality upon cricket and foot-ball is that they are "understanded of the people." It may be said that, in comparison with the number of persons who can play at one time in one court, lawn-tennis is an expensive game, and that this must operate as a barrier to its adoption by the people at large. But this is an obstacle of anything but an insuperable character. It would be easy enough to reduce the cost, and in country districts there is rarely any difficulty in raising subscriptions for the support of clubs whose object is the promotion of sports. A game that is the game of only one class, or at most of only one section of the community, can never excite the enthusiasm or acquire the national dignity enjoyed by one where, by a touch of nature, prince, peer and peasant are made kin. Lawn-tennis is exactly calculated to be a game of the latter sort. It is for old and young, for men and women, for the strong and the weak; it expands the lungs, strengthens the muscles, improves the condition, and takes off "weight" as surely as a Turkish bath, and more wholesomely. Such a game ought to be "national" in the best sense of the word.

There is a genial, social aspect about lawn-tennis that has, no doubt, largely ministered to the growth of its popularity. It possesses no mysteries like the ancient and classic game whose name it has borrowed, and whose champions look down upon the intruder as rather a sorry sort of parvenu. A person who can not be made to understand that the advance at a bound from "fifteen" to "thirty" is a perfectly natural numerical progression, that thirty as a matter of course leaps at once to forty, and that "deuce" is the parent of "vantage," must be singularly crass. Moreover, lawn-tennis may be watched with delight and interest, even by those whose intellects are below—or above—mastering such elementary propositions as these. The skill of the player may be appreciated by people who have not a conception what is the score; and the neatness with which a ball is "placed," or the rapidity with which it is "volleyed," need not be missed because the spectator is utterly at sea as to which side of the net is getting the best of it. —London Standard.

Lassoing Indians.

Near Lewiston, last Friday week, two men bought a horse from an Indian, paying him for the same. The Indian asked and received permission to ride the horse to town to get his money changed for silver. As the party neared the town, the Indian suddenly wheeled and ran away from the purchasers. The two men pursued, and after proceeding about three miles, came up so near that one of them could reach the Indian who sold the horse with a lasso rope. The Indian had fired back at his pursuers, but the lasso was thrown over him and he was suddenly dragged from his horse, and for a distance of about fifty or sixty yards, when he was left senseless. Another Indian made his escape with the horse, and the men came to surrender themselves up to the authorities, supposing that they had nearly killed the Indian. But before they returned to where the Indian was left, he had recovered and has not been seen since.—Lewiston (Utah) Teller.

—During the war a Masonic Lodge at Fredericksburg, Va., was sacked, and among the articles carried off was the silver level of a Senior Warden, which was undoubtedly used by Washington, who was a member of the lodge. This interesting weapon was deposited among the archives of Integrity Lodge, of Philadelphia, by Captain Warren J. Young, a former member, together with a memorandum stating that it was to be returned to the Fredericksburg Lodge "after the State of Virginia, as a whole, ceases to be in rebellion against the Government of the United States." The relic was overlooked until a few weeks ago, when a newly elected Secretary discovered it, and after a fraternal correspondence with his Southern brethren, returned it to them.—Philadelphia Record.

—A New York boot and shoe connoisseur has 1,000 pairs of shoes and slippers which were once worn by actresses and pretty ballet dancers. He has three pairs of Lotta's shoes, and asks $25 a pair for them.—N. Y. Sun.

HOME AND FARM.

—Scald the chicken feed and see if you do not have fewer cases of gapes.

—To take oil spots out of matting, etc., wet the spot with alcohol, rub it with hard soap, and then wash well with cold water.—The Household.

—Cold boiled potatoes used as soap will clean the hands and keep the skin soft and healthy. Those not overboiled are the best.

—Young and fine-grained carrots make a delicious entree if boiled until they are tender, then cut in two lengthwise and fried or browned in butter.—N. Y. Post.

—The stomach of a sheep is small, and consequently he takes but little food at a time and wants to feed often. Hence his best food is grass, and the best way to feed him is to let him gather his own food.

—If you wish to make jelly of red raspberries and currants, use them in this proportion: To eight quarts of berries allow three quarts of currants. This makes delicious jam. The fruit should be boiled and the scum taken from the top before the addition of the sugar. After this is put in let it cook just long enough to dissolve the sugar.—N. Y. Post.

—Apple Float: Boil and mash six apples; sweeten to taste, then beat with a silver fork or an egg-beater until very light and smooth. Beat the whites of two eggs to a strong froth, and gradually beat in the apples. Flavor to taste with vanilla, lemon, nutmeg, or anything else preferred. Partly fill a glass bowl with rich boiled custard and put the float upon the top. The float and custard should both be very cold.—Cincinnati Times.

—Pretty blocks for a crazy quilt have different shapes and styles of fans on them. These blocks, and in fact all those used in the quilt, gain in effect by having a framework of black velvet ribbon. This can be brightened as much as you please by the use of embroidery silks. Brocade silk can be made more effective, if of one color, by having the figures outlined with gay silks.—Exchange.

—W. P. Atherton, in a paper on the care of fruit-trees, read before a Maine horticultural society, told the following: "A farmer dismissed a hand because he set only nine trees in a day during his absence; the next day he set the balance of one hundred himself. When they bore fruit the nine set by the hired hand proved to be more valuable than the ninety set by himself."—Boston Post.

—Take a ewe lamb to the house and make a pet of it. Use nothing but kindness, and give it a name, teaching it to come at the call. Whenever the lamb obeys, give it something as a reward, such as a grain of corn, piece of bread, or anything that is acceptable, but never give it a blow. When the lamb is grown place it in the flock, and you will need only to call that one sheep, when all the others will follow. As sheep follow their leader, the training of one is the training of all, and it is a saving of time and labor to do so.

The Caterpillar and its Enemy.

The caterpillar is covered with bright yellow hair, has a deep brown stripe down the back, has four tussocks, or tufts, of hair in a row back of its head, and has two small red warts on the two segments next the last. From the extremity projects a single pencil of hairs, and from the head radiate two pencils having the appearance of horns. The eggs from which the caterpillar, or grub, is hatched are small, white and hard.

When the grub emerges it commences to feed, bending all its energies toward gorging itself. It grows rapidly, shedding its skin several times, and when full sized, or full fed, as it is termed, is ready to spin its cocoon and enter the pupa or chrysalis state. The hairs of the body are woven in the cocoon in addition to the thread spun. The female case is longer and thicker than that of the male. From the cocoon emerges the moth known as the Orgyia leucostigma. The females are wingless, having only rudimentary wings, and do not travel any distance. The males are smoke-colored with spotted wings. The female lays about 230 eggs, covering them with gluten and a silk which she spins, so that the nest has the appearance of a little tuft of white cotton. She sometimes draws leaves around the nest so as to completely close it, excluding the rain and deceiving the eyes of the birds.

The ichneumon fly is a parasite, its prey being the caterpillar above described. The female deposits its eggs on the back of the pupa in the cocoon of the caterpillar. When the egg is hatched the grub works its way down into the pupa, on which it feeds. When full fed it spins its cocoon in which it completes its transformation, coming forth as a fly. The fly is slim bodied, about one-half an inch long, and of a black color. In some species the antennæ and legs are red, but in the one under consideration the antennæ are black with the exception of the center, which is white.

There is no way by which the worm-pest can be got rid of, and although this fly aids in the work of destruction, his numbers are too small to make his efforts appreciable. Undoubtedly the best way yet devised is to brush off and destroy the nests of the moth. Generally they are easily seen, and when it is remembered that each one contains more than two hundred eggs, it is easy to conjecture what an inroad one man could make in the ranks of the caterpillar.—Scientific American.

—Daniel Conroy, of Erie, Pa., who achieved notoriety two years ago by going insane over the "fifteen" puzzle, has recently been released from the asylum where he was confined. Recently, while working on the new cathedral tower, 135 feet from the ground, he got furious over a trival dispute with a fellow workman and tried to throw him from the scaffold. A terrible struggle ensued, and both were kept from being dashed to pieces by other workmen, who came to the assistance of the man whom Conroy had assailed. Pittsburgh Post.

—Miss Jennie Headly, ten years old, added another to her aquatic honors by swimming from the Manhanset House to the Prospect beach, across Deerin's harbor, in which the Atlantic Yatch Club fleet anchored a few days ago. The distance covered is about a mile. She was not weary at the finish, and could doubtless have swum back again. Some one asked her what she thought of on the way over. She replied: "I thought of sharks, and I felt as if I was in a great big world all alone."—N. Y. Herald.

—A storm washed the blacking off a New York woman's eyebrows, and so injured her optics that she was blind for two weeks.—N. Y. Sun.

Cholera and Birds.

If any faith is to be attached to a statement just communicated to us from Egypt, a rather new light will have been thrown upon the question how cholera is propagated from place to place in an infected country. An Englishman, writing from Zagazig, where he had been residing for some time, announces his intention of remaining there as long as the swallows and sparrows do not take their departure. It has, he adds, been ascertained beyond a doubt by the experience of previous epidemics that as soon as the cholera is on the eve of establishing itself in any place these birds, as well as probably many others, flee from the impending evil. Now if the germs of disease or that which causes the disease are wafted along like a blight, filling the whole atmosphere, making their presence felt at once by the denizens of the air, we have a confirmation of the theory that cordons and quarantines, however strict, can not be relied on as a guarantee. Moreover, as any blight or vitiation of the atmosphere could hardly move, except by the aid of the wind, it would become almost certain that places to the windward of an infected center might be saved from the epidemic until the wind changed. Any way, the theory may be worth attention.—St. James' Gazette.

A Carson Man's Variegated Daughter.

Carson has developed a bad boy. His name is Johnny McGinnis, and he lives on King street. A few days ago Mrs. McGinnis started to give her seven-year-old daughter a bath. When she disrobed her by the tub she was horrified at discovering that the young lady was covered all over with crocodiles, fish, rare animals and Egyptian ibexes, painted on in lasting colors. She said that her brother Johnny had painted her to get her a chance to go away with the circus. The neighbors were called in, and their low opinion of the boy was unbounded. The elder McGinnis sailed out after the venturesome lad and found him in Johnson's barn, where he was decorating a young lad whom he had inveigled away from his parents. When the elder McGinnis had finished parleying with the younger McGinnis the trunk strap which he had brought into the barn had seen its best days.—Carson (Nev.) Appeal.

Evidence Enough.

A New York broker, who left the street three or four years ago, one day received a call from a man up the river, who announced that old Blank was dead.

"Old Blank. Yes, I remember him; so he is dead?"

"Yes, and his heirs are trying to break the will."

"They are?"

"Yes they are going to prove he was crazy. They want you as a witness."

"Want me? Why I know nothing of the old man except that I once invested $10,000 for him."

"Well, that's all they expect to prove by you."

"What? eh?"

"Why, if you'll come into court and swear that the old man let you have $10,000 to invest for him the case is made out. When can you come?"

He never went.—Wall Street News.

Rented Fragrance.

Two or three years ago in the Academy of Music a huge bouquet had gone down to Madame D. Swift Dotti. In receiving it she made an awkward movement and the big flower fell over and was pretty badly smashed.

"I'll make her pay for that," the florist exclaimed, evidently in great anger.

"Why," he was asked, "hasn't it been paid for already?"

He looked around rather alarmed and walked off. The bouquet had been hired for the occasion, but there was no insurance on it, and Madame Dotti was evidently to be made responsible for damages to it.

The same flower piece has done duty three nights in succession for as many different actresses in as many different theaters, and perhaps after all it was pulled to pieces and made to do duty for some marriage party.—N. Y. Journal.

—Two more Americans have joined the throng of those who have been decorated by European sovereigns with titles or orders of honor and glory—the great American lion tamers, General Boone and Mrs. General Boone. His Majesty, the Sultan, was so happy over a performance in the lions' cage by these great American lion tamers, that he conferred upon the happy General the order of the Mejidie of the third class, and on his happy wife the order of the Shofkat. The General's remark to a reporter that "the Sultan is a mighty civil-tongued gentleman," shows he has no prejudice against that potentate for being a Turk.

—There is an old gentleman in Addison County who has had the same pair of shoes for twenty-three years, during twenty-one of which they were his best ones. They are still serviceable, and he has just had them repaired. The old gentleman is neither poor nor a miser.—St. Albans (Vt.) Messenger.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, August 24, 1883.

LIVESTOCK—Cattle—common	$2 00	@ 3 00
Choice butchers	4 25	@ 4 50
HOGS—Common	4 35	@ 4 85
Good packers	4 90	@ 5 35
SHEEP	4 15	@ 4 75
FLOUR—Family	4 40	@ 4 45
GRAIN—Wheat—Long berry red	1 11½	@
No. 2 winter red	1 09	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	52¼	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed	30	@
Rye—No. 2	59½	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	10 50	@11 50
HEMP—Double dressed	8½	@
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	13 50	@14 00
Lard—Steam	8¾	@
BUTTER—Fancy Dairy	14	@ 15
Prime Creamery	15	@ 20
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per bar. from store	1 15	@ 1 25
Apples, prime, per barrel	2 25	@ 3 00
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 00	@ 4 25
Good to choice	4 50	@ 7 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 17¼	@ 1 17¾
No. 1 white	1 16	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	62	@ 63¼
Oats—mixed	35	@ 37
PORK—Mess	14 00	@14 25
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@ 4 25
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 08¼	@
Corn—No. 2	51¼	@
Oats—No. 2	26¼	@
Rye	58	@
PORK—Mess	12 35	@12 40
LARD—Steam	8 62½	@ 8 80
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 25	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 15¼	@ 1 15⅜
Corn—mixed	60¼	@
Oats—mixed	32	@ 34
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	15 00	@
Lard—Refined	10¼	@
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—A No. 1	$4 25	@ 4 50
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red, new	1 05	@
Corn—mixed	50	@
Oats—mixed	28	@
PORK—MESS	14 00	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 red, new	$1 06¼	@
CORN—mixed	48	@
OATS—mixed	26½	@
LIVESTOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	2 75	@ 4 50
Shipping cattle	5 25	@ 6 50

—A few days ago two crevices suddenly opened in the earth southeast of Tesontepec, Mexico. The crevices have a length of over five hundred yards with an average width of three inches. An Indian who was on the ground when it parted said that a distinct subterranean rumbling was heard. The crevices run crosswise of a creek, and all the waters of the stream are absorbed in the opening. A rope of one hundred feet in length has been let down in the chasm without finding bottom.—N. Y. Herald.

"Dragging Pains."

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—My wife had suffered with "female weaknesses" for nearly three years. At times she could hardly move, she had such dragging pains. We often saw your "Favorite Prescription" advertised, but supposed like most patent medicines it did not amount to any thing, but at last concluded to try a bottle, which she did. It made her sick at first, but it began to show its effect in a marked improvement, and two bottles cured her. Yours, etc., A. J. HUYCK, Deposit, N. Y.

THERE is a rumor from Germany that a learned chemist has discovered a wonderful oil that will restore youth to old age, etc. It must be a species of O-live oil.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

DR. PIERCE'S "Pellets" or sugar-coated granules—the original "little liver pills," (beware of imitations)—cure sick and bilious headache, cleanse the stomach and bowels, and purify the blood. To get genuine, see Dr. Pierce's signature and portrait on Government stamp. 25 cents per vial, by druggists.

A CAPTAIN who tied refractory sailors to the capstan said it was the only way to ease their rancor.—Boston Times.

Startling Weakness,

General and nervous debility, impaired memory, lack of self-confidence, premature loss of manly vigor and powers, are common results of youthful indiscretions and pernicious practices. Victims whose manhood has thus been wrecked should address, with three letter stamps, for large illustrated treatise giving means of perfect cure, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

RANK injustice—Calling a man Captain when he is a full-fledged General.—N. Y. Advertiser.

I RECOMMEND to those suffering with Hay-Fever, Ely's Cream Balm. I have tried nearly all the remedies, and give this a decided preference. It gave me immediate relief. C. T. STEPHENS, Hardware Merchant, Ithaca, N. Y. Price 50 cents.

AT the White Mountains the girls all comb their hair back from the forehead. That is why it is called a bang-up place.—N. O. Picayune.

WHY suffer longer from Catarrh, Hay-Fever, and Cold in the Head? A sure cure is Ely's Cream Balm. It is not a liquid or snuff, and is easily applied. Fifty cents.

THE farmer makes hay while the son shines behind a dry-goods counter.—Rochester Post-Express.

WOODBURY, MD.—Rev. W. J. Johnson says: "I have used Brown's Iron Bitters in my family and they have proven a splendid health invigorator."

THE artesian well throws up its water because it has a spring bottom.—N. O. Picayune.

BUCKHANNON, W. VA.—Drs. Newlon & Blair report that Brown's Iron Bitters are giving general satisfaction.

NEPTUNE'S power long ago vanished. The waves tide his sands.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

NO MATTER what your ailment is, Brown's Iron Bitters will surely benefit you. Try it.

A GARDEN "waul"—A cat on the fence.—N. Y. Journal.

"Rough on Rats." Clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs, ants, vermin. 15c.

AMERICAN flats—Pancakes.—Cincinnati Traveler.

Wells' "Rough on Corns." 15c. Ask for it. Complete, permanent cure. Corns, bunions.

Colden's Liquid Beef Tonic

Cures chills, fever, ague and weakness. Colden's, no other, of Druggists.

"Buchu-paiba." Complete cure, all annoying Kidney Diseases, irritation. $1.

"Mother Swan's Worm Syrup," for feverishness, restlessness, worms. Tasteless.

LYON'S Heel Stiffeners keep new boots and shoes straight. By shoe and hardware dealers.

Skinny Men. "Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer

Is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which Sulphur, Sugar of Lead and Nitrate of Silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. JOHN D. PARK & SONS, Wholesale Agents, Cincinnati, Ohio, and C. N. CRITTENTON, New York.

What will it do?

Brown's Iron Bitters? Good for what? Well, see what it has done. To begin with dyspepsia. It has cured some of the worst cases.

Then chills and fever. Who wants to shake with cold and burn with heat, when a bottle or two of Brown's Iron Bitters will drive the source of the mischief away?

How about rheumatism? It cured Mr. Brashear, of Baltimore, and hundreds of others.

Those dreadful nervous troubles. Mr. Berlin, of Washington, the well-known Patent attorney, was entirely relieved by Brown's Iron Bitters.

The ailments of the kidneys.—Brown's Iron Bitters cured Mr. Montague, of Christiansburg, Va., and an army of other sufferers.

Debility and languor. The Rev. J. Marshall West, Ellicott City, Md., is one of the many clergymen restored by Brown's Iron Bitters.

And as with vertigo, malaria, liver complaint, and headache, Brown's Iron Bitters is the Great Family Medicine. 2

Wanted Agents Male and female for new book, "Daughters of America." Low in price, 50c. will secure an outfit and agency. Address FORBEE & McMAKIN, CINCINNATI, O.

AGENTS make money selling our Family Medicines no capital required STANDARD CURE Co., 197 Pearl St., NEW YORK.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD

And will completely change the blood in the entire system in three months. Any person who will take ONE PILL EACH NIGHT FROM ONE TO TWELVE WEEKS, may be restored to sound health, if such a thing be possible. For curing Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. Physicians use them in their practice. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. Send for pamphlet. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

Grocers and Dealers
—IN—
TEA AND COFFEE.

Send for Wholesale Price List of our goods. Lowest possible prices. GREAT LONDON TEA CO., 801 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

MAINE MEN.

From Bath, Me., we have received, under date of May 15, 1883, the following statement of GEO. W. HARRISON, the popular proprietor of "The Restaurant": "A few years since I was troubled so severely with kidney and bladder affection that there was brick-dust deposits in my urine, and continual desire to urinate, with severe, darting, sharp pains through my bladder and side, and again, dull, heavy pressure, very tedious to endure. I consulted one of our resident physicians, but I received no benefit from the treatment, and fearing that my symptoms indicated Bright's Disease, the most dreadful of all diseases, I made up my mind that I must obtain relief speedily or I would be past cure. I consulted my druggist, Mr. Webber, and after ascertaining my symptoms, he recommended the use of Hunt's Remedy, as he knew of many successful cures effected by that medicine in similar cases here in Bath. I purchased a bottle, and before I had used the first bottle I found I had received a great benefit, as I suffered less pain, my water became more natural, and I began to improve so much that the second bottle effected a complete cure; and my thanks are due to Hunt's Remedy for restored health, and I cheerfully recommend this most valuable and reliable medicine to my friends, as I consider it a duty as well as a pleasure to do so."

BLACKSMITHS' TROUBLES.

Having had occasion to use a remedy for kidney troubles, I noticed an advertisement in one of the papers of the remarkable cures that Hunt's Remedy had made all over the country. I purchased a bottle at one of our druggists here in Manchester, and after using it for a short time found that it was helping me wonderfully, and one bottle has cured me completely—have no indigestion, and am hearty and healthy for one of my years (65), and can truly say that Hunt's Remedy is a medicine that has real merit, and I do not hesitate to recommend it to the public in general.

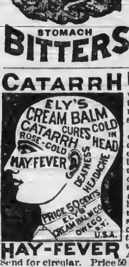
J. F. WOODBURY,
86 Manchester Street, Manchester, N. H.

May 7, 1883.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, by increasing vital power, and rendering the physical functions regular and active, keeps the system in good working order, and protects it against disease. For constipation, dyspepsia and liver complaint, nervousness, kidney and rheumatic ailments, it is invaluable, and it affords a sure defense against malarial fevers, besides removing all traces of such disease from the system. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

CATARRH ELY'S CREAM BALM



when applied by the finger into the nostrils, will be absorbed, effectually cleansing the head of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membrane of the nasal passages from addition al colds, completely heals the sores and restores taste and smell. A few applications relieve. A thorough treatment will positively cure. Agreeable to use. Send for circular. Price 50 cents by mail or at druggists. Ely Brothers, Owego, N. Y.

HAY-FEVER

PORTABLE & STATIONARY
Steam Engines
and STEAM BOILERS, smaller sizes adapted to
Farm and Plantation Use!
$200 We make six sizes, capacity from 3 to 50,000 ft. per day, with one saw for our No. 1 Plantation Saw Mill. LANE BODLEY CO., John and Water Sts., Cincinnati, Ohio. (Illustrated catalogue free.)

Fast Potato Digging!

The Monarch Lightning Potato Digger
Saves its cost yearly, FIVE TIMES OVER, to every farmer. Guaranteed to Dig Six Hundred Bushels a Day!
Sent on 30 Days'
TEST TRIAL.
Agents Wanted.

Write Postal Card for Free Illustrated Circulars. Mention this paper. Address
Monarch Manufacturing Co., 163 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO SCALE CO.
2 TON WAGON SCALE, $40. 3 TON, $50.
4 Ton $60, Beam Box Included.
240 lb. FARMER'S SCALE, $5.
The "Little Detective," ¼ oz. to 25 lb. $3.
300 OTHER SIZES. Reduced PRICE LIST FREE.
FORGES, TOOLS, &c.
BEST FORGE MADE FOR LIGHT WORK, $10.
40 lb. Anvil and Kit of Tools, $10.
Farmers save time and money doing odd jobs.
Blowers, Anvils, Vices & Other Articles
AT LOWEST PRICES, WHOLESALE & RETAIL.

ST. PATRICK'S SALVE
TRY IT USE IT
It relieves at once Burns, Piles, Chapped Hands or Lips, Corns, Bunions, Scalds, Bruises, Soreness of feet, hands, eyes, etc.; Itching from any cause. 25c. Ask your druggist, or send to 93 Fulton Street, N. Y.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good.
Use in time. Sold by druggists.
25 100

Lady Agents can secure permanent employment and good salary selling Queen City Skirt and Stocking Supporters, etc. Sample outfit Free. Address Queen City Suspender Co., Cincinnati, O.

PATENTS NO PATENT, NO PAY! N. W. FITZGERALD, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Full instructions and New Book on Patents sent free.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

HAIR Wigs & Waves sent C.O.D. anywhere. Wholesale & Retail. Price list free. Goods guaranteed. B. C. STREHL, 157 Wabash-av., Chicago.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Me.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

RUBBER STAMPS, with your name 50 cents; scrap pictures, 3c a sheet. Cards, Type, Etc. Agents Wanted. List free. THALMAN M'F'G Co., Baltimore, Md.

EDUCATIONAL.

COLLEGE OF
PHYSICIANS and SURGEONS,
BALTIMORE, MD.
The practical advantages of this school are unsurpassed. Clinics held at City Hospital, Maternite and Maryland Woman's Hospital, all of which belong to this school. Physiological and Chemical Laboratory Work required of every Student. Apply for a catalogue to DR. THOMAS OPIE, Dean, 39 North Carey Street.

EDUCATIONAL.
1883. The NEW CALENDAR of the 1884.
NEW ENGLAND
CONSERVATORY of MUSIC
Beautifully Illustrated. 64 pages. SENT FREE to yourself and musical friends. Send names and addresses to E. TOURJEE, Frankl'n Sq., Boston, Mass.
The Largest and best appointed Music, Literary and Art School, and HOME for young ladies, in the world.

COLLEGE PHYSICIANS & SURGEONS, CHICAGO Elegant building. Experienced Faculty. Low fees. For catalogue address D. K. STEELE, M. D., 1801 State St.

ADRIAN COLLEGE, Adrian, Mich. Five Schools. Term opens Sept. 14. Add. D. S. STEPHENS, Pres't.

COLEMAN BUSINESS COLLEGE, Newark, N. J. Terms $41. Positions for graduates; write for circular.

PILES "Anakesis" gives instant relief, and is an infallible cure for Piles. Price $1, from druggists, or sent prepaid by mail. Samples free. Ad. "ANAKESIS," Makers, Box 2416, New York.

A. N. K.—E. 940

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KY., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1883. NUMBER 45.

A DILEMMA.

To write, or not to write, that is the question.
Whether it is nobler in the mind to suffer
The reputation of being asked by
A young lady to write in her autograph album,
And having kept the book two years, more or less,
And then not written in it—
Or to take the pen against a host of doubts and fears,
And by once writing, end them?—To start—to write—
To write!—perchance, to make a blot—Ay, there's the rub;
For in that darksome blot what feelings are Shown forth—nervousness, distrust of self,
And many others!—Not as
When one is writing to his girl, for then
If he should make a blot be draws a line
'Round it, and says
It was intentional, and meant to mark
A place where he did kiss. And she Believes the yarn, and kisses it, and thinks
That she is happy.
—Boston Globe.

IN PROSPERITY FORGET NOT THE POOR.

One of the Russian folk tales may interest my readers.

An old man had three sons, and the only property he left them on his death was a small vegetable patch, in which he had raised vegetables sufficient for their own wants. His last words to his sons as he was dying were:

"Boys, never turn away a hungry man from your doors. Help the poor in all your changing circumstances of life."

The boys promised to remember his words. They continued to raise vegetables on their patch and divided them equally, each either selling or consuming his portion.

One day an angel from Heaven was sent to go and see how the brothers were living and provide them with better means of subsistence. The angel assumed the form of a poor beggar, and coming to the eldest brother, who was weeding the garden, begged for an onion.

"You can have one of mine," replied the young man, cheerfully. "I can not give you any more, as the rest belong to my brothers."

The supposed beggar thanked him and went away.

The next day the second brother was attending to the trimming of the garden. The angel also came to him in the shape of a poor pilgrim and asked for a cucumber.

"You are welcome to have one out of my portion," he replied, giving him a fine one. "The rest belong to my two brothers."

The pilgrim expressed his gratitude and continued his journey.

The third day the youngest brother tended the garden. The angel took the form of a poor laborer and asked for something.

"You are welcome to what I own, Dadushka (i. e., Uncle). "Here is one of each kind of vegetable that belongs to me," he replied, filling the laborer's hat with the different vegetables.

On the fourth day the angel took the form of a monk, and coming toward sunset to the hut, found the brothers all at home.

"Blaslavi Batuska," (i.e., bless us, Father,) they exclaimed, rising and kissing his hand, a mark of respect shown all the Russian clergy. "Pray be seated at our humble repast;" and they hastily put the best of everything they had on the rude wooden table.

"What are your means of subsistence, my friend?" inquired the monk, after he had partaken of the evening meal.

"Slava Bogha," (i.e., thank God) replied Ivan, the eldest, "we have enough to eat from our little garden, which, peace to his soul, our father left us. We take the housekeeping part, attending to the vegetables by turns. Two of us go to work in the neighboring farms, while the third remains at home. We thus earn a few 'kopecks' (pennies) and those we divide equally, and invest in clothing or what we need."

The monk rose to take leave, and the young men offered to accompany him across the lonely steppes (i. e., field). As they walked along, the monk said to the eldest: "Ivan, what would you like to have in this world?"

"Ah! Batuska," (i.e., Father) he replied, "I should like to be a rich farmer and own fields, where I would raise crops of wheat that would make me a happy man."

The monk made the sign of the cross with his staff, and lo! a large comfortable farmhouse stood before them, fields of golden wheat nodded their heads in the evening breeze, laborers were seen returning bearing sheaves of ripe grain, and as they passed Ivan, they saluted him with: "Dobroy vetcher, royzeyin" (i.e., Good evening, master).

The monk turned and said to him: "Now you have what you wished for, stop and live here, and don't forget to be generous to your fellow men."

Then taking the two younger brothers, he went with them further.

"What would you like to have?" he asked of Feodor.

"I wish to be a stock farmer, and have sheep and cattle of every species. That would be my great joy."

The monk again made the sign of the cross with his staff over the steppe, and in an instant thousands of sheep, goats and oxen covered the field. Shepherds were singing their evening songs as they drove their flocks into the folds. A dairy appeared in which some women were milking the ewes, others were measuring the milk, collecting cream and making cheeses. There was also a slaughter house and people were busy everywhere, and on seeing Feodor they raised their caps and saluted him as their master.

"Here you have your wish fulfilled," said the monk. "All this belongs to you. You are master. Live and prosper here, but never fail to be good to all."

"Well, Anessi," continued the monk to the youngest, "what would you like to have?"

"Ah! Batuska," replied Anessi, "may Heaven give me a truly pious, good wife; for such is worth everything to me. I do not ask for anything else; for I will work hard to support her."

"You have chosen well, my son," replied the monk. "For such a wife's price is far above rubies. I know of a good girl in the next village."

Having entered it, they went immediately to the starasta's, the chief of the village, and asked for his daughter in marriage. They found that two pameshiki (i. e., squires) had arrived before them, and had asked for the girl already.

When the starasta saw them he said: "What shall I do? The first two suitors are squires, and this man is a mere beggar in comparison with them."

The monk said: "I will tell you what to do. Let your daughter take three seeds and plant them in the garden, and name each one after her suitors. In the morning which seed will be in blossom him she must take for a husband."

They all agreed to this proposition. The lady planted the seeds in the garden and named each one after a suitor. In the morning the seed of the poor man was in full blossom. The father was angry, but felt obliged to keep his word, so he gave his daughter to Anessi for wife. They went to church and got married at once. After the ceremony the monk took the newly married couple near a forest and said:

"Now, my son, you said you desired a pious, good wife, and nothing else. Go in peace; and see that you know how to value her."

After a year had passed the guardian angel came down from Heaven again to see how the brothers were getting on and to assist them if they needed it. He assumed the form of a poor half-blind man, and went to Ivan, the eldest brother. The farm was flourishing, the fields were luxuriant with grain which bends under the weight of plenty. The poor man asked him for a loaf, but Ivan drove him away, saying:

"Get along, you good-for-nothing! If I were to give a loaf to everybody that asks for it there would be nothing left for me."

The assumed poor man here made the sign of the cross and the prosperous farm disappeared, and Ivan stood before him as before, clad in the humble garments of a poor peasant.

"Ah, Ivan!" said the angel, "riches are not good for you, as you forgot the poor. Go back and attend to your vegetables as before."

"Holy mother of God!" exclaimed Ivan, [illegible]. "My father's injunction to me on his death bed was 'never turn away a hungry man.' In adversity I kept this command, but when prosperous I forgot it in my selfishness."

The angel disappeared and Ivan returned to his lonely hut and barren vegetable patch.

The angel then visited Feodor's home. The cattle had increased tenfold and prosperity was everywhere visible. There he appeared in the shape of a poor gentleman and asked of Feodor, who was superintending the measuring of milk, which was overflowing in the immense cans and buckets, for a cup of milk with which to still the pangs of hunger and thirst, as he was penniless.

"Ha! ha!" sneered Feodor; "What do you take me for, old man? Do you suppose because you are a poor gentleman I am obliged to give you milk to feast on? I can not afford to give anything away. I have a wife and child to provide for now. What do you say, wife?" said he, turning to a woman near him; "shall I give this shabby-gentility a cup of milk?"

"If you give a cup of milk to everybody that asks for it," she haughtily replied, "there will be nothing left for ourselves. Then your wife and children will have to become beggars. Get away from here, you paberushka! (i. e., beggar.) Go quench your thirst with water in yon brook! Milk, indeed! I wonder what other luxury beggars like you want next." And with this she pushed him out of the place. Her child meanwhile was wasting the milk by spilling it all over the floor.

The supposed poor man again made the sign of the cross, and instantly everything disappeared. Feodor remained as before a poor peasant, with his wife and child in rags.

"Riches and prosperity were bad for natures like yours," said the angel. "You forgot the needy. Go back to your former life, and try to mend your selfishness."

"Ach!" exclaimed Feodor; "My father's last injunction in my prosperity I forgot."

The angel then went to the youngest brother Anessi, in order to see if he had become selfish. He found a neat whitewashed cottage, with vines climbing round it. A sign swung over the door, announcing that it was a way-side inn. Cleanliness and comfort denoted the prosperity of the owners. In the garb of a poor wayfaring man the angel asked for a night's lodging, saying he was hungry and tired and had no money. Anessi and his wife received him cordially, and ordered the servants to give him food, bed and change of raiment.

The voice of prayer was heard in the house as they retired, and a calm peace fell over the household. Early in the morning the wife prepared a bundle, which contained substantial eatables, and, giving it to the poor man as he was about departing, said:

"Spassi Chistos it poot (i. e., Christ protect you on your journey)."

Here the angel made the sign of the cross with his staff over the cottage, and in its place arose a palatial residence with every imaginable good thing in it, and he said:

"Prosperity has not spoiled you, my son. Your choice was the best of your brothers. A good wife is a favor from the Lord. Mind always, therefore, to appreciate your blessing, and never let prosperity and ease run away with your reason; for then it makes the heart selfish and proud. My children, at all times remember that the poor are human beings, possessing the same feelings as yourselves. Never in prosperity neglect and forget that hundreds are in need, and do to them as you would wish done to you. For he that helpeth the poor lendeth unto the Lord." So the angel blessed them and went away.—N. Y. Independent.

—The telephone has been successfully used in France to communicate between a vessel being towed and one towing. The wire was carried along one of the hawsers, and the circuit was completed through the copper on the bottom of the ships and the water. Conversation was carried on distinctly.

—William H. Miller has been arrested in Louisville, Ky. He imagines that he is a brother of Jay Gould, and gives checks for large amounts to any one he happens to meet.—N. Y. Sun.

PITH AND POINT.

—Mint is said to keep rats and mice out of the house. If a fellow owned a mint he could also "keep the wolf from the door."—Boston Courier.

—Ah You, the prettiest Chinese girl ever brought to America, has married an Englishman in San Francisco. Ah, you rascal!—N. O. Picayune.

—In a summer hotel kitchen: "Good gracious! here is another order for chicken salad, and there is not an ounce of veal left in the house."—Philadelphia News.

—There is a girl reported down in Kentucky whose teeth ache upon the least touch of anything cold. She is very popular with the young men during the ice-cream season.

—The preacher actually startled the sexton into opening the windows when he told him that the air was so bad in the close church that it put the organ out of tune using it to blow with.—Exchange.

—A careful reporter wrote last week of a man who fell from the roof of a house and "injured himself quite seriously." Usually, when a man drops from a roof he takes a run around the square to restore his circulation, or else he jumps back again.—N. Y. Tribune.

—Right on the heels of the telegraphers' strike comes the news of another great industry crippled. The Merritt Base-ball Club, a professional nine, of Camden, N. J., has been compelled to disband, owing to its outgo being larger than its income. It is very discouraging, indeed; but it is a consolation to know that the price of coal will not be advanced in consequence.—Norristown Herald.

—"Run and get me an armful of wood," said a French woman (living in South Troy) to her husband one rainy day, "as you are wet and I am dry." The same plea was used for a dozen more errands. At last it was, "Get me a bucket of water, for you are wet and I am dry." The bucket of water was brought and thrown over her, the husband exclaiming: "Now, do your share, for you are wet, too!"—Troy (N. Y.) Times.

—There is something peculiar about Irish wit, and something peculiarly agreeable in it. When a skeptic had been persuaded to attend mass he was either impressed or befogged by the ceremony, no one could tell which, but he turned to his companion and in a hoarse and a solemn sort of whisper exclaimed: "Pat, me boy, this bates the divil!" Pat did not even turn his face to his friend, but reverently making the sign of the cross answered: "Jimmy, me boy, that's the intention."—Chicago Herald.

—The young minister, Mr. ——, of a Western city, was invited to occupy the pulpit in an Albany church. His two sisters chancing to be near Albany, made their plans to go there for that Sunday and hear him. After the service a gentleman of the congregation whom they knew very slightly hurried toward them and said: "We are delighted to see you here; but how unfortunate that you should have chosen to-day. Don't I beg of you, think that this is our minister. Doctor —— is off on his vacation, and we have to take what we can get; but come next Sunday if you're in town and you'll hear a sermon worth listening to."—Harper's Bazar.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—Connebrooke, Conn., has the largest ivory factory in the world. Its output per annum is something like $125,000 worth.—Hartford Post.

—One firm in Gates County, N. C., owns thirty miles of narrow-gauge railway; connecting five of its saw-mills. It is the largest lumber business in the State.

—It is said that one of the best ways of preparing cut flowers to send to a distance is to cut slits in potatoes and insert the flower stems, taking care that they are firmly fastened in and supported by a little cotton or paper. Potatoes may be used in the same way in floral decorations by concealing them under leaves and flowers.—Chicago Tribune.

—An ingenious mechanic of Jamestown, N. Y., has completed a perfect locomotive, said to be the smallest in the world, being only eight and a half inches long. The pump throws a drop of water per stroke. The engine weighs one and a half pounds, and the tender four pounds and one-half ounce; 385 screws were required to put the parts together, and the mechanic was at work on it at intervals for eight years.—N. Y. Times.

—By a process lately discovered by an English chemist, the hue of flowers is changed without affecting their perfume or freshness. The coloring material is absorbed through the stems. Queerly enough, flowers refuse to receive certain colors, however, and if placed in a mixed solution make a complete analysis. Some lilies which had been treated with purple showed distinct red veins and blue veins, the colors having been divided in the process of absorption.

—Mr. J. W. Paige, an elderly gentleman with an inventive turn of mind, residing in this city, has recently completed a perpetual almanac, which is a curiosity in its way. Dates, months and years are so arranged upon a small sheet of paper that a person may, by a very simple process, ascertain to a certainty on what day of the week the Declaration of Independence was signed, or the day upon which any other event in the world's history took place.—Chicago Herald.

Mr. Austin Corbin proposes to establish a line of fast ocean steamers, which will occupy much the same relation to ocean travel that the fast United States express trains do to railway traffic. The vessels, three of which have already been ordered, will be constructed chiefly with a view to speed, and will be used for carrying first-class passengers and mails. These vessels will land at Montauk Point, whence the passengers and mails will be transferred to New York by rail. On the English side, the landings will be made at Milford Haven, and the trip is expected to be made in five days.—N. Y. Sun.

Religious.

THE FATHER'S PITY.

Through woof of gloom and sorrow,
Through warp of pain and tears,
There flashes bright a silver thread
Amid the flying years.
For as a father pitieth
The children of his love,
So, with compassion failing not,
God watches from above.

And sees our need and weakness,
And not in vengeful wrath
Sends down the dark calamity
That blocks the tangled path.
But ever wise to guide us,
And always full of love,
A Father's tender pity seeks
To draw our thoughts above.

Sweet, when our hearts are heavy;
Clear, though our eyes are dim,—
The old, old word of blessed trust
Which lifts us up to Him.
O, dear, when flesh is failing,
That breath of Heavenly Dove,
Which whispers in the silent hour,
Of God's paternal love.

Life hath its desert shadow,
Its interspace of tears;
And yet, a sunburst often breaks
And scatters swift our fears.
For as a father pitieth
The children of his love,
So God, our Father, watcheth us
With pity from above.

Our feeble frame He knoweth,
Remembereth we are dust,
And evermore His face is kind,
His ways are ever just.
In evil and in blindness
Through darkened maze we rove,
But still our Father leads us home,
By strength of mighty love.
—Margaret E. Sangster, in S. S. Times.

Sunday-School Lessons.

	THIRD QUARTER.
Sept. 2	—The Death of Samson	Judg. 16:21-31
Sept. 9	—Ruth and Naomi	Ruth 1:14-22
Sept. 16	—A Praying Mother	1 Sam. 1:21-28
Sept. 23	—The Child Samuel	1 Sam. 3: 1-19
Sept. 30	—Review.
	FOURTH QUARTER.
Oct. 7	—Eli's Death	1 Sam. 4:10-18
Oct. 14	—Samuel the Judge	1 Sam. 7: 3-17
Oct. 21	—Asking for a King	1 Sam. 8: 1-10
Oct. 28	—Saul Chosen King	1 Sam. 10:17-27
Nov. 4	—Samuel's Farewell Address	1 Sam. 12:13-25
Nov. 11	—Saul Rejected	1 Sam. 15:12-26
Nov. 18	—David Anointed	1 Sam. 16: 1-13
Nov. 25	—David and Goliath	1 Sam. 17:38-51
Dec. 2	—David's Enemy—Saul	1 Sam. 18: 1- 6
Dec. 9	—David's Friend—Jonathan	1 Sam. 20:32-42
Dec. 16	—David Sparing His Enemy	1 Sam. 24: 1-17
Dec. 23	—Death of Saul and Jonathan	1 Sam. 31: 1-13
Dec. 30	—Review.

THE LONELY PEOPLE AND THEIR LONELY BOOK.

The Hebrews were a hermit nation. They lived lonely, without companion or fellow. They received from their neighbors, they gave to their neighbors no sympathy or kinship of heart. They had one grand idea, that of God, one personal, supreme, jealous God; and they had from Him one Book, jealously supreme and regally authoritative; one Book, only one, their peculiar and strange Book. Because they were a people of one God and one Book we look back and we see them—the world looks up and sees them towering high and isolated above the buried and sand-strewn ruins of the kingdoms and empires that surrounded them.

Do we consider how unique is that Hebrew race and that Hebrew Book? We can not explain it except by the story of the revelation which it contains how that insignificant handful of men, holding the space of a few counties in one of our States, surrounded by people who gave themselves up to the grossest paganism, could have grasped and held the sublime conviction of one God. Only to this one people, no different in race from the people around them, not equal in native endowment to the royal races of the world, was God so clearly manifested that He was apprehended as the one only supreme Creator God! What was there in that little strip of sea-shore, with no harbor, no commerce, that narrow line of land bounded by the sea on the west and by a little stream on the east running from a fresh pond in the north to a salt pond in the south, stirred by the stimulus of no foreign intercourse—a race of escaped slaves, of peasant farmers, what was there in their endowments that gave promise of the intuition which should see duty and see God as no other race has ever done except as it borrowed its inspiration from that inspiration which possessed that Jewish people? Ah! there we have the answer! The inspiration which possessed them came by the revelation of God. It came to them in God's wise ordination, not to the quick-witted world-encompassing Phenician traders from the ports of Tyre and Sidon; not to their stately masters, whose pyramids have seemed worthy to be a revelation from God; not to that proud and fierce people of Assyria to which Palestine was only one of a hundred conquered satrapies; not to that miracle of geniuses, many-harbored Greece; not to imperial and sturdy Rome—it came not to the world's great races, but to one of the smallest of them all, one of the most insignificant, because God would have it so, and because thus should we see that it was not by human wit but by the very revelation of God.

Do we ever fairly consider the loneliness of that lonely people's Book? Think how it stands out alone. What fellow, what companion had it? What have we had that was coeval with those Hebrew Scriptures? What was there by which they could be confirmed? Go back to the beginning of the century and ask yourselves what had then survived of its contemporary literature with which it could be compared. Egypt had left nothing, only a few lines of one historian rescued by the Christian historian Eusebius. Babylon and Nineveh had saved nothing, not a line, except similar fragments of one historian preserved by Josephus or Eusebius. Persia? Persia only began to be as the Jewish history was ending. Greece? Rome? There was no Greece nor Rome when the splendid Jewish prophets were proclaiming the one Jehovah.

Here, then, appears this one Book full of wondrous history, on whose marvelous revelation our own fuller Christian faith is built, and we were asked: "What evidence have you of its truth? What is there to confirm it? We were told that its history was false, that it was a late product full of errors, that Xenophon and Arrian told different stories, which were truer than our Bible. What could we do? We could bring no confirmatory proof; for there was none. There was no evidence existing. It was all buried in the grave of the forgotten and irrecoverable past.

But behold a wonder. The earth opens its mouth. Our own generation has seen uncovered the monuments of Egypt, Assyria and Palestine, which abundantly prove the truth of the Jewish history. No longer a lonely record, the Old Testament is supported by the exhumed records of the Kings of Egypt and Babylon and Nineveh and Moab. We are now shown in the Boulaq Museum the very body of the Egyptian King who oppressed Israel. We know the names of the father and the grandfather of Arioch, King of Elassar, who fought in the confederacy against the King of Sodom. At a hundred points confirmatory evidence has been dug out of Assyrian ruins. In the day when the lonely Book was attacked by unbelief, there appeared out of the ground hosts of defenders. God's providence supports His Book.—N. Y. Independent.

What the Bible Has Done.

The least and most hopeful among us are, I know, sometimes disposed to despondency and almost to despair, as they witness such floods of lawlessness and infidelity swelling and sweeping over our own and other lands, and dashing down so many of the old landmarks of morality and religion. But we may all take comfort and courage in thinking of all the great and glorious things which the Bible has already done for mankind since the opening of the Christian era, and which can never be lost. From what other source has all true civilization, directly or indirectly, emanated? What other influence has so elevated humanity, so lifted the poor and humble, so freed the oppressed, so enlightened the ignorant, so inculcated peace and good-will among the nations, so proclaimed the brotherhood of man under a common Father, so restrained and rebuked vice and crime, and brought the indispensable sanction of future responsibility and future judgment to the support of earthly laws and human government? From what other pages than those of the Bible have all the noble philanthropies of modern times derived their incentives and examples? What can legislation do but confess that all its laborious statutes are little more than the detailed application to existing society of the laws first promulgated on Sinai, and of the two great commandments into which those laws were condensed and crystalized by Him who died for us on Calvary? And even science, after all the marvelous discoveries it has of late accomplished, and all the signal triumphs it is daily achieving; now soaring to the skies, questioning each particular star and comet and remotest nebula, and analyzing the tints and texture of the sun itself; now sounding the depths of the sea, and spreading out its countless contents, animate and inanimate, to be the subject of an exposition for Princes to inaugurate and the world to admire; now searching and exploring the caves and caverns of the earth, and laying bare to our insatiate gaze the long-buried treasures of Ilion or Assos, or the hardly less interesting outcomes of mounds and shell-heaps in our own land; and now suspended over the broad current which had so long separated two great sister cities that stupendous bridge over which travel and traffic may pass unimpeded from hour to hour, and look down upon the tall ships sailing freely beneath them—even science, I say, in all the just pride of these and a hundred other successes, has never found, and never can find, any other fixed and steadfast point of departure, or any other sure and final resting-place to fall back upon, save in that sublime announcement, in the very first verse of the Bible: "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth."—Robert C. Winthrop.

Wise Sayings.

—Trust not so much to the comforts of God, as to the God of comforts.

—We blame others for slight things, and overlook greater in ourselves. —Thomas a Kempis.

—The pleasantest things in the world are pleasant thoughts, and the greatest art in life is to have as many of them as possible.

—The sacrifices we make of selfish pity may be rewarded by the incense that rises from useful lives—a sweet savor even to ourselves as well as to our Master.—Chritian Advocate.

—Preserve your conscience always soft and sensitive. If but one sin force its way into that tender part of the soul and dwell easy there, the road is paved for a thousand iniquities.—Watts.

—The worst education that teaches selfdenial is better than the best that teaches everything else, and not that, for it is by self-denial that we are able to help our suffering neighbor.—Sterling.

—An Eastern monarch commanded his minister to furnish a motto that should cheer in adversity and prevent excessive joy in prosperity. He gave the monarch for his signet: "This, too, shall pass away." How greatly would such a thought console us in sorrow, or restrain us in joy. Every state of feeling or suffering, of hope, or despair, will pass away in this life.

—The very habit of a godly life helps to keep one from temptation and sin. There are times, perhaps, when spirituality is at a low ebb in the heart, and little of God's sweet love seems to have place therein. Then this habit of correct living—a habit acquired through years of watchful prayer and persistent purpose—holds the man to circumspectness, and keeps him from many things that might soil his soul.

—Is there intelligence in sewing the skins of animals together for a garment, and no intelligence in the mechanism that weaves the skins and covers them with soft fur? Is there mind in knitting a stocking or hammering a nail, and no intelligence in the manufactories which turn out the finest cloth and the furnaces which cast all the iron used in utensils and architecture? And what is a human manufactory but the attempt of human intelligence to utilize on a limited scale those mighty natural forces which the Divine Mind is using for the sustenance and comfort of mankind, for the maintenance of the globe we live on, and the illimitable universe of which it is a part?—Evangelist.

Our Young Folks.

MUD PIES.

Oh won't you join the Cooking Class
That meets in Sandy Hollow,
On every pleasant afternoon,
With Signorina Bollo?

She makes the nicest little cakes,
All scalloped round the edges,
And winds a wreath around the dish
Of buttercups and sedges.

Her recipes are all unique,
And never have been printed;
She'd not forgive me if the rules
I e'en so much as hinted.

But I'll assure you, if you come,
A series of surprises,
'Twill really make you smile to see
The puddings and the pieses;

The biscuits, each about as large
As an old-fashioned penny;
The cookies cut in hearts and rounds
And quaint devices, many:

The fritters—but to rouse your zeal
I've surely said a plenty.
One word's sufficient for the wise;
And here are more than twenty.
—Ella W. Ricker, in N. Y. Independent.

TWO CATS.

It was Saturday afternoon, and Sue was out on the sunny veranda teaching Muff, her pet kitten, to jump through a hoop. The hoop was wound with bright bits of ribbon, and it was a pity, when the fluttering winds made such a pretty contrast to Muff's white coat, that he could not be persuaded to jump, except as Sue jumped him.

Mamma and Will were out on the veranda, too. Mamma was sewing, and Will was watching Sue.

Will was fifteen, almost a man in six-year-old Sue's eyes, and he only came home one Saturday in four from the academy-town, twenty miles away. Sue was always glad when he came for besides seeing Will, there was sure to be jelly-cake and plum-sauce for tea.

But Muff would not jump, though he would catch at the flying ends of ribbon as Sue held the hoop before him, and hang with teeth and claws.

"It's no use, Sue," laughed Will; "Muff hasn't any brains."

"He's got as much as any cat!" flashed Sue.

"Not Muff!" Will laughed again. "You ought to see Sultan. Tell you what, mother, you'd better let Sue go when John drives me over, Monday morning, and I'll take her to see Miss Hepworth's cat."

Away went the hoop trundling down the walk, and away went Muff after it. "O mamma! can't I?" cried Sue.

Mamma smiled. That was as good as a yes any time.

So, early Monday morning, Sue was dressed in her pretty gray suit, with navy-blue ribbons, and settled on the back seat of the wagon beside Will; and John cracked the whip about the horses' ears, and off they went.

Miss Hepworth lived all alone in a little white house on a shady street, where she sold a few pins and needles, and a great many cakes and pies and candies and nuts.

She was a wee little Quaker lady, with silver-grey hair and eyes, and a plain drab gown, who came to the door when John pulled up before it, and gave Will a cheery smile, and Sue a kiss and a chirrupy "How do thee do, dear?" and then led the way into the little shop, where everything was as neat and shiny as a new pin.

"She came to see Sultan, Miss Hepworth," said Will, with a twinkle, after he had invested in a huge paper of candy which he tucked into Sue's hands. "She's got a cat at home that won't jump."

"Has thee?" smiled Miss Hepworth at Sue; "and does thee want to see my cat?"

"If you please," said Sue: and Miss Hepworth tripped to the door and called "Sultan!"

There was a streak along the little passage from somewhere, and Sultan stood on the threshold—a great yellow cat, looking at his mistress with great green, intelligent eyes.

"Thee may come in," said Miss Hepworth. "Wipe thy feet."

Sultan obeyed, stepping upon the trim little mat before the door, and lifting his feet, one after another, daintily.

Will threw Sue a triumphant glance, and Miss Hepworth smiled.

"Now, be a gentleman, Sultan," she said; and Sultan rose upon his hind feet and walked around the room, tipping his ear politely to his mistress and Sue.

"Can thee tell our little friend the sad story of the butcher's horse?" asked Miss Hepworth, stooping to pat the broad, yellow head.

Sultan began to limp, walking more and more slowly and painfully until at last he fell, rolled over on his side, quivered, and then lay limp and motionless.

Sue's eyes were very big and bright. "Oh, he isn't dead!" she cried.

"Goosey!" laughed Will. "Won't you let him waltz, Miss Hepworth?"

"Ye-es," hesitated Miss Hepworth, "but thee must remember that is not of my teaching. It is my roguish nephew's work," she said to Sue. "Thee may waltz, Sultan."

Up rose Sultan again, whirling across the floor.

Then he tossed a bit of cake from his nose and caught it as it fell: he found Miss Hepworth's thimble, which had been tucked into Sue's pocket; he sat up, and lapped milk from a tiny dipper which he held in his paws; he turned somersaults: he sneezed; he went through so many performances that Sue would not have been greatly surprised to hear him speak.

"Will he jump?" asked Will, soberly.

"I think he never tried," smiled Miss Hepworth. But she held up her yard-stick. "Over, Sultan," she said, and Sultan, after an instant's hesitation, bounded over.

"Now we must go," said Will. "Thank you, Miss Hepworth."

She drew a long breath. "You couldn't sell him, could you?" she asked, wistfully.

"I fear thee could not keep him," said Miss Hepworth, patting her cheek. "But thee must come again to see him, and thee must not go now until thee has had a bite to eat."

So Miss Hepworth brought out a little tray with a tumbler of rich milk and a plate of sweet cakes, and Sue, when she had said good-bye to Will for another four weeks, fed herself and Sultan generously, before she kissed Miss Hepworth and hugged Sultan and went away.

When she got home she unwound the hoop.

"I don't think it's any use, mamma," she said; "I guess Muff hasn't any brains. But," and she cuddled the little furry bunch in her arms, "he's a good deal the prettiest, ain't you, Muffy?"

And Muff said, "Me-ew!"—Youth's Companion.

Not Trustworthy.

One afternoon a gentleman was shown into Mr. Lamar's library.

"Mr. Lamar," said the visitor, "do you know a lad by the name of Gregory Bassett?"

"I guess so," replied Mr. Lamar, with a smile. "That is the young man," he added, nodding toward Gregory.

The latter was a boy aged about fourteen. He was drawing a map at the wide table near the window.

"A bright boy, I should judge, commented the visitor, looking over the top of his glasses. "He applied for a clerkship in my mill, and referred me to you. His letter of application shows that he is a good penman. How is he at figures?"

"Rapid and correct," was the reply.

"That's good! Honest, is he?"

"Oh, yes," answered Mr. Lamar.

"The work is not hard, and he will be rapidly promoted, should he deserve it. Oh! one question more, Mr. Lamar; is the boy trustworthy?"

"I regret to say that he is not," was the grave reply.

"Eh!" cried the visitor. "Then I don't want him."

That ended the interview.

"O uncle!" cried Gregory, bursting into tears.

He had set his heart upon obtaining the situation, and was very much disappointed over the result.

"Gregory, I could not deceive the gentleman," Mr. Lamar said, in a low tone, more regretful than stern. "You are not trustworthy, and it is a serious failing; nay, a fault, rather. Three instances occurred, within as many weeks, which sorely tried my patience, and cost me loss of time and money."

Mr Lamar's tone changed into one of reproach, and his face was dark with displeasure.

"I gave you some money to deposit in bank," he resumed. "You loitered until the bank was closed, and my note went to protest. One evening I told you to close the gate at the barn. You neglected to do so. The colt got out through the night, fell into a quarry and broke its leg. I had to shoot the pretty little thing, to put an end to its suffering."

Gregory lifted his hand in a humiliated way.

"Next I gave you a letter to mail. You loitered to watch a man with a tame bear. 'The nine o'clock mail will do,' you thought. But it didn't, being a way mail, and not a through mail. On the following day I went fifty miles to keep the appointment I had made. The gentleman was not there to meet me, because he had not received my letter. I lost my time, and I missed all the benefit of what would have been to me a profitable transaction. It is not too late for you to reform; and unless you do reform your life will prove a failure."

The lesson was not lost upon Gregory. He succeeded in getting rid of his heedless ways, and became prompt, precise, trustworthy.—S. S. Times.

Queer Conveyances.

Our little ones in the country may have smiled to see a chicken mounted on the old hen's back while she sat sunning herself in the yard. Perhaps the young thing with few feathers sang a soft "Cree-cree," to tell that he enjoyed his position. At night he would better like to be brooded under the mother wings. When Biddy got upon her feet and went marching on, off tumbled chick. Now he must use his own legs or be left behind. Those bits of legs may well be weary sometimes with long journeys about the farm.

One or two species of birds are known to fly long distances, carrying their young on their backs. Small birds take passage across the Mediterranean Sea on the backs of large and stronger ones. They could not fly so far. Their strength would give out, and they would drop in the water and drown.

Along the northern shore of the sea, in autumn, these little birds assemble, to wait the coming of cranes from the North, as people wait for the train at a railroad station. With the first cold blast the cranes arrive, flock after flock. They fly low over the cultivated fields. They utter a peculiar cry, as of warning or calling. It answers the same purpose as the ringing of the bell when the train is about to start. The small birds understand it so. They get excited. They hasten aboard, scrambling for places. The first to come get the best seats. If the passengers are too many, some will have to flit back to the hedges till the next train. How they chatter good-byes—those who go and those who stay. No tickets have they, but all the same they are conveyed safely. Doubtless the great birds like this warm covering for their backs. In this way the small birds pay their fare. And it is these last who must be out in the wet if it storms. The little passengers are of different species, like Americans, Irish, Germans and Chinese traveling together in cars or steamships. Their journey takes them through the air, high above the wide sweep of waters. They are close companions on the way. By and by they reach the beautiful South country. There they build nests and sing sweetly, as they build here and sing for us in our happy summer-time. Indeed, God cares for the sparrows.—Our Little Ones.

—The man who invented the first steam whistle for a locomotive has recently died in Montreal. His name was Henry C. Buckey; he was a Connecticut man, a mechanic of great skill, and for many years a foreman in the pattern department of Trask's great car and locomotive works in Springfield, Mass. He made the patterns for one of the first engines of the Boston & Albany Railroad.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. SEPT. 5. 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

Column	1 year	$80
½	"	40
¼	"	20
[illegible] "	1 "	20
[illegible] "	[illegible] "	10
[illegible] "	[illegible] "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices [illegible] lines free; over that number (excepting the announcement of the death) 5 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

Top of the morning to his excellency, Gov. Knott.

JAVA'S late experience with earthquakes surpasses any recorded in history.

THE northern margin of the county has been blessed with rain this season.

THE rumbling sound of the thunder last Sunday evening was a welcome racket.

GOV. BLACKBURN called out the State guards to assist in the inauguration of Gov. Knott.

THERE'll be a rush from this side of the river to Aurora this weeek to capture more premiums.

A BAND of horse thieves has been broken up in Caldwell county. Five of them are under arrest.

THE Lawrenceburg Daily Press after a three months career has gone to sleep under the daises.

C. B. CLARKSTON'S trial, of which we made mention last week, was continued until next February.

WE notice by our exchanges that there is much territory in this state where the want of rain prevails.

THE Presidential party enjoy the western breezes. They had no fear of being set upon and captured and held for ransom.

THE prize for gentlemen's riding at the Aurora Fair this week is a $25 silver coffee urn. There is a chance for some gentleman to earn a handsome prize.

THE indications now are that it will require but very little earnest work of Mr. Carlisle's friends to elect him to the United States Senate. Let the work be done.

Blue-grass, short-horns, race-horses, mules and colonels are indigenous to Kentucky.--[State Journal.

Why didn't you include handsome ladies and good whisky?

JOEL C. CLORE'S closing address at the Institute last Thursday was a great credit to the young gentleman. His effort shows a literary taste which he will industriously develop.

A NEW YORK paper suggests that instead of opening the Louisville Exposition with President Arthur, it would have been more Kentucky-like to have opened it with a corkscrew.

HOGGISH—Select butchers and heavy shippers, $5 20@5 40; fair to good packers, at $4 80@5 15; fair to good light, $5 50@5 75; common, $4 00@4 70; culls, $3 00@4 00; stock hogs, $4 50@5 25.

THE management of the Southern Exposition has decided to allow the Exposition opened a portion of the day on Sunday. This will be greatly to the advantage of the laboring class, who have no other day upon which they can visit that place.

THE receipts of the Lawrenceburg Fair were upwards of $4,000, which puts the association on a good, solid footing, and with the enterprise of those who are managing the business of the association, grand improvements of the grounds may be looked for before the next exhibition.

THE commissioner of Internal Revenue, says that a recent analysis shows that Hostettors Bitters are little else than alcoholic liquors, and that they are being sold as an alcoholic beverage; therefore persons who are selling them are liable to the payment of tax as retail liquor dealers.

WHATEVER their personal preferences, legislators usually reflect the sentiments and wishes of their constituency in matters of this sort. And the popular sentiment in Western Kentucky, in the matter of General Williams' successor, is pretty unanimously centered towards John G. Carlisle.—Clinton Democrat.

The Teachers' Institute.

Burlington has been once more the scene of the annual "festivities" of the teachers of Boone county. On last Tuesday Morgan Academy opened its doors, as of yore, and welcomed a small number of faithful teachers. Little was done the forenoon the first day except to effect the organization of the body, selecting a critic and hear a discourse on orthography by Mr. Conner. The interesting feature of the afternoon's exercises was an able address delivered by Mr. Newton, of Walton.

Wednesday the attendance was considerably increased, and in the forenoon Miss Hallie Stephens read an essay on penmanship which was entitled to much praise and elicited the highest encomium on the part of the critic, Prof. Gallagher. In the afternoon the monotony of the discussion of the common school branches was varied by a breezy little difference of opinion on the part of some of the brethren, in regard to compulsory education.

Just before adjournment for the day Mr. Conner entered his protest to the ruling of the Commissioner wherein the Commissioner decided that one day's attendance of the Institute and contributing to the defraying of the expenses by a teacher constituted a legal attendance. Having had his protest noted Mr. Conner asked an appeal and tendered his resignation as one of the board of examiners. This episode produced another short season of speech making in which Revs. Douglas and Froh participated. At times some of the speakers appeared very earnest in their remarks.

Thursday morning the subject of English Grammar was introduced by Orlando Snyder, and was made especially interesting and instructive by an argument on the English language, in general, by Profs Gallagher and Connor and Rev. Douglas. Let us remark in our humble capacity of reporter, that some of the gentlemen overlooked the tact that the language spoken in the United States is not the English language, but when mentioned as a separate language, may be called "Yankee Slang."

In the after noon a large crowd assembled to witness the closing exercises of the session. Prof. Newton, of Walton, was on the programme for an address on the gradation of teachers, but not being present the subject was treated by William Dicker, of Bellevue, who made a very good presentation of the subject considering the time he had for preparation.

The closing address, by Joel C. Clore, of Hebron, was well delivered and pronounced good by everyone.

Revs. Froh, Dunlap and Douglas deserve thanks for the interest they manifested in the Institute.

Profs. Early and Gallagher are good critics.

Visitors from a distance were not as numerous as common.

Union was well represented.

PROF. GALLAGHER had some internal improvement done on the Morgan Academy. The walls and ceiling were whitewashed.

THE farmers all agreed Monday that rain is badly needed. The corn crop in Boone can not now help being shorter than for many years.

CARROLLTON will soon be connected by telephone with both Cincinnati and Louisville. Carrollton will soon begin putting on metropolitan heirs.

HON. J. C. S. BLACKBURN has withdrawn from the race for the Speakership, which narrows the race down to three candidates, Carlisle, Randall and Cox.

SENATOR SHERMAN says he will not be a candidate for the presidency in 1884. He was deceived so much by pretended friends in 1880, he does not intend to risk more such deception.

The Cincinnati Enquirer and the Commercial Gazette are engaged in their periodical mud-slinging. Their articles may be very interesting reading to the editors of those great journals, but the edification that the public receives thereby is small.

W. S. HOLMAN, our neighbor just across the Ohio, is being boomed for the Presidency. The New York Sun started the boom. Holman's record in Congress can not be assailed, and no doubt he would be as watchful of the public's interest were he in the White House as he has been while in the national councils.

The attendance at court last Monday was not large, and not much business was done in court, the larger part of the day being consumed by the Geisler-Tafferty trial, which again resulted in a hung jury, being the second jury which has disagreed. It begins to look like a change of venue will be a necessity yet.

THE Cincinnati Exposition opens to-day with a great flourish of trumpets.

ONLY five weeks till the Ohio election. The political fur will be made fly from now on.

THE farm just below Bellevue, and belonging to the heirs of J. H. Akin, will be sold at public auction at 2 p. m. on the 29th inst.

NINE persons lost their lives in a burning building in Cincinnati, Monday afternoon. Several of the firemen came near being buried by the falling ruins.

R. A. CASKIE laid a hen egg on our table last week, that was shaped like a small gourd, handle and all.—Clark County Democrat.

Mr. Caskie is a remarkable man. He ought to be on exhibition.

The license of the druggists of Owenton having expired, under the localoption law, if a man is bitten by a poisonous reptile he has got to die, if it require whisky to save him, because the druggists can't sell it, and they are all too "mean" to give it away.--

TRULY you are in a critical condition, Bro. Lillard.

Subscribe for the RECORDER.

STATE NEWS.

—Warren county gave the second largest democratic vote of any county in the State.

—The white fair at Mt. Sterling did not pay expenses; the fair of the colored people cleared $300.

—Glasgow Times: Mr. Wm. Johnson, of Fountain Run, Monroe county, died last week at the age of ninety-three. His wife, aged eighty-three, is still living. They had been married sixty-nine years.

Lebanon Standard: Monday night Mrs. C. A. Johnston, who was sleeping in the second story of her residence on West Main street, dreamed that there were burglars in her room and, rising, rushed to the window and leaped out, alighting in a flower-bed and spraining an ankle severely.

—W. H. Lowedenback, who has a small pond of water, put some German carp in it October last. A few weeks since he caught two of them, one weighing one pound, the other one and one-half pounds. He thinks there are larger ones in the pond.—Warsaw Independent.

—Marion Press: The suit about the Wallace land which has been pending for some time in the courts of this county was entirely completed, Monday, when the Commissioner filed the five deeds conveying the land, as divided, to the five sets of heirs. There is 2,990 acres of the land, and was divided according to its value in tracts ranging from 300 to 1,400 acres.

—Vanceburg Courier: A bridal couple went to Manchester Saturday to purchase a trosseau, and among other articles the bride invested in a fine hat, and upon returning to the boat laid it in one of the rooms for safe-keeping. A woman on the boat said to wear the title of Bylew, from Adams county, slipped on the hat, covered it with a dark vail and walked ashore, leaving the happy bride in blissful ignorance of her loss.

—The Vanceburg Courier has the following fat and characteristic headlines over a shooting scrape: "Pistols at a Picnic—The Coverlet of Green Bedecked With Crimson Flow—While Asa Barkley and Lumuel Hughes Make Battle Toe to Toe—With Shattered Limb and Wounded Wrist the Hughes' go to grass—And the Pistol and Club Lays Asa Out, and His Fighting Days Are Past—Toe Nails Smothered in Powder Gore—And the Like Was Never Seen Before."

—Clark County Democrat: A cyclone passed through that part of Fayette county to the southeast of Athens, last Tuesday. Jas. and John Gess had seventeen acres of fine tobacco ready for the knife entirely destroyed by hail, and forty acres of corn swept from the face of the earth. Dr. Geo. O. Graves' tobacco barn was destroyed, and his neighbors suffered in their tobacco crops to the value of thousands of dollars. Over 100 acres of tobacco in that neighborhood was utterly ruined. Portions of Madison and Clark also suffered some damage.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

[Courier-Journal.]

—Selma, Ala., talks of quarantining against Pensacola.

—Cotton worms are eating the corn in Pike county, Mississippi.

—Danville, Va., Female College is rapidly approaching completion.

—Surveys are now being made for a belt-railroad for switching purposes at Chattanooga.

—Johnson county, Tenn., has the best crop of wheat that has been produced in twenty years.

—R. R. Phillips, of Butler, Ga., has a beet which measures two feet and three inches and weighs four pounds.

—The Atlanta Constitution notes the flight of a large number of refugees from the fever at Pensacola, who are passing through that city.

—A monument to the memory of the Confederate dead buried at Staunton, Va., will soon be erected, steps have been taken toward that end

Just From New York
WITH A
Full LINE of FALL SUITINGS,
—AND—
OVERCOATS.

The above stock was carefully selected, and consists of all the NEW STYLES of FALL GOODS, and you can not fail to be pleased with the Goods and Prices.

H. F. BLASE,
540 Madison St, - COVINGTON, KY.

—During the last six or seven years 1,200,000 acres of land have been sold to actual settlers along the line of the Little Rock and Fort Smith railway.

—Chattanooga Times: Yesterday a large Crozier evaporating establishment begun operation in this city. Mr. T. H. Hill, one of our representative go-ahead citizens, is the proprietor. He employs ten hands, and can evaporate 100 bushels of apples and seventy-five bushels of peaches each day. The outlook is very promising, and he feels very confident of success.

—A Georgia lad, eleven years of age, has cultivated thirty acres of land in corn and ten acres in peas the present year. All the work has been done with a harrow, keeping the surface of the land well pulverized and perfectly level. The neighbors and his father say the thirty acres in corn will make 900 bushels, and now 150 or 200 bushels of peas are ripe and ready for gathering. No one has assisted the little fellow, he doing all the work himself.

—Special reports to the Savannah Morning News from forty-five counties in Georgia and Florida upon the condition of the cotton crop, state that the drouth has been generally broken and the outlook is brighter There is some fear of rust and damage by worms and caterpillars in some counties. The prospects in Florida are better than in Georgia, owing to the more frequent rains. Caterpillars are numerous in the latter State. Picking has begun to a limited extent. Labor is generally in good supply.

—A copy of a newspaper published by confederate prisoners at Fort Delaware has been brought to light. The entire work of publishing this paper was done with a pen—although it is a sheet of four pages, with three column to the page. It was published by Capt. S. W. Hibb, of the Thirteenth Virginia infantry; Capt. Geo. S. Thomas, Sixty-fourth Georgia; Lieut. A. Harris, Third Florida. Advertising rates were fifty cents per square. The copy is the property of Mr. Charles W. Wimberley and was brought from Fort Delaware by his father, who was a prisoner at that time, and who bestowed much labor upon the paper himself.

—Nashville Banner: Some few weeks ago R. G. Smiley employed workmen to drill a well on his farm, five miles from the city, on the Brick Church turnpike. The well was completed a few days ago, but the water is so strong of various minerals that it is unfit for general use. When the water is first pumped up it is as clear as crystal, but from standing it turns black as ink. The most remarkable feature about this well, however, is that it furnishes an excellent quality of lighting gas. When the cap is taken off of the globe on the pump a stream of gas rushes out, and when a light is applied will burn, giving forth a beautiful, bright light. This well is only a short distance from a similar one discovered on the farm of Mr. Cartwright.

Notice.

500 stock sheep for sale. Call on the undersigned at Bullittsville Boone county, Kentucky. ALFRED S. GAINES.

For Sale.

A good cow and calf—the cow is fresh and a number one milch cow, apply to C. L. CRISLER, Burlington, Ky.

FOR SALE.

A full blooded Alderney cow—will be fresh in the spring. She is very gentle and a good milker. CY RIDDELL, Hebron, Ky.

ADMINISTRATORS NOTICE.

Persons having claims against the estate of Erastus Garrison, decd., are hereby notified to present them to the undersigned proven as by law required. Persons indebted to the estate are requested to come foward and settle their indebtedness at once. C. T. RICE, Admr.

Strayed.

A red and white speckled heifer, two years old, will weigh about 750 pounds—left the pasture about the first of July. Any one giving information as to her whereabouts will be thankfully received.
JERRY BEEMON, Florence X-Roads.

Farm for Sale!

35 acres of good rolling bottom land, 3½ miles below Aurora ferry, ½ mile from Bellevue and ¼ mile from the Ohio river, being part of the Warren Rogers farm. For particulars call on or address T. H. SUTTON, Grant P. O., Ky., or at this office. 44-2 m

ATTENTION!
Attention! Attention

If you want to buy a first-class organ
If you want to buy a first-class
Piano. If you want to exchange your old instrument. If you want to receive their full value.
If you want an instrument of any kind If you want to exchange your old sewing machine. If you want to buy the best new sewing machine. If you want to receive a five years warrant with every purchase,
bring or send your orders to G. S. Lozier
Gen. Agent,
Lawrence-
burg,
Indiana,
Office & Sales
Room in Dr. C. G.
Walters' building, Corner Short and Tate Streets.
Send for Prices and Circulars.
All mail orders filled promptly.
A fine display of Organs, Pianos
and Sewing Machines will be on exhibition at Lawrenceburg and Aurora
Fairs. Call and examine them and leave orders.

LUMBER.

Goe. M. Bedinger & Co.,
Erlanger, - - Ky.

We keep constantly on hand all kinds of Lumber, Laths and Shingles. Also Builder's supplies of all kinds.

—Come and see Us.—
may 9-tf

Farm for Sale.

I am offering for sale my farm, lying 3 miles south of Burlington on the Big Bone road, containing 55½ acres, a part of the Mason Crisler farm. The land lays well and is conveniently located, the improvements are a good brick house and all necessary out buildings, and a variety of good fruit. Any person desirous of purchasing a nice farm will do well to come and examine the premises and learn terms. Title good. MRS. OSCAR CRISLER.

Farm for Sale.

A small farm of 11½ acres, on the Covington and Lexington pike, at the top of Willow Run Hill. On it are a commodious house, necessary out buildings and a good orchard. Title good. Call on W. C. Tupman, Sheriff's Office, Covington, Thomas Tupman, Kenton Heights or W. L. Riddell, Burlington.

For Sale.
70 Stands of Bees.

I will sell the entire lot at $5 per stand, or will sell 35 stands at $6 per stand. Persons buying one or two stands can get them at $10 per stand. A larger number will be sold proportionally cheaper. No honey has been taken from the brood department, and the stands are all in good order.
E. E. UTZ.

NOTICE.

A dividend of 50 cents on each share of the Burlington and Florence turnpike is declared and ordered to be paid on demand by the treasurer DUDLEY ROUSE.
Aug. 11th, 1883.

NOTICE.

All persons having claims against the estate of Churchell Clore, decd., will present them properly proven as by law required. HENRY CLORE, WM. CLORE, Executors.

LOOK HERE!
when you go to Lawrenceburg, call on
Winegardner
He has a large assortment of
Wall Paper!
And is daily receiving additions to his stock. Call and examine before purchasing.
Inks, Pens and Stationary
constantly on hand.
Headquarters in Lotton House.

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.
Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice,
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
33-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS
FOR THE LIVER
And all Billous Complaints
Safe to take, being purely vegetable; no griping. Price 25 cts. All Druggists.

INCORPORATED UNDER THE LAWS OF MISSOURI.
CENTRAL MEDICAL & SURGICAL INSTITUTE
OF ST. LOUIS, MO.
SUCCESSORS TO DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY. OFFICE & ROOMS, No. 920 LOCUST ST.
CHAS. L. LaBARGE, M.D., Pres't & Physician in Charge.
NELSON CHESMAN, Treas. & Business Manager.

This Institute has ample facilities and an experienced Faculty. While it succeeds to a large business, which has been established for years, it will aim to extend its medical and surgical practice, giving skillful and scientific treatment to CHRONIC DISEASES of the Head, Spine, Lungs and Air Passages, Heart, Liver, Stomach and Bowels, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Consumption and Asthma. BLOOD IMPURITIES, Inherited or caused by impure association, Scrofula, Fever Sores, Ulcers, etc. DEFORMITIES of the Limbs, Spinal Curvature, Wry-Neck, Diseases of the Joints, Piles, Fistula, Rupture, etc. WEAKNESS [illegible] wasting diseases in old and young men, also all diseases of the genito-urinary organs. FEMALE Irregularities and weaknesses, causing pain in the back or side, etc. Personal interviews with patients are always preferred. Those unable to visit the Institute will be furnished with blank lists of questions that will aid them in making a full statement of their cases and if not requiring a surgical operation they can be successfully treated by correspondence, and medicines sent by mail or express. To enable us to send proper list of questions applicants should give a brief statement of their trouble. The Treasurer of the corporation is of Nelson Chesman & Co. Advertising Agents, and refers to the publisher of this or any other newspaper in the United States or Canada regarding responsibility. Consultation at Office or by mail free and invited

TUTT'S PILLS
TORPID BOWELS,
DISORDERED LIVER,
and MALARIA.
From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect
ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.
Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.
GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.
Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.
TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

VIGOROUS HEALTH FOR MEN
THE PASTILLE CURE TRADE MARK FOR NERVOUS DEBILITY.
TESTED FOR 5 YEARS
by use in thousands of cases. Founded on scientific medical principles, it has been growing in favor and reputation while its numerous competitors have invariably failed. The direct application of this remedy to the seat of the disease makes its specific influence felt without delay. The natural functions of the human organism are restored. The animating elements of life which have been wasted are given back. The buoyant energy of the brain and muscular system renders the patient cheerful; he gains strength with rapidity.
NERVOUS DEBILITY, organic weakness, and numerous obscure diseases, baffling the skill of best physicians, result from youthful indiscretion, too free indulgence, and over brain work.
Do not temporize while such enemies lurk in your system. Take a remedy that has cured thousands, and does not interfere with your attention to business or cause any pain or inconvenience.
(Send for a Descriptive Pamphlet giving Anatomical Illustrations, which will convince the most sceptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fitted for the duties of life, same as if never affected. Sent free to any one. Remedy sold ONLY by the)
HARRIS REMEDY CO. MFG. CHEMISTS.
306½ N. 10th. St. ST. LOUIS, MO.
One Month's treatment $3. two months $5. three months $7

NAVAL Agents Wanted for Ancient & Modern BATTLES.
New and graphic Pictorial History of the great Sea fights of the World. By Medical Director SHIPPEN, U. S. N. Address J. C. McCURDY & CO., 130 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard Books & Bibles works of character; great variety; Books & Bibles low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 30 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

AYER'S
Ague Cure
IS WARRANTED to cure all cases of malarial disease, such as Fever and Ague, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Bilious Fever, and Liver Complaint. In case of failure, after due trial, dealers are authorized, by our circular of July 1st, 1882, to refund the money.
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists.

INJECTION
SANTINELI
Cures all recent and chronic secret diseases of the Urinary passages in both sexes. Directions in all languages. $1.00 a bottle Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of price secure from observation. Fairmount Chemical Co. Cincinnati, Ohio, U. S. A. Sold by W. F. M'Kim Burlington

Cut This Out & Return to us with TEN CTS. Silver, & you'll get by mail, a GOLDEN BOX OF GOODS that will bring you in MORE MONEY in One Month than anything else in America. Absolute certainty. Either Sex. No capital. M. Young, 173 Greenwich St. N. York.

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley.
County Surveyor—W. R. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U. Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk A. G. DeJarnette, Commonwealths Attorney; N. E. Hawes, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. Ed Fowler, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday. Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday; and E. A. Loder fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

Beever—W. M. Rouse, Friday after the third Monday, and

E. E. IGOE,
Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun, Ind.

AYER'S PILLS.
A large proportion of the diseases which cause human suffering result from derangement of the stomach, bowels, and liver. AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS act directly upon these organs, and are especially designed to cure the diseases caused by their derangement, including Constipation, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Headache, Dysentery, and a host of other ailments, for all of which they are a safe, sure, prompt, and pleasant remedy. The extensive use of these PILLS by eminent physicians in regular practice, shows unmistakably the estimation in which they are held by the medical profession.
These PILLS are compounded of vegetable substances only, and are absolutely free from calomel or any other injurious ingredient.
A Sufferer from Headache writes:
"AYER'S PILLS are invaluable to me, and are my constant companion. I have been a severe sufferer from Headache, and your PILLS are the only thing I could look to for relief. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain. They are the most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. It is a pleasure to me to speak in their praise, and I always do so when occasion offers.
W. L. PAGE, of W. L. Page & Bro."
Franklin St., Richmond, Va., June 3, 1882.
"I have used AYER'S PILLS in numberless instances as recommended by you, and have never known them to fail to accomplish the desired result. We constantly keep them on hand at our home, and prize them as a pleasant, safe, and reliable family medicine. FOR DYSPEPSIA they are invaluable. J. T. HAYES."
Mexia, Texas, June 17, 1882.
The REV. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, writing from Atlanta, Ga., says: "For some years past I have been subject to constipation, from which, in spite of the use of medicines of various kinds, I suffered increasing inconvenience, until some months ago I began taking AYER'S PILLS. They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and have vastly improved my general health."
AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS correct irregularities of the bowels, stimulate the appetite and digestion, and by their prompt and thorough action give tone and vigor to the whole physical economy.
PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists.

YOUNG, OLD, AND MIDDLE-AGED.
All experience the wonderful beneficial effects of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
Children with Sore Eyes, Sore Ears, or any scrofulous or syphilitic taint, may be made healthy and strong by its use.
Sold by all Druggists; $1, six bottles for $5.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfumes. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON COLOGNE
Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. [illegible] be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N.Y., on every label. [illegible]

Paynes' Automatic Farm Engines
OF ALL KINDS.—Established 1840.

Our 10-Horse Spark Arresting Threshing Engine has cut 10,000 feet Pine Lumber in 10 hours. Will burn wood 6 feet long, coal, straw and corn stalks. Send for Price List and Catalogue G. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N.Y.

$1000 REWARD
For any machine hulling and cleaning fit for market as much Clover Seed in one day as the [illegible]

VICTOR
ILLUSTRATED Pamphlet mailed FREE.
NEWARK MACHINE CO., NEWARK, O.
W. N. STAGE, Gen. Traveling Agt. Louisville Ky

STATE COLLEGE OF KENTUCKY.
UNSECTARIAN. Fall session begins Sept. 12, 1883. Fifteen Professors and Instructors. Scientific, Classical, Agricultural, Normal School and Commercial Courses of Study. Tuition and Matriculation fee $30 per annum. Board in dormitory, $2.50 per week; in private families, $4 to $5. Buildings, apparatus & machinery entirely new. Capacity for 600 students. [illegible] apply to [illegible] JAS. K. PATTERSON, Ph. D., President of the College, Lexington, Ky.

"THE BEST IS CHEAPEST."
ENGINES, THRESHERS SAW-MILLS, Horse Powers, Clover Hullers
(Suited to all sections.) Write for FREE Illus. Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

NEVER FAILS
FREE!
RELIABLE SELF-CURE.
A favorite prescription of one of the most noted and successful specialists in the U.S. (now retired) for the cure of Nervous Debility, Lost Manhood, Weakness and Decay. Sent in plain sealed envelope free. Druggists can fill it.
Address DR. WARD & CO., Louisiana, Mo.

PAYSONS INDELIBLE INK
Is the BEST. No preparation. Used with any clean pen for marking any fabric. Popular for decorative work on linen. Received Centennial MEDAL & Diploma. Established 50 years. Sold by all Druggists, Stationers & News Ag'ts.

Local News.

The dust is almost stifling.

Good ague weather this.

A done-over silk hat brigade is being organized in Burlington.

Clean up your coal-houses, and make room for about ——.

Better black your stove, and knock the rust from the stove pipe.

Our Plattsburg correspondent tells of the mammoth watermelon this week.

After the Kentons made their first run the Boones did not try to shut them out.

The melons that are being brought to this market are as fine sized as grow in this country.

Ayer's Ague Cure is a warranted specific for all malarial diseases and billary derangements.

James Conner and J. H. Walton started fifty-four head of very fine cattle to market last Friday.

W. N. Smith was in town Thursday. He had a full hand of trumps, which he got off in his usual good style.

The Aurora Fair is in progress this week, and a good exhibiton and attendance is counted on for all week.

All hands and the cook were fooled again last Sunday by the threatening elements. Only a light shower fell.

Next Saturday there will be a meeting of the board of examiners, at this place, for the examination of teachers.

Jim Conner and Tim Westbay are serving their country by purchasing plug horses and selling them out of the county.

W. J. Rice stepped higher and smiled more freely last Wednesday than any other man in his neighborhood—it is a handsome girl.

A gentleman remarked the other day that Burlington has the finest hogs of any place he knew of. They are always on exhibition here.

Mr. S. P. Brady has given the John P. Scott house which he bought at commissioner's sale, not long since, a thorough renovating.

Joe Reed is giving the French language some attention. Joe wants to be a linguist and with the linguist stand,—with his eye glasses on.

At a meeting of the Boone base-ball club Saturday evening, E. W. Duncan resigned as manager, and Richard Gorden was chosen to fill the place.

The sale of personal property of Churchell Clore, last week, was well attended and things brought good prices. Corn in the crib sold for $3 per barrel.

We would be exceedingly glad to see Prof. Gallagher build up a good school at this place. There are no reasons why a good school can not be sustained here.

John R. Whitson came to town Monday and notified the Commonwealth that he would not serve in the capacity of Coroner for Boone county. Cropper is the next man on the list. Come on Buddie with your bondsmen.

Nice tombstones or monuments at the graves of the departed, are marks of respect which should not be neglected. Hurschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., have just what you want. John Beall, of Hebron, is their agent.

I take this means of notifying the public that I am prepared to grind corn at my mill on the Burlington and Petersburg pike near Legrand Gaines' and solicit the patronage of the surrounding country. Will grind every Friday.

4t-43 LEWIS GRAHAM.

We, this week, communicate to Judge Batterson, of Francesville, the sad intelligence that "that garden of ours" had a terrible and desperate struggle with a regiment of swine, the other night, and that it came out of the conflict badly mutilated. Hogs are more injurious to a garden than dry weather.

Mrs. Platt and daughter, Miss Katie, who have resided here since last May, move from here to-day. Miss Katie will go to Hanover, Indiana, to attend school, while her mother will stop with her son in Bellevue for a short time, when she will also go to Hanover, to keep house. We trust their brief sojourn here has been pleasant.

Miss Hallie Stephen's essay on penmanship, read the second day of the Teachers' Institute, was the most noteworthy feature of the session. She handled the subject in a manner which showed conclusively that she is eminently prepared to teach that branch, an accomplishment in which many of our teachers are deficient. The essay was highly complimented by all who were so fortunate as to hear it.

The young ladies who have been spending the past few weeks at the home of Mrs. J. W. Lall, near Silver Lake, Ky., can never forget the good time they have had through the kindness of their hostess. She did everything to make life enjoyable, for the Misses Lillie and Jessie Howell, Miss Etta Ross and Miss Blanch Mayberry, of Covington, and Misses Nellie McGregor and Mollie Kinsiy, of Cincinnati. They return to their homes with the wish that they may all meet next summer at the same lovely place and swing in hammocks, ride horse back, sail on the lake and enjoy all that comes in their way.

Last but not least the "hay ride" under the brilliant rays of the sun and moon. Many were the rides they enjoyed behind the prize horses of Mr. Lall. Mr. Hedges also entertained the company many nights by allowing them to dance to the music of his violin.

QUITE A SURPRISE.

John R. Whitson, Cononer Elect, of Boone County Serenaded.

An Enthusiastic Crowd of From 3 to 400 with a Brass Band Gather at His Residence Near Union, and have a Big Time.

Mr. Whitson welcomed the crowd with a short Speech—Followed by Several other Eloquent Orators.

UNION, KY., Sept. 3.—A large and enthusiastic crowd of the friends of John R. Whitson, Coroner elect of Boone County assembled at Union on Saturday evening, August 25th, and, preceded by a brass band repaired to Mr. W's. residence, a short distance south of the town for the purpose of serenading him. Mr. Whitson though completely taken by surprise soon recovered his equanimity, and welcomed the assembled multitude in a short speech, thanking them for their hearty and cordial support, for the high office to which he was elected. Congratulatory speeches were made by Judge R. B. Reed, Col. A. D. Riley, J. L. Frazier, Esq., J. J. Childress, of Union, and several eloquent orators from Indiana.

Resolutions were adopted censuring Messrs. Dills, Sleet and Baker for voting their honest sentiments, and also censuring certain parties for not voting their honest sentiments.

After refreshments, and several soul stirring pieces by the band the crowd, variously estimated at from 3 to 400, dispersed quietly to their homes, well pleased with the evening's entertainment.

* * *

Base-ball.

The game between the Kentons and the Boones last Saturday resulted in a victory for the Kentons in a score of 14 to 4. The Kentons expected to shut the Boones out, and when they got a run in on the fourth inning, and increased their score three in the fifth, the Kentons took very little interest in the remainder of the game, not trying to increase their score. Snyder of the Boones was not able to play and Botts was put on first where he was disabled early in the fight, after which Duncan took that position. Hankins played second well, while Hughes made a good center fielder. The batting of the teams was about equal, but in fielding the Boones were badly left. The following is the score by innings:

Innings	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	T
Kentons	2	5	1	2	0	0	0	4	0	14
Boones	0	0	0	1	3	0	0	0	0	4

The Speedwell and the Elijah Creek nines played a very nice game at Hebron Saturday, the score standing 8 to 11 in favor of the latter club.

Hugh Ingram, the gate keeper on the Lexington pike near Walton, suicided last Saturday night by hanging. The place selected for carrying out his rash act was the bridge that crosses the Southern railroad near his house. His wife had noticed that he had been acting strangely and had grown uneasy about him. He came in late that night and found her awaiting him. They retired together and Mrs. Ingram had been sleeping but a short time when she awoke and missed him. She at once instituted a search and not being successful called her neighbors to her assistance, and the body was found in a short time suspended from the bridge. It is supposed that financial trouble was the cause of the suicide.

The teachers who taught in the following districts last year failed to attend the institute this year or give satisfactory excuse for their failure, consequently their certificates stand revoked and can only be restored by proper excuse given in writing: 4, 6, 8, 9, 11, 20, 22, 25, 26, 44, 40, 42 and 43.

DAVID SNYDER, School Comr.

The lack of school apparatus was painfully evident at the Teachers' Institute on Thursday. An ancient pedagogue tramping round the busky person of a bald headed secretary, trying to illustrate the motions of the heavenly bodies with a stump lead pencil and a dilapidated derby hat, was a sight to make angels weep.

James Westbay and Jumbo became intimate friends during the latter's sojourn in this section, and when they parted at Covington last Friday, the scene was effecting—Jum sitting on Jim's lap, shedding tears as large as cabbage heads, while Jim carressed him and gave him a farwell smack.

When the Boones go to Covington to play the Kentons the return game they will have a chance to make two runs, one in at the gate before the game, and one out at the gate after the game.

Mrs. Nancy Snyder, whose illness was mentioned in this column last week, died Saturday morning. She was a pioneer citizen, and many are the friends she left behind.

The Aurora Independent says: "Peter Zimmerman who runs the ferry here is the most accommodating man to the traveling public who ever had charge of the boat."

Last Thursday evening a bevy of young folks assembled at the Morgan Academy and spent several hours very pleasantly tripping the light fantastic.

Boarding schools and colleges are causing a movement among the younger classes this week.

All of Burlington went to Bullittsville, Saturday, to see the Kentons shut out by the Boones.

If there is not considerable rain this month fall plowing for wheat will have to be abandoned.

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

James B. Casey, of Covington, was in town Monday.

Miss Gussie Kirkpatrick has been very sick for several days.

Wm. Glen, of Cincinnati, spent Sunday with his aunt at this place.

Mr. J. C. Hume, of Cincinnati, was visiting Miss Katie Platt, Sunday.

Misses Mary and Euna Light, of Covington, are visiting their relaves at this place.

W. L. Gedge, of Covington, was in town Monday, shaking hands with his many friends.

Mr. M. F. Davrainville, of Cincinnati, and Miss Kate Bradford, of Florence, spent Sunday with Mrs. Lillie Hall.

Miss Eva Redford and brother Lee, and Mr. James Black, of Glasgow, Ky., are the guests of John M. Moody and family of Bellevue.

Eddie McKenzie, of St. Louis, Mo., arrived here last Saturday evening. Since locating in the Future Great he has developed into a splendid newspaper man, and now holds a position on the Evening Chronicle, of that city. Eddie's old schoolmates and friends are glad to know of his success.

Jumbo would make a fine lot of steak.

Alex Buckner and one of his Colcago friends, were in town Monday sizing up horses.

Judge N. E. Hawes made his daughter, Mrs. F. Riddell, a present of a carriage, Monday.

The North Bend Association meets with the Bullittsburg church to-day, and continues in session three days.

Our tribe of fishermen made another raid on the finny tribe in the Ohio, the other day. The fish in that stream are getting very scarce.

There will be a Sunday-school celebration at Hopeful Church, the fourth Saturday in September, and a general invitation is extended to all.

And now comes the young ladies and propose planting a croquet set in the Court-house yard. Croquet is rapidly becoming an epidemic in Burlington.

The Quarterly Court was is session, Tuesday, trying the Grant-Gaines case which came up on appeal from Esquire Loder's court. G. G. Hughes was presiding. Judgment for Gaines.

Sheriff Clutterbuck executed his official bond Tuesday, and, by the way, it is a good one, bearing the name of several who signed his bond when he was appointed.

Nearly everybody in the county who has children took them to the show last Friday, and those who had none of their own borrowed of their neighbors for the occasion.

Rev. Elijah Hoffman, of Wilmington, Ind., will address the grangers at the School-house near John Berkshires on the 3d Saturday in this month, at 2 o'clock p. m., sharp.

Bob Willhoit, son of Milton Willhoit, of near Florence, died Sunday morning at 5 o'clock, of heart disease. He was buried Monday at 10 o'clock in the family burying ground.

J. Frank Grant, of Petersburg, will take his trotting mare to Louisville, where her speed will be tested on the Louisville tract, and if she times right, he will enter her for the fall races there.

DIED—On the 3d inst., at her residence in Rising Sun, Mrs. Louisa Stephens, wife of James N. Stephens. The deceased was 86 years old, and had an extensive circle of relatives in this county.

John R. Smith, of Francisville, it is said, has 25 acres of as fine tobacco as ever grows in this county. It was planted early, and got such a start that the drouth had no effect on it. He is now putting it in the house.

Monday the Commissioner sold to Henry Stephens, Joseph and Clara G. Botts' lots in the division of Rowland Botts' land, the former for $750 and the latter for $,020. Mr. Stephens also purchased Mrs. Sargeants lot in same division for $1,050.

Riddell & Norris go to Aurora this week with their stable of fancy saddle and harness horses. They have always been very successful exhibitors, and are maintaining their reputation this season. We wish them good luck and an abundance of blue ribbon.

Our esteemed friend, Wm. Carpenter, who has been suffering from blood poisoning, contracted by handling poison ivy, over a year ago, is sojourning at Hot Springs, Arkansas, where we hope he will entirely recover his former health.—Warsaw Independent.

Some time since Drs. J. C. and Luther Terrill performed a very delicate operation on the arm of William Jones, who a few days since, died in Bromley. Jones willed the member to these doctors for dissection, and when he died, by consent of the family, they amputated the arm.

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Bullittsville.

Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Casey, who have been visiting Mr. Joel D. Conner returned home Tuesday.

Mrs. Wilkerson, of Toledo, Ohio, who has been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Conner for several days, returned home yesterday.

Mr. Mark Whitaker, wife and son, who have been visiting in this neighborhood for some time have returned to their home in Miami, Saline county, Mo.

A fine shower of rain visited this section Sunday night.

Mr. Harrison Clore and wife started this week for Richmond, Va., on a visit.

Hebron.

Jameson Aylor had the largest crop of wheat in this section.

Rye was a very small crop. Oats better than last year. Wheat made a small yield but the grain was good.

Very little tobacco was planted about here, and it will be a short crop.

Tomatoes will make about half a crop.

George Haier raised from one pound of the Belle potato 65 pounds. He has one potato that weighs one pound and five ounces.

Jeff Snyder is on the sick list.

We had a good shower of rain on the 2d inst., and the people are in good spirits.

Huntsville.

Crops are looking much better since the rain. Some of the tobacco in this neighborhood is ripening very fast. Some has been cut.

Fruit is very scarce in this vicinity. The black-knot so called, is playing havoc with the damson trees, they are now fully half dead and ere another summer is passed we predict all will be gone. The knot is caused by a small white worm which seems to penetrate the wood.

The Creek road leading from here to Robert Bradys received two days work last week under the superintendence of R. Aera.

Some of our Supervisors are complaining of having no money. By the way is it not the business of the County Attorney to look into this matter and know the reason.

L. S. Pope is feeding 32 head of hogs for fall market. He expects to make them bring him enough to pay for 50c corn.

Johnny Duncan and Ed Rice, of near Bullittsville, were visiting friends here Sunday.

Union.

During a thunder storm on Wednesday last, Jno. Burl Conner, J. J. Childress and a domestic of Mrs. Conner's were severely shocked by a stroke of lightning from which however all have recovered.

Miss Anna Anderson and Master Lee Huey left us Monday last to attend college at Georgetown.

Mrs. Crouch, of Gallatin county, has just been the guest of her daughter, Mrs. Jas. Huey.

We are needing rain to make fall grass and tobacco.

H. P. Stephens and wife have just returned from Louisville Cotton Exposition and report themselves well pleased.

Many brethren of the Old School Baptist will attend the Franklin county Association this week.

Jas. G. Blanton holds the reins over a handsome bay Hambletonian, just from Scott county.

Ben Lampton is in active training, but Wm. T. still claims that old Dexter is a head on the homestretch.

Plattsburg

Considerable sickness in this and the Petersburg neighborhoods.

Ed Hensley is building him a new house on Johnson Avenue.

Abe Graves, of Covington, was here last week looking for large draft mules.

Samuel Hensley will move to Indiana, in a few weeks to work in the car shops.

Will Colvin has eight acres of as fine tobacco as ever grew, and is almost ripe enough to cut.

H. C. Hensley raised a water melon this season that weighed 60 pounds.

One of our old citizens has set a dead fall for the big snake, and if he succeeds in trapping it, it will be exhibited here a few days and then sent to the Zoo at St. Louis.

One of our farmers bought forty-five thousand shingles to roof one barn.

G. C. Voshell is attending the Baptist Association at Sparta, Indiana.

Prof. L. H. Voshell is negotiating for the school at the Terrill school-house. Lon is a good teacher, and the patrons of the district can do no better than to employ him.

Reuben Aiken had two of his fingers cut off by the band cutter the other day. Rube was feeding the machine at the time.

There is talk of sending for Col. Will Batterson and have him come down and conduct a camp meeting for us. We are personally acquainted with Bill, and know he is a good one.

Thomas Barnett has sold $400 worth of watermelons off of four acres of ground.

The Woolper school at one time the most flourishing in the county, has gone down entirely, and from present indications there will be no school at all this fall.

We are responsible for all that appears in this column of the RECORDER, and will say to the fellow that sent in the challenge to fight a duel, that we accept. Our weapons consists of two pistols and a bull-dog.

We were standing on the promenade at the Lawrenceburg fair Saturday week, with an old friend, when a bevy of young ladies passed, and they were indeed beautiful. We asked our friend if he knew them, and he said that they were from the Blue-grass region, of Ky., and drank the lime stone water, which gave them such a bewitching appearance.

It now looks as if we would have a fine corn crop. Late tobacco is doing well and will make a much larger yield than the forward.

Mother's Spinning Wheel.

Concerning One Article that was Not For Sale, and Another which is Cheap at Any Price.

"No, sir, I wouldn't sell you that for any money; that spinning-wheel was my mother's. It was one day, when she was singing like a lark and making this old wheel hum, that my father, then a young medical student, afterwards a farmer, fell in love with her—some fifty years ago."

So spoke the proprietor of a rough bit of farm land in Ulster county, N. Y., to a relic-hunter, and "mother's" spinning-wheel remained among her children and grandchildren.

"My mother," writes Rev. J. W. Phelps, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. Church, Chicago, has used PARKER'S TONIC, and wishes me to say that she has found it more effective than anything she ever used for invigorating and strengthening the system debilitated by malaria. She desires me also especially to mention the certainty with which it aids digestion and overcomes exhaustion."

Ever since the first household was established "mother's" opinion has been more potent in this world than that of judge, jurist or physician. Her hand has always cooled the fever and her voice has been filled with hope. With each day's decline, PARKER'S TONIC is becoming more deservedly popular with the women who guard alike husband and children. It eradicates malarial poison from the blood, from which there is now such widespread suffering.

Please observe: DR. PARKER'S TONIC is not an intoxicant. It is a combination of several ingredients, of which none singly can produce anything like its effect. For Kidney, Stomach and Liver troubles, it is the standard and unfailing remedy, in two sizes: 50 cents and $1. The latter the cheaper. HISCOX & CO., Chemists, New York

4

MALARIA, indigestion, dyspepsia, heartburn, and general ill-health relieved by Brown's Iron Bitters.

SPARTA, TENN.—Dr. W. B. Cummings says: "I am strongly convinced of the efficacy of Brown's Iron Bitters, and recommend them."

LEWISVILLE, IND.—Rev. J. S. Cain says: "I used Brown's Iron Bitters for nervous prostration, and found it entirely satisfactory."

ADMINISTRATORS NOTICE.

Persons having claims against the estate of J. C. Riley, decd., are hereby notified to present them to the undersigned proven as by law required. Persons indebted to the estate are requested to come forward and settle their indebtedness at once.

C. T. RICE, Admr.

J. W. KIRKPATRICK & SON,
—BURLINGTON, KY.—
UNDERTAKERS
—AND—
EMBALMERS,
Will furnish nice Hearse any reasonable distance for $10.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office over Dudley Rouse's Store.

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law.
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence,
Burlington. - - Ky.

L. C. NORMAN. H. J. [illegible]
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW,
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J. P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

S. W. TOLIN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. A prompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.
Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

AURORA MARBLE AND GRANITE WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.
N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.
DIRECTORS.
LEGRAN GAINES, Jeff Utz,
JNO. M. MOODY.

DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS.
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
SALT BY THE BARREL.
ROUSE.
BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS.
The Best of Flour
PATENT & HIGH GRADE
Always on Hand, and cheaper than the cheapest.
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE.
DUDLEY ROUSE'S.
• I now have on hand a full Stock of SCHOFIELDS Flannels, Jeans, and Yarns. Call early and make a Purchase.

M.L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEED.
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE.
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.
Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.
All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE
Petersburg Drug Store,
Where you can find everything in the
Drug line, such as——.
Well call and see and be convinced.
Respectfully, S. C BUCHANAN.

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S
Indian Blood Syrup
Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the
BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.
TRADE MARK.
Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.
AGENTS WANTED.
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St., New York City. Druggists sell it.
D. CLARK JOHNSON:— This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. McCAMC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '83

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300,000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK.
Covington, Kentucky.
DIRECTORS.
James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green,
J. S. Matson, J. H. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H. Dills, F. P. Helm,
L. C. Stephens.
The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.
The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank. dec. 20-6m

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar7-tf23 J. W. Talbott.

UNDERTAKING.
We keep Constantly on Hand all sizes of
Burial Cases and Caskets.
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES GUARANTEED LESS THAN CITY PRICES.
DAVIS BROS., HEBRON, KY.

DR. SCHENCK'S
PULMONIC SYRUP,
SEAWEED TONIC,
and MANDRAKE PILLS.

As the proprietor of these medicines I conscientiously offer them to the public as safe, reliable and certain remedies for the Cure of Consumption, and with equal confidence as almost a specific for those morbid conditions of the body, which, if neglected, are apt to terminate in fatal diseases of the lungs. I claim that the use of my remedies will cure Consumption.

I do not claim that the disease can be cured after the lungs are destroyed, for no medicine can create new ones; but I maintain that the first stages of Consumption are curable, even when the lungs are partially decayed. When one lung is sound I am almost certain of making a cure, if the patient will take proper care of himself and follow my directions.

It may be asked: "How is it that you can know so much about this disease, and pretend to cure it, when so many educated physicians, who have made a study of it for years, pronounce it incurable?"

The question is a fair one, and shall be fairly answered: I do not claim to know more than other physicians about the causes, nature and history of Consumption. I suppose that my views on these points would be found to agree with those of most educated and intelligent physicians. We should agree that while the final cause is obscure—in other words, while it is not possible to say why Consumption selects this or that person as a victim—yet the predisposing causes are:

1st, Inheritance. Consumption is hereditary in a wonderful degree. One parent very often entails it upon the offspring, and both still more frequently, so that whole families are often swept away, and hand the predisposition down to their children.

2d, Cold. By this we do not mean those changes of weather which often produce inflammation; but long-continued and steady cold, so that a condition of debility is produced. Indeed, whatever tends to produce long-continued debility will, in some persons, generate Pulmonary Consumption. Prominent among these influences are insufficient diet, living in an unwholesome air, sedentary habits, grief, anxiety, disappointment, whether of the affections or in business, and all other depressing emotions; the abuse of mercury and the influence of weakening diseases. I also agree with the best doctors as to the manner in which the lungs become affected. Pulmonary Consumption is also called Tuberculous Consumption, by which we mean a disease of the lungs caused by tubercles. A tubercle is a small, roundish body, which is deposited in the substance of the lungs by the blood. This is the beginning and first act of the disease. Many of these are often deposited at once. Each one undergoes several changes. After producing inflammation of the parts of the lung next to it, it ends in ulceration, opens a passage into the bronchial tubes, and passes out at the mouth by spitting. The place where the tubercle grew and ripened now becomes a cavity, and where there are a great many tubercles, of course they make a great many of these little cavities, which gradually unite and leave great holes in the lungs. Unless a stop can be put to this process, it will go on until the substance of the lungs is consumed and death ensues.

Of course I agree with the faculty upon the symptoms and course of the disease; the short, dry, hacking cough, so slight at first, but gradually increasing; then shortness of breath, a quickening pulse, then feverish sensations, flushing of the cheeks and heat in the palm of the hands and soles of the feet; the slight but growing emaciation, with feeble appetite, hemorrhages, increasing cough, disturbed sleep, fevered tongue, then loss of appetite, taken to the bed, then expectoration of softened tubercle in the shape of small lumps of yellowish, cheesy, or curdy matter; hectic fever, brilliant eye, chills, night sweats, sharp pains in the side, increasing emaciation and debility, disordered stomach and bowels, diarrhœa, nausea, swollen extremities, hollow cheeks, sunken eyes, weakness so great that expectoration is impossible; then death, bringing welcome relief from the tortures of this horrid monster.

Now, as I have said, I mainly agree with the medical faculty on these points. But when we came to the treatment of the disease I differ from it totally. The doctors believe Pulmonary Consumption cannot be cured. Therefore they do not try to do anything more than to smooth the patient's path to the grave, and seem quite reckless of the medicines they give, so that the patient is kept comfortable and easy, even if his life is shortened. As soon as tubercles begin to appear in the lungs of a patient, it is a common practice with many leading physicians to begin dosing with whisky in increasing quantities, until the ravages of excessive dram-drinking are added to the ravages of the disease; and I have yet to hear of a single case of Consumption which was cured by stimulants. I can say the same of Cod Liver Oil. Many physicians send their patients away from home on distant voyages, to Minnesota or Florida—anything or anywhere so that they may die easy. For they do not pretend to cure, and they have no remedies which will do so. Now I say not only that diseases of the lungs can be cured, but that my medicines do cure them. The proof is, that by their use thousands of Consumptives have been and are now being cured by them.

The whole science of medicine is based on experiments. We cannot by any process of reasoning decide that any particular medicine will help or cure any particular disease. How was it found that Quinine will cure Chills and Fevers? Why, by trying one thing after another, until experience demonstrated that it was a specific for that disease. In just that way the knowledge was gained of my remedies, which are almost a specific in diseases of the lungs.

Pulmonary Consumption is hereditary in my father's family. His father, mother, brothers and sisters died of it, and he had reached almost the last stages of the disease when he was providentially led to experiment with the articles which are incorporated in these medicines. He was cured by them, and lived a strong, healthy man for over forty years after his recovery. What cured him has cured thousands of others all over the country.

These results are not accidental. There is no such thing as accident in nature.

Whatever may be the cause, the origin of Pulmonary Consumption is in the blood. Whenever, from any of the predisposing causes which I have just now mentioned, the blood becomes degenerated, it begins to make tuberculous deposits in the substance of the lungs. This must be stopped, or death will surely follow. It will not be enough to get rid of the tubercles already deposited, and heal up the sores already made, but something must be done to stop further deposits. What shall that be? The regular faculty say nothing can be done. I say purify, enrich, and tone up the blood, until it becomes so healthy as no longer to make tubercles. Can this be done? Yes. How? By the easiest and most natural way in the world. Take a man who shows to the experienced eye, by many infallible signs, that Consumption has set in. He is feeble and without appetite. Now, see what I intend to do:

First, I propose to cleanse his stomach and bowels of their dead, slimy, clogging matter. This I shall do with my Mandrake Pills, which are the best cathartic pills in the world. They contain no calomel or other minerals, only vegetable matter. They evacuate the stomach and bowels gently but thoroughly, and do not weaken or gripe. They act like magic on the liver, rousing it out of its dull, torpid state, and promoting a full, free flow of healthy bile, without which there can be no perfect digestion. Now that the stomach and bowels are cleansed and ready—what next? Create an appetite. This I do by my Sea Weed Tonic. The effect of this medicine is wonderful. Unlike a temporary stimulant, which by reaction lets the organs affected sink lower than before, this not only tones up the stomach, but keeps it toned up. The natural craving for food returns in all its force, so that we have now a stomach hungry for food, and a digestive apparatus ready to make way with it. What next? Any one can answer that question. Put into that hungry stomach an abundant supply of nutritious food to be converted by the strange chemistry of digestion into rich red blood. This will stimulate the heart into stronger action, and it will pump a fuller current out through the arteries; healthy blood will take the place of the thin, blue, flattened fluid in the veins, and soon a circulation will be established which will flow through the lungs without making any unhealthy deposits; strength and flesh will increase, and the bad symptoms steadily diminish. At the same time use my Pulmonic Syrup; it is the best expectorant known. It blends with the food, and through the blood goes directly to the lungs, attacks and loosens up the yellow, foul stuff left there by the ripened tubercles, and strengthens and stimulates the bronchial tubes and coatings of the air-passages until they get strong enough to lift it out and expel it by expectoration. Then the lungs get over their soreness and have a chance to rest and heal.

So you see that I have not only shown that my medicines do actually cure consumption by experiment, but it also seems plain that they, or something like them, would, from the nature of the case, do so.

For a full description of Consumption in all its various forms, and also Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, those great forerunners of Consumption, see my book on "Consumption and its Cure." This book also contains the history of hundreds of cases that have been cured in all parts of the country. I send it free, post-paid, to all applicants. Address

DR. J. H. SCHENCK & SON,
Philadelphia, Pa.

DR. SCHENCK'S MEDICINES:
MANDRAKE PILLS,
SEAWEED TONIC,
AND PULMONIC SYRUP

Are sold by all druggists, and full directions for their use are printed on the wrappers of every package.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL, Publishers.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY

Wool That is Too Bad for a Turk.

The wool dealers of this city are found in the greatest number in Duane street, below Church. In the stores along there the shelves are piled up with bundles that bear a slight resemblance to very small cotton batting rolls. From the ends of the rolls great varieties of fluffy, curly, and stringy material protrude. There are bundles of long, fine, snowy fleece, and others where the fleece is long, coarse, and dark colored. Still other bundles are filled with shorter fleeces, and some with fine, soft, straight hair. From a few the contents protrude in small, dirty, matted rolls. The fiber is stuck together so closely that an effort is required to spread the stuff out. The fiber is usually broken in doing so.

"These bundles," said a dealer yesterday, "are samples of wool from every wool-producing country in the world. The varieties in quality are as numerous as the countries from which they come. The finest quality comes from Ohio. The poorest is found in these [the dealer pointed to the bundles of coarse, dirty tufts]; that is bed wool. Wool is used by the poor people in countries governed by the Turks, instead of straw and hair for filling beds. They sleep on it from infancy to old age. They sicken and die on it. Then, when it has got too bad for a Turk to use, and the price of wool rises a little, they sell it. It goes in bales and bags to Marseilles and to England. Packed by hydraulic pressure into bales of about 400 pounds, some of it is reshipped to America. New York and Philadelphia are the chief importing ports. The importer sells it to the manufacturers. It is made into blankets and carpets."

"It is disinfected first?"

"Never. It goes into machines that tear up those little tags into separate hairs, then it is spun and woven."

"Into bed blankets?"

"Yes, of the coarse, gray kind, such as are supplied to lumbermen, to miners, etc., and are sold to the poorer people generally. Horse blankets are made of it usually."

"Where are the mills that use this stuff?"

"The Yonkers mills use some. Most of it is used around Philadelphia. It is common in all mills that make carpets and low-priced blankets."

"Do you think there is danger of importing the plague with such wools?"

"Certainly. It has to be handled on ship-board, at the docks, and in the warehouses. Workmen are very likely to take any such disease as cholera, if cholera prevailed where it came from. I have known of cases often where mill hands, who had been handling the stuff, have been taken with 'mysterious' diseases. In England, where large quantities of mohair, a Turkish wool, are used, the wool is disinfected, because a peculiarly offensive disease is sure to attack those who handle it before a purifying process. The danger to the general public through use of the goods is not great, because bed wool is not used in the fine goods."

"How much of this bed wool is to be expected here this year?"

"Not very much; the wool business is depressed. The best quality brings only thirty-seven to thirty-eight cents. That stuff is worth only ten cents, with the duty paid. The amount imported varies from 500 to 3,000 bales a year, according as the price is high or low. In my opinion it is worth the attention of the sanitary authorities, whether the amount is great or small.—N. Y. Sun.

The Congressional Cemetery.

From the catacombs of Thebes to those of Rome, on to Pere la Chaise, Kensal Green, Mount Auburn, Greenwood, Laurel Hill, Lone Mountain, Bellefontaine, Cave Hill and the Congressional Cemetery in Washington—millions of the dead slumber in sweet oblivion.

"All that tread the globe, are but a handful to the tribes that slumber in its bosom."

The Congressional Cemetery contains about fifty acres and was opened in the month of April, 1807. The first body buried in its silent sod was that of Uriah Tracy, a Representative from the State of Connecticut. Since that time more than a hundred and fifty memorial stones have been erected by Congress to glorify the public men from various States in the Union who fell in the line of duty with their official harness on. It must be remembered that no stone is put up in the Congressional Cemetery to commemorate the name and fame of any Congressman unless he dies while holding his official station.

The custom, however, of placing memorial stones in the cemetery has fallen into disuse in the last few years, because of the rigid economy exercised by modern statesmen in small things. They can vote away millions in land and millions in money, to a band of close incorporators for selfish uses, but can not spare a hundred dollars for a sandstone block to commemorate one of their own number who has passed into the silent halls of death. Perhaps it is just as well; for the scaly white-washed stones that now disfigure this home of the dead are enough to make them rise en masse and kick over these rude memorials, called monuments by courtesy. There are not many bodies buried under the sandstone blocks, and consequently the few proud spirits that might rise in their strength to demolish the monuments above them would need reinforcements from the various parts of the country where the dust of their colleagues lies entombed.

The cemetery for many years has been under the control of Christ Church, located near the navy yard, and bodies are buried therein for a price corresponding with that of all kindred establishments.

I have often wondered why a free people do not maintain a public cemetery where every mortal created in the image of his God may be deposited in the bosom of mother earth without charge. While we have a republic of the living I can not see why we should be deprived of one for the dead, when all know that peasant and princes are resolved into equal dust in the cold, dark and narrow house.—Cor. Washington Post.

—Yorkshire girls take an early start. An eighteen-year-old young woman, walking with a Yorkshire man, was astonished when a five-year-old Yorkshire girl cried out: "Where is thee ganging wi' my mon? I tell thee thou shan't have my mon!"

—It makes a Mount Washington guide wish he was dead to have the tourist remark that the view from the summit is "rather neat."—Boston Post.

The "Massage" Cure.

Within a few years an entirely new system of treating disease, nervous weakness, and debility arising from excess and overwork, has sprung up in this city. It is called "massage," and consists in the manipulation of the human body by the hands of an operator. Strictly speaking, it is not rubbing, but consists in a series of kneadings and working of the patient's flesh by vigorous palms so as to excite a circulation of the blood on the surface of the body and in the extremities. It first became known to the general public in a quiet way some six or eight years ago by two or three foreigners, who put up their signs "Professional Massage," and received patients who were sent by physicians. For some time only rheumatic, paralytic, and neurosthenic invalids availed themselves of the benefits of massage. But its beneficial effects were ultimately found to be of service to debauchees, and a great host of fashionable men and women who lived extravagantly, drank, smoked, and set up late, and otherwise exhausted their nervous systems by dissipation or mental and emotional overwork.

Then the number of manipulators began to increase. Cards appeared in the newspapers advising the languid public that Mme. —— and Mr. —— applied massage at their elegant rooms. There were Swiss, Swedish, French and German massagers; and presently it became a fashionable thing to go and be manipulated after a night out or a reckless dinner-party.

One of these operators, who is a lady and has her rooms on Twenty-eighth street, devotes herself exclusively to ladies, and among her patrons are several wealthy females who come regularly two or three times a week and go through the kneading process. The operator acknowledged in conversation with the reporter that in many cases the manipulation only took the place of that kind of muscular exercise which the patients were indisposed to take for themselves. Another operator, on Sixth avenue, placed a much higher value on the process, and said the massage imparted vital strength by the contact, if the operator was a healthy and vigorous person.

The process consists, as already said, in kneading and working the flesh of the patient with the hand in such a manner as to force the blood into the small veins at the surface. The person to be treated is placed either in a chair or on a couch; and the operator with bared arms then seizes upon the flesh, and commences a rapid but dexterous series of pulls, pinches, squeezes, pressures, shoves, pats and rubs, until every inch of the surface has been gone over many times and the flesh begins to glow. The expert manipulator will do all this so rapidly and so gently that the combined sensations of the subject are anything but unpleasant. Indeed, it is not unusual for the patient to go off into a kind of mesmeric sleep.

The lady on sixth avenue has a number of patients who have no ailment whatever except a constitutional lethargy, and they undergo this treatment regularly with as much satisfaction as if they were having their back hair combed.

In certain cases of dyspepsia the subjects are put upon a couch and carefully kneaded, very much as a batch of dough would be by a skillful French baker.

There are other middle-aged ladies who, before going to a party, have to be regularly made up, like a pillow that has been slept on. Before they are harnessed and decorated for the fray they have to be kneaded. The process is supposed to impart compactness, to increase the roundness and elasticity of the surface, and to give something of the buoyancy of youth to the frame. It is jocularly said by some of the knowing ones that you can tell a well-kneaded party in any company.

There is, or was a few weeks ago, a negro up-town who was regularly employed at that business by several physicians. He had no rooms, but applied his process at the houses of the patients. He was considered by the doctors who employed him to be one of the most expert men in the business. He was kept busy all day going from house to house, and among his subjects were several young men of fast reputations, who after a night's excess perferred this method of recuperation to the Turkish bath.

But, just as massage was becoming the fashionable thing, up comes a Yankee and threatens to kill the whole business with a machine. Another on Fifty-ninth street has invented what he calls a mechanical massage. He puts his patients into a machine and they are manipulated by steam power. A visit to his establishment disclosed as many as twenty patients of both sexes undergoing the treatment. Some of them had their limbs in the machines, and a pair of rubber hands seized them and added to the kneading a rapid vibratory motion that was new and curious. Here were men and women with rheumatism and paralytic affections, being shaken up in the most approved style.

The physicians all speak well of the process. They say that it forces the circulation into the capillaries, and brings it away from the centers and congested parts. It is in short a new and ingenious method of applying exercise, but it threatens to do away with the manipulators, for a new man who can afford a gas-engine can have himself shaken up without hiring a person to come and superintend it.—N. Y. World.

—At a recent session of the Concord School of Philosophy, one of the pupils inquired if "the consciousness of the ego was identical with the acute absorption of the actuality," and the Professor answered that he thought it was. This is very much to be regretted. If the consciousness of the ego should somehow or other get mixed up with the actuality of the acute absorption, or the identical should come in contact with the consciousness of the actuality so as to render the absorption of the identical indistinct and incomprehensible from the acuteness of the ego, there might be a fuss kicked up about it. One can not be too clear as to these important points.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

—A female telegraphist of Boston tells the Globe of that city: "Women do not make so many mistakes in telegraphing as men do. We've kept an account of that. Men always try to know what the message means; women only try to know what it says. They stick to the text, and they're oftener on the safe side."

—During a game of base-ball between two colored clubs at Cyprus, S. C., a few days ago, the ball and bats were laid aside and pistols brought into use to decide a discussion over the score, and a large number of the players proved themselves experts at catching bullets.

HOME AND FARM.

—When washing out the manger a few drops of carbolic acid in the water corrects the sourness.

—Manure applied to apple trees a little after mid-summer helps the fruit instead of increasing wood production.—N. Y. Herald.

—It is said that a half-teaspoonful of common salt dissolved in a little cold water will instantly relieve "heartburn" or dyspepsia. Salt is also a good gargle for sore throat.

—The only certain way to secure seed that will germinate is at harvest time to select a load or two or at least a sufficient quantity for next year's seeding, from the ripest or best developed portions of the field, keeping it separate from the main crop when hauling and at threshing time.—Exchange.

—Grass, says the Ohio Farmer, is the sheet anchor of successful farming. The proportion of grass lands in any section of the country is a pretty sure index of the degree of agricultural prosperity enjoyed, advancement made, or profit produced. Where grass is neglected labor is increased and soils are deteriorated.

—If a corn stubble is to be sown to wheat the corn should be removed from the ground and the stubble plowed under. A frequent method is to sow the seed upon the stubble and then cover it by plowing a light furrow. The surface is then harrowed, or may be left rough, which, we believe, is best.—N. Y. Herald.

—An exchange says that a little salt sprinkled on a manure heap is one of the best applications for both summer and winter. In warm weather it attracts moisture, and keeps the manure from fire-fanging or burning from excessive fermentation. In winter it keeps the heap from freezing solid, and at any season makes the manure more soluble.

—"Do you wish to know," said a man of science, "how to know that your fruit-can is certainly air-tight?" I was that moment contemplating a can which had a little nick on the upper edge, and it was hard to judge whether the rubber would effectually keep the air out. The man lighted a bit of paper, put it into the can, slipped the rubber ring over, and put the glass cover on. The burning paper exhausted the air, and behold the cover was with difficulty removed.—N. Y. Post.

—An old-time rule for doughnuts is called for by a correspondent who thinks that things used to taste better than they do now. The receipt is given, but along with it I can not give the appetite of his boyhood: In one pint of sweet milk dissolve two teaspoonfuls of bi-carbonate of soda; to this add two eggs, two cups of sugar, two tablespoons of butter, two quarts of flour, with four teaspoonfuls of cream of tartar mixed with the flour while both are dry. Knead and roll with quick, light touches, and fry in hot lard.—Exchange.

White Beans.

We have never had better success with our bean patch than this year. And I am inclined to believe that one great cause of my success was in early planting. I have always been in the habit of planting late, but the hot sun in August, that we almost invariably have, would cut the crop short, keeping them from filling well.

This year I planted May 10th, three weeks earlier than usual. The ground was well plowed, and harrowed fine and as smooth as possible, then laid off in rows three and one-half feet apart; three beans were dropped in a hill. The hills are about eighteen inches apart. When well up they were plowed with a diamond plow, running the bar as close to them as possible, throwing the dirt away from them. Then they were gone over with a hoe and every weed cleaned out around the hill. In two weeks the dirt was thrown back to them, taking care to run the plow shallow so as not to cover up too deep. They made a rapid growth and filled in July, before dry weather came on. I do not believe in cultivating after the vine begins to blossom. My experience is that the work should all be done before that time, and if it is done as it should be there is in reality no need of cultivating afterward, as working among them causes them to make more blossoms, injuring the first set and keeping them from ripening evenly.

In pulling or harvesting beans I pull and pile three rows together in convenient piles, not too large as they are liable to heat. If only a small patch is raised I prefer to thresh out as soon as they are dry enough, which can easily be done. I clean a good smooth place in the field and thresh them out there with a flail.

More farmers should plant a small patch of beans, enough at least for their own use; any ordinary family will easily consume from one to three bushels, and they are very healthful and nutritious food, and can easily be kept the whole year round, so that they can be used when there is a scarcity of other things to supply the table. If there is any surplus they will find a ready sale at a good price.

Beans should have a good rich soil to be most profitable, but can be grown to advantage on soil so poor that a majority of other crops would not be found profitable. When large fields are planted they are not called a sure crop by any means, but are generally a paying one. But every farmer can raise what he needs for his own family much cheaper than he can possibly buy, especially when there is a partial failure of crops.—Cor. Prairie Farmer.

Not Such a Fool.

A rather superstitious young man of this city, who is fond of quoting fag ends of wisdom in old sayings and maxims, was recently sitting by the girl of his choice trying in vain to summon up courage to pop the question. Every time he plunged in and said something approaching the subject he would be seized with a spell of bashfulness and would contort his face as if about to have a fit. One day he had proceeded as far as—"Supposing a young man should ask you to—" Then he wrinkled his nose, and became silent.

"What is the matter with your nose?" asked the young lady, solicitously.

"Tickles; I must be going to kiss a fool, as the saying is."

The girl smiled into his face with sweet innocence.

"Mother says I look like a fool sometimes," she said, archly.

He had sense enough left to improve the opportunity, and now he says that actions speak louder than words, and are better, too.—Detroit Post.

—Noticing the death of the negro Henson, the supposed original of "Uncle Tom," who lately died at the age of ninety-four, the London Times gravely remarks that "his death was hastened by the injuries he received when a slave."

A Boy's Despair.

There were nine rough-looking fellows and a real bright, sensitive boy on the chain-gang in an Alabama town. The boy attracted a great deal of attention on account of his youthfulness and innocence. An Indiana lady, noticing him as she passed along the street, stopped and spoke to him. The guard, in a very rough manner, ordered the boy to go to work. He looked up into the lady's face and his eyes filled with tears as he turned to obey. Just then the express came thundering along, and without a word to anyone he threw himself in front of it and was crushed into a shapeless mass.

—Mrs. Frank P. Carson, of Evansville, Ky., has an apple which shows a remarkable state of preservation. Five years ago Mrs. Carson tied the apple by the stem and hung it up in her room. It has remained there during this time, and is now as sound as when pulled from the tree.—Detroit Post.

—A cool request has reached the Treasurer of the United States from a West Virginian, who asks that $500 be sent him with which to redeem all the trade dollars in his section of country.—Washington Post.

—The eating of part of a colored wrapper from a bar of soap caused the death of a little girl of West Liberty, Ky.

"Threw Away Her Supporter."

DR. PIERCE:—A neighbor of ours was suffering from "female weakness" which the doctors told her could not be cured without a supporter. After considerable persuasion my wife induced her to try your "Favorite Prescription." After using one bottle she threw away the supporter and did a large washing, which she had not done in two years before.

JAMES MILLER,
4246 Jacob Street, Wheeling, W. Va.

MERELY an outside matter—The handle of a jug.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

HAY FEVER. Since boyhood I have been troubled with Catarrh and Hay-Fever, and was unable to obtain relief until I used Ely's Cream Balm. It has cured me. E. L. CLICKENER, New Brunswick, N. J.

IS A jailer known by the company he keeps?—Cincinnati Merchant and Traveler.

Woman and Her Diseases is the title of a large illustrated treatise, by Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., sent to any address for three stamps. It teaches successful self-treatment.

A PARADOX—Nearly all our domestics are of foreign production.

HAY-FEVER. Having been afflicted with Hay-Fever for years I gave Ely's Cream Balm a trial. I have had no attack since using it. E. R. RAUCH, Editor Carbon Co. Democrat, Mauch Chunk, Pa. Price 50c.

A PRINTER can feel first-rate and still be out of sorts.—Rochester Post-Express.

IF your lungs are almost wasted by consumption Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" will not cure you, yet as a remedy for severe coughs, and all curable bronchial, throat and lung affections, it is unsurpassed. Send two stamps for Dr. Pierce's large pamphlet treatise on Consumption and Kindred Affections. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

SAFE BLOWING—The challenges of American duelists.—Norristown Herald.

MARIANNA, FLA.—Dr. Theo. West says: "I consider Brown's Iron Bitters the best tonic that is sold."

A MAN with water on the brain should wear a plug hat.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

ENRICH and revitalize the blood by using Brown's Iron Bitters. The best tonic.

CORRECT Boston people call a burglar's "jimmie" Mr. James.—N. Y. Journal.

CHARLOTTEVILLE, VA.—Mr. C. H. Harman, President of the People's Bank, testifies to the value of Brown's Iron Bitters for relieving indigestion.

HOW MAY every passenger make himself of use to the ship carpenter? By merely being aboard.

CHROLITHION Collars and Cuffs, when thoroughly waterproof, feel as soft as velvet around the neck and wrists

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, August 30, 1883.

LIVESTOCK—Cattle—common	$2 00	@	3 00
Choice butchers	4 25	@	4 75
HOGS—Common	4 00	@	4 70
Good packers	4 75	@	5 10
SHEEP	3 75	@	4 50
FLOUR—Family	4 40	@	4 45
GRAIN—Wheat—Long berry red	1 09	@
No. 2 winter red	1 06¼	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	52	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed	29½	@
Rye—No. 2	57	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	11 00	@
HEMP—Double dressed	8¾	@
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	13 00	@	13 50
Lard—Steam	8-10¼
BUTTER—Fancy Dairy	15	@	17
Prime Creamery	18	@	20
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per bar. from store	1 30	@	1 40
Apples, prime, per barrel	2 25	@	3 00
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 25	@	3 95
Good to choice	4 50	@	7 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 17	@	1 17½
No. 1 white	1 16	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	63	@
Oats—mixed	34	@	37
PORK—Mess	14 00	@	14 25
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@	4 25
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 06¼	@	1 06¾
Corn—No. 2	51	@
Oats—No. 2	28	@
Rye	56	@
PORK—Mess	11 95	@	12 00
LARD—Steam	8 35	@	8 37½
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 25	@	6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 14¼	@	1 14½
Corn—mixed	61	@
Oats—mixed	33	@	33
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	15 00	@
Lard—Refined	10½	@
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—A No. 1	$4 25	@	4 50
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red, new	1 04	@	1 05
Corn—mixed	50	@
Oats—mixed	28	@
PORK—Mess	13 50	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 red, new	$1 05	@
CORN—mixed	49	@
OATS—mixed	26½	@
LIVESTOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	2 75	@	4 50
Shipping cattle	5 25	@	6 50

The Preacher's Quiet Habits.

Sedentary and studious men sometimes become prostrated before they know it. Those who spend much time in close mental work and neglect to take enough exercise often find their stomachs unable to do the work of digestion. The liver becomes torpid. The bowels act irregularly. The brain refuses to serve as it once did. Their preaching becomes a failure, and there is a state of general misery. So many ministers have been restored to health by the use of Brown's Iron Bitters that the clergy generally are speaking to their friends of this medicine as the very best tonic and restorer they know of. It restores thin and watery blood to its proper condition by toning it up with the purest and most invigorating preparation of iron that science has ever made. It is pleasant to take, and acts immediately with the happiest results, not only on the parsons, but on other folks as well.

REDDING'S Russia Salve is unequaled for chilblains, chapped hands, frost bites, etc. Try it.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer
Is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which Sulphur, Sugar of Lead and Nitrate of Silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. JOHN D. PARK & SONS, Wholesale Agents, Cincinnati, Ohio, and C. N. CRITTENTON, New York.

Stinging, irritation, all Kidney and Bladder Complaints, cured by "Buchu-Paiba." $1.

IF afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 25c.

Skinny Men. "Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia.

STRAIGHTEN old boots and shoes with Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners, and wear them again.

Wells' "Rough on Corns." 15c. Ask for it. Complete, permanent cure. Corns, bunions.

Glenn's Sulphur Soap
Presents all the advantages of sulphur baths at a cheap rate. Hill's Hair and Whisker Dye, 50c.

Flies, roaches, ants, bed-bugs, rats, mice, crows, cleared out by "Rough on Rats." 15c.

USE St. Patrick's Salve, and learn its great value. One trial convinces.

Don't Die in the House. "Rough on Rats," clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs. 15c.

"LOOK OUT FOR THE ENGINE."

I am a locomotive engineer, and have been for twenty years, and am now running on the Maine Central Railroad. Life on an engine, as all engineers know, is very trying to health and strength. The continual jar of the engine, and strain on our long trips all tend to weaken the kidneys and urinary organs. In addition to this, ten years ago, I met with a severe accident, and I was taken from under my engine with severe internal injuries, which gave me great pain. I was laid up for six months, and suffered more than I can describe, and more than I wish to suffer again. I resumed work, but my kidneys began to disturb me, and my nervous system seemed to be out of order. I could not sleep, as my water demanded such constant attention that I was kept awake a great part of the night; to urinate caused severe pains. I employed the best medical skill in Portland and elsewhere, but continued to grow worse. I was persuaded to try Hunt's Remedy, as I found that many of my friends in Portland had used it with great success, yet I had no faith that it would reach my case. However, I sent for a half-dozen bottles at one of the drug stores, in Portland, and from the use of the first bottle found a great relief. My water was much better and the pain in the back and limbs greatly relieved. I continued its use until I had used ten bottles in all, and it has been to me a wonderful blessing, and I have deemed it a duty and privilege to recommend it to those troubled in a similar manner, and you may publish this for the benefit of our railroad men and the public in general, as it has completely cured me.

GEO. W. BRADLEY,
Engineer Maine Central Railroad,
PORTLAND, ME., May 12, 1883.

CAUSE FOR ALARM.

ALICE E. CURTIS, of Brunswick, Me., writes us on May 13, 1883: "That she has suffered very much at frequent intervals with kidney disease, and the attacks were increasing in severity so steadily as to cause alarm. Her aunt, Mrs. N. M. Small, persuaded her to use Hunt's Remedy, and after using several bottles Miss Curtis has been freed from the severe aches and pains to which she had long been accustomed; and further says that Hunt's Remedy never fails to relieve the severe pains in the side and intense backache, and Miss C. pronounces it a real blessing to woman for all kidney diseases, and she cordially recommends it for the many ills and pains peculiar to women."

CATARRH ELY'S CREAM BALM

ELY'S CREAM BALM CATARRH CURES COLD IN HEAD ROSE-COLD HAY-FEVER DEAFNESS HEADACHE PRICE 50 CENTS ELY'S CREAM BALM CO. OWEGO N.Y. U.S.A.

when applied by the finger into the nostrils, will be absorbed, effectually cleansing the head of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membrane of the nasal passages from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores taste and smell. A few applications relieve. A thorough treatment will positively cure. Agreeable to use.

HAY-FEVER Send for circular. Price 50 cents by mail or at druggists. Ely Brothers, Owego, N. Y.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, by increasing vital power, and rendering the physical functions regular and active, keeps the system in good working order, and protects it against disease. For constipation, dyspepsia and liver complaint, nervousness, kidney and rheumatic ailments, it is invaluable, and it affords a sure defense against malarial fevers, besides removing all traces of such disease from the system. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

PILES "Anakesis" gives instant relief, and is an infallible cure for Piles. Price $1 from druggists, or sent prepaid by mail. Samples free. Ad. "ANAKESIS," Makers, Box 2416, New York.

WILKINSON RUBBER TARGET GUN.
Graves' Patent. The genuine and best. Shoots arrows, bullets and shot. Sends bullets 1,000 feet. Don't kick. Shoots straight. Gun, with 5 steel pointed arrows, shot and bullet attachment, delivered free on receipt of one dollar. Send for price list of Scroll Saws, Bicycles, Fishing Tackle, Hammocks, &c. THE JOHN WILKINSON CO., 78, 80 and 82 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

CHICAGO SCALE CO.
151 South Jefferson Street, Chicago, Ill.
2-Ton Wagon Scale, $40; 4-Ton $60
"Little Detective," $3. Send for Price List.

Wanted Agents Male and female for new book, "Daughters of America." Low in price. 50c. will secure an outfit and agency. Address FORSHEE & McMAKIN, CINCINNATI, O.

Good Pay for Agents. $100 to $200 per mo. made selling our fine Books & Bibles. Write to J. C. McCurdy & Co., Cincinnati, O.

RUBBER STAMPS, with your name 30 cents. Scrap pictures, 3c a sheet. Cards, Type, Etc. Agents Wanted. List free. THALMAN M'F'G CO., Baltimore, Md.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

$65 A MONTH and BOARD for three live Young Men or Ladies, in each county. Address P. W. ZIEGLER & Co., Philadelphia.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Me.

Indulgence and Excesses.

Whether over-eating or drinking are made harmless by using Hop Bitters freely, giving elegant appetite and enjoyment by using them before and removing all dullness, pains and distress afterwards, leaving the head clear, nerves steady, and all the feelings buoyant, elastic and more happy than before. The pleasing effects of a Christian or sumptuous dinner continuing days afterwards.

Eminent Testimony.

[N. Y. Witness, Aug. 15, 1880.]

"I find that in addition to the pure spirits contained in their composition, they contain the extracts of hops and other well-known and highly approved medicinal roots, leaves and tinctures in quantities sufficient to render the article what the makers claim it to be, to wit, a medicinal preparation and not a beverage—unfit and unsafe to be used except as a medicine.

"From a careful analysis of their formula—which was attested under oath—I find that in every wine-glassful of Hop Bitters, the active medicinal properties aside from the distilled spirits are equal to a full dose for an adult, which fact, in my opinion, subjects it to an internal revenue tax as a medicinal bitter."

GREEN B. RAUM, U. S. Com. In. Rev.

Hardened Liver.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and liver complaint and rheumatism. Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water. All the best physicians agreed that nothing could cure me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters; I have used seven bottles; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from my limbs, and it has worked a miracle in my case; otherwise I would have been now in my grave.

J. W. MOREY, Buffalo, Oct. 1, '81.

Poverty and Suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring. I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost; I know it."

A WORKINGMAN.

WOODEN MANTELS.
We make to order and carry in stock a large line of Wood Mantels, from $10 upward.
ROBERT MITCHELL FURNITURE CO.,
CINCINNATI, OHIO.
Designs and Estimates submitted.

DEDERICK'S HAY PRESSES are sent anywhere on trial to operate against all other Presses, the customer keeping the one that suits best. No one has ever dared show up any other Press, as Dederick's Press is known to be beyond competition, and will bale at less expense, with twice the rapidity, and load more in a car than any other. The only way inferior machines can be sold is to deceive the inexperienced by ridiculously false statements, and thus sell without sight or seeing, and swindle the purchaser. Working any other Press alongside of Dederick's always sells the purchaser a Dederick Press, and all know it too well to show up. Address for circular and location of Western and Southern Storehouses and Agents.
P. K. DEDERICK & CO., Albany, N. Y.

PORTABLE & STATIONARY
Steam Engines
and STEAM BOILERS, smaller sizes adapted to
Farm and Plantation Use!
$200 We make six sizes, capacity from 3 to 50,000 ft. per day with one saw for our No. 1 Plantation Saw Mill. LANE BODLEY CO., John and Water Sts., Cincinnati, Ohio. Illustrated catalogue free.

MILL STONES,
Under & Upper Runner Mills
J. W. Pyne's Purifier,
Dufour & Co's Bolting Cloth,
BELTING,
SHAFTING, PULLEYS and GEARING.
Wheat Cleaning Machinery of all makes.
We can furnish anything needed by millers. Send for descriptive catalogue. Address plainly THOS. BRADFORD & CO., 174, 176 and 178 W. Second St., Cincinnati, O.

Grocers and Dealers
-IN-
TEA AND COFFEE.
Send for Wholesale Price List of our goods. Lowest possible prices. GREAT LONDON TEA CO., 801 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION. 25 100
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE to sell the best Family Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit a pair of stockings with HEEL and TOE complete in twenty minutes. It will also knit a great variety of fancy-work for which there is always a ready market. Send for circular and terms to the Twombly Knitting Machine Co., 163 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

AGENTS Coin Money by selling Dr. Chase's Family Physician and Second Receipt Book, $2. Address A. W. HAMILTON & CO., Ann Arbor, Mich.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

30 Sheets fine writing paper in Blotter Tablet, with calendar, 25 cts., by mail. Agents wanted. Economy Printing Co., Newburyport, Mass.

Sure Cure for Epilepsy or Fits in 24 hours. Free to poor. Dr. KRUSE, 2844 Arsenal St., St. Louis, Mo.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS
MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD
And will completely change the blood in the entire system in three months. Any person who will take ONE PILL EACH NIGHT FROM ONE TO TWELVE WEEKS, may be restored to sound health, if such a thing be possible. For curing Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. Physicians use them in their practice. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. Send for pamphlet. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

A SURE
RECIPE
For Fine Complexions.

Positive relief and immunity from complexional blemishes may be found in Hagan's Magnolia Balm. A delicate and harmless article. Sold by druggists everywhere.

It imparts the most brilliant and life-like tints, and the closest scrutiny cannot detect its use. All unsightly discolorations, eruptions, ring marks under the eyes, sallowness, redness, roughness, and the flush of fatigue and excitement are at once dispelled by the Magnolia Balm.

It is the one incomparable Cosmetic.

$60 5-TON JONES
Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass TARE BEAM. JONES, HE PAYS THE FREIGHT. Sold on trial. Warrants 5 years. All sizes as low. For free book, address
JONES OF BINGHAMTON,
BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

OPIUM and WHISKY HABITS cured at home without pain. Book of particulars sent free. B. M. WOOLLEY, M. D., Atlanta, Ga.

AGENTS make money selling our Family Medicines; no capital required. STANDARD CURE CO., 197 Pearl St., NEW YORK.

EDUCATIONAL.

COLLEGE OF
PHYSICIANS and SURGEONS,
BALTIMORE, MD.
The practical advantages of this school are unsurpassed. Clinics held at City Hospital, Maternite and Maryland Woman's Hospital, all of which belong to this school. Physiological and Chemical Laboratory Work required of every Student. Apply for a catalogue to DR. THOMAS OPIE, Dean, 39 North Carey Street.

COLLEGE PHYSICIANS & SURGEONS, CHICAGO. Elegant building. Experienced Faculty. Low fees. For catalogue address D. K. STEELE, M. D., 1801 State St.

Young Men learn TELEGRAPHY here and we will give you a situation. Circulars free. VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KY., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1883. NUMBER 46.

THE BOY.

A's the green apple
with bites all around.
B is the ball that is lost on the ground.
C is O the O cigarette mak O ing him
pale. D is the dog with ~ a can on it's tail. E is the errand that makes him look wry. F is the fishing and Fourth of July. G is the games that make happy his days.
H is the hooky from school that he plays. I is the Indians he's going to slay. J is the jack-knife he str ading away. K is the kite in the sky scar e discern ed. L is the lickings for lessons unlearn ed. M is for marbles and melons sublime. N is the novels that cost him a dime. O 's hi old man with a strap by the gate. P's his toy pistol which settles his fate. Q is the quarrels which bloodies his nose. R is the ruin he makes to his clothes.
S is the swimming, skates, snowballs and sled. T is his tops and his toys painted red. U is the uproar he makes when he's spanked. V's his vim
when he's leading the band. W's his whis tle s happ y and shrill. X is X
penses when ever he's ill.
Y is the yells he emits all the day.
Z is his zeal that he shows at his play.

—H. C. Dodge, in Burlington Hawkeye.

TOBIT CLUKE'S BARGAIN.

Muckledrumlie—some Scotchman must have christened it—was no place for a man whose eye-teeth were uncut. The people, as a class, were of the wide-awake type; and if, now and then, one among them was caught napping, his condition, on waking, was very apt to suggest that Solomon's injunction, "Give not sleep to thine eyes nor slumber to thine eyelids," was specially designed for the meridian of Muckledrumlie.

They were sharp traders, the Muckledrumlians. Indeed, Joe Jawtry used to say a couple of them could sit down to a quiet bargain and rise up each a hundred dollars richer without a cent of money passing—a mode of producing wealth which Adam Smith and the rest of them have forgotten to mention in their books. But Joe's opinion of his fellow-townsmen may have been a little warped by his own experience. He was an old "forty-niner," who had returned from California with a snug little pile, intending to spend it and the rest of his days peacefully in his native town—meaning that the two, as nearly as possible, should run out together. But he hadn't been a month in Muckledrumlie before he was bargained out of all he had—the bulk of it going, share and share alike, to Nathan Sinch and Tubal Tulkins, the two "smartest" men in the town.

About the poorest man in Muckledrumlie was Tobit Cluke. His sole possession was a patch of ground as poor as himself. Part of it was a stony hillside, which the most graceless vagrant of a weed would have disdained to take root in.

One day as Nathan Sinch chanced to be skirting this sterile slope, his eye, always on the lookout, spied Joe Jawtry half way up, clinging with one hand to the stump of a stunted crab-tree, which had died of sheer want, and poking among the stones with the other.

When Joe found that Nathan's eyes were on him he slid down from his perch like a 'possum from a persimmon bush, and was hurrying off, pretending not to have seen Nathan, when the latter called out:

"Hello, neighbor!—what was you peekin' into up there?"

"N-nothin', much," stammered Joe, hanging his head and looking flustered.

And that was all that could be got from him in spite of Nathan Sinch's questions, which were neither few nor far between. Joe pleaded pressing business and took a hasty leave.

"What can that chap be up to?" said Nathan, with a perplexed scratch of the head. He was half inclined to scramble up and inspect for himself the spot which had engaged Joe's attention; but the ascent was steep, the day hot, and Nathan fat.

"Confound it!" he muttered, "'tain't nothin', nohow." And casting a wishful look up at the crab-tree stump, he sighed regretfully and waddled on.

Bright and early next day Joe paid a visit to Nathan.

"Mornin', Mr. Sinch," he said, cordially.

"Mornin', Joe," returned the other, stiffly, a little miffed over his late baffled curiosity.

Joe Jawtry hemmed and cleared his throat with an embarrassed air. He wasn't commonly at loss for words; but there was plainly something working on his mind—something he wanted to say, but didn't know how to approach.

"Ding it all!" broke out Nathan, his inquisitiveness fairly boiling over," out with it at once, and don't stand there hangin' back like a bound boy at a frolic!"

"I—I—" Joe began, but stuck fast.

"Blurt it out!" exclaimed Nathan, bursting with impatience.

"I've come," said Joe, nerving himself with an effort, "to ask if you'd lend me a thousand dollars—I mean on good security."

Nathan Sinch opened his eyes. What earthly security had Joe Jawtry to offer for a thousand dollars? Nathan's curiosity rose to white heat.

"Fact is," continued Joe, in a mysterious half whisper, "I think of makin' Tobit Cluke an offer for that bit o' hillside o' his'n; an' ef I buy it I'll be willin' to s'cure the loan by a mor'gidge on the primises."

"Lend you a thousan' dollars to put in Tobe Cluke's hillside!—well, that's a good un!—ha! ha! ha!—an' take a mor'gidge on it for the money!—better yet!—ho! ho! ho! Not much, ef Nat Sinch knows hisself. Why, I'd like to see the gasted fool as'd give a thousand cents for that stone-heap!"

"H—sh!" cautioned Joe, "don't speak so loud. I don't want the thing to git out. There's lots o' folks as'd be ready to snap it up at wunst ef they only know'd what I know. There's Tubal Tulkins, for one, I've my doubts he half mistrusts a'ready."

"Well, I'm main sorry I can't obleege you," said Nathan—"not of the s'curity was ever so good. I'm dreadful skrimp o' money jest now. These is tryin' times, you know, an' wuss is comin', I'm afeard."

Joe pleaded hard, but Nat Sinch was a man that could say "no," and stick to it; so Joe went away empty-handed and looking a good deal chopfallen.

"Aha!" cried Nathan, as soon as Joe was out of hearing—"I know what's o'clock. It's plain enough now what he was fumblin' round the old crab stump for. He's struck goold, that's what he's struck! He's a old Californy miner, an' was always reckoned a lucky finder, I've hearn say, but not good at keepin'. I wouldn' wonder, now, ef there was goold enough in that side-hill to pay the national debt. They do say it's most found in jest sech 'or'nary lookin' spots."

Joe went straight over to Tubal Tulkins's, where an altogether similar dialogue was gone over—only there Joe said it was Nat Sinch he suspected of being ready to snap the thing up.

In the course of half-an-hour Joe trudged across to Tobit Cluke's cabin, which Nathan Sinch had entered not a minute before.

"This is what I call blamed mean!" said Joe, with a withering look at Nathan, who had hardly finished bidding Tobit the time of day—"it's what I call blamed mean, so it is, sneakin' in this way to get ahead of a neighbor!"

"I'm a square man, Tobe Cluke," he continued, "an' don't want to take no advantage of nobody. Will you take a thousand dollars for that 'ere hill-side 'crost the gulch yonder, s'cured by a mor'gidge on the primises? Yes or no?"

"I'll give a thousan' cash down!" cried Nathan Sinch, before Tobit's astonishment would suffer him to speak.

"I'll go a couple o' hundred better!" shouted Tubal Tulkins, bustling in out of breath, just in time to catch Nathan Sinch's words.

"O, thunder! there's no use o' me buckin' agin two sech bloated Diveses as you chaps," said Joe, sitting down despondently.

The bidding between Nathan and Tubal went on briskly. Each felt that it was a sort of pig-in-a-poke business, but neither could bear the thought of letting the other bear off a prize possibly worth millions. At last Nathan bluffed Tubal with a bid of five thousand dollars, and came in winner. Tobit Cluke had recovered sufficient presence of mind to say "done," when the Squire was sent for, and the deed made, and a check given for the money on the spot.

"I've been climbin' over that bit o' ground a good deal," said Nathan Sinch, dropping in on Joe Jawtry in a neighborly way a couple of days afterwards.

"The hillside you mean," replied Joe, unconcernedly.

"Yes; you see I thought I might find somethin'."

"Find somethin'?—what did you expect to find?—goold, for enstance?"

Nathan admitted, sheepishly, that such a result would not have astonished him.

The laugh that Joe gave rang unpleasantly in Nathan's ears.

"Goold!" cried Joe, between his guffaws; "why, ef you sarch ev'ry atom o' that hillside with a mickeryscope o' forty thousan' hoss-power you'd never find as much goold as 'd make a gnat's earring!"

"What was you lookin' at, then, up thar by the crab stump?" gasped Nathan, trembling and turning pale.

"I'm a bit of a nat'ralist, you see," said Joe, "an' was watchin' a emmygrant train o' lean-lookin' red ants cuttin' away to escape starvation."

"What did you mean, kerflummix you! by that confounded gas 'bout givin' a thousan' dollars for the drotted place?" bellowed Nathan, in a rage.

"I said I thought of makin' Tobit Cluke an offer," answered Joe, calmly; "I never said I meant to buy, did I? Fact is, I wanted to see somebody git a bargain, for wunst, off you or Tube Tulkins, an' I guess Old Tobe's done it!"—N. Y. Ledger.

A New Field for Sportsmen.

A novelty in the way of "sport" is always gratifying and acceptable. As soon as Du Chaillu announced his stomach-thumping, walking-stick-using gorilla, a number of sportsmen started for gorilla-land, and Eden Lawson's "flying tiger" of New Guinea beguiled a credulous party into trusting their persons and property among the Papuans. But as a thoroughly refreshing novelty we think the donkey-hunting, cow-stalking, and dog-shooting of the Galapagos Islands must take a front seat. Once upon a time it appears there were human beings upon Charles Island who planted orange groves and corn, and imported cattle, asses and bull terriers. What happened to the human beings no one seems to know, but, failing other information, we may conclude that some cannibal ship's crew landed on the hospitable island and ate up the islanders, just by way of showing that the usual order of things might sometimes be reversed. Of the fate of the quadrupeds, however, there can be no doubt. They multiplied exceedingly, and are now in unrestricted possession of freedom and the island. But the cattle are vicious and aggressive, the dogs are wild beasts, preying upon calves and donkeylings, and the donkeys are fierce and fleet. What a groundwork is here presented for a vice-versa archipelago! If there are poultry they are no doubt rapacious birds of prey, robbing fox-roosts and carrying off fox-chickens. The cat, overwhelmed by wild bull-terriers, has become subterranean, purblind, insectivorous, and so forth. For the present, however, it suffices to point out the novelty of the sport to be enjoyed. It is not everywhere that the sportsman can shoot cows without having to pay damages, or enjoy a splitting burst across country after a donkey. The Galapagos Islands are the exception.—London Telegraph.

—A reverend by the name of Overton, of McNutt, Ga., in a sermon recently censured young men for matrimonially addressing young ladies on Sunday.—Chicago Times

THE DAIRY.

—Every dairyman should raise at least one-eighth of an acre of corn fodder for each cow to help the pasture through the dry season.

Immersion, for at least five minutes, of the vessels in which milk is set will, it is asserted by a member of the French academy, destroy the organism which in the form of dark blue spots distress the dairyman.

—A butter-maker, writing to the Iowa Homestead, says the best butter color is a pailful of corn-meal mush, fed warm once a day, the corn to be of the yellow variety; adding that it will increase the milk and butter as well as give a good color.

—The Chautauqua method of disposing of skim milk when it cannot be sold for human food, or made into profitable cheese, is the best we know of. The dairymen of that county add a quart or two of bran to a cow's allowance and feed it to her.—The Dairyman.

—Prof. Arnold urges dairy farming; first, because it costs ten per cent. less to operate a dairy farm than grain or mixed agriculture; second, the average returns are larger than for other farming; third, the prices are more uniform and trustworthy; fourth, it does not exhaust the soil; fifth, it is more secure against changes in the season.

—One hundred and thirteen cubic inches of cream should make a pound of butter. Any dairyman can judge of the fairness of any can he may use by the following rule: Multiply the square of diameter of can, expressed in inches, by the decimal .785398, and the product will be the number of cubic inches of cream, measuring one inch in depth in the can.

—Straw and cornstalks can be best utilized by running them through a cutting box, wetting them and mixing bran or mill feed with them, and the more liberal the supply of the latter the better the cows like it and the greater will be the milk yield. This is a much better way to feed ground food than without a mixture.

Ventilation in the Dairy.

The importance of a current of pure air through a milk-room where the milk is set for cream is not sufficiently understood. It is supposed that if the apartment is airy, dry and clean, and free from odors more or less offensive or even objectionable, these are sufficient. But they are not sufficient unless the term airy is understood in its fullest sense as including not only large space but also a constantly moving and renewed body of fresh air, pure air that has not been deprived of its proper share of oxygen by any previous process of consumption. This is necessary for the following reasons: First, exposure to pure air prevents the formation of acid in milk. It is known that milk will sour very rapidly in the close atmosphere of a cellar in which the air has been deoxidized by means of decaying vegetable matter, or in which the posts or beams are affected by dry rot. Secondly, we know that this first souring is due to the change of the milk sugar into lactic acid, a spontaneous change in which no alteration of the elements has occurred, and which requires nothing more than the mere absence of oxygen to affect it.

This change will take place very quickly, as many milk dairymen find to their surprise and cost, when milk is canned tightly before it has been cooled and aired sufficiently. Thirdly, we know that this needed airing simply affects the oxidation of the milk required to destroy the germs present in it, and by the operation of which the change of the milk sugar to milk acid is produced. Fourthly, it is known that exposure to air, and necessarily to oxygen, which is the only active element in the air, develops a high flavor in the cream and in the butter made from it, and that cream so exposed to the air, or as we term it in common parlance, ripened, churns more easily than other cream, and produces the very best quality of butter as regards color and flavor. The fact is, the flavor of butter, and of cheese as well, is developed only by a process of oxidation, airing or ripening, for all these terms mean the same thing, and if the dairy or cheese-room is not well ventilated and provided with abundance of fresh, pure, moving air, good butter or cheese cannot be made.—The Dairy.

A Dairy Cow.

A dairy cow never reaches perfection in her line until she has arrived at maturity, and she must reach this period of her life with all her faculties unimpaired if we expect her to be as good a cow as nature intended her to be. She differs in this respect from the best beef-growing animals, which are mature, as it were, from the start, and whose organizations, instead of being impaired for their business by generations of high, early feeding, are rather more and more adapted to it. We all know that the oldest and best family of Shorthorns are not remarkable for constitutional vigor and elasticity. They have not very great muscular strength, are not nervous and powerful in their movement, and are deficient in the procreative powers.

A good dairy cow should possess the appearance of strength and firmness without being too compact, and she should possess no palpably weak point if she is expected to endure well in the work of the dairy. She should not be selected for a breeder unless she possesses as an inheritance that shape which indicates strong vitality and that quality which indicates active secretory functions. In her well shaped strong head, wide muzzle, mild eye, broad forehead, small, wavy horn, slender neck, straight and slender fore-legs, sharp chin, loose shoulder, broad ribs, open jointed backbone, mellow skin, preponderating hind-quarters, long hind foot, and broad fore-foot, ample carcass, well-shaped udder, large superficial veins, soft hair; she should indicate a capacity for converting food into milk, as distinguished from the cow whose round and full form and heavier bone and smooth joints, narrow head and heavier quarters show an aptitude to take on fat.—Farmers' Friend.

RELIGIOUS AND EDUCATIONAL.

—Omaha spends $100,000 a year on her public schools, and a larger portion of the money comes from liquor license.

—The Yale triennial catalogue, lately issued, shows that of the seventy-three members of the class which graduated in 1832—fifty-one years ago—forty are now alive. The statistics of longevity at Harvard are no less remarkable. The graduates of our greatest colleges seem to live longer than the average.

—In Russia they still have a primitive way of keeping Christians from backsliding. The Moscow Gazette publishes the proceedings of the trial of seven Christian Tartars at Kazan, who were recently convicted of reviling and renouncing the orthodox faith and sentenced to hard labor and exile in Siberia.

—A Boston Methodist, Rev. Mr. Hamilton, is emancipating himself from the itinerant system by building a spacious house, to be called the "People's Church," designed to seat 4,000 persons. As it is a private enterprise, he will not be subject to the law of change which governs the regular Methodist Church.—Boston Post.

—While President Martin, of Hamilton College, was lecturing before a large audience of the Summer School of Christian Philosophy in the Presbyterian Church at Richfield Springs, N. Y., the Universalist Church, near by, was struck by lightning and partially wrecked. An infidel remarked that God had made a mistake; but Rev. Dr. Deems said the Presbyterian Church was their salvation.—N. Y. Times.

—The Jews of Vienna have an industrial school, in which children of their race are taught the mechanical and artisan trades. It has already turned out 1,500 skilled mechanics. Last year the school had over 250 pupils, of whom 40 were learning to be carpenters or cabinet-makers, 65 blacksmiths, 60 shoemakers, 23 turners of wood and metal, and 40 whitesmiths. Others were being trained as wheelwrights and designers.

—In some respects Ireland is the foremost nation in the world in the matter of education, as is shown in a recent circular of the Bureau of Education: In the comparative statistics of elementary, secondary and superior education in sixty principal countries, Ireland heads the list, with an average of twenty per cent. of her population of 5,159,829 attending school. The United States comes second with a percentage of nineteen and three-fifths of a population of 50,155,783. The next in line is Germany with fifteen and nine-tenths of a population of 45,149,172.

Artificially Dried Lumber.

"Thoroughly dried lumber is hard to buy nowadays," said the manager of a piano manufactory in this city, "and if you don't have dry lumber in making pianos you might as well not make them."

"How do you manage, then, for you make many pianos?" the reporter asked.

"We have dry rooms, or kilns, in which we put the lumber and season it ourselves. If it were not for our dry rooms we would have to shut up shop. We buy the best seasoned lumber that we can get, and leave it in our dry kilns from one to three weeks. Then we take out a board and try it, and if it is not thoroughly seasoned we shut up the kiln again."

"How do you tell when it is seasoned?"

"In several ways. We examine the sawdust, crumple up the shavings, observe the odor of the wood, and the way the saw or plane goes through it. Even then we are often deceived, and when the wood is made up and varnished, it cracks, warps, or splits, plainly showing that it was not fully dried.

"Dried lumber is necessary not only in the making of pianos, but also in the manufacture of furniture, moldings, and all kinds of wood-work. I'll guarantee that you have seen the back of a fine-looking hardwood bedstead split from side to side, or the lid of a desk cracked, to say nothing of windows and doors shrinking so that you have to use the widest kind of weather-strips to keep out the wind. Well, all this comes from using unseasoned lumber. It makes up neatly enough, but when it is exposed to the action of the atmosphere and the moisture in the pores of the wood evaporates, there's bound to be a shrinkage and something's got to give."

"What is the cause of the scarcity of seasoned lumber?"

"The great demand for lumber in the East for building and manufacturing purposes compels the Western lumbermen to ship their lumber before it is thoroughly seasoned. Half a dozen years ago it was customary to take the lumber from the saw and pile it in the open air, where it would be left from eighteen months to two years before it was considered in sufficiently good condition for shipping. Now six months is held to be a good long time. The consequence is that there is comparatively very little dry lumber in the market."

"How is lumber dried artificially?"

"There are half a dozen ways. Heat is the great principle in them all. There are drying kilns of all sizes and almost all shapes. Some are heated by steam-pipes, some by furnaces and some by hot air. In some a vacuum is created, and in some compressed air is used. The great thing, to my mind, in drying lumber is to get a good circulation of air about it. The moisture comes to the surface and is dried off. A lately-invented drying apparatus consists of an arrangement by which a very large volume of air is thrown into the kiln at one end and exhausted at the other. Every two minutes all the air in the kiln is changed. A fan-blower entraps the air and forces it through a heating apparatus before it gets to the kiln. It is so arranged that the air may be heated to any degree desired, and different kinds of lumber are differently treated. This process dries green lumber in seven or eight days."

"How long would it take the same lumber to dry in the open air?"

"Anywhere from one to two years. Some people say they would not use kiln-dried lumber, but they are in the minority. Piano-makers and cabinet-makers could not get along without drying kilns."—N. Y. Sun.

Old Love and Burglary.

Some time ago the wife of a merchant was suddenly awakened in the night by the sound of footsteps in her bed-room, and the next moment the light of a dark lantern flooded her face so near that she could almost feel the heat and hear the suppressed breathing of the intruder. Her husband was from home, and the only person in the house except herself was a servant-girl, who slept in the story beneath. Her presence of mind did not, however, forsake her. It doubtless requires a great amount of resignation and fortitude in a woman to listen to, without screaming, the ransacking of her store of valuable laces and the appropriation of her jewelry; but the lady, very rationally deeming her life worth all the lace and diamonds in the world, quietly closed her eyes and awaited the result.

The light was withdrawn from her face and she heard the rustling of silks, the picking of locks, and occasionally a low whisper of surprise or disappointment. Then there was silence for a full minute—it seemed an hour to her—and a soft footstep approached the bed, and the glare of the lantern again fell upon her face. Through the closed lids of her eyes she saw the light, but remained calm and motionless in its scrutinizing rays, fearful that the least movement might imperil her life. What a moment of suspense! The light was removed from her face, and she felt that some one was leaning against the bed. Still she remained motionless, nor did she stir when the warm breath of the burglar fanned her cheek. Not until his lips pressed her forehead did she spring up and half shriek: "Who is in this room?"

"Hush!" responded a voice in a hoarse whisper, while a rough hand was laid on her shoulder. "Speak nothing, and fear nothing." The next moment she heard the sound of retreating footsteps and the creaking of a shutter, then all was still again. Satisfied that she was alone, she sprang from the bed and touched a lighted match to the burner, then sank into a chair, completely prostrated with the danger through which she had passed. Recovering, she looked round to ascertain of what she had been plundered.

The drawers were all in the utmost confusion, but, strange to say, little or nothing was missing. A casket of jewelry was open on the bureau, but the diamonds and gold were all there. Beside the casket she discovered a little roll of paper containing a ring which had been given to her many years before, and which had been in her possession ever since. Half bewildered at the singular proceeding, she was about to cast the paper from her when her eye caught the marks of a pencil upon it. She carefully opened it and read:

> This ring, which once was mine, tells me in whose house I am. You know I am an outlaw—the world knows it, and I do not care to deny it; but, fallen as I am, I can not rob you, Maria. Forgive me, and God bless you.
>
> HENRY.

This explained all. Falling on her knees, she prayed for him who had written the scroll. And who was "Henry?" Ten years ago he loved the same Maria, and he would have made her his wife—for she had promised to be his—had he not taken to drink and gambling and finally forged the name of his employer, for which he was given a home in a convict prison. When he was worthy of her love he gave her that ring, and she had kept it in remembrance of what he had been. This is the story of the ring.

On the return of the husband the wife related to him the adventure and showed him the note; but he has never attempted to arrest the burglar.—Chicago Tribune.

Always His Luck.

He boarded the St. Clair River boat yesterday morning with his wife and five children, and the family were not yet seated when he began:

"Now, Sarah, I'll bet fifty dollars you forgot to hook that wood-shed door!"

"Mercy on me, but so I did!" she gasped.

"Just as I expected—just exactly; we'll get home to find the house cleaned out or in ashes. Never mind, though, it would serve us just right!"

The boat had not yet started when one of the boys who insisted on some gymnastics with a chair fell to the deck and set up a great squall.

"Broke both arms or I'm a sinner!" shouted the father. "I told you he'd do it if we let him come along, and now he's a cripple for life!"

It was, however, discovered that the youngster had sustained nothing more serious than a skinned nose, and peace was restored and continued until the wife suddenly discovered that she had lost her watch.

"Of course—of course!" prowled the husband. "There goes $125 of my hard earnings! I knew you'd have it stolen before you had gone a rod!"

"But perhaps I left it on the bureau."

"Well, it will be lugged off before night, just the same. Serves you just right for bulldozing me a whole month to make this infernal excursion. What ails that woman's baby!"

"I declare if it hasn't got the whooping cough!"

"Of course—of course, and not one of our children ever had it! You'll have business on your hands for the next six weeks!"

The next half hour passed peacefully enough. Then somebody observed that a man whose gaze was fixed on the water probably contemplated suicide.

"I expect nothing else!" exclaimed the disconsolate husband, "but may be he will listen to reason."

Going over to the stranger he laid a hand on his shoulder and brusquely inquired:

"Sir! do you mean to jump into the lake?"

"Yes, sir," was the reply, as the man looked up.

"Just so—exactly—I suspected as much. You'll utter a yell as you go over and kick up all the bobbery you can, I presume."

"Yes, sir."

"And my wife will faint away and every young'un howl like an Injun! I'll give you a dollar to go over on the sly."

"No, sir—not for a thousand."

"Haven't you any feelings for a man who has had steamboats and fish and rivers and lakes and flats pounded into him for three months?"

"None, sir."

"And won't five dollars bribe you?"

"It won't."

"Then go ahead with your oration and death-yell! Make all the fuss you will! Splatter around in the water as long as you possibly can, and fix your eyes on my family when you go down for the last time! I never had any other kind of luck, and I'm going down to the saloon and get drunk preparatory to a biler explosion! Good-bye, old feller; serves me right, and I don't complain!"

When he was helped ashore at the Flats he was weak in the knees and limber in his spirit. Gathering his family around him he counted:

"Sheven, eight, nine, ten, 'lezen, twelve. Why, bless my stars! I only had five shildren when we left Detroit, an' now I've got ten! Juss my luck—juss zl 'spected! Los' watch—whoopin'-cough—su'cide—ten shildren—whoop! Sherves me jus' rize!"—Detroit Free Press.

Flavored Cigars.

"Most people like a flavored cigar," said an Indianapolis druggist to a reporter who had stepped in to buy a weed. "Try one of these; I think you will like it." The reporter took one of the brand recommended to him, lighted it and began to smoke.

"I have to put up considerable cigar flavor," continued the drug man, "and I suppose some people wouldn't find it so difficult a thing to quit smoking if they knew what the popular flavors are made of. On second thought, though, I don't think it would make any difference. The fact that 'snipes'—that is, old cigar stumps—are worked over into cigarettes and smoking tobacco—though thoroughly ventilated in the newspapers—never cured a smoker of the habit. Awhile ago it was shown that some nasty diseases were contracted from smoking cigars made in low tenement houses and by leprous Chinese; but the smokers never flinched, but smoked calmly on."

"Tell me something about these flavors," said the reporter.

"Well, since you insist on it, I will. A flavor I have made a good deal of—it's a flavor that, in the language of the trade, makes a 'ten cent cigar for five cents'—is made as follows: Gum guaiac, gum tolu, tonqua beans and essence of pine-apple, of each one ounce; valerian root, two ounces; laudanum (tincture of opium) one ounce; oil of rose, six drops; Jamaica rum, half a pint; macerate for thirty-six hours and pour off, using one ounce to a pint of port-wine to blow on the fillers.

"A good many men who get attached to a certain brand of cigars don't know what chains 'em. It's the opium, and they get in the habit of using it unconsciously. Valerian taken habitually renders the heart's action more rapid, but feebler, causes hurried respiration, and may occasion congestion of the kidneys. If its use is long continued, it may paralyze the spinal cord, so the books say. Its action on the tongue and throat is more prompt and apparent, frequently causing epithelium. As to opium, its infernal effects are well known. It would take an almanac to enumerate all the diseases it occasions. It produces contraction of the pupils of the eyes, affects the digestive functions by blunting the gastric sensation, checking all tissue changes. It tends to constipate the bowels by diminishing the proper secretions of the liver and pancreas, and the blood being but partially oxygenated, is rendered unfit for a return to the heart, and stagnates in the lungs. Opium has a tendency to augment Bright's disease, diabetes and other diseases of the kidneys. It's opium and valerian that makes the artificially flavored cigar popular."—Indianapolis Journal.

Shad in the Pacific.

The shad, although until seven years ago a stranger on the coast, has multiplied since its introduction to an extent truly remarkable. They are now to be found all along the coast of this State and northward are rapidly making their way. As yet, they have not found that favor in the markets of this city which they long ago obtained in the East, partly owing to the presence of the salmon, and partly from other causes, the chief of which is, no doubt, the fact that there has never been such a quantity offered for sale at any one time as to put the price of the article down so low that every one would be tempted to buy through motives of economy, and thereby acquire a taste for such fish as a staple article of diet. The main reason why the shad has not appeared in that abundance in our markets at the present time, which the vast shoals on this coast might justify us in expecting, is the limitation act, which, through wisdom or ignorance (it may have been the one or the other), closed the bay to shad-fishing during the winter months when the fish were here, and opened it during the summer months when they had returned to the ocean. On the Atlantic coast the shad begin to "run" in January in the rivers of the Southern States, continuing to ascend the more northern streams later, as the ice passes out and the waters become warmer. The shad season occupies about six months of the year along the coast. On this side of the continent their course is reversed, and the shad appears in San Francisco Bay in October and leave it about the 1st of May, beginning later as the degrees of latitude increase. From recent accounts the "run" in Columbia River this year is something wonderful, and at the present time the fish are so abundant that they are sold at twenty-five cents per hundred, and thousands fail to find purchasers even at that price.—San Francisco Alta.

—From criminal statistics just published it appears that in the year 1881 the total number of persons convicted of the various penal offenses in Prussia, with a population of nearly 29,000,000, was 238,732. Of these 186,222 were males.

Key West has eighty-one cigar factories, employing 5,000 hands, and during the year ended June 30 manufactured 75,000,000 cigars.

FACTS AND FIGURES.

—In the State of Mississippi only 1,236 women said their ages were thirty-one, while no less than 10,619 declared they were just thirty.—Chicago Herald.

Italy has 7,628 sailing vessels and 92 steamers. The trading vessels are manned by 181,381 men, of whom 4,338 are Captains of long courses and 2,509 cabotage Captains.

—Ostrich chicks are hatching out at the California ostrich farm at the rate of one a day. When they come out of the egg they are about the size of a half-grown duck. They grow rapidly.—San Francisco Chronicle.

—The number of watermelons shipped by steamer from Savannah to the Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Boston markets was, for the season, 797,101. The freight averaged six cents, and the average price at which the melons sold was twenty-five cents.—Chicago Times.

—The value of the poultry consumed in the United States annually is estimated at $300,000,000, or $6 to each inhabitant. The value of the eggs consumed is set at $240,000,000, or $540,000,000 for poultry and eggs together, or about $10 per head to each inhabitant. The number of eggs consumed is claimed to be 9,000,000,000, or 180 eggs to each inhabitant, which would allow one egg to each person every other day.

—Three public officials in the city and county of New York have incomes from their offices amounting to double the salary of the President of the United States. The profits of the County Clerk from fees range from $100,000 to $150,000 a year. The Register of Deeds is also paid by fees, and squeezes out of the office every year about $200,000. The Sheriff's office is another gold mine, yielding a yearly income of not less than $100,000.—N. Y. Sun.

—The geographical limits of some of the world's great cities seem to bear but little relation to the number of their inhabitants. New York now includes 41½ square miles, or 26,500 acres; Paris, within the fortifications, consists of 28¾ square miles, or 18,315 acres; London has 122 square miles, or about 77,000 acres; Philadelphia, with a population of 800,000, has the surprising geographical area of 129 square miles—which is considerably more than is covered by London, even with all its modern additions of what were not long ago outlying and separate communities.—N. Y. Tribune.

—There are now about 17,000 dentists in the United States, and they pack into the teeth of the American people about a ton of pure gold and five times that amount of less precious metals (tin, silver, platinum, etc.) annually. Now, these metals are worth $1,000,000, and it will take only about 350 years to bury all the coin in the United States in the grave-yards (another feature in favor of cremation). There are about 4,000,000 of artificial teeth made in the United States yearly, yet only one-third of the people avail themselves of this blessing.—Scientific California.

WIT AND WISDOM.

—Please to remember that in the economy of life short progress and honest weight are better than long progress and short weight.—N. Y. Herald.

—A little singular that passengers are not permitted to converse with the man at the wheel, notwithstanding that he is spokesman of the ship.—N. O. Item.

—How the Style Spread.—

Old Mother Hubbard
Went to the cupboard
To get her poor daughter a gown;
She made it up slattern,
With a sack for a pattern,
And the style spead all over the town.

—She was a sweetly inexperienced young housekeeper, as one may gather from her remark when some one suggested that she should purchase spring mattresses. "Yes," she replied, "if they are in season we'd better have some."—Chicago Tribune.

—You can not long pass for anything more than your real value, after all. You may wear a placard saying you are solid gold, but men hardly take a second squint at you before they discover that you are pinchbeck. The farmer may shingle and clap-board his old barn, but the moment you get on the inside you see that it is the old barn nevertheless.—N. Y. Herald.

—It is not genius that tells on the world, but downright and honest hard work. Your brains may ferment and effervesce like a yeast pot, but unless you can settle down to steady toil you are worth no more to the community than a soap bubble, which bursts so soon that it is hardly worth one's while to stop to look at and admire it. A good blacksmith is worth a round dozen of geniuses who wear long hair and Byronic collars and wonder why the world doesn't adore them.—Exchange.

—Plantation Philosophy.—De edycation ob a man is his silver, but his common sense is his gold. Fortune sometimes comes ter de one what least expecks it, but is more apt ter com ter de man what works for it. De wust boy don't al'ers turn out ter be de bes' man. I has know'd good boys ter drag along an' finally amount ter suthin'. De wust lick I eber got was from a man what didn't want ter hit me. Now I'se mighty kereful 'bout crowdin' a man. When a pusson says dat he wants ter fight, yer's safe; but when he tells yer dat he doan want ter fight, den stop right war yer is.—Arkansaw Traveller.

An Awful Thought.

A young lady stepped into a certain drug store the other day to quiz the clerk. She gave him this and that, and he soon became red in the face. He was becoming irritated.

"If I keep on," she said, sweetly, "You'll get mad, won't you?"

"Yes, I will," he pettishly replied.

"I'd advise you not. Don't become more worked up than you are. It wouldn't be safe," she answered.

"Why wouldn't it?"

"Because if you become madder they put you in that drawer and sell you out to color old shawls at ten cents a pound. Think to what a base use a handsome drug clerk might come if he didn't use care." And the lady left, much to the relief of the muchly-worried clerk, who failed to "catch on."—Carl Pretzel's Weekly.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. SEPT. 12 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
½ "	1 "	40
¼ "	1 "	20
[illegible] "	1 "	20
[illegible] "	[illegible] "	10
[illegible] "	[illegible] "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (excepting the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year $1 50
Six months 75
Three months 40

The Corn Crop for 1883.

[From the Cincinnati Price Current.]

While it is yet to early to determine with exactness what the corn crop of 1883 shall be, the question of its present condition and promise is an interesting one. With a view of ascertaining what this is we have, as heretofore, made extensive investigation by special inquiries, the result of which, carefully collated and computed, is herewith given to the public, from returns received within the past week:

In 1882 the corn area was 65,500,000 acres, and the average yield about 24.6 bushels per acre, compared with 18.6 in 1881, 27.5 in 1880, and 28.1 in 1879. The latter was the highest average on record. The area the present season is 68,000,000 acres and the average yield will probably be about 85 per cent. of the 1879 average, provided the crop reaches maturity without essential interference from frost.

For the seven leading corn States Ohio alone gives promise of a smaller crop than last year, the reduction now indicated being about 15 per cent. while there is a gain of 5 per cent. in Indiana, 10 per cent. in Illinois, 15 per cent. in Iowa, 5 per cent. in Missouri, 30 per cent. in Kansas, and 10 per cent in Nebraska—our approximations for these States reaching an aggregate of 1,042,000,000 bushels, compared with 955,595,800 reported by the Government last year, or an average increase of nearly 10 per cent.

In the South, where there was more than the usual production of corn last year, excepting Texas and perhaps the unimportant ones of Louisiana and Florida, will afford so great a yield as in 1882, and the aggregated crop now indicated is about 420,000,000 bushels, compared with 485,123,500 last year.

In New York the crop is seriously curtailed in many districts, and the average for the State is 30 per cent. below last year, while in Pennsylvania the promise is better, now indicating a crop fully up to last year. The small production in New Jersey and Delaware is not up to last year. These four Middle States now show a promise of 72,000,000 bushels, compared with 78,585,000 last year.

The New England States and other sections of the country not included in the foregoing, last year produced 14,809,000 bushels, and will probably be about 13,000,000 bushels.

The aggregate result is that the gain which is now apparent for the leading corn-growing districts, amounting to about 75,000,000 bushels over last year, will be offset by about an equal deficiency in the South and other sections, so that the general promise of the country is for a crop of proportions corresponding closely to last years production. In these calculations the official exhibits of the Department of Agriculture for last year are adopted as the basis of comparison, and which we regard as about 10 per cent. below the real measure of last year's crop. This means that if last year's crop is reckoned by the 1,617,000,000 measure, it will be equal to this production this year, while, if last year's crop was actually 1,800,000,000 bushels, or more, the promise now is for a crop of equal proportions.

It is safe to assume that we have assurance of a corn crop this season that will reach 1,600,000,000 bushels by official recognition, and 1,800,000,000 bushels in fact, or equal to the production of 1832. It is also evident that the new crop will not be drawn upon for early feeding purposes in the manner which attended last year's crop. It is likewise evident that there is a fair surplus of corn in the West, compared with depleted reserves a year ago. With this fact is the bountiful production this year of oats and hay, and other feeding products. So that the corn crop this season might be 10 to 15 per cent. short of last year, and still be ample for all needs, while the probabilities are that it will not be less than last year, and may possible be greater.

In Ohio the present average promise is about 85 per cent. compared with last year, or 80,000,000 bushels.

In Indiana about two-thirds of the counties report the crop as up to or better than last year. The general average promise is good.

In Illinois about 25 per cent. of the counties will fall short of last year in yield, but in various other localities where there was a marked shortage last year there will be a fair to good crop this season, quite a number of the best corn growing counties reporting a material increase in the yield. The promise now is for 10 per cent. over last year's crop.

The Iowa crop, as in States further East, is quite backward. If the bulk of the crop can reach maturity, it will make a yield fully 15 per cent. in excess of last year.

In Missouri the average promise is for a yield slightly better than last year.

In Kansas returns indicate an average of fully 30 per cent. over last year in the production.

In Nebraska there is complaint that the crop is late, and early frosts would result in much damage. Returns indicate a crop 10 per cent. larger than last year, with no serious drawback from frost, while the gain may possibly be greater with an especially favorable fall.

In Minnesota the crop is backward and early frost would cut it short essentially.

In Wisconsin we place the estimate at 30,000,000 bushels, compared with 32,200,000 last year and 38,800,000 in 1880.

Michigan promises but little over 60 per cent. of a crop.

In Kentucky only a few sections report the crop as good, while many counties are 25 to 50 per cent. short of last year in yield. The indications reported average 85, or about 65,000,000 bushels, which may be somewhat modified; the crop in 1882 was 75,000,000, and in 1880 86.000,000.

In Tennessee there has been much drawback from drought, and the yield will fall 10 to 15 per cent. below last year on the average, a few counties exceeding last year in production. The estimate may be placed at 65,000,000 bushels, compared with 75,200,00 in '82, and 62,500,000 in 1880.

ALTHOUGH the buildings of the North Kentucky Agricultural Society have vanished, our people still cherish a love for witnessing fine collections of stock and agricultural productions such as were to be seen year after year at the Florence Fair; and during the past few days we have talked with some of the prominent men of the county, and find that they are anxious that another agricultural association be organized and a ground prepared for exhibitions.

It is evident that the Latonia association will never have the agricultural feature attached, and it is the one in which the masses of the country people are interested, hence an agricultural fair in the vicinity of Florence would in no wise conflict with the races at Latonia.

We have also been informed that some of the business men of Covington have expressed a willingness to lend material aid to the enterprise and are anxious that some one set the ball rolling.

It seems that the public will now take hold of the matter, and with industry on the part of the advocates of a fair one can be held next fall, and after a few exhibitions it can be made to rank among the best in the State.

The land upon which it was proposed to erect new buildings two years since, can now be purchased for two or three thousand dollars less than it could have been bought for at that time, and with the amount of money subscribed that was promised when the last attempt was made to reorganize the association, everything can be put in readiness for an exhibition, and being located on the railroad would be a great advantage.

An agricultural association properly conducted would be a great benefit to the surrounding country. It would inspire the farmers to an improvement of their stock, and to take more pains with their farm productions. It would be a place where the farmers could meet and exchange opinions, and derive information one from another in regard to many farm topics. It would introduce new and profitable features in farming with which many of our citizens may never become acquainted unless introduced to them through the medium of an agricultural association in their immediate vicinity.

Among other things the social feature is not to be overlooked. It brings together the people of the surrounding county, and affords a means of social intercourse that can be enjoyed on no other occasion. The people of the country become acquainted, and are furnished means of ascertaining what different localities are doing in the agricultural line.

Agriculture is the most important pursuit known to the American people—being the great corner stone and supporter of all other branches of business, and should be given every advantage in asserting itself.

THE Cincinnati Democrats who were disatisfied with the manner in which the Highland House convention was managed, met last Saturday night and nominated another ticket for county officers. It seems that the Hamilton County Democracy is in a bad shape just at the present time when harmony is needed, and while the two factions are cutting one another's throats the Republicans will quietly walk off with all the county offices.

JUDGE HOADLEY's health has failed him, and he has been compelled to retire from the field in the canvass for Governor of Ohio, and the probabilities are that he will do but little more active work during the campaign. To what extent his absence from the field will effect the final result can only be surmised; but the leading men among his supporters think his chances for election will not be put in peril.

GOV. KNOTT's cabinet is as follows: Secretary of State, Ex-Congressman James A. McKenzie, of Christian county; Assistant Secretary of State, Col. H. M. McCarthy, editor of the Paducah Journal; Adjutant General, Major John B. Castleman, of Louisville; Commissioner of Agriculture, Col. John F. Davis, of Shelby county; Private Secretary, Judge Charles E. Kincade, of Louisville.

HON. JOE BLACKBURN has withdrawn from the race for the Speakership in consideration of which he thinks that the Kentucky legislature ought to make him a United States Senator. Well, may be it ought, and as between Joe and Cero Gordo, let us have Joe by all means.

IT is claimed that the Cox and the Carlisle supporters for the Speakership will combine to defeat Randall. Such a combination will be the natural result of these gentlemen's position on the tariff question, which is the issue upon which the race is being made.

HAD Cecil complied with the contract that Sheldon claims was made as between them, Sheldon never would have discovered that Cecil had rendered himself ineligible. It is Sheldon's bull that is gored.

ELLIS CRAFT is now awaiting the hangman's noose, the Court of Appeals having overruled the petition for a new trial, and all that now remains is for Gov. Knott to appoint a day for the execution.

THE New York Sun does not think that the approaching election in the State of Ohio, this fall, will have an important bearing on the Presidential election next year, as the issues are purely local.

LITTLE by little the corrupt means brought to bear in the Louisville convention, are made public. The head and tail of the ticket both seem to have been the result of trading.

KNOTT's majority was 44,434. He ran ahead of his ticket, although his majority was not as large as that of some of the other candidates.

THE Republicans in Hamilton county, Ohio, are laughing themselves blind over the rupture in the Democratic party over there.

THE Cincinnati Enquirer has on hand a $50,000 libel suit. It was not brought by the Commercial Gazette, but by a shoemaker.

THE fight in Hamilton county, O., is between John R. McLean, editor of the Enquirer, and Geo. H. Pendleton.

THE State Railroad Commission met in Frankfort yesterday to fix the assessments of railroads for 1883.

THE Democratic party in Ohio is afflicted with too many great men.

THERE will not be over a half crop of corn raised in Owen this year.

GOV. KNOTT has two colonels and one major in his cabinet.

HENCEFORTH we will spell the word Governor with a big G.

STATE NEWS.

—On 150 miles of the Cincinnati Southern there are twenty-seven tunnels.

—B. M. Burdett, Esq., has bought over 5,000 bushels of wheat in Garrard at $1.

—A Spencer county boy, eight years old, has two grandmothers, two great-grandmothers and two great-great-grandmothers living.

Just From New York WITH A Full LINE of FALL SUITINGS, — AND — OVERCOATS.

The above stock was carefully selected, and consists of all the NEW STYLES of FALL GOODS, and you can not fail to be pleased with the Goods and Prices.

H. F. BLASE,
540 Madison St, - COVINGTON, KY.

—The Allenville (Todd county) Gazette will be published hereafter in Russellville.

—Hon. Critt Reeves, twice a member of the legislature from Todd county, is a candidate for Assistant Clerk of the lower house of the General Assembly.

—Woodford Sun: Patrick O'Hara, the stone-mason, when asked why he sold his bald-faced runaway mare to a minister, replied he wanted to spread the gospel.

—J. W. Berry, of Jessamine, is feeding his hogs with cooked potatoes, and reports to the Jessamine Journal that they are taking on fat at the rate of three pounds per day.

Paris Kentuckian: Our North Middletown correspondent writes us that Capt. Ed Spears has a rooster that watches constantly for and catches mice with the ease and quickness of an old Maltese cat.

—Lexington Gazette: A new market for Kentucky horses has been found in New Zealand. It seems our horses are in great demand from many sections, judging from the number taken from here each year.

—Catlettsburg Democrat: The recent term of the Rowan Circuit Court made it pretty warm for the pistol fiend and the demons who furnish liquors to minors. Their jail is said to be so full of them that their feet stick out the window.

—The Mercer Enterprise says an apple tree in that locality has not failed to bear fruit every season for sixty years. Five feet from the ground it measures around the trunk ten feet nine inches. It is believed to be the largest apple tree in the world, and is now ninety years old.

—Frankfort Yeoman: Mr. Mathew Allen, of Louisville; Dr. Mark Wallace, of Cincinnati and Gen. Jno. Rodman, of this city, were in the Governor's office yesterday, and Sam Gaines says he never expected to see so good a crowd again—Mathew, Mark, Luke and John.

—Hustonville (Lincoln county) item, Danville Advocate: J. W. Allen is buying corn around here at $1 50 per barrel in the field. The drouth has injured the corn to some extent in this part of the county, but the large amount of old corn on hand will prevent the new crop from going up in price.

—Frankfort Yeoman: The colored brothers are very hot over the scratching of Asbury by Kentucky Republicans. Their organ in New York says "the colored man will hereafter only gush over the white man in proportion as the white man gushes over him." That sounds very nice, but the darkey will vote the republican ticket all the same. He may be cussed, kicked and confounded, and he will never have the spirit to rise up against his white republican masters.

TO THE STOCKHOLDERS OF MT. PLEASANT GRANGE HALL.

The Stockholders of the above property are requested to meet in the Hall the 19th inst., at 2 p. m., for the purpose of deciding wether a pro rata tax shall be levied on the Stock or the Hall shall be sold, to liquidate the debt now against said company.

J. E. DUNCAN,
OSCAR GAINES, } Trustees.
G. C. GRADDY,

Mother's Spinning Wheel.

Concerning One Article that was Not For Sale, and Another which is Cheap at Any Price.

"No, sir, I wouldn't sell you that for any money; that spinning-wheel was my mother's. It was one day, when she was singing like a lark and making this old wheel hum, that my father, then a young medical student, afterwards a farmer, fell in love with her—some fifty years ago."

So spoke the proprietor of a rough bit of farm land in Ulster county, N. Y., to a relic-hunter, and "mother's" spinning-wheel remained among her children and grandchildren.

"My mother," writes Rev. J. W. Phelps, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. Church, Chicago, has used PARKER'S TONIC, and wishes me to say that she has found it more effective than anything she ever used for invigorating and strengthening the system debilitated by malaria. She desires me also especially to mention the certainty with which it aids digestion and overcomes exhaustion."

Ever since the first household was established "mother's" opinion has been more potent in this world than that of judge, jurist or physician. Her hand has always cooled the fever and her voice has been filled with hope. With each day's decline, PARKER'S TONIC, is becoming more deservedly popular with the women who guard alike husband and children. It eradicates malarial poison from the blood, from which there is now such widespread suffering.

Please observe: Dr. PARKER'S TONIC is not an intoxicant. It is a combination of several ingredients, of which none singly can produce anything like its effect. For Kidney, Stomach and Liver troubles, it is the standard and unfailing remedy. In two sizes: 50 cents and $1. The latter the cheaper. HISCOX & CO., Chemists, New York

For Sale.

A good cow and calf—the cow is fresh and a number one milch cow, apply to
C. L. CRISLER, Burlington, Ky.

Subscribe for the RECORDER.

ATTENTION!

Attention! Attention

If you want to buy a first-class organ
If you want to buy a first-class
Piano. If you want to exchange your old instrument. If you want to receive their full value.
If you want an instrument of any kind If you want to exchange your old sewing machine. If you want to buy
the best new sewing machine. If you want to receive a five years warrant with every purchase,
bring or send your orders to G. S. Lozier
Gen. Agent,
Lawrence-
burg,
Indiana,
Office & Sales
Room in Dr. C. G.
Walters' building, Corner Short and Tate Sreets.
Send for Prices and Circulars.
All mail orders filled promptly.

LUMBER.

Goe. M. Bedinger & Co.,
Erlanger, - - Ky.

We keep constantly on hand all kinds of Lumber, Laths and Shingles. Also Builder's supplies of all kinds.

—Come and see Us.—

may 9-tf

Notice.

500 stock sheep for sale. Call on the undersigned at Bullittsville Boone county, Kentucky. ALFRED S. GAINES.

Farm for Sale.

I am offering for sale my farm, lying 3 miles south of Burlington on the Big Bone road, containing 55½ acres, a part of the Mason Crisler farm. The land lays well and is conveniently located, the improvments are a good brick house and all necessary out buildings, and a variety of good fruit. Any person desirous of purchasing a nice farm will do well to come and examine the premises and learn terms. Title good. MRS. OSCAR CRISLER.

Farm for Sale.

A small farm of 11½ acres, on the Covington and Lexington pike, at the top of Willow Run Hill. On it are a commodious house, necessary out buildings and a good orchard. Title good. Call on W. C. Tupman, Sheriff's Office, Covington, Thomas Tupman, Kenton Heights or W. L. Riddell, Burlington.

For Sale.

70 Stands of Bees.

I will sell the entire lot at $5 per stand, or will sell 35 stands at $6 per stand. Persons buying one or two stands can get them at $10 per stand. A larger number will be sold proportionally cheaper. No honey has been taken from the brood department, and the stands are all in good order.

E. E. UTZ.

NOTICE.

All persons having claims against the estate of Churchell Clore, decd., will present them properly proven as by law required. HENRY CLORE, WM. CLORE, Executors.

Farm for Sale!

35 acres of good rolling bottom land. 3½ miles below Aurora ferry, ½ mile from Bellevue and ¼ mile from the Ohio river, being part of the Warren Rogers farm. For particulars call on or address T. H. SUTTON, Grant P. O., Ky., or at this office.

44-2-m

LOOK HERE!

when you go to Lawrenceburg, call on

Winegardner

He has a large assortment of

Wall Paper!

And is daily receiving additions to his stock. Call and examine before purchasing.

Inks, Pens and Stationary

constantly on hand.
Headquaters in Lolton House.

WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS FOR THE

LIVER

And all Billous Complaints

Safe to take, being purely vegetable; no griping. Price 25 cts. All Druggists.

INCORPORATED UNDER THE LAWS OF MISSOURI.

CENTRAL MEDICAL & SURGICAL INSTITUTE OF ST. LOUIS, MO.

SUCCESSORS TO DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY. OFFICE & ROOMS, NO. 920 LOCUST ST.
CHAS. L. LaBARGE, M.D., Pres't & Physician in Charge.
NELSON CHESMAN, Treas. & Business Manager.

This Institute has ample facilities and an experienced Faculty. While it succeeds to a large business, which has been established for years, it will aim to extend its medical and surgical practice, giving skillful and scientific treatment to CHRONIC DISEASES of the Head, Spine, Lungs and Air Passages, Heart, Liver, Stomach and Bowels, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Consumption and Asthma. BLOOD IMPURITIES, inherited or caused by impure association, Scrofula, Fever Sores, Ulcers, etc. DEFORMITIES of the Limbs, Spinal Curvature, Wry-Neck, Diseases of the Joints, Piles, Fistula, Rupture, etc. WEAKNESS and wasting diseases in old and young men, also all diseases of the genito-urinary organs. FEMALE Irregularities and weaknesses, causing pain in the back or side, etc.

Personal interviews with patients are always preferred. Those unable to visit the Institute will be furnished with blank lists of questions that will aid them in making a full statement of their cases and if not requiring a surgical operation they can be successfully treated by correspondence, and medicines sent by mail or express. To enable us to send proper list of questions applicants should give a brief statement of their trouble.

(The Treasurer of the corporation is of Nelson Chesman & Co., Advertising Agents, and refers to the publisher of this or any other newspaper in the United States or Canada regarding responsibility.)

Consultation at Office or by mail free and invited

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.
Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.
TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

VIGOROUS HEALTH FOR MEN

THE PASTILLE CURE TRADE MARK FOR NERVOUS DEBILITY

TESTED FOR 5 YEARS by use in thousands of cases. Founded on scientific medical principles, it has been growing in favor and reputation while its numerous competitors have invariably failed. The direct application of this remedy to the seat of the disease makes its specific influence felt without delay. The natural functions of the human organism are restored. The animating elements of life which have been wasted are given back. The buoyant energy of the brain and muscular system renders the patient cheerful; he gains strength with rapidity.

NERVOUS DEBILITY, organic weakness, and numerous obscure diseases, baffling the skill of best physicians, result for youthful indiscretion, too free indulgence, and over brain work.

Do not temporize while such enemies lurk in your system. Take a remedy that has cured thousands, and does not interfere with your attention to business or cause any pain or inconvenience.

(Send for a Descriptive Pamphlet giving Anatomical Illustrations, which will convince the most sceptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fitted for the duties of life, same as if never affected. Sent free to any one. Remedy sold ONLY by the)

HARRIS REMEDY CO. MF'G. CHEMISTS.
306½ N. 10th. St. ST. LOUIS, MO.
One Month's treatment $3, two months $5, three months $7

AYER'S Ague Cure

IS WARRANTED to cure all cases of malarial disease, such as Fever and Ague, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Billious Fever, and Liver Complaint. In case of failure, after due trial, dealers are authorized, by our circular of July 1st, 1882, to refund the money.

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists.

INJECTION SANTINELI

Cures all recent and chronic secret diseases of the Urinary passages in both sexes. Directions in all languages. $1.00 a bottle Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of price secure from observation. Fairmount Chemical Co. Cincinnati, Ohio, U. S. A. Sold by W. F. M'Kim Burlington

ADMINISTRATORS NOTICE.

Persons having claims against the estate of J. C. Riley, decd., are hereby notified to present them to the undersigned proven as by law required. Persons indebted to the estate are requested to come forward and settle their indebtedness at once.

C. T. RICE, Admr.

ADMINISTRATORS NOTICE.

Persons having claims against the estate of Erastus Garrison, decd., are hereby notified to present them to the undersigned proven as by law required. Persons indebted to the estate are requested to come foward and settle their indebtedness at once. C. T. RICE, Admr.

FOR SALE.

A full blooded Alderney cow—will be fresh in the spring. She is very gentle and a good milker. CY RIDDELL, Hebron, Ky.

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley.
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U. Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk A. G. DeJarnetta, Commonwealths Attorney; N. E. Hawes, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

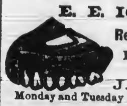
Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. Ed Fowler, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and R. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday. Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and L. A. Lodor fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

Beever—W. M. Rouse, Friday after the third Monday, and



E. E. IGOE,
Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun. Ind.

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.

Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice.
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
33-tf Your orders [illegible] fully solicited

Rev. Father Wilds' EXPERIENCE.

The Rev. Z. P. Wilds, well-known city missionary in New York, and brother of the late eminent Judge Wilds, of the Massachusetts Supreme Court, writes as follows:

"78 E. 54th St., New York, May 16, 1882.

MESSRS. J. C. AYER & Co., Gentlemen: Last winter I was troubled with a most uncomfortable itching humor affecting more especially my limbs, which itched so intolerably at night, and burned so intensely, that I could scarcely bear any clothing over them. I was also a sufferer from a severe catarrh and catarrhal cough; my appetite was poor, and my system a good deal run down. Knowing the value of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, by observation of many other cases, and from personal use in former years, I began taking it for the above-named disorders. My appetite improved almost from the first dose. After a short time the fever and itching were allayed, and all signs of irritation of the skin disappeared. My catarrh and cough were also cured by the same means, and my general health greatly improved, until it is now excellent. I feel a hundred per cent stronger, and I attribute these results to the use of the SARSAPARILLA, which I recommend with all confidence as the best blood medicine ever devised. I took it in small doses three times a day, and used, in all, less than two bottles. I place these facts at your service, hoping their publication may do good.

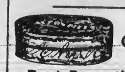
Yours respectfully, Z. P. WILDS."

The above instance is but one of the many constantly coming to our notice, which prove the perfect adaptability of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA to the cure of all diseases arising from impure or impoverished blood, and a weakened vitality.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

cleanses, enriches, and strengthens the blood, stimulates the action of the stomach and bowels, and thereby enables the system to resist and overcome the attacks of all Scrofulous Diseases, Eruptions of the Skin, Rheumatism, Catarrh, General Debility, and all disorders resulting from poor or corrupted blood and a low state of the system.

PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists; price $1, six bottles for $5.



AYER'S CATHARTIC PILLS
—Best Purgative Medicine—
cure Constipation, Indigestion, Headache, and all Billous Disorders.
Sold everywhere. Always reliable.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON

Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.

COLOGNE

Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines.
2 to 100 Horse Power.

Reliable, Durable, and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ⅓ less fuel and water than any other engine built, not fitted with an automatic cut-off. Catalogue sent free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS. Box [illegible], Corning, N. Y.

NEVER FAILS

FREE!
RELIABLE SELF-CURE.

A favorite prescription of one of the most noted and successful specialists in the U. S. (now retired) for the cure of Nervous Debility, Lost Manhood, Weakness and Decay. Sent in plain sealed envelope free. Druggists can fill it.
Address DR. WARD & CO., Louisiana, Mo.

PAYSON'S INDELIBLE INK

Is the BEST. No preparation. Used with any clean pen for marking any fabric. Popular for decorative work on linen. Received Centennial MEDAL & Diploma. Established 50 years. Sold by all Druggists, Stationers & News Agt's.

Cut This Out & Return to us with TEN CTS. Silver, & you'll get by mail, a GOLDEN BOX OF GOODS that will bring you in MORE MONEY in One Month than anything else in America. Absolute Certainty. Either Sex. No capital. M. Young, 173 Greenwich St. N. York.

NAVAL Agents Wanted for Ancient & Modern BATTLES.
New and graphic Pictorial History of the great Sea fights of the World. By Medical Director SHIPPEN, U. S. N. Address J. C. McCURDY & CO., 2[illegible] W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard Books & Bibles works of character; great variety; low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. [illegible] Garretson & Co., [illegible] College St., Nashville, Tenn.

Local News.

The tobacco knife is now getting in its work.

A fire was a good thing to have in the house Saturday.

Some have commenced salting their cisterns to save the water.

Mine host of the Boone House is being annoyed with hay fever.

We have recently experienced a few nights nearly cool enough for frost.

The Cincinnati dailies have been full of exposition gush the past week.

Mr. G. T. Gaines has the finest young horse in this part of the county and he has a big price on him.

Two five thousand-dollar damage suits have been filed for trial at the next term of the Circut Court.

Johnnie Burke has joined the Lime Kiln Club, being initiated last week, as evidenced by the Central Hotel premises.

Between the Aurora Fair and the North Bend Association, our town was on the verge of depopulation all last week.

The RECORDER acknowledges the receipt of a complimentary ticket to the Falmonth Fair which is in session this week.

Henry Clore, in attempting to get off a fence the other day, got hung on an iron spike which inflicted a very ugly wound.

Prof. R. O. Hughes will teach a ten months school for the Bullittsburg neighborhood, and Prof. Stephenson will teach in Florence.

M. S. Rouse, of the Florence neighborhood, was in town the other day, and says there will be an average crop of corn in his neighborhood.

Going along the street the other evening we were sure Rex had come to tow, but upon investigation we found it was only a croquet ground illuminated

One of Union's legal luminaries is a fine pedestrian, and considers a tramp from Union to Burlington and return in an afternoon, very pleasant exercise.

The rivalry for the dudeship of the Teachers' Institute led to a squabble among the teachers. The matter is to be carried to the State Superintendent.

The honey bees are becoming a nuisance by visiting kitchens and sitting rooms in great numbers. Probably the dry weather has forced them to new fields in search of food.

Since last October James Conner has handled 4,500 sheep and lambs, 2,500 hogs, 500 cattle and 50 horses. If he has realized fifty cents on each head of stock handled, he has made a very good year's work.

One day last week, Mrs. James Westbay narrowly escaped being badly burned. She was attempting to move a pan of grease from the stove, when it ignited and the flames enveloped her head and body.

Moses Shropshire, of Scott county, and a brother of Mrs. David Hogan, of this county, was married, Sunday week in Ohio, to Miss Nancy Dixon, of Loveland, Illinois. The groom is 83, and the bride 45.

The older member of this firm will be chief cook and bottle-washer at his house for the next ten days as his better half left for Indianapolis Monday. There are seven days races at Latonia during her absence.

Nice tombstones or monuments at the graves of the departed, are marks of respect which should not be neglected. Hurschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., have just what you want. John Beall, of Hebron, is their agent.

Tim Westbay, of this place, and Jno. Welsh, of Florence X-Roads, have organized a mutual admiration society. John is president and Tim secretary. The first meeting of the society was held in Burlington last week.

I take this means of notifying the public that I am prepared to grind corn at my mill on the Burlington and Petersburg pike near Legrand Gaines' and solicit the patronage of the surrounding country. Will grind every Friday.

4t-43 LEWIS GRAHAM.

The other day as L. P. Arnold's carriage was being driven rapidly down Jefferson street, it collided with a porker, which came near upsetting the carriage. People should be careful and not interfere with the town hogs as they (the hogs) have the first privileges on the streets of Burlington.

Several of our exchanges came to hand bearing what purported to be portraits of Governor Knott, no two of which looked a like, some of them being a fair representation of a tolerably decent tramp. If some of those editors representing the Governor as such a horrible looking person, get into trouble during his administration they certainly will not expect executive clemency. They are guilty of an unpardonable act.

The Aurora Fair was well attended last week and the exhibition very large and fine. We see the names of the following Boone county people among the list of successful competitors: J. W. Gaines on jack; W S Walton, on stallion; Riddell & Norris, on yearling colt; R A Brady, fastest racker. On the 3d day premiums were awarded Boone county stock as follows: J C Jenkins, on colt; Riddell & Norris, on four year old mare; same, on yearling; W S Walton, on all purpose horse. On cattle the premiums were divided between J. C. Jenkins, of this county, and J. H. McDaneli, of Gallatin county.

Read W. E. Piper's ad in this issue.

Deputy Sheriff German is attending the Falmouth Fair.

E. W. Duncan is attending Medical College in Cincinnati.

Wm. Smith, who lives on Woolper, lost a child last week, by scarlet rash.

The cold weather has created some uneasiness among the tobacco growers.

The Boones go to Covington next Saturday to play the Kentons a return game.

David Blythe left Monday for Hanover, Ind., where he will attend school again.

Marce Riddell captured a handsome prize for horsemanship, Saturday, at the Aurora Fair.

Some claim that jack frost was lurking in the low lands in this locality Sunday morning.

Hall's Hair Renewer is the least troublesome to apply, and the most cleanly, of all hair preparations.

A. W. Smith is arranging his baggage for a trip to the land of flowers, where he will sojourn for several weeks.

Don't forget Wm. Walton's sale on the 27th inst. It will be the largest sale of personal property had in this section for a long time.

A portion of the land William Walton purchased out west, is in the midst of the territory where oil has recently been discovered.

While in town last Saturday, William Conner, of Florence, showed us three very ancient coins, aged respectively 152, 114 and 107 years.

Last Wednesday night McMullin's saw mill at McVille came near burning. The fire was discovered at a late hour at night and was extinguished.

The frost last Saturday night, on low lands, bit corn, tobacco and other growing vegetation. The top leaves of some patches of tobacco were badly burnt.

William Green, of Dillsboro, Ind., was in Burlington Saturday. He had not been here for many years, and none of his old acquaintances recognized him.

A tramp with a hand-organ attachment struck the town the other day, and ground a few nickles out of the plethoric pockets of some of our citizens.

Capt. Bradley's Wave that plied the Ohio between Aurora and Rising Sun, could not stand the pressure when being inspected last week, and her boiler bursted.

The ruling of the Superintendent of Public Instruction as to what constitutes an attendance at the Teachers' Institute is the reverse of that of our commissioner.

Saw mills in the country are enjoying a water famine. Graham's mill, on the Petersburg and Burlington pike, and Russell's mill on the Burlington and Florence pike, have been shut down for several days for the want of water.

Mittie Acra left Tuesday morning with a display of harness for the Falmouth Fair. He took with him the set of harness which took the premium at the Alexandria Fair over a set that took a medal at the Cincinnati Exposition last year.

Miss Mary Light, of Covington, who has been visiting her relatives here for several days, has, during her visit, executed many nice sketches, some of which are as truly comical as the object sketched. The back view of "Buck Shot" can not be beaten.

Another worthy lady of Boone died on the 6th inst. Mrs. Jennie Riggs, wife of David Riggs, on that date died of typhoid fever after a painful illness of three weeks at her residence, in Petersburg. The remains were buried on Friday in the Petersburg cemetery. The friends of the deceased have the sympathy of the entire community.

The weather last week was very fine for out door meeting, and the attendance at the North Bend Association was very large. Quite a number of able ministers were in attendance and preached during the meeting. Each day a fine dinner was spread by the ladies of the Bullittsburg neighborhood, and everybody were invited to partake.

Last Sunday morning about 9 o'clock the alarm of fire was turned in from box 29, calling the bucket-brigade to the first ward in Bucktown. The department was not long in responding, but on arriving at the spot found it to be the burning out of a chimney in one of the negro cabins in that part of the town. This makes the third time this year the brigade has been called upon and each time on Sunday. Just now is a bad time for a fire to break out, as water is very scarce and everything is so dry it would not take long to lay the town in ashes. People should be very saving with the water.

A few days since a goverment officer visited Burlington to ascertain if the dealers in tobacco and whisky were all straight on the stamp question. In a few days after his visit, Keene Robbins, proprietor of the Sandford House, received a notice to report to the Commissioner in Covington, because of some defect in stamps on cigars he had in his stock. Keen took the cigars and the bill for them given him by the man from whom he bought them, to Covington, where he satisfied the authorities as to his innocence in attempting to wrong Uncle Sam. The Commissioner took the name of the party who sold Robbins the cigars, for the purpose of a further investigation. Colter, of Rising Sun, sold the cigars to Robbins, and he will, in all probability, be called to an account.

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Scattersville.

We are cool and dry.

Farmers are busy cutting tobacco.

John and William Rue have sold their hogs. James Conner was the purchaser.

Mr. Rue, of Gunpowder, is building a fine house. Be sure and put it above high water mark.

Burlington was well represented in our burg last Sunday. Dr. J. M. Grant and family, James Connor and family and R. C. Rice and wife were visiting at O. P. Conner's.

Our new school teacher is boarding at O. P. Conner's.

Lewis Parsons come from Milan, Ind., last week to run one of H. P. Parson's saw mills, but was taken sick and had to return to his home last Saturday.

J. O. Huey now rides in a new buggy.

Hebron.

Continued dry weather has made almost a total failure in our late vegetables.

The farmers have to feed their stock now. They will have a long siege of feeding.

Miss Ada Wilhoit is visiting in Saxon county, Ind.

J. W. Davis now occupies his fine residence.

Johnson Aylor is building a dwelling in Deer Lickville, near Jake Crigler's.

J. D. and J. B. Cloud are attending school at Springfield, Ohio.

Scott Walton's Norman horse captured four premiums at the Aurora Fair.

Geo. W. Knapp will give a grand ball at the Hebron Hall, on the evening of 26th inst. Everybody is respectfully invited to attend. Good music will be furnished.

Constance.

Everything is lively around our burg.

The saw mill is doing a good business.

Jode Peno is again able to be out.

Wm. Souther and son have gone to the Exposition at Louisville, where they will spend a week or two.

Geo. Brown is making preparations for his Southern trip. George is a jolly fellow and will be sadly missed by his many friends.

The Harvest Home picnic was largely attended by our most prominent citizens.

Several of our boys may go to Covington to see the Boones make those two runs. Don't shut the Kentons out, boys.

James B. Helm left, last Monday, for Tennessee, where he will meet J. T. Haley for the purpose of canvassing the State.

Charley Riggs, left last Thursday for Vanceburg, Ky., to join E. E. Souther in the picture business.

The party given at the residence of Mr. Simpson Riggs', was an enjoyable affair. All present had a splendid time.

Petersburg.

Col. Davis is visiting at Lexington, Ky.

Miss Jennie Star, of Aurora, Ind., was the guest of Mrs. Lucy Kirkoff, last week.

Mrs. Ella Jenkins and Miss Jennie Duck, of Lawrenceburg, were visiting friends here last Friday and Saturday.

Our old friend, Charley Riggs, formerly of this place but now of Buffalo, spent last Saturday and Sunday with friends here.

Capt. A. B. Parker now has charge of the office on the Str. Minnie No. 2. Arthur is a good clerk and the right man in the right place.

Capt. Mort Christy, of the Str. Wave, is very sick with typhoid fever. Our genial little friend Elihu Alden has charge of the boat.

Joe Weindell, Bill McWethy, Bill Snyder, Elmore Wingate, Lon Yerkes, Charley Kine all left for Memphis, Tenn., last Monday night to go to work in the cooper shops. These boys are all good coopers and we have no doubt but what they will do well.

Mr. William Smith, of Frankfort, Ky., is visiting his father at this place.

Miss Nora Jackson has gone on a two weeks visit through Hamilton and Owen counties, and while gone will attend the exposition at Louisville.

Mrs. Fannie King, of Carrollton, Ky., is at home on a visit.

Union.

Mrs. Dr. Blanton still remains dangerously ill.

Miss Nannie Burkitt is dangerously ill from typhoid fever.

Mrs. J. D. Gaines and son are convalescent.

Jack frost called Sunday morning to remind us that old winter is coming again.

Everybody's chickens are dying, and everybody has a remedy that won't cure.

Stock water is becoming seriously scarce.

The Big Bone end of the U. & B. B. Turnpike is progressing rapidly under the contractorship of Geo. W. Baker, 'Squire Howlett and Dexter Tuft, while the Richwood and Big Bone pike is making fine progress under Nicholas Talbott, as contractor. These roads will meet a long felt want.

L. B. Stephens is doing the Louisville Cotton Exposition.

Esq. Bannister's court will convene Thursday next with a full docket.

Miss Lillie Rouse has a flourishing school The public school is also prosperous under Miss Nannie Bristow, as teacher.

Rev. Jas. A. Kirtley preached Sunday night to a large audience.

The Bible and Its Distribution.

Rev. S. D. Gaines, the Agent of the American Bible Society, is now canvassing Boone county with a view of furnishing the Scriptures to everyone who wants a Bible, by sale to those that are able to buy, and by gift to those who are not. Now, this is a work dear to every Christian—let everyone take him by the hand and assist him in his work. The work is ours, and let us see that it is thoroughly done in our several localities.

W. E. HUDSON.

I have been canvassing about Big Bone Springs and Hamilton, and have been greatly aided and cheered in my work by J. W. Kennedy, of Normansville, a good and active member of the Baptist Church, and have been conducted around and introduced by Mr. William Hudson, a member of the Presbyterian Church. No one knows better how to appreciate such kindness than my humble self, who is unacquainted with the people and the different localities in the county of Boone.

S. D. GAINES.

Our Walton correspondent's account of the suicied of Hugh Ingram came to hand the day after we went to press. Our correspondent says that the cause of the rash act is unknown, but the supposition is it was caused by the bite of a mad dog received several years ago. Mr. Ingram was a moral and religious man, highly esteemed by all his neighbors.

J. J. Berkshire has on exhibition at Dudley Rouse's store fine specimens of Irish potatoes: White Elephant, Early Vermont, Brownsville Beauty, Chicago Market, Clark No. 1, White Angrus Rose, Mammoth Pearl, Burbank and Beauty of Hebron, the Early Vermont being the largest in the lot.

E. E. Foster has a relapse of the fever

5

LIVER diseases, headache, and constipation, caused by bad digestion, quickly cured by Brown's Iron Bitters.

LEWIS, IOWA.—Dr. M. J. Davis says: "Brown's Iron Bitters give the best of satisfaction to those who use it."

GARFIELD, IOWA:—Dr. A. T. Henack says: "Once using Brown's Iron Bitters proves its superiority over all other tonic preparations."

Jeans, Flannels, Yarns, & Tweeds.

I opened last week a full line of the above Goods from the well known Manufactures J. Schofield & Son, of Madison, Ind., and invite you to examine and Price before you buy elsewhere.

MEN'S PANTS.

Jeans Pants at $1 and upward.
Cassimere Pants from $2 50 to $4 00.
Moleskin Pants the best for workingmen at $2 50.

MY STOCK OF DRY GOODS

Is replete, Embracing some choice Styles in Fall Prints, Indigo Blue Prints, Brocade Dress Goods, Bed Comforts and Blankets.
Buy the Solar Tip School Shoe for Children.

W. E. PIPER, Burlington, Ky.

J. W. KIRKPATRICK & SON,
—BURLINGTON, KY.—
UNDERTAKERS
—AND—
EMBALMERS,
Will furnish nice Hearse any reasonable distance for $10.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - - UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
☞ Office over Dudley Rouse's Store. ☜

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence,
Burlington. - - - Ky.

L. C. NORMAN. H. I. [illegible]
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW,
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

S. W. TOLIN.
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. Aprompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.
☞ Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
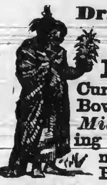
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County
Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.
Its Rates are Lower
Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.
EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
[illegible]
should take a policy at once.
N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.
DIRECTORS.
LEGRAN GAINES, Jeff Utz,
JNO. M. MOODY.

DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS.
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
SALT BY THE BARREL.
R O U S E.
BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS.
The Best of Flour
PATENT & HIGH GRADE
Always on Hand, and cheaper than the cheapest.
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE.
DUDLEY ROUSE'S.
I now have on hand a full Stock of SCHOFIELDS Flannels, Jeans, and Yarns. Call early and make a Purchase.

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEED.
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE.,
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.
Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.
All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE
Petersburg Drug Store,
Where you can find everything in the
Drug line, such as——.
Well call and see and be convinced.
Respectfully, S. C BUCHANAN.



TRADE MARK.
Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S
Indian Blood Syrup
Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the
BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.
Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.
☞ AGENTS WANTED. ☜
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St., New York City. Druggists sell it.
D. CLARK JOHNSON:— This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. MCCAMC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '183

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300,000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK.
Covington, Kentucky.
DIRECTORS.
James S. Wayne, J. S. Matson, M. C. Motch, J. H. Mersman, Sam Hind, A. R. Mullen, L. C. Stephens, E. J. Hickey, L. H Dills, E. J. Green, F. P. Helm,
The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.
The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank.
dec. 20-6m

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar7-tf28 J. W. Talbott.

UNDERTAKING.

We keep Constantly on Hand all sizes of
Burial Cases and Caskets.
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES GUARANTEED LESS THAN CITY PRICES.
DAVIS BROS., - - HEBRON, KY.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL, Publishers.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY

THE FARMER'S WIFE.

The east is gray with a flush of rose,
Birds are singing the world awake,
The farmer's wife has no time to pause,
She has the early meal to make;
For well she knows on this summer day
Men are far too busy to wait
When they are ready to cart the hay
And the wagons stand at the gate.

Oh! but the flowers in the garden are fair!
And oh! but the wind is cool and sweet!
She has her daily duty and care
To keep her busy, both hands and feet.
Perhaps for a moment her heart does turn
To the shady wood and the rippling brook,
But bread is to bake, and butter to churn,
And the twelve o'clock dinner to cook.

Perhaps in the warm afternoon, once more
Something within did strongly plead
For the rocking-chair by the open door,
And a pleasant paper to read;
But men are hungry among the hay;
Weary workers must still be fed;
She gets the flour and the kneading-tray,
And she cheerfully makes the bread.

She is hot and tired, when sweet and still
The moon comes up like a peaceful psalm;
She feels her heart to its beauty thrill,
She longs to sit in its holy calm;
But now the children must go to bed;
Who but a mother can hear their prayers?
Their little torn coats wait needle and thread—
Oh! these are the sweetest of all her cares.

She sits with a smile on her weary face,
The toil of the day is counted not;
Love gives to labor a tender grace,
Hurry and heat are quite forgot.
No need to pity the patient heart
Missing the pomp and pride of life,
For hers is a woman's noblest part—
Honored Mother, and trusted Wife.

—Lillie E. Barr, in N. Y. Ledger.

DREAMS.

Vain Fantasies, the Children of an Idle Brain—The Marked Difference Between Coincidences and Warnings—a Few Hard Nuts for Philosophers to Crack.

> "Dreams are but children of an idle brain, > Begot of nothing but vain fantasy."
> —Shakespeare.

> "Well may dreams present us fictions,
> Since our waking moments teem
> With such fanciful convictions
> As make life itself a dream."
> —Campbell.

What is a dream? Is it a temporary frolic of the brain which, released from the guidance of reason, relaxes from rules and laws and indulges in a little incoherent amusement of its own, as the chairs and tables are said to do when the family has gone to bed and the house is still? Does it originate and invent its fantastic images, or are they merely the shadows and echoes of past events? Is it a psychological influence, or a spiritual one, or a blending of both? There certainly have been dreams that foretold events which came true, and how, then, did the sleeper get his premonitory knowledge? Bottles of hot water placed to the feet will produce certain impressions and dreams of vague and unsatisfactory nature. Ice, applied to the temples, will give happy dreams, in which rare colors appear before the dreamer's eyes. But these are effects caused by the bodily sensations, and are communicated to the brain by nerves, not by occult intelligence. A French writer is quoted as saying that to dream gloriously we must act gloriously while we are awake, and to bring down angels to converse with us in our sleep we must labor in the cause of virtue during the day. There can be no possible doubt that the same idea or train of ideas which pursues us through the day follows us into the land of dreams and runs up and down the ladder of sleep with a persistency which often is annoying and wearisome. Sometimes the idea that eluded us in the day comes to us at night. Musicians have found a lost chord in their dreams; mathematicians have decided abstruse calculations by the correct figures which their waking minds could not grasp, but which came to them clearly when they were sound asleep and were with them when they awoke. Franklin had several of his projects decided for him by dreams. Sir J. Herschel composed poetry in his sleep, which he committed to paper on awakening. Goethe says, in his memoirs: "The objects which had occupied my attention during the day often reappeared at night in connected dreams. In the morning I was accustomed to record my dreams on paper." Coleridge composed his poem of the "Abyssinian Maid" in a dream, and it was said of Lord Jeffrey that, although he went to bed at night with events, plans and dates all in a whirl in his head, during sleep "they all crystalized around their proper centers."

It is considered among people of education and refinement a vulgar habit to relate dreams or attach any importance to them; yet we are told of Lord Bacon that he himself records a dream in which he saw his father's house in the country plastered all over with black mortar, and he had no doubt on waking that he should hear bad tidings. It actually proved true, as his father died on the very night on which he dreamed. When Postmaster Jewell was dying he awoke from a brief sleep and inquired if anything was wrong in the family of ——, mentioning his brother-in-law's name. They told him there was not, when he remarked: "Very strange," and added that he had dreamed there was. His brother-in-law had just died, but the family deemed it best to keep the news from him, fearing fatal results.

In the old Bible days young men saw visions and the old men dreamed dreams, and great importance was attached to them, as the history of Joseph shows. The Egyptians and Babylonians governed thier lives by dreams, as the Chinese do to-day. There is something more than an idle superstition in the matter; but, as all people are not dreamers, there are many who are utterly skeptical. There are incidents in the writer's knowledge of dreams so remarkable that they can not be explained. If they were warnings, they failed to warn or to alarm, but they anticipated strange events. One was that of a little child who had never seen a coffin or looked on death. He sat at the breakfast-table eating his bread and milk, happy and in good health. Suddenly he looked up at his mother and said:

"Mamma, last night when I was 'sleep a man came here with a pritty box for me."

Then he took some bread crumbs and showed his mother the shape of the box. Her heart stood still, for it was the exact outline of a coffin, and in less than a week her darling was buried, a victim to spasmodic croup.

A Mrs. Griffin had several sons grown to manhood, one of whom—her eldest and best beloved—was away from home. The mother slept alone, in a bed-room off the sitting-room. In the night she dreamed that her son came home, entered the sitting-room, warmed himself at the fire, took off his coat and hung it over a chair, and looked in at her a moment, as was his habit before retiring. She tried to speak to him, but could not. In the morning she awoke with the impression that he had really come home and looked for his coat and hat, but, as it was not there, concluded he had taken it up-stairs with him. At breakfast, as he did not appear, she sent one of his brothers up to call him, but the young man came back and said his bed was not disturbed and he had not returned. While they were eating breakfast he rode into the yard on a powerful black horse he had just bought. All the family turned out to welcome him and inspect his new purchase, and as he stepped out with the animal to show it off it kicked at him viciously, killing him on the spot. Four of the five sons in that family died violent deaths, and in each case the mother had a remarkable dream. But these are coincidences rather than warnings, and are not susceptible of any coherent or scientific analysis. That mysterious reflex chord which unites kindred may act as an imperfect spiritual telegraph wire over which ill news travels in ghostly, intangible shapes, but it is worked by no human agency. As the moon controls the tides in their ebbing and flowing, so do the powers of air control our world of dreams. It is only when we give them reasoning or perceptive faculties that we make a mistake, and overvalue their power.

Ignorant people fortify themselves with what is called a dream-book. By reading it for an interpretation we find that to dream of snakes denotes an enemy; to dream of a looking-glass, treason; to dream of receiving letters is a good omen; to dream of pearls, poverty and misery; to dream of peanuts you will be poor, contented, hearty and happy; to dream of a peacock is a sign of poverty; to dream of a wedding is a sign of a funeral, and to dream of a funeral you will go to a wedding. It is believed that certain days and conditions will regulate the quality of the dream.

> "To-night, to-night is Friday night,
> Lay me down in dirty white;
> Dream who my husband is to be;
> And lay my children by his side,
> If I'm to live to be his bride."

Fortune, marriage and death are the events which the dreamer is always endeavoring to interpret. The first two belong naturally to those who are beginning life. Gamblers think a great deal of their dreams, in regard to cards, but as it is hard to control those erratic messengers a class of people called fortune-tellers do the dreaming for a consideration and predict luck. The queen of hearts is considered favorable to marriage and riches. To dream of this card is great good luck. The jack of spades is an ill omen. There are conditions attached to the objects dreamed of, as this:

> "A maid who dreams of verdant groves,
> Will surely have the man she loves;
> But if the groves are nipped with frost,
> She'll be sure in marriage crossed."

If a young man dreams of marrying a pretty girl, he will be sure to marry a simpleton; and if a girl dreams she has a nice-looking lover, it is a sure sign she will take up with a putty-head.

> "To dream you love a girl who's pretty,
> Foretells that you'll in sorrow part;
> But if you dream she's wise and witty,
> She'll be the darling of your heart."

There is this peculiarity of dreams—they all stop just short of fulfillment. If we dream of a banquet we awake just as we raise the viands to our lips. We dream of thirst, but not of quenching it. We dream of flying, and just as we launch out and are about to enjoy the delightful sensation of floating in space we awake with a bumped head from having come in contact with the floor. The dreams of an opium eater are said to be delightful, but not so are the contortions and shrieks which accompany them. The same law of contradiction which is used poetically to express the meaning of dreams may be applied to their actions. When a baby smiles sweetly in its sleep the mother says it dreams of angels, but the doctor explains that it has the stomach-ache. Lover gives the correlative of this very prettily in his ballad of Rory O'More:

> "Now, Rory, I'll cry if you don't let me go,
> Sure I dhrame every night that I'm hating you so."
> "Och," says Rory, "that same I'm delighted to hear,
> For dhrames always go by contraries, my dear."

—Detroit Post and Tribune.

A Fresh Romance.

Mr. Thomas Evans, of Louisville, Ky., was formerly a photographer. In the hopes of bettering his fortunes he went to Arkansas on a prospecting tour. That was in the early part of 1882. It will be remembered that last year a series of most destructive floods occurred in Arkansas. Cities and villages were invaded by the relentless element. One night the rain came, and with scores of others, Mr. Evans awoke to find himself in the grasp of the waters. He was rescued by some adventurous boatmen, but in such a weak, unconscious condition that for eight hours he was believed to be dead.

He was taken to a hospital, where he was seized with an illness which kept him in his bed for twelve months, and well-nigh proved fatal. When he gradually recovered he found himself paralyzed in the arm and hand so that he could not write. The letters he dictated were either miscarried or never sent, so that the only intelligence he received from home was a report of the death of his wife. He recovered all but the use of his hand after awhile, and then it was months before he was able to return to look up his children.

In the meantime it was reported here that he was drowned in the flood, from which, indeed, he so narrowly escaped. Mrs. Evans refused for a long time to believe what every one else accepted as truth, until, as the weeks and months rolled on, with no other tidings of either good or ill, she was at last forced to conclude herself a widow. The prospect ahead of her was a dreary one.

A joyous surprise was, however, in store for her. As she sat at her window Thursday, near noon, looking out on the street, her eye was caught by what seemed a familiar figure. Her heart beat wildly, and looking closely, she saw what seemed to be the ghost of her husband hobbling along the street on crutches and looking eagerly around for the house to which he had been directed. Had a thunderbolt struck her she could not have been more astonished, and, almost fainting, she sank into a chair, deathly white and trembling. Her little daughter, frightened at her mother's unnatural appearance, ran to her side, and in a weak voice was told to run down to the door and meet her father. The child went to the window, and looking out, saw her father approaching, but the crutches deceived her, and, returning to her mother, she said the man was not her papa. By this time, though, he had reached the door, and in another moment was in the arms of his wife. The meeting was an affectionate one. Husband and wife were alike overjoyed at the discovery of the cruel mistake under which they had been laboring, and the children were almost insane with happiness.—Louisville (Ky.) Courier-Journal.

—When Henry Ward Beecher was at Grand Forks, Dak., he was invited to umpire a base-ball match.

USEFUL AND SUGGESTIVE.

—The largest cow in America weighs 3,200 pounds, and gives milk in Chase County, Kan.

—Mr. W. H. Bull wishes he had more pea and bean vines for cows; he finds that this feed increases the flow of milk.—Cincinnati Times.

—Summer squash dipped in batter and fried brown is a good substitute for egg plant. Season with pepper and salt and serve hot.—N. Y. Post.

—A farmer in Herkimer County, N. Y., raises his best potatoes on a soil consisting entirely of pure sand. He enriches with plenty of barn-yard manure and plants six or eight inches deep. His crops are sure and excellent.

—The New York Herald says: "The feet and legs of horses require more care than the rest of the body. They must not be allowed to stand in filth and moisture, and in grooming a horse the feet and legs must be as thoroughly brushed and cleaned as a coat."

—A Pennsylvania girl thinks the advertisement of agricultural societies are the best commentaries on the management of their fairs. "Look at the premiums," she says, "for the fastest trotting horse, fifty dollars; for the next fastest, twenty-five dollars; for the best loaf of bread, fifty cents.—Philadelphia Record.

—Pickles made of citron are appetizing. Pare and cut the citron in small strips; boil until tender in water in which you have dissolved a small bit of alum; drain this off, and pour vinegar seasoned with spices over the citron; let this all come to a boil. Put away in glass cans, and keep in a cool dry room.—N. Y. Post.

—Noontime should be kept by every farmer, and work should be suspended when the steam whistle of some neighboring factory, the bell of the village church, or the housewife's horn announces that it is twelve o'clock. To go to the house, indulge in a wash at the pump, eat a hearty dinner, and rest afterwards, perhaps enjoying a smoke, requires an hour—good honest sixty minutes. Nor should this be entrenched upon by grinding scythes, feeding hogs or doing other chores. "The laborer is worthy of his hire," we are told, and he is also entitled to his nooning.—Ben. Perley Poore.

Clover and Its Use.

Allow me to make some suggestions as to the uses of clover. I will premise by saying that clover is not a hay or forage plant; that whilst it may be used for that purpose, its great use, in the economy of nature, is to restore the fertility of cultivated lands, and to maintain that nice adjustment of the atmosphere which adapts it to the wants of all living things.

In early spring, wheat fields, and all fields of small grain, should be sown with clover seed. It will grow with the growing grain, and be a decided advantage to it, because clover draws its food from the atmosphere, taking nothing from the soil required by the growing grain, but absorbing the noxious gases and fluids which cause rust, mildew and blight. After the grain is harvested, the clover will fully occupy the ground, and if of strong growth may be pastured in autumn, but in the following spring should be allowed to grow undisturbed until in full bloom. Then the most economical use it can be put to is to turn it under with the plow and plant the ground with corn, which will produce a full crop with but little labor in cultivation. But when last cultivated—say in the month of July—the ground should be sown with clover seed, which will grow with advantage to the corn, will fully occupy the ground and fertilize it and take the place of weeds and wild grass, which would impoverish the soil.

When the clover is wanted for hay and seed—for, by a wise provision of nature clover makes two crops, the first for hay and the last for seed—in harvesting the first crop, care should be taken to cut and remove from the ground all grasses and weeds. The clover will immediately grow and ripen its seed before other plants will fairly begin to grow, hence nothing but clover seed is harvested. This seems to be a provision of nature, to keep clover seed from a mixture with other seeds.

If possible, clover should precede and follow every crop. Every uncultivated field and all unoccupied land should rest in clover; and the wealth of the country would be improved if the wild grasses and weeds were forced to give place to clover, for we know that noxious gases and vapors are continually arising from the earth. Some of them are from decaying vegetable or animal matter, and some of them are miasma. All are offensive to the smell and injurious to the health of man. Clover, by means of its chemical powers, not only absorbs these gases and feeds upon them, but freely gives out oxygen, which unites with them, and oxydizes or destroys them, and in this way cleanses the tainted air.

Because of this salutary effect of growing clover upon the air, we say of people who live in affluence and luxury, "They live in clover."—J. M. McCullough, in Western Farm Journal.

Remedy for Hen Lice.

One of the most pestilential visitations in the hen-house is lice; abundant at any time from May until frost comes. They do not confine their presence to their own quarters. If in the vicinity, they invade the pig-sty, the carriage-house, the horse and cow stable. The horse and his rider are both likely to be covered with this minute pest. They do not trouble the farmer's hen-roost always, for the hens as a rule have the freedom of the premises, roost in the apple trees by night, and wallow in unlimited dust by day, which effectually rasps off the vermin. But many must confine their hens in narrow quarters during the growing season, if they keep them at all, and these creatures come upon them by stealth. Do you suggest fumigation by tobacco, or by sulphur? What if your hennery is complete in its ventilation, and without a door? It will not hold smoke. Do you advise whitewash and thorough cleansing? That is a big job. Kerosene is now in almost every man's house, and this cheap agent will make you master of the situation. Saturate every box, perch and beam in the establishment, and the job is done. Use the lamp-filler carefully, and much trouble will be avoided.—American Agriculturist.

—Prof. Pulitzer, the eminent savant, who recently became the victim of a suicide-duel, was the uncle of Mr. Joseph Pulitzer, editor of the New York World. By his will his splendid museum of anatomical specimens, numbering thirteen thousand pieces, and valued at one hundred thousand dollars, is bequeathed to the young journalist who, it is said, will establish a free museum in the building adjoining the World office, in New York City.—Chicago News.

Prehistoric Man.

The Union Medicale announces a discovery of the highest scientific interest, and which, if it turns out to be real, will show that prehistoric man is no longer a myth. On piercing a new gallery in a coal mine at Bully Grenay (Pas-de-Calais) a cavern was broken into containing six fossil human bodies intact—a man, two women and three children—as well as the remains of arms and utensils in petrified wood and stone, and numerous fragments of mammals and fish. A second subterranean cave contained eleven bodies of large dimensions, several animals, and a great number of objects, together with precious stones. The walls were decorated with designs of combats between men and animals of gigantic size. A third and still larger chamber appeared to be empty, but could not be entered on account of the carbonic acid it contained, which is being removed by ventilators. The fossil bodies have been brought up to the surface, and five of them will be exhibited at the mairie of Lens, the others are to be sent to Lillie, in order to undergo examination by the Faculte des Sciences. Representatives of the Faculte des Sciences, of Paris, and of the British Museum having been telegraphed for, are expected to be present.—Nature.

—The Puritans of New England had their own way of testifying how much they thought of the female sex. If a man and a woman were convicted of a capital crime they hanged the man and burnt the woman. Mr. Bonner's Ledger recalls the last instance of this fine discrimination. It occurred in 1775 at Cambridge, when two servants were executed for poisoning their master. They were drawn on a sled to the place of execution, and Mark, a fellow of about thirty, was hanged, and Phyllis, an old creature, was burnt to death.

—Juvenile precocity seems reduced to its finest point of development. Ernest Hambly, a Louisville lad, aged twelve, was attacked by three or four boys, when he repulsed them by effectively using a knife on two of them, slashing them in true ruffian style. His heroism in self-defense is marred by his evident desperate nature, and his future is by no means promising. When twelve year-old boys resort to the knife as a means of defense it indicates a state of society that is by no means desirable.—Indianapolis Journal.

An insurance agent named Pyle
In running fell over the stile,
St. Jacob's Oil gave relief
And the pain was so brief,
He got up and said: "I should smile."

A lame old lady at Kovass,
Had no one to advise her,
'Till Doctor John Boyle,
Tried St. Jacobs Oil,
Its action did simply surprise her.

The original D'Arc horse is supposed to have been that which Joan first rode.—Somerville Journal.

HAY-FEVER. I have suffered for the last ten years from Hay-Fever. I desire to testify in favor of Ely's Cream Balm. My short use of it demonstrated its efficacy. J. MAIDHOF, 491 Broadway, N. Y. 50 cts.

A BARREL of money makes a hog sot in society.—N. O. Picayune.

Two-Thirds of a Bottle Cures.

DR. R. V. PIERCE, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I have been taking your "Favorite Prescription" for "female weakness." Before I had taken it two days I began to feel stronger. I have taken but two-thirds of a bottle and believe I am cured.

Gratefully,
MRS. H. C. LOVETT, Watseka, Ill.

IT is reported that an angry passenger threw a porter from a Pullman parlor-car out West. This was probably the biggest tip the porter ever received.—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Throat, Bronchial and Lung Diseases

A specialty. Send two stamps for large treatise giving self treatment. Address WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

MODERN Song of the Shirt: "Rip, rip, rip, band and gusset and seam. Rip, rip, rip; confound the sewing machine."—Philadelphia News.

HAY-FEVER. I have suffered for eight years with Hay-Fever. In July I resorted to Ely's Cream Balm, have been entirely free from the fever ever since. E. C. HILLMAN, State Arsenal, Trenton, N. J. 50 cts.

YOUNG MUGGINS recently became a party to a very interesting sleight-of-hand performance. His girl gave him the mitten.—Toledo Blade.

SICK and bilious headache, and all derangements of stomach and bowels, cured by Dr. Pierce's "Pellets"—or anti-bilious granules. 25 cents a vial. No cheap boxes to allow waste of virtues. By druggists.

RUBBING is a popular remedy for many complaints. Rubbers have certainly kept a great many people up.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

ESSEX COUNTY, VA.—Mr. James R. Micon, clerk of the County, says: "I have used Brown's Iron Bitters and found it valuable for the purposes which it claims."

YOU can't count votes honestly by electric light.—Boston Star.

A GOOD medicinal tonic, with real merit, is Brown's Iron Bitters.

A SHELL race—Oysters.—Boston Bulletin.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, September [illegible], 1883.
LIVESTOCK—Cattle—common	$2 00	@ 3 00
Choice butchers	4 25	@ 4 75
HOGS—Common	4 00	@ 4 70
Good packers	4 75	@ 5 10
SHEEP	3 75	@ 4 50
FLOUR—Family	4 40	@ 4 45
GRAIN—Wheat—Long berry red	1 10½	@
No. 2 winter red	1 06	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	51	@ 51½
Oats—No. 2 mixed	27½	@
Rye—No. 2	56½	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	11 00	@
HEMP—Double dressed	8½	@ 9
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	13 00	@ 13 25
Lard—Steam	8-10	@
BUTTER—Fancy Dairy	15	@ 17
Prime Creamery	18	@ 20
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per bar, from store	1 30	@ 1 40
Apples, prime, per barrel	2 25	@ 3 00
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 25	@ 3 80
Good to choice	4 80	@ 7 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 16	@ 1 17
No. 1 white	1 16	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	63	@
Oats—mixed	31	@ 35
PORK—Mess	11 00	@ 14 25
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@ 4 25
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 06	@
Corn—No. 2	48½	@ 48¾
Oats—No. 2	25½	@
Rye	55½	@
PORK—Mess	11 95	@ 12 00
LARD—Steam	8 35	@
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 25	@ [illegible]
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 15¾	@ 1 15⅞
Corn—mixed	61½	@
Oats—mixed	33	@ 35
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	15 00	@
Lard—Refined	10½	@
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—A No. 1	$4 50	@ 4 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red, new	1 03	@
Corn—mixed	49½	@
Oats—mixed	28	@
PORK—MESS	13 50	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 red, new	$1 04½	@
Corn—mixed	49	@
Oats—mixed	26½	@
LIVE STOCK—Cattle
Butchers' stock	2 75	@ 4 50
Shipping cattle	5 25	@ 6 50

Wells' "Rough on Corns." 15c. Ask for it. Complete, permanent cure. Corns, bunions.

THE successful photographer is a man of extensive views.—Boston Transcript.

WARRENTON, N. C.—Rev. J. E. C. Barham says: "I used Brown's Iron Bitters. It is a complete restorative, tonic and appetizer."

A SOCIAL gathering—taking up the collection.

"Buchu-paiba." Complete cure, all annoying Kidney Diseases, Irritation. $1.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer

Is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which Sulphur, Sugar of Lead and Nitrate of Silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. JOHN D. PARK & SONS, Wholesale Agents, Cincinnati, Ohio, and C. N. CRITTENTON, New York.

Colden's Liquid Beef Tonic

Should be taken by the weak, worn and dyspeptic. Colden's, no other.

"Mother Swan's Worm Syrup," for feverishness, restlessness, worms. Tasteless.

Skinny Men. "Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia.

THE Proprietors of the Farm, Field and Fireside, Chicago, are meeting with great success in securing subscribers to their publication. In addition to furnishing an excellent paper at the low price of 50 cents for six months, they propose to distribute $40,000 in presents to their readers. See their announcement in advertising columns.

25c. buys a pair of Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners and make a boot or shoe last twice as long.

"Rough on Rats." Clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs, ants, vermin. 15c.

St. Jacobs Oil

THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY For Pain!
Relieves and cures
RHEUMATISM,
Neuralgia,
SCIATICA, LUMBAGO,
BACKACHE,
Headache, Toothache,
SORE THROAT,
QUINSY, SWELLINGS,
SPRAINS,
Soreness, Cuts, Bruises,
FROSTBITES,
BURNS, SCALDS,
And all other bodily aches and pains.
FIFTY CENTS A BOTTLE.
Sold by all Druggists and Dealers. Directions in 11 languages.
The Charles A. Vogeler Co.
(Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.)
Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

BEAVER COLLEGE MUSICAL INSTITUTE, on the Ohio River, 28 miles below Pittsburgh, at Beaver, Pa., offers to young Ladies a quiet home, with every advantage for a thorough literary, musical and art education at moderate rates. Address REV. R. T. TAYLOR, D.D.

Lady Agents can secure permanent employment and good salary selling Queen City Skirt and Stocking Supporters, etc. Sample outfit Free. Address Queen City Suspender Co., Cincinnati, O.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co. Augusta, Me.

RUBBER STAMPS, with your name 30 cents; scrapp[illegible], 3c a sheet. Cards, Type, Etc. Agents Wanted. List free. THALMAN M'F'G Co., Baltimore, Md.

AGENTS make money selling our Family Medicines; no capital required. STANDARD CURE Co., 197 Pearl St., New York.

HAIR Wigs & Waves sent C.O.D. anywhere. Wholesale & Retail. Price-list free. Goods guaranteed. B. C. STREHL, 157 Wabash-av., Chicago.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

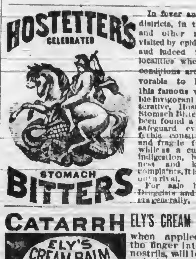
$250 A MONTH. Agents Wanted. 90 best selling articles in the world. 1 sample FREE. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

EXPRESSMEN LIABLE.

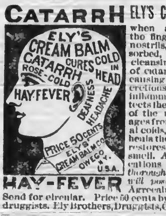
MR. A. S. MERRILL, the popular expressman of Brunswick, Me., writes us on May 15, 1883, as follows: "Having been severely afflicted for about two years with inflammation of the kidneys and bladder, so called by my physicians, I suffered with distressing pains in my back and retention of urine, caused by a stoppage of the neck of the bladder, and a complication of other diseases. I was hardly able to attend to my business, and at times would be completely prostrated. I was also affected with incontinence of urine to an alarming degree, indeed, it demanded my attention fifteen or twenty times per night, and at times it would seem impossible for me to ride down to the depot on my wagon, for every jar from the wagon would almost seem to take my life. Having failed to obtain relief from my doctor, I finally consulted our druggist, Dr. Merryman, of Brunswick, and requested him to furnish me with the most reliable and speedy cure for such sickness, for I was suffering too much for human nature to endure long. The doctor recommended me to use Hunt's Remedy, as it had been used with remarkable success in a good many cases in Brunswick and vicinity. I purchased a bottle, and received such great relief that I continued, and had not used two bottles before I began to improve beyond my expectations. The pains in my kidneys and loins disappeared, I gained strength, and my water began to pass naturally, and I was able to sleep soundly, and obtain the greatly needed rest which for a long time I could not. I am fully restored to health, and can attend to my business. Thanks to Hunt's Remedy for my restoration, and I highly recommend it to all who are troubled with kidney complaints."

COULD NOT LIFT A POUND.

The above are the words of Mrs. Harriet Bailey, of Putnam, Conn. She writes May 3, 1883: "I have been troubled with kidney and liver disease for two years. I suffered severely in the back and loins. Before taking your wonderful medicine, Hunt's Remedy, I could not lift a pound. After giving it a fair trial, I began to improve, and can now truly say it was a 'Godsend to me,' as I am now able to do my household work and enjoy the best of health. I have recommended Hunt's Remedy to two of my neighbors, who have been greatly benefited by it. This letter I send voluntarily, with the hope that it will be the means of inducing some sufferer to use Hunt's Remedy, and be cured as I have been."



In fever and ague districts, in tropical and other regions visited by epidemics, and indeed in all localities where the conditions are unfavorable to health, this famous vegetable invigorant and alterative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has been found a potent safeguard even to feeble constitutions and fragile frames, while as a cure for indigestion, biliousness and kindred complaints, it is without a rival.
For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.



ELY'S CREAM BALM when applied by the finger into the nostrils, will be absorbed, effectually cleansing the head of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membrane of the nasal passages from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores taste and smell. A few applications relieve. A thorough treatment will positively cure. Agreeable to use. Send for circular. Price 50 cents by mail or at druggists. Ely Brothers, Druggists, Owego, N. Y.

PORTABLE & STATIONARY
Steam Engines
and STEAM BOILERS, smaller sizes adapted to
Farm and Plantation Use!
$200 We make six sizes, capacity from 3 to 50,000 ft. per day with [illegible] No. 1 Plantation Saw Mill. LANE & BODLEY CO., John and Water Sts., Cincinnati, Ohio. [illegible] free.

WEEKS SCALE WORKS.
BUFFALO, N.Y.
3-ton, $35.00
4-ton, $65.00
SEND FOR CIRCULAR.

A FORTUNE Sample for stamp. Lady or gent $10 per day. Smith & Rhines, E. Saginaw, Mich.

Fast Potato Digging!

The Monarch Lightning Potato Digger Saves its cost yearly, FIVE TIMES OVER, to every farmer. Guaranteed to dig Six Hundred Bushels a Day!
Sent on 30 Days' TEST TRIAL.
Agents Wanted.

Write Postal Card for Free Illustrated Circulars. Mention this paper. Address Monarch Manufacturing Co., 163 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED!
DR. WM. HALL'S
FOR THE Lungs. BALSAM
Cures Consumption, Colds, Pneumonia, Influenza, Bronchial Difficulties, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough, and all Diseases of the Breathing Organs. It soothes and heals the Membrane of the Lungs, inflamed and poisoned by the disease, and prevents the night sweats and tightness across the chest which accompany it. CONSUMPTION is not an incurable malady. HALL'S BALSAM will cure you, even though professional aid fails.

Grocers and Dealers
-IN-
TEA AND COFFEE.
Send for Wholesale Price List of our goods. Lowest possible prices. GREAT LONDON TEA CO., 801 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

ST. PATRICK'S SALVE
TRY IT — USE IT
It relieves at once Burns, Piles, Chapped Hands or Lips, Corns, Bunions, Scalds, Bruises, Soreness of feet, hands, eyes, etc., Itching from any cause. 25c. Ask your druggist, or send to 92 Fulton Street, N. Y.

Texas Send at once for Maps, Pamphlets, Land-folders, etc., describing the marvelous growth and wonderful resources of the Great South-west. Address N. R. WARWICK, 131 Vine Street, Cincinnati, O.

CARPETS, RUGS, CURTAINS, WINDOW SHADES. Complete assortment of the newest, richest and most beautiful Carpets produced by the best manufacturers in America. Correspondence solicited. Samples and prices by mail. T. M. SNOWDON & CO., 107 W. Fourth Street, Cincinnati, O.

CHICAGO SCALE CO.
2 TON WAGON SCALE, $40. 3 TON, $50.
4 Ton $60, Beam Box Included.
240 lb. FARMER'S SCALE, $5.
The "Little Detective," ¼ oz. to 25 lb. $3.
300 OTHER SIZES. Reduced PRICE LIST FREE.
FORGES, TOOLS, &c.
BEST FORGE MADE FOR LIGHT WORK, $10.
40 lb. Anvil and Kit of Tools, $10.
Farmers save time and money doing odd jobs.
Blowers, Anvils, Vices & Other Articles
AT LOWEST PRICES, WHOLESALE & RETAIL.

CANCER AND TUMORS Treated scientifically and cured without the knife. Book on treatment sent free. Drs. Gratigny & Norris, 204 W. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION.
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
25 100

EDUCATIONAL.

COLLEGE PHYSICIANS & SURGEONS, CHICAGO. Elegant building. Experienced Faculty. Low fees. For catalogue address D. K. STEELE, M. D., 1 [illegible] State St.

COLEMAN BUSINESS COLLEGE, Newark, N. J. Term $4[illegible]. Positions for graduates; write for circular.

$40,000 IN PRESENTS GIVEN AWAY!

This Offer Good Till Thanksgiving Day Only.

The proprietors of the FARM, FIELD AND FIRESIDE, being desirous of having their already well-known and popular Agricultural and Family paper more widely circulated and introduced into houses where it is not already known, have determined to throw off all profit this year and in addition use a portion of their capital for the sole purpose of increasing their circulation to 100,000 copies. Its circulation is now 65,000. Only 35,000 more needed to force the distribution takes place. After deciding to more extensively advertise than ever before, the following plan has been adopted by us:

FOR 50 CENTS

We will enter your name on our subscription book and mail the FARM, FIELD AND FIRESIDE regularly to you for Six Months and immediately send a printed numbered Receipt, which will entitle the holder to one of the following Presents to be given away at our THANKSGIVING FESTIVAL.

Partial List of Presents to Be Given Away.

5 U. S. Government Bonds of $1000	$5000 00
10 U. S. Greenbacks of $500	5000 00
10 U. S. Greenbacks of $100	1000 00
1 Matched pair of Trotting Horses	1000 00
1 Grand Square Piano	800 00
1 Grand Cabinet Organ	[illegible]
1 Three Seat Rockaway	200 00
1 Silver Dinner Service	160 00
5 Top Buggies	1000 00
20 U. S. Greenbacks of $50 each	1000 00
100 Photograph Albums $2 each	200 00
2 Village Carts	200 00
1 Pony Phaeton	100 00
1000 Pocket Silver Fruit Knives	$1000 00
1000 Gents' Pocket Knives	1000 00
1000 U. S. Greenbacks of $1 each	1000 00
10 Gents' Gold Watches, English Movement	800 00
10 Ladies' Gold Watches, English Movem't	[illegible]
20 Boys' Silver Watches, American Movem't	200 00
8 Solitaire Diamond Finger Rings	400 00
3 Patent Harvesters	1000 00
1 Normandy Work Horse	500 00
2500 Elegant Oleograph Pictures	[illegible]
5 Rawsilk Parlor Suit Furniture	1000 00
1400 Gold Finger Rings, Ladies' Breast Pins, Gents' Scarf Pins, Lockets, Bands and Chains.

And 92,935 other presents valued from 25 cents to $1 00, which makes a grand aggregate of 100,000 presents, thus guaranteeing a present to each and every new subscriber who sends us 50 Cts. as directed. All of the above presents will be awarded in a fair and impartial manner by committee chosen at the Festival by the Subscribers; this festival will take place without fail. It will not be necessary for Subscribers to attend the Festival, as presents will be sent to any part of the United States or Canada. Yet it is to be hoped as many will be present as possible. THE 50 CENTS which you send us is the regular price for Six Months' Subscription, and the extra chance of [illegible] presents. OUR PROFIT will be in your future patronage. [illegible] YOUR SUBSCRIPTION FREE. [illegible] of your friends to join you by cutting this out and showing it to them. Send us $2.50 and we will send you the FARM, FIELD AND FIRESIDE for six months, and a numbered receipt for each of your subscribers and one extra for your trouble. [illegible] with $5 and we will send 12 subscriptions and twelve numbered receipts. We shall limit the number of new subscriptions to 100,000, so we would advise all our friends to forward subscriptions early.

THE FARM, FIELD AND FIRESIDE

is one of the oldest and ablest edited Family and Agricultural papers. It contains twenty large pages (Eighty Columns), including elegant cover, bound, stitched and cut. And now has a circulation of 65,000 copies, and we are sure to reach the 100,000 at the time set, and the distribution of presents will take place on that date. It contains Stories, Sketches, Poetry, Farm, Garden, Household and Agricultural Departments by the best Contributors of the day, as well as an Illustrated Fashion Department, Needle and Embroidery Work. Illustrations of different parts of the UNITED STATES and Biographical Sketches of Eminent Men and Women. In short, it contains that which will interest, instruct and amuse the whole family. THE PROPRIETORS are men of means, who always have done as they agree, and our paper is long established and reliable, with sufficient capital to carry out and fulfill to the letter any offer we may make. TO THOSE WHO DO NOT ATTEND THE FESTIVAL we will send a printed List of the Awards, and all Presents will be forwarded to Holders of Receipts as they may direct. If you have not seen this elegant and beautiful paper, send for a Sample Copy which will be Sent Free. ONLY 50 CENTS secures the FARM, FIELD & FIRESIDE Six Months, and a numbered receipt. The paper is worth double the subscription price. [illegible] Money in sums of $1 00 or less may be sent in ordinary letter at our risk, larger sums should be sent by Registered Letter, P. O. money order or Express. (Mention This Paper.)

REMEMBER these are Presents to our Subscribers given to them absolutely Free. Cut this out and show to friends, acquaintances and neighbors, as it will not appear again, and is the last opportunity you will have to take advantage of this extraordinary offer. Two-cent Postage Stamps taken in sums less than $1.00.

Read These Testimonials.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21, 1883.
We have furnished the paper for the FARM, FIELD AND FIRESIDE for several months, and have always found its Proprietors honorable in their dealings, and prompt in their payments.
CHICAGO PAPER CO.

CHICAGO, Aug. 21, 1883.
The Proprietors of the FARM, FIELD AND FIRESIDE have paid me several thousand dollars for press-work on their paper. I have always found them prompt in all transactions.
A. G. NEWELL.

August 15, 1883.
I am highly pleased with your paper. The information concerning Poultry management alone is worth five times the price of your paper, saying nothing about the valuable Farm information and interesting stories, etc.
W. R. SIMPSON, SLIPUP, Morgan Co., Ala.

BRAIDWOOD, Ill., Aug. 11, 1883.
I am very much pleased with your paper. Every number seems to me to become more attractive and profitable. I have shown it to several of my friends, who were at once delighted with it.
Mrs. J. F. EARLE.

WAUSEON, O., Aug. 11, 1883.
I received a copy of the FARM, FIELD AND FIRESIDE some days ago and must say that I was well pleased with it. I find it a first-class journal for the farmers, of whom I am one. With such an agricultural journal every farmer can receive much benefit.
[illegible] HAYES.

MEXICO, Juniata Co., Pa., July 24, 1883.
I herewith send you the names of fifteen subscribers to the FARM, FIELD AND FIRESIDE, which I secured in less than as many minutes.
B. L. SHUMAN.

SOUTH UNION, Ky., July 13, 1883.
It is certainly the best paper I ever saw, neat, plain, instructive and beautifully illustrated.
E. L. HOTE.

ILDERTON, ONT., Aug. 8, 1883.
I have lately been a subscriber to your lovely and profitable paper, and must say I am more than pleased with it. I gave my subscription, in the first place, more to have a chance for one of the many presents than for anything contained in the paper; but I find the paper is worth three or four times the money beside all presents.
S. W. PAISLEY.

PORTSMOUTH, VA., July 9, 1883.
I received the papers all right and am delighted. My friends and subscribers say they are surprised at its size and beauty. Every person that has seen the paper acknowledges it to be the best paper printed, and say it is worth $2 per year.
TIMOTHY MOSELEY.

The FARM, FIELD AND FIRESIDE, 89 Randolph Street, Chicago, Ill.

Ladies

Do you want a pure, blooming Complexion? If so, a few applications of Hagan's MAGNOLIA BALM will gratify you to your heart's content. It does away with Sallowness, Redness, Pimples, Blotches, and all diseases and imperfections of the skin. It overcomes the flushed appearance of heat, fatigue and excitement. It makes a lady of THIRTY appear but TWENTY; and so natural, gradual, and perfect are its effects, that it is impossible to detect its application.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD

And will completely change the blood in the entire system in three months. Any person who will take ONE PILL EACH NIGHT FROM ONE TO TWELVE WEEKS, may be restored to sound health, if such a thing be possible. For curing Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. Physicians use them in their practice. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. Send for pamphlet. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

1 Like an Evil Spirit.

In olden times it was thought that evil spirits came in through cracks and keyholes. The generally approved way to keep them out was to plug up the keyholes and stop the cracks with cotton. Notwithstanding these preventive measures, the evil things had their own way and often came in as they pleased.

So comes malaria now-a-days. We try to keep it out of the keyhole and it comes in by the crack. We stop up the crack, and lo! it comes from a leak in the plumbing, or an opening from some neglected drain, or from some unsuspected source and unguarded direction.

We cannot always keep malaria out, but we can give it battle and drive its effects from our systems. If BROWN'S IRON BITTERS is taken in time, malaria has not a ghost of a chance. This is the great family medicine. Your druggist sells it, and you ought to keep a bottle in the house.

PILES "Anakesis" gives instant relief, and is an infallible cure for Piles. Price $1 from druggists, or sent prepaid by mail. Samples free. Ad. "ANAKESIS," Makers, Box 2416, New York.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

Wanted Agents Male and female for new book, "Daughters of America." Low in price. 50c. will secure an outfit and agency. Address FORHEE & McMAKIN, Cincinnati, O.

A. N. K.—E. 942

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KY., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1883. NUMBER 47.

ONLY.

Only a shred of hair set in a ring;
Yet how I prize that lock of silken hair!
I do esteem it as a priceless thing,
And evermore the precious bauble wear.

Only a little chair, long vacant now,
But memory often fills the empty seat;
A fair, sweet child, with calm and sinless brow,
I see in fancy sitting at my feet.

Only the portrait of a childish face,
The silent shadow of a vanished form,
Pressed often to my own in glad embrace,
With loving prattle and fond kisses warm.

Only some broken toys; but oh! to me
They are the relics of a happy past;
Kept as a treasure under lock and key,
Mementoes of a time too bright to last.

Only some little garments, worn and old,
Gazed at in secret sorrow now and then;
Guarded as misers hoard their darling gold,
And hide the treasures from the eyes of men.

Only two tiny shoes worn-out almost;
You would not deem them worth a passing thought;
But oh! they conjure up a rushing host
Of sweet, sad memories that come unsought.

Only a little bed; how oft I bent
To kiss the lovely tenant sleeping there;
My heart was happy in its great content,
Nor reck'd the sorrow it has had to bear.

Only a little while, but short at best,
And time will waft us to the other shore;
Partings and death no more shall rack the breast
In that blest home, the land of Evermore!
—John Askham.

A CLIFF ADVENTURE.

In the far north, long ago, when I was a boy, my brother and I used to be expert cragsmen, if I may use the term. Few things gave us more pleasure than to scale all the steep precipices, of which there was no lack in our neighborhood. These precipices ranged from one hundred to four hundred feet in height. We were never troubled with dizziness and, boy-like in such a pastime, did not know what fear meant. Dangerous it certainly was, and many a narrow escape we had. I shudder now at the thought of the places in which we ventured. One of our adventures after birds' eggs very nearly proved fatal. We had often tried, but had always failed, to obtain any ravens' eggs for our collections. We were anxious to procure specimens, and determined that somehow or other we should. Now, be it known to those who are not acquainted with the character and habits of the "bird of ill omen," that he is one of the most sagacious and cunning of the feathered tribe. He builds his nest high up in the most inaccessible cliffs, so that it is almost impossible to reach it except with the help of a rope, and even with such assistance it is no easy task. We knew of a raven's nest about fifty feet from the top of a very steep and bare precipice of four hundred feet which there was no possibility of scaling in the usual way. Above the nest the cliff was partly overhanging, and beneath and on both sides, except the spot chosen for the nest on a solitary shelf, it was smooth and steep as a wall. For many years the same pair of ravens, safe and unmolested, had occupied this spot and reared their broods; but, with the pertinacious ardor of boyhood, we were resolved that they should no longer find that their eyrie was impregnable, and we laid our plans accordingly. It was necessary to have recourse to a rope, that one of us might be lowered down from the brow of the cliff; also a pulley, in the form of what sailors call a "block," was required; for one of us would, of course, have been unable to haul up the other with the single rope only; but the doubling of the rope by means of the block would diminish the weight and pressure by one-half, and bring the task well within our strength. Accordingly, we obtained a coil of about forty fathoms of rope, such as is commonly used for the sheet of the sail of a small boat; also a small block, and a strong oak stake.

The brow of the cliff was a smooth, grassy sward, the turf being hard, and, to all appearance, tough. We secured one end of the rope to the stake, which we drove firmly in the ground right above the raven's nest. My brother was to make the descent; I was to stand by the rope and manage the lowering and hauling up. A small piece of wood to sit on having been attached to a loop of rope and secured to the lower end of the block, all was ready for action, and the descent commenced. Slowly I paid out the rope. I could not see over the cliff, but was quite within easy ear-shot, and every second or two the shout came up: "Lower away, lower away;" at last it was: "Hold hard," and in a little: "All right. Haul up now." I knew that the prize was won, and began to pull away lustily and cheerily; but when I had recovered not more than three or four yards, to my horror and dismay I noticed the treacherous soil yielding to the strain, and the stake being drawn. I had barely time to seize the stake end of the rope. Another moment and the stake would have been wrenched out of the earth and dragged right over, and— well, I dare say I should have held on; I am sure I should; but that would have been of no avail. My poor brother must have fallen down, down, till the block caught the stake with a jerk, which would have fetched me over, too, if I had kept my hold; and down those terrible hundreds of feet we should have been dashed to inevitable destruction. As it was, the situation was dreadful enough for us both. For some time at least I could hold on, but that was all. It was beyond my strength now to haul in one yard of rope. "Haul away, can't you?" shouted my brother, little thinking what a dreadful thing had happened.

I paused a moment before answering. I was afraid, when he knew the truth, that he might faint or lose presence of mind at the appalling position in which he was placed. I did him injustice. A braver, cooler spirit never beat in breast of man or boy. "Don't be alarmed," I cried, "the stake is loosening a little." That is how I put it, to lessen the shock to his nerves. "Keep still a moment," I added, "till I see what can be done." But, in truth, I could not think what was to be done. I could do no more than hold my place and my hold. "Has the stake entirely slipped its hold?" he cried. "I fear so, yes," I replied. "But don't be afraid; I can easily hold you as you are till we think what can be done." He knew the worst then; we both knew too well the peril of the situation. Had he been only a few feet from the brow of the precipice, he might have got up by the rope hand over hand, for he was light, wiry and active, and his muscles strengthened and toughened by constant exercise, gymnastics, rowing, cricket, and the like. But nearly fifty feet! It was out of the question—it was impossible—and we both knew it. Moreover, we had no hope of help coming. There was not the slightest chance of any one passing that way; for the cliff was far away from human habitation, an isolated headland at the extremity of a peninsula, where a few more than half-wild sheep grazed; a place, therefore, where no one had occasion to visit except the owner of the said sheep two or three times in a year. Of all this we were perfectly aware. "What's to be done?" at last I cried. "But at any rate don't get shaky."

Firm and clear came up the reply: "Shaky! old fellow. No! that I shan't, and I know you won't, either. I know you won't let go. We shall do yet, never fear. I am thinking of a plan." And then, after a moment's pause, "I have it. If you hold hard by the stake end of the rope, and slip the other over, I'll slide down till I reach some footing. Wait till I shout that I'm all ready, and then kick the rope out as far as you can, that it may not come down on my head. You understand?" "All right," I shouted back, instantly comprehending and immensely admiring the ready wit of the device. "Be careful in moving; don't jerk; give the rope a twist round your legs, and slip down slowly." It was not without danger that this could be done, and everything depended upon steadiness and nerve. Haste or flurry would in all probability have been fatal. He had to disengage himself from the loop in which he was sitting, pull himself up a few feet, and get firm hold of the rope with hands and feet above the block; and to accomplish this, hanging as he was in mid-air was no easy matter, as the reader will readily understand. In a few seconds I knew by the strain on the stake end of the rope that he was transferring his weight to it alone. "Now, then," he cried, "pitch away; I'm ready."

There was no tension now on the longer end of the rope. With both hands, therefore, I grasped firmly the stake, and kicked the coil as far as I was able. "All right!" my brother shouted. "Hold hard now, and I'll slide down slowly." We knew the rope was not long enough to reach all the way down to the rocks and bowlders where the sea was grumbling; but we had good hope that a hundred feet or so down he would find a footing. In a little more than a minute I felt the tension suddenly cease, and grew deadly faint from the terrible fear that he had lost his hold. The next instant, to my inexpressible joy, I heard his far-off shout: "Right now, old fellow, I've got good footing, and will be up directly; it's all plain sailing now." I ran along the brow of the cliff to a point from which I could see him. I seemed scarcely able to realize that he was safe till I actually did see him. He was nearly half way down, and we waved mutual congratulations to one another. After a few minutes' rest, he passed along laterally for some distance, and then ascended by an easy part of the precipice which we had often before traversed. At last he set foot on the green turf, where I was anxiously waiting him. Each looked into the other's flushed and streaming face, and I am bound to acknowledge that, though we tried very hard, we ignominiously failed to repress a little blubbering.—Chambers' Journal.

The Revival of Cherry.

Those to whom fifty years is a memory readily recall the cherrywood tables, bureaus, drawer chests, that were then in fashion, when the more gaudy and more costly mahogany had but lately come in. It is an evidence of a return to good taste that the wood of the cherry tree is again in favor, not only as it exists in old furniture, but in its new requirements. It is largely used in cases for musical instruments—melodeons and organs—and in furniture—chairs and tables—after being "ebonized," or blackened by acids and dyes. But it is also coming again into use in its natural color. One of the finest banking houses in the Eastern States is finished entirely in cherry, and it is beautiful. The wood, filled and not varnished, has a soft glow not possessed by any other, and has none of those distortions of grain that are so unpleasant in mahogany.

The timber is chosen from the wild cherry, which in New England and the North generally does not usually grow to a girth of more than twenty inches, but in some of the Western States and in the South frequently attains a diameter of twenty-four inches. The domestic fruit cherry gives some good specimens of small timber, but as the tree is rarely sacrificed until it is past bearing and is decayed, this source of supply is precarious. Like all close-grained timber, the best specimens are those which grow slugly in exposed situations and not in a dense forest. The facility with which cherry can be worked makes it a favorite with the cabinet-maker.—Scientific American.

Rights of the Bull in England.

A recent decision by Lord Coleridge, C. J., in the Queen's Bench Division, as quoted by the New Jersey Law Journal, sounds singular here, where statutes and municipal regulations so generally prohibit estrays, and hold their owners liable. Unfenced highways are increasing under the protection of these laws, and in some New England cities and villages there are long stretches of front yards and lawns without any defensive protection from the traveled street or roadway The judge in this case ruled that the owner of an ox, which had entered the plaintiff's open shop door while being driven through the street, could not be held liable for damage done. He said: "We find it established as an exception upon the general law of trespass that where cattle trespass upon unfenced land immediately adjoining a highway, the owner of the land must bear the loss (quoting authorities). I could not, therefore, if I would, question the law laid down by such eminent authorities, but I quite concur in their views, and I see no distinction for this purpose between a field in the country and a street in a market town. The accident to the plaintiff was one of the necessary and inevitable risks which arise from driving cattle in the streets in or out of town."

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—Steel nails are the latest novelty.—N. Y. Tribune.

Minnesota is to have a sugar beet factory, with machinery imported from Europe. It will be ready for operation next spring.

—The people around Anniston, Ala., are not satisfied with the everlasting supply of timber in that county, and the replanting of oak and pine trees has begun.

—An Elmira (N. Y.) florist has succeeded in growing bananas in a greenhouse, and the fruit is said to be a vast improvement on that imported from the tropics.

—The first salt made by white men in Syracuse, N. Y., was made in 1788, the annual product at that time being one hundred barrels. In 1880 the product was sixteen million barrels.

—Honey-raising in cities is a new industry lately developed. The editor of a magazine published in New York City and devoted to bee culture is a practical man, and keeps an apiary of one hundred hives on the roof of his publishing house in the heart of the city. The owner says his bees gather honey from the trees and flowers in the city, and do not go beyond its limits.

—Dr. Brown Sequard is said to have discovered a new anesthetic which destroys sensibility, but not consciousness or physical activity, for an entire day or more. When it is administered to a man by the hypodermic injection process, he is not incapacitated for work or enjoyment, yet he can submit to having his flesh cut without feeling any pain. It is obviously a marvelous gain for medical science. It is some form of carbonic acid.—Chicago Herald.

—Curiosity-lovers and those scientifically inclined may be much gratified to know that napkins are now being made of spun glass, a luxury which few persons will deny themselves at the reasonable price of $100 per dozen. They are of a delicate pearl color, about the size of an ordinary breakfast napkin, and almost as pliable as silk. The filling consists of minute glass threads, crossed, by a silk chain; and the fringe of glass fiber is about two inches long.—Chicago Journal.

—The heat from an electric lamp of 100-candle power is from 57 to 158 heat-units, that of the incandescent lamp of equal brilliancy from 200 to 536. The argand gas-burner is the next best light in point of coolness, but this is represented by 4,860 heat-units, a colza oil lamp by 6,800, a flat wick petroleum lamp by 7,200, and a tallow candle by 9,700. Light for light, therefore, the heat of an electric arc lamp under the most favorable circumstances is to the heat of tallow candles as 1 to 170.—N. Y. Sun.

—Captain John Ericson's latest invention is a "solar engine," whose use in irrigating tropical lands entitles it to notice in this column. Of its success the venerable inventor has no doubt whatever. It may be rigged up on a houseless and treeless prairie, and is propelled by an engine set in motion by the heat of the sun, without direct human guidance. It is expected this device will prove sufficient to irrigate perfectly a district like Southern California, where sunshine without rain lasts six or seven months at a stretch, and where the sun is remarkably fertile. In fact it is applicable to the complete irrigation of all parts of the country wherever the sun shines and water may be reached by boring.

PITH AND POINT.

—We have heard of a great many different ways to make hens lay, but the surest way is to use a little hatchet.—Exchange.

—It is just as well that a majority of people have trouble. They would go out and borrow it if they did not have it in the house.—N. O. Picayune.

—A committee of one-eyed citizens will go up to Frankfort this winter to see what the new Legislature is willing to do to restrain the feminine parasol. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

—Before cutting a man's head off in China the authorities considerately make him drunk. In this country they considerately make him drunk before putting a head on him.—Yonkers Gazette.

—Dr. Crosby says "those who are engaged in amassing colossal fortunes belong to the dangerous classes." We do not care to be referred to in that pointed way, and the Doctor had better stop it.—Texas Siftings.

—There are few things so irritating in this life as to wait half an hour for your adversary at checkers, and then have him look up, as just aroused from a nap, and stupidly inquire: "Whose move is it?"—Boston Transcript.

—"The reason I don't have a choir," said a certain colored preacher of Syracuse, N. Y., "is because Mary don't speak to Jane and Jane don't think much of Ellen and Jim thinks Bill goes home with his own girl too often."

—"No," said the sad-eyed man, "I never press a young woman to play upon the piano. I tried it once to my sorrow." "Why, what followed?" asked a half-dozen eager voices. "She played," replied the sad-eyed man. "I shall never forget the lesson I learned that day."—Chicago Tribune.

—A railroad restaurant sandwich sent among some minerals to the Concord School of Philosophy puzzled that body more than a little. Finally the majority decided that it was a piece of rock of the paleozoic age, while the minority contended that it was a fragment of an exploded meteor.—Norristown Herald.

—She was from Toronto, and was speaking ardently of her home. "You've no idea," she said, "How the Dominion towns are growing." "Oh, I think I have," replied the Buffalo friend. "Able class of people, too. Read every day of lots of bank cashiers and the like gone over there to stay."—Buffalo Express.

—When Ethel tumbled down and broke a basket of eggs, the children all cried: "Oh, Ethel, won't you catch it when your mother sees those broken eggs. Won't you, though!" "No, I won't tach it, either," said Ethel. "I won't tach it at all. I'z dot a dranmother!"—Eli Perkins.

Religious.

THE GIEIN' O'T.

Ther's mony a way in this warl' o' care
O' helpin' each ither our burdens to bear;
A kind word or smile to a he'rt that is sair
Ait's a blessin an' costs but the giein' o't.

The giein' o't! ay, it's a wearyfu' soun';
It's naething but "gie me!" the hale warl' roun';
But though wild be the cry that upon us comes doon,
Yet how backward we are at the giein' o't!

Nae doot it is wealthy we'd a' like to be,
For we think if we'd lot's o't, thon plenty we'd gie;
But aye the mair o't the grip tichtens a wee,
For rich folks are ill at the giein' o't.

There's some folks wo hear o' wha gie a big sum,
An' then the newspapers beat up the big drum
To tell the hail country; puir bodies stan' dumb,
An' scarce think their mite worth the giein' o't.

But I wad fain ask them, if I had their lug,
Did they e'r scrimp their scone, or their giess, or their jug;
Their wives and their weans we see happit sae snug—
Did they e'er want a dress wi' the giein' o't?

But what though our names may be never in print?
A Reporter's abune, an' to Him it's weel kent
What we gie, and the blessin' He never will stint
Gin oor heart an' oor prayer's in the giein' o't.

An' oh! to remember, when gien', to try
Oor cauld, selfish natur' within to deny!
Seek His glory alane who for us came to die,
Gave His life, to bless us in the giein' o't.

And when with sad he'rt at His footstool we bow,
How can we expect He'll an answer bestow
If roun' that same he'rt love of self we allow
To keep back oor haun in the giein' o't?
—N. Y. Observer.

International Sunday-School Lessons.

THIRD QUARTER.

Sept. 16—A Praying Mother	1 Sam. 1:21-28
Sept. 23—The Child Samuel	1 Sam. 3: 1-19
Sept. 30—Review.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Oct. 7—Eli's Death	1 Sam. 4:10-18
Oct. 14—Samuel the Judge	1 Sam. 7: 3-17
Oct. 21—Asking for a King	1 Sam. 8: 1-10
Oct. 28—Saul Chosen King	1 Sam. 10:17-27
Nov. 4—Samuel's Farewell Address	1 Sam. 12:13-25
Nov. 11—Saul Rejected	1 Sam. 15:12-26
Nov. 18—David Anointed	1 Sam. 16: 1-13
Nov. 25—David and Goliath	1 Sam. 17:38-51
Dec. 2—David's Enemy—Saul	1 Sam. 18: 1- 6
Dec. 9—David's Friend—Jonathan	1 Sam. 20:32-42
Dec. 16—David Sparing His Enemy	1 Sam. 24: 1-17
Dec. 23—Death of Saul and Jonathan	1 Sam. 31: 1-13
Dec. 30—Review.

A CHRISTIAN IN ALL THINGS.

We read the other day of an act of Christian unselfishness which is well worth recalling. A farmer died last month in Ohio, leaving a large family of children and a considerable tract of land. Some years ago he had deeded forty acres of the land to one of his sons, and leased all the rest to him for thirty-two years. By this means the other children were cut off from any share in their father's estate for a very long period. Their lawyer wisely advised them not to undertake a legal contest, and suggested a conference with the fortunate brother. To the astonishment of all concerned, after a brief conversation he tore up the lease, and said the land covered by it should be equally divided among the others, he himself retaining only the forty acres deeded to him. He explained this unexpected action, so different from that commonly taken in similar circumstances, by saying that he was a Christian, and could not conscientiously leave his brothers and sisters "out in the cold."

According to the world's way of looking at things, this was a very singular, not to say absurd, proceeding. "Every man for himself," "look out for number one," "get all you can, and keep all you get"—these are the maxims most in favor when questions of property or money-making are concerned. Those who act on them are not always willing to acknowledge the fact, even to themselves; none the less they square their conduct by the intensely selfish principle embodied in them. So much, apparently, of present prosperity and future comfort and security depend upon the acquisition of money that, in their eagerness to acquire it, men grow impatient of the restraints of conscience, and resolutely harden themselves against all the generous impulses and affection which ought to control their dealings with others. In such a case as that above cited, they say to themselves: "This property was left to me; why shouldn't I enjoy it? Let the others shift for themselves." In business they learn to employ all sorts of "tricks of trade," in order to get the better of their fellows. In politics, to what immeasurable depths of meanness, duplicity and corruption will they not descend for the sake of victory and a chance at "the spoils." And the same low view of what is right and honorable largely affects the dealings of men with one another in every department of life.

We need not say that this selfish spirit has nothing in common with "the mind which was in Christ Jesus" —the large-hearted, unselfish spirit of the Gospel. "Every man for himself," and "do to others as ye would that they should do you," are two very different principles of human conduct. It is useless to try to reconcile them. Yet how many Christian men, misled by a feverish haste to be rich, or by an anxious desire to promote some cause, good in itself, in which they are deeply interested, are continually attempting this impossible task! And what strange things they will do, and justify themselves in doing them, on the specious plea that they can not otherwise succeed in accomplishing their underundertakings. If that be so, better not succeed! For the reason that every Christian is bound by his allegiance to Christ, to act in all things on a higher principal than that of mere worldly self-interest. What if it does prevent his making money as fast as his neighbor? What if his cherished plans do fail because he will not stoop to underhanded means to accomplish them? Suppose it does constrain him to be fair and honest in dividing an inheritance, to his own pecuniary loss? If he is a true Christian, he will "count it all joy" to do the right and noble thing in every case, even when he knows that he will suffer loss by doing it.

Christian highmindedness is one of the virtues that will bear a good deal of careful cultivation in this evil world. There are so many temptations to swerve from the path of absolute, uncompromising rectitude in order to accomplish what seem to be desirable ends, that one needs to fortify himself against them at every point. Meanness, trickery, low ambitions, sordid purposes, often take possession of even good men's souls, unless they keep watchful guard against them. We know no wiser way of keeping these intruders out than to cultivate a broad, manly, unselfish, thoroughly Christlike spirit in all things.—N. Y. Examiner.

Push.

"Push" is a little word, but it means a great deal. A man's destiny often hinges upon the possession of the quality this word implies. Go into the city and ask who are the successful men in business and in all kinds of professional life, and how seldom will you fail to hear the remark: "They are full of 'push.'" Not that a man must elbow his way rudely along, without regard to the rights of others, true, some pushing men do this, either from too intense an interest in their own affairs, or too little regard for others—but these are not the men of whom we speak. But a man may be very courteous to, and thoughtful of others, and at the same time crowd his own business with might and main. He is the man of push. He is the man of whom a London paper is speaking, when it says:

"Nothing is done without "push" nowadays. No man in any capacity will do much if he has it not. We are not speaking of impertinence and ignorant ambition, but of an earnest sprightliness of character which makes every act an interest and the stepping-stone to something better. And not in commerce only, but in our church life we need the impulsive principle."

We all like to see this quality in men. The business man who throws his whole soul into his business, other things being equal, is sure of success, for we look upon him as a live man. His energy and push begets the same in all his employes, and in all his customers. The physician who moves with decision and celerity begets confidence and hope in his patients. The lawyer who pushes his case is far more sure to win. The teacher who brings his scholars sharp to time and crowds them, is far more successful in developing their latent talents. And the minister who possesses this quality is likely to be most successful in winning souls and rousing the church to action. Push will not take the place of integrity, or medical skill, or legal lore, or insight into character, or godliness, but added to any or all of these is a mighty power. Oh, for more sanctified push in our churches to rouse idle and discouraged members to earnest action. Brethren, carry this quality into your work, wherever it is, whatever it is; and may God bless you! efforts.—Golden Rule.

On Reverence.

In all grades of society some outward token of respect is shown even to equals, and still more to superiors. Nor will any but the most thoughtless affirm that this is a thing of mere conventional etiquette, "more honored in the breach than in the observance;" it springs from a deep instinct of our nature, and is intimately connected with the well being of society. It not only gives finish to character, but, like the enamel, it protects as well as beautifies. Indeed, so close is the relation which mankind have recognized between morals and manners, that in some languages the same word suffices to express both, as if the one could not flourish in the neglect of the other. Retined and gentle manners, then, are as important as they are pleasant; they are to be classed among things useful no less than among things ornamental. And if this is the case in the ordinary intercourse of society, it is emphatically the case in religion. If it is considered a violation of correct taste to approach one of high earthly rank without the customary obeisance, it is a breach of propriety still more gross and unpardonable to enter the presence of the eternal God with coarse familiarity or outward disrespect. The Psalmist only expresses the spontaneous feeling of every healthful mind, when he says: "O come, let us worship and bow down, let us kneel before the Lord our Maker."—Homiletic Magazine.

Choice Selections.

—A soldier in battle should feel as if the whole battle depended upon himself.

—You may depend upon it that he is a good man whose intimate friends are all good.—Lavater.

—There is no evil we can not either face or fly from but the consciousness of duty disregarded.—Webster.

—Silence never shows itself to so great an advantage as when it is made the reply to calumny and defamation. —Addison.

—The stimulating power and comfort of sympathy none can express, save he who has realized it. It has a power like the magnet, unseen but potent, which draws to itself the wandering, scattered particles that exist around it.—Rev. E. H. Delk.

—In one of his stories Anthony Trollope makes a common farm laborer encourage his clergyman, who was in very trying circumstances, by saying: "Parson, it's dogged as does it!" Hold on, is his idea; see the thing through to the end; endure to the very last. There is no little philosophy in the peasant's blunt expression. There is hardly any quality so essential to real success as the ability to hold on. We all know men who are gifted; their knowledge or there genius surprises and delights us. But they never make much of a success in life, simply because they do not hold on. They have no "staying power." Sanguine in their expectations, a little difficulty casts them down, and they give over their efforts. Men of not a tithe of their real ability will push their way to success by sheer force of dogged determination. There is a lesson here also, we think, as concerns Christian character and service. The crown comes not to him that begins simply, but to him that overcomes.—Christian Weekly.

Our Young Folks.

A LITTLE BOY WHO RAN AWAY.

"I'm going now to run away,"
Said little Sammie Green, one day.
"Then I can do just what I choose,
I'll never have to black my shoes,
Or wash my face, or comb my hair.
I'll find a place, I know, somewhere;
And never have again to fill
That old chip-basket—so I will.

"Good-bye, mamma," he said—"Good-bye!"
He thought his mother then would cry.
She only said: "You going, dear?"
And didn't shed a single tear.
"There, now!" said Sammie Green; "I know
She does not care if I do go.
But Bridget does. She'll have to fill
That old chip-basket—so she will."

But Bridget only said: "Well, boy,
You off for sure? I wish you joy."
And Sammie's little sister Kate,
Who swung upon the garden gate,
Said, anxiously, as he passed thro';
"To-night, whatever will you do
When you can't get no 'lasses spread
At supper time on top of bread!"

One block from home; and Sammie's dear,
Weak little heart was full of fear.
He thought about "Red Riding Hood;"
The wolf that met her in the wood;
The bean-stalk boy, who kept so mum
When he heard the giant's "Fee, fo fum;"
Of the dark night and the policeman,
Then poor Sammie homeward ran.

Quick through the alley-way he sped,
And crawled in thro' the old wood-shed.
The big chip-basket he did fill;
He blacked his shoes up with a will;
He washed his face and combed his hair;
He went up to his mother's chair,
And kissed her twice, and then he said:
"I'd like some 'lasses top of bread!"
—Mrs. Susan T. Perry, in Golden Days.

AUNT PENELOPE'S CAKE.

Teddy was sitting on the back door-step trying to make up his mind whether to play Daniel in the lion's den, with Bose for lion, or Robinson Crusoe, with Timmy Jones for his man Friday.

He was wondering, too, if the days here at Aunt Penelope's were not, at least, twice as long as they were at home.

What would he not give to see papa, mamma, Nell and Margie, to say nothing of Dick and Tom?

The thought of them was too much for him, and though he would never have owned it, his blue eyes completely overflowed.

"Hannah," said Aunt Penelope, coming into the kitchen, "you may stone some raisins and cut up some citron. I think I'll make some loaf-cake this morning."

Teddy rubbed his eyes briskly with his jacket-sleeve, and listened eagerly.

"Mr. Kent is coming to tea. You may make custards and biscuits, and some time in the course of the day you may bring up that jar of strawberry preserves"——

Teddy's face fairly shone. If he had a weakness, it was strawberry preserves and loaf-cake. As for Hannah's custards, they were not to be equaled anywhere by anybody.

It wasn't so bad having to stay at Aunt Penelope's, after all. At any rate, he would wait until to-morrow to see the folks at home.

"I declare!" said good Aunt Penelope, an hour later going into the pantry, "I never saw a handsomer loaf of cake in my life, though I do say it, as shouldn't."

As for Teddy, who, having at length decided upon playing Daniel, was busily engaged digging a den, his mouth fairly watered at the delicious odor wafted out to him.

"It'll be an awful long time till night," he sighed. "It most seems as though I couldn't wait."

"O Miss Penelope, do come quick!" cried Timmy Jones, rushing into the yard just then. "The baby's took a fit, and mother's off washing!"

Miss Penelope left her cake by the open window, picked up her sun-bonnet and ran, calling to Hannah to follow.

For a few minutes Teddy continued his excavations. Presently, however, he paused.

"I should like," he said to himself, "to know if that cake looks as good as it smells."

So accordingly he stood on tiptoe, turned the slats and peeped in.

It certainly did look very delicious, though he could not really get a good view of it.

Somehow he had lost all his interest in Daniel.

"I'd like to see how it looks near to," he said, after another short pause. "And I'm very thirsty for some milk.

"I wish—I had a little piece, just a little teenty tonty piece, 'cause I'm homesick! There'll be plenty left. And may be Aunt Penelope was going to give me a piece when Timmy came for her. She'll be real disappointed if I don't have it." He sighed, full of sympathy—for Aunt Penelope, of course.

"Why, Hannah Jane Smith! did you put away my cake?" asked Aunt Penelope.

"No, ma'am, I didn't touch it; haven't even seen it sence you took it out of the oven."

"But I left it by the window. I was just going to put it in the cake box when Johnny came. Where can it be?"

"Tramps!" said Hannah, in a horror-stricken tone. "It's a mercy we was not here, as they might have murdered us. And they've taken some milk, too," she added, spying the empty glass.

"Dinner ready and on the table," said Hannah.

"Where's Teddy?" asked Aunt Penelope.

"I'm sure I've not set my eyes on him since breakfast."

"Where can the child be?" asked Aunt Penelope, now thoroughly alarmed.

They called and called, they hunted the house, barn and neighborhood all over, they looked down the well and up on the barn ridge-pole, and in every other imaginable and unimaginable place; but no Teddy was to be found.

"It will break his mother's heart," sighed Aunt Penelope.

Hannah was on her way up garret for another search, when noticing the store-room door open she stopped and looked in. There in the further corner on a pile of comfortables was Teddy.

"You needn't bother 'bout me," he said, briskly. "I was tired and my head ached. You better go down and eat your dinner without waiting for me, 'cause I ain't a bit hungry."

"Miss White," called Hannah, "I've found him, and it's my belief he's goin' to be sick He looks fevery, and says he don't want his dinner, and it's serions when boys of his age don't want that."

Aunt Penelope came up with all possible haste.

"Dear, dear me, what can it be! I didn't know there was scarlet fever or anything about here except baby Jones' fits, and those ain't catching."

"You needn't bother a bit about me," said Teddy, very earnestly. "My mother doesn't when I'm sick; she just lets me cuperate, she says."

But Aunt Penelope preferred to know about it.

"Teddy," she exclaimed, as she took his rather grimy and very sticky hand to find his pulse, "Teddy, what have you been eating?"

Teddy looked up at the ceiling, down at his copper-toes, over in the corner, everwhere but at Aunt Penelope.

"Teddy," she almost gasped, "did you eat my cake?"

"I—you said it was beautiful, and—I wanted to see—I fought—you know—you'd want me—to have some 'cause I was so homesick—and I kept a thinking —and—it went pretty fast before I knowed it," sobbed Teddy. "But I didn't eat it all," he added, taking from the depths of his pocket a very small, very crumpled piece of cake.

Aunt Penelope turned round and looked at Hannah, and Hannah looked speechlessly at Aunt Penelope.

"A loaf of cake! He'll die," said Aunt Penelope.

They took him down-stairs, soaked his feet in boiling water—as Teddy affirmed—gave him ipecac, castor oil and tea of every kind of herb in the house, while waiting for the doctor.

But he did not die, though mamma said afterwards, laughing until the tears ran down her cheeks, that it was not Teddy's nor Aunt Penelope's fault.

He certainly did not "cuperate" much from that sickness, and from that day to this Teddy has never once tasted a bit of loaf-cake; indeed, he objects to the very sight of it.—Youth's Companion.

In the Florida Woods.

A few days after, our special artist Harry went out for a tramp, and returned to camp, his face radiant with pleasure and self-satisfaction.

"Tom," said he, "I have caught for you some black, some yellow, and some brown lizards."

Then he carefully opened an old cigar-box in which he usually carried his paints, and, as he peeped inside, his eyes opened and his whole face expressed the utmost astonishment.

"What is the matter?" asked Tom. "Have they escaped?"

"Escaped! No," said he. "But either I am bewitched, or some wood-nymph has played a trick upon me: for here is a box full of pea-green lizards!"

"Carolina anolis!" remarked Tom.

"Who's she? The wood-nymph? Do you know her?" asked Harry, as he shut the box, with a snap. "Well, what I want to know is, how Carrio what's-her-name painted all my specimens bright-green, for I am willing to vouch that nothing green touched that box."

"Except yourself," laughed Tom. "You have been catching what are commonly known as Florida chameleons, and they have changed color in the box."

From the mysterious depths of his pockets Tom produced a magnifying-glass. Then, thrusting his hands into the cigar-box, he pulled out one of the squirming reptiles, and, holding it in his fingers, handed Harry the glass, saying:

"Look and see how old Dame Nature has adapted the feet of these little rascals for climbing."

Harry looked and saw that the under side of each toe was a cushion, the surface of which was plaited like an old-fashioned shirt-front—the plaits on the hinder part having their edges turned toward the end of the toe, and the plaits on the forward part having their edges turned toward the heel, thus dividing the cushion in the middle just as the band for the studs divided the shirt-front. And upon looking further, Harry discovered that the edges of the plaits were armed with rows of needle-like points, and the mechanical principles upon which the foot acted dawned upon him.

"I see, I see!" he exclaimed. "When the little rascal runs up a wall, the soft pads upon his toes fit and fill any little uneven place beneath them, acting like the leather suckers we used to make; while, at the same time, the little spines pointing downward are brought to bear upon the surface of the wall. But," he continued, "should Mr. Bright Eyes run down the wall, the pads perform their part just as well and are aided by the opposite set of spines and plaits. Hurrah for Tom, the great naturalist!" he shouted, and in his enthusiasm dropped the box from under his arm.

The inmates immediately took advantage of the opportunity to scatter in every direction: seeing which, Harry grabbed at one and caught it by the tail. His sudden cry of horror startled Tom from his fit of laughter; but when a tailless chameleon darted under a stick at his feet, and he saw Harry gazing with consternation on a squirming tail which he held in his hand for a moment, and then dropped, twisting and writhing, on the ground, he broke out afresh and laughed immoderately.

Harry looked up at last, muttering something about its being his belief that the box had contained imps instead of reptiles. Tom, however, explained that it was quite an ordinary occurrence for this curious animal to part with its caudal appendage, when, by that means, escape from captivity was possible.— —D. C. Beard, in St. Nicholas.

—The managing electrician of the electric company which lights Lowell, Mass., narrowly escaped death, recently. He was inspecting the dynamos, which were in full motion, and was regulating the screw of the brushes, when he slipped on the oily floor. In falling he kept hold of the screw with his right hand, and with his left instinctively clutched the dynamo opposite to save himself. At once the full force of the twenty-five horse-power current, strong enough to have killed several men, passed through his body. He fell apparently lifeless, but was restored by hard rubbing.—Boston Herald.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. SEPT. 19 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year		$80
1 "	½ "		40
1 "	¼ "		20
¼ "	1 "		20
¼ "	½ "		10
¼ "	¼ "		6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (excepting the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

MADISON, (IND.) LETTER.

To the Editors of the Recorder:

Madison is a funny, sleepy, old place. It is amusing to talk to people there, and see how cautious they are in business, and how slow to form an opinion about the worth of any enterprise.

About three years ago some rash individual started a canning factory there. The business men shook their heads and predicted failure, but when they found that the business was gaining a foothold, they rushed to the opposite extreme, and bragged so much about it, that another man came, and started another canning factory. Then both factories had a hard time. The first one considered itself abused, and the second one thought it had been imposed upon.

It seems as if these canning factories began

A NEW ERA FOR MADISON.

Of course, the old established business houses of the town, the Starch factories and the Flower mills, never suffer any great depression with the times, but new enterprises generally had to struggle pretty hard for success. These canning factories, however, worked into a good business in a little while, both are running as many as 150 hands all the time. The force is largely made up of women and children. It looked strange to me to see little girls of eight and ten years of age peeling and preparing tomatoes and corn with apparent skill.

The streets of Madison present a just now. In one place the frame of a building to be used for a woolen mill is being put up. On another street a big tobacco factory, the first Madison has ever had, is going up, and on the site of the old elevator of Trow's mills, which burned a few weeks ago, the company is rebuilding, and improving on the old grain elevator. The Trows have had ill luck follow them for a good while. It was so long after the burning of the mills, about three years ago, before they could get into running order again, that they suffered immense loss, and only a few weeks ago, the burning of the elevator lost them about $150,000. This was partly covered by insurance, however, and they saved some grain, but in a damaged condition. Madison has had its full share of disastrous fires. There is one livery stable, Andy Fischer's, which has been rebuilt three times. The fire, every time, was the work of incendiaries. This is easily explained, however, when you notice that there are four other livery stables within two squares of him, two more around the corner, two more on Main Cross, and one on Broadway.

BUSINESS LIKE APPEARANCE

They talk about

THE TOBACCO FACTORY

there as if no other place ever had one before. They will work about 200 men, I believe, and expect to make a big thing of it. Most of these enterprises are in the hands of Stock Companies. Madison worked hard for one of the Asylums for the insane but was disappointed. The inaccessibility of the place will always work against it. They are always on the point of getting another railroad, but I really don't believe they are any nearer it than they were before Col. Horace Scott was born.

All this report makes me groan as your subscribers are doing, so I'll to and tell you about a mystery. A mystery is always dear to the reporter's heart, so when I saw the windows of the entire upper story of a house near Carrollton, boarded over, I scented a murder, and following up the scent of blood came full upon a blood curdling ghost story.

FRESH FIELLS AND PASTURES NEW

It seems as though the son of this planter who owned this place about the time of the war, had done some injury to a negro on the place, the story don't tell us what, but he whipped him or ran off with his wife or something, so that the negro vowed vengeance and murdered him. The dead man's friends simplified the law by taking the negro to the nearest tree and hanged him by the neck till dead. Now he is supposed to roam around the old house, and appears at times to the inmates. It is said that no one can enter the second story rooms without being flung out again by this belligerent spirit. Certain it is that the story has gained credence, for the windows and stair-way are boarded up securely. It is worth investigating. I have found another adventurous spirit, who is willing to go into this den, so if you never hear from me again, you may suppose we have come to a violent end at the hands of a gang of counterfeiters or "moonshiners,"—or spirits, as the case may be.

Yours in consideration, K. P.

THE Superintendent of Public Instruction placed our school commissioner on the committee on district taxation in the Educational Convention which meets in Louisville to-day.

Beaver Lick.

Since Mr. C. J. Houston has quit selling liquor Beaver has assumed the appearance of sobriety, peace and harmony. If there is any one thing that more than all others, adds beauty and pleasantness to a country hamlet, it is the absence of intoxicating liquors. No one is now seen on our streets drunk, and trying to raise the temperature of the place to about that of hades. If our citizens were only capable of appreciating this condition of things as it deserves, nothing could ever again induce that direful monster to select our thriving little village as a retreat wherein to ply his destructive vocation. Citizens, behold the pearl you now possess, and for the sake of those you love, never cast it before swine.

The colored folks of Beaver met at Tom Craig's, last Wednesday night, and enjoyed a big prayer meeting. Rev. John Venerable conducted the meeting, and much religious fervency was manifested.

Very few of our youngsters took in the Latonia races. People about here are too busy for recreative jaunts at present. Look out Louisville, about three weeks from now. Everybody is "a gwine."

The weather for the past two weeks has been quite favorable for cutting and housing tobacco, and lots of the weed has been thus handled. Several buyers have already offered fine figures for choice crops in the neighborhood—business.

Peaches are selling low in Beaver, some have been sold at 50c per bushel, and good ones at that. Fruit, however, is said to be scarce aside from peaches.

The drouth has made people who possess stock go a long ways for water, it was never scarcer here, in the memory of—well, the middle aged at any rate.

Last Friday evening Add Jenkins, who works in Kennedy's tobacco shop, whipped out a No. 22 pop and shot our village blacksmith, Fritz Feldehaus, twice, one ball taking effect in the right side, the other in the left leg. Luckily, however, both are flesh wounds and are not of a dangerous nature. The law will look into the matter at its leisure.

The ball given by Henry Stevenson at the Valley Hotel, last Friday night was an affair in the run of Big Bone that will not be soon forgotten by the many belles and beaux who tripped the light fantastic toe till the "wee sma" hours. Good music, rich edibles and the courteous conduct of mine host, all strove to make it, as it was, the jewel of the season. BILL LLOYD.

Florence.

In perusing the pages of the RECORDER for several weeks past, I was surprised to find no contributions from the big town of Florence or its environs. We were served with items of interest from different sections of this county, and the advertising public evidenced their appreciations of the medium through which to make their "wants and wishes" known by a liberal prtronage of its columns, and yet, we were not represented. So I have determined to write us up, and if you don't print it, Mr. Editor, we'll revive the Boone County Journal, and then you'll catch it, if you have got the Court-house and Jail on your side.

Perhaps everybody don't know how important a place Florence is. Contiguous to the C. S. R. R., and situated at the greatest altitude of any point in the county, its boundary including the sources of the waters of Bank Lick, Gunpowder and Dry Creek, with 2 dry goods and 3 grocery stores, drug store, carriage, harness, boot and shoe, wagon, and tobacco and cigar manufactories, 4 magnificent hotels (all conducted on the European plan), 5 doctors, 1 commissioned and 15 non-commissioned lawyers, 20 widows and a town council, and some minor institutions we have'nt room to mention, one would conclude that a place like this with its surroundings would offer something new, if only a fight or a wedding.

By the way, we had the nicest wedding, Wednesday the 12th inst., at the Catholic church, by Father Burke—Mr. Will Menser, of Covington, to Miss Nannie Grogin, of Florence. Attendants: Mr. Chas. Menser and Miss Delia Grogin. The bride was richly attired in silk and velvet and the groom did honor to the latest fashion. The elite of the town turned out en masse to witness the pleasing nuptials. The ceremony as conducted by Father Burke was orderly and impressive, and many were the well wishes that greeted the happy pair. We heard it remarked that the attendants were the sweetest couple. Mr. Menser returned to Covington with his prize where he will make his home.

I said I would write, but then what to write and how to write, that the question. Our people are very exacting here, every i must be dotted and t crossed. If I should say that Uncle George Aydelotte had the biggest potatoe in town and should fail to prefix it with sweet, he'd order pistols for two. Or, if I should happen to leak out that little Charley Meyers was going to marry a club-footed woman six feet tall, the RECORDER would have one less correspondent. So with this embargo upon me, I must run in a kind of business line, such as the Town Council of Florence met Sept. 12th, 1883, Pres. Will Conner in the chair, suggested that steps be taken to improve the sanitary condition of the Board. Committee on Indian affairs (Mr. John Reed) moved to have the remains of the celebrated warrior, Big Foot, interred in the Florence cemetery—approved. Col. H. C. Springer, nephew of Hon. R. R. Springer, of Cincinnati, O., was appointed a committee to procure a site and erect a jail in Florence. Adjourned.

The Burlington hatter has been topping out the community around here to such an extent that wives don't know their husbands when coming in. Its real dangerous. O. H. Conrad had his cupola fixed up and the people thought the new Methodist Circuit rider had come to town, and the chickens looked like they saw a hawk. Os happened to say something that gave him away.

Prof. Stevenson's school is progressing at this place. The free school is being taught by M. E. Clutterbuck. Mrs. Dr. Kirtley is teaching a select school here. At present she is very sick. We hope she will be able to continue her school in a few days. GAS OMETER.

THE New York Sun read the riot to the Democratic kickers in Hamilton county, Ohio.

THE Educational Convention convenes in Louisville to-day. Subjects of much importance to the educational interest of the State will be handled by the convention during its meeting.

THE President of the State College writes the school commissioner that upon his certificate and recommendation applicants to said institution will be admttted free of tuition. Now is the time to see the commissioner in regard to the matter.

"Nervous debility, the curse of the American people, immediately yields to the action of Brown's Iron Bitters."

KEOKUK, IOWA.—Dr. E. E. Fuller says: "I have used Brown's Iron Bitters in my own family with excellent results."

ELM GROVE, N. C.—Dr. G. N. Roberson says: "I prescribe Brown's Iron Bitters, and find it all it is recommended to be."

Mother's Spinning Wheel.

Concerning One Article that was Not For Sale, and Another which is Cheap at Any Price.

"No, sir, I wouldn't sell you that for any money; that spinning-wheel was my mother's. It was one day, when she was singing like a lark and making this old wheel hum, that my father, then a young medical student, afterwards a farmer, fell in love with her—some fifty years ago."

So spoke the proprietor of a rough bit of farm land in Ulster county, N. Y., to a relic-hunter, and "mother's" spinning-wheel remained among her children and grandchildren.

"My mother," writes Rev. J. W. Phelps, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. Church, Chicago, has used PARKER'S TONIC, and wishes me to say that she has found it more effective than anything she ever used for invigorating and strengthening the system debilitated by malaria. She desires me also especially to mention the certainty with which it aids digestion and overcomes exhaustion."

Ever since the first household was established "mothe'rs" opinion has been more potent in this world than that of judge, jurist or physician. Her hand has always cooled the fever and her voice has been filled with hope. With each day's decline, PARKER'S TONIC, is becoming more deservedly popular with the women who guard alike husband and children. It eradicates malarial poison from the blood, from which there is now such widespread suffering.

Please observe: DR. PARKER'S TONIC is not an intoxicant. It is a combination of several ingredients, of which none singly can produce anything like its effect. For Kidney, Stomach and Liver troubles, it is the standard and unfailing remedy. In two sizes: 50 cents and $1. The latter the cheaper. HISCOX & CO., Chemists, New York

Public Sale!

I will offer for sale to the highest bidder at my residence on the Burlington and Bellevue turnpike.

Thursday, Sept. 27, '83.

All of my personal property to-wit:

5 head of Horses, 1 Mule, 7, head of fine shorthorn Cattle, 150 head of Sheep, 20 head of Hogs, 2 Wagons, 2 Buggies, 1 Combined Reaper & Mower, Harness, Plows, Harrows and various kinds of farming utensils, about 8,000 ft. of poplar fencing, 1,000 ft. of siding boards, 25 acres of corn in the field' Hay in stack. Household and Kitchen Furniture, and other articles too numerous to mention.

TERMS OF SALE.—All sums of $10 and under cash, over $10 a credit will be given to the first of March, 1883, purchasers will be required to give bond with approved security. Sale to commence at 9 a. m.

T. W. FINCH, Auc. WM. WALTON.

For Sale.

A good cow and calf—the cow is fresh and a number one milch cow, apply to

C. L. CRISLER, Burlington, Ky.

Notice.

The annual election officers of the Farmers' M. F. Ins., Company, will be held at Burlington the first Monday in October, 1883. Amount of property insured to date in round numbers $430,000.

ADMINISTRATORS NOTICE.

Persons having claims against the estate of J. C. Riley, decd., are hereby notified to present them to the undersigned proven as by law required. Persons indebted to the estate are requested to come forward and settle their indebtedness at once.

C. T. RICE, Admr.

ADMINISTRATORS NOTICE.

Persons having claims against the estate of Erastus Garrison, decd., are hereby notified to present them to the undersigned proven as by law required. Persons indebted to the estate are requested to come foward and settle their indebtedness at once. C. T. RICE, Admr.

Farm for Sale!

35 acres of good rolling bottom land, 3½ miles below Aurora ferry, ½ mile from Bellevue and ¼ mile from the Ohio river, being part of the Warren Rogers farm. For particulars call on or address T. H. SUTTON, Grant P. O., Ky., or at this office. 44-2-m

Farm for Sale.

I am offering for sale my farm, lying 3 miles south of Burlington on the Big Bone road, containing 55½ acres, a part of the Mason Crisler farm. The land lays well and is conveniently located, the improvements are a good brick house and all necessary out buildings, and a variety of good fruit. Any person desirous of purchasing a nice farm will do well to come and examine the premises and learn terms. Title good. MRS. OSCAR CRISLER.

ATTENTION!

Attention! Attention

If you want to buy a first-class organ
If you want to buy a first-class
Piano. If you want to exchange your old instrument. If you want to receive their full value.
If you want an instrument of any kind. If you want to exchange your old sewing machine. If you want to buy
the best new sewing machine. If you want to receive a five years warrant with every purchase, bring or send your orders to G. S. Lozier
Gen. Agent,
Lawrenceburg,
Indiana,
Office & Sales
Room in Dr. C. G.
Walters' building, Corner Short and Tate Srects.
Send for Prices and Circulars.
All mail orders filled promptly.

Just From New York

WITH A

Full LINE of FALL SUITINGS,

—AND—

OVERCOATS.

The above stock was carefully selected, and consists of all the NEW STYLES of FALL GOODS, and you can not fail to be pleased with the Goods and Prices.

H. F. BLASE,

540 Madison St. - COVINGTON, KY.

YARNS, FLANNELS &

BLANKETS,

From SCHOFILD & SON'S and VEVAY Woolen Mills, now on sale at

COLTER'S

Mammoth Cheap Cash Store,

Rising Sun, Indiana.

We offer a large Factory Blanket for a $5 bill. Every person should see this Blanket; Its the Grandest Bargain Ever offered in the United States.

Indigo Blue Yarns 80 cents per pound, best made.
Steel Mix Yarns 75 cents per pound, best made.
Sheep's Gray Yarns 75 cents per pound, best made.
White Yarns 70 cents per pound, best made.
All Fancy colors 6¼ to 7c. per pound, best made.

When buying yarns, see that they are put on the scales and weighed. Some count so many cuts a lb. and beat you out of near one-fourth of a pound.

Steel Mix Jeans, with Blue Warp, 45c,
Any Color Factory Flannels 35 to 40c.

In Addition to the above-named FACTORY goods we have Jeans at from 20 to 33 cents.

Flnnels from 15 to 20 cents,
One Job in a 3-4 Wool Linsey at 22 1-2c.
One Case Canton Flannel at 10c, big bargain.
3 Cases Canton Flannel, 8 1-3 to 12 1-2c.
Over 300 Blankets at $1 75 to $3 50.
Bed Comforts, any price and grade.

SEE OUR $2 25 and $2 75 SADDLE-SEAM BOOTS.
SEE OUR WOMEN'S BUTTON SHOES AT $1 25.

See our Boot and Shoe department when wanting boots and shoes of any kind

Over One Thousand Overcoats to Select From
Over Three Thousand Full Suits to select from.
Ovev Four Thousand Hats to select from.

A Five Thousand Dollar Stock of Millinery to Select from in Shapes, Trimmings, Ribbons and Feathers.

Over One Thousand Bolts of Cashmeres and Dress Goods to select from, and Trimmings to match all.

SAVE YOUR MONEY UP AND COME TO

COLTER'S

Mammoth Cheap Cash Store,

Rising Sun, Ind.

AND YOU WILL RECEIVE ITS VALUE.

LOOK HERE!

when you go to Lawrenceburg, call on

Winegardner

He has a large assortment of

Wall Paper!

And is daily receiving additions to his stock. Call and examine before purchasing.

Inks, Pens and Stationar

constantly on hand.

Headquaters in Lotton House.

LUMBER.

Goe. M. Bedinger & Co.,

Erlanger, - - Ky.

We keep constantly on hand all kinds of Lumber, Laths and Shingles. Also Builder's supplies of all kinds.

—Come and see Us.—

may 9-tf

WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS FOR THE

LIVER

And all Bilious Complaints

Safe to take, being purely vegetable; no griping. Price 25 cts. All Druggists.

INCORPORATED UNDER THE LAWS OF MISSOURI.

CENTRAL MEDICAL & SURGICAL INSTITUTE OF ST. LOUIS, MO.

SUCCESSORS TO DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY. OFFICE & ROOMS, No. 920 LOCUST ST.

CHAS. L. LABARGE, M.D., Pres't & Physician in Charge. NELSON CHESMAN, Treas. & Business Manager.

This Institute has ample facilities and an experienced Faculty. While it succeeds to a large business, which has been established for years, it will aim to extend its medical and surgical practice, giving skillful and scientific treatment to CHRONIC DISEASES of the Head, Spine, Lungs and Air Passages, Heart, Liver, Stomach and Bowels, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Consumption and Asthma. BLOOD IMPURITIES, inherited or caused by impure association, Scrofula, Fever Sores, Ulcers, etc. DEFORMITIES of the Limbs, Spinal Curvature, Wry-Neck, Diseases of the Joints, Piles, Fistula, Rupture, etc. WEAKNESS and wasting diseases in old and young men, also all diseases of the genito-urinary organs. FEMALE irregularities and weaknesses, causing pain in the back or side, etc.

Personal interviews with patients are always preferred. Those unable to visit the Institute will be furnished with blank lists of questions that will aid them in making a full statement of their cases and if not requiring a surgical operation they can be successfully treated by correspondence, and medicines sent by mail or express. To enable us to send proper list of questions applicants should give a brief statement of their trouble.

(The Treasurer of the corporation is of Nelson Chesman & Co., Advertising Agents, and refers to the publisher of this or any other newspaper in the United States or Canada regarding responsibility.)

Consultation at Office or by mail free and invited

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.

TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

VIGOROUS HEALTH FOR MEN

THE PASTILLE CURE FOR NERVOUS DEBILITY. TRADE MARK

TESTED FOR 5 YEARS by use in thousands of cases. Founded on scientific medical principles, it has been growing in favor and reputation while its numerous competitors have invariably failed. The direct application of this remedy to the seat of the disease makes its specific influence felt without delay. The natural functions of the human organism are restored. The animating elements of life which have been wasted are given back. The buoyant energy of the brain and muscular system renders the patient cheerful; he gains strength with rapidity.

NERVOUS DEBILITY, organic weakness, and numerous obscure diseases, baffling the skill of best physicians, result for youthful indiscretion, too free indulgence, and over brain work.

Do not temporise while such enemies lurk in your system. Take a remedy that has cured thousands, and does not interfere with you attention to business or cause any pain or inconvenience.

(Send for a Descriptive Pamphlet giving Anatomical Illustrations, which will convince the most sceptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fitted for the duties of life, same as if never affected. Sent free to any one. Remedy sold ONLY by the)

HARRIS REMEDY CO. MF'G. CHEMISTS.
306½ N. 10th. St. ST. LOUIS, MO.
One Month's treatment $3, two months $5, three months $7

AYER'S Ague Cure

IS WARRANTED to cure all cases of malarial disease, such as Fever and Ague, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Bilious Fever, and Liver Complaint. In case of failure, after due trial, dealers are authorized, by our circular of July 1st, 1882, to refund the money.

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists.

INJECTION SANTINELI

Cures all recent and chronic secret diseases of the Urinary passages in both sexes. Directions in all languages. $1.00 a bottle Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of price secure from observation. Fairmount Chemical Co. Cincinnati, Ohio, U.S.A. Sold by W. F. M'Kim Burlington

FOR SALE.

A full bloodsd Alderney cow—will be fresh in the spring. She is very gentle and a good milker. CY RIDDELL,
Hebron, Ky.

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley.
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U. Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk A. G. DeJarnette, Commonwealths Attorney; W. L. Riddell, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge, S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. Ed Fowler, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday. Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and L. A. Loder fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

Beever—W. M. Rouse, Friday after the third Monday, and

E. E. IGOE,

Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun. Ind.

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.

Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice,
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
38-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

AYER'S Hair Vigor

restores, with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

MR. C. P. BRICHER writes from Kirby, O., July 3, 1882: "Last fall my hair commenced falling out, and in a short time I became nearly bald. I used part of a bottle of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, which stopped the falling of the hair, and started a new growth. I have now a full head of hair growing vigorously, and am convinced that but for the use of your preparation I should have been entirely bald."

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

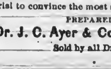
MR. ANGUS FAIRBAIRN, leader of the celebrated "Fairbairn Family" of Scottish Vocalists, writes from Boston, Mass., Feb. 6, 1880: "Ever since my hair began to give silvery evidence of the change which fleeting time procureth, I have used AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and so have been able to maintain an appearance of youthfulness—a matter of considerable consequence to ministers, orators, actors, and in fact every one who lives in the eyes of the public."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm St., Charlestown, Mass., April 14, 1882, says: "Two years ago about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used but one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials to the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM



A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON

Exceeds the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.

COLOGNE

Paynes' Automatic Farm Engines
OF ALL KINDS.—Established 1840.

Our 10-Horse Spark Arresting Threshing Engine has cut 10,000 feet Pine Lumber in 10 hours. Will burn wood 6 feet long, coal, Straw and corn stalks. Send for Price List and Catalogue G. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1460, Corning, N. Y.

NEVER FAILS

FREE!
RELIABLE SELF-CURE.

A favorite prescription of one of the most noted and successful specialists in the U. S. (now retired) for the cure of Nervous Debility, Lost Manhood, Weakness and Decay. Sent in plain sealed envelope free. Druggists can fill it. Address DR. WARD & CO., Louisiana, Mo.

PAYSON'S INDELIBLE INK

Is the BEST. No preparation. Used with any clean pen for marking any fabric. Popular for decorative work on linen. Received Centennial MEDAL & Diploma. Established 50 years. Sold by all Druggists, Stationers & News Ag'ts.

Cut This Out & Return to us with TEN CTS. Silver, & you'll get by mail a GOLDEN BOX OF GOODS that will bring you in MORE MONEY in One Month than anything else in America. Absolute Certainty. Need no capital. M. Young, 173 Greenwich St. N. York.

NAVAL Agents Wanted for Ancient & Modern BATTLES. New and graphic Pictorial History of the great Sea fights of the World. By Medical Director SHIPPEN, U. S. N. Address J. C. McCURDY & CO., 180 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard works of character; great variety; Books & Bibles low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 30 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

Local News.

Its darn, dry, dusty, dirty weather.

Our housekeeping career closes this afternoon.

Buy your Boots and Shoes at Colters, Rising Sun, Indiana.*

The dry weather has had no effect on the crop of English Sparrows.

The pastures in this locality never were dryer than they are now.

Over One Thousand Overcoats to select from at Colter's, Rising Sun, Ind.*

Some of our citizens are hauling water, while many others are just about out.

Michael Clore bought a large lot of hogs and turned in his field of frosted corn.

Aaron Dills, of Cynthiana, was last week visiting his brother, Judge Dilis, of this place.

Buy your fall goods at Colter's, Rising Sun, Indiana, where you can get everything you want in our house. *

Mittie Acra has put on another line between this place and Erlanger, in oppositon to Messrs. Rice and Terrill, and will be known as the "walkers-line."

Mr. John Clarkson and Miss Fannie Rouse, were married on the 12th inst., by Rev. Douglas, at the bride's residence near Union, Ky.

There will be an examination of teachers at this place next Saturday, after which there will be no more examinations until December.

Heavy Saddle-seam Kip Boots at $2, $2 25, $2 50 and $2 75. Women's Kip Shoes at 75c, 90c, $1 and $1 25 at Colter's, Rising Sun, Indiana.*

James Conner drove a fine lot of cattle and hogs through town last Friday. We hear it hinted that they were not bought at dry weather prices.

Several parties from this section visited the melon producers about Bellevue the latter part of last week, and laid in a supply of water melons.

The Walton and Elijah Creek nines met last Saturday on the grounds of the former, where the Elijah Creek boys were defeated by a score of 28 to 27 in a ten inning game.

FOR SALE—Old roller composition—will make a large lot of durable chewing-gum for young ladies—will be sold in quantities to suit the purchasers. Apply at this office.

You can go to Colter's at Rising Sun, Indiana, and find everything, without running around. Clothing, Millinery, Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Cloaks and Raps and everything.*

Last Friday Mr. Ed Fowler received an ugly bite from a little dog while passing through Bucktown. There is about 117 dogs in Burlington, and about six-fifths of them ought to be killed.

Rev. R. E. Kirtley occupied the pulpit in the Baptist church at this place last Sunday, Rev. Dicken preaching at Sand Run where he has been conducting a protracted meeting for several days.

Our harnessmaker, A. M. Acra, took every premium awarded on harness at the Falmouth Fair last week. He knows how to make good and nice work and when he wants to take a premium he is sure to succeed.

Nice tombstones or monuments at the graves of the departed, are marks of respect which should not be neglected. Hurschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., have just what you want. John Beall, of Hebron, is their agent.

We are in the secret and can tell why Cy Crisler has grown so fat since he came to Burlington; but, before we whisper it to you, you must promise never to communicate it. It is this: He has among his aggregation of boarders a pair of Joes whose witticism and monkey antics have made him laugh and increase in proportion till Jumbo is growing jealous of him.

The Kentons didn't shut the Boones out, but let them make 9 runs, Saturday, while they made 23. Had Quick not gotten his finger broken it seems that the Boones would have been just about all the Kentons could have handled successfully, the score being 7 to 2 in favor of the Boones when that misfortune overtook them. The Kentons' eyes had commenced bugging out.

Two Lawrenceburg pugilists, Ketchem and Thompson, while coming down the river the other day in a skiff, above that city, had a disagreement, and landed on the Piatt bar to settle their difficulty, and they engaged in a bloody fight in which bolders and fists were the weapons offensive and defensive, Ketchem punishing his opponent so severely that Pink Rice and a Mr. Saddler, who chance to witness the contest, had to put him in the skiff and take him to Lawrenceburg. They fell out about rowing the skiff, one being in more of a hurry to get to town to take on a cargo of beer than the other.

Charley Ross Found at Last.

Saturday, just before the dinner bells rang, a lady and gentleman arrived at the Boone House. It was soon suspicioned that a wedding of the two was but a few hours in the future, and developments were patiently awaited. So soon as dinner was over the gentleman commenced a reconnoiter and was but a short time in finding the proper authorities to issue the license and adjust the nuptial noose, and in the parlor at the Boone House, Mr. Chas. F. Ross, of Lawrenceburg, Ind., and Miss Aida M. Chisman, of Wilmington, Ind., were made man and wife, by Elder H. J. Foster, under the statute made and provided in such cases.

The races at Latonia are in full blast this week.

Buy your clothing at Colter's, Rising Sun, Indiana.*

Joseph Cowen's youngest daughter is very sick with bilious fever.

We understand that Dr. Murat, of Constance, will be appointed coroner.

Over three thousand Full Suits to select from at Colter's, Rising Sun, Ind.*

Miss Nettie Gardner lost a handsome breast-pin on the street a few days ago.

Mrs. Foster, mother of Mrs. A. E. Crisler, has been seriously ill for several days.

Our Beaver correspondent gives an account of a shooting scrape at Normansville, last week.

Those brag $5 factory Blankets are selling rapid, over 50 pair sold all ready at Colter's, Rising Sun, Ind.*

James Clore is now the happiest man in all Boone, being the father of a bouncing son, Thomas Henry.

There is a Sixty Thousand Dollar stock of winter goods at Colter's Mammoth Cheap Cash Store, Rising Sun.*

Ayer's Ague Cure is strictly a vegetable preparation, harmless, and warranted to cure all malarial disorders.

Mrs. Pritchard, Mrs. Wm. Day's mother, was thrown from a horse near Taylorsport the other day and badly hurt.

Buy your Flannels, Jeans, Yarns and Blankets at Colters, Rising Sun, Indiana. Wool Blankets $4, $5 and $6 per pair.*

The south end of the county was visited by a nice shower, Sunday evening. The frost nipped the corn and tobacco some down there last week.

Dodgers calling a meeting in Burlington, on the first Monday in next month, of all those favoring county aid to turnpikes are being circulated.

A letter from Lewis Weaver, of Sunbright, Tennessee, to a friend here says that the drouth prevails there. Mrs. Weaver had a protracted spell of sickness this summer.

Michael Clore, of Bellevue, lost heavily by the frost last week. It would take about $800 or $1,000 to cover his loss on corn and tobacco. L. P. Arnold's tobacco was also badly damaged by the same frost.

Last week we neglected to mention the fact that William Gaines has charge of the public school at this place. The school house was repaired considerably and the attendance at the school is large.

Mrs. William Brown, of Sousn Fork, attended South Fork church one night last week in appearantly good health and in a few moments after her return home she was a corpse. Heart disease was the cause of her death.

Mr. William Walton proposes to give a grand barbecue dinner on the day of his sale, the 27th inst. He will kill the fatted calf, and all who attend the sale will have a chance to buy, as he has a good list of stuff advertised.

Another piscatorial excursion visited the river last Thursday night. It camped on Laughery Island and had a regular picnic frying and eating fish. William Walton was first in command of the cooking department, and he served things up in good style.

Last week Charles Schramm, of Petersburg, hired, of an Aurora livery stable, a double team of fine steppers which he drove to the Enterprise Fair, where he rented a stall and put them in. That day a negro boy entered one of the stalls and shot the horse, killing it outright. The negro escaped, and having been that day discharged by Riddell & Norris for some meanness, it is suppos- he thought the horse belonged to them.

Brother Riddell, of the Boone county, Ky., Recorder, you are probably aware of the fact that you have lost your wager with us that a Boone county lady would win the handsome tea set at the Aurora fair. Miss Mary Jack, of Warsaw, Gallatin county, Ky., carried the prize Come over and see us, Brother Riddell.—[Aurora Independent.

We claim the wager. We be that the premium would come to this side of the river, and did not confine ourself to Boone county. We are awful dry and will come over pretty soon.

The State Auditor has sent out circulars to the Sheriffs of each county urging them to urge the people to pay their taxes as soon as they possibly can; that the State Treasury is in great need of money to meet the demands of claimants on it; that taxes in many cases can be as easily paid now as later, and that all-taxpayers will promptly respond to the necessity. Our sheriff, therefore, is compelled to insist on the speedy payment of taxes, especially as he is bound in law to make his report of collections the first of October.

Monday N. S. Walton was taking a drove of large cattle to Aurora, and had ferried one boat load across the river, where he left them on the beach, and returned for the other, which commenced a terrible bellowing so soon as loaded. Those on the opposite side of the river answered them, and elevating their tails plunged into the water and met and surrounded the ferry boat mid-river, and for a while it looked like they would swamp her. The boat finally got away from them, and they swam for a while, when they found a place on which they could stand with their heads bearly above the water This position they maintained until surrounded by skiffs and forced to swim ashore. A large crowd of persons witnessed the scene, and expected to see some or all of the cattle drowned.

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Union.

Miss Nannie Burkett is convalescent...... Mrs. Dr. Blanton improves very slowly .... Aunt Lullie Thompson is very ill......Mrs. Lunsford is no better.

The Presbyterian church has a new carpet and new chandaliers.

Elm Hole, the last show for stock water for Union stock is about dry, being so low that hundreds of fish are visible.

Joseph Meyers has lost three calves, death caused by eating dry grass and not having enough water, producing a disease called dry-itch.

J. A. Huey's valuable Blue-bull horse dropped dead in the wagon a few days since. He had been offered $200 for him a short while since.

L. C. Norman was in town Monday.

Hebron.

Water is very scarce in this locality.

There has been but one wedding in this locality in the past six months, but the Dame says they will be a common occurrence in the nigh future.

James Riddell is the proprietor of a china cow and calf. [It seems to us a china cow would be easily broken.—EDS.]

William Sederberg, of St. Louis, was visiting friends here last week.

Legrand Utz had the premium sweet potatoes at the harvest home. They were boss.

Hickey Hayes' cow suit against Yancy Clore was disposed of by a jury here the other day. Hayes got a verdict.

Mike Clore has purchased Jno. Henderson's interest in the mill at this place. In the way of muscle the capital stock is now largely increased.

Waterloo.

The dry weather still continues. The pastures are very brown and parshed, and water scarce. According to statements of the oldest citizens there has not been such a dry spell in this section of county for years.

The corn crop will he very light. Tobacco, fair yield.

Scott Wingate, alias Storks, and James Anderson, have 7 acres, being the best crop of tobacco in this locality, and have housed it all in good condition.

Public school has opened in district No. 6 under the supervision of Prof. Belle, of Rabbit Hash. The school trustees have expended some $75 or $80 improving the school property.

The school in district No. 7 will be taught by Prof. Dunning, of Indiana. Trustees in district No. 24. known as Parker's district, have called upon County Commissioner to locate the school bouse which will be built immediately.

We would like to see the Plattsburg correspondent locate the corporate limits of his town.

Plattsburg

Woolper is almost dry.

Mrs. Alice Walker commenced her school at Woolper, Monday.

H. C. Foster of Laomi, Illinois, spent a few days with relatives here, last week.

Prof. O. Snyder will shoot young ideas at Willoughby this winter.

Billy Rice and force are here this week building the Ashbyfork bridge. He had to send to Michigan for the timbers.

G. C. Graddy, the noted turfman, of old Boone county, made our town a pleasant visit last Monday. Come again, Carter..

Sam Helm, of Bullittsville, is here this week.

Last Thursday we doned our war suit and started for the classic precinct of Sweet Pete in search of Chas. Schramm, but the Bishop had got wind of our coming, and started for the Enterprise Fair early that morning and left Barney Mack to stand the racket—nobody hurt.

Mr. Chas. Rice, formerly of this place, but now of Buffalo, New York, was here a few days ago. Charley is traveling for a wholesale house in that city.

We forgot to mention in our last the advent of a fine daughter at Mr. Younger Johnson's house, week before last.

The Comets and the Garrison Base-ball clubs cross bats next Saturday on the home grounds. Some fine fielding errors are expected.

J. W. Smith's family all have the scarlet fever. One of his little boys has died with it, and the rest of the children are very sick.

Fresh freaks of nature are constantly occuring in our town. Among the latest is a cow owned by Pat Finn that suckles a whole litter of pigs.

There is a kitten at Morgan Tolin's that has six legs and feet, four of them being on the front feet.

J. Frank Grant's oldest daughter goes to Glendale, Ohio, to school this winter.

There is growing on John Voshell's farm just below the store, a horse-weed that measures 26 ft. in length. Let's hear from Craddock.

It never rains much in dry weather.

People go fifty miles to trade at Colter's, Rising Sun, Indiana.*

Colter's, Rising Sun, Ind., is the place to laying your winter goods.*

Rev. C. C. Conner will occupy the pulpit in the Universalist church, this place, on the 4th Sunday, morning and evening. Mornin subject: "For What do We Attend Church?"

Jeans, Flannels, Yarns, & Tweeds.

I opened last week a full line of the above Goods from the well known Manufactures J. Schofield & Son., of Madison, Ind., and invite you to examine and Price before you buy elsewhere.

MEN'S PANTS.

Jeans Pants at $1 and upward.
Cassimere Pants from $2 50 to $4 00.
Moleskin Pants the best for workingmen at $2 50.

MY STOCK OF DRY GOODS

Is replete, Embracing some choice Styles in Fall Prints, Indigo Blue Prints, Brocade Dress Goods, Bed Comforts and Blankets.
Buy the Solar Tip School Shoe for Children.

W. E. PIPER, Burlington, Ky.

We Have

J. SCHOFIELD & SON'S

JEANS, BLANKETS AND YARNS.

THE JEANS IS BLUE WARP, THE PRICE IS

45 Cents.

Those parties that wanted to get a corner on Schofield's Goods are badly disappointed, as they see they can't get 60 cents a yard for the Madison Jeans when we propose to stir matters up a little.

COLTER, Rising Sun, Ind

J. W. KIRKPATRICK & SON,
—BURLINGTON, KY.—
UNDERTAKERS
—AND—
EMBALMERS,

Will furnish nice Hearse any reasonable distance for $10.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
☞Office over Dudley Rouse's Store.☜

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.

Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.

Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence,
Burlington, - - Ky.

L. C. NORMAN. E. L. [illegible]
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW,
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.

Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST,
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.

Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.

Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt atten tion given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

S. W. TOLIN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.

Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. A prompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.

☞Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.

No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

AURORA MARBLE AND GRANITE WORKS,
Aurora. Ind

Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.

I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

INSURE AT HOME
The Farmers' Mutual Fire
INSURANCE COMPANY
Of Boone County

Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.

Its Rates are Lower

Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a
HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE
In keeping their property insured.

EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY
should take a policy at once.

N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.
DIRECTORS.
LEGRAN GAINES, Jeff Utz,
JNO. M. MOODY.

DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS.

FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
SALT BY THE BARREL.

R O U S E.

BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS.
The Best of Flour
PATENT & HIGH GRADE
Always on Hand, and cheaper than the cheapest.

QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE
DUDLEY ROUSE'S.

☞I now have on hand a full Stock of SCHOFIELDS Flannels, Jeans, and Yarns. Call early and make a Purchase.

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEED.
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE.
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.
Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold,
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.
All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE
Petersburg Drug Store,
Where you can find everything in the
Drug line, such as——.
Well call and see and be convinced.
Respectfully, S. C BUCHANAN.

TRADE MARK.

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S
Indian Blood Syrup
Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the
BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.
Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.
☞AGENTS WANTED.☜
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St., New York City. Druggists sell it.

D. CLARK JOHNSON:— This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used n my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. MCCAMC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '183

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300,000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK.
Covington, Kentucky.
DIRECTORS.
James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green,
J. S. Matson, J. H. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H Dills, F. P. Helm,
L. C. Stephens.

The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.

The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank. dec. 20-6m

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.

FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.

mar7-tf23 J. W. Talbott.

UNDERTAKING.

We keep Constantly on Hand all sizes of
Burial Cases and Caskets.
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES GUARANTEED LESS THAN CITY PRICES.
DAVIS BROS., HEBRON, KY.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL, Publishers.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY

HOW WE TRIED TO LICK THE TEACHER.

TOLD AT THE OLD SETTLERS' MEETING.

I wuz a boy o' seventeen, ungainly, dull an' tall,
Ez green ez eny goslin' but I tho't I knew it all.
I went to school at Plano. I chopped up wood an' chored
For Zephaniah Wilkinson to pay him fur my board.

One day Philetus Phinney, another boy in school,
About ez rough an' raw ez I—about ez big a fool—
Jist hinted in a private way, 'twould be a right smart featur'
An' give us lots o' glory, if we'd up an' lick the teacher.
He wouldn't ask no better fun than just to make him climb.
We'd have a long vacation an' a whopper o' a time.
The teacher he wuz sickly—he wus not ez big ez I—
I knew that we could bounce him if we didn't a half but try.
Fur eny one on lookin' at him would a said on sight
Ther' wuzn't eny sand in him an' not a speck o' fight.
His hands they wasn't accustomed much to hangin' on to plows,
To hold corn, to cradlin' wheat, or milkin' twenty cows.
Philetus said he'd use him fur a mop to mop the floor,
An' when he begged an' hollered that we'd hist him out the door.

We told the boys at recess o' the plot that we hed planned;
They said 'f we couldn't down him they'd lend a helpin' hand.
But big Philetus Phinney, he wus tickled ez could be
To think we tho't a snip like that could lick a chap like he;
'F I'd knock the bucket over he'd make the teacher dance—
He'd flop him in the water, and he'd mop it with his pants.

We heard the school-bell ringin', we scrambled in pell-mell;
I run agin' the water-pail, on puppus, an' I fell;
I struck upon a stick o' wood, I badly raked my shin,
The water swoshed upon me, an' it wet me to the skin.

That scrawny little teacher, why! he bounded from his cha'r,
He took me by the trowse's and he held me in the ar',
Then round an' round an' round an' round he whirled me like a top,
An' when I seed a thousand stars he sudden let me drop;
He took me an' he shook me till I tho't that I should die,
He swished me with his ruler till my pants were nearly dry.
While big Philetus Phinney he wuz just too scar'd to laugh,
He let the teacher thrash me till I bellered like a calf,
An' all the other fightin' boys, with white an' frightened looks,
Sot shakin' in the'r very boots an' ras'lin with the'r books;
An' O, how hard they studied—not a feller spoke or stirred—
They didn't dar to whisper or to say a single word.

Whar' is that little teacher that giv' me sich a scar?
He still is peaked lookin'—he's settin over ther'—
An' tho' he's nearly seventy, an' sickly yit, I vow
I'd hate to hev him get those hands o' his'n on me now;
He taught me one great lesson by that floggin' in his school:
That a braggart an' a bully ar' a coward an' a fool.

—From "Away Out West," by Eugene J. Hall.

LOST IN THE WOODS.

Far up in the northern part of the State of Michigan, a peninsula called Keweenaw Point, extends for fifty miles into Lake Superior. Along its western shore runs the main road, from which branch many others, leading to the numerous copper mines situated in this region—among which the Calumet and Hecla, Allouez, Phœnix, Delaware and Schoolcraft are most famous. The eastern shore, being still covered with wild woods, is overgrown with thick underbrush, and intersected here and there by short, swift streams.

During the week, the men of this peninsula are almost all at work under the earth, and the country seems deserted, though many little wooden houses and log huts with shingle roofs dot the region near the mines. But on Sundays men litterally spring up out of the ground, and groups of miners appear everywhere, enjoying the only day they have to see the sunshine, the lake, the trees and the flowers.

Amid the dense forests to the south and east grow quantities of berries and wild small fruits; and on the morning of Friday, July 21, 1882, a merry party of four children started into the woods, expecting to fill their tin pails with blue-berries before many hours. The children were Mary Palson, a girl of thirteen; her younger sister, Margaret Palson; Theodore Lorre, a boy of nine; and his sister, Arminda Lorre, who was but seven years old. They proceeded on their journey in gay spirits and came ere long to the mouth of one of the mines, called "The Wolverine," where the father of the Lorres was employed. Alas, for their day's sport! The father happened to see his children, and, fearful of their getting lost in the dense woods, he bade them go back to their home. All four of the children obeyed his injunction, but on their return journey they mistakenly followed another road than that by which they had come, until they finally discovered that, instead of bringing them nearer home, it was really leading them farther and farther into the forest.

After plodding patiently on for an hour, the boy asked the three girls to sit down and wait while he searched for the right road. But his little sister clung to his hand, preferring to go along with him; and so the children separated in pairs. The Palson sisters chose a path leading to the north, and followed it all day and until they came at last to the bank of a river, where they were found on the evening of the next day, and returned in safety to their home.

But the Lorres? They had not returned when their late companions were brought in, nor had any news been heard of them. Mary and Margaret could only indicate vaguely the locality of the spot in the woods where they had last seen the brother and sister, as they bade them good-by; but several parties immediately started out in search. The father and older brother of the children, in company with friends, had been seeking the missing ones during Saturday, and on Sunday night a party discovered the children's tracks in the soft ground near a river. But they were soon lost in the mud, and the most thorough search in the neighboring woods proved fruitless, while loud and repeated hallos brought no response.

Monday morning came and the children had not been found. But now, large parties of men, sympathizing with the parents' agony, began to search the forest in all directions. Most of these, however, were miners, ignorant of woodcraft, and knowing little of the upper world. and so they discovered no sign of the children, and many even lost their own way, and found the path home with difficulty. On Tuesday, by a generous action of the proprietors, all the employes of the Allouez mine were given permission to share in the search, and large numbers from the Calumet and Red Jacket joined them.

As the evening of this day closed in, a terrible storm arose, and every home in the surrounding country was filled with exclamations of pity for the lost boy and girl who had to face the tempest alone in the wilds. Gradually the men, wearied and almost hopeless, returned with sorrowful faces from the vain search, without having found even a trace of the lost children.

Wednesday and Thursday passed, and still the almost frantic parents had no tidings of their absent ones. But on Friday morning, as a final endeavor, all the men employed in the Calumet and Hecla mines, together with many citizens of Red Jacket, set off for the woods, where they were met by more laborers from the Allouez, Centennial and Wolverine mines; and before noon of that day nearly thirteen hundred men plunged into the forest in search of the lost boy and girl.

It was while this army of searchers was scouring the woods in all directions, beating through the wild shrubs and tangled thickets, and frightening timid birds and animals with their loud "halloo-oo-s," in another part of the forest, a brave nine-year-old boy trudged wearily through the underbrush, carrying his sister upon his back. Both their faces were pale and white with exhaustion, and the little girl's bore the mark of tears. But Theodore Lorre was a plucky lad and had by no means lost heart. He had kept up his courage and cheered his little sister through all the days and nights that they had spent in the woods, and he had even thought out a way of escape, and planned a route which he felt must bring them out of their prison—for the vastness and shadow of a mighty forest can form as strong and gloomy a prison, if you do not know some way out from it, as was ever made by stone walls and iron bars.

As he toiled painfully along on that afternoon, with vision strained to catch some break in the endless rows of trees that stretched in every direction, he kept revolving in his mind a plan which he had made, and was as happy as a lost boy can be when he found, by and by, that the plan was working well. In other words, he had resolved the day before to follow steadily the course of a small stream which they had chanced upon, as he knew that it must flow into a larger stream, and that in turn into a still larger, until at last some one of them would lead him out of the forest! So much his wise head had taught him; and the reason of his joy that afternoon was, that the little stream had just fulfilled his expectation and brought him to the edge of a larger one—in fact, to a river. But, after reaching it, he felt that he could make no effort to follow it that day, for his sister was too weak and tired to walk, and he himself so weary and foot-sore that his knees seemed ready to sink under him.

He saw a fallen tree-trunk near by, and, making a little bed of dry leaves against one side of it, he placed his sister upon it, while he sat down upon the log beside her. And so they rested, while the shadows grew longer and darker among the trees. They spoke but little; but whenever Arminda seemed frightened or ready to cry, Theodore took her hand in his and cheered and soothed her by encouraging words.

"But," you will ask, "how did they live? What had they to eat?"

In order to answer these questions fully, we must retrace their wanderings.

After parting from the Palson sisters (one whole week before they arrived at the resting-place where we have just seen them), Theodore and Arminda wandered on, seeking constantly for for some path or road, until day began to fade. As the darkness closed in upon them, little Arminda could not keep back the tears, and her heart was filled with dread. But Theodore was not easily frightened. "Cheer up, Sis," he said; it'll be just like campin' out—that's all," and he took out his pocket-knife and proceeded to cut some bushes for a bed.

"Mother won't like it and will be dreadfully scared," said Arminda.

"Well, I don't know as I like it any better'n mother," said Theodore. "But I'm not going to be scared."

"Arminda, however, seemed to have something on her mind.

"Did you ever see a bear?" she whispered, as if she feared that Mr. Bruin might even then be in the thicket and overhear what she said. "I saw a picture of one, once," she went on, "and he was eatin' up a great big man. I guess that man was scared. I guess he was."

"Well, I don't let old make-believe pictures scare me," said Theodore.

Nevertheless, Arminda's words recalled to Theodore a certain bear story that a few days before had filled him with delight. It was not quite so pleasant now to think of the great brown bear that, according to the story, had crossed the forest road and frightened a woman almost out of her wits, as she was driving over to the Wolverine mine.

The woods were fast growing dark, and little Arminda clung closer to her brother, till at last they lay down on some soft moss and leaves which Theodore had gathered, and he told his sister to go to sleep. He watched the stars and the moon,—the same moon that was looking down into the door-yard at home—and wished that it could somehow show him the way thither.

Meantime, the little sister was breathing softly; and soon these modern babes in the wood, wearied with the day's travel, were fast asleep.

The morning sunlight was just creeping into the forest when Theodore awoke.

"Halloo!" said he, looking about him in confusion at the strange surroundings.

Little Arminda started, and opened her eyes, too, in a daze. "Why, I slept all night with my dress on! Why, we've runned away!" she exclaimed.

"That's what the folks 'll say, I s'pose," replied her practical brother, jumping up cheerily now that daylight was at hand. "And they'll say we ought to be whipped, too, I guess. But I'd be willin' to be whipped when I get home, if I only could get there. And oh, but aint I hungry?"

"So am I," said Arminda.

"Well, let's have some breakfast, then," suggested Theodore. "There are nice, big berries all 'round here. I see some. Just you wait."

He soon came back with an armful of branches from the heavily laden bushes, and they both devoured an unlawful quantity.

"I guess they'll make us sick, such a lot," said Arminda, in a cheerful tone; "but there's a lot more in the pails; and we musn't lose our pails," she added. "And if we carry 'em home full of berries, then they'll like it better."

"We must pick our pails full," said Theodore, "so that, if we don't find any more, we won't starve." And he proceeded to fill the pails.

"I'm all skeeter-bites!" sobbed Arminda. And the spiteful insects had indeed cruelly wounded the little girl's face and neck and soft, round arms; and Theodore, too, bore many a mark of their sharp stings. "Well, we must hurry and get home," said he, and mother'll cure 'em."

So they set out on their journey, eating the big ripe huckleberries from the bushes as they walked, filling their pails, in case they should come to places where there were no berries, and quenching their thirst at the creeks and small streams which they chanced upon at intervals. This day, too, wore slowly away, and once more they made a rude bed at the spot where darkness overtook them, and slept as best they could. Sunday came and passed. The little ones, walking hand-in-hand through the dense underbrush, could find no clue to guide them out of the wilderness. Yet all day they kept moving on. When they looked up to the tops of the tall trees, they felt lost and lonely; and when they grew tired, the great stillness subdued them, like the height of the trees. Now and then, the chirp of a bird or the crackle of a dead branch made little Arminda shiver and sink her voice to a low whisper.

But that night—the third which they had passed in the woods—they heard another sound far away in the distance.

"O-ho! O-ho-o! O-ho-o-o!"

Theodore recognized his brother's voice and shouted loudly in answer, Arminda joining. They called again and again. But the wind was against them. The sound they had heard grew fainter—their brother was evidently moving away. At last only a little echo answered their cry, and then the great woods seemed more silent than ever.

The next day, while they were walking along, Theodore thought he heard a call, and they stopped to listen. "'Twas over yonder," said the boy. "You wait here a minute, and I'll go and see if I can get a sight of 'em." He rushed through the brake a few rods, shouting and calling, and at last thought he saw a man moving among the trees in the dim distance. But the figure soon faded from sight, and, as Theodore turned to go back to his sister, he found that, in his eagerness, he had gone much farther away from her than he supposed. He called and called, but got no answer. He looked about him, faltered and stopped short. How far he had run he could not tell, and the way back to his little sister was lost completely in the bewildering sameness of the forest. He plunged into the bushes, first in one direction, then in another, but seemed to get no nearer to the spot he had left. He leaned at last against a tree, dashed his fist across his eyes, and with a great gulp cried hoarsely, "I have lost her!"

But he would not give up; and he set to work to find the path he had taken through the thicket after leaving her. While seeking this, he caught sight of a fluttering bit of rag on a bush a few rods away. It flashed upon Theodore that here was a guide; these bits of calico belonged to Arminda's dress, and he had only to follow their lead to find his sister. He took the poor little rags tenderly from the bushes, and when at last he did find his sister, the thrifty little soul insisted on putting them, with other pieces that she had preserved, in her own pocket, "as Mother would need them when she mended the dress."

In the early dawn of the next morning Theodore leaned suddenly from the bed of leaves where he was lying, and looked wildly about him in every direction He had heard it again, that far-off "O-ho-o! O-ho-o-o!" And what was that, now up, now down, dancing in and out among the dark trees? Could it be a light? Could it be the light of his father's lantern? Yes, it was! As the daylight grew he could distinctly see his father with a lantern in the distance. But all his frantic shouts failed to reach the searcher's ear, and, in his terror at losing his sister the day before, Theodore had resolved that nothing should tempt him to leave her again. And this determination he kept now, since he preferred to starve in the terrible woods rather than save his life by deserting her.

In the evening of the next day came the storm. The stillness of the forest began to be broken by the stirring and rustling of leaves, and then by long sighs of the wind, that deepened into a groaning and grumbling. Every moment the sky grew blacker, and down among the shadows of the great trees night had already come.

It found the two children at the foot of a pine tree, near which (and, indeed, half-covered by the boughs of the pine) lay a fallen trunk. Theodore had chosen this as the best place he could find in which to meet the storm; and on the lee side of the fallen trunk he had made a sort of rude tent, or covering, of loose brush that he had gathered, weaving together the crooked branches that they might not blow away. The poor little shelter was ready none too soon; for by this time the wind was tearing madly through the forest, bending and twisting the trees, and hurling to the ground small branches and twigs thick with leaves. Just as heavy drops of rain began to fall, little Arminda crept into the rude "house" which Theodore had made for her, and drew close to the side of the huge log, which lay between her and the wind. The "house" was not large enough to hold Theodore, too, and so he made his bed upon a stone just outside. Down came the rain, while the thunder drew nearer and nearer, till the forest seemed one vast crash and roar. Through the dark trees the children saw the lightning darting and dancing over the sky. Arminda sobbed and trembled; but Theodore comforted her by telling her not to be frightened, "for he was there with her." Perhaps even his stout little heart would have quailed had he not been sustained by his pride in his "house."

"What's goin' to hurt us here?" he shouted, proudly, amid the tumult of sound. "I like to be out in the rain."

"I like to get wet, too," Arminda answered, weakly. "It makes my skeeter-bites feel good."

The lightning by degrees grew fainter and the thunder farther away; but all night long the wind and rain kept on together. The children clung to each other and whispered that they were not afraid.

Morning came at last, but still the tempest raged. Theodore looked ruefully about him when he arose, and resorted immediately for comfort to the pail of berries he had wisely sheltered. "I'm getting sick of this," he remarked to Arminda. "We must get home today."

But alas for such hopes! The whole day was spent in patient but fruitless plodding over the wet leaves, with the rain still falling, and that night they had to seek their rest upon a huge, sloping stone under the projecting boughs of a thick-leaved tree—since that was the driest bed that they could find.

By this time, you may be sure, they were in a sorry plight. Their hands and heads fairly ached from the bites of swarming mosquitoes; they were scratched and bruised by their scrambles through the tangle of the underbrush; and though they managed to keep their pails filled with berries, they were becoming very hungry for some more satisfying food. Arminda was now too foot-sore to walk more than a few steps at a time, and Theodore had to carry her. Their clothes had become so soaked that they were a heavy burden; even Theodore was too weary to tramp very far in a day; and poor little Arminda was almost sick with fatigue and hunger.

On the next day, however, they came upon a brook and began to follow it as Theodore had planned, and made what progress they could. The wind had died down, and, save for the "drip, drip" of the drenched trees, the great storm was over. It left the little wanderers pitiably weak and sore, but still brave and hopeful, and they kept on their way along the bank of the brook, until, in the afternoon of Friday, they reached, as we have seen, the edge of the larger stream. Content with this triumph of his new plan, Theodore prepared the little couch of leaves for his sister to rest upon, as already described, and sat down on the log beside her. And when she dropped asleep from weariness, he began to wonder how long it would take them to get home by following the river shore, and whether his poor little sister would have strength to stand the journey, or he to carry her.

But a speedier deliverance was even then at hand. It was on that day that the great woods re-echoed in all directions with the calls and shouts of thirteen hundred men; yet none of their loud halloos had reached Theodore, as he sat upon the log that afternoon, all unconscious that he and his sister were the objects of such a great expedition. Indeed, it was late in the day, and the army had really failed like the other smaller searching parties, having passed beyond or far to the side of the spot where the children were now resting; and yet it had not failed either, as you shall see. It so happened that four men belonging to the searching regiment lagged behind their companions, and, failing to catch up with them, went straying hither and thither, forgetting the children entirely in their desire to rejoin their fellows. But being miners, and having little knowledge of woodcraft, they soon found themselves hopelessly bewildered, and had to confess that, instead of finding the lost children, they were in the unpleasant predicament of being themselves lost in the woods.

It can not be said that, considering how much older they were, they bore this discovery with any better courage than the children had shown. But all they could do was to keep up a constant halloo, in the hope that some of the returning parties would hear them. This, therefore, they set about doing as lustily as possible, but for a long time without reply. At last, however, as they stood silent, listening after one of their loud calls, one of the men said: "Hark! What was that?" Faint and weak through the far distance came an answering "Halloo—oo!" They moved over in the direction whence it came and again repeated their call, and stopped to listen. Again it was answered, more clearly this time, but on the instant one of the men said, breathlessly: "That is a boy's voice!"

They ran forward quickly, and before long came in sight of the boy himself, and one of the party shouted to him: "Who are you?"

"I'm Theodore Lorre," he answered.

"Where do you live?"

"At Allouez."

"Is there any one with you?"

"Yes, my little sister."

Imagine the surprise and joy with which the men discovered that they had at last found those for whom all were seeking. Ragged, foot-sore, bruised, and exhausted, the children still showed that they had not lost their courage, and the men, overjoyed with their success,—for few had hoped after so many days to find the brother and sister alive—lifted them on their shoulders and carried them till dark, when the encamped for the night on the bank of the stream near which the little ones had been found.

Early Saturday morning, they prepared to continue their way, and the whole party—miners as well as children—being lost, a consultation was held about the direction to be pursued. The miners said that it would be useless to follow the river, because it flowed into Lake Superior, and would lead them farther and farther from home; but the boy stoutly maintained that all the water on that side of Keweenaw Point flowed into Torch Lake. At last, persuaded by his entreaties, and aware of their own ignorance of the locality the men yielded, and slowly forced a path along the bank down the stream, a course which to their great delight, brought them ere long to a region where they recognized several land marks, and whence they soon and easily made their way to Calumet.

Meantime, in the town, parties were sadly preparing to resume the apparently hopeless search, when the news flew from mouth to mouth that the lost ones had been found. At first, the report was not believed; but before nightfall the miners, carrying the children on their shoulders came in sight, and the crowd burst into shouts and cheers of joy. A gentleman took the little ones into his buggy, and drove along the street toward their home while the crowd thronged about the horse and vehicle clamoring for a sight of the children, who had to be constantly held up to their view and saluted with cheers. A friend had run forward to inform the almost frenzied parents, who wept with joy on hearing the news; and in a few minutes the father and mother clasped to their hearts the lost ones whom they had begun to mourn as dead.

Theodore's boots could be taken off only by cutting them away from his feet with a knife; and as the poor boy had had his leg broken hardly a year before, it seemed marvelous that he could have endured all he did. Both children were terribly foot-sore, and several days passed before the brave lad could leave his bed. For eight long days and nights he had wandered with his little sister, refusing, even to save his life, to leave her a moment lest she should be hopelessly lost. And during the last two days, hardly able to drag himself along, he carried her on his back. He had shown through all that had happened a courage and endurance that any man might envy, and it is good to know that, in the days following his return, hundreds of friends and neighbors visited the family, and in many ways testified their appreciation of the children's bravery.

The devotion and courage shown by this boy of nine are truly remarkable and worthy of all praise. And when we remember that his own wise little head had really discovered a way out of the woods before he was found by the miners, and that he in fact guided them out afterward by persuading them to follow the route he had determined upon, we could not blame the sturdy lad for hesitating to admit that he was really lost in the woods.—St. Nicholas.

The Highest of Waterfalls.

Some years ago Niagara was supposed to be the most magnificent waterfall in the world, but recent African explorers discovered that the falls on the river Zambesi, known as the Victoria, are even more wonderful than the famous American waterfall. And now comes the news that in Washington Territory there exists what is, in some respects, the most marvelous cataract in the world. It is on the Cowlitz river, and the fall is fully 1,500 feet high. It has not yet been fully explored. There is also a waterfall in Wyoming Territory 475 feet high, which is said to be a very wonderful cataract of its kind. The remarkable newness of our country is shown by the fact that these great natural curiosities have not as yet been thoroughly examined by white men.—Demorest's Monthly.

—Several persons tried to enter a New Jersey house to put out a fire, but a sagacious Newfoundland dog kept them at bay until the house was destroyed.—N. Y. Sun.

A SERVANT girl fell on a bracket,
Her skull, she did nearly crack it,
St. Jacobs Oil applying,
Saved her from dying—
It proved to be "just the racket."

A steamboat Captain from Goshen,
Was hurt by a boiler explosion,
On the pains in his hip,
St. Jacobs Oil got the grip,
He calls it the all-healing lotion.

"A SCENE of bare beauty," is the way a Rawlins (N. C.) paper puts it in giving a description of a ball.

Advice to Consumptives.

On the appearance of the first symptoms—as general debility, loss of appetite, pallor, chilly sensations, followed by night-sweats and cough—prompt measures for relief should be taken. Consumption is scrofulous disease of the lungs;—therefore use the great anti-scrofula, or blood-purifier and strength-restorer,—Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." Superior to Cod liver oil as a nutritive, and unsurpassed as a pectoral. For weak lungs, spitting of blood, and kindred affections, it has no equal. Sold by druggists the world over. For Dr. Pierce's pamphlet on Consumption, send two stamps to WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASS'TION, Buffalo, N. Y.

In the dim dictionary of Wall street there are several such words as fail.

Fits, Fits, Fits,

Successfully treated by World's Dispensary Medical Association. Address, with stamp for pamphlet, Buffalo, N. Y.

NERVOUSNESS, debility and exhausted vitality cured by using Brown's Iron Bitters.

Cancers and Other Tumors

Are treated with unusual success by World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y. Send stamp for pamphlet.

A GIRL who runs away to sea has a naughtygal inclination.—The Judge.

OWENTON, KY.—Dr. I. F. Mundy says: "I have found Brown's Iron Bitters one of the best tonics, and prescribe it frequently."

BOSTON should make Sullivan professor of the Howness of the Forceful.

BALTIMORE, MD.—Dr. Irwin H. Elderidge says: "I would recommend a trial of Brown's Iron Bitters in all cases of anæmic debility or when a tonic or appetizer is indicated."

"PA, rogues always fall out at night." "At night? How do you know that?" "Because, pa, when rogues fall out, honest men get their dews."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

HAY-FEVER. I have been a Hay-Fever sufferer for three years; have often heard Ely's Cream Balm spoken of in the highest terms. I used it, and with the most wonderful success. T. S. GEER, Syracuse, N.Y.

VESUVIUS threatens another "alarming eruption." It is high time for Vesuvius to be vaccinated.—Pittsburgh Telegraph.

HAY-FEVER. I can recommend Ely's Cream Balm to all Hay-Fever sufferers, it is, in my opinion, a sure cure. I was afflicted for 25 years, and never before found sure relief. W. H. HASKINS, Marshfield, Vt.

THE worst punishment you can inflict on a Chinaman who has committed a crime is to exqueues him.—Lowell Courier.

YOU would use St Patrick's Salve if you knew the good 'twould do you.

REDDING'S Russia Salve is an invaluable dressing for inflamed and sore joints Price 25c.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, September 11, 1883.

LIVE STOCK—Cattle—common	$2 00	@ 3 00
Choice butchers	4 25	@ 4 75
HOGS—Common	4 00	@ 4 75
Good packers	4 30	@ 5 15
SHEEP	3 75	@ 4 50
FLOUR—Family	5 25	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—Long berry red	1 08	@
No. 2 red	1 03¼	@ 1 04
Corn—No. 2 mixed	53	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed	28¼	@ 28¾
Rye—No. 2	56	@ 57
HAY—Timothy No. 1	11 00	@
HEMP—Double dressed	8½	@
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	12 75	@13 50
Lard—Current make	8-15	@ 8-17½
BUTTER—Fancy Dairy	17	@ 18
Prime Creamery	20	@ 23
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per bar. from store	1 25	@ 1 30
Apples, prime, per barrel	2 50	@ 3 00
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 40	@ 5 85
Good to choice	4 50	@ 7 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 spring	1 08	@
No. 2 red	1 14¼	@ 1 14¾
Corn—No. 2 mixed—new	63¼	@
Oats—mixed	32½	@ 36
PORK—Mess	13 50	@13 75
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@ 4 25
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 03½	@
Corn—No. 2	51¾	@
Oats—No. 2	27¾	@
Rye	60	@
PORK—Mess	11 25	@11 30
LARD—Steam	8-17½	@ 8-20
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 25	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat-No. 2 red	1 11½	@ 1 11¾
Corn—mixed	60	@ 60½
Oats—mixed	33	@ 35
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	14 50	@
Lard—Refined	10¼	@
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—A No. 1	$4 50	@ 4 75
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red, new	1 02	@
Corn—mixed	49	@
Oats—mixed	30	@
PORK—MESS	13 00	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 red, new	$1 03	@
CORN—mixed	49¼	@
OATS—mixed	27	@
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	2 75	@ 4 50

ST JACOBS OIL

[1]

THE GREAT
GERMAN REMEDY
FOR PAIN.
CURES
Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica
Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache,
Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises,
Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites,
And All Other BODILY PAINS and ACHES.
Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle. Directions in 11 Languages.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO.,
(Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer

Is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which Sulphur, Sugar of Lead and Nitrate of Silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. JOHN D. PARK & SONS, Wholesale Agents, Cincinnati, Ohio, and C. N. CRITTENTON, New York.

Stinging, irritation, all Kidney and Bladder Complaints, cured by "Buchu-Paiba." $1.

IF afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 25c.

Wells' "Rough on Corns." 15c. Ask for it. Complete, permanent cure. Corns, bunions.

LADIES, buy for your husbands, brothers and sons Celluloid Collars and Cuffs and save trouble in washing.

Don't Die in the House. "Rough on Rats," clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs. 15c.

Glenn's Sulphur Soap

Is infallible when the scalp is annoyed with dandruff. Hill's Hair Dye, black or brown, 50c.

Flies, roaches, ants, bed-bugs, rats, mice, crows, cleared out by "Rough on Rats." 15c.

ONE pair of boots or shoes saved every year by using Lyon's Patent Metallic Heel Stiffeners.

Skinny Men. "Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia.

TWELVE HOURS AFTER.

MR. HENRY BARNES, the Tea and Coffee Merchant, 80 Houston Street, New Haven, Conn., writes on May 16, 1883: "It is with feeling of gratitude, and a desire to benefit my fellow man that I write you these few lines as testimony to the value of the greatest of all medicines. Eight years have I been a sufferer from kidney disorder and inflammation of the bladder. Sometimes when passing water the pains were something terrible, a scalding, burning sensation, with retention of urine, with sharp pains in my side, loins, and back, extending clear to the back of my head, tended to make life intolerable. I have been treated by a number of our best physicians, and have used any number of proprietary medicines, all to no avail, obtaining no relief. How long I would have continued in this way I do not know, in fact I despaired of getting relief, until a neighbor, who had been very much benefited by the use of Hunt's Remedy, advised me to try it; and, although I had no faith that it would reach my case, yet as he spoke so highly of its great merits I decided to give it a trial, and its use has been attended with the very best possible results. Twelve hours after taking the first dose I experienced relief. I continued on in its use until I had used five bottles, when all the pains had vanished, my otherwise good health returned, and I am free from all pains, and am a well man. I am confident my cure has resulted from the use of Hunt's Remedy, and that alone.

"What it has done for me I am positive it will do for others. You are at liberty to use my name or this letter in any manner you see fit."

HURT BY A FALL.

When only a boy some thirteen years old I was hurt quite badly by a fall, and severely injured my back and kidneys, and was doctored by our best physicians, and tried many remedies, and they all failed, until Hunt's Remedy was recommended to me by friends that had used it here in Manchester with the greatest success. We purchased a bottle from Z. Foster Campbell's drug store, and found that I improved very rapidly; was relieved of the pains in back, and after using several bottles found that I was completely cured, and I can not over-estimate the good Hunt's Remedy has done me, and can most heartily recommend it to those troubled with kidney complaint; and you can use this letter as you choose,

Respectfully yours,
ALONZO P. MARSHALL
95 Orange St., Manchester, N. H., May 7, 1883.

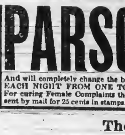
HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED

STOMACH
BITTERS

In fever and ague districts, in tropical and other regions visited by epidemics, and indeed in all localities where the conditions are unfavorable to health, this famous vegetable invigorant and alterative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has been found a potent safeguard even to feeble constitutions and fragile frames, while as a cure for indigestion, biliousness and kindred complaints, it is without a rival.

For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

CATARRH ELY'S CREAM BALM



HAY-FEVER

when applied by the finger into the nostrils, will be absorbed, effectually cleansing the head of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membrane of the nasal passages from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores taste and smell. A few applications relieve. A thorough treatment will positively cure. Agreeable to use. Send for circular. Price 50 cents by mail or at druggists. Ely Brothers, Druggists, Owego, N.Y.

CARPETS, RUGS, CURTAINS, WINDOW SHADES. Complete assortment of the newest, richest and most beautiful Carpets produced by the best manufacturers in America. Correspondence solicited. Samples and prices by mail. T. M. SNOWDON & CO., 107 W. Fourth Street, Cincinnati, O.

CHICAGO SCALE CO.
151 South Jefferson Street, Chicago, Ill.
2-Ton Wagon Scale, $40; 4-Ton $60; "Little Detective," $3. Send for Price List

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co. Augusta, Me.

A Dangerous Case.

• • • ROCHESTER, June 1, 1882.—"Ten Years ago I was attacked with the most intense and deathly pains in my back and —Kidneys.

"Extending to the end of my toes and to my brain!

"Which made me delirious!

"From agony.

"It took three men to hold me on my bed at times!

"The doctors tried in vain to relieve me. But to no purpose.

"Morphine and other opiates

"Had no effect!

"After two months I was given up to die!

"When my wife heard a neighbor tell what Hop Bitters had done for her, she at once got and gave me some. The first dose eased my brain and seemed to go hunting through my system for the pain.

"The second dose eased me so much that I slept two hours, something I had not done for two months. Before I had used five bottles, I was well and at work, as hard as any man could, for over three weeks; but I worked too hard for my strength, and taking a hard cold, I was taken with the most acute and painful rheumatism all through my system that was ever known. I called the doctors again, and after several weeks, they left me a cripple on crutches for life, as they said. I met a friend and told him my case, and he said Hop Bitters had cured him and would cure me. I poohed at him, but he was so earnest I was induced to use them again. In less than four weeks I threw away my crutches and went to work lightly and kept on using the bitters for five weeks, until I became as well as any man living, and have been so for six years since. It also cured my wife, who had been so for years; and has kept her and my children well and hearty with from two to three bottles per year. There is no need to be sick at all if these bitters are used.

J. J. BERK, Ex-Supervisor.

"That poor invalid wife!

"Sister!

"Mother!

"Or Daughter!

"Can be made the picture of health with a few bottles of Hop Bitters!

"Will you let them suffer?"

PORTABLE & STATIONARY
Steam Engines
and STEAM BOILERS, smaller sizes adapted to
Farm and Plantation Use!
$200 We make six sizes, capacity from 3 to 50,000 ft. per day, with one saw, for our No. 1 Plantation Saw Mill. LANE BODLEY CO., John and Water Sts., Cincinnati, Ohio. [Illustrated catalogue free.]

MILL STONES,
Under & Upper Runner Mills
J. W. Pyne's Purifier,
Dufour & Co's Bolting Cloth,
BELTING,
SHAFTING, PULLEYS and GEARING,
Wheat Cleaning Machinery of all makes.
We can furnish anything needed by millers. Send for descriptive catalogue. Address plainly, THOS. BRADFORD & CO., 174, 176 and 178 W Second St., Cincinnati, O.

WILKINSON RUBBER TARGET GUN. Graves' Patent. The genuine and best. Shoots arrows, bullets and shot. Sends bullets 1,000 feet. Don't kick. Shoots straight. Gun, with 5 steel pointed arrows, shot and bullet attachment, delivered free on receipt of one dollar. Send for price list of Scroll Saws, Bicycles, Fishing Tackle, Hammocks, &c. THE JOHN WILKINSON CO., 78, 80 and 82 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

25 PISO'S CURE FOR 100
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good.
Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION.

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE to sell the best Family Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit a pair of stockings with HEEL and TOE complete in twenty minutes. It will also knit a great variety of fancy-work for which there is always a ready market. Send for circular and terms to the Twombly Knitting Machine Co., 163 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

AGENTS Coin Money by selling Dr. Chase's Family Physician and Second Receipt Book, $2. Address A. W. HAMILTON & CO., Ann Arbor, Mich.

80 Sheets fine writing paper in Blotter Tablet, with calendar, 25 cts., by mail. Agents wanted. Economy Printing Co., Newburyport, Mass.

OPIUM and WHISKY HABITS cured at home without pain. Book of particulars sent free. B. M. WOOLLEY, M. D., Atlanta, Ga.

HAIR Wholesale and retail. Send for price-list. Goods sent C. O. D. Wigs made to order. E. BURNHAM, 71 State Street, Chicago.

Good Pay for Agents. $100 to $200 per mo. made selling our fine Books & Bibles. Write to J. C. McCurdy & Co., Cincinnati, O.

A FORTUNE. Sample for stamp. Lady or gent $10 per day. Smith & Rhine, E. Saginaw, Mich.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

Sure Cure for Epilepsy or Fits in 24 hours. Free to poor. Dr. KRUSE, 2844 Arsenal St., St. Louis, Mo.

RUBBER STAMPS, with your name 50 cents; scrap pictures, 5c a sheet. Cards, Type, Etc. Agents Wanted. List free. THALMAN M'F'G Co., Baltimore, Md.

$250 A MONTH. Agents Wanted. 90 best selling articles in the world. 1 sample FREE. Address JAY BRONSON, DETROIT, MICH.

$65 A MONTH and BOARD for three live Young Men or Ladies, in each county. Address P. W. ZIEGLER & Co., Philadelphia.

EDUCATIONAL.

Young Men learn TELEGRAPHY here and we will give you a situation. Circulars free. VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS
MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD
And will completely change the blood in the entire system in three months. Any person who will take ONE PILL EACH NIGHT FROM ONE TO TWELVE WEEKS, may be restored to sound health, if such a thing be possible. For curing Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. Physicians use them in their practice. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. Send for pamphlet. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

The Peculiar Old Mystery!

It was one of the peculiarities of the old-fashioned Doctors that they never would tell patients what they were prescribing for them. They said it would do the patients no good to know, and that it would only be gratifying a foolish curiosity. In order to keep patients from knowing, they would write the prescriptions in dog-Latin, so that most patients could not read them. All that sort of thing is now over. The patient wants to know what he takes. He is weak, and wants to be strong, or he is dyspeptic, and wants to digest well. Or he has a troublesome liver which he wants to put to rights. So he takes Brown's Iron Bitters about which there is no mystery at all. This is the best preparation of iron in the world, in combination with gentle yet efficient tonics. It gives strength. It builds up enfeebled systems. It enriches impoverished blood. It removes feminine weaknesses. It casts out debility. It is what YOU want, and your druggist has it.

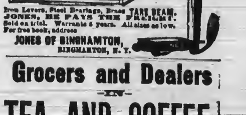
2

SOMETHING
EVERY LADY
OUGHT TO KNOW.

There exists a means of securing a soft and brilliant Complexion, no matter how poor it may naturally be. Hagan's Magnolia Balm is a delicate and harmless article, which instantly removes Freckles, Tan, Redness, Roughness, Eruptions, Vulgar Flushings, etc., etc. So delicate and natural are its effects that its use is not suspected by anybody.

No lady has the right to present a disfigured face in society when the Magnolia Balm is sold by all druggists for 75 cents.

$60. 5-TON



Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass TARE BEAM. JONES, HE PAYS THE FREIGHT. Sold on trial. Warrants 5 years. All sizes as low. For free book, address
JONES OF BINGHAMTON,
BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

Grocers and Dealers
-IN-
TEA AND COFFEE.
Send for Wholesale Price List of our goods. Lowest possible prices. GREAT LONDON TEA CO., 801 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

PILES "Anakesis" gives instant relief, and is an infallible cure for Piles. Price $1 from druggists, or sent prepaid by mail. Samples free. Ad. "ANAKESIS," Makers, Box 2416, New York.

Wanted Agents Male and female for new book, "Daughters of America." Low in price. 50c. will secure an outfit and agency. Address FORSHEE & McMAKIN, CINCINNATI, O.

AGENTS make money selling our Family Medicines: no capital required STANDARD CURE CO., 197 Pearl St., NEW YORK.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

A. N. K.—E. 943

GOLD, SILVER AND BRONZE PAINT, 15 cents per Package, by mail. J. B. MADDOX, ATHENS, GA., P. O. Box 33.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KY., WEDNESDAY, SEPTEMBER 26, 1883. NUMBER 48.

SOLITUDE.

Laugh, and the world laughs with you;
Weep, and you weep alone.
For the sad old earth must borrow its mirth,
But has trouble enough of its own.
Sing, and the hills will answer;
Sigh, it is lost on the air,
The echoes bound to a joyful sound,
But shrink from voicing care.

Rejoice, and men will seek you;
Grieve, and they turn and go;
They want full measure of all your pleasure,
But they do not heed your woe.
Be glad, and your friends are many;
Be sad, and you lose them all,
There are none to decline your nectared wine,
But alone you must drink life's gall.

Feast, and your halls are crowded;
Fast, and the world goes by;
Succeed and give, for it helps you live,
But no man can help you die.
There is room in the halls of pleasure
For a large and lordly train,
But one by one we must all fly on
Through the narrow aisle of pain.

—Ella Wheeler.

A FLY PAPER.

"I think flies is sociable, I do. For my part, I'm glad to be back where they be. Nobody never need to excuse their flies to me. If they'd a been where there wa'n't no flies, as I have, and where the poor critters was jest a-hunted and a-gone-at from morning till night, they'd never lift their hands agin 'em as long as they drawed the breath o' life."

Miss Semanthy Simmons' remark seemed to be understood by her audience, notwithstanding the fact that she had her "twister," two side-combs and some hair-pins in her mouth. Semanthy was spending the afternoon at a neighbor's, her first call since her return from the city, and, for fear that some one would call to detain her, had "jest taken her hands out o' the dish-water, put on a clean apron and scooted." This was the lady's apology for not having dressed her hair at home.

"Yes, I do mean to say that flies don't have no privileges where I've been. Cousin Gusty will as good as faint away if she catches sight o' one. They've got blinds and shutters and screens and lace curtings and swing doors, and every hired gal has a feather duster three yards long, and sticks with frizzled paper stuck to 'em, and little pop-guns that they put sneezing powder into and blow at 'em, and I raly believe that if a hundred or two of them unfortinit critters should git in unbeknownst to 'em they'd order out the militia. Oh, it's easy to say: 'Oh, Semanthy!' but if you'had underwent what I have from their thrashing and shooing and exterminating the air, I don't know what you'd do. You know in this house, if anybody knows, that I don't git much chance to sew when I'm to hum, and so sez I to myself: 'I'll jest take my crazy bed-quilt to Cousin Gusty's, and as they never will let me wash dishes or putter round any, why, it stands to reason I can git a lot done.' Did I? No, I didn't. That quilt is crazier than when I took it away; for, what with jumping up every other minute to see if I couldn't get a crack o' light so that I could tell yaller from green, and blue from cinnament brown, the hull thing is in that state that 'twould make a lunatic of anybody who'd ever try to git it together.

"Could I have a shetter open if I was a mind to? Didn't I tell you that I couldn't? My cousin Gusty is a pious woman, and I ain't going ter say to the contrary, but I believe she'd ruther I'd 'a broke five out of ten of the commandments than to took out one o' her screens. You don't think it speaks very well for her piety? Well, I don't know. Folks is about as they're made, I've diskivered, in New York as well as in Valrmount. You know in this house, too, that I never set my heart on flimmydiddles, but I didn't skasely know myself in regards to that crazy quilt, I did hanker so to git it along. Why I've craned my neck till I've had the neuralagy for a week trying to tell which was tuther of my silks. I've got up in a cheer and lit the gas contrivance that hung down from the wall—lor sakes! 'twould go off like a pistol every time, and scare me een-a'most out o' my wits—and there I'd stand, and jab at the eye o' my needle for all the world as if I was spearing for eels, like a pesky fool, till my knees would tremble as if I had the ager. Why didn't I say that I'd bring work with me and wanted to do it? So I did more'n a hundred times. As quick as I'd say that, cousin'd say: 'Come down to the sewing-room, Cousin Semanthy, and let the seamstress help you.' 'Gracious sakes! I aint a-fishing round for help,' sez I; I ain't no cripple. The only thing that's lacking, Cousin Gusty, is light enough to see to thread my needle. If I was a owl I could do it in the dark, but being nothing but a poor human bat, I ain't able to see through all them thicknesses that's up to my winder.'

"What would she say? Oh, she'd smile kinder amused like, and that would be the eend of it. One day I jest spoke my mind about them screens and things. I'd clum up to the gas, and I'd clum up to the winder, and I'd squinted and twisted my neck till I was as full of cricks and kinks as a egg is o' meat. I hadn't been raly riled till then, and then my dander was clean up. Sez I, 'Cousin Gusty, whatever is the matter with you about flies?' 'About flies,' said she; 'I don't understand you, Semanthy.' 'Wa'al,' said I, 'I should think that anybody that had both cold and biling water let into 'em through the wall, and wash-tubs and rubbing-boards ready to their hands, wouldn't be quite so pertikeler about siling their things. Why, sez I, 'I could clear-starch them curtings and all the rest of the flummery in this room in no time. For pity's sake,' soz I, 'Cousin Gusty, do let me cast aside some of that superflumsiness of kiverlids, and allow the light o' day to shine in upon my crazy quilt, and upon your Cousin Semanthy, who is nigh about as crazy as her spread.' You don't see how she could get around that? Wa'al, I nuther. When my dander is once riz, then my mouth is more like a mill-stream afore it's dammed than anything I can compare it to. There ain't never no lack of oratorical powers when I'm once swelled up with my subject. What did Gusty say? Oh, she spoke about the dellkit paper on the wall, and about the frisco overhead—whether she meant San-frisco or not I don't know—and poked the sewing-room and seamstress under my nose agin, and that's all that amounted to. And what do you think? That woman actooally told me that she never had her lace curtings, or her bureau frills, or her counterpins, or her shammies, done up to hum. With all that water pouring into the house, and all the hired help standin' round, and soap by the box, and clear-starch by the hundred-weight! That took the stiffening out o' me, and I jest lifted up my hands, and een-a'most went.

"Cousin Gusty do anything? Wa'al, I shouldn't call it doing anything: she plays on the pianner, and has company, and goes a-visiting, and tries on her dresses, and sees that the winders are all stopped up tight. That's the most I ever see her do. I had to larf one day, though I don't suppose I orter, but we are all weak in the sperret sometimes, specially when we've had our noses on the grin'stun a spell. Wa'al, I was a-coming along through the entryway on the second story, and I heard Cousin Gusty say to the black boy who opens the door for folks an' perades round from morning till night with a silver sarcer in his hand, that she'd jest seen a fly in the droring-room—that's the room that's got everything in it; and nothing that's good for anything. I'd ruther have this setting-room, with that sofy and them rocking-cheers with the quilted backs, and a few flies sprinkled round, than all the truck that Gusty's got. She can talk about her 'tarjays' and her 'uppernays,' and her 'mokay' and her 'turkay' carpets; but give me a good ingrain that I can turn and beat myself, and I won't ask no odds of nobody. Oh, yes, what did I larf about? Wa'al, as I was saying, Cousin Gusty got wind of a fly, and sot the darky onto him. I didn't tell you, but Gusty was fixing for Saratogy all the time I was there, and there hadn't been time yet to swathe up the statutes. You don't know what I mean? Wa'al, you wouln't want to know; but statutes are mostly men and women that are cut off at the waist, and sot round top o' things. Who cuts them off? That's more'n I know; but there they are, as nat'ral as life. You'd as lief set around in a cemetery? Wa'al, so'd I. I do hate the pesky things. If they only had their legs and arms on, 'twouldn't be quite so wearing. If you don't beat all!—how should I know where their legs and arms be? I have an idee that there are some droring-rooms that have the heads and shoulders, and some have the legs, and some have the arms, just as they happen to take a notion. You don't see how anybody could larf in such a place as that? Wa'al, I don't know myself.

"I used to go by them statutes at fust as if I was shot out of a red-hot shovel, but arter a while I never thought on 'em. Wa'al Cousin Gusty she sez to the black boy (raly now you'd a thought somebody was dead by the tremblin' way she spoke): 'Thomas, I've jest diskivered a fly on my Sanko in droring-room' (Sanko or Syko, I don't know which she said), 'and you must find it and kill it at once. Don't let me behold that fly no moro, Thomas.' No, ma'am, sez the black boy; and the minit Cousin Gusty's back was turned, sez he to himself: 'I hope there won't bo nothing but flies in Saratogy. I hope they'll have stingers, and I hope they'll bite her, and I hope she'll make a mistake and eat some ou 'em; I didn't wish nothing so bad as that on Cousin Gusty, but I felt a good deal nearer to that black boy arter that. There was just the same feelin' in his colored heart as there was in my white one, only he went further than me, and that was nat'ral, not having my eddication. Yes, Gusty's husband is rich, and no mistake. He has a leather shop in the Swamp; but, I vum, you'd never know he worked in hides. His hands are as white as a baby's; and I've sniffed and sniffed to see if I could nose out the smell o' leather on his clothes when he come in, but I never could. You wouldn't know he worked in a swamp neither, for there was no mud on his boots, and they shined just like a glass bottle. Yes, he's just as down on flies as Gusty is. Anybody'd think he'd get used to all kinds of critters, working in the marsh as he does day arter day; but, lor sakes! you'd never s'pose he'd seen a bug in his life. As I told Cousin Gusty, I should just as soon think of kicking agin death and the rates as to be everlastingly murderin' and shootin' flies. And the bruises that I've got all over my frame, fallin' agin this and that thing as well as t'other, is just disfiggerin', to say nothing about the pain I've underwent with 'em. I used more camphire and anguintum that four weeks than I ever used in my life. Supper-time, do you say? Wa'al, now, if the time don't just travel in this house! It used to seem to me three weeks 'twixt dinner and supper at Gusty's. Next time I come over I believe I'll bring my quilt, and see, as Cousin Gusty sez, 'if we can't bring some order out of chouse.'"—Harper's Bazar.

Too Late.

A New York broker who reached a village in Ohio the other evening was interviewed, soon after placing his name on the register, by a farmer, who said:

"I just wish you had arrived here this afternoon!"

"Any excitement?" replied the broker.

"Well I should say so. My son, Daniel, was convicted of stealing seven sheep, and has been held to the higher court. You ought to have been here!"

"Why?"

"Why, I'd have had you on the jury, and you could have cleared Daniel slick as grease. Our folks here don't look at things as you New Yorkers do."—Wall Street News.

Photographing Letters.

"The oddest customer," said the photographer, "I ever had, was a Tennessean who came in and had himself taken with a sign across his chest, on which was printed, in large letters:

'J. C. K.'
The father of thirty-four children.'

"He was in sober earnest, and wanted fifty copies. He was dumb-founded when, by way of a joke, I showed him the negative, on which the sign read:

'K. C. J., nerdlihc ruof-ytriht fo rehtaf eht.'"

—Cincinnati Enquirer.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—A factory in Elmira, N. Y., "turns" out between two hundred and three hundred augers daily, and is the only industry of its kind in the State.

—Another Pennsylvanian has discovered a new mechanical force, and wants us all to stand on tiptoe to hear it hum. His name is Bromily, and he claims to multiply power without fuel.

—A Georgia farmer, after making practical experiments, announces his belief that an acre of melons will yield as much syrup as one of sugar-cane, while the former does not tax the land near so heavily as the latter. The syrup has a peach flavor.

—We have in the Southern States in operation, or in course of erection, 191 cotton factories. This outnumbers by twenty-seven all the cotton factories in New England, outside of Massachusetts, and exceeds by sixteen the number in that State.—Pulaski (Tenn.) Citizen.

—A Maine man has invented and constructed a great improvement on the Indian birch canoe, being made of tin, and to avoid the great danger of upsetting or filling with water and sinking, or being swamped in rough water, he has conveniently arranged on either side a series of air-chambers.

—To remove fish-bones from the throat, Professor Vololini, of Breslau, recommends a gargle composed of muriatic acid, four parts; nitric acid, one part, and water, 240 parts. The teeth have to be protected by lard or oil. The fish-bones become flexible, and they disappear entirely after a short time.

—The Germantown (Pa.) Telegraph notes the fact that, as the Western States are steadily coming into formidable competition with each other in the production of tobacco, fruit, cheese, butter, vegetables, etc., the East is coming back to wheat-growing, and urges the seaboard farmers to jump in, raise all the wheat they can, export the surplus to Europe, and thus arrest what is called "the drain of the agricultural districts to supply emigrants to the West. In fact," it says, "the Eastern farmers have suffered in many ways from a policy wholly adverse to their interests, which has built up the West at their expense."

—To build a ship so that in case of accident to the bow the stern half can be instantaneously separated from it, and can continue the voyage securely and easily on its own account, is the latest contribution to the list of safeguards against the dangers of the sea. The idea is that of a German inventor, and is set forth with some detail in the Hamburg Courier, which sees no reason why it should not be entirely feasible. It would require many departures from the present mode of building vessels, as well as from their internal arrangement and equipment; but the inventor asserts that, as a whole, a vessel so constructed could be fully as sea worthy and swift as any built on the present plan, and would be twice as secure against disaster.—N. Y. Sun.

PITH AND POINT.

—As the New England tobacco crop promises unusually well this year we can expect a fine line of imported cigars presently.

—Some people are never satisfied. Show them how to live happily on a small income and they will want you to furnish the income.—N. O. Picayune.

—Two white tramps have been sent to the chain gang for throwing kisses at the young ladies of a Georgia seminary. The privileges of the American citizen seem to be getting very limited indeed.—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

—Dr. Chalmers used to say that when one is in the act of tipping his hat to a lady whom he supposes to be an acquaintance it requires a good deal of tact to make believe that he is only scratching his forehead when he finds she is a stranger.

—"My dear Polly, I am surprised at your taste in wearing another woman's hair on your head," said Mr. Smith to his wife. "My dearest Joe, I am equally astonished that you persist in wearing another sheep's wool on your back."—Boston Post.

—One fellow might hang around a surf swimming place for weeks and never have a chance to rescue a rich man's daughter from a watery grave. Another would grapple a millionheiress the very first day and be invited to her house to dinner. It is all luck.—N. O. Picayune.

—A lady subscriber wants to know how to catch a husband. We have had no experience in this kind of sport personally, but we have known a husband to be caught by his wife as he was leaving a bar-room. When she got him home, we believe she caught him by the hair of his head and the husband, well, he caught particular Jesse.—Detroit Post.

—In a new light. "I have been with you now three months," said the junior clerk, and I think I ought to have a salary something nearly comensurate to my services." "H'm!" replied the employer; "well, times haven't been very good; you haven't had very much to do, you know. Couldn't think of giving you more than fifty dollars a month." Clerk—"Beg pardon, sir, I am not to blame because you haven't done business enough to keep me busy. I expect to get paid for what I know, not for what I do." Employer—"Oh! That puts the matter in a new light. I shall give you five dollars a month hereafter."—N. Y. Graphic.

—"I tell you, pard," said old Jimmy Cannon, a guide, "the West has lost its romance. Only a little while ago, it seems to me, where once there was nothing but the whoop of the Indian and the song of the six-shooter, now there are railroads and churches and commercial men and high schools and three-card monte men and lecturers and daily newspapers and every little while a natural death. Why within two months, if the blasted papers tell the truth, several men have died in Wyoming of disease. I tell you, it looks as though us old timers would have to move away. When we have to wait for lingering disease to snuff us out it's time to light out for the frontier."—Laramie Boomerang.

Our Young Folks.

THE LAND OF NOWHERE.

A SONG FOR BOYS AND GIRLS WHO ARE ALWAYS DISCONTENTED.

Do you know where the summer blooms all the year round,
Where there never is rain on a picnic day,
Where the thornless rose in its beauty grows,
And little boys never are called from play?
Oh! hey! it is far away,
In the wonderful land of Nowhere.

Would you like to live where nobody scolds,
Where you never are told: "It is time for bed."
Where you learn without trying, and laugh without crying,
Where snarls never pull when they comb your head?
Then oh! hey! you must hie away
To the wonderful land of Nowhere.

If you long to dwell where you never need wait,
Where no one is punished or made to cry,
Where a supper of cakes is not followed by aches,
And little folks thrive on a diet of pie;
Then ho! hey! you must go, I say,
To the wonderful land of Nowhere.

You must drift down the river of Idle Dreams,
Close to the border of No-man's land;
For a year and a day you must sail away,
And then you will come to an unknown strand.
And ho! hey! if you get there—stay
In the wonderful land of Nowhere.

—Ella Wheeler, in Harper's Young People.

On a Hill.

Sammy Bones lived on the very top of a hill, and the yard that he played in was almost all hill-side. So that if he happened to fall down, and get to rolling before he could get up again, he never stopped rolling until he reached the fence at the bottom of the hill.

But this did not happen very often. Really it never happened but just once that I know of. That time he did roll down hill, just like a log of wood or a keg of molasses—clear to the bottom.

His mamma was sewing on the machine, by the sitting-room window, at the time, and chancing to look out, she saw her precious son rolling away! And what was worse, he rolled faster and faster at every roll. Imagine her feelings! But if you're not a mamma yourself, there's no use in trying to imagine—you can't. But she need not have been so alarmed about him, for half an hour afterwards her son was safely on the top of the hill again—in the house.

He had been rubbed with arnica here, and anointed with scented salve there, and he had a long strip of court plaster just above one of his eyes, and another strip across the bridge of his nose. Nevertheless, he was very happy. For besides having been a great hero, "achieved greatness," as Shakespeare would say, he had also achieved some blackberry jam. And he did not get blackberry jam very often, not much oftener than he took a roll down the hillside. It was only because of the roll that he got the jam now. Sammy understood this fact; so withal, he felt that the accident was "all for the best"—now that it was over.

While he ate his bread and jam, his mamma with very red eyes, was giving her neighbor, Mrs. Smith, an account of the shocking affair, and of the mental anguish she had suffered while her boy was taking his wonderful circular journey.

"Why, I should think my hair would have turned gray with horror at the sight," she exclaimed, wiping away some more tears that came at the thought.

"Oh!" interrupted Sammy just as Mrs. Smith began speaking, "if you'd just been the fellow that was a-rolling though! Looking on ain't nothing," he added, grandly.

But a few days afterwards he found that "looking on" was something. It came about in this way:

When Sammy's father, who was a doctor, came home at noon on this day, he was in a great hurry. Mrs. Buel, who lived twelve miles out of town, had another stroke of paralysis, and he must go to see her right off.

"I'll just take old Bill out of the shafts," said the doctor, "and let him get some oats and a few minutes' rest, and then off I must go again."

Then he put two stones before the front wheels of the buggy to keep it from rolling away, and went in to his own dinner.

"Don't meddle with those stones, Sammy," he said, the last thing.

Sammy had had his dinner, and so had his two little cousins Meg and Milly, who were visiting him. So they did not go into the house.

"Let's get in the buggy and play horse," said Meg.

And in she and Milly clambered, while Sammy took hold of the shafts and began pulling. Taking hold of the shafts and pulling a little was not meddling with the stones, he thought. He just pulled a "little bit," when suddenly the buggy began to push. It pushed harder and harder, and Sammy got very red in the face trying to hold it in. But it wouldn't be held in! It got away from him, and rushed pell-mell down the hill with those two little cousins inside screaming "just awfully." And Sammy could only stand still and look on, just as poor mamma had done when he rolled away a few days before. Oh! he felt dreadfully! Then his papa rushed out, and his mamma rushed out, and his auntie, and Mary Ann, the hired girl; they all chased the buggy down the hill. But they did not catch it—not until it stopped of itself against the fence.

Milly and Meg, were not a bit hurt, but they cried and cried: and both of the shafts of the buggy were broken clear off.

So the doctor had to go on horseback to see Mrs. Buel.

Nobody scolded Sammy very much, for he looked so pale and sorry, and nobody gave him any jam this time either. But after a while his mamma smiled a little, and asked him if "looking on" "wasn't something."

And Sammy looked very, very meek, and said: "Yes, ma'am."—Youth's Companion.

Wrinkles.

I wonder, children, if when you look at your grandmother who sits there nodding in her chair—("I wasn't asleep," says grandmother, with a start; "Of course not," returns grandfather, with a twinkle in his eye)—I wonder if, when you look at those wrinkles in the dear grandmother's face, you think of the thought and the care and the trials that helped time to make them. She is sweeter to me, children, than she was in the old days when she was like a wild rose in June. (Grandmother made a quaint, old-fashioned courtesy, and everybody went over and kissed her.)

But we won't talk of grandmother in particular, we'll talk of wrinkles in general. When I was a boy I was taught to look with respect on a wrinkled face. Each wrinkle means a great deal. It means suffering and care, and anxiety for others; for that old person has been very selfish, indeed, who has lived only for himself. Few have been so selfish.

Yesterday, as I was crossing South Ferry, I saw a wrinkled hand before me on the rail of the boat. It was a man's hand. It was hard and brown. And, though the man himself had his back towards me, I read him from that hand. He had his Sunday coat on and a tall hat, but the hand was the hand of a laborer. The wrinkles were made as much by constant use as by time. It was an honest hand, and I—grandfather—thought it would be more fitting to a gentleman to kiss that toil-stained hand than the hand of the Sovereign Lady who rules the British Isles, and one of them at least, so badly. When the man turned his face grandfather saw he was not mistaken. The face was an honest one, and when the boat touched the wharf with an awful bang against the woodwork, two boys, neatly dressed, sprang to meet the man, and called "Father." Those wrinkles had been made in daily toil that these nice, bright boys might be kept nice, and bright, and good.

Each wrinkle in your father's face means a day of anxiety or toil for you. For whom does he work? For you. For whom does your mother plan, and mend, and economize? For you.

Do you think that because people grow old they do not like pleasant things? Do you think that it is no sacrifice to toil and moil day after day? That parents are bound to work, work, work, so that the young may have all the sweet things of life, and accept them thanklessly, like little princes?

Grandmother likes a new ribbon for her cap occasionally, as well as any of you girls. She doesn't ask for it, but then she likes you to think of it all the same. And I think I caught her crunching those caramels Kate gave her as if she were seven instead of seventy. ("For shame, grandfather, only sixty-eight!") N'importe, as the French say, two years do not make much difference, but I am sure she seems younger to me every day.—Christian at Work.

Carried Over Niagara.

About sundown one evening recently a man was carried over the falls. Who he was is not known. His dress and appearance indicated respectability, and after he got into the rapids his self-possession was extraordinary. His boat was a very good one, decked over the bow, and I should think would carry three or four tons. No other than a person unacquainted with the current above the rapids would venture so near them. I was on the head of Goat Island when I first discovered the boat, then near half a mile below the foot of Navy Island, and nearly two miles above the falls. There seemed to be two in the boat. It was directed toward the American shore—the wind blowing from the shore, and the sail was still standing. Being well acquainted with the river, I regarded the position of the boat as extraordinary and hazardous, and watched it with intense anxiety. Soon I discovered the motion of an oar, and, from the changing direction of the boat, concluded it had but one. While constantly approaching nearer and nearer the rapids I could discover it was gaining the American shore, and by the time it had got near the first fall in the rapids, half a mile above Goat Island, it was directly above the island. There it was turned up the river, and for some time the wind kept it nearly stationary. The only hope seemed to be to come directly to Goat Island, and whether I should run half a mile to give the alarm or remain to assist in case the boat attempted to make the island, was a question of painful doubt. But soon the boat was again turned toward the American shore. Then it was certain that it must go down the American rapids. I ran for the bridge, rallied a man at the toll-gate, and we ran to the main bridge in time to see the boat just before it got to the first large fall in the rapids. Then I saw but one man—he standing at the stern with his oar changing the course of the boat down the current, and as it plunged over he sat down. I was astonished to see the boat rise, with the mast and sail standing, and the man again erect directing the boat toward the shore. As he came to the next and to each succeeding fall he sat down, and then would rise and apply his oar in the intermediate current. Still there was hope that he would come near enough to the pier to jump, but in a moment it was gone. Another, that he might jump upon the rock near the bridge, but the current dashed him from it under the bridge, breaking the mast. Again he rose on the opposite side. Taking his oar, and pointing his boat toward the main shore, he cried: "Had I better jump from the boat?" We could not answer, for either seemed certain destruction. Within a few rods of the falls the boat struck a rock, turned over and lodged. He appeared to crawl from under it, and swam with the oar in his hand until he went over the precipice. Without the power to render assistance—for half an hour watching a strong man struggling with every nerve for life, yet doomed with almost the certainty of destiny to an immediate and awful death, still hoping with every effort for his deliverance—caused an intensity of excitement I pray God never again to experience.—Buffalo Advertiser.

—A Louisville (Ky.) father got wind of the fact that his daughter intended to elope, and proceeded to act in a somewhat unconventional manner. He said he would be Dan Tuckered if there should be any eloping in his family, so he "laid" for the couple. He caught them at two o'clock in the morning and hustled them before a justice of the peace, where he had them married in regulation order, himself acting as master of ceremonies.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Religious.

HEREAFTER.

O heart, grown wild amid the heat and tumult
Of years that hasten so, be calm, be strong!
These few, brief days may mock thy high endeavor,
But O, the eternal years of God are long!

O captive soul, imprisoned, fettered, thwarted,
Cast down, oppressed, beset on every side,
Be patient! Fold awhile thy sky-born pinion;
For O, the everlasting doors are wide!

O faint with toil, who longing, reaching, striving,
Forever grasping, ever empty stand,
"Fullness of joy" in God's great presence waiteth,
And "pleasures evermore" at His right hand!

—Demorest's Monthly.

WHOM TO JUDGE.

While the rule of Christian charity forbids us to judge or condemn others, and requires us to look with leniency and large tolerance upon their acts and character, there is no such rule to regulate our self-judgments. We are not warned against being too exacting with ourselves, nor commanded to be self-tolerant. The multitude of sins that charity is to cover are not our own, but another's. With ourselves we are to be rigid and unbending. We are to look at ourselves as we really appear in the mirror of God's Word, and not seek to hide from our own eyes any blemish, or extenuate any defect. Like Cromwell, we are to insist on being painted as we are, scars and lines, great wart and all. We are not to make apologies for ourselves to ourselves. We are not to commisserate ourselves and try to find excuses for our failings and sins, in order that our self-condemnation may be as light as possible. We should abate nothing from the strict truth as we know it in our own hearts, when we are making up our self-judgments. We should palliate nothing in the guilt or weakness that stains or mars our character or course of life.

The more common course, however, is to have the largest patience with ourselves, and little patience or none at all with others; to hide from ourselves our own faults and blemishes, and insist on seeing every minute flaw in others; to use the widest breadth of charity to hide from our own eyes the multitude of sins in ourselves, but to refuse its folds for our neighbor's use, leaving exposed his minutest blemishes; to applying all manner of specious casuistry to make our own evil appear good; at the same time denying to others any excuse for or extenuation of their transgressions or defects; to have defense for every small or great folly or vice in ourselves, but none for any semblance of evil in others. We apply the glass with its full magnifying power when we are looking at another, that no smallest speck may hide from our search; then we reverse the glass when we look at ourselves, so that every spot may be minified and reduced to insignificance.

Such a way of looking at our faults and the faults of others is neither just to ourselves nor charitable toward others. We never can rise to excellence of character, nor attain a lofty reach of conduct, unless we habitually set before ourselves the highest possible—the absolutely perfect—ideal. Shutting our eyes to our own defects and blemishes is simply to leave them as spots in the picture, as dropped threads in the web, as false notes in the score of the music, as broken stones in the wall, to shame us some day when the completed work is revealed. If we would have perfect and beauteous work when all is finished, we must make it perfect and beauteous, line by line, as we go on. We should be eager, then, to recognize every flaw or fault in ourselves, in order that we may with unsparing hand remove or correct it. He wrongs his own soul, and is untrue to his own highest good, who refuses to see the defects in himself, or who apologizes for them as if they were unworthy of him. The aim in character-building should ever be to surpass one's self. This can be done only by the faithful and habitual recognition before one's self of the highest and noblest standard of attainment.

But while holding ourselves to a strict account, we are not to be severely strict with others. We are not to make ourselves our brother's judge to the same extent that we are to judge ourselves. Our brother is in God's hands: God is his master, and to God must his account be made. We do not understand what extenuations there may be in another's case for the things in him, or in his course, which we are disposed to condemn. We never know precisely where to locate the blame when a man's character is scarred or marred. And we had better not attempt it. God understands it all, and He will be both pitiful and just. We must leave it to Him.

If we knew what had so distorted another's life, our voice of criticism would, perhaps, be hushed. Longfellow says: "If we could read the secret history of our enemies, we should find in each man's life sorrow and suffering enough to disarm all hostility." Every life has its pathos. We know not what grief may have done to spoil the life, or what some secret sorrow, or some fierce temptation, is even now doing to mar its beauty. If we knew all, possibly we would not wonder at what we now are ready to condemn."

It is clear that the judging of others is neither our duty nor within the scope of our ability. It is also clear that charity toward others is both right and possible to us. We ask forbearance of God; we should extend to others what we crave from Him as the very hope of our soul. As we grow toward godlikeness in character, we shall grow in leniency toward our fellows. God bears with those in whom we see so much evil; should not we bear with them, since He does, when we remember that it is against Him, and not against us, that their evil is committed?—S. S. Times.

The Sovereignty of God.

The sovereignty of God has been a strong support and consolation to the children of God in their work and trials and afflictions and sufferings. "The Lord reigneth, let the earth rejoice," has been the text from which the joy of many a believer has sprung. "Thy Kingdom come," the word of our Lord Jesus, has been the longing of saints in all ages. The prayer Our Prophet, the Faithful and True Witness, taught us, begins: "Our Father, who art in Heaven" and continues, "Thy Kingdom come. Thy will be done." A royal Father, a Father who rules, meets the needs of man. Men trying to live righteously in a sinful world, often engaged in seemingly doubtful conflicts, often abused, misrepresented, maligned and even persecuted, are sustained and cheered by faith in the royal supremacy of God. It is not only that God is their Father, but that He is an Independent, almighty, everywhere present, perfectly righteous, omniscient, and irresistible Sovereign, glorious in holiness, that is their strong staff, their encouragement, their consolation. Knowing this and believing it, they are willing to be patient and to wait for the promised end.

This faith in the government of the God of the Bible has made strong, heroic Christians; has inspired songs in the night; has been a mainspring of hopeful, beneficent activity; has infused confidence in prayer, and has been as the shadow of a great rock in a dry and thirsty land. The new theology may babble as it will about mediæval figures, and about striking out the kingship of God from the confessions, but it will never succeed in convincing the Church. The moment there is a prospect of the success of such a proposition there will come a protest from sick-rooms, from mission fields, from believers actually in the conflict of right with wrong, from the really earnest souls striving to make the world better, that will rebuke and silence these sentimentalists. God is a sovereign, a being to be adored and feared and obeyed, as well as one to be trusted and loved. "The Lord reigneth, let the earth rejoice."—Christian Intelligencer.

Influence of Personal Character.

Nothing is more marked or more beautiful in the life of Jesus than the influence of His mere character and presence. (Illustrated by His course with little children; the devotion to His person of noble women; the drawing to Him of the sinful and the weary; and the general testimony of friends and foes.)

There is no effort to produce an impression; nothing demonstrative or theatrical. It is all unstudied, natural, the spontaneous outcome of what He is.

I. It is what a man is that the Bible lays the stress upon. Shown by (a) the ceaseless reference to the state of the heart; (b) the doctrine of a new birth; (c) the placing of goodness in motive, desire and intent.

Not what a man has, does, thinks, but is! "Blessed are the pure in heart. * * * the meek," etc.

II. It is as a man really is that he comes to be known. Character is one of those subtle influences, or combination of influences, which you can no more confine than you can an odor.

No imposture, deceit or mistake is permanently possible. A strong temptation, an unguarded moment, a look, a gesture, and the truth is out.

Character is felt. There is a mysterious sympathy and understanding between souls.

III. What a man really is determines his influence; and

IV. Mainly his power. A most solemn principle; our power to do is largely conditioned by what we are. Are we weak, mean, sordid? We shall fail as the disciples failed to "cast him out," and for the same reason. It takes a saintly man to do a mighty work.

Let us aim after a greater depth and reality. Professions, phrases, outward acts, ceremonies, may only betray (can not long conceal) spiritual poverty. It is "the man after God's own heart" who is so often spoken of as "My servant David."—London Freeman.

Gems of Thought.

—To do so no more is the truest repentance.—Luther.

—The claims of habit are generally too small to be felt till they are too strong to be broken.—Johnson.

—A man never knows what a weak, fickle and uncertain master he has in himself until he is at liberty to govern his own life as he pleases.

—In the light of eternity we shall see that what we desired would have been fatal to us, and that which we would have avoided would have been essential to our well-being.—Exchange.

—In a dispute with an infidel the purity of the Bible is an overwhelming argument. The Sermon on the Mount, if all the circumstances be considered, will be regarded by any profound thinker as a greater miracle than the raising of Lazarus.—Fuller.

—Exaggerated speech makes one careless of the truth. The habit of using words without regard to their rightful meaning often leads one to distort facts, to misrepresent conversations, and to magnify statements in which the literal truth is important to be told. You can never trust the testimony of one who in common conversation is indifferent to the import and regardless of the power of words.—Peabody.

—Atheism in any form is more credulous than Christianity a hundred-fold. It requires less blind faith or credulity to accept every miracle at sight than it does to accept any positive position assumed by any atheist who has ever written or spoken. The atheist thinks it a terrible thing for us to believe that Christ could raise one dead man, but he believes there are millions of souls called into being each year with no divine agency whatever.—Golden Rule.

—You can not reason your heart into purity. A single day's work in such a task would make more progress than a century's words. If thinking is not followed by doing it is like a plant that promises well, but never comes to fruitfulness. It is a very easy matter to think of doing great things, of making great sacrifices for others' good, of being charitable and helpful to your fellowmen, but to have this thinking blossom out in noble deeds is quite another thing. Many think of doing good, while the few set out to frame their thoughts in living deeds.—Exchange.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. SEPT. 26 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
[illegible]	½ "	40
[illegible]	¼ "	20
[illegible]	1 "	20
[illegible]	1 "	10
[illegible]	¼ "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (except the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.
Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

IN Cincinnati politics it's two pluck one.

THE breaking up of the drouth came just in time to prepare the ground for sowing grain.

THE Democratic bickering still continues in Hamilton county, Ohio. An attempt to harmonize failed, making each party more determined.

THE drouth is not confined to Kentucky soil this year, but is effecting the crops in numerous localities in the south, while the western country has been blessed with copious rains.

IT was thought that when Governor Blackburn stepped down and out of office he would not be heard of again soon, but he went east and got off some silly twaddle for the north to make capital of.

THE Court of Appeals, last week, interfered with a Carter county hanging arranged for the 24th of November, by reversing the verdict of the lower court in the case of G. W. S. Henderson, sentenced for killing Robert Clark.

THE total tax valuation of the State as taken from the Assessors' books returned to the Auditor's office for 1883, is $274,380,098, being an increase over 1882 of $11,067,650. Of the increase $4,687,197 is on personalty and $6,380,453 on reality.

GOV. KNOTT has not manifested any desire to embark extensively in the pardoning business yet. He has used the little word "no" pretty liberally so far, and according to his inaugural address but few pardons will be granted during his administration.

GOV. KNOTT and a caravan of State Officials were on exhibition the first day of the Louisville Fair, and last Thursday a portion of the Kentucky press gang was prowling about that city. Verily, Louisville was blessed with distinguished visitors last week.

THE cause of education is evidently attracting more attention in Kentucky at present then it has at any time in the history of the State. With a good educational system in operation in Kentucky she would soon shake off her lethargy, and become as great a State as there is in the Union.

THE Land Office muddle justifies the conclusion that there was trading done in the Louisville Convention by some of Cecil's friends who are known to have indulged in that method of electioneering in previous conventions. Cecil may have been ignorant of what was being done, while, on the other hand, Sheldon was making the best terms possible for his retaining a lucrative position in the office. The combination resulted as desired, but Sheldon was not wanted as chief clerk, and he should not made such a tool of himself.

THE effort to give Gen. Williams a boost in the Senatorial race by abusing, belittleing and misrepresenting Hon. John G. Carlisle is contemptible, to say the least of it. Mr. Carlisle is the equal of Gen. Williams in all the elements that go to make up a statesman, and he has acquired more reputation and less notoriety than any Kentucky member in either House, Gen. Williams not excepted. For dignity, honesty, ability and learning Mr. Carlisle is the peer of any man sent from Kentucky to either branch of Congress since the war.
—[Winchester Sun.

A FREIGHT and passenger train on the C. & O. road ran into each other in Triplett Tunnel, making a total wreck of the passenger's engine and five cars of the freight train. One fireman and a passenger were injured. The way the accident occurred is reported thus: The freight train was but a short distance in advance of the passenger, both going in the same direction and up a steep grade when the boxes of the freight became uncoupled from the engine, and running back with fearful speed collided with the passenger.

SHELDON has surrendered the keys of the Land Office, which will, in all probability, be followed by a prosecution for usurpation. Let the prosecution come, and let it be vigorous, too.

THE national colored convention assembled in Louisville last Monday. They were having a lively time trying to choose a permanent chairman, from last accounts. The speakers each embraced their first opportunity to declare their abiding faith in the Republican party. Fred Douglas wanted to be permanent chairman but was meeting much opposition. Twenty-seven States are represented in the convention.

WE presume no one has any objection to ex-Governor Blackburn going where he pleases and when he pleases, but if he is correctly reported by the New York Sun, in an interview with a representative of that paper, he should be muzzled before he starts on another trip beyond the limits of Kentucky. Such twaddle as "there still exists in the South a desire to see the North humbled;" "we are ruled by blacks, and of course there still exists a bitter feeling;" "it will soon be a question of might;" &c., sounds extremely ridiculous here, but in the North there is some danger that this sentiment be taken as the feeling of the people in Kentucky, coming from such a source.—Richmond Herald.

JOSEPH NORVELL, a clerk in the Land Office under Sheldon, has sued Cecil, Register of the Land Office, for $5,000 damages. Norvell bases his claim for damages on the allegation that Cecil previous to his election, employed him as his clerk at a salary of $1,000 per year, and that he tendered Cecil his services under the contract, but that he failed and refused to recognize the contract. The depositions of both Norvell and Cecil have been taken and they swear to exactly the opposite, Norvell threatens to have Cecil indicted for perjury, of which Cecil's attorneys make much sport. A large number of witnesses have been summoned, several of them are feeling very uncomfortable because they will have to tell what they know about the cause of trouble. Probable the public will yet get a history of the workings of the Louisville convention, and that, too, from men who know all about it.

A GANG of slickers are doing Indiana. One man goes ahead and represents that he is the agent of a new paint house that has sent him out with instructions to paint a barn every eight miles for what the material alone is worth. The contract is entered into, and in a few days the workmen come along to do the job. Much to the farmer's surprise the foreman informs him that he has a contract with him, the amount usually being ten or twenty times as great as the unsuspecting Grangers supposed it to be. During the wrangle, that is certain to ensue, a third party arrives on the scene, and in a very short time discovers that the farmer is about to be swindled. Calling him out he tells him confidentially that for twenty dollars he will put a stop to the scheme. Generally the last proposition is agreed to, the third man soon "runs the rascals off," the twenty dollars is paid, and shortly after the gang divide the spoils.

GOV. KNOTT should not construe any friendly expression he may hear or find in the papers in regard to Governor Blackburn personally, as an indorsement of his administration The Breckinridge News points out some of the effects of his injudicious exercises of the pardoning power, and says that during his administration our statistics show an increase in the crime of murder alone of 135 per cent. In 1880 there were committed in Kentucky fifty-three murders (of all grades and homicides), or a fraction over one per week. In 1881 the total footed up ninety-six, or a fraction over one and three-fourths per week. In 1882 the total was 113, or a fraction over two per week. And up to the 15th of August of the present year, 1883, 109 murders have occurred within the borders of the Commonwealth, being a fraction over two per week for the entire year. These figures should prevent any one from indorsing the policy, and certainly they are not calculated to encourage the new governor to adopt it.—Louisville Post.

7

LADIES and sickly girls requiring gentle and reliable stimulant, will find Brown's Iron Bitters beneficial.

ELKTON, KY.—Dr. E. B. Weathers says: "I regard Brown's Iron Bitters as a medicine of unusual worth."

FAYETTEVILLE, ARK.—Rev. T. J. Reilly says: "I used Brown's Iron Bitters for indigestion and chills with entire satisfaction."

Subscribe for the RECORDER.

THE hail that visited a portion of Carroll county, Sunday after noon, was very destructive to growing crops

THE town of Rabbit Hash has been almost destroyed twice within the year, and both times Stephen Mock lost his store building. This has been an eventful year with Rabbit Hash, and 1883 will make the most interesting page in the history of the town.

Mother's Spinning Wheel.

Concerning One Article that was Not For Sale, and Another which is Cheap at Any Price.

"no, sir, I wouldn't sell you that for any money; that spinning-wheel was my mother's. It was one day, when she was singing like a lark and making this old wheel hum, that my father, then a young medical student, afterwards a farmer, fell in love with her—some fifty years ago."

So spoke the proprietor of a rough bit of farm land in Ulster county, N. Y., to a relic-hunter, and "mother's" spinning-wheel remained among her children and grandchildren.

"My mother," writes Rev. J. W. Phelps, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. Church, Chicago, has used PARKER'S TONIC, and wishes me to say that she has found it more effective than anything she ever used for invigorating and strengthening the system debilitated by malaria. She desires me also especially to mention the certainty with which it aids digestion and overcomes exhaustion."

Ever since the first household was established "mother's" opinion has been more potent in this world than that of judge, jurist or physician. Her hand has always cooled the fever and her voice has been filled with hope. With each day's decline, PARKER'S TONIC is becoming more deservedly popular with the women who guard alike husband and children. It eradicates malarial poison from the blood, from which there is now such widespread suffering.

Please observe: Dr. PARKER'S TONIC is not an intoxicant. It is a combination of several ingredients, of which none singly can produce anything like its effect. For Kidney, Stomach and Liver troubles, it is the standard and unfailing remedy, in two sizes: 50 cents and $1. The latter the cheaper. HISCOX & Co., Chemists, New York

Public Sale.

On Friday the 28th inst., at 3 o'clock p. m., the following property will be sold to the highest bidder, to-wit:

MOUNT PLEASANT GRANGE HALL and one-half interest in lot on which said property is located. The purpose of said sale is to raise means to liquidate debt against said property.

Terms of Sale—$100 cash, and the balance, if any, in 30 days, the purchaser to give bond with approved security.

The sale will take place in the hall at the appointed hour.

Trustees { OSCAR GAINES, J. E. DUNCAN, G. C. GRADDY.

Sept, 19th, 1883.

For Sale.

A good cow and calf—the cow is fresh and a number one milch cow, apply to
C. L. CRISLER, Burlington, Ky.

Notice.

The annual election officers of the Farmers' M. F. Ins. Company, will be held at Burlington the first Monday in October, 1883. Amount of property insured to date in round numbers $130,000.

J. H. WALTON, Sec'y.

ADMINISTRATORS NOTICE.

Persons having claims against the estate of J. C. Riley, decd., are hereby notified to present them to the undersigned proven as by law required. Persons indebted to the estate are requested to come forward and settle their indebtedness at once.

C. T. RICE, Admr.

ADMINISTRATORS NOTICE.

Persons having claims against the estate of Erastus Garrison, decd., are hereby notified to present them to the undersigned proven as by law required. Persons indebted to the estate are requested to come foward and settle their indebtedness at once.

C. T. RICE, Admr.

Farm for Sale!

35 acres of good rolling bottom land. 3½ miles below Aurora ferry, ½ mile from Bellevue and ½ mile from the Ohio river, being part of the Warren Rogers farm. For particulars call on or address T. H. SUTTON, Grant P. O., Ky., or at this office. 44-2-m

Farm for Sale.

I am offering for sale my farm, lying 8 miles south of Burlington on the Big Bone road, containing 55½ acres, a part of the Mason Crisler farm. The land lays well and is conveniently located, the improvments are a good brick house and all necessary out buildings, and a variety of good fruit. Any person desirous of purchasing a nice farm will do well to come and examine the premises and learn terms. Title good.

MRS. OSCAR CRISLER.

AURORA MARBLE AND GRANITE WORKS, Aurora, Ind

Will have constantly on hand

Marble and Granite Monuments,

Italian & American Headstones, &c.

I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,

F. W. KASSEBAUM.

INSURE AT HOME

The Farmers' Mutual Fire

INSURANCE COMPANY

Of Boone County

Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.

Its Rates are Lower

Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a

HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE

In keeping their property insured.

EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY

should take a policy at once.

N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky.

J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.

R. RANDALL, Treasury.

DIRECTORS.

LEGRAN GAINES, Jeff Utz, JNO. M. MOODY.

Just From New York

WITH A

Full LINE of FALL SUITINGS,

—AND—

OVERCOATS.

The above stock was carefully selected, and consists of all the NEW STYLES of FALL GOODS, and you can not fail to be pleased with the Goods and Prices.

H. F. BLASE,

540 Madison St, - COVINGTON, KY.

YARNS, FLANNELS &

BLANKETS,

From SCHOFILD & SON'S and VEVAY Woolen Mills, now on sale at

COLTER'S

Mammoth Cheap Cash Store,

Rising Sun, Indiana.

We offer a large Factory Blanket for a $5 bill. Every person should see this Blanket; Its the Grandest Bargain Ever offered in the United States.

Indigo Blue Yarns 80 cents per pound, best made.
Steel Mix Yarns 75 cents per pound, best made.
Sheep's Gray Yarns 75 cents per pound, best made.
White Yarns 70 cents per pound, best made.
All Fancy colors 6½ to 7c. per pound, best made.

When buying yarns, see that they are put on the scales and weighed. Some count so many cuts a lb. and beat you out of near one-fourth of a pound.

Steel Mix Jeans, with Blue Warp, 45c,
Any Color Factory Flannels 35 to 40c.

In Addition to the above-named FACTORY goods we have

Jeans at from 20 to 33 cents.
Flnnels from 15 to 20 cents,
One Job in a 3-4 Wool Linsey at 22 1-2c.
One Case Canton Flannel at 10c, big bargain.
3 Cases Canton Flannel, 8 1-3 to 12 1-2c.
Over 300 Blankets at $1 75 to $3 50.
Bed Comforts, any price and grade.

SEE OUR $2 25 and $2 75 SADDLE-SEAM BOOTS.
SEE OUR WOMEN'S BUTTON SHOES AT $1 25.

See our Boot and Shoe department when wanting boots and shoes of any kind

Over One Thousand Overcoats to Select From
Over Three Thousand Full Suits to select from.
Ovev Four Thousand Hats to select from.

A Five Thousand Dollar Stock of Millinery to Select from in Shapes, Trimmings, Ribbons and Feathers.

Over One Thousand Bolts of Cashmeres and Dress Goods to select from, and Trimmings to match all.

SAVE YOUR MONEY UP AND COME TO

COLTER'S

Mammoth Cheap Cash Store,

Rising Sun, Ind.

AND YOU WILL RECEIVE ITS VALUE.

LOOK HERE!

when you go to Lawrenceburg, call on

Winegardner

He has a large assortment of

Wall Paper!

And is daily receiving additions to his stock. Call and examine before purchasing.

Inks, Pens and Stationar

constantly on hand.

Headquaters in Lotton House.

LUMBER.

Goe. M. Bedinger & Co.,

Erlanger, - - Ky.

We keep constantly on hand all kinds of Lumber, Laths and Shingles. Also Builder's supplies of all kinds.

—Come and see Us.—

may 9-tf

WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS FOR THE

LIVER

And all Billious Complaints

Safe to take, being purely vegetable; no griping. Price 25 cts. All Druggists.

INCORPORATED UNDER THE LAWS OF MISSOURI.

CENTRAL MEDICAL & SURGICAL INSTITUTE

OF ST. LOUIS, MO.

SUCCESSORS TO DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY. OFFICE & ROOMS, NO. 920 LOCUST ST.

CHAS. L. LaBARGE, M.D., Pres't & Physician in Charge.
NELSON CHESMAN, Treas. & Business Manager.

This Institute has ample facilities and an experienced Faculty. While it succeeds to a large business, which has been established for years, it will aim to extend its medical and surgical practice, giving skilful and scientific treatment to CHRONIC DISEASES of the Head, Spine, Lungs and Air Passages, Heart, Liver, Stomach and Bowels, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Consumption and Asthma. BLOOD IMPURITIES, Inherited or caused by impure association, Scrofula, Fever Sores, Ulcers, etc. DEFORMITIES of the Limbs, Spinal Curvature, Wry-Neck, Diseases of the Joints, Piles, Fistula, Rupture, etc. WEAKNESS and wasting diseases in old and young men, also all diseases of the genito-urinary organs. FEMALE irregularities and weaknesses, causing pain in the back or side, etc.

Personal interviews with patients are always preferred. Those unable to visit the Institute will be furnished with blank lists of questions that will aid them in making a full statement of their cases and if not requiring a surgical operation they can be successfully treated by correspondence, and medicines sent by mail or express. To enable us to send proper list of questions applicants should give a brief statement of their trouble.

(The Treasurer of the corporation is of Nelson Chesman & Co., Advertising Agents, and refers to the publisher of this or any other newspaper in the United States or Canada regarding responsibility.)

Consultation at Office or by mail free and invited

TUTT'S PILLS

TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect

ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.

Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.

GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.

Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.

TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

VIGOROUS HEALTH FOR MEN

THE PASTILLE CURE FOR NERVOUS DEBILITY. TRADE MARK

TESTED FOR 5 YEARS

by use in thousands of cases. Founded on scientific medical principles, it has been growing in favor and reputation while its numerous competitors have invariably failed. The direct application of this remedy to the seat of the disease makes its specific influence felt without delay. The natural functions of the human organism are restored. The animating elements of life which have been wasted are given back. The buoyant energy of the brain and muscular system renders the patient cheerful; he gains strength with rapidity.

NERVOUS DEBILITY, organic weakness, and numerous obscure diseases, baffling the skill of best physicians, result for youthful indiscretion, too free indulgence, and over brain work.

Do not temporize while such enemies lurk in your system. Take a remedy that has cured thousands, and does not interfere with you attention to business or cause any pain or inconvenience.

(Send for a Descriptive Pamphlet giving Anatomical Illustrations, which will convince the most sceptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fitted for the duties of life, same as if never affected. Sent free to any one. Remedy sold ONLY by the)

HARRIS REMEDY CO. MF'G. CHEMISTS.
306½ N. 10th. St. ST. LOUIS, MO.

One Month's treatment $3. two months $5. three months $7

AYER'S Ague Cure

IS WARRANTED to cure all cases of malarial disease, such as Fever and Ague, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Billious Fever, and Liver Complaint. In case of failure, after due trial, dealers are authorized, by our circular of July 1st, 1882, to refund the money.

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists.

INJECTION SANTINELI

Cures all recent and chronic secret diseases of the Urinary passages in both sexes. Directions in all languages. $1.00 a bottle Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of price secure from observation Fairmount Chemical Co. Cincinnati, Ohio, U. S. A. Sold by W. F. M'Kim Burlington.

FOR SALE.

A full blooded Alderney cow—will be fresh in the spring. She is very gentle and a good milker. CY RIDDELL,
Hebron, Ky.

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley.
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U. Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk A. G. DeJarnette, Commonwealths Attorney; W. L. Riddell, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

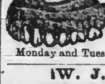
Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. Ed Fowler, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday. Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and L. A. Loder fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

Beever—W. M. Rouse, Friday after the third Monday, and



E. E. IGOE,

Resident Dentist,

Rising Sun, Ind.

WITH

J. P. Ulrey.

Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun, Ind.

W. J. RICE,

CARPENTER & BUILDER,

BULLITSVILLE, KY.

Is prepared Raise or Move EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS

On Short Notice.

And at the Lowest Possible Figures.

33-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

SCROFULA

and all scrofulous diseases, Sores, Erysipelas, Eczema, Blotches, Ringworm, Tumors, Carbuncles, Boils, and Eruptions of the Skin, are the direct result of an impure state of the blood.

To cure these diseases the blood must be purified, and restored to a healthy and natural condition. AYER'S SARSAPARILLA has for over forty years been recognized by eminent medical authorities as the most powerful blood purifier in existence. It frees the system from all foul humors, enriches and strengthens the blood, removes all traces of mercurial treatment, and proves itself a complete master of all scrofulous diseases.

A Recent Cure of Scrofulous Sores.

"Some months ago I was troubled with scrofulous sores (ulcers) on my legs. The limbs were badly swollen and inflamed, and the sores discharged large quantities of offensive matter. Every remedy I tried failed, until I used AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, of which I have now taken three bottles, with the result that the sores are healed, and my general health greatly improved. I feel very grateful for the good your medicine has done me. Yours respectfully, MRS. ANN O'BRIAN."

148 Sullivan St., New York, June 24, 1882.

☞ All persons interested are invited to call on Mrs. O'Brian; also upon the Rev. Z. P. Wilds of 78 East 54th Street, New York City, who will take pleasure in testifying to the wonderful efficacy of Ayer's Sarsaparilla, not only in the cure of this lady, but in his own case and many others within his knowledge.

The well-known writer on the Boston Herald, B. W. BALL, of Rochester, N.H., writes, June 7, 1882:

"Having suffered severely for some years with Eczema, and having failed to find relief from other remedies, I have made use, during the past three months, of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, which has effected a complete cure. I consider it a magnificent remedy for all blood diseases."

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

stimulates and regulates the action of the digestive and assimilative organs, renews and strengthens the vital forces, and speedily cures Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Rheumatic Gout, Catarrh, General Debility, and all diseases arising from an impoverished or corrupted condition of the blood, and a weakened vitality.

It is incomparably the cheapest blood medicine, on account of its concentrated strength, and great power over disease.

PREPARED BY

Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.

Sold by all Druggists; price $1, six bottles for $5.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair.

50c. & $1, Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON

Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 35 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.

COLOGNE

Paynes' Automatic Farm Engines

OF ALL KINDS.—Established 1840.

3 to 100 Horse Power.

Our 10-Horse Spark Arresting Threshing Engine has cut 10,000 feet Pine Lumber in 10 hours. Will burn wood 6 feet long, coal, Straw and corn stalks. Send for Price List and Catalogue G.

B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

FREE!

RELIABLE SELF-CURE.

A favorite prescription of one of the most noted and successful specialists in the U. S. (now retired) for the cure of Nervous Debility, Lost Manhood, Weakness and Decay. Sent in plain sealed envelope free. Druggists can fill it.

Address DR. WARD & CO., Louisiana, Mo.

PAYSON'S INDELIBLE INK Is the BEST. No preparation. Used with any clean pen for marking any fabric. Popular for decorative work on linen. Received Centennial MEDAL & Diploma. Established 50 years. Sold by all Druggists, Stationers & News Agt's.

Cut This Out & Return to us with TEN CTS. Silver, & you'll get by mail a GOLDEN BOX OF GOODS that will bring you in MORE MONEY in One Month than anything else in America. Absolute Certainty. Either Sex. No capital. M. Young, 173 Greenwich St. N. York.

NAVAL Agents Wanted for Ancient & Modern BATTLES. New and graphic Pictorial History of the great Sea fights of the World. By Medical Director SHIPPEN, U. S. N. Address J. C. McCURDY & CO., 180 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard Books & Bibles works of character; great variety; low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 37 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

Local News.

County Court next Monday.

The sun's crossing the line stirred up the moister.

Buy your clothing at Colter's, Rising Sun, Indiana.*

The grand jury meets Monday, a signal for a small exodus.

Read the advertisement of the Mt. Pleasant Grange Hall for sale.

Over One Thousand Overcoats to select from at Colter's, Rising Sun, Ind.*

Fall pastures may be resurrected, but they now look like they are only awaiting a funeral.

The buyers who have old tobacco on hand are sipping the cream of their last year's buying.

The Independent figures that 7,640 persons, all told, attended the Aurora Fair this year.

What's our winter clothing that were left over from last winter? Echo answers, where?

The drouth slayed the mosquito crop in this section. Last season there was an over production.

The readjustment of Postmasters' salaries will increase our worthy P. M.'s exchequer several dollars.

Buy your fall goods at Colter's, Rising Sun, Indiana, where you can get everything you want in our house. *

Ayer's Pills take the lead of all aperients and purgatives. Their action is gentle, searching and thorough.

We are glad to see that Judge Hawes has grown sufficiently strong to be able to wield the croquet mallet again.

There is a Sixty Thousand Dollar stock of winter goods at Colter's Mammoth Cheap Cash Store, Rising Sun.*

W. B. Adams has a pumpkin the weight of which he estimates at 150 pounds. That's some pumpkin for you.

G. S. Lozier's fine display of Pianos and Organs were awarded first premium at both, Lawrenceburg and Aurora Fairs.

Buy your Flannels, Jeans, Yarns and Blankets at Colters, Rising Sun, Indiana. Wool Blankets $4, $5 and $6 per pair.*

Since J. Frank Grant entered his trotting mare for the Louisville races, she has taken the distemper and will not be able to start.

Nine premiums were awarded G. S. Lozier at the Aurora Fair, on different kinds of work done on the New Home sewing machine.

Burlington sent a pretty extensive delegation to Latonia last week. Don't know whether their visit expanded their purses or not.

The petit jurors are summoned for the second day of the approaching term of Circuit Court. The grand jury will be impaneled on Monday as usual.

If a fire was to break out in Burlington it would have things it own way, there being very little water in wells and cisterns. Be careful with your fire.

Heavy Saddle-seam Kip Boots at $2, $2 25, $2 50 and $2 75. Women's Kip Shoes at 75c, 90c, $1 and $1 25 at Colter's, Rising Sun, Indiana.*

A horse fell with C. L. Crisler, last Friday evening, and sprained Cy's ankle, and he had two canes and a crutch to assist in his locomotion for several days.

The trustee of the jury fund expects all the constables and justices of the peace to make their reports on the first day of Circuit Court, which is next Monday.

The light running New Home Sewing Machine took first premium at the Enterprise Fair last week, over all competitors, viz: Domestic and White sewing machines.

The leaves have commenced falling, and in a few days the town will be "kivered" with them to the depth of about one foot. They become a nuisance in the fall.

You can go to Colter's at Rising Sun, Indiana, and find everything, without running around. Clothing, Millinery, Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Cloaks and Raps and everything.*

It was universally conceded that G. S. Lozier's display of Pianos, Organs and Sewing Machines, at the Lawrenceburg and Aurora Fairs was the largest and finest ever exhibited at any county fair.

Nice tombstones or monuments at the graves of the departed, are marks of respect which should not be neglected. Hurschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., have just what you want. John Beall, of Hebron, is their agent.

A drove of cattle passing over the bridge at Florence X-Roads, last week, disabled the structure so as to render it dangerous, and the authorities condemned it. The travel now crosses the creek above or below the bridge.*

Mr. Abel Carpenter, one of our staunch citizens was in town, last Friday. Mr. Carpenter spent about two days getting the water out of his cistern just at the beginning of the drouth, and he has enjoyed the luxury of carrying water for some time.

Last Wednesday, while Charlie Winston, son of Mr. A. G. Winston, was getting away from a couple of his father's horses that were kicking each other, he fell, breaking one bone in his left wrist, which is attended with the pain usually produced by such injuries.

Those brag $5 factory Blankets are selling rapid, over 50 pair sold all ready at Colter's, Rising Sun, Ind.*

Mrs. Jane Foster, whose serious illness was mentioned last week, died on Friday night. Mrs. Foster was an aged lady, and leaves one son and one daughter, Mrs. A. E. Crisler of this county, and Elijah Hogan ex-Sheriff, and Representative-elect in Gallatin county.

James Riddell, who saw the negro at the time he shot the horse driven by Chas. Schramm to the Enterprise Fair, says it was accidental, and that the negro was attempting to load the pistol when it was discharged. The negro had never been in the employ of Riddell & Norris.

The tobacco crop is about all in the house, and as the weather has been very favorable for cutting and housing, it is fair to assume that its present condition is good. In weight, the crop this year will fall considerably short of last year's crop, if reports from different neighborhoods can be relied on.

The ducks and geese were as glad as anybody else to see the rain last Sunday. Yes, we met what the Joe's call an old goose, Sunday evening, on the pike, and it lifted its h—t, (we mean it flopped its wings) as though it was glad to see the rain. Now we don't mean this for you Jim.

The docket for the October term of the Circuit Court which convenes Monday is composed of 36 common law appearances, 11 of which are for damages; 8 common law cases continued from last term; 15 old indictments and 24 new indictments returned by the last grand jury. There are 18 equity appearances and 48 continued equity cases.

The back-bone of the drouth commence weakening last Friday morning, and the elements were unsettled as to what course to pursue; but about 1:30 p. m. Sunday the question was settled by the best rain that has visited this section for a time almost to which the mind of man runneth not to the contrary The rain was accompanied by hail which would have done serious injury to growing tobacco, but the most of that crop was cut, and but little injury resulted.

The last days of William Walton's sojourn in this county came near bearing him distress. During the absence of himself and wife, one day last week, his sons, Everett and Paul, while out doors, discovered that something was burning in one of the second story rooms, to which they hastened, where they found the clothing on a bed burning rapidly. The fire was extinguished with a bucket of water before being communicated to the building. The cause of the fire is attributed to the lighting of a match, by a mouse as there was no other means by which it could be started.

R. S. Strader, who at one time resided where Dr. J. C. Terrill now lives, shot and killed a negro boy at his stables near Lexington last Friday night. The negro, attempting to commit some depredation about the stables that night had been driven away twice, the last time being shot at by some of the employes of Mr. Strader. On his third appearance Mr. S. was notified of his return, when he went out to the stables, taking with him a shot gun, both barrels of which were loaded. When he discovered the negro he was coming toward him rapidly, but was stopped by a load from the gun in Strader's hands. The shot soon proved fatal. Strader surrendered, and was discharged by the examining court the next day. A pistol was found on the body of the negro.

Last Wednesday morning Charles Westbay was at the spring near the common school-house, watering his team preparatory to going to the city, and when getting into the wagon the horses started, and upset the wagon, which caused them to run off, coming up Washington street at a great rate of speed, having run against a fence and demolished one fore wheel. W. R. Terrill saw them coming when he ran to the wagon and getting in went to the front and got hold of the lines and succeeded in stopping the runaways in Union street near McKim's store, having turned two street corners. Getting into the wagon when the horses were running was a fearless act that no one else would have undertaken. The wagon was badly used up and is now on the docks for repairs.

Wednesday night about half-past 11 o'clock an alarm of fire was sounded, the cause proving to be the burning of the storehouse of H. S. Pate, in Rabbit Hash, Ky., just opposite Rising Sun. When discovered the fire had made such progress that it was useless to attempt to save the burning building. A keg of powder exploded, throwing firebrands in all directions, and for a time it looked as though the dwelling of Ben Wilson and several other houses in the neighborhood would surely go, but hard work on the part of the Kentuckians, assisted by a number of Rising Sunners saved all except a small building that stood but a few feet from the store. Mr. Pate's stock of goods, valued at $2,000, was totally destroyed. A $2,000 insurance policy was placed on the stock a short time ago. Dr. L. C. Cowen, who had an office in the building, lost all his books and accounts, but he was insured for $200. Stephen Mock, owner of the store building, which was new, had an insurance of $800, One theory as to the cause of the fire is that the store was broken into by thieves, and then set it on fire to cover up all traces of the burglary.—Rising Sun Local.

About four o'clock the afternoon before, Deputy Sheriff German had levied on a portion of the goods that were burned, for debts owing parties in the city.

People go fifty miles to trade at Colter's, Rising Sun, Indiana.*

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

Rev. Dicken will commence a protracted meeting here next Sunday nigh.

Mr. Simeon Clore, of Waveland, Ind. was the guest of Noah Clore, near Florence, last week.

Mrs. S. S. Westbay and son, Johnnie, of Brinkley, Arkansas, are visiting relatives at this place.

Mr. George Duvall and wife, of Cincinnati, were visiting Mr. James Westbay and family, Sunday.

Dan Hewitt, of Woolper Heights, came to town Saturday bringing the printers some nice peaches.

Miss Annie Cowen, daughter of Jas. Cowen, of Gallatin county, is visiting her grandfather, Samuel Cowen, and family at this place.

Mrs. W. S. Huey has moved to Burlington, and now occupies Mrs. Francis Riddell's house, Mr. McFarland having moved into Mr. Rous[illegible] house.

Dr. Cowen, of Rabbit Hash, was in town Monday. Since the destruction of his pills and powders by the fire the other night, he can take a short vacation. He also lost all his books and accounts.

Buy your Boots and Shoes at Colters, Rising Sun, Indiana.*

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Huntsville.

A good rain fell here Sunday evening, which was long wished for by everyone.

Farmers are very busy housing their tobacco, and will be busy this week cutting corn and sowing wheat.

Several of the young folks of this place attended the Sunday-school celebration at Hopeful Church, Saturday.

A. M. Acra, of Burlington, was here Saturday night,

James Pope and Miss Ida Pope were visiting Elliot Snyder and wife, of near Florence, Sunday.

James D. Acra will soon be ready to build an addition to his residence.

A. B. Acra claims to have the largest, Mabley pumpkin in the neighborhood.

Florence X-Roads.

Fine rain last Sunday.

The Hopeful Sabbath-school celebration, last Saturday was a very pleasant affair, and was largely attended. The Hebron school was out in force. Rev. A. J. Douglas delivered the address which was very appropriate and interesting.

F. H. Russell has been repairing his mill. He has a large supply of logs in the yard.

J. J. Tanner's new house is about completed.

A Mr. Cole proposes to teach a 5 months school at this place. The house has been provided with a lot of new desks.

John Aylor furnished some good beef last week.

A. F. Crigler has returned from a visit to Ohio.....Jeff Riggs has returned from Indiana. He reports crops not the finest he ever saw.....Uncle Billy Tanner has gone to Virginia to visit the home of his youth and the friends of his childhood......Mrs. Delia Utz entertained a large number of her neighbors and friends last Sunday. Among them were Michael Dilger and son, of Cincinnati,

Rabbit Hash.

About 12 o'clock on the night of the 19th of September, fire was discovered issuing from the roof of the new house of Stephen R. Mock in this place, occupied as a store and grocery by H. S. Pate, jr., of Rising Sun, Ind. The fire when discovered, had made such progress that it was impossible to save the building or any of its contents, but by the timely arrival of the neighbors and some of the citizens of Rising Sun, the property of Wilson & Riddell stored in a building near by, was nearly all saved, although the building itself was burned. And now in behalf of Messrs. Wilson & Riddell and at their request, we tender to the citizens of Rabbit Hash, and especially to our kind neighbors of Rising Run, who so generously aided them in saving their property from the devouring flames, their grateful thanks. The house of Mock was a total loss, which is probably covered by insurance. All the goods of H. S. Pate and the house belonging to the heirs of Robt. Piatt, decd., and lately occupied by Wilson & Riddell, are swept away.

The members of the Baptist Church in East Bend, have just completed a beautiful and substantial fence around their church property, and now it will compare in appearance favorably with any similar property in the county.

Mrs. Annie Stephens and her son, Master Victor, who have been visiting relatives and friends in this neighborhood for the past month, will return to their home in Monroe county, Missour', the 25th.

Francesville.

The Rev. Dicken assisted by the Rev. Robt. Kirtley has been carrying on a protracted meeting at this place for the past two weeks. As yet there has been but one addition to the church. Mr. Dicken is certainly a very able speaker and he has made a strong effort to convert the ungodly and have them to come within the pales of the church, but it appears that the Francesvillians and the neighborhood at large are past redemption, and it will be but few years ere we will be in want of a missionary sent among us for the purpose of enlightenment.

Considerable excitement prevailed here at the beginning of last week in Hotel circles. It seems there was a strife between the proprietor of the Hayes house and the landlord of the Hedges hotel, as to who would entertain the delegation from Burlington (which by the way are building a barn for Mr. Noah Utz). Mine host of the Hayes house cut the rates on a pas with the Grand of Cincinnati, the other could not call his hand. The delegation therefore are stopping at the Hayes house, and from what we have heard great animosity exists between the landlords, and in all probability it will be a duel as landlords generally are desperate characters, especially when it comes to settling a board bill.

Billy Hayes has made a valuable addition to his slaughter house in the way of a large tank. He will use it for rendering out tallow, lard and for various purposes. He contemplates putting up a bone mill next spring, which, judging from the corn crop here, will amply pay him as there will be a large supply of bones on the market, and Billy might as well reap the profits as Si Keek.

Squirrels were very plentiful in this vicinity until last Thursday, when we went out hunting and succeeded in killing two and scaring the balance to death.

Mrs. Sereptha Pritchard sustained a serious fall from a horse, on the 17th inst. She had been visiting at Mr. Joe Graves' and was in the act of mounting her horse to leave, when the saddle turned with her, throwing her backwards to the ground. We are informed that she is not considered dangerously hurt though seriously.

Our almanac says now is a good time to dig cisterns and ice houses, and our almanac knows.

We have a man in our neighborhood that is afflicted with the watermelon kleptomania, another new disease, and sometimes fatal.

The sunflowers are fast losing their roseate hue, reminding us that summer is past, and in a few short weeks we will hear the wind whistling around the corner asking us what we have done with our last year's earnings.

Mr. Scothorn's house is nearing completion, Mrs. Goodrich has had her house remodeled which has added to its appearance very much.

Mr. George Morton and wife, of Indianapolis, are visiting at Mr. Abe Wainscotts

Those desiring a good article of coal will do well to call on Davis Bros., Constance. We have purchased our winter coal from them and find it contains more gas than we do ourself.

Florence.

I had just finished a lengthy article on drought—indeed I had made a real grammar founded on scientific principles and philosophical research. I was prompted to this effort by the inadequacy of the present text books by comparison to express the dry state of affairs.

Why, one man said his neighbor's pond had dried out, cracked open and burned up. Another lighted his coal with a match without kindling. A third wanted to borrow the water used to rinse the glasses at the bar to sprinkle his floor; he was refused upon the ground that he wanted to dry it out and get the whisky.

Dry, dryer, dryest, is the way they talk up the degree of comparison now, per contra, wet, wetter, wettest. This practice was established way back in the times of Old Noah when Mother Earth was soaked with water, and there were only three dry spots, the farms of Shem, Ham and Japeth. Since that time, four thousand years, our planet has been whirling and pitching around the burning rays of Old Sol, and she's dried out. The inhabitants are dry and the superlative degree don't express it. I had this all arranged by a critical analysis and was flattering myself upon my effort and how I would present it to the Teachers' Institute at its next session; how the teachers would envy my grammar qualifications; what debating; how the commissioner would come down with his gavel and the examiners would resign their position, and the next issue of the RECORDER would announce the great loss to the educational interest of Kentucky in a supplement with bold head lines. But unlucky moment an unexpected shower threw a damper upon my dry article, the bottom fell out of my manuscript, and the glory of an author faded forever.

I took a stroll through town to-day along the shady side of Main St., to try to pick up something newsy. The glorious rain had washed the dust from the shade trees and the dirt from the streets and sidewalks The merchants were busy cleaning windows and displaying their goods. The farmers were at the shops with their plows preparatory to seeding. The pumps at the well replenished, hotel cisterns were once more blessed with cranks, and the hostlers at their posts, awaiting for a nickel. The loungers were in their accustomed places. The excited conversation and anxious appearance of a group of humanity drew my attention, I paused as I drew near. A first-class tragedy thought I, as breathless I listened. "They may jail me, but I'll never tell," said one. Caught the assassin and want him to confess I thought. "Is the Sheriff in town?" said another. Going to mob him I guess. "When is court?" said a third. Perhaps they'll let the law take its course, and I breathed easier. "I'm dry said another;" all said "I should smile," as they disappeared in a near hotel.

I intuitively followed to the door. The whole party stood in line before the bar, confronted by the landlord who with cocked revolver in hand demanded answers to the following questions: "Are each of you 35 years of age and duly sober?" "Is there any streak of insanity traceable back to your ancestors?" "Are any of you related by blood or marriage to Smith Brown or the Sharp Brothers?" "Barkeeper," said the landlord, "the answers entitle this party to ginger ale, be quick and don't repeat."

As they departed I entered, feverish and excited. I told the landlord I was a representative of the press, and would like to interview his bar. "Bring a certificate of good moral character and enter by the side door." he grufly replied. I started to cross the street, was jostled by a fellow with a big club in his hand, and just behind him and in a stooping posture, with a swinging basket on his face, was another fellow who screamed out to a tall young man with red cheeks, who stood a little further along to "curve'er." A little boy said, "he can't, cause he's got a sweetheart and he's dead on her, he is."

GAS OMETER.

Colter's, Rising Sun, Ind., is the place to laying your winter goods.*

Over three thousand Full Suits to select from at Colter's, Rising Sun, Ind.*

Next Saturday afternoon the Boones will play a picked nine composed of players from Cleves, Delhi and Riverside, O.; Taylorsport and other places in Boone. This will be one of the most interesting games of the season, and all lovers of the sport should go to see it. It will be played on the Boones' ground (Dr. Terrill's ball park.) Game called at 2 p. m. Admission 15 cents.

Lewis Weaver, of Sunbright, Tenn. writes under date of 20th inst., as follows:

We are having very dry weather here—rain is needed badly. We have had a frost which damaged the corn some on low land—no tobacco to damage. Our crop of peaches is about exhausted. The crops of Seed Ticks and wild turkeys are very fine, and there are some deer here. Oil well supplies have been received here for shipment to Overton county, where they are now boring for oil. Parties from the North are becoming interested here, and we expect an oil well will be sunk in Sunbright this fall. From what we can learn these parties are well pleased with the oil outlook and our grazing. There is an abundance of elbow room here for all who desire to come to the mountains.

Mrs. Lewis Weaver is improving, and says Martin Weaver has the boss baby.

The rain that fell Sunday and Monday relieved us of a job that we were getting particularly fond of, that of carrying water about a quarter of a mile before breakfast.

In some localities in the north part of the county there was a heavy fall of hail Sunday. In some places hailstones were not melted late in the day Monday. Tobacco not cut was considerably injured.

Thieves made their quarterly raid on Mike Clore's store at Hebron, Monday night, taking about $35 worth of goods. One of James Riley's horses was taken and rode to Bromley, supposed to have been ridden by the thieves.

J. W. KIRKPATRICK & SON,
—BURLINGTON, KY.—
UNDERTAKERS
—AND—
EMBALMERS,
Will furnish nice Hearse any reasonable distance for $10.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office over Dudley Rouse's Store.

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence,
Burlington, - - Ky.

L. C. NORMAN. R. T. STEPHENS.
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW,
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt atten tion given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

S. W. TOLIN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. Aprompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - - OHIO.
Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

We Have
J. SCHOFIELD & SON'S
JEANS, BLANKETS AND YARNS.
THE JEANS IS BLUE WARP, THE PRICE IS
45 Cents.
Those parties that wanted to get a corner on Schofield's Goods are badly disappointed, as they see they can't get 60 cents a yard for the Madison Jeans when we propose to stir matters up a little.
COLTER, Rising Sun, Ind

DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS.
R O
FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES,
SALT BY THE BARREL.
R O U S E.
BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS.
The Best of Flour
PATENT & HIGH GRADE
Always on Hand, and cheaper than the cheapest.
S E
QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE.
DUDLEY ROUSE'S.
I now have on hand a full Stock of SCHOFIELDS Flannels, Jeans, and Yarns. Call early and make a Purchase.

M.L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEED.
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE,
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.
Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month,
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping,
All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE
Petersburg Drug Store,
Where you can find everything in the
Drug line, such as———.
Well call and see and be convinced.
Respectfully, S. C BUCHANAN.

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S
Indian Blood Syrup
Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood.
Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the
BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.
TRADE MARK.
Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.
AGENTS WANTED.
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St., New York City. Druggists sell it.
D. CLARK JOHNSON:— This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. McCAME, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '83

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300,000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK.
Covington, Kentucky.
DIRECTORS.
James S. Wayne, M. C. Motch, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green,
J. S. Matson, J. H. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H Dills, F. P. Helm,
L. C. Stephens.
The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.
The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank. dec. 20-6m

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar7-tf23
J. W. Talbott.

UNDERTAKING.
We keep Constantly on Hand all sizes of
Burial Cases and Caskets.
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES GUARANTEED LESS THAN CITY PRICES.
DAVIS BROS., - - HEBRON, KY.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL, Publishers.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY.

MODEL CHILDREN.

Dat fust chile am Abs'lum 'Neezer,
 An' dat nex' one's Ephaham;
Ober dar am Potiphar Cæsar—
 Him as we fo' short call Sam.

Sorter 'semblin'? Like free pins, sah;
 Can't mos' tell which which one am;
Dat, I 'spec', is case dey's twins, sah—
 Abs'lum, Ephaham, an' Sam.

Yo' nebber seed sich peaceable chillun;
 No, dey nebber disumgree;
Jes' watch 'em eat dat water-millun—
 Peaceable, sah, as dey kon be.

Dar, now, chillun, quit yer foolin';
 Frow dat piece o' peel away;
Yes, dey likes ter all be rulin',
 But dey'll mind jes' when I say.

Luff him be, dar, Ephaham; yo'
 Needn't look de biggest share!
Fo' de solem' fack I'll flam yo,
 If ye doan divide dat fair!

Did'n ye heah me talkin', Abs'lum!
 Luff right go ob Eph'ham's ba'r!
Dar's enuff; ye all ken hab sum—
 Cuff him agin, sah, if yo' dare!

Potiphar, stop dat! Mind yer mudder!
 Look out 'fo' ye tear his cloze!
Hain't yer 'shamed to scratch yer brudder?
 See dat poor little Abs'lum's nose!

Hi! yo' wile-cat, dar! he's stranglin'!
 Doan yer da's to frow dat stone!
'Pears yer wuss'n dogs fur janglin',
 If I da's to leab yer 'lone!

Whist! I heah de ole man 'wakin'!
 Skatter quick, wid all yer might;
Ye ken bet ye'll git a shakin'
 If ye doan skoot out o' sight.

See 'em git! Yah! yah! What chillun!
 Coorse dey'll jangle when dey's mad;
But dey'll quit, sah, mighty willin',
 When I menshun de ole man's gad.

—Charles H. Turner, in Century Magazine.

THE SHUTES OF SHEFFIELD.

My wife and I had given much thought to the question of house rent, and had decided that we should not be justified in exceeding £120 a year, but we hoped to find a pretty little place in the country at that rate. Our requirements were modest. "Give me a well-cooked chop and a good glass of sherry, and I can rough it anywhere," said the intending traveler. We only wanted a thoroughly pleasant house, within easy distance of a country town where there was good society, a really good garden, a stable and coach-house, and a few fields. We had looked at many houses, when one day, after a morning of disappointment, we saw a charming one standing some little distance from the road, and a notice informed us it was to be let. We went to see it. It was simply perfect, and was surrounded by a garden which I loved at first sight. It was sheltered from every cold wind, open to every benign influence, and full of the most beautiful, old-fashioned flowers, all growing as if they had been at home there for years! A single glance showed me that some which I had long been vainly trying to cultivate were flourishing here with happy indifference to human care. My wife was delighted with the house—so was I—but it was the garden which completely carried me away. It was not very large, but there were wide open walks, and pretty, secluded paths, and roses and fruit trees, a lawn, and magnificent flower borders. Having once seen that garden, I never could be satisfied with any other.

"It's pretty, sir," said the housekeeper, observing how lovingly my eyes dilated. "A many pretty flowers grows here. They grow of their own accord like, for the gardener has little trouble with them."

"The gardener!" I exclaimed; "I never let people of that kind run riot among my flowers!"

"Oh, lor, sir, well to be sure! But there has always been a gardener here. That's his cottage there, behind the trees," and she pointed out a pretty, red cottage across the lawn. Little was visible but the tops of some dormer windows, for a high trellis covered with roses screened it from view.

"What's the rent of Fairlawn?" I asked, in sudden fear, for the little bit I saw of the gardener's cottage was so well built that it alarmed me.

"One hundred and sixty pounds, sir."

My wife's countenance fell. With prompt decision she took off her spectacles, put them carefully in their case, and stowed them away in her bag as no longer needed.

"One hundred and sixty pounds," I repeated, very sadly.

"Yes, my dear, that settles it," said my beloved wife; but she had no idea what regret I was feeling.

"I suppose it's no use thinking of it," said I, with a sigh, "but I never saw flowers do so well in any garden before."

"Come, John," said my wife. "It's only tiring ourselves for no purpose—we had better go. You know as well as I do that we ought not to saddle ourselves with such a high rent."

"Stop! I have an idea," said I, joyously. "We might reduce the rent by letting that cottage."

"You might, sir," interposed the housekeeper. "It has six rooms and a kitchen; it was let a little while back to the Curate. It's only the last year or two the gardener has had it."

We went to the cottage, and when I saw what an excellent house it was I decided to take Fairlawn. I settled the matter at once, and in ten days began to move in. I gave the cottage a name likely to inflame ardent and poetical minds, called it Eglantine Cottage, and advertised it freely. It had a verandah covered with roses, and a pretty little garden of its own in front, sloping down to the high road. We had established ourselves at Fairlawn, brought our dear only daughter home from school, and returned most of the calls made on us by the resident gentry, before we had an application for the Cottage. At last a gentleman came—a man of five and thirty, with bushy, brown hair, keen, inquiring, gray eyes, and a singularly intelligent face. His name was Shute. He had studied for the Bar, but was forced to live in the country on account of his wife's health, and now devoted himself to art. They had no children, and did not object to a forty-pound rent, though I myself had feared it was rather too much. All was soon settled, provided the references he gave me were satisfactory.

They were most satisfactory. Each of the two responsible and well-to-do gentlemen to whom I wrote had the greatest pleasure in testifying to the high character of the gentleman who wished to be my tenant, and each concluded by saying that such testimony on his part was almost unnecessary, seeing that the said gentleman was one of the Shutes of Sheffield. I read this, and straightway a fine flavor of respectability attached itself to my tenant—he was one of the Shutes of Sheffield. This being the case, I dedicated to his enjoyment the larger part of a large hamper of fine ferns which had been sent me from Cumberland, and went and planted them myself in telling spots. That done, I tied up his roses so that his wife might have the full benefit of their beauty. And now all care was over, and we were really happy at Fairlawn. My wife had her pony carriage and explored the neighborhood, and I had my garden and my box of books from the library. Mr. Shute's furniture began to arrive, and Mr. Shute himself came to see all made ready for his delicate wife. He stayed with us, but he was so busy that we did not see much of him. He was, however, a very pleasant fellow, and we liked him.

"I won't trouble you with my furniture-arranging difficulties, my dear Mr. and Mrs. Peveril," said he, "but there is one little favor I would like to ask of you. Would you mind having that trellis lowered a little? It would be such a treat to my poor wife to have just a glimpse of your exquisite garden from her sofa. She is so unfortunate as to be almost a confirmed invalid."

"I shall be very glad—" I began.

"Thank you! thank you! I felt sure you would be kind. Shall I give orders to have the trellis removed, or will you?"

"Removed!" I had imagined that he said "lowered." Now, I like to throw off my coat and waistcoat when I am working in my garden—but one can't behave ill to a delicate woman.

"She is coming to-morrow," said he; "there is no time to lose."

I had not the courage to plead for its only being lowered, and now the windows of Eglantine Cottage raked my happy hunting-grounds where I had hitherto been so full of liberty, and so alone. My heart ached for the poor roses which had been thrown down with the trellis. Mr. Shute began to pluck them, and said he would put them in water to help to make the house gay for his wife. Then he threw them down, exclaiming: "After all, she won't be here till to-morrow. I am sure you will give me a handful of fresh ones in the morning."

"You have roses of your own," said I, impatiently, for he had flung down all those he had just gathered—and it infuriates me to see flowers ill-treated.

"I know I have," said he, calmly; "but I don't want to touch mine. They make the front of the house look well. My wife, Mr. Peveril, is quite the creature of impression! Come and see how you like the look of the little place now that the furniture is in."

Everything looked most charming. The rooms were large and low, with low, wide-latticed windows and window seats. The view into my garden was delicious. I never thought the Shutes paid too much rent after I had seen that. Their furniture was of the "Queen Anne" time, and suited the rooms to perfection. Eglantine Cottage was infinitely prettier than Fairlawn. I began to feel unbounded respect for this scion of the Shutes of Sheffield, for all this delightful result had been obtained so easily. There was very little furniture in the drawing-room; the floor was covered with Indian matting and Persian rugs; the curtains were of Japanese muslin; the walls hung with the most exquisite water-colors in perfectly simple wooden frames. There were twelve or thirteen magnificent Turners! I had only one, the gift of my rich uncle, and I was accustomed to consider it a priceless possession. Mr. Shute actually had thirteen, and a Girtin and a Barrett as well! Besides this there were shelves full of beautiful china plates. I had never seen such a dainty abode before. Such richly hung walls were a most agreeable sight to a landlord! Full of comforting inner warmth, I exclaimed. "Well, there is no fear of Mrs. Shute not admiring this!"

"You think so?" said he; "I'm so glad! I have had to be very careful what I did. You see, she is quite the creature of impression. I should be miserable if she said the Cottage was not pretty. By the by, did you know that she was one of the Wilmots of Taunton?"

Now I was not going to stand that. I had made up my mind to feel a great respect for the Shutes of Sheffield, and, if they all had as good an idea of furnishing as Edward Shute, they were emphatically worthy of it; but I was not going to allow myself to be so much impressed by any other family. Besides, what were the Wilmots of Taunton to me? I was well acquainted with every rose that was grown, I knew every pansy worthy of a place in my garden, but—I had never heard of the Wilmots of Taunton.

We went over all the rooms; one was fitted up as a studio. Mr. Shute's easel was set up, his color-box and palettes were ready; but, of course, he had not begun to work yet.

"I shall be glad when I get her safely here," said he. "By the by, how am I to fetch her from the railway station? Do you mind lending me the pony carriage?"

I said I would lend it to him; but I wished he had not said the pony carriage; if he had said your pony carriage it would not have looked so much like a vehicle which belonged just as much to him as to me.

Mrs. Shute was a tall, pale, languid-looking woman of eight and twenty, with fair hair—which was by no means all her own—and dull, blue eyes. She spent most of her time on the sofa.

"I do so wish that we had a little bit of ground at the back of our house," said Mr. Shute one day to my wife, "if it were ever so small. My poor wife never gets out; she can't sit in our garden, for it is so near the road, and being so much in the house is so dull."

Having said this, he looked anxiously into her eyes to see how much Christian charity she possessed.

My wife, poor dear woman, was taken by surprise, and replied: "I wish Mrs. Shute would use our garden sometimes—when my husband is not working in it, I mean, for when he is busy he likes to be careless about appearances."

"Oh! thank you. How truly kind!" exclaimed Mr. Shute. "Then we will have a key made. You know there is a door from our back yard into your garden, and we will have a key made for it at once, unless you have one you can lend us."

And now my poor wife knew what she had done, for, of course, it was out of the question for an invalid like Mrs. Shute to walk all the way round by the lane to the proper entrance, and yet, if she had a key and could come and go when she liked, all my pleasure in the garden would be gone. "You won't go when my husband is at work?" she said in desperation to Mrs. Shute, and then trusted to her delicacy. What a poor, weak thing to trust to!

They got the key—they used it. Mrs. Shute, who was not strong enough to go around to the proper entrance, meandered for miles along our gravel-paths and lawn. I could always trace her presence, for she plucked every flower she fancied, and flung it as quickly away, and I saw my slaughtered innocents lying bruised and withered in the sun, and could have slain her in turn. Mrs. Shute might be the creature of impression, but the flowers were the creatures of impression, too, and bore the marks of her ridiculous high-heeled shoes as she crushed them down in her indifference and passed on. For some little time she respected my feelings and never entered the garden when I was at work. Soon, however, she came when she chose; and frequently I, hard at work in my gray flannel shirt, would see a sylph-like form arrayed in spotless white glide toward me, which planted a camp-stool within a yard of me, and seemed determined to enter into a prolonged conversation. If I moved away Mrs. Shute was certain to follow me. It was best to try not to mind her being there, and let her sit admiring her pretty feet and open-worked stockings, and utter weak little remarks.

She was always affable. "I see, Mr. Peveril, you are quite au bout des doigts with all your flowers!" said she one day, most kindly.

"H'm," I replied. "Yes, I like flowers."

"So do I! I worship them! I even admire a lot of great ugly ferns we have in our own garden!" Thus did the creature of impression speak of the lovely rare ferns which I had sacrificed to the tenants who were to help me pay my rent.

"Don't you like ferns?" I said, half inclined to make an effort to get them back again.

"Well, yes, in the woods; but I like Pelar-r-rgoniums in gardens; nothing looks better. If I had plenty of money I'd just put hundreds of them in front of our house. What a thing money is, Mr. Perevil! and there are actually some people who are so crowded with it that they don't know what to do with it but make an ostentation of it."

"I am very sure I should know what to do with mine, if I had a little more," was my thought—for I was forced to endure this lady's company for want of a miserable forty pounds a year.

She perhaps found me unusually dull, for she said she would "stroll about a bit," and hastily knotting up a "guinea switch of hair" which was rolling down her back, she went away. Presently she returned with the Grosvenor book which I was looking forward to the treat of reading when my work was done. She had obtained it by thrusting her arm at the open window, and removing it from the table where it was lying awaiting my return. She and her husband, too, were extremely fond of possessing themselves of whatever they happened to want. She borrowed a book in this nefarious way. He came in a panic—his wife was ill; would we let him have half a dozen bottles of old port? Or he was suddenly seized with admiration of one of our water-colors. We had three good ones, but he was not satisfied with anything less than our Turner, and asked if we would allow him to take it to the Cottage for an hour or two, and place it on an easel near his wife's sofa—it would help to while away the weary hours, and she was the—

Rather than hear him say she was the creature of impression I hastened away to get the picture for him. His wife did not care for pictures; why did he borrow them for her? She did not care for books, either. She was entirely uneducated; and though possibly a Wilmot of Taunton, she certainly was not a lady. She wished to be pleasant, though, and was very fond of sympathizing with me whenever she happened to observe certain small green insects which she called "nasty afrites" on my roses. Had she been reading "The Persian and Turkish Tales?" I wished an ill-disposed afrite would carry her off—but nothing ever did carry her away from my side but the sight of the gardener going toward the kitchen garden. Then she said in a moment; "Dear Mr. Peveril, Edward and I are so fond of fresh vegetation, may I go and ask that man to cut off some little trifle for the Cottage?" and I, rejoicing at this momentary good fortune, always said: "Oh, pray do." And she went and commanded him to hear to her abode cauliflowers and peas, lettuces, apricots, or whatsoever else was agreeable to the palate of a creature of impression. For my part, I should not have cared what went to the Cottage so long as nothing came from it—to sit by my side, I mean. But my wife said too much went! They had new-laid eggs, milk, cream, and more butter than we could well spare, and they did not pay as they got it, but let the account run on.

"Be patient," said I; "don't complain and don't offend them. We should have been very hard up without these Shutes, for I have spent more than I ought on the house and garden, and it is an immense comfort to have such rich tenants. They must be rich, for those pictures on their walls are worth thousands. Don't let us think of the Shutes. Let us enjoy our happiness?"

Our dear daughter had got a lover—not a declared one, but one who was evidently in earnest. He was a thoroughly conscientious, upright man, and had a small estate which had been in his family for a couple of centuries. Our joy about this made us tolerant of the Shutes. The young folks met constantly, and the more we saw of Mr. Ducie the more we liked him. Perhaps it was a lucky thing that Mrs. Shute liked sitting on my lawn better than driving with my wife, for if she had used our pony carriage my daughter would have had to stay at home, and Mr. Ducie would have had fewer opportunities of seeing her.

One day, after irritating me by calling my penstemons antirrhinums, when I should have disliked to hear her bestow such an appellation on my snapdragons, she, who knew nothing of our secret hopes, suddenly exclaimed: "Mr. Peveril, don't you think that Mr. Ducie who comes to your house is a very charming young man? We have asked him to the Cottage, and he is coming! There are a great many nice young men in this neighborhood! I am going to invite my sister to come and stay with me—she is such a nice girl, and so beautiful!"

I could see the connection of ideas. She was going to invite her sister to the Cottage in the hope of fascinating some one—most probably our Mr. Ducie! This was fatal, for if Mrs. Shute made up her mind to deprive us of anything which seemed good in her eyes, nothing remained to us but to resign ourselves to letting her have it.

My poor Dorothea! I sighed heavily. That marriage on which we had set our hearts was not to be. Mrs. Shute's sister, a Wilmot of Taunton, and probably also a creature of impression, would come and win away Mr. Ducie's affections from my daughter, and my wife and I would be such fools that even we would allow ourselves to be drawn into doing our part toward producing that result. I was silent for some time; I was afraid she would notice it; I did not want her to know how we felt about Mr. Ducie, so I said: "I suppose your husband is hard at work this fine morning?"

"Yes, he is busy copying—painting, I mean," said she, in some confusion.

"Copying nature, I suppose," said I; but it occurred to me that considering he was a landscape painter, Mr. Shute staid a great deal indoors.

Miss Wilmot came She was as bright and rosy as Mrs. Shute was pale, and hardly had she arrived than the Shutes began to borrow our pony carriage freely, and asked us to lend them our lawn for a tennis party they wished to give to introduce her.

"They want to invite Mr. Ducie!" I exclaimed, when my wife told me this. "It is too much! It's like seething a kid in its mother's milk!"

"And we shall have to supply the strawberries, and the cream, and lend the teacups and teaspoons, and a couple of servants! And she wants to borrow our long dining-table to place under a tree on the lawn, and has not got a table-cloth long enough to cover it, but is sure that we have, and won't mind lending it, and—"

"Say no more," said I, decidedly. "We must draw the line somewhere, and I draw it at giving up Mr. Ducie to them."

He was there even while we were speaking; he told us of his visit afterward, and said he thought Miss Wilmot a very charming girl, though it was easy to see that, like the fat boy in "Pickwick," "he knew a nicerer;" but how long would he continue to put my Dorothea in the first place if these Shutes began to angle for him in earnest? Our experience was that they always managed to get what they wanted. He begun to go to the Cottage a great deal more than I liked. My wife said it was because from the Shutes' windows he could sometimes see Dorothea walking in our garden. I did not know. Why did he not come to us?

He did come to us, and sometimes asked Dorothea to stroll with him in the garden, but no sooner did they go out than Mrs. Shute and Miss Wilmot joined them. I called the latter "the Abominable, that uninvited came," but how could the mind revert to poetry in the midst of such vexation as this?

While everything was in this wretchedly uncomfortable state I received a letter from my uncle—the uncle I did not want to offend. It was rather cold, and it ended thus: "I think, John, you must now see that I had every reason to warn you against taking that foolishly expensive house of yours, but you need not have sold your 'Turner,' and you ought to have had at least another hundred for it. Besides, I would infinitely rather have lent you some money myself than have that exquisite drawing go out of the family!"

It had not gone out of the family—I had not sold it, and never meant to do so! It had been an act of great self-sacrifice to let it go to the Cottage for a few days, but now I had got it back and would keep it. My uncle's letter made me feel inclined to go and look at the drawing. I took it down to enjoy it thoroughly. It had been taken out of its frame. Why had that been done? I at once went to the Cottage to ask the question. The ladies were out. They had hired a carriage and gone to spend the day with Mr. Ducie's mother. They were evidently in terrible earnest about that affair, and it was a most significant feature that they had hired a carriage, instead of insisting on having ours.

"Mr. Shute is in the studio, sir: will you walk up stairs?" said the servant.

I walked up stairs, but he was not there. On the tables and easels I saw a number of water-color drawings in various stages of progress, all of which he was copying from others. Mr. Shute copied Turner drawings and sold them as originals! I saw it in a moment. And he had copied mine! Or had he, perhaps, sold the original and sent me back the copy? Then the drawings on his walls were copies, too, and I had not such a well-to-do tenant after all, for those Turners on the walls had been my sheet-anchor of safety. Perhaps the rent of this cottage, for which I had sacrificed so much, would never be paid, and my cream and new-laid eggs, my fruit, my vegetables, my peace of mind, even my hopes for the future, were all to be as nothing. Letters with foreign stamps lay on the table, doubtless orders from the antipodes for valuable drawings, which my clever tenant had no difficulty in supplying, and even now his wife and her sister were twining their meshes around—

I looked up suddenly, and saw from the Shutes' window my Dorothea and Mr. Ducie walking in the garden below, hand in hand. Joy took possession of my heart. He had fled from the two Wilmot sirens in search of my Dorothea!

We never saw the Shutes again. That same evening they left Eglantine Cottage. Next morning two emissaries of the law took possession of it. Mr. Shute was deeply in debt, but he had taken away nearly everything that was valuable. All that remained to satisfy his creditors was a certain amount of Indian matting, two pairs of flimsy curtains, a few rush-bottomed chairs, empty picture frames, and some furniture too heavy to be moved. The china plates which had looked so imposing were cracked in every direction, and neatly mended. Not one of them was worth one shilling. Everything else was much the same. This little palace of æstheticism had faded away in an hour or two.

My wife and I were so happy that we did not grieve over our lost rent. My uncle lent me £100, and three months afterward came to Dorothea's wedding, on which occasion he satisfied himself, and me, too, that my Turner was still on my walls, and that the estimable Mr. Shute of Sheffield had contented himself with making a copy.—Belgravia.

Our Sea Farms.

Prof. Huxley says that our deep-sea fisheries can never be exhausted. The entire catch of codfish on the coasts of Norway and the United States is but an insignificant fraction of the myriads of that fish which visit the northern shores of Northern Europe and Eastern North America. The annual catch of herring would not supply a week's consumption to an ordinary shoal of codfish, and yet as much herring is eaten by man as all other fish put together. An acre of water will supply more food for man than an acre of the best arable land. There is a shallow lagoon in the Adriatic Sea covering 70,000 acres of surface. For a great number of years it has added five hundred weight of fish to the acre—about double the quantity of food that can be derived from the most fertile land. Hence, oceans and deep seas can always be depended upon to supply unlimited quantities of food to mankind, no matter how dense the population of the globe may finally become. But this remark does not apply to in-shore, lake, and river fisheries. The supplies of salmon, shad, oysters, and lobsters can be reduced, unless the waters are intelligently restocked. Prof. Huxley paid a high compliment to the United States for the prudent treatment of its streams and coast lines in the re-stocking of delicious fish. The labors of Prof. Baird and his Fish Commission have been of immense benefit to the present generation, and will be of still greater advantage to the generations which are to follow.—Demorest's Monthly.

Chickory Farming.

Chickory farming promises to be one of the coming industries of California farming. Chicory was first planted in the State about fifteen years ago, but since that time it has been extensively raised on the San Joaquin and Sacramento Rivers. Chicory is cultivated on a small scale in some of the Eastern States, and in some places in that section grows wild in abandoned fields and orchards. It grows very luxuriantly on the bottom lands of Louisiana and Texas. The root of the plant, when being prepared for use, is cut by a machine, into small square blocks, then placed in the sun to dry, afterward roasted, and finally ground in a mill. Chicory possesses few elements in common with coffee; and yet it imparts a taste to it greatly fancied by certain coffee drinkers in Europe. In France and Belgium, the common people have been so accustomed to mix chicory with the coffee they drink that they prefer it, so prepared, to the beverage in its pure state. Travelers in those countries, even when they purchase pure coffee for their private consumption, find that the cooks will mix chicory with it, even after having received strict orders to the contrary.—San Francisco Chronicle.

American Triumph at Amsterdam.

The Mason & Hamlin Organ and Piano Company have just received the following cable dispatch from Mr. C. C. Bender, their agent in Holland, now representing them at the World's Exposition at Amsterdam: "Received Diploma of Honor, the very highest award." The Mason & Hamlin cabinet organs were placed in competition at this great exhibition with a large number from the leading makers of Europe and America, and this award is but a continuation of their unbroken series of triumphs at all the great world's exhibitions for the last sixteen years. Mason & Hamlin have now won the highest awards at Paris, 1867; Vienna, 1873; Santiago, 1875; Philadelphia, 1876; Paris, 1878; Milan, 1881, and Amsterdam, 1883.—Boston Journal.

A Clergyman's Advice.

Six months or more ago a stranger appeared in one of the stores of an adjoining town and asked for mutilated or punched coin. He purchased all that was exhibited and departed. Subsequently, during most of the time mentioned, he returned at intervals seeking further installments of damaged currency. A short time ago he made another visit and entered into explanations, substantially as follows: "I am a clergyman of the next town, and one of my deacons has been in the habit of putting all his punched coin in the contribution-box. But I have got even with him by collecting punched coin and paying him wholly in that kind of currency for a supply of firewood. He is cured now, and puts no more punched coin in the box."—Concord Monitor.

—An old man, of Machias, N. Y., died recently of a very peculiar illness. Two weeks before he died, it is said, his bones began to break. First his arm broke, then two or three of his ribs, and then his legs. He was ninety-six years old.

A Congressman speaking one day,
Got lame in his jaw, they do say.
With the ache he was toiling,
But a St. Jacobs Oiling,
He said was worth all his pay.

The champion driver Dan Mace,
Who never was "left" in a race,
Says for cuts and sprains,
And all bodily pains,
St. Jacobs Oil holds the first place.

People speak of gold as hard money, when in reality a gold dollar is a tender thing; legally so, in fact.—Troy (N. Y.) Times.

"Golden Medical Discovery" is warranted to cleanse the blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For scrofula, sores of all kinds, skin and blood diseases, its effects are marvelous. Thousands of Testimonials from all parts. Send stamp for pamphlet on skin diseases. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

"'Tis better to have loved and lost than" to have married and then have the girl sour on you.—N. Y. Graphic.

"With Grateful Feelings."

Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—Your "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Purgative Pellets" have cured my daughter of scrofulous swellings and open sores about the neck; and your "Favorite Prescription" has accomplished wonders in restoring to health my wife who had been bed-fast for eight months from Female Weakness. I am with grateful feelings, yours truly, T. H. Long, Galveston, Texas.

"Absence makes the heart grow fonder" of some other fellow.—Detroit Post.

"Fair Girl Graduates,"

Whose sedentary lives increase those troubles peculiar to women, should use Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," which is an unfailing remedy. Sold by druggists.

In 1819 Florida was ceded to the United States by the Spaniards. It has since been seeded to cotton and sweet oranges.

Huntsville, Ala.—Dr. J. C. Spotswood says: "I highly recommend Brown's Iron Bitters for dyspepsia, rheumatism and general debility."

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, September 21, 1883.
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—common	$2 00	@ 3 00
Choice butchers	4 00	@ 4 25
HOGS—Common	4 00	@ 4 75
Good packers	4 80	@ 5 15
SHEEP	3 75	@ 4 50
FLOUR—Family	5 25	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—Long berry red	1 06	@ 1 08
No. 2 red	1 02	@ 1 08
Corn—No. 2 mixed	51½	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed	29½	@
Rye—No. 2	56½	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	11 50	@
HEMP—Double dressed	8½	@
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	12 50	@12 75
Lard—Current make	8	@
BUTTER—Fancy Dairy	17	@ 18
Prime Creamery	20	@ 23
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per bar. from store	1 25	@ 1 30
Apples, prime, per barrel	2 50	@ 3 00
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 40	@ 3 80
Good to choice	4 50	@ 7 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 spring	1 05	@
No. 2 red	1 11½	@ 1 12
Corn—No. 2 mixed—new	61½	@ 62
Oats—mixed	32½	@ 36
PORK—Mess	13 50	@13 75
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@ 4 25
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 00	@
Corn—No. 2	50¼	@ 50¾
Oats—No. 2	27	@
Rye	55	@
PORK—Mess	10 60	@10 65
LARD—Steam	8·17½	@ 8·20
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 25	@ 6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 06½	@ 1 06¾
Corn—mixed	57	@
Oats—mixed	34	@ 36
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	14 50	@
Lard—Refined	10¼	@
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—A No. 1	$4 25	@ 4 50
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red, new	1 00	@
Corn—mixed	49	@
Oats—mixed	29½	@
PORK—MESS	12 25	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 red, new	$1 01	@
CORN—mixed	48	@
OATS—mixed	26¼	@
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	3 75	@ 4 50
Shipping cattle	5 25	@ 6 50

We should think there would be a continued row in a book-bindary, there are so many rulers.—Boston Post.

Catarrh.—For fifteen years I have been greatly annoyed with this disgusting disease, which caused severe pain in my head, continual dropping into my throat and unpleasant breath. My sense of smell was much impaired. By a thorough use for six months of Ely's Cream Balm I have entirely overcome these troubles. J. B. Case, St. Denis Hotel, Broadway and 11th St., N. Y.

If your dining-room is made cool and airy, how is your chambermaid?—Chicago Tribune.

Tampico, Tenn.—Rev. D. F. Manly says: "Brown's Iron Bitters relieved me of indigestion and nervousness after physicians failed."

The English Lord-Chief-Justice has been cordially received, but what will he say to our coal-ridge, the Alleghenies.—Pittsburgh Post.

Vigor, strength and health, all obtained by using Brown's Iron Bitters.

"Set a thief to catch a thief," and they divide the boodle.—N. Y. News.

Look Out for Frauds!

The genuine "Rough on Corns" is made only by E. S. Wells (Proprietor of "Rough on Rats"), and has laughing face of a man on labels. 15c and 25c bottles.

Don't Die in the House. "Rough on Rats," clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs. 15c.

One reason why more people don't go to the Yellowstone is because it takes too many yellow stones to get there.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer

Is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which Sulphur, Sugar of Lead and Nitrate of Silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. John D. Park & Sons, Wholesale Agents, Cincinnati, Ohio, and C. N. Crittenton, New York.

Skinny Men. "Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia.

Get Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffeners for those new boots or shoes before you run them over.

Stinging, irritation, all Kidney and Bladder Complaints, cured by "Buchu-Paiba." $1.

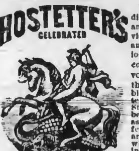
Colden's Liquid Beef Tonic

Promotes digestion in females of delicate health. Colden's, no other, of druggists.

St. Jacobs Oil

THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY
For Pain!
Relieves and cures
RHEUMATISM,
Neuralgia,
SCIATICA, LUMBAGO,
BACKACHE,
Headache, Toothache,
SORE THROAT,
QUINSY, SWELLINGS,
SPRAINS,
Soreness, Cuts, Bruises,
FROSTBITES,
BURNS, SCALDS,
And all other bodily aches and pains.
FIFTY CENTS A BOTTLE.
Sold by all Druggists and Dealers. Directions in 11 languages.
The Charles A. Vogeler Co.
(Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.)
Baltimore, Md., U. S. A.

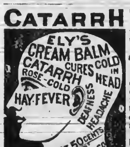
HOSTETTER'S
CELEBRATED



STOMACH
BITTERS

In fever and ague districts, in tropical and other regions visited by epidemics, and indeed in all localities where the conditions are unfavorable to health, this famous vegetable invigorant and alterative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has been found a potent safeguard even to feeble constitutions and fragile frames, while as a cure for indigestion, biliousness and kindred complaints, it is without a rival.
For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

CATARRH



HAY-FEVER

ELY'S CREAM BALM

when applied by the finger into the nostrils, will be absorbed, effectually cleansing the head of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membrane of the nasal passages from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores taste and smell. A few applications relieve. A thorough treatment will positively cure. Agreeable to use. Send for circular. Price 50 cents by mail or at druggists. Ely Brothers, Druggists, Owego, N. Y.

A POLICEMAN'S DUTY.

Policeman Ed. K. Heath, 19 North Street, Portland, Me. May 11, 1883, writes:

"I have been troubled for a good many years with inflammation of the bladder, dating as far back as during the time I was in the army. I suffered with dull, heavy pains in the back and kidneys too intense for me to describe, and tried several remedies that were recommended, and was examined by one of our best physicians, who pronounced it inflammation of the bladder; and I went to the hospital for treatment, but all medicine and treatment had seemed to fail. I was recommended to try Hunt's Remedy, as it had been used in several such cases here in Portland and vicinity. I purchased a bottle at Smith's drug store here, and found after using the first bottle that it relieved me greatly, and after using several bottles found that it did me more good than all other medicines and treatment I have received combined. And to add to my good opinion of Hunt's Remedy, I beg to state in closing that my wife has been for a long time troubled with a weakness and inflammation of the bladder, with a complication of other diseases peculiar to women. After using only two bottles she has been completely cured; and I can say that my wife is loud in praise of this wonderful medicine, and I would highly recommend it to all who are suffering from kidney diseases or diseases of the bladder."

NO MATERIAL CHANGE.

This is to certify that I have used Hunt's Remedy for the kidney complaint, and derived much benefit from its use.

I have been afflicted about one year, and received treatment from the local physicians, and used a number of so-called specifics without any material help. I am happy to say, after using three bottles of Hunt's Remedy, I was completely cured.

I never fail to recommend it, and you are at liberty to use my name in any manner you may desire.

John W. Johnston.

Norwich, Conn., May 7, 1883.

ST. PATRICK'S SALVE
TRY IT USE IT
It relieves at once Burns, Piles, Chapped Hands or Lips, Corns, Bunions, Scalds, Bruises, Soreness of feet, hands, eyes, etc.; Itching from any cause. 25c. Ask your druggist, or send to 92 Fulton Street, N. Y.

PORTABLE & STATIONARY
Steam Engines
and STEAM BOILERS, smaller sizes adapted to
Farm and Plantation Use!
$200 We make six sizes, capacity from 3 to 50,000 ft. per day with one saw for our No. 1 Plantation Saw Mill. LANE BODLEY CO., John and Water Sts., Cincinnati, Ohio. Illustrated catalogue free.

CHICAGO SCALE CO.
2 TON WAGON SCALE, $40. 3 TON, $50.
4 Ton $60, Beam Box Included.
240 lb. FARMER'S SCALE, $5.
The "Little Detective," ¼ oz. to 25 lb. $3.
300 OTHER SIZES. Reduced PRICE LIST FREE.
FORGES, TOOLS, &c.
BEST FORGE MADE FOR LIGHT WORK, $10.
40 lb. Anvil and Kit of Tools, $10.
Farmers save time and money doing odd jobs.
Blowers, Anvils, Vices & Other Articles
AT LOWEST PRICES, WHOLESALE & RETAIL.

Grocers and Dealers
—IN—
TEA AND COFFEE.
Send for Wholesale Price List of our goods. Lowest possible prices. GREAT LONDON TEA CO., 801 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good.
Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION.

Carpets, Rugs, Curtains, Window Shades.
Complete assortment of the newest, richest and most beautiful Carpets produced by the best manufacturers in America. Correspondence solicited. Samples and prices by mail. T. M. SNOWDON & CO., 107 W. Fourth Street, Cincinnati, O.

Texas
Send at once for Maps, Pamphlets, Land-folders, etc., describing the marvelous growth and wonderful resources of the Great South-west. Address N. R. WARWICK, 131 Vine Street, Cincinnati, O.

CANCER AND TUMORS
Treated scientifically and cured without the knife. Book on treatment free. Drs. Gratigny & Norris, 201 W. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.

"THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST."
SAW MILLS, ENGINES, THRESHERS, Horse Powers,
(For all sections and purposes.) Write for Free Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

Lady Agents can secure permanent employment and good salary selling Queen City Skirt and Stocking Supporters, etc. Sample outfit Free. Address Queen City Suspender Co., Cincinnati, O.

HAIR Wigs & Waves sent C.O.D. anywhere. Wholesale & Retail Price-list free. Goods guaranteed. B. C. STREHL, 157 Wabash-av., Chicago.

FREE BY RETURN MAIL. Full description Moody's New Tailor System of Dress Cutting. MOODY & CO., Cincinnati, O.

$250 A MONTH. Agents Wanted. 90 best selling articles in the world. 1 sample FREE. Address JAY BRONSON, DETROIT, MICH.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & CO., Portland, Me.

YOUNG MEN learn Steam Engineering, and earn $100 per month. Send your name and 10c. in stamps to F. KEPPY, Engineer, Bridgeport, Ct.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co., Augusta, Me.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS
MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD
And will completely change the blood in the entire system in three months. Any person who will take ONE PILL EACH NIGHT FROM ONE TO TWELVE WEEKS, may be restored to sound health, if such a thing be possible. For curing Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. Physicians use them in their practice. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. Send for pamphlet. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

BAD, BAD, BAD BLOOD.

Some blood is bad because it is poor and weak. Some is bad because it contains impurities. Some men have such bad blood that the wonder is it does not poison the mosquitoes who come to bite them.

The rich red color of good blood is owing to the iron which is present. Blood which has not enough iron in it is always unsatisfactory. The person in whose veins it circulates cannot be said to enjoy good health.

The efforts of expert chemists to produce a preparation of iron which can be assimilated with the blood have resulted in that perfect preparation which is an important part of Brown's Iron Bitters. It is the only one which freely enters into the blood. It is the only one which accomplishes the desired good.

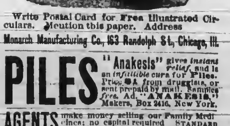
Weak, poor, thin blood may be made rich and strong, and impure blood may be purified by the use of that Great Iron Medicine, Brown's Iron Bitters.

For You, Madam,

Whose complexion betrays some humiliating imperfection, whose mirror tells you that you are Tanned, Sallow and disfigured in countenance, or have Eruptions, Redness, Roughness or unwholesome tints of complexion, we say use Hagan's Magnolia Balm.

It is a delicate, harmless and delightful article, producing the most natural and entrancing tints, the artificiality of which no observer can detect, and which soon becomes permanent if the Magnolia Balm is judiciously used.

Fast Potato Digging!



The Monarch Lightning Potato Digger
Saves its cost yearly, FIVE TIMES OVER, to every farmer. Guaranteed to Dig Six Hundred Bushels a Day!
Sent on 30 Days' TEST TRIAL.
Agents Wanted.
Write Postal Card for Free Illustrated Circulars. Mention this paper. Address Monarch Manufacturing Co., 163 Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

PILES "Anakesis" gives instant relief, and is an infallible cure for Piles. Price $1, from druggists, or sent prepaid by mail. Samples free. Ad. "ANAKESIS," Makers, Box 2416, New York.

AGENTS make money selling our Family Medicines; no capital required. STANDARD CURE CO., 197 Pearl St., New York.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Address H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

EDUCATIONAL.

COLEMAN BUSINESS COLLEGE, Newark, N. J. Terms $40. Positions for graduates; write for circular.

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KY., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 3, 1883. NUMBER 49.

HIS GIRL.

Her eyes are lovely. I won't tell
  What hue their loveliness may show;
Her braided hair becomes her well,
  In color like—but ah, no! no!
That is my secret—red or brown,
It is the prettiest hair in town!

She walks with such a dainty charm,
  But whether she be short or tall,
Of rounded limb or sylph-like form,
  Her figure suits me—that is all!
Nor do I choose the world to know
If silk her dress, or calico.

My precious girl is worth her weight,
  Not in rough gold, but diamonds fine,
And whether that be small or great
  I leave the reader to divine.
Ask me to guage her solid worth—
She would outweigh the whole round earth!

To rhyme her praise is such delight
  That I must keep it to myself,
Lest one should better verses write
  And lay me gently on the shelf.
I am not jealous, but you see,
  This charming girl—belongs to me.
    —M. S. Bridges, in Continent.

A SOCIETY ITEM.

"Did ye see the Cyclops Courier, Miss Abigail?" queried old Simon Sharpe, in quite a fever of excitement.

He was leaning over the little green-painted gate, coatless and blue-shirted. Just beyond Miss Abigail Byrnes paused in her task of tying up heavy-headed August roses—a tall, angular figure, clad in a brown-and-white striped print and big yellow sun-bonnet. Very bony, scant of smiles and hard of feature was Miss Abigail, but gentle and generous as a child's was the heart under the ugly calico gown.

"No," she replied, "I haven't seen it—what's the news?"

He responded with a counter question. "You remember Roger Kearney?"

"To be sure. He went to the city to start a big store. What of him?"

"They be a-saying down at the Corner that just now when he had got his big store built, stocked and flourishin', he has gone and been burned clean out, every yard of silk-stuff and ivory buttons."

He paused, breathless.

Miss Abigail clasped her thin hands and elevated her pale brows in dismay—not at the peculiar English and curious rhetoric of her narrator, but at the startling information imparted. "Land's sakes!" she ejaculated. "You don't say so!"

Simon nodded vigorously.

"Yes," he affirmed, with the apparent savage relish observable in even phlegmatic natures when the misfortunes of another is the subject of discussion, "lost everything, they say! Hadn't no insurance, neither. H'ain't saved a spool o' thread. Not as much as a hook, eye nor darnin' needle left!"

Miss Abigail promptly tied the strings of her sunbonnet afresh and let down her gown, which had been pinned carefully up. "I'll just run over to Mrs. Evans'," she declared, "and borrow the Courier. She takes it. News don't taste good at second-hand, anyhow!"

And she went.

Leaning out of a picturesque, vine-wreathed window up at the rambling, white country house of which Miss Abigail was mistress looked pretty Dorothy Stratton.

"Where on earth is Aunt going?" she asked herself bewilderedly as she caught sight of the tall, flying figure. "Leaving the roses only half tied up, too!" But just then a stray sunbeam lit the stone on Dorothy's finger to dazzling flame. She forgot all about Miss Abigail's hurried exit as she turned it now this way, now that, and ended by kissing it in a burst of rapture.

"You dear, dear little ring!" she said. You see it was quite novel to her yet—her engagement and her ring.

This was only August. In May she had not dreamed of the existence of such a person as Mr. Paul Carlisle.

He had come down to Blue-Berry Hill in June, a popular and successful [illegible] sculptor, seeking rest, isolation [illegible] country quiet. And the very first thing he did—he who could have chosen last season from half a dozen brilliant society belles—was to fall head over ears in love with Dorothy Stratton.

She captured his erratic artistic fancy, and she pleased his instinctive sense of refinement.

She was so lithe and graceful, with such round marvelous curves of throat and arms. And she held her small, sloe-black head with such charming dignity. And what could be more winsome than the face with its clear, colorless skin and liquid gray eyes, and curved black brows and grave, sweet, crimson mouth?

Just how June and July passed neither of these happy, foolish young people could have lucidly explained.

And the precise manner in which he had spoken at last, the shy confusion of her answer, the parting with regrets, hopes, love unutterable, was still a mere mystic, entrancing, delicious remembrance.

But there was the ring, a glittering, tangible reality. So what wonder Dorothy turned it up and down, and under and over and kissed it in sheer joy of heart?

Over at Mrs. Evans' Miss Abigail sat, her sunbonnet untied and pushed back on her head, her spectacles perched on her accommodatingly rigid nose, deep in the perusal of the Cyclops Courier.

"Too bad, eh?" queried Mrs. Evans, briskly "topping" gooseberries.

"Yes," assented Miss Abigail, "after all his years of saving—eh! what's this?"

"What's what?" asked Mrs. Evans, startled at her guest's tone. She was staring straight at the sheet she held, her eyes very troubled and her mouth grimly set.

"Dear, dear, Miss Byrnes!" exclaimed Mrs. Evans, in feeble alarm, "do tell!"

But her visitor made no reply, only roused herself with an effort, tied her sunbonnet strings with an energetic jerk, and marched straight out of the house, the Cyclops Courier in her hand. Mrs. Evans stared after her a moment. Then she tapped her forehead significantly, muttered a single word, and went complacently on topping her gooseberries. Dorothy, still sitting dreamily by the vine-wreathed window, twisting the bright circlet round and round on her slim brown finger, started as Miss Abigail banged the garden gate behind her and hurried up the path.

A heavy tread on the stairs, the door was flung wide, and she stalked into the dainty chamber, all pink silesia and snowy dotted muslin, like a herald of war.

"Dorothy!" she said, in quite an awful voice.

"Aunt!" cried Dorothy, rising.

"Look there! Read."

She held up the paper and waved her arm with a tragic gesture of command.

Dorothy glanced at the paragraph pointed out and read as bidden.

And this is what she read: "The social season has begun. Among the names of the pleasure seekers leaving this evening on the steamship Asia to summer on the Continent we notice those of Paul A. Carlisle and wife."

Dorothy looked at the paper blankly. Then she began and read it over again.

"Well?" questioned Miss Abigail sternly.

The girl stood up, white to the very lips and trembling a little.

"There's some mistake," she said.

Miss Abigail gave a distrustful snort. "If there is," she asserted, "we've made it. He's a scamp, my dear!" And then waxing emphatic, "A double-distilled scamp."

"You musn't speak so," said Dorothy, striving to swallow the great choking lump in her throat. "It is—some other—Mr. Carlisle."

"Yes," mocked Miss Abigail scornfully, "very likely! Do you suppose there are two men with exactly the same name—down to the middle initial—whose departure would be considered worth chronicling in the Cyclops Courier—do you?"

But Dorothy sprang to the door, and ran down stairs, and out into the shadowy old orchard like a thing pursued.

And there she flung herself down on the smooth, short grass, dry-eyed, white-lipped, half mad with searing, incredulous pain.

And up in the room she had just left, hard-featured Miss Abigail sat down in Dorothy's own particular, beribboned rocker, and flinging her blue apron over her face cried like a baby for very sympathy. The day wore on, the gay, sweet, warm August day. And still Dorothy lay crushed, and faint, and heart-sick under the big apple tree.

The Courier was dated the 15th—this was the 17th. City papers were mellow when they reached the little village. He had been gone two days—but then he hadn't gone! There was some mistake, she kept telling herself over and over, though in her innermost soul she did'nt believe there was.

Within Miss Abigail went around the house with a very stern countenance and very red eyes.

"I'll make some strawberry puff-balls for supper," she decided, gravely. "She was always powerful fond of strawberry puff-balls, and maybe they'll comfort her some!" But then Miss Abigail had never been in love herself, and it takes more than strawberry puff-balls to cure such heartaches.

The soft, purplish dusk lay over the farm when Dorothy felt a gentle touch on her shoulder.

"Come in to supper, child. You'll catch your death o' cold."

She rose up slowly.

"I am not going into the house," she said. "I should smother."

Miss Abigail held forth the tempting bait within, and shook her head in sorrowful foreboding as utterly disregardful Dorothy walked away. Down at the gate she paused—the low, wide, green gate where she had so often stood to listen to the ringing footstep coming up the country road.

So often, but now—never again! Despite the pain of remembrance she found herself recalling every dear word, and look, and thought of the dead summer days. She had been something of a bookworm all her life, and now flashed to her brain and there burned the rebellious, passionate cry of Othello:

"My heart is turned to stone; I strike it
And it hurts my hand!"

Hark! a footstep! she must go in; how foolish she was, growing to imagine it might be—his.

Nearer—nearer still! She could not move. She leaned heavily against the green post-pillar. A voice! Whose voice? The gate was flung wide; close arms were round her——

Dark! Oh, how dark it was growing——.

Five minutes later Miss Abigail looked up in swift amazement as a tall young figure strode into the little parlor bearing in his arms a slender, pink-clad burden.

"You!" she cried. "I thought you had gone to Europe with your wife. We read it in the Cyclops Courier, and——"

"And you believed it? Good heavens! Was that why Dolly fainted at sight of me? My father and mother sailed for the Continent. Our initials are the same. I told them all about Dorothy before they left, and if she will only consent to a hurried marriage we will join them in Paris in September. Oh, you're listening, you dear little sinner! What do you say—yes? That is right! And you doubted me! Dolly, Dolly! aren't you ashamed of yourself?"

"Yes," said Dolly, "I am!"—Chicago Tribune.

A Gastronomic Novelty.

It is not generally known that the flesh of the whale is both nutritious and palatable. Large quantities of it are eaten every fishing season by men engaged in the capture of the fish; but still larger quantities are, of course, wasted. It recently occurred to a Norwegian speculator that some of the immense mass of food that is thus annually thrown away might be profitably preserved and used for consumption on shore. He made arrangements, therefore, with several whaling captains and two meat preserving firms, and last week he gave a dinner, at which he believes he demonstrated that whale flesh may be cooked in at least a dozen different ways, and that it forms a delicious as well as a wholesome article of diet. Some parts of the fish, we are told, supply material for an excellent imitation of turtle soup; others resemble beef; and still others are almost as white and quite as tender as chicken. The meat can be sold for about half the price of Australian tinned beef.—St. James Gazette.

—About three thousand tons of borax are annually produced in California.

SCIENCE AND INDUSTRY.

—The Swiss railroad companies now cover a portion of their carriages with a phosphorescent preparation, which makes them visible at night.

—An Indianapolis inventor is at work upon a new electric headlight for locomotives, which, it is claimed, will light the track for a mile brilliantly.—Indianapolis Journal.

—Artificial ice, which is produced by vaporized ammonia, is turned out in slabs eight inches thick by twenty-two inches wide and six feet long, weighing 350 pounds. It is made at a cost of less than $1 a ton.—N. O. Picayune.

—A Boston engineer has been turning his attention to the power going to waste in the Niagara River. He estimates that a motor could be submerged in the river which would furnish half a million horse-power—sufficient to run all the machinery in Buffalo and pump all the city's water. His plan is to place a giant iron wheel in the river perpendicularly, so that it shall be turned by the current. The power would be taken from the shaft of the wheel by either belts or gearings, or would be sent through electric cables.—N. Y. Sun.

—It is reported that a firm in Paris has patented an engine for the instantaneous formation of steam, so that it can be used at once in the cylinder of the engine. A pump sends the required quantity of water between two plate surfaces, which are heated, and between which there is only capillary space. The liquid, spreading into a thin layer, evaporates instantly without going into the so-called spheroidal state, and the steam acts in the cylinder as fresh formed steam. The speed of the pump is regulated by the engine.

—Down in Georgia gasoline has been put to a new use. A mechanic of Augusta is constructing a steam buggy, in which the boilers will be heated by two gasoline burners. The buggy has three wheels, the first being extra large, and bearing the burden of the machinery. The vehicle will carry several persons, and the engine can be worked with ease by anyone inside; and can also be guided in any direction at the will of the operator. Its average speed is estimated at a mile in three minutes. It will no doubt make a good companion piece for the steam man in the patent office.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

—For the treatment of both hard and soft corns Dr. Trail Green speaks highly of the use of salicylic acid. He has adopted a formula recommended by Dr. Gezon, which is as follows: Salicylic acid, thirty parts; extract Canabis indica, five parts; collodion, two hundred parts. The collodion fixes the acid on the diseased part and gives speedy relief by protecting it from friction. The Canabis indica acts as an anodyne. The acid loosens the corn so that it comes off in four or five days, adhering to the collodion. If any portion of the corn remains, the acid should be applied again, and the treatment continued until the whole of the corn has disappeared.—San Francisco Chronicle.

PITH AND POINT.

—Slang is always objectionable. Instead of saying "a dead give away" you should say "a posthumous donation."

—Old Beeswax: "No, sir; never contradict a lady. It's a waste of effort. Just give her time and she'll do it herself."—Boston Post.

—The watering-place season of 1883 has not been a brilliant success financially, owing to the high price of coal. —Philadelphia News.

—It seems only proper to suggest that all those St. Louis stories of kidnaped girls should be sent down the Niagara Rapids. Are they not made of the missed?—Pittsburgh Telegraph.

—A Beaufort bachelor so greatly admired the way in which his housekeeper prepared his coffee that he proposed and was accepted. This is a pointer for a woman with ambition in that direction.—Chicago Tribune.

—Public sympathy: Dissatisfied wife—"We cannot agree—we must part forever." Husband: "All right, but we must not ventilate our sorrows through the press." Wife: "Ugh! what's the use of the separation then?" —The Judge.

—Irish attorney (to his clerk who has taken the blue ribbon, and has been "celebrating the event"): "I'll not stand it surr! Wid yer pludges! Instid o' takin pludges ye're always breakin' yo'd better make no promises at-all-at-all—and kape 'em!"—Punch.

—Several brilliant intellects are now engaged in inventing new names for old colors in ladies' dress materials for next season. One man, after working sixteen hours a day for two weeks, has succeeded in evolving new names for two tints—viz: "toper's nose" and "kicked dog." The latter is yeller, of course.—Boston Post.

—"Oh, grannie! grannie!" exclaimed a Brooklyn boy, glancing up from a paper which he had been reading, "Java has been visited by a shower of fire." "Dear me," returned the old lady, not exactly catching the full import of the communication, "dear me, you don't tell me so! Well, I thought the coffee this morning tasted a little burnt."—Brooklyn (N. Y.) Eagle.

—A Milwaukee belle attending a theatre in New York City recently complained in one of the scenes that the light was too dim to see the acting properly. "Won't you try this glass?" asked her escort, handing her his lorgnet. Hastily covering the suspicious looking object with her handkerchief, she placed it to her lips, took a long pull, and then handed it back in great disgust, saying: "Why, there ain't a drop in it!"—Chicago Herald.

—Entirely trustworthy.—"Thomas," said a gentleman to a colored whitewasher at the Central Market, "can I put entire confidence in you?" "Yes, sah." "Well, then, I've half an acre of watermelons out at my farm on Woodward avenue." "Yes, sah; jess so, sah. Am dat all, sah?" "All, except that I wanted to say that I depend on you not to say a word to any of your colored friends about it." "No, sah—no, sah; not a word. I hain't dat sort o' possum, sah. (Aside.) Dat acre will be little enuff for dis niggah."—Detroit Post.

Our Young Folks.

OUR SKY.

I know of a dainty blue sky,
And it is the baby's blue eye;
  And we watch it to see
  What the weather will be;
But we never can tell if we try.

We catch a wee glimpse of the sun,
And think such a fine day is begun;
  And everything neat
  And happy and sweet,
All ready for frolic and fun.

The rainbows are here without doubt;
And the robins and roses come out;
  And gay bobolinks
  And poppies and pinks,
And butterflies skimming about.

The blue-bells are ringing a chime,
And the fairies come marching in time,
  Mother Goose and the rest,
  In their fine Sunday best,
And dance in a rollicking rhyme.

But lo, there's a storm in the sky!
Then how the wee fairy folks fly!
  And Mother Goose rings
  For umbrellas and things,
And tries hard to keep herself dry.

The birds and the blossoms look sad;
For they wore the best coats that they had;
  To think such a shower
  Should come up in an hour!
'Tis really, yes really too bad!

But look! while they worry and fret
The clouds are all gone and the wet;
  And the sky is as blue
  And as innocent, too,
As if it had never rained yet.

So we can not tell if we try
The signs of this dainty blue sky;
  But its smile or its frown
  Turns the house upside down
For it is the baby's blue eye.
  —Carrie W. Bronson, in N. Y. Independent.

HOW HE ESCAPED "CATCHING IT."

Jasper wished and wished and wished he hadn't done it. But you can't undo things that way, you know; the best way to do is not to do them.

Perhaps that was about the way Jasper himself thought; now that it was too late, as, tired and anxious, ragged and grimy, he skulked along in the shadow toward home.

He was not very big nor very old, this boy Jasper, and it was getting pretty dark, and Jasper himself was getting uncommonly hungry. But, some way or other, he did not hurry home as fast as you might think he would, under these circumstances.

But then he had a good reason for not hurrying.

Ordinarily, he would have rushed home and into the house pell-mell, and vociferously announced to his mother that he was "hungry as a bear, and wanted something to eat." But you don't like to run in the cannon's mouth to get the ball.

And when Jasper got home to-night, he was pretty sure of getting something else besides something to eat. The truth is, he expected to "catch it" when he got home.

Perhaps you don't know what "catching it" is. Jasper did, perfectly well. He had had considerable experience in "catching it," but had never enjoyed it.

This was the reason why he felt so solemn this evening, and why he walked so slow, and why his feet felt so heavy as he walked.

But I must hurry and tell you what it was that Jasper had done, and now wished that he had not.

He had been to the fire, flatly disobeyed his mother, and scampered off right before her very eyes.

It was dreadful in Jasper; for, besides the disobedience of the thing, his mother was a nervous woman, and he should not have helped to make her more so.

She had just been telling Mrs. Coleman that it would drive her to the verge of distraction to have her son running around between fire-engines, and under horses' hoofs, and beneath blazing embers the way those Warren boys did. And Jasper had heard her tell Mrs. Coleman this, too—or, at least, he could have heard if he had listened.

I am not sure, though, that he did listen, for, at the time, Mrs. Coleman and Jasper's mother and Jasper himself where all standing on the sidewalk, trying to make out where the fire was.

The fire-bells were ringing and the fire-engines were rushing by, and a crowd of men and boys were tearing along the road after the engine. So you can see there was considerable to take Jasper's attention away from what his mother was saying to Mrs. Coleman.

Another thing that may have attracted Jasper was his overwhelming desire to become a part of that moving mass of men and boys.

"Can't I go, mother?" he demanded, vehemently, clutching at his mother's dress. "I'll be sure and not get killed."

"No!" said his mother, with emphasis. "Let me catch you going, sir!"

But the excitement of the scene before him was too much for Jasper. It was perfectly maddening to have to stand there stock still, as though he hadn't any legs to run with, when everybody else—all the other boys, anyway—were running as fast as their legs would carry them.

Just here, a squad of little boys, about Jasper's own age, came screeching and yelling down the road in the rear of a tardy engine, and then—I really do not think Jasper could have been personally responsible for what he did—he took to his heels, joined the crowd of boys, and was lost to sight, all in just about one second.

And his mother was screaming after him:

"Come back here! Oh, you'll catch it!"

If it hadn't been that she had the baby in her arms, I believe she would have run along with the crowd herself in pursuit of this rebellious son of hers. But all this had happened several hours ago.

Jasper was not excited now, and his personal responsibility had all come back to him. It weighed him down—there was so much of it.

And the fire was all out, too. It had not been such a very great fire, anyway. There was so much smoke and so little blaze, and the firemen had been in such a hurry to put it out.

And then a little short fellow like Jasper did not have half a chance to see anything, with so many grown men in front of him.

It had not been at all a satisfactory fire, and then just think of having to come home in the end and "catching it!" Poor Jasper!

When he got into the yard he thought he would just see how the land lay before he ventured into the house. So he peeped into the dining-room window—and if there were not the folks just sitting down to a "piping hot" supper! They had poached eggs and toast, and repentant Jasper, hanging on the window-sill, thought:

"How good poached eggs and toast do look when a fellow's been and run away to the fire, and don't dare go in when he's just a-starving!"

And then he devoutly wished again that he hadn't gone to that fire.

Jasper was a great boy for wishing, you see; but if he had studied "Mother Goose" as thoroughly as I have done, he would know that

"If wishes were horses,
Beggars might ride."

And that is only a poetical way of saying: There's no use in wishing.

Jasper looked on hungrily until he had seen the last egg disappear from the platter, and then he felt more hungry than ever. He noticed that his mother kept looking at the clock, and once he saw her lips say:

"I wonder why that boy don't come!"

Then she got up and went to the door to look for him, and Jasper hastily retreated into the dog-kennel. He snuggled up against old Rover, cried a little, and wished again he hadn't gone to that old fire; and then he stopped wishing, and went sound asleep.

But all this while Jasper's mother was suffering, as well as Jasper. And she began to wish, too. She wished she hadn't threatened him, but had held hold of his hand instead, when she was talking with Mrs. Coleman on the sidewalk. Then he never would have run away.

"It was all her fault," she thought with deep self-reproach, "if she hadn't looked after him better."

After a while she got so worried that she lit the lantern, and she and Jasper's father started out on a search for their runaway son.

"We had better look around the yard first," said the father, who did not seem very much alarmed himself. "Perhaps he is here somewhere, and don't like to come in."

So they looked there, and of course they found him—for the dog-kennel was not much of a place to hide in. There he was, fast asleep, with his head on Rover's leg, and grimy tear-marks on his cheeks.

"Well, I do declare! The poor, tired little darling!" said the forgiving mother.

And the father picked him up and carried him into the house, and the mother gave him three poached eggs on toast and a glass of milk, and never even scolded him.

Jasper was soon in bed and asleep again, though he had thankfully wondered why he didn't "catch it." But if he had heard the conversation between his father and mother, before he came in that evening, he might have understood better. He would have heard something like this:

Mother, anxiously—"I am mortally afraid he'll get killed some of these times, running off to fires and things."

Father—"Pshaw! Boys will be boys! I'll tell you what, Sarah Jane—you needn't expect you can keep in a boy as big as our Jasper from a fire. Let him go to the fire. It don't hurt boys—does 'em good."

Mother, sighing, and giving up the point—"I don't see what they want to go for, though."

Now, wasn't he a really splendid father?

But the reason of it was this:

You see Jasper's father had been a boy himself once, and Jasper's mother never had—and that makes all the difference in the world, you know.

But it seems to me that Jasper ought to have been punished for his disobedience, and then, the next time there was a fire, his mother could say:

"You must not go to the fire, Jasper!"

And I'll warrant that he would obey her.—Golden Days.

On Taking Exercise.

Boys who take a great interest and an active part in out-door sports often bring needless illness upon themselves by over-exertion and want of proper care after violent exercise. Attacks of pneumonia or inflammation of the lungs frequently occur from getting very warm and then cooling off too suddenly.

When about to engage in a game of ball or any sport that requires continued activity, it is best to lay aside the outer garment, and put it on again when the game is finished; and instead of sitting down to "cool off," it is safer to walk around for awhile. It is also dangerous to drink large quantities of water when very warm, as the system receives a shock which may lead to sickness.

Violent exercise taken occasionally will not develop the strength as well as a regular amount continued every day. If a boy wishes to develop his muscles, let him play ball or row a certain time every favorable day. Let him cease at the moment a sense of weariness or disinclination seizes him. The next day he will be able to stand a little more exertion, and so by degrees he will attain to a certain standard, and have a reserve force of strength that will be the foundation of continued good health in the future. It is necessary that the growing body should have exercise. Air and sunlight are necessary to growth, and active out-door sports are the means by which their benefits can be obtained.

Let boys have all the out-door exercise they can. Ball-playing, rowing, horseback riding, swimming, all are prime factors in muscular development, and with care and judgment in their proper use will tend to stronger and healthier growth.

The world needs strong men as well as wise ones, and indeed the mind will develop more rapidly in a sound body than in a sickly one. It is a grand thing to be able to stand hardship and privation in the search for truth and knowledge, and any man with good physical strength is equal to the task of combating the world if with it he has the stimulus of a strong will. Let boys then seek to build up in their growing days a sound constitution, and life will be more than doubled in value to them.—H. C. Van Gieson, M. D., in Harper's Young People.

Religious.

"IN ALL THY WAYS ACKNOWLEDGE HIM."

"In all thy ways acknowledge Him,"
  To whom thy path is known;
  Thy wisdom is to trust His care,
  Nor strive to walk alone.
  Commit thy way to God; the rest
  Leave to His will—He knoweth best.

"In all thy ways;" in each rough path
  Stretch forth thy feeble hands,
  And seek protection from His love,
  Who Heaven and earth commands.
  Thy strength in each emergency
  Sufficient "for the day" shall be.

"In all thy ways;" when clouds arise
  And darkness clouds thy way,
  He knows thy grief—appoints e'en this
  Deep sorrow—oh, then "pray:"
  Thy burden roll upon the Lord,
  And stay thyself upon His word.

"In all thy ways;" thy strength brought down
  With lingering sickness pressed;
  Too weak to raise thy head, thou may'st
  Rest on the Master's breast.
  Tho' now the end thou can'st not see,
  Thou yet shalt say: "'Twas good for me."

"In all thy ways acknowledge Him;"
  Leave every painful doubt
  To Him whose name is "Wonderful,"
  His ways past finding out;
  In child-like faith His rod receive,
  His precious promises believe.
    —Baptist Weekly.

Sunday-School Lessons.

FOURTH QUARTER.

Oct. 7—Eli's Death	1 Sam. 4:10-18
Oct. 14—Samuel the Judge	1 Sam. 7: 3-17
Oct. 21—Asking for a King	1 Sam. 8: 1-10
Oct. 28—Saul Chosen King	1 Sam. 10:17-27
Nov. 4—Samuel's Farewell Address	1 Sam. 12:13-25
Nov. 11—Saul Rejected	1 Sam. 15:12-26
Nov. 18—David Anointed	1 Sam. 16: 1-13
Nov. 25—David and Goliath	1 Sam. 17:38-51
Dec. 2—David's Enemy—Saul	1 Sam. 18: 1- 6
Dec. 9—David's Friend—Jonathan	1 Sam. 20:32-42
Dec. 16—David Sparing His Enemy	1 Sam. 24: 1-17
Dec. 23—Death of Saul and Jonathan	1 Sam. 31: 1-13
Dec. 30—Review.

THE FREETHINKERS' CONVENTION.

The sixth annual gathering of the Freethinkers' Association was held last week in the goodly city of Rochester, in the midst of numerous Christian temples whose Heaven-ward pointing spires are a standing rebuke of the principles which this fraternity seem anxious to disseminate. The city in which it met is vocal with the hum of many-sided industries, where order and regard for law, enterprise, growth and prosperity speak eloquently of the benign effects of Christian institutions and of Christian civilization. All this the Freethinkers must see, but they are sure not to give credit where it is due. The strange spectacle was witnessed of a body of men and women (for women, alas, are of the membership, regardless of what the condition of woman would and must be without Christianity) gathered to pour obloquy upon a faith which emancipates and blesses, and upon institutions but for which the light that is about us would be darkness, and all that exalts and adorns society be changed into what debases and deforms it.

One may wonder why a convention of this sort is held at the present day! It is quite pertinent to ask, what good end of any kind can such a motley gathering possibly subserve? What urgent social or other need prompts eight hundred people to come together from different parts of the country to proclaim sentiments and views which are opposed to the understanding and the moral sense of the community? Does any great evil, wrong or injustice afflict society, and call for relief and redress? Is the mind or conscience so fettered that thought and speech are not free, and the aid of such doughty champions is invoked to bring liberty? Are the religious and moral beliefs of Christian men, and the fruits they bear, destructive of the welfare and happiness of the community? Does the prosperity of the land under Christian institutions rest on a false foundation, the subversion of which, with the substitution of one after the Freethinkers' own heart, will increase this prosperity, and make it more abiding? No sensible man can need an answer to such inquiries.

Among the grievances of which these Freethinkers complain, as set forth in the articles of their association, are the following:

"We demand that all religious service now sustained by the Government shall be abolished, and especially that the use of the Bible in the public schools, whether ostensibly as a text-book or avowedly as a book of religious worship, shall be prohibited.

"We demand that the appointment by the President of the United States or by the Governors of the various States of all religious festivals and fasts shall wholly cease.

"We demand that the judicial oath in the courts and in all other departments of the Government shall be abolished, and that simple affirmation, under the penalties and pains of perjury, shall be established in its stead.

"We demand that all laws directly or indirectly enforcing the observance of Sunday as the Sabbath shall be repealed.

"We demand that all laws looking to the enforcement of 'Christian' morality shall be abrogated, and that all laws shall be conformed to the requirements of natural morality, equal rights and impartial liberty."

Hatred to religion, and especially to Christianity, which has always awakened the most bitter opposition of infidels, is the animating spirit of the convention. Among the mottoes that were prepared to adorn the walls of the building in which the convention met was the following:

"The Government of the United States is not, in any sense, founded on the Christian religion."—GEORGE WASHINGTON.

No man, woman or child in this country believes that this bold statement expresses the real sentiment of George Washington in regard to the basis of our national institutions, or the foundation of our national prosperity. What Washington did say and believe in regard to the influence of religion on society is fully set forth in his Farewell Address, in which he says:

"Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports. In vain would that man claim the tribute of patriotism who should labor to subvert these great pillars of human happiness, these firmest hopes of the duties of men and citizens. The mere politician, equally with the pious man, ought to respect and to cherish them. A volume could not trace all their connections with private and public felicity. Let it simply be asked where is the security for property, for reputation, for life, if the sense of religious obligation desert the oaths which are the instruments of investigation in courts of justice? And let us with caution indulge the supposition that morality can be maintained without religion. Whatever may be conceded to the influence of refined education on minds of peculiar structure, reason and experience both forbid us to expect that national morality can prevail in exclusion of religious principles."

The above placed on the walls or read from the platform of a Freethinkers' Convention would be a salutary antidote to the dishonest statement of the opinions of the Father of his Country.

From Washington to Paine and Ingersoll the descent is very far. The last two are in their "own place," and their names fitly point the "striking mottoes" that adorn the walls of a Freethinkers' Convention. Such a convention, indeed, without Paine prominent, would be an anomaly, although the disciple Ingersoll goes far beyond his teacher in invective against the Christian faith, and in ribald, blasphemous treatment of sacred things. The motto from Paine reads thus: "This world is my country—to do good is my religion." Measuring his religion by the moral good he accomplished, it was a low minus quantity—while the evil, in the realm of morals and religious belief, which his infidel writings have wrought, marks him as a master architect of mischief and ruin. Had he taken the advice of Franklin and burnt the MS. of his book instead of giving it to the world, his name would have been spared the odium with which it must be regarded through the ages. What that advice was will appear by an extract from the letter containing it as published in Bigelow's "Life of Franklin," vol. 3, p. 364. The whole letter of the sage and philosopher is one that a Freethinkers' Convention might do well to re-produce in connection with the "striking motto" from their favorite apostle. Franklin wrote:

"I have read your manuscript with some attention. By the argument it contains against a particular Providence, though you allow a general Providence, you strike at the foundations of all religion. For without the belief of a Providence, that takes cognizance of, guards and guides, and may favor particular persons, there is no motive to worship a Deity, to fear His displeasure or to pray for His protection. I will not enter into any discussion of your principles, though you seem to desire it. At present, I shall only give you my opinion, that, though your reasonings are subtile and may prevail with some readers, you will not succeed so as to change the general sentiments of mankind on that subject, and the consequence of printing this piece will be, a great deal of odium drawn upon yourself, mischief to you, and no benefit to others. He that spits against the wind spits in his own face * * *

I would advise you, therefore, not to attempt unchaining the tiger, but to burn this piece before it is seen by any other person; whereby you will save yourself a great deal of mortification by the enemies it may raise against you, and perhaps a great deal of regret and repentance. If men are so wicked with religion, what would they be if without it? I intend this letter itself as a proof of my friendship and therefore add no professions to it, but subscribe simply yours,

"B. FRANKLIN."

—N. Y. Observer.

Shapira's Manuscript and the Bible.

BURDETTE'S ADVICE TO A YOUNG MAN.

You will perceive, my boy, that every time man undertakes to manufacture a little Bible on his own account, he makes a mortifying failure of it. He is caught at it, and in one-tenth the time it took him to conceive his fraud, in as many hours as it took him months to prepare it, he is exposed, and his hand-made edition to the Bible is swept away in the other rubbish of other counterfeiters. You see, my son, the Bible doesn't need any of these nineteenth century proofs of its truth; it needs the word of no man to establish its genuineness; it has stood by itself, "an anvil that has worn out many hammers," through century after century, unchanged and unchangeable. Every time a man manufactures a new verse or a new chapter, we know it is not genuine; we detect the counterfeit. The Bible has no need of the supporting prop of a fraudulent ark or a leather Deuteronomy. There was a complete Bible centuries before Shapira happened, and there will be the same Bible ages after Shapira and his patent Deuteronomy have together crumbled into indistinguishable dust. The Bible does not need our help, our testimony, our indorsement. And if there had never been discovered, in all the world, a bit of parchment, a piece of broken pottery or scratched stone, the Bible would be just as strong as it is to-day, and men would believe just as firmly and trustfully in its truth. Don't you worry, my boy, because Shapira's ancient manuscript was written with London ink, and don't fret because the ark in the glacier turns out to be put together with Pittsburgh nails. That all the frauds on the Bible and its history are so quickly and easily detected should only convince you how impossible is it for man to counterfeit the work of God. Wait until some man fools us with an artificial moon; and until some philosopher stores away the sunlight in parlor lamps, before you believe that man can successfully imitate what man never made.—Burlington Hawkeye.

Wise Sayings.

—He preaches sublimely who leads a sober and righteous life.

—The anger of an enemy resents our faults or admonishes us of our duty with more heartiness than the kindness of a friend.—Jeremy Taylor.

—It is a belief in the Bible, the fruits of deep meditation, which has served me as the guide of my moral and literary life. I have found it a capital safely invested, and highly productive of interest.—Goethe.

—Let this be thy purpose, O friend! to observe the law of right and to do it. Then the sunshine and the storm, the night and the day, the heat and the cold of life's discipline will foster and mature the grain for garners in the sky.—N. A. Staples.

—As the tree is fertilized by its own broken branches and falling leaves, and grows out of its own decay, so men and nations are bettered and improved by trial, and refined out of broken hopes and blighted expectations.—F. W. Robertson.

—We recently found in an old magazine the three practical questions of Bernard, which seem to us to cover all the difficulties that may arise in deciding the right or wrong of any contemplated course of conduct.

1. Is it lawful? May I do it and not sin?

2. Is it becoming me as a Christian? May I do it and not wrong my profession?

3. Is it expedient? May I do it and not offend my weak brothers?

The prayerful application of these simple tests would dispose of a vast amount of fruitless discussion, especially touching the whole subject of "popular amusements."—United Presbyterian.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. OCT. 3 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
[illegible]	"	40
[illegible]	"	20
[illegible]	"	20
[illegible]	"	10
[illegible]	"	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (excepting the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.

Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

You must keep the peace this week.

THE New Liberty Fair is in progress this week.

A Kentucky negress aged 115 died in Canada, last week.

IN some parts of Michigan there was a heavy snow on the 28th ult.

THE Negro national convention at Louisville was not an advisory meeting.

JUDGING from the number of bars the Ohio river supports, it is an anti-prohibitionist.

M. L. ROBERTS is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for City Attorney in Covington.

BOONE'S representative-elect is about the only one in the State who is not a candidate for Speaker.

SINCE September 15th the Post Office Department has issued 102,605,000 new two cent postage stamps.

BURGLARS are getting so numerous and impudent in London that the police are to be armed with revolvers.

SUNDAY'S Commercial-Gazette contains pictures of Ben Butler and Fred Douglas, Fred being represented as the handsomer.

HOADLEY'S attack of ague has subsided, and the last days of the canvass in Ohio will find him in the front ranks of the battle.

JAY-EYE-SEE beat St. Julien in the trotting race last Saturday. St. Julien was, before Saturday considered the King of the turf among trotters.

POLITICAL camp-fires now illuminate in the Buckeye State from the lakes to the Ohio, and the nearer the election approaches the brighter they grow.

THE Governor has appointed Dr. Robert C. Chenault, Medical Superintendent of the Eastern Lunatic Asylum at Lexington, in place of Dr, Bullock.

THE spread of Freemasonry among the Catholics has alarmed the pope, and a papal embassador is on his way from Rome to Montreal to inquire into the matter.

McLEAN'S rural Democratic contemporaries in Ohio, are blistering him on account of the course he is pursuing toward Senator Pendleton, whom they regard as a good Democrat.

THE address of Fred Douglas before the Colored National Convention at Louisville, last week. was an able effort, and proves conclusively his ability as an orator, and a far seeing person.

BEN BUTLER has a strong grip on the people of Massachusetts. It took him a long time to get settled in the Executive Chair, but once there he had no trouble in getting the nomination for a re-election, it being made by acclamation.

THE New York Democrats' State Convention met last week and nominated a ticket with but little trouble. Tammany Hall and Irving Hall were both represented in the convention, and its action was more harmonious than was anticipated.

INDIANA'S forest of Presidential timber is more extensive than that of any other State, and many of her towering statesmen will suffer the humiliation of being let to weather the political storms and decay, without being chosen to occupy the coveted position.

CAPT. TOM HENRY, clerk of the Court of Appeals, was put on the stand in the Norvell-Cecil suit, and supports the charge of Sheldon that a trade was made with Cecil whereby he, Sheldon, was to be retained as chief clerk in the Land Office. According to Henry's statements Judge Hargis was also very industrious trying to effect a combination for Sheldon's benefit.

SENATOR THURMAN has taken the stump in Ohio, and creates much enthusiasm wherever he goes. All the brains that each party can command are being put in active use in the campaign over there, and the people are doing nothing but pail the cows and attend political meetings.

SATURDAY'S News Journal contains an account of the killing of two brothers in Robertson county, this State, by two other brothers. An old feud existed in the Rogers family of Robertson county, and the killing occurred last Friday while depositions were being taken to be used in the settlement of the father's estate. One of slain was William Rogers, and was a lawyer in St. Louis. An attorney from St. Louis, by that name has attended our Circuit Court occasionally for several years, and it is feared by those here who knew him that he is the unfortunate man.

THE Custom officers have their hands full watching the smugglers. About this season of the year dressmakers and milliners who have been abroad during the last few months studying styles and inspecting new materials, are returning and they nearly all bring back large quantities of laces, dresses, etc., which they try to "get through" without paying duty. Last week the custom officers seized very nearly $50,000 worth of materials, and their unhappy owners see no end of trouble, expense and anxiety lest their efforts be rewarded with a prison cell

CLARENCE HALL, of the Beaver Creek country, is sowing a tract of land for hog-feeding purposes. This plant is said to be one of the best feeders known for swine. They devour it greedily, and once set in it never needs replanting. Mr. Hall says after he gets his crop of Artichokes under good production, he'll have nothing to do except turn his hogs on them in the fall, and let them root and grow fat. Enough Artichoke roots are always left to insure seed for the next year. The plant yields enormously, the production being from one hundred bushels on moderate lands to extraordinary results on rich soil.—Glasgow Times.

THE campaign in Ohio is beginning to grow in interest. Judge Hoadley has all but entirely recovered, and will now make a canvass which according to a leading Ohio Democrat "will make the fur fly." But the most significant feature is the fact that all Republican office holders are being ordered home to vote. Republican organs have been trying to prove all along that the fight would result in a walk over for Foraker. The fact that the managers are now leaving no stone unturned to secure victory shows very plainly that things have come to a critical pass with them, and that if they mean to retain their hold on the reins of the government, they must work very hard.

WE understand that a gentleman from the central part of the State is in communication with Hon. J. A. Gaines, seeking information as to what a bank in Burlington could do. We do not know what reply Mr. Gaines gave him, but it looks to us like a bank at this place would do a great deal of business, and would be a paying institution. The most of the money received by the business men of the town is used by them in accommodating individuals by cashing checks, and many checks are presented to them which they refuse because of the want of the funds. Large amounts of money could be loaned here on good securities, and the outlook for a general banking business at this point is apparently good. The expense of the concern would be nominal, and if the bank was conducted by men in whom the public has confidence, it would receive a cordial support.

THE Educational Convention that assembled in Louisville was in the hands of men who see for Kentucky a brilliant future, when her people are once thoroughly aroused as to the great importance of having a good public school system. The slow development of our State is mainly attributable to the very poor school system with which we have been laboring for many years. As a proof of this we need only a glance at our younger sister States that are far ahead of us in the matter of education, which exerts a powerful influence on their behalf. The organization of a good school system was one among the first things they did, and they have been the principal promoters of public good. The prime movers of the late Educational Convention are discerning men, and understanding the great natural advantages of their State, want to see its principal avenue to future prosperity improved and made commensurate with the position it should occupy in the educational world.

IT is said that there are eighty-seven counties in Georgia in which a drink of liquor can neither be bought, begged nor stolen. The drouth rageth there but it has no effect on the growing crop.

JAS. T. WILSON, Sheriff of Graves county, settled and paid in full, on the 26th ult., the revenue due the State from his county for 1883, being one month and twenty-five days earlier than any settlement ever before made. Mr. Wilson is certainly a good collector.

SOUTHERN NEWS.

[Courier-Journal.]

—The electric prairie-dog extinguisher is the latest Texas patent.

—The "Bowie Cross Timbers" is the æsthetic name of a Texas paper.

—Four maidens of the Choctaw Nation have entered Wesleyan University at Macon, Ga.

—Mrs. McCurry, aged over 100 years, was baptized a few Sundays ago at Buzzard Roost, in Whitfield county, Ga.

—Mayor Fannin, of Apalachicola, has invented a cotton tie, for which he has been offered $100,000 by a Baltimore firm.

—Dick Cody, of Georgia, went to bed a few nights since with his hearing unimpaired, and waked in the morning totally deaf.

—A negro at work on the Georgia Pacific railroad is seven feet three and a half inches high, weighs 225 pounds, and is only twenty-five years old,

—Mr. E. A. Hawkins, of Gainesville, Fla., improvised an incubator from a box with a glass top, and has hatched out two young rattlesnakes from a couple of eggs which he found.

—At the burial of a colored man recently in Catoose county, Ga. there appeared at his grave as mourners his real father and his step-father his real mother and his step-mother.

—At Estillville, Va., a few days since, a young man by the name of Haskell, while at work at a saw-mill, five miles south of that place, was thrown under the saw and cut in two.

—A Few days ago a hog was picked up by the pilot of an engine, near Diascan, Va., and strange to say, was thrown upon the platform and carried to the next station, where it was found to be unhurt.

—Reynolds, Ga., has a musical prodigy in the person of Joe Carson, son of Capt. J. P. Carson, who though only four years and six months old, plays quite correctly several pieces upon the harp, piano and organ.

—Miners prospecting near Concord, N. C., discovered at the mouth of a long-deserted shaft of a gold mine the skeleton of a woman. The clothing and shoes were still on the bones, and, from the fine quality of cloth and the presence of a diamond ring of some value, it is thought that the bones were those of some lady of position and means.

—Chattanooga Times: Chas. Leslie Clark. of Lock Haven, aged thirteen years, has for several months been unable to retain food upon his stomach. After each meal he was seized with violent vomiting spells. He grew pale and thin. Yesterday the lad, while on his way home from school, was taken with one of his spells. During the convulsions he felt something come up into his throat The object nearly strangled him. During the struggle it came up into his mouth. The boy grasped the something and drew it out of his mouth with a jerk. With a shriek the lad dropped the object, which was a black water snake, eight inches long. The reptile was killed and taken home. It is supposed that young Leslie swallowed the snake last summer while drinking from a spring near his home.

Mother's Spinning Wheel.

Concerning One Article that was Not For Sale, and Another which is Cheap at Any Price.

"NO, sir, I wouldn't sell you that for any money; that spinning-wheel was my mother's. It was one day, when she was singing like a lark and making this old wheel hum, that my father, then a young medical student, afterwards a farmer. fell in love with her—some fifty years ago."

So spoke the proprietor of a rough bit of farm land in Ulster county, N. Y., to a relic-hunter, and "mother's" spinning-wheel remained among her children and grandchildren.

"My mother," writes Rev. J. W. Phelps, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. Church, Chicago, has used PARKER'S TONIC, and wishes me to say that she has found it more effective than anything she ever used for invigorating and strengthening the system debilitated by malaria. She desires me also especially to mention the certainty with which it aids digestion and overcomes exhaustion."

Ever since the first household was established "mother's" opinion has been more potent in this world than that of judge, jurist or physician. Her hand has always cooled the fever and her voice has been filled with hope. With each day's decline. PARKER'S TONIC, is becoming more deservedly popular with the women who guard alike husband and children. it eradicates malarial poison from the blood, from which there is now such widespread suffering.

Please observe: DR. PARKER'S TONIC is not an intoxicant. It is a combination of several ingredients, of which none singly can produce anything like its effect. For Kidney, Stomach and Liver troubles, it is the standard and unfailing remedy. In two sizes: 50 cents and $1. The latter the cheaper. HISCOX & CO., Chemists, New York

ADMINISTRATORS NOTICE.

Persons having claims against the estate of J. C. Riley, decd., are hereby notified to present them to the undersigned proven as by law required. Persons indebted to the estate are requested to come forward and settle their indebtedness at once.

C. T. RICE, Admr.

ADMINISTRATORS NOTICE.

Persons having claims against the estate of Erastus Garrison, decd., are hereby notified to present them to the undersigned proven as by law required. Persons indebted to the estate are requested to come foward and settle their indebtedness at once.

C. T. RICE, Admr.

Just From New York
WITH A
Full LINE of FALL SUITINGS,
—AND—
OVERCOATS.

The above stock was carefully selected, and consists of all the NEW STYLES of FALL GOODS, and you can not fail to be pleased with the Goods and Prices.

H. F. BLASE,
540 Madison St, - COVINGTON, KY.

YARNS, FLANNELS &
BLANKETS,
From SCHOFILD & SON'S and VEVAY Woolen Mills, now on sale at
COLTER'S
Mammoth Cheap Cash Store,
Rising Sun, Indiana.

We offer a large Factory Blanket for a $5 bill. Every person should see this Blanket; Its the Grandest Bargain Ever offered in the United States.

Indigo Blue Yarns 80 cents per pound, best made.
Steel Mix Yarns 75 cents per pound, best made.
Sheep's Gray Yarns 75 cents per pound, best made.
White Yarns 70 cents per pound, best made.
All Fancy colors 6¼ to 7c. per pound, best made.

When buying yarns, see that they are put on the scales and weighed. Some count so many cuts a lb. and beat you out of near one-fourth of a pound.

Steel Mix Jeans, with Blue Warp, 45c,
Any Color Factory Flannels 35 to 40c.

In Addition to the above-named FACTORY goods we have

Jeans at from 20 to 33 cents.
Flnnels from 15 to 20 cents,
One Job in a 3-4 Wool Linsey at 22 1-2c.
One Case Canton Flannel at 10c, big bargain.
3 Cases Canton Flannel, 8 1-3 to 12 1-2c.
Over 300 Blankets at $1 75 to $3 50.
Bed Comforts, any price and grade.

SEE OUR $2 25 and $2 75 SADDLE-SEAM BOOTS.
SEE OUR WOMEN'S BUTTON SHOES AT $1 25.

See our Boot and Shoe department when wanting boots and shoes of any kind

Over One Thousand Overcoats to Select From
Over Three Thousand Full Suits to select from.
Ovev Four Thousand Hats to select from.

A Five Thousand Dollar Stock of Millinery to Select from in Shapes, Trimmings, Ribbons and Feathers.

Over One Thousand Bolts of Cashmeres and Dress Goods to select from, and Trimmings to match all.

SAVE YOUR MONEY UP AND COME TO COLTER'S
Mammoth Cheap Cash Store,
Rising Sun, Ind.
AND YOU WILL RECEIVE ITS VALUE.

LOOK HERE!
when you go to Lawrenceburg, call on
Winegardner
He has a large assortment of
Wall Paper!
And is daily receiving additions to his stock. Call and examine before purchasing.
Inks, Pens and Stationar
constantly on hand.
Headquaters in Lotton House.

LUMBER.

Goe. M. Bedinger & Co.,
Erlanger, - - Ky.

We keep constantly on hand all kinds of Lumber, Laths and Shingles. Also Builder's supplies of all kinds.

—Come and see Us.—
may 9-tf

WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS
FOR THE LIVER
And all Billous Complaints
Safe to take, being purely vegetable; no griping. Price 25 cts. All Druggists.

INCORPORATED UNDER THE LAWS OF MISSOURI.
CENTRAL MEDICAL & SURGICAL INSTITUTE
OF ST. LOUIS, MO.
SUCCESSORS TO DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY. OFFICE & ROOMS, NO. 920 LOCUST ST.
CHAS. L. LaBARGE, M.D., Pres't & Physician in Charge.
NELSON CHESMAN, Treas. & Business Manager.

This Institute has ample facilities and an experienced Faculty. While it succeeds to a large business, which has been established for years, it will aim to extend its medical and surgical practice, giving skillful and scientific treatment to CHRONIC DISEASES of the Head, Spine, Lungs and Air Passages, Heart, Liver, Stomach and Bowels, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Consumption and Asthma. BLOOD IMPURITIES, inherited or caused by impure association. Scrofula, Fever Sores, Ulcers, etc. DEFORMITIES of the Limbs, Spinal Curvature, Wry-Neck, Diseases of the Joints, Piles, Fistula, Ruptures, etc. WEAKNESS and wasting diseases in old and young men, also all diseases of the genito-urinary organs. FEMALE irregularities and weaknesses, causing pain in the back or side, etc. Personal interviews with patients are always preferred. Those unable to visit the Institute will be furnished with blank lists of questions that will aid them in making a full statement of their cases and if not requiring a surgical operation they can be successfully treated by correspondence, and medicines sent by mail or express. To enable us to send proper list of questions applicants should give a brief statement of their trouble.

(The Treasurer of the corporation is of Nelson Chesman & Co., Advertising Agents, and refers to the publisher of this or any other newspaper in the United States or Canadas regarding responsibility.)

Consultation at Office or by mail free and Invited

TUTT'S PILLS
TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.

From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect
ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.
Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.
GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.
Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.
TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

VIGOROUS HEALTH FOR MEN
THE PASTILLE CURE FOR NERVOUS DEBILITY TRADE MARK
TESTED FOR 5 YEARS
by use in thousands of cases. Founded on scientific medical principles, it has been growing in favor and reputation while its numerous competitors have invariably failed. The direct application of this remedy to the seat of the disease makes its specific influence felt without delay. The natural functions of the human organism are restored. The animating elements of life which have been wasted are given back. The buoyant energy of the brain and muscular system renders the patient cheerful; he gains strength with rapidity.

NERVOUS DEBILITY, organic weakness, and numerous obscure diseases, baffling the skill of best physicians, result for youthful indiscretion, too free indulgence, and over brain work.

Do not temporize while such enemies lurk in your system. Take a remedy that has cured thousands, and does not interfere with you attention to business or cause any pain or inconvenience.

(Send for a Descriptive Pamphlet giving Anatomical Illustrations, which will convince the most sceptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fitted for the duties of life, same as if never affected. Sent free to any one. Remedy sold ONLY by the)

HARRIS REMEDY CO. MF'G. CHEMISTS.
306½ N. 10th. St. ST. LOUIS, MO.
One Month's treatment $3. two months $5. three months $7

AYER'S
Ague Cure
IS WARRANTED to cure all cases of malarial disease, such as Fever and Ague, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Billous Fever, and Liver Complaint. In case of failure, after due trial, dealers are authorized, by our circular of July 1st, 1882, to refund the money.
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists.

INJECTION SANTINELI
Cures all recent and chronic secret diseases of the Urinary passages in both sexes. Directions in all languages. $1.00 a bottle Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of price secure from observation. Fairmount Chemical Co. Cincinnati, Ohio, U.S.A. Sold by W. F. M'Kim Burlington

FOR SALE.

A full blooded Alderney cow—will be fresh in the spring. She is very gentle and a good milker.

CY RIDDELL,
Hebron, Ky.

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley.
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U. Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk A. G. DeJarnette, Commonwealths Attorney; W. L. Riddell, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. R. H. Sandford, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday. Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and L. A. Loder fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

Beever—W. M. Rouse, Friday after the third Monday, and

E. E. IGOE,

Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun, Ind.

W. J. RICE,
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.
Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice.
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
53-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

HALL'S
Vegetable Sicilian
HAIR RENEWER
was the first preparation perfectly adapted to cure diseases of the scalp, and the first successful restorer of faded or gray hair to its natural color, growth, and youthful beauty. It has had many imitators, but none have so fully met all the requirements needful for the proper treatment of the hair and scalp. HALL'S HAIR RENEWER has steadily grown in favor, and spread its fame and usefulness to every quarter of the globe. Its unparalleled success can be attributed to but one cause: the entire fulfilment of its promises.

The proprietors have often been surprised at the receipt of orders from remote countries, where they had never made an effort for its introduction.

The use for a short time of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER wonderfully improves the personal appearance. It cleanses the scalp from all impurities, cures all humors, fever, and dryness, and thus prevents baldness. It stimulates the weakened glands, and enables them to push forward a new and vigorous growth. The effects of this article are not transient, like those of alcoholic preparations, but remain a long time, which makes its use a matter of economy.

BUCKINGHAM'S DYE
FOR THE WHISKERS
Will change the beard to a natural brown, or black, as desired. It produces a permanent color that will not wash away. Consisting of a single preparation, it is applied without trouble.
PREPARED BY
R. P. HALL & CO., Nashua, N.H.
Sold by all Dealers in Medicines.

FOR ALL THE FORMS
OF Scrofulous, Mercurial, and Blood Disorders, the best remedy, because the most searching and thorough blood-purifier, is
Ayer's Sarsaparilla.
Sold by all Druggists; $1, six bottles, $5.

PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM

A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON
Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.
COLOGNE

Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines.
2 to 100 Horse Power.

Reliable, Durable, and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ⅓ less fuel and water than any other engine built, not fitted with an automatic cut-off. Catalogue seat free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1150, Corning, N. Y.

NEVER FAILS
FREE!
RELIABLE SELF-CURE.
A favorite prescription of one of the most noted and successful specialists in the U. S. (now retired) for the cure of Nervous Debility, Lost Manhood, Weakness and Decay. Sent in plain sealed envelope free. Druggists can fill it.
Address DR. WARD & CO., Louisiana, Mo.

PAYSON'S INDELIBLE INK
Is the BEST. No preparation. Used with any clean pen for marking any fabric. Popular for decorative work on linen. Received Centennial MEDAL & Diploma. Established 50 years. Sold by all Druggists, Stationers & News Agt's.

Cut This Out & Return to us with TEN CTS. Silver, & you'll get by mail a GOLDEN BOX OF GOODS that will bring you in MORE MONEY in One Month than anything else in America. Absolute Certainty. Need no capital. M. Young, 173 Greenwich St. N. York.

NAVAL Agents Wanted for Ancient & Modern BATTLES.
New and graphic Pictorial History of the great Sea fights of the World. By Medical Director SHIPPAN, U. S. N. Address J. C. McCURDY & CO., 150 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard works of character; great variety; Books & Bibles low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., 30 College St., Nashville, Tenn.

Local News.

Some wheat has been sowed.

Hickory Nuts and Walnuts are plentiful.

The grass has grown some since the rain.

Buy your clothing at Colter's, Rising Sun, Indiana.*

Wanted—A School teacher in district No. 51. Apply to James Barlow.

Over One Thousand Overcoats to select from at Colter's, Rising Sun, Ind.*

Legrand Gaines took in the big exposition at Louisville the first of last week.

It don't take an industrious hail storm long to make fine-cut of a patch of tobacco.

At the last meeting Alonzo Souther united with the Universalist church at this place.

You only have to lick two cents worth of postage stamp when you send a letter now.

Our butchers have pooled their issues, and the meat eating public are awaiting developments.

Ayer's Hair Vigor imparts vitality, gloss and freshness to the hair, and restores its original beauty.

Considerable stone is being pulverized for spreading on this end of the Burlington and Bellevue pike.

Buy your fall goods at Colter's, Rising Sun, Indiana, where you can get everything you want in our house.

The Williamson nine defeated a picked nine on the Walton grounds, last Thursday, in a score of 12 to 10.

The personal property of Edward Hammond, decd., will be sold Saturday at his late residence near Hebron.

Circuit Court commenced Monday and a good many of the boys are away from home on important business.

Our public houses went through the renovating process, last week, preparing to entertain guests during court.

There is a Sixty Thousand Dollar stock of winter goods at Colter's Mammoth Cheap Cash Store, Rising Sun.*

W. E. Piper has just completed his annual invoice of stock. The result seems to be entirely satisfactory to him.

It is said that at the next meeting of the Universalist church, of this place, several of its members will be baptized.

A wash-tub is a very awkward article to come in contact with in the dark. Try walking over one for an illustration.

Buy your Flannels, Jeans, Yarns and Blankets at Colters, Rising Sun, Indiana. Wool Blankets $4, $5 and $6 per pair.*

Lewis Weaver, of Sunbright, Tenn., called in to see us one day last week. He's fat and saucy, and as genial as of yore.

A very large copperhead snake was killed on the ground where the boys played ball at William Walton's last Thursday.

The Grand Division Son's of Temper[illegible]ce of Kentucky, meets with the divi[illegible] at Petersburg, Wednesday, Oct, 10, [illegible], at 9 a. m.

[illegible]eavy Saddle-seam Kip Boots at $2, [illegible]5, $2 50 and $2 75. Women's Kip [illegible]es at 75c, 90c, $1 and $1 25 at Col[illegible]'s, Rising Sun, Indiana.*

Riddell & Norris go to St. Louis this week with their stable of thoroughbreds, where they will probably "get on to" some good premiums.

John W. Rice, of Bellevue, has a crop of potatoes which is yielding 125 barrels to the acre. They will be a paying crop at 25 cents a bushel clear.

Capt. A. B. Parker was in town Saturday, driving a horse that limped from the effects of the severe pelting given it by the late severe hail storm.

The dry weather dried the sweet potatoes all out of the hill—at least their are none in the writer's hills. If he attempts to garden again he will have his truck patch insured.

You can go to Colter's at Rising Sun Indiana, and find everything, without running around. Clothing, Millinery, Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Cloaks and Raps and everything.*

That $20,000 damage suit the News Journal and the Commonwealth say is on the docket for this term of the Court, is a creature of the reports' active imaginations. They miss the amount only $15,000.

Mrs. Susan Acra fell one evening last week, and broke the small bone in her arm twice near the wrist joint. Mrs. Acra is particularly unfortunate, having fallen about two years ago and broke her other wrist.

Nice tombstones or monuments at the graves of the departed, are marks of respect which should not be neglected. Hurschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., have just what you want. John Beall, of Hebron, is their agent.

Mr. S. A. Palmer and Jas. M. Conner have had a trade in which the latter becomes the owner of the house occupied by the former, Mr. Palmer will again occupy Mrs. Clore's house just across the street from the shop.

Six dollars (12 half dollar coins) were plowed up and found in the neighborhood of John B. Winston's last week. One piece was 176 years old. This is the third finding of silver coin in that neighborhood within the past twelve months.

Those brag $5 factory Blankets are selling rapid, over 50 pair sold all ready at Colter's, Rising Sun, Ind.*

Prof. Gallagher's school, we are glad to learn, is on the increase. If energy will accomplish it he will have one of the largest schools taught at this place for a long time.

Every side-saddle that could be found in the burg, was put to use last Saturday, and a cavalcade of the fair sex hied themselves to the rural precincts to gaze upon the loveliness of a country autumn.

Bro. Holland, of the Eminence Constitutionalist, attended the Louisville Exposition, and the wonders there beheld upset his vision, and last week his paper came to hand with its inwards upside down.

Atty. Tolin brought to town, Saturday, a jumbo bat, which measured 16 inches from tip to tip. Its physiogomy resembled a bull-dog's, and its body was covered with a heavy coat of fur. It was killed by Geo. Voshell while trimming hedge.

The more we hear about the effects of the late hailstorm north of this place, the greater the destruction thereby. The hail was several inches deep in some places. Mr. John Moore, one of the oldest men in the county, says he never saw anything like it.

Modistes, everybody thought, had exhausted their ingenuity when they invented such names as crush strawberry, decayed orange, expiring toad, etc., for tints of colors. A genius has eclipsed herself by a new name for a dull drab color. It is called Elephant's breath.

NOTICE—Through mistake a lot of carpenter's tools were put in the wrong buggy at Wm. Walton's sale, last Thursday. The owner, Mr. Jas. Thompson, of Bellevue, will be very thankful if the one that drove the buggy will let him know of there where-abouts, or leave them at this office.

Mrs. Elizabeth Jackson, wife of Frank Jackson, died at her residence near Petersburg, Wednesday night, the 26th ult. She had been sick but a short time. Mrs. Jackson is the sister of Dr. W. H. and Captain George W. Terrill, of Petersburg, and was about fifty-five years of age. She was esteemed as a very excellent lady.

It is said that litigation is at such low ebb in this county that H. P. Stephens, of Union, will supersede his sign, "Attorney-at-law," with a barber's pole. He commenced taking lessons in the tonsorial art last week, but we made a sacred promise to say nothing about what he practiced on, and you bet your last button we won't.

We don't know whether Mr. Henly Smith intends to start a balogna factory at this place or not, but he requested us to say that he has a very fine Scotch pointer dog, that he would like to trade for some hounds. He didn't say how many hounds he wanted, but we suppose a dozen good, nice, big, fat ones would be enough to start on.

Quite an exodus from this county to Missouri this week. Willis Arnold and E. K. Stephens move to Saline county, Slater being their postoffice; and William Walton and family go to Bates county, Butler being their post-office. Kentucky will lose those good citizens, but in this instance what is her loss is Missouri's gain, and we Kentuckians are a liberal set of fellows anyhow.

In neither of the counties of Kenton, Boone and Grant is there an agricultural association. These counties are rich and prosperous. They could make an excellent show of products of the field, of housewives' taste and skill, and a splendid exhibit of fine stock. Why can not the farmers, traders and stockmen of these three counties organize and arrange for an agricultural fair next Fall on the grounds of the Latonia Jockey Club?—Commonwealth.

They don't propose going so far, but do better by improving a ground of their own, near Florence.

BRADY-HILL.—It was a pleasant event which took place last evening at the residence of I. D. Rawlings, Esq. The chief parties on this occasion were Mr. S. P. Brady, of Burlington, Ky., and Miss Isabella Hill, also of Kentucky who were united in matrimony by Rev. B. F. Simpson, M. A., pastor of the Baptist church. The wedding party, though not large, was an exceedingly pleasant one, and all seemed to share in the happiness of the bride and groom, and all united in wishing them an abundance of enjoyment in there new sphere of life. The happy couple started via the Wabash railroad for Chicago, whence they will go to Philadelphia thence to their home in Burlington, Ky. —Jacksonville (Ill.) Daily Journal.

Mr. Brady and wife have many friends in Boone who wish them a happy life.

Last Thursday was William Walton's sale, which had been thoroughly advertised, and he being recognized as rather an extensive farmer, people by the twenties, fifties and hundreds, flocked there from all parts of the county, to buy what they desired of his stock and farming outfit, the result of years close attention and careful selection. A large amount of property was sold, and, owing to its good condition, brought fair prices. Mr. Walton prepared a dinner for a large attendance, but before noon the crowd had grown to such immense proportions, that it was impossible to entirely satiate the appetite of everyone there, and when the command was given, the long table, on which appeared to be a wagon load of meat and bread, was cleared of every vestage of provision instantur, and those failing to make connection turned their attention to the orchard which was near by. It was one of the busiest days Mr. Walton and his boys have had for a long time, and we hope the prices realized are satisfactory to them.

Circuit Court convened Monday. Judge Major was very much indisposed and Col. DeJarnett charged the grand jury for him in an very earnest and able manner. The grand jury is composed of the following gentlemen;

J Frank Grant, Foreman, W B Craven, Jno P. Craig, Jno R Smith, S J Hedges, James Breeden, Alfred Chambers, E L Grant, Noah Surface, Nick Talbott, T J Uts, Jno S Mason, Noah Sebree, Ben Stephens, G W Huey and J. J. Weaver.

The petit juries are composed of the following gentlemen:

Jury No. 1.—J D Cloud, M S Rice, Lewis Rice, J H Smith, Robt. Black, Henry Dixon, Marian Stephens, B W Adams, N B Stephens, Jno Bradford, Milton Beemon and Alvin Corn.

Jury No. 2.—J F Blythe, Asa Cason, Ed Fowler, Jno H Aylor, R S Cowen, Chas White, Jno O Roberts, Chas McKim, James Delph, G T Gaines, Ras Huey and W H Grant.

The attendance at Court Monday was not very large.

Elder E. Stephens, the Lord willing, will preach at Florence X-Roads the 2d Sunday in this month, at 3 o'clock.

The funeral of Mrs. Nancy Snyder, who died a short time since, will be preached at Gunpowder Church, Sunday, October 21st.

A large circle of friends and acquaintances sympathize with Dr. W. H. Blanton, of Union, in the loss of his estemable wife. She died last Saturday morning and was buried Sunday after the funeral preached by Rev. J. A. Kirtley.

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Taylorport.

Miss Eliza Stockwell, of South Bend, O., is visiting friends in our town......Miss Page Grubbs spent part of last week among her friends in Delhi and Home City...... Aaron Carter will move to California in December......Wm Humphrey is building a house on one of the lots bequeathed to him by Mrs. McNiel, decd. .... Harry Piper was in town last Friday.

Waterloo.

The pastures of this vicinity have put on a green appearance since our last.

The prayer meeting at the former residence of J. H. Walton was well attended on Friday night, and will meet at Elijah Ryle's next Friday evening.

J. T. Marshall talks seriously of shaking the dust from his sandals and locate in the sunny South. Dump, leave us a lock of hair.

Dr. J. M. Grant and James Conner, of Burlington, took dinner at our neighborhood store, Saturday.

Farmers will be busy this week sowing wheat and cutting corn,

Hebron.

Farmers are sowing wheat, and seed wheat is selling at $1 and $1 10.

Stock hogs are selling at 5 cents.

The ball given at this place Wednesday night was largely attended by the gallantry and beauty of this and adjacent neighborhoods.

Tuesday night thieves made a clean deal of Abe Clore's meat.

Perry Aylor and Virginia Clore were joined in wedlock on the 26th ult., and returned Sunday from their wedding tour. J. M. Utz and Dellia Williams were guests at the infare.

Verona.

Tobacco about all cut, and very good considering the dry weather. Not much seeding done yet.

Miss Nannie Hamilton's school for advanced scholars commenced Monday, Miss Frances Poland is teaching at the Fry School-house.

A protracted meeting was held at the Baptist church the past week, by Revs. Johnson and Riley, which resulted in 14 new members.

Miss Laura Mansfield is our leading musician.

Mr. Geo. Utz, wife and daughter, were visiting at this place, Saturday.

Mr. David Huston has completed his new barn. John M. Powers is having a new barn built.

Florence.

The enterprising spirit of our town is manifesting itself in the erection of two tasteful and commodious cottages; one by John Olsner, blacksmith, the other by W. C. Tanner, retired merchant.

School Commissioner D. M. Snyder and the trustees and teacher's of school district No. 8, Florence, seem to be at loggerheads, and an appeal from the action of said commissioner, in regard to same, is the result. M. E. Clutterbuck, appellant, vs D. M. Snyder, appellee. The petition with papers has been forwarded to the State Board, and as soon as Mr. Snydor makes his answer we will state the case,

J. W. Howe and family, formerly residents of this place, passed through town a few days since enroute for Ohio, with all the appendages and paraphernalia requisite in keeping a farm house. Mr. H. purchased a farm near Hamilton, O., paying $110 per acre, upon which he locates.

If there is happiness in a big sunflower, Tom Swetnam ought to be the happiest man in town. His annual measures 38½ in circumference. His neighbor says he can beat him on the son, but his flour is rather contracted.

When the suicidal mania gets possession of the canines, we think it is time for the higher order of animals to seek death on a more exalted scale. We have to chronicle this week the sad terminus of two noble "purps," Jip and Jack, who came to their untimely end by leaping into wells. What could have prompted them to this rash act, is a mystery. Both belonged to kind indulgent families, particularly Jip, whose melodious voice, as it was sweetly wafted on the midnight breeze to the enchanted neighbors, told of a happy home. Poor Jip and Jack are at rest—so are we.

Though we were so unfortunate as to lose the great Southern R. R., by about one mile, we are not wanting in conveyances to the depot of same, and every morning and afternoon the cries of r-a-i-l-r-o-a-d, from a half dozon drivers of as many different styled vehicles, ring through the streets of our town. Fare from 0 to 15c, each way, and travelers wishing conveyance from and to this point can be assured of accommodation to suit purse and person.

Uncle Noah Clore comes to town every day, because it was foreordained that he should.

Miss Kate Delmnzo, a belle of Ghent, Ky, who has been paying her uncle, S. S. Scott a visit has returned to her home.

Kirby Conrad has also returned to his home.

Judge F. H. Meyers, of Princeton, Ky., formerly of this place, is here to see his many friends.... Miss Delia Grogan contemplates a pleasure trip to St. Louis, this week...... The Misses Carey, Alice and Lula, have just returned from a pleasant trip via Eminence to Louisville Exposition......L. Conner Yager, jr., enters the Cincinnati Law School, October 11th, 1883.

Personal Mentions.

[If you have friends from a distance visiting you or expect to be away from home on business or pleasure, let us have the item for this column.]

Buddie Smith spent Sunday with his parents.

Prof. Bell, of Rabbit Hash, was in town Saturday.

Miss Phronie Campbell is visiting friends in Indiana.

H. P. Stephens, atty., of Independence, was in town Saturday.

Judge Riddell and family will become citizens of the town again this week.

W. L. Scott and wife, of Kenton Co., were visiting Mrs. Dempsey Saturday and Sunday.

Mrs. Powell, who has been visiting her sister at this place for several days returned to her father's in Kenton.

Mr. E. E. Utz and sister, Miss Susan. left Tuesday morning to visit friends relatives at New Liberty, Owen county.

Miss Maude Kirkpatrick after a week's pleasant visit in the Bellevue neighborhood returned home last Sunday.

Mrs. R. B. Johnson, of Holden, Mo., who has been visiting relatives in this county, returned home this week, her mother, Mrs. America Scott, going with her.

W. L. Gedge, of Covington, who sojourned in our midst last week, participated in one of those piscatorial excursions which visit the Ohio so often from this place. The fruit of the trip was not plentiful.

Colter's, Rising Sun, Ind., is the place to laying your winter goods.*

Over three thousand Full Suits to select from at Colter's, Rising Sun, Ind.*

People go fifty miles to trade at Colter's, Rising Sun, Indiana.*

Buy your Boots and Shoes at Colters, Rising Sun, Indiana.*

Grange Meeting.

On Saturday the 14th inst,, the members of the Mt. Pleasant Grange will hold a meeting. The members of Petersburg and Point Pleasant Granges are especially invited to attend. Speeches and a good dinner will be the order of the day. Bros. N. S. and J. H. Walton, and others will deliver cheering speeches. The object of the meeting is to consummate the granges mentioned Our Grange Hall has passed from under another cloud, and will soon bask in the sunshine with a new coat of tea green, with red trimmings. Meeting at 10 a. m.

G. C. GRADDY.

8

For tremulousness, wakefulness, dizziness, and lack of energy, a most valuable remedy is Brown's Iron Bitters.

OTTUMWA, IA.—Dr. J. N. Armstrong says: "I have used Brown's Iron Bitters in my family and recommend its use to others."

JEFFERSON CITY, MO.—Dr. J. C. Riddler says: "Persons who use Brown's Iron Bitters always speak well of it. It is a good medicine."

Farm for Sale!

35 acres of good rolling bottom land, 3½ miles below Aurora ferry, ½ mile from Bellevue and ¼ mile from the Ohio river, being part of the Warren Rogers farm. For particulars call on or address T. H. SUTTON, Grant P. O., Ky., or at this office. 44-2-m

Farm for Sale.

I am offering for sale my farm, lying 3 miles south of Burlington on the Big Bone road, containing 55½ acres, a part of the Mason Crisler farm. The land lays well and is conveniently located, the improvements are a good brick house and all necessary out buildings, and a variety of good fruit. Any person desirous of purchasing a nice farm will do well to come and examine the premises and learn terms. Title good. MRS. OSCAR CRISLER.

INSURE AT HOME

The Farmers' Mutual Fire

INSURANCE COMPANY

Of Boone County

Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.

Its Rates are Lower

Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a

HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE

In keeping their property insured.

EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY

should take a policy at once.

N. S. WALTON, President, Petersburg, Ky.	J. H. WALTON, Secretary, Constance, Ky.

R. RANDALL, Treasury.

DIRECTORS.

LEGRAN GAINES, Jeff. Utz,
JNO. M. MOODY.

J. W. KIRKPATRICK & SON,
—BURLINGTON, KY.—
UNDERTAKERS
—AND—
EMBALMERS,

Will furnish nice Hearse any reasonable distance for $10.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - - UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office over Dudley Rouse's Store.

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.

Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.

Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence,
Burlington, - - Ky.

L. C. NORMAN. E. I. [illegible]
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW,
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.

Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State, 24 tf 81

DR. A. B. HARRY AN

RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.

Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.

Will practice in the Boone Circuit Cour and the Court of Appeals. Prompt atten tion given to Collections, on application t G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

S. W. TOLIN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - Y
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.

Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. Aprompt an studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.

Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.

No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.

I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,

F. W. KASSEBAUM.

We Have
J. SCHOFIELD & SON'S
JEANS, BLANKETS AND YARNS.
THE JEANS IS BLUE WARP, THE PRICE IS
45 Cents.

Those parties that wanted to get a corner on Schofield's Goods are badly disappointed as they see they can't get 60 cents a yard for the Madison Jeans when we propose to stir matters up a little.

COLTER, Rising Sun, Ind

DRY GOODS AND NOTIONS.

FANCY & STAPLE GROCERIES, SALT BY THE BARREL,

R O U S E.

BOOTS, SHOES, HATS, CAPS.

The Best of Flour
PATENT & HIGH GRADE
Always on Hand, and cheaper than the cheapest.

QUEENSWARE, GLASSWARE AND TINWARE.

DUDLEY ROUSE'S,

I now have on hand a full Stock of SCHOFIELDS Flannels, Jeans, and Yarns. Call early and make a Purchase,

M.L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEED.

SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES)

LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE.

79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.

Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month,
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold,
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.

All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE
Petersburg Drug Store,
Where you can find everything in the
Drug line, such as——.
Well call and see and be convinced.
Respectfully, S. C BUCHANAN.

TRADE MARK,

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S
Indian Blood Syrup
Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the
BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.
Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.
AGENTS WANTED.
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St., New York City. Druggists sell it.

D. CLARK JOHNSON:— This certifies that your Indian Blood Syrup is the best medicine I ever used in my family. My wife has been greatly benefited by it. L. E. MCCAMC, Seaville, Ky. Mar. 15, '83

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier

CAPITAL $300,000.

FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK.
Covington, Kentucky.

DIRECTORS.

James S. Wayne,	M. C. Motch,	Sam Hind,	E. J. Hickey,	E. J. Green,
J. S. Matson,	J. H. Mersman,	A. R. Mullen,	L. H Dills,	F. P. Helm,
		L. C. Stephens.

The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.

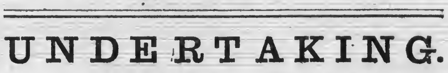
The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by this Bank, dec. 20-6m

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.

FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.

mar7-tf23 J. W. Talbott.

UNDERTAKING.



We keep Constantly on Hand all sizes of
Burial Cases and Caskets.
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES GUARANTEED LESS THAN CITY PRICES.
DAVIS BROS., - - HEBRON, KY.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL, Publishers.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY.

Fruit in Summer.

"Fruit being palatable and easily obtained, and less heat-producing than meat and bread, should be largely used as a food, in summer," so says the British Medical Journal. All the best medical authorities agree upon this statement. No one disputes that fruit is more easily obtained in the summer than in the winter. Very few boys go out, in this climate, to rob water-melon patches on Christmas eve. And the cases in which people take the cholera by lounging about in the grass, eating green apples in January are very rare. And we all agree that fruit should be used largely as a food. Some people may prefer to use it as a raiment, but this is not right. Then banana is sometimes very successfully used as a roller skate, but this use of that esculent is improper and forced. The onion may also be diverted from its use as a food and employed as a weapon of offence. And the hucksters make sales of apples and lemons. But we are all agreed that the best use to which food can be applied is as a food.

The best way to obtain food, perhaps, is to wait until the farmer has gone to bed. The thunder-storm can't waken him. Then enthusiastic fruit seeker should not neglect to take along a can of chloroform for the dogs, as they are passionately fond of it. A farm dog does not often have the opportunity of inhaling the chloroform that does not cheer one-half so much as it inebriates twice as quick. Give him all he wants of it; he will feel the better for its digestive properties. It is just what the dog needs, especially after a hurried repast of human veal.

Fruit, the doctors tell us, may be taken with a meal or upon an empty stomach. It has, they say, a gently irritating effect upon the mucous membrane of the stomach. A long lumber hedge switch in the hands of the man who owns the orchard has also been found to have a gently irritating effect upon the epidermis of the back, which has, in some instances been sensibly noticed through two coats, a vest, a hickory shirt and an atlas back. "A succulent and pleasantly acid variety is best for the purpose of an aperient." And perhaps, although we are not a medical expert, yet we say it boldly, perhaps there is no fruit quite so succulent as new cider eaten through a straw. As it grows riper and riper the cider loses this succulent quality, and is to be eaten rapidly, in large doses with most astonishingly exhilarating effects. This vigorous and hardy fruit gathered from the sunny side of a New Jersey "Stone Fence," will put spring into the heels of an old man, until he will weigh a ton. "Cooking," says the Medical Journal, "removes much of the acidity from crude fruit and renders it lighter and more palatable," but we believe this kind of an apple is usually eaten cold.

"It is a fundamental principle that whatever fruit is eaten uncooked must be fully ripe." And all people cannot eat all kinds of fruit. For instance, a boy twelve years old should only be allowed to eat the following fruit, in various stages of maturity: Apples, ten days from the blossom, pears, as soon as they can be scratched with a piece of glass, gooseberries in the bud, currants, peaches when the pith becomes too hard to bite, grapes, melons in the pith, squash, potatoes, turnips, cucumbers, onions, bananas, gourds, cranberries, crab-apples, acorns, pignuts, new persimmons and oak-balls. But it is difficult, even with the utmost vigilance, for the parent to restrict the boy to even this liberal fruit diet, although it is dangerous even for the healthy boy to go beyond this limit. Still, he will do it sometimes. About twice a day.—Burlington Hawk-Eye.

A Likely Parrot.

The education of the parrot whose ownership was contested in a Brooklyn police court some months ago, has now been completed. He speaks and sings in German and English, whistles several tunes, fools all the dogs on the block with his coxing calls, and mimics the caterwauling of fighting cats. As a reporter stepped into the shop of his master, at 131 Meserole street, yesterday afternoon, Polly sang out from his perch over the door, "Go 'way! Go 'way!" and then, as though repenting of the cruel rebuff, screamed, "God grant mercy! Come here, don't you hear?"

"I've taught the little fellow so much in the last three years," said his owner, "that he begins to forget part of it, and I guess I'll have to graduate him. Before he learned 'Polly wants a cracker' I taught him my name, and if anyone stole him I should find it out, because he says twenty times a day if he does once, 'I belong to Strauss, ha, ha, ha!'"

"What about the case in which the bird figured some months ago?" asked the reporter.

"I sold my bird store, and the buyer insisted that the parrot was included in the purchase, but Justice Kiehl decided in my favor when he heard the bird say, 'I belong to Strauss, I belong to Strauss.'"

Mr. Strauss said a thief visited his shop one day when he had stepped out, and a neighbor of his saw the man seize Polly and start to run off, but he dropped the bird like a shot when it cried out, "God grant mercy!"

"Mother, get up; it's five o'clock. Put the coffee on. Father wants breakfast." With such cries and with cluckings like a mother hen, Polly interrupted the conversation. At one moment it assumed a martial attitude, and screamed loudly: "Clear the decks for action!" and then, with drooping head and tail, called out reverently: "Lord, make us thankful for what we're about to receive." As the reporter went away the bird was singing the first verse of a German serenade in a shrill soprano voice.—N. Y. Sun.

—Mrs. Bolton, one of the witnesses in the Frank James trial, whose former relations with the freebooters made her testimony very important, is described as a mite of a woman, a widow and as meek-looking as could well be found. She is the last woman in the world who would ever be taken as one connected with the most blood-thirsty band of robbers that ever existed. As to that point the James boys' band is a curious one in every respect. Frank would be taken for a lawyer or a professional man; Dick Liddell looks more like a dude than a cut-throat, and the women are all good housewives and church-going country folks, except Mrs. Hite, of Kentucky, who evidently has been a backwoods country belle.—Indianapolis Journal.

FOREIGN GOSSIP.

—Ten thousand men, mostly from Jamaica, are at work upon the Panama Canal.

—It has been decided by the Austrian railway administration to employ women as guards on the same terms as men.

—With the exception of a few years, Madagascar's rulers since 1828 have been women. A niece of the late Queen has just succeeded her to the throne, and makes the fifth Queen since that year, and the fourth in an unbroken line.

—The Shah of Persia has a way of managing horse-races that is peculiar, at least. The competitors all deposit the entrance money with his Majesty, and when the race is finished the Shah confiscates the winning horse and keeps the entrance money. Pool-selling is not practiced in that enlightened part of creation.

—Among the victims of Casamicciola were a Signor and Signora Bonavita, who left property worth $1,000,000, to which there is no direct heir. Their relatives, in order to determine the succession, have petitioned to have their bodies disinterred, that by an examination of the external injuries it may be ascertained, if possible, who died first.

—A circus man in Europe has a new way of raising money. He raffles off his African lion at each town he visits. In this style of raffle the victim is the unfortunate winner. "Take your lion," says the honest circus man as he goes to open the cage. The crowd stampede. The unlucky owner, who finds he can not buy the cage, generally pays the circus man to keep the brute.

—The conversion to Christianity of the Queen of Madagascar, who lately died, is said to have been entirely accidental. She chanced to find an old Bible around the palace and began to read and study it, ending in adopting the faith and making bold war upon idolatry. Under her rule the country took rapid strides forward in education and all kinds of progress.

—The youngest son of one of the first families of Schleswig-Holstein made a visit to Monaco. He had a large sum of money with him at the time, but he lost it at roulette. Telegraphing home for more, he received it and played again, but lost all he had. He then lost his watch, his studs and his rings, and tried to borrow 500 francs to pay his hotel bill. Being a stranger he could not do this, and out of shame for his failure, and out of reluctance to ask for more money from his family and explain the situation to it, he shot himself.

—Labouchere tells the following story of his earliest visit to Aix-les-Bains: "I remember arriving there when I was about seventeen. I sat down at the gaming-table, and in half an hour I won £400 or £500. An official then told me that the Commissary of Police wished to speak to me. On being introduced into the den of this official he asked me whether, as I evidently was a minor, I had the written permission of my parents to gamble. I said that they had not furnished me with such a document, so he told me that I could not be allowed to play. This excellent man probably saved me a good deal of money, for I left with my booty instead of returning to the tables."

Magical Roots and Herbs.

A house with four gables, each one of which seemed to lean for consolation and support against the telegraph poles that had sprung up beneath them. Windows whose long service had apparently deprived them of usefulness, for their dingy, unpainted blinds were tightly closed and bound with faded green muslin. A sign, which bore the legend, "Herbs Sold Here," and a row of dingy window-panes, through which could be discerned bunches of parti-colored leaves, that resembled nothing more than the war-trophies of some sanguinary Indian who had fought and bled, but who had conquered his enemy. Within, in strange contrast with the accumulation of dust, stood a young man whose hair cast a lurid glow over the piles of boxes that reached the ceiling, filled, if the labels on them could be trusted, with cures for every ill that human flesh is heir to, as well as a large variety of others, and with powders and potions whose presence in an active stomach would make death a welcome relief. Across the counter stood a colored woman, whose avoirdupois could only be correctly determined by hay-scales. There was an eager look in her eyes; and with one hand clutching with convulsive energy a dollar bill, and the other stretched like a signal-service storm map on the counter, she whispered in the most accessible ear of the youth:

"Gimme some Adam and Eve."

It was done, and the money changed its owner. The colored woman vanished amid the thunder of her tread, and the clerk sank behind the counter with a flash of his lurid locks.

A Tribune reporter asked the clerk what the woman meant. He was enlightened as follows:

"We have colored men and women call here every day and ask for 'Adam and Eve.' It is a root found in New Jersey swamps, and is supposed to bring the best fortune to its owner. We charge one dollar for a single root. Here is one of them." The reporter was shown a small, light-colored root, resembling in fiber the peanut-root. From a slender stem bulged two protuberances of unequal size. "The small bulb," continued the clerk, "is Adam; the larger, Eve. Colored people put the roots in a bottle and then pour a pint of whisky over them; if they swell there is luck in them, and they are cherished for years as their most valuable possession. I have known negroes to commit suicide because they had lost their 'Adam and Eve.' A colored man came in here a few days ago and told me that he had been to Philadelphia and that he made over a hundred dollars at cards. On his way back on the train he had got drunk by imbibing the whisky in his 'Adam and Eve' bottle, and in a fit of frenzy had thrown his charm away. He said his money was stolen from him before he arrived in Jersey City, and he spent a week hunting over the tracks of the Pennsylvania Railway for his lost 'Adam and Eve.' I sold him another."

"The superstition about the four-leaved clover is well known. We have them for sale here, and have a good trade for them. They can be bought for $5 each. Some persons who have found a four-leaved clover would, I believe, rather part with their lives than with their tiny plant, for it brings destruction on the fortunes of a man if he loses his quatrefoil.

"There is a root that is known among colored people as the 'dead-root.' It is very small, shaped somewhat like a carrot, but forked. The more forks it has the more powerful it is. The peculiar virtue of the 'dead-root' is that it not alone prevents death by violence, but drives away the evil spirits that are supposed to hover about the remains of a worldly negro after death. Wherever you meet with a colored man of reckless daring you may depend upon it that he has a 'dead-root' hung about his neck. It is necessary, however, to make these fetiches powerful, that no person should know that you are the possessor of one, for such is the faith the negro has in their virtue, that if any man is supposed to have one of extraordinary efficacy, he would be in danger of robbery if not of murder. Beside the root that I have spoken about, there are many others that have special virtues. The snake-root will cure snake-bites, however poisonous they may be, and the 'devil-root' is supposed to prevent delirium tremens."

"These superstitions are not confined to the negroes by any means. We have white customers as well, but of course their number is small. It is true that the colored people who come here to buy the 'charmed roots' belong to the most ignorant portion of their race, but there seems to be a grain of the most senseless superstition inherent in the negro that is found in the members of no other race. The herb business is not now what it used to be. In fact, it has decreased one-half in the last five years. While the treatment with herbs is still regarded as good, the science of pharmacy has become such that only the active principle of the herb is used instead of the plant itself. Our stock is gathered in New Jersey and Long Island, by persons who make herb-picking a regular business. The plants are dried and packed there, and are sent to us in bales. Of course, we are obliged to depend to a great extent on the knowledge of the herb-gatherers, but they are trained from their childhood to make a proper selection, and their training seldom leads them astray. Herbs and roots are sent to us from all parts of the country, as there are some plants with medicinal properties that cannot be found in our vicinity. But it is rare indeed that a herb is sent to us from over the seas. It is safe to say that there is not a plant that grows which is valuable in medicine that cannot be found within the boundaries of our country."—N. Y. Tribune.

The Life Led by the Men Who Make Newspapers.

What a curious life journalism opens to its devotees! Some fellows sit quietly in their offices from eight o'clock at night until two in the morning doing nothing but reading what other people have written, striking out here, putting in there, knowing absolutely nothing of the world except that which they read of, sleeping the better part of it at home, giving to their families not more than three or four waking hours, rarely if ever going to places of public amusement, avoiding as far as possible all individual responsibilities, humdrumming through life, busy, active, useful, but uninformed out of certain grooves. Others devote themselves to specialties, in which they become proficient, aside from which they know no more than the ordinary merchant or broker. Others, again, are immersed in politics, writing upon no other subject. Some deal with conventions exclusively. Writers on art, whether it be dramatic, lyric or the work of the painter, are of no special use as general newspaper men, but seek and find well-paid employment upon great newspapers which can afford specialists.

Then there is the correspondent, here to-day, there to-morrow, and somewhere else all the rest of the time. With his eyes open he has it in his power to know everything knowable—in a superficial way. He meets the great men of the country and the little ones, and is known to them by name and sight. He is always welcomed, because he has it in his power to serve. If he were to be stricken blind, or with paralysis, or be laid up beyond the possibility of convalescence and recuperation, they would not put their hands in their pockets to the extent of $1 for him or his. Correspondents, by the way, are divided into sundry classes. Some men have noses for news and nothing else. They scent an item from afar. Others are enterprising in the last degree. They not only know a good thing when they see it, but they see it before anybody else is aware of its existence, and understand how to utilize it for the benefit of their employers. There are gossip writers, men who know nothing except stories about this, that and the other man or woman. If the gossip can have an unpleasant flavor to it, all the better. They are mud slingers, stirrers of communities, people who are shunned by reputable and thoughtful men, chiefly because it is unsafe to talk in their presence; men who do not hesitate to repeat private conversations, to violate the sanctities of confidential communications, who would steal an idea from a telegraph wire, or read an opened letter on a friend's desk without the slightest compunction.—Jo. Howard, in Boston Herald.

Ecuador.

With regard to the climate the rainy season generally runs from December to June, the remaining months being dry; but on the Amazon slope it rains all the year round. As to the influence of the climate on man there are vast healthy districts in the river valleys of the Amazon region, while those of the Pacific shore are commonly full of disease. Special disorders are chiefly due to the lack of sanitary measures. In the west and northwestern parts the abuse of sweets as food results in a curious and frightful intestinal complaint. The country is now, and will, in all probability remain, almost wholly agricultural, the Pacific coast and river valleys of both east and west yielding generous crops of cacao, cotton, sugar cane, rice, tobacco and tropical fruits; while the inter-Andean plateau produces all the cereals and vegetables incident to a temperate and even cold climate, though they are of inferior quality. No hope of the Republic ever being an exporter of cereals is held out, and cattle do not thrive in the Amazon section, chiefly from the immense number of bats, which bleed or otherwise irritate them. Cinchona bark, which first came from the province of Loja, is being so rapidly cut and sent out of the country without new planting that the supply must soon cease; and Colonel Church attributes this to the fact that the highest official sanction is given to this destructive measure for private emolument. In mineral wealth Ecuador is poor. The population is estimated at 1,000,000 (exclusive of savage tribes), and is distributed as follows: White, 100,000; mixed, 300,000; pure Indian, 600,000. The evil qualities of the mixed races are condemned as the source of the degradation of the country. Internal communications are much needed in Ecuador, and although Colonel Church is personally interested in the construction of future railroads, he expresses his strong opinion that for the next ten or twenty years a thorough system of first-class mule routes would undoubtedly be the best for Ecuador.—London Times.

HOME AND FARM.

—The yolk of an egg mixed with a little molasses makes a rich brown glaze for the top of rusks and buns.

—Charcoal, either in lumps or pulverized, and mixed with lime or gypsum, is a great deodorizer. It can be hung in baskets in cisterns, daries, refrigerators, or meat safes, and will keep the contents from absorbing foul odors.—Prairie Farmer.

—Little wafer-like cakes to eat with chocolate or cocoa are made of two eggs, three tablespoonfuls of sugar, one tablespoonful of butter, with flour enough to make a stiff dough; roll them very thin, cut in strips, and bake in a quick oven.—N. Y. Post.

—The Rev. L. L. Langstroth, the inventor of the movable frame bee-hive, and an authority in bee-keeping, recommends planting all waste places with golden-rod and wild aster as sources of honey supply. "So fond of these flowers are bees," he says, "that they will forsake almost everything else for them.—N. Y. Examiner.

—This way of making a plum pudding cannot be too highly recommended: If fresh plums are in season use them; if not take a quart can of plums; put them in a basin on the stove; when hot, sweeten them plenteously; soak several slices of bread in the juice, then line a pudding dish with the bread and pour the plums in. Serve cold, with cream.—N. Y. Post.

—Analysis fails to show any essential difference as to the value of either white or yellow corn. But for table use the difference between white and yellow meal is very great; the individual preference for one or the other appears to depend upon early education. Those who in their early youth have been accustomed to use white meal cannot tolerate the yellow, and vice versa.—Chicago Tribune.

—Some one who has tried it says it is a good plan to burn sulphur in cellars where milk is kept, especially if they are damp. The sulphurous acid evolved destroys the mildew, which if not checked will injure the flavor of cream and butter. In many damp cellars the mildew wastes the cream so that the butter product is seriously decreased, besides the injury to quality.

—The markets for beef cattle can hardly be considered in a healthy condition, price are disappointing. The demand for beef is good, and as immense runs are marketed with ease, at prices astonishing, if compared with the best prices of two years ago, it conclusively proves that all the meat that can be raised will find a profitable outlet. Our trouble this year has been at home, and it is useless to disguise the fact that the cattle have not been up to the standard of last or other previous years.—Texas Live Stock Journal.

Handling Stock.

The term "handling stock" is a technical one, more particularly applied to cattle than to any other domestic animals, but a practical knowledge of it, even in sheep and swine, is considered important in England by all breeders.

When the fingers are moderately pressed upon the fleshy parts of an animal, and the hair, hide, and especially the flesh, beneath have a fine, soft, elastic spring, it is called good handling; on the contrary, if they are coarse, thick, hard and rigid to the feeling, with little or no spring under the pressure of the fingers, that is called bad handling. Of course there are as many degrees in handling, from very bad to very good, as there are grades of animals. The better an animal handles, the quicker it feeds—that is the sooner it will mature and become fully grown for the purpose of breeding, or to fat for the butcher, and a good handler will do this at a much less consumption of food than a bad one.

By cultivating a race of cattle which handle well we gain in two ways—lessen the time in perfecting them, and save in the food. For example: A good handling steer can be fully fitted for the shamble at about three years of age, while an indifferent one will require a year longer to do this, and a bad one fully two years; and yet the price realized from the three will be within a fraction of the same. So here is a considerably greater consumption of food in the last two, greater risk in keeping them, and the loss of one or two years of interest on the amount for which they are sold.

So important is the knowledge of proper handling considered in England, that when a grazier comes to purchase stock of the breeder to feed for the shambles, he would rather select the animals blindfold with handling, than with his eyes wide open to inspect them without this opportunity of touching them.—National Live Stock Journal.

Chewed Codfish.

"Would you like to buy some condensed codfish?"

"What is condensed codfish?"

The man opened a box and showed a preparation which he said was simply ground codfish.

"What put it into your head to grind it in this manner?"

"Well, I was in the fish business, barely making enough to keep soul and body together, when a friend came in and chaffed me for not going into some other business. He picked up a big codfish scornfully and said: "Now, that is a pretty thing to offer a man; its just a mess of strings that nobody can chew." And to chafe me still further, he said in sort of a jocular way, "You ought to hire a boy to chew that fish for your customers." I got an idea from that, and before night I had a grinding machine, and next morning I put out a sign 'Condensed Codfish.' Everybody wondered what that was, and most of them bought some to try. It took like fire, and in less than a month I was clearing $35 a day on that alone and had half a dozen instead of one boy to do the chewing for my customers. It is a big business now. I am shipping it all over the country and am about to close arrangements for supplying the English market through a New York house. If that succeeds I can retire in five years with a fortune. My friend is keeping books for me and says he is the inventor of chewed codfish."—Chicago Herald.

"Put it Thar."

When the stranger remarked that he was from Arkansas, one of the passengers suddenly turned and asked:

"You are, eh? Maybe you are from Crittenden County?"

"I am that."

"Perhaps from James' Landing?"

"That's it, exactly."

"Then, maybe, you know my brother, William Henry Jones, from Penn Yan, this State?

"Stranger, put it thar!" exclaimed the Arkansas traveler, as he extended his hand and smiled all over. Bust my buttons if I didn't help hang your brother for cattle-stealing jist before I left home."—Wall Street News.

—An old frame house in Winthrop, Me., built 114 years ago, was moved half a mile recently without even cracking the plastering.

A book agent named Joe Smyrk,
Was put out and hurt by a jerk,
He says as a cure,
St. Jacobs Oil is sure,
At all times to get in its work.

A lightning-rod man in St. Paul,
From a house had a serious fall,
Though battered and bruised,
He said, when he used
St. Jacobs Oil—" it simply beats all."

"Papa, please tell me the story of the new comet," said Mary to her father last evening. "I can not, my dear," replied Mr. Rattler, "there is no tail to it yet."—Boston Courier.

Marion, Mass.—Dr. N. S. Ruggles says: "I recommend Brown's Iron Bitters as a valued tonic for enriching the blood and removing all dyspeptic symptoms. It does not hurt the teeth."

The high-school girl condemns the phrase "tumble to the racket" as vile slang. She says "precipitate in the direction of the clamor" is a more elegant expression.—Oil City Derrick.

"Golden Medical Discovery" has been used with signal success in consumption of the lungs, consumptive night-sweats, spitting of blood, shortness of breath, weak lungs, coughs, bronchitis, and kindred affections of throat and chest. Sold by druggists.

In a Cincinnati store a piano is marked "Achern, 1761." And the music banged from some pianos sound like that evolved from a churn of the 1761 pattern.—Norristown Herald.

Huntsville, Ala.—Dr. J. T. Ridley says: "Brown's Iron Bitters is a good appetizer and merits attention from sufferers."

It is not right to make game of a man out of season.—N. Y. Picayune.

Ely's Cream Balm is doing wonders. I advise sufferers from Catarrh to lay other remedies aside. I believe it is the only remedy that will cure this terrible disease, from which I have suffered twenty years. Charles Garrabrant, Dealer in Boots and Shoes, 865 Broad St., Newark, N. J.

The coins paid for beer are the bar-nickels of society.—Marathon Independent.

"Men must work and women weep,
So runs the world away!"

But they need not weep so much if they use Dr. Pierce's "Favorite Prescription," which cures all the painful maladies peculiar to women. Sold by druggists.

The anti-vivisectionists argue that it hurts an oyster to open its shell with a knife. Humanity and good taste suggest that the oyster should be roasted in its shell.—N. O. Picayune.

Ely's Cream Balm cured me of Catarrh of many years' standing—restored my sense of smell. For colds in the head it works like magic. E. H. Sherwood, National State Bank, Elizabeth, N. J.

Rule for church fair oyster suppers—Twice one is stew.—Philadelphia Herald.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer

Is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which Sulphur, Sugar of Lead and Nitrate of Silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. John D. Park & Sons, Wholesale Agents, Cincinnati, Ohio, and C. N. Crittenton, New York.

A good brick will absorb about a quart of water, but "a regular brick" isn't that kind of a fellow.—N. Y. Advertiser.

The best cure for diseases of the nerves, brain and muscles, is Brown's Iron Bitters.

Writing a wrong is the forger's work.—New York Express.

The huge, drastic, griping, sickening pills are fast being superseded by Dr. Pierce's "Purgative Pellets." Sold by druggists.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, September 28, 1883.

LIVESTOCK—Cattle—common	$2 00	@	3 00
Choice butchers	4 00	@	4 25
HOGS—Common	4 00	@	4 75
Good packers	4 30	@	5 15
SHEEP	3 75	@	4 50
FLOUR—Family	5 25	@	6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—Long berry red	1 09	@
No. 2 red	1 06	@
Corn—No. 2 mixed	54	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed	30	@
Rye—No. 2	57	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	11 50	@
HEMP—Double dressed	8½	@
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	11 50	@	11 75
Lard—Current make	7¾	@
BUTTER—Fancy Dairy	17	@	18
Prime Creamery	20	@	23
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per bar. from store	1 25	@	1 30
Apples, prime, per barrel	2 50	@	3 00
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 25	@	3 85
Good to choice	4 40	@	7 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 spring	1 17	@
No. 2 red	1 10¾	@	1 11¾
Corn—No. 2 mixed—new	61½	@	61¾
Oats—mixed	32½	@	36
PORK—Mess	13 50	@	13 75
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@	4 25
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 03	@
Corn—No. 2	49½	@
Oats—No. 2	27¼	@
Rye	56½	@
PORK—Mess	10 25	@	7 87½
LARD—Steam	7-85	@
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 25	@	6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 08½	@	1 08¾
Corn—mixed	60½	@
Oats—mixed	34	@	36
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	14 50	@
Lard—Refined	10¾	@
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—A No. 1	$4 25	@	4 50
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red, new	1 01	@
Corn—mixed	51	@
Oats—mixed	30	@
PORK—MESS	12 00	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 red, new	$1 04	@
CORN—mixed	49	@
OATS—mixed	27¾	@
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	2 75	@

ARMY OF THE POTOMAC.

On The Chickahominy.

Under date of May 8, 1883, Col. S. F. Tibbitts, of Dover, N. H., sends us the following: "While on duty in the army of the Potomac in the swamps of the Chickahominy I contracted a complication of diseases that culminated in spinal trouble, paralysis on one side, and severe disease of the kidneys and bladder, and great urinal weakness. For a long time I was under the treatment of the best physicians, and tried many of the so-called remedies, but received no permanent benefit. When I was in the drug business in Boston I heard favorable accounts of the efficacy of Hunt's Remedy for diseases of the kidneys and urinary organs, and having decided to give it a trial, I purchased some at Wingate's drug store, Dover, N. H., and have received great relief from using it. The severe pains in my back are removed, and I am able to sleep soundly and obtain rest at night—which for so long a time I could not do, and the weakness in the urinary organs has been relieved, and I greatly regret that I did not test the great merits of Hunt's Remedy when I was first taken sick, as I am confident it would have saved me from several years of suffering; and I am more strongly convinced of this after hearing of the most remarkable cures effected by Hunt's Remedy in a case of Bright's Disease here in our midst in Dover, after the patient had been pronounced incurable by celebrated physicians."

Mr. Tibbits is a retired druggist, formerly located in Boston, and is a thoroughly reliable citizen.—Cor. Ed.

U. S. POSTAL SERVICE.

H. S. Whitney, assistant postmaster, Putnam, Conn., writes May 8, 1883: "I have used Hunt's Remedy with the best results. I have suffered untold agony for eighteen months with kidney and liver complaint; my water was very bad, at times I actually passed blood. This was followed by general prostration. My business requiring me to be on my feet most of the time made my case worse. I was advised to use Hunt's Remedy by a friend who had been cured by it, and can truly say that it has benefited me more than all the other medicines I have used. I consider it the best medicine for kidney and liver troubles, and cheerfully recommend it to all."

Why don't you use St. Patrick's Salve? Try it. Use it. 25c at all druggists.

Look Out for Frauds! The genuine "Rough on Corns" is made only by E. S. Wells (Proprietor of "Rough on Rats"), and has laughing face of a man on labels. 15c and 25c bottles.

Glenn's Sulphur Soap
Is a reliable means of eradicating local diseases of the skin. Hill's Hair and Whisker Dye, 50c.

Don't Die in the House. "Rough on Rats," clears out rats, mice, flies, roaches, bed-bugs. 15c.

If afflicted with Sore Eyes, use Dr. Isaac Thompson's Eye Water. Druggists sell it. 25c.

Skinny Men. "Wells' Health Renewer" restores health and vigor, cures Dyspepsia.

Redding's Russia Salve meets with wonderful success in all cases of Skin disease. Try it.

Stinging, Irritation, all Kidney and Bladder Complaints, cured by "Buchu-Paiba." $1.

Straighten your old boots and shoes with Lyon's Patent Heel Stiffener, and wear them again. Sold by shoe and hardware dealers.

ST. JACOBS OIL
TRADE MARK
[1]
THE GREAT
GERMAN REMEDY
FOR PAIN.
CURES
Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Sciatica
Lumbago, Backache, Headache, Toothache, Sore Throat, Swellings, Sprains, Bruises, Burns, Scalds, Frost Bites, And All Other BODILY PAINS and ACHES.
Sold by Druggists and Dealers everywhere. Fifty Cents a bottle. Directions in 11 Languages.
THE CHARLES A. VOGELER CO., (Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.) Baltimore, Md., U.S.A.

CATARRH
ELY'S CREAM BALM
ELY'S CREAM BALM CATARRH CURES COLD IN HEAD ROSE-COLD HAY-FEVER DEAFNESS HEADACHE PRICE 50 CENTS ELY'S CREAM BALM CO OWEGO N.Y. U.S.A.
HAY-FEVER
ELY'S CREAM BALM when applied by the finger into the nostrils, will be absorbed, effectually cleansing the head of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membrane of the nasal passages from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores taste and smell. A few applications relieve. A thorough treatment will positively cure. Agreeable to use. Send for circular. Price 50 cents by mail or at druggists. Ely Brothers, Druggists, Owego, N.Y.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS
In fever and ague districts, in tropical and other regions visited by epidemics, and indeed in all localities where the conditions are unfavorable to health, this famous vegetable invigorant and alterative, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has been found a potent safeguard even to feeble constitutions and fragile frames, while as a cure for indigestion, biliousness and kindred complaints, it is without a rival. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

WILKINSON RUBBER TARGET GUN.
Graves' Patent. The genuine and best. Shoots arrows, bullets and shot. Sends bullets 1,000 feet. Don't kick. Shoots straight. Ammunition, with 5 steel pointed arrows, shot and bullet attachment, delivered free on receipt of one dollar. Send for price list of Scroll Saws, Bicycles, Fishing Tackle, Hammocks, &c. THE JOHN WILKINSON CO., 78, 80 and 82 Wabash Avenue, Chicago, Ill.

AGENTS WANTED EVERYWHERE to sell the best Family Knitting Machine ever invented. Will knit a pair of stockings with HEEL and TOE complete in twenty minutes. It will also knit a great variety of fancy-work for which there is always a ready market. Send for circular and terms to the Twombly Knitting Machine Co., 163 Tremont Street, Boston, Mass.

"THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST."
SAW MILLS, ENGINES THRESHERS, Horse Powers,
(For all sections and purposes.) Write for Free Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

AGENTS SOMETHING NEW IN LIFE INSURANCE WANTED
Takes like wild fire. Any one can work it. Standard Journal FREE. Address STANDARD LIFE ASSOCIATION, Fort Wayne, Ind., or Grand Rapids, Mich.

Good Pay for Agents. $100 to $200 per mo. made selling our fine Books & Bibles. Write to J. C. McCurdy & Co., Cincinnati, O.

OPIUM and WHISKY HABITS cured at home without pain. Book of particulars sent free. B. M. WOOLLEY, M. D., Atlanta, Ga.

$65 A MONTH and BOARD for three live Young Men or Ladies, in each County. Address P. W. ZIEGLER & Co., Philadelphia.

AGENTS make money selling our Family Medicines; no capital required. STANDARD CURE Co., 197 Pearl St., NEW YORK.

MUSIC Over 700 different kinds best sheet music 5c. copy by mail. Catalogue free. Ad. MOORE & SMITH, Watertown, N. Y.

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co. Augusta, Me.

Answer This.

Is there a person living who ever saw a case of ague, biliousness, nervousness or neuralgia, or any disease of the stomach, liver or kidneys that Hop Bitters will not cure?

My mother says Hop Bitters is the only thing that will keep her from severe attacks of paralysis and headache.—Ed. Oswego Sun.

My little sickly, puny baby, was changed into a great bouncing boy and I was raised from a sick bed by using Hop Bitters a short time. A Young Mother.

No use to worry about any Liver, Kidney or Urinary Trouble, especially Bright's Disease or Diabetes, as Hop Bitters never fails of a cure where a cure is possible.

I had severe attacks of gravel and kidney trouble; was unable to get any medicine or doctor to cure me until I used Hop Bitters. They cured me in a short time.
T. R. Atty.

Unhealthy or inactive kidneys cause gravel, Bright's disease, rheumatism, and a horde of other serious and fatal diseases, which can be prevented with Hop Bitters if taken in time.

Ludington, Mich., Feb. 2, 1879.—I have sold Hop Bitters for four years, and there is no medicine that surpasses them for bilious attacks, kidney complaints and all diseases incident to this malarial climate.
H. T. Alexander.

Monroe, Mich., Sept. 25, 1875.—Sirs: I have been taking Hop Bitters for inflammation of kidneys and bladder, it has done for me what four doctors failed to do—cured me. The effect of the Bitters seemed like magic to me. W. L. Carter.

Gents—Your Hop Bitters have been of great value to me. I was laid up with typhoid for over two months, and could get no relief until I tried your Hop Bitters. To those suffering from debility or any one in feeble health, I cordially recommend them. J. C. Stoetzel, 658 Fulton st., Chicago, Ill.

$60 5-TON JONES
Iron Levers, Steel Bearings, Brass TARE BEAM. JONES, HE PAYS THE FREIGHT. Sold on trial. Warrante 5 years. All sizes as low. For free book, address
JONES OF BINGHAMTON, BINGHAMTON, N. Y.

PORTABLE & STATIONARY
Steam Engines
and STEAM BOILERS, smaller sizes adapted to
Farm and Plantation Use!
$200 We make six sizes, capacity from 3 to 50,000 ft. per day, with one saw. Our No. 1 Plantation Saw Mill. LANE & BODLEY CO., John and Water Sts., Cincinnati, Ohio. Send for catalogue free.

CANCER INSTITUTE, AURORA
Established, 1872; Incorporated, 1880. For the Cure of Cancers, Tumors, Ulcers, Scrofula and SKIN DISEASES, without the use of knife or Loss of Blood, and little pain. For INFORMATION, CIRCULARS AND REFERENCES, address DR. F. L. POND, Aurora, Kane Co., Ill.

Grocers and Dealers
—IN—
TEA AND COFFEE.
Send for Wholesale Price List of our goods. Lowest possible prices. GREAT LONDON TEA CO., 801 Washington Street, Boston, Mass.

PISO'S CURE FOR CONSUMPTION
25 CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. 100

Carpets, Rugs, Curtains, Window Shades.
Complete assortment of the newest, richest and most beautiful Carpets produced by the best manufacturers in America. Correspondence solicited. Samples and prices by mail. T. M. SNOWDON & CO., 107 W. Fourth Street, Cincinnati, O.

PILES "Anakesis" gives instant relief, and is an infallible cure for Piles. Price $1 from druggists, or sent prepaid by mail. Samples free. Ad. "ANAKESIS," Makers, Box 2416, New York.

$250 A MONTH. Agents Wanted. 90 best selling articles in the world. 1 sample FREE. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

Sure Cure Epilepsy or Fits in 24 hours. Free to poor. Dr. Kruse, 2844 Arsenal St., St. Louis, Mo.

FREE BY RETURN MAIL.—Full description Moody's New Tailor System of Dress Cutting MOODY & CO. Cincinnati, O.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

HAIR Wholesale and retail. Send for price-list. Goods sent C. O. D. Wigs made to order. E. BURNHAM, 71 State Street, Chicago.

AGENTS Coin Money by selling Dr. Chase's Family Physician and Second Receipt Book. $2. Address A. W. HAMILTON & CO., Ann Arbor, Mich.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE PILLS MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD
And will completely change the blood in the entire system in three months. Any person who will take ONE PILL EACH NIGHT FROM ONE TO TWELVE WEEKS, may be restored to sound health, if such a thing be possible. For curing Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. Physicians use them in their practice. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. Send for pamphlet. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

Reasons Why You Feel Badly.

Because your stomach is not doing its work properly.
Because your liver is out of order, and wants righting.
Because your blood is thin, and needs iron in it.
Because you are troubled with nervous aches and pains
Because you are vexed with languor and debility,
All these Reasons Can be Set Aside by the Use of Brown's Iron Bitters, which will Tone up your enfeebled stomach, and help it to digest.
Refresh your wearied liver and put it in splendid order.
Enrich your watery blood, and give it a rich red color.
Calm your worried nerves, and give them restful peace.
Strengthen your whole system and drive debility and languor out.

Considering that any man who has a dollar may buy of the nearest druggist a bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters, there is no reason why people should continue to feel badly, just for the fun of it. 4

AN OPEN SECRET
AMONG THE LADIES
The brilliant, fascinating tints of Complexion for which ladies strive are chiefly artificial, and all who will take the trouble may secure them. These roseate, bewitching hues follow the use of Hagan's Magnolia Balm—a delicate, harmless and always reliable article. Sold by all druggists.
The Magnolia Balm conceals every blemish, removes Sallowness, Tan, Redness, Eruptions, all evidences of excitement and every imperfection.
Its effects are immediate and so natural that no human being can detect its application.

CONSUMPTION CAN BE CURED!
DR. WM. HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE Lungs.
Cures Consumption, Colds, Pneumonia, Influenza, Bronchial Difficulties, Bronchitis, Hoarseness, Asthma, Croup, Whooping Cough, and all Diseases of the Breathing Organs. It soothes and heals the Membrane of the Lungs, inflamed and poisoned by the disease, and prevents the night sweats and tightness across the chest which accompany it. CONSUMPTION is not an incurable malady. HALL'S BALSAM will cure you, even though professional aid fails.

CHICAGO SCALE CO.
151 South Jefferson Street, Chicago, Ill.
2-Ton Wagon scale, $40; 4-Ton $60

EDUCATIONAL.
Young Men learn TELEGRAPHY here and we will give you a situation. Circulars free. VALENTINE BROS., Janesville, Wis.

A. N. K.—E. 943

WHEN WRITING TO ADVERTISERS please say you saw the advertisement in this paper.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KY., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 10, 1883. NUMBER 50.

A WARMED-UP MEMORY.

'Tis ever thus, that when the summer sun
Swings high in heaven, remembrance brings me back
To other summer days, when Love was young
And I was young in love—just on the track.

I mind me of that time when I had spent
A long vacation on my uncle's farm,
And found, on leaving, that behind I left
My heart a victim to a cousin's charm.

And this I knew not till about to go,
I lingered with her there beside the gate;
When all at once my heart went throbbing so,
My eyes were opened, and I saw my fate.

I gazed into her eyes with meaning vast,
But could not speak, however hard I'd try.
I took one little hand—and would had both,
But that the other held a piece of pie.

I fain believe I would have kissed her, too—
Her lips were of the ripest, reddest dye;
Inviting, tempting—and I know I could,
Had not her mouth been full of that same pie.

And so we parted. I went back to town,
Soon to forget my love; but till I die
I'll ne'er forget how quickly love cools down
When "frozen out" by stronger love of pie.
—Lowell Citizen.

FRANCES HALLIDAY.

How Cupid managed to send Stephen Barker after me I never could find out; but that is between themselves and is none of my business. A man good enough for Elizabeth and Janet, and all such ornaments to their sex, to lay his heart at my foolish little feet! I own that for a day or two the honor almost turned my head.

Then I began to consider. I had loved Norman Strong ever since I could remember, and Norman had been my friend when no one else said a kind word to me. The case stood thus: I was an orphan, left in the care of an uncle and aunt remarkable for that kind of property that wins our admiration and awakens our hearty desire to get away from it. I had a fortune of $25,000—that is, I was to have it if I remained unmarried until I was thirty-five, or if I married previously with my uncle's approval.

Now uncle did not approve of Norman—in fact uncle never approved of any one that I liked. But with Stephen Barker disapproval was out of the question. Stephen was the great man and the good man of our small town. To have insinuated that Stephen was not worthy of a saint, a beauty and an heiress united, would have been a heresy seriously affecting my uncle's social and commercial standing. Stephen Barker's offer was therefore accepted, and the next Sunday we walked to church together.

After this public avowal of our intentions the marriage was considered inevitable by every person but me. I must do myself the justice to state that I never regarded my engagement with Stephen seriously; it was a part of a plan to secure my happiness and rights. And as Stephen fully coincided in it, I do not expect censure from any one else.

I think it was no later than the third night after Stephen had spoken to me that I frankly told him that I thought I ought not to marry him. He asked me why, and I said: "All my life long, Stephen, I have been such a crushed, unhappy girl, I have been afraid to speak, or laugh, or sing, and no one but Norman Strong ever said a kind word to me until you came."

"And you love Norman?" he asked, bluntly.

So I answered: "Yes, I love him, and he loves me, and when he got the position of cashier in your bank he wanted to marry me, but uncle said we were neither of us to be trusted with my $25,000.

"So you have $25,000?"

"Papa left me that much; but Uncle Miles can keep it until I am thirty-five, unless I marry to please him, or unless he is so satisfied of my good sense that he voluntarily gives it up to me. He will never do that."

Stephen was silent a long time, and then he said, a little sadly: "You are a good girl to be honest with me. If your uncle could be made to give up your little fortune, do you think you could use it wisely?"

"I could—with Norman to help me."

Then we had a long conversation, which it is not necessary for me to repeat; it will be understood by what follows. There was no change, apparently, between Stephen and I. He behaved exactly as a lover of his age and character would be likely to behave. He sent aunt presents from his hot-houses, and he made me presents of pretty jewelry. He spent the evenings at Uncle Miles' house, and sometimes we were left alone together, and sometimes we went out for a walk. Norman came to see us occasionally on a Sunday night, and my aunt said he had really behaved with more good sense than she expected. I think she thought if I married the banker it might not be a bad thing for my cousin Malvina, who was very plain, to marry the banker's cashier.

Everything went on with the greatest propriety. I had announced my intention to have an extraordinary trousseau, and, this being a point on which aunt could feel with me, the next four months were pleasantly spent in shopping and sewing. Never before in our little town had there been such dozens of elegantly-trimmed undergarments, such lingerie, such hosiery, such morning dresses and evening costumes, such wonderful boots and slippers and jewelry. We held little receptions every afternoon a month before the wedding, and my wardrobe was laid out in the best bedroom for comment and inspection.

It was about this time that Stephen Barker said to uncle: "I understand Frances has $25,000. I wish to have it so settled on herself, and for her absolute use, that I propose, Mr. Miles, if you are willing, to add $10,000 to it, and buy for her the Stamford estate. It is only three miles from here, the house is a very fine one, the land excellent, and, then, whatever changes come, it secures her a competency, for as soon as the railway is finished it will be worth double. What do you say?"

"I think your offer extremely generous, Mr. Barker, and, of course, for such a purpose, I am willing to hand over to you at once Frances' fortune. The interest has been applied to her own use always. Will you look at the accounts?"

"Your word is sufficient, Mr. Miles?"

So in about two weeks the transfer was safely and amicably effected, and Stamford Hall and estate were firmly and surely made over to Frances Halliday, spinster, for her and her heirs forever. I must state here that I opposed, as strongly as I thought right, Stephen's gift of $10,000, and his subsequent outlay of $1,000 on furniture, but both uncle and aunt said that the settlement was small enough for a man of his means, and that it would be affectation to oppose it. And really Stephen managed the whole affair with such fatherly kindness and thoughtfulness that I could not bear to oppose it.

At length the wedding-day drew near. It had been arranged for Wednesday morning, and we were to leave for New York immediately after the ceremony. This showed in Jose a very Christian spirit, seeing that he once looked on me and my $25,000 with affection, and I had not appreciated the honor. However, he forgave me at this interesting epoch, and came benignly to bless my venture. He brought me as a present a black onyx seal ring, on which was set a cross in seed pearls. He had offered me it once before, with his affection and his manse, and I had then refused it. I took it this time.

It helped to swell the list of my presents, and they certainly made a goodly show. First, there was the Stamford estate from my father and Stephen Barker, and the settled bills for $1,000 worth of new furniture, which Stephen had sent to make the old rooms pretty and comfortable. Uncle gave me a set of silver and aunt some fine china, both of which gifts I took care to send to Stamford before my wedding day. My cousins and aunts and friends gave me all sorts of jewelry and pretty personal knickknacks, and these I carefully packed in the half-dozen trunks which were already corded and directed two days before the marriage day.

For Stephen had proposed to send off my trunks to our New York hotel two days before we left, in order that we might have no concern about them, and that I might be sure to have all I wanted on my arrival. I opposed this plan at first, but aunt said "it was eminently proper and thoughtful." So all my wardrobe except my wedding dress and traveling suit arrived at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York, on the last day of my maiden life.

Norman Strong called that night and was in remarkably high spirits. He wished me every happiness and was very attentive to Malvina. Aunt thought his behavior charming—so unselfish—and I was also very satisfied with it.

"I shall call you about eight o'clock, Frances," said my aunt, as I bade her good-night. "The hair-dresser comes at 8:30."

I said, "Very well, aunt," and went to my room. The first thing I did was to pack my wedding dress in as small a compass as possible, and then put on my traveling costume. This done, I sat down in the dark. About one o'clock I heard the signal I watched for. I went softly down stairs, unlocked the back door and went out. Norman was there. We did not speak until we were outside the grounds. There a buggy waited, and we drove rapidly to the main line about three miles off. Here we caught the two-o'clock express, and were safe in New York, and very respectably married at ten o'clock. My trunks, which had arrived the day before, were then redirected to Washington, and after a delicious little wedding breakfast—all by ourselves—we left for that city.

In the meantime there was trouble in Milford. Our flight was not discovered until nearly eight o'clock, and then Uncle Miles sent word at once to Stephen Barker. My aunt and cousin's chagrin and disappointment were very great; in fact, when I considered the amount of confidence and gossip they would have to endure, I felt that for all the slights and scorns of my unloved girlhood I could cry quits. And I had got my fortune also, and Norman and I were so completely happy! We had not a care, for Stephen had given him a $500 bill and a month's holiday, and told us to get all the pleasure we could out of it. We obeyed him implicitly.

During that month things settled down a little. I did not expect to be forgiven all at once, and I was not; but then I was in a position not to worry particularly about it. We returned very quietly after dark one night, very much like children who have played truant all day and creep home at nightfall with as little ostentation as possible.

But at Stamford Hall everything had been prepared for my comfort—the fires blazing, the gas lighted, and an excellent supper waiting. The next morning Norman went back to his desk, and Stephen took no more notice of his return than if he had never left it. People who had been speculating about his losing that position knew in five minutes that there would be no change. And everyone took his tone from Stephen. We were treated very much like two children who had been forgiven, and whose fault was not to be thrown up to them.

That was the way the men took it, and Norman pretended to be satisfied. The women acted with a great deal more intelligence. They all came to see me, and though I did not give them all credit for the very kindest of motives, I made them all welcome. I told them about my wedding trip, and showed them my new things, and I dare say the men talked over everything with them afterward.

But what most puzzled everybody was that Stephen Barker came so often to see us, and was so friendly with Norman. Some thought it very mean-spirited in him, and others remembered that when he was very young he had loved my mother dearly. Even those who spoke kindly of him did not give him credit for half the noble unselfishness he had shown; for he would not let me tell any one that it was he himself who had planned everything about my property and my wedding.

"Just let them say you jilted me, Frances, if they please to do so. We know better, and we will keep our secret until Uncle Miles comes around."

Aunt and uncle both came around sooner than was expected. When it was known that Stephen spent so much of his time with us, Aunt Miles considered the advantages of having her daughters brought familiarly in contact with him, and for their sakes she came to see me and give me the kiss of reconciliation.

But as far as catching Stephen's heart "in the rebound" was concerned, she was just a little too late. Norman's sister, who was a teacher in one of the public schools of New York, came to spend her vacation with us, and Stephen fell in love with her in a way which convinced me that his love for Frances Halliday had only been the shadow of the love he had for the mother. Why, Norman himself never behaved more foolishly about me than Stephen about this little, plain Ruth, for she is plain—everyone must allow that.

And the preparations that are going on for the marriage quite amuse me, who might have been the banker's wife myself: Dear me! I think love must often laugh at the kind of people he comes in contact with. But I hope Stephen will be happy; I do, indeed.

That is all I have to say about my marriage. I think it was rather peculiar. Some women will doubtless say they don't believe such men as Stephen exist. But let a girl, when she discovers she does not like a man, tell him so, and ask his advice and help, and ten to one she will find another Stephen. How can men be chivalrous and self-denying if women don't give them opportunities? I think that is wrong, and I intend always to give Norman every chance to cultivate such noble qualities.

The Baby That Was Not.

There was a tired-looking woman came into the Michigan Central depot the other day and sat down to wait for a train. Two small children clung to her skirts and in her arms she carried an infant, closely wrapped up, and with an old veil tied in a double fold across its small face. The mother had a satchel and some boxes, which she managed to carry at the same time, and she settled the children on each side of her and prepared for a long sitting, for the train was late.

The children were quiet little things, and amused themselves; the mother sat and held the baby in a tight clasp and looked far off with eyes that seemed to be watching over a grave. Tears fell softly now and then, sometimes on one of the bright-haired children, again on the dress of the baby in her arms, and these the little ones would brush softly away. It was evident that they had seen their mother weep often.

But the other passengers who waited got nervous over it. A good woman with a kind face offered seed-cake to the children, but they shrunk from her. People came and went, and something in the woman's face made them stop and look at her, but she did not see them. A white, drawn, quivering mouth and tearful eyes attested some deep sorrow.

At last a little fussy man, who had been jumping up and down and rubbing his hands and crying: "Bless me!" under his breath, went up to the stricken woman and executed a sort of war dance in front of her.

"Bless, me, ma'am,' he exclaimed, rubbing his hands till they were ablaze with the friction; "but you'll smoth that baby."

The woman looked at him as if she didn't comprehend what he meant.

"It can't possibly breathe, ma'am, with a double veil over its face; I sa y-o-u'll sm-other that ch-il-d."

He thought her either deaf or craze and the rest of the passengers had th same fears. The woman laid her limp burden in her lap and began with trembling hands to undo the veil. "My baby is dead," she said, in a low voice, but which all heard.

"Good gracious, ma'am"—began th little man.

"These are her clothes," she continued, in a broken voice; "I carried her in my arms and next to my heart for two years, and now my heart and my arms are both empty; but I don't miss her so much when I have these, and the children forget she is dead and buried away from us all."

She picked up her senseless burden and rocked herself to and fro, but kind hands led her away and kind voices whispered words of hope to her, and at last the poor half-crazed mother consented to lay aside the empty garments and take instead to her arms and heart the little ones she had well-nigh forgotten.

"Who called thee strong as Love, oh, death, Stronger thou wast and art."

—Detroit Post and Tribune.

What a Good Havana Was Sacrificed To.

There were two of them in the car. They sat together. One of the maidens carried in her lap about five pounds of live sausage with the hair on in the shape of a sick poodle. On the front platform near the open door was a gentleman who, in violation of the company's rules, was pulling a good cigar, the smoke of which now and then rolled around the ladies just mentioned. Said the one with the dog to the other, who was dogless: "Oh, how I hate vile tobacco smoke. I wouldn't marry a man who used tobacco in any form if he was as rich as Jay Gould and as handsome as Oscar Wilde. I would rather die an old maid (she looked to be about fifty). I can't see how a man can use it and be received in society as respectable; but dear me the world is so strange. Mr. Conductor," she continued, "will you please request that man to stop smoking, or close that door? It is an outrage to permit such conduct on a car. It is very disagreeable to me and hurts my dog's eyes." The conductor did as he was requested and the gentleman, throwing away his cigar, came inside, and this is what he heard and what he saw. Said the girlish thing, whose lover was a dog, addressing the poodle whose eyes were red with epizoot and whose nose was in need of a plumber: "Did on dit dat nassy ole bakky moke in ou dear itsy bitsy eyes? Let on Missy rub him out for on," and with this loving language she fished up a clean looking handkerchief and mopped the darling's ocular machinery. He acknowledged the kindness by kissing her two or three times on her tasteless lips, then frisking around, marking her white dress with dirty feet, cuddled up in her arms, and blinked at the gentleman across the way who had sacrificed a good Havana that a worthless dog might not be annoyed.—Washington Capital.

Our Young Folks.

CITY OR COUNTRY.

When I'm a little city girl,
Each day in pleasant weather,
I dress myself all in my best—
My big white hat and feather.

My pretty Mother-Hubbard cloak,
And boots and gloves all neat,
And with my silken parasol
Go walking down the street.

I fold my hands together, so,
And turn my toes quite out;
Mamma says little girls should not
Be gazing all about.

And if I run or jump, you know,
My hair gets out of curl;
So quietly I take my walk,
When I'm a city girl.

When I'm a little country girl,
Up almost with the sun,
I take my old straw hat, and out
Into the grass I run.

No gloves, no parasol, no hat
(It comes right off, you know),
And no one near to see how fast
Across the fields I go.

No need to think about my dress,
Or care for crimp or curl,
I run and play the live-long day
When I'm a country girl.

Oh, yes, the city suits mamma,
And sister and the rest,
But tell me, tell me truly, which
You think I like the best.
—Youth's Companion.

SOAP-BUBBLE SECRETS.

Probably there is not a reader of Young People who has not at some time amused himself with a pipe and a bowl of soap-suds. Few, however, know all that a bubble can afford in the way of amusement at a slight outlay. Does my reader know how to make a giant bubble? has he learned how to employ soap-bubbles as magic-lantern slides? did he ever see them used as parlor ornaments? or is a soap-bubble in harness an every-day thing with him? If not, he will find these uses of the bubble described in the present article, and I would add that the experiments will prove interesting and beautiful to old as well as young.

We must first learn how to make the giant bubble. This is the king of bubbles, the largest, the longest-lived, and the most beautiful. If you can imagine a bubble two or even three feet in diameter, with an existence measured by hours instead of seconds, glowing with colors five times as gorgeous as those of the ordinary bubble, you have just such a one in your mind's eye as you can make for yourself by carefully following directions.

Procure two ounces of palm-oil or Castile soap: the former is preferable. Cut it in pieces the size of a pea, and place them in a bottle of clear glass with a pint of rain-water. Shake violently until the water has taken up as much soap as it will hold. You have now what is called a saturated solution of soap. Place it aside, and leave it from twenty-four to thirty-six hours, until it has settled, either perfectly clear or of a very light pearl-color. If, after thirty-six hours, the solution still remains clouded, pour off a little of the water and add more. This time it will scarcely fail to settle as desired. Carefully pour off, straining through flannel, add half a pint of pure glycerine, and when the two have had time to mingle thoroughly, you are ready to blow a giant bubble.

To blow the very largest bubbles it is necessary to have a larger pipe than the clay pipe commonly used, though such a pipe will produce large bubbles. A glass funnel, two or three inches in diameter, fitted with a piece of rubber tubing, produces enormous bubbles. There is a very ingenious apparatus used, which admits of putting the finger within the pipe itself. By this means fresh-soap solution may be smeared within the pipe, affording renewed nourishment to the bubble, and enabling the experimenter to blow it to an incredible size.

These bubbles are distinguished not only for their size but for their beauty and durability. I have known bubbles made by this method to last two or three hours in the open air, and from twenty-four to thirty-six under glass, precaution being taken that the air of the room be pure, and that no rough touch destroy their fragile lives. But now let us find out how we may examine the bubble with the greatest ease and to the best advantage.

Procure a piece of pine board about three inches square. In the middle of this fix a piece of iron wire, free from rust, twenty inches in length. At about six inches' distance from the board bend the wire into a circle, the plane of which is parallel with that of the board, and with a diameter of five inches. Blow a bubble of six or seven inches diameter, and gently place it in the ring; it will not break, and by tilting the pipe you may free it from the bubble. Thus placed the bubble shows off the colors to great advantage; for, as has been said, the glycerine bubble will last for hours, unlike the ordinary one, as fragile as it is lovely. Three or four bubbles of various sizes, placed under glass on such standards, form a beautiful object for a drawing-room, especially if their colors are seen against a background of some black material.

Next as to employing soap-bubbles, or, more correctly, soap films, as magic-lantern slides. Those who do not possess a magic lantern may try the experiment, though to less advantage, in the following way: Dip the mouth of a tumbler lightly in the soap solution, raise it gently, and a soap film will remain stretched across the mouth. Hold the tumbler horizontally, and the same beautiful effects of color may be seen on the film as are thrown on the wall when the magic lantern is used. For a magic lantern, go to work as follows:

Take a slip of card-board, the same size of one of your slides, and in it cut a circular hole, proportional in diameter to the width of the slide. Pour some of the solution into a shallow dish, and dip the slide into it. Raise it gently, and a film will be left in the hole. Slip the slide with care into the lantern, and await results. For a moment, the circle of light on the wall remains clear, but soon, at the bottom, a faint tinge of color appears, growing stronger and stronger, and moving upward. It settles into a band of color at last, still moving steadily upward, and succeeded by another band of another tint, which follows it, and so on, until the great circle on the wall is gorgeous with the same beautiful hues as appear on the bubble, but not stirring uneasily together as these seem, but in regular bands ever moving upward. Now jar the slide gently, and presto!—the bands break and whirl together in an astonishing maze of color, wonderful in beauty. This is really one of the most beautiful experiments imaginable, and will never fail to call forth hearty admiration.

Now for an exceedingly amusing experiment—the harnessed soap-bubble. Take a piece of the thinnest writing-paper you can find, and from it cut a circular piece a little less than a dime in size. To one end of this attach a thread by the aid of a tiny drop of sealing-wax—the less the better. Blow the bubble to an ordinary size, and then touch the round piece to it gently. The bubble will adhere to it, and by gently tipping the pipe you may leave the bubble suspended by the string.

A bubble blown from the mouth sinks, but if the pipe is attached by a piece of rubber tubing to a gas fixture, the bubble then blown being filled with a gas lighter than air will be carried upward as far as the string will allow. Thus you have a veritable balloon, and if just sufficient string is allowed to keep it balanced midway between floor and ceiling, it will perform very curious antics. Those currents of air which exist in every room, unfelt by the inmates, are strong draughts to the fragile and delicate bubble. It will follow these currents, now visiting the ceiling, now running along the floor, and escaping as if by a miracle the obstacles in its path. If there is a lamp or gas jet in the room it will be gradually attracted toward it, and, carried by the upward current of hot air, will dash toward the ceiling, as if bent on committing suicide. But bounding on the cushion of dead air, which always lies on the surface of every solid object, it bends at right angles, and darts off, escaping as if by some inward power the fate into which it was apparently plunging headlong, and again circles round the room, till drawn a second time into the current of hot air.

The ingenious reader will be able to work up the hints above given into a variety of amusing and beautiful experiments. The last described will perhaps afford most amusement in various ways, which will readily occur to his mind while using the novel toy. The true secret of success in these experiments, as in everything, is carefulness. If the soap solution is prepared with care, there is no reason why the reader should not be entirely successful in the experiments that follow.

Bubbles are most curious and lovely things. There is neither time nor space to go into their connection with science, and the deep natural truths which they are used to prove. The reader can at least admire their gorgeous coloring and airy grace, and find a moral in their short but lovely lives.—Rev. C. G. Child, in Harper's Young People.

Artesian Wells in the Far West.

The people of Montana are fully alive to the value of artesian wells. They have great tracts of land that can be made to "blossom as the rose" if artesian water can be obtained. From the configuration of the country, they feel quite confident that artesian wells will prove successful in nearly all the places where there is now a lack of water on the surface of the ground. They have set about boring test wells. These experiments are being made by companies. If they prove successful they will be a safe guide for individuals and small communities of men of limited means. At Billings is the Montana Artesian Well Company, and at Helena the Helena Artesian Well Company.

In regard to this last-named company the Helena Herald says: "They have received their engine, steam-power tools and rigging, and have them on the ground ready for operation. The place selected for the Helena well is on East Broadway, near the reservoir, beyond Dry Gulch, where the derrick will soon be raised and the machinery put to work. The company has secured the services of two experienced drillers from Bradford, Pa., and one of them, Mr. Clarke, has full charge. It has been claimed that anywhere upon the foot-hills of the Rocky Mountains, in Montana, flowing water would be found at a depth of less than 500 feet. From the many successful wells lately constructed in Colorado, we have no doubt that a Helena well will prove the truth of our expectation. The location is perhaps as good as could be found within the city limits, and we will soon have the satisfaction of seeing flowing water from the top of the first artesian well in Helena, very much to the joy of our neighbors on East Broadway and throughout the city."

—The Helena folks seem to be going at the work in good earnest and in good shape, as regards their plant. The result will be of much interest to the people of Nevada, Utah, Idaho and other States and Territories, as well as to the Montana folks.

In Nevada an experiment of the same kind is being made at White Plains, and it is likely to prove successful. The White Plains well is being sunk in a salt field. The first water found was quite salt, and was tubed out, but at the depth of over 1,400 feet pure fresh water has been found. As yet it does not rise to the surface, but the boring will be continued, and no doubt a flowing well will finally be obtained. Where this well is sunk is probably as unfavorable ground as could be found in the State.—Virginia City (Nev.) Enterprise.

—Two holes were found in the plate of the Riverdale's exploded boiler when taken from the river. "One," says the expert, as a witness, "was there at the time and the other was probably punched, through with a pen-knife since." This and the inside patch put on because the body of the boiler hadn't substance enough to hold the outside patch may give the public a bit of an inside idea of the possible tinkering still going on in steam-boilerdom.—N. Y. Graphic.

—The statement is made by a well-informed religious paper that in London thirteen times as much money is spent for tobacco as is given by all the churches of that city put together for foreign missions.

Religious.

"GO WORK TO-DAY."

"Go work to-day!" the Master saith,
Waste not thy time repining!
Fill every hour with earnest deeds,
While bright the sun is shining.

What though ye do not see the fruit,
Yet still continue sowing:
For night and day—asleep, awake—
The grain is ever growing.

To-morrow's work may not be yours,
Nor yours the joy of reaping;
"Go work to-day," and leave the seed
Safe in the Master's keeping.

That seed shall to the harvest come,
Though you in death are sleeping.
Others shall reap what you have sown.
Work on, and cease thy weeping!
—J. H. Hoadley, in N. Y. Independent.

GOD'S LOVE FOR MAN.

The power of the Gospel is in its revelation of God's love for man. Only as we understand this can we really understand the Gospel. Only as we believe and appreciate this can we appreciate or believe the glad tidings ourselves, or explain them to the minds and hearts of others.

And yet there is widely prevalent a half unconscious skepticism in regard to what the Bible seems to teach concerning God's love for man. Not that the fact of such love is questioned. Every one sees that with no appropriateness whatever could God be called our Father if He did not bear some measure of parental love toward His human children. But when the depth and strength and tenderness of His affection for us are portrayed; when Gethsemane and Calvary are interpreted and shown to have been the fruit and expression of a love toward us which no conception of ours can grasp, then, though there may be no expressed unbelief, yet too often is the language deemed more or less exaggerated and untrue. It seems almost incredible that such an infinite being as God should really cherish toward such puny and unworthy creatures as we such feelings of personal interest and personal affection. This globe on which we live, that seems to us so vast, is but the merest atom in the universe of suns and systems. And can it be that that Infinite One who upholds immensity as in the hollow of His hand—can it be that He feels such a tender interest, such a fathomless love, such a personal sympathy for the human animalcule that inhabit this terraqueous drop that we call our globe?

This has long been one of the most plausible arguments of infidelity against the whole system of Christianity. Daniel Webster said that this objection did more than all others to shake his faith in the Gospel. That Gospel, we are told, assigns to man a most preposterous importance. It represents him as receiving from the Most High a degree of attention and regard which his actual insignificance in the universe pronounces absurdly incredible.

Now there are different ways of meeting such pernicious unbelief in regard to God's love for man. We may direct the doubter's attention to the familiar fact that love is not wont to determine its amount or expression by the merit of its object. Does a mother love her child only because it deserves her love? Does she give it only so much regard and affection as its evident importance in the universe justly claims for it? Or are the fact and the strength of her love determined by her own maternal heart? We all know that it is not her child, but herself, that gives to her love its depth and fervor; not the babe's deserts or importance, but the affectionateness of the mother's own nature. The love of the human parent is the shadow and type of that which our Heavenly Father bears toward His children. He loves us as He does, not because we are worthy of His love, but because He Himself is so infinitely loving; not according to our importance in the universe, but according to the infinite tenderness and affectionateness of His own parental nature.

Or we may point the doubter to what God himself has told us concerning His love for man. These wonderful facts and declarations of Scripture in which this love is revealed may indeed seem almost or, to the skeptic, even absolutely incredible. But it is only because we have such a low and inadequate conception of the real character of God. "O righteous Father," said the Savior, "the world hath not known Thee!" It was sadly true then, and it is sadly true still. Even God's own forgiven and loyal children have but little comprehension of His real character. If we did know Him; if we could see what God really is in the infinite glory and beauty of His character, we should see nothing incredible, nothing even at all wonderful, in what are now the most startling revelations of Scripture concerning His love for man. They would seem perfectly natural, perfectly appropriate. We should recognize them at once as just what ought to be, just what might reasonably have been expected of such a being as God is. Yes, it is one of the grandest facts with which Christianity has enriched our race that just in proportion as we come to know God's real character just in the same proportion will all incredibleness and even all the wonderfulness of the incarnation and crucifixion disappear, for we shall see that it is just like God, just what might have been expected of Him, that He should thus come to suffer and die in shame and agony for the eternal welfare and bliss of His enemies.

But whether or not we can see the appropriateness of the Scripture revelations concerning God's love for man, those revelations are here. They shine down upon us like stars in the spiritual firmament. They are golden tints of the infinite brightness and glory of our eternal future. Reason as well as Scripture commands us to accept them with grateful joy; to feast upon them as upon "angel's food;" to make them serve as a spiritual stairway on which, with ever-increasing confidence and love, we may rise to a truer and richer acquaintance with our Father in Heaven.—Chicago Advance.

Have Sympathy.

The man who would accomplish most in this world must have sympathy with his fellow-men. He must be quick to feel another's woes. He must make men feel that his sympathy in them and for them is real and deep. If he succeeds here, the avenues of the heart open to him, and through it he can mightily affect the intellect.

The successful teacher takes a real vital interest in his pupils. And as they come to see that that interest is not affected they give him their confidence and regard. He has now a key to the heart and the life. The workings of young minds are fully disclosed and many a knotty problem solved. Hidden forces and tendencies in character, habits and life come to light, and upon these the skillful teacher may play as the musician upon the keys of a piano. It now lies in the teacher's power to develop this tendency and repress that; to change habits still in the gristle and mould character. In this way many an aimless life receives a mighty purpose, many a dullard passes up into a life of intense activity and high scholarship, and many an ill-balanced, misdirected life is set right.

The lawyer with this gift takes a deeper interest in his client, and makes court and jury feel that the latter's cause is his own. He finds his way to the heart till the waves of sympathy run mountain-high, and his case is won. So, too, the good physician, when he enters the sick room, brings life and hope. He gains his patient's sympathy and inspires fresh courage. He does not carry a cold, sour visage, or curt words for anxious friends. He does not take advantage of his position. But with cheering words and looks and tones uplifts the whole household. There is as much tonic in his presence as in his medicines.

So the orator feels the pulse of his audience and acts accordingly. He places himself in full sympathy with the people that later he may lead them whithersoever he will. And, yielding to his influence and sympathy, they applaud, perchance, the very sentiments they have most loudly condemned. In this way reforms are inaugurated, great measures of State policy carried, patriotism incited or political heresies exploded. Without sympathy and the power to excite sympathy how seldom would the orator succeed in his most important efforts.

And right here the power of not a few successful clergymen appears. It is not that they are more spiritually minded or more learned, but they have this faculty—a faculty which all may cultivate to a degree—of entering into the hearts of their hearers. After listening to a discourse which fails to bind the preacher to his audience, how pleasant to listen to another in which the warm throbbing heart of the speaker touches responsive chords in the hearts of all his hearers. Such sympathy opens their hearts to the reception of truth. It rouses them to action. They forget themselves. The burning truth has set their souls on fire. They have been fed. And now they are ready to do something for Christ. When this is the spirit manifest in a church it will begin to grow. Christians will receive a new baptism. Souls will be born into the Kingdom. And a glorious day that will be for any church. Do you wish for such a revival in your church? Then let the pastor preach out of a full heart, full of love to God and sympathy for his brethren. And let every hearer hold up his pastor's hands and help him.—Golden Rule.

Choice Extracts.

—Sin is never at a stay; if we do not retreat from it we shall advance in it; and the further on we go the more we have to come back.—Barrow.

—Wondrous is the strength of cheerfulness, altogether past calculation its powers of endurance. Efforts, to be permanently useful, must be uniformly joyous—a spirit all sunshine, graceful from very gladness, beautiful because bright.—Carlyle.

—Waking or sleeping, God is true to His promises. It is not simply throwing off your troubles, but throwing them on Him, that lightens the burdens and opens the heart. God's shoulder is always under a good man's burden, and His hand is ready for a dead lift all the way.—N. Y. Observer.

—Mere negative preaching does not feed the soul. To find fault with one doctrine and make vague, misty statements respecting another, is like telling hungry people that bread of fine flour will give them dyspepsia, that oaten cakes are not suitable food for men, and yet offer them nothing to satisfy their wants. The soul needs truth to nourish it. It is not what men doubt, but what they positively believe, that builds up character, that fortifies them against temptation and makes them strong to endure in maintaining what is right.—Christian Secretary.

—God is the center of all systems of religious truths, as He is the object of all systems of affections and conduct. There is a continual attempt to belittle religion into a general term meaning service of any deity, or weaker yet, a mere high sense of moral obligation. The word itself means a binding back to its source, or an inter-linking with the Creator. True, the word has come to have a significance that would leave God out of it, but that is not its legitimate force. God, as the Author and Creator, must be the great anchorage to which all must be bound back who are religious.—Golden Rule.

—How truly is the Bible the book for busy people! We do not mean that one is not to study it, spending, if possible, long hours over it. But in the pressure and hurry of our modern life these hours of quiet study are difficult to secure. We are not referring to what ought to be, but what is. As a matter of fact, the business man, the mother in her household, finds very limited time for the study of the Divine Word. But no life is so busy that time can not be found in it for setting in the memory some single verse day by day. Such a gem of truth turned over and over in the mind in those intervals that do come even in the busiest life will flash its light into the soul. Feeding even upon such Divine morsels the soul need not perish with hunger. The study of the fragments will lead to desire for larger acquaintance, and the man of God will become perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works.—Baptist Weekly.

TRUNKS
VALISES,
AND SATCHELS.

We offer to our patrons a stock of over 200 Trunks and as many Satchels, Companions and Valises. We offer Trunks from 75c to $8 each; Satchels and Valises from the cheapest Goods up to extra Leather, price all the way from 60c to $5.

No. Z. C.—Barrel top, tray with bonnet box raised box and lid, partition in top, full length strips with clamps, iron center band broad iron bands at each end, hasp lock and patent fastenings, wrought iron rollers, stitched handles. A good trund.

28 inch	4 50	34 inch	5 00	30 inch	5 00
26 inch	6 50	32 inch	5 50

LADIES' BLACK RUBBER SATCHELS.
Top, frame, top lock, outside pocket, square

9 inch	60	12 inch	75	10 inch	65
11 inch	80	14 inch	85

Better Grade, Ladies' Black Rubber Satchel.

9 inch	75	12 inch	90	16 inch	80
13 inch	1 00	11 inch	85

BLACK GRAIN LEATHER LADY'S SATCHEL.
Top, frame nickle top lock, centennial lining outside pocket, square ends, nickle name plate, full nickle trimmed.

9 inch	1 40	12 inch	2 15
10 inch	1 65	13 inch	2 40
11 inch	1 90	14 inch	2 65

GENT'S RUBBER VALISES.
Full imitation leather, strong lock, two catches on ends, lined, with partition, name plate, and eight buttons on bottom.

14 inch	[illegible]	20 inch	1 10	16 inch	90
		22 inch	1 25	18 inch	1 00

Black Leather Valise, Soft bag with strap all double jail frame, good lock, linen lined. From $1 75 to $2 50. We have many other kinds, but have not space to describe them.

Good substantial Wood Trunks with strong locks, two straps, strong riveted holds on each end, cast iron rollers, full tray and best back stays:

22 inch	75	30 inch	1 75
24 inch	1 00	32 inch	2 00
26 inch	1 25	34 inch	2 25
28 inch	1 50	36 inch	2 50

LADIES' round top, iron bound, long hard wood strips, spring lock, patent fastening wrought iron rollers, iron stay, deep setup tray, reaching to the top, with bonnet box

28 inch	1 85	32 inch	2 35
30 inch	2 10	34 inch	2 60

ZINC—Barrel top, wide iron band at each end, iron stay, wrought iron rollers, long strips with clamps, tray with bonnet box and lid, fall-in top, hasp lock and patent fastening, jap ends.

28 inch	3 50	32 inch	4 30
30 inch	3 90	34 inch	4 70

Above picture of Trunks is same as foregoing, only in wood, at 75c less than the zinc, making 28 inch at $2 75, and so on.

ZINC—Raised top, set-up tray, with covered till at each end, wide iron bands, jap ends long strips with clamps, wrought iron rollers, spring lock, patent fastening, and iron stay.

28 inch	2 75	32 inch	3 35
30 inch	3 05	34 inch	3 66

Boots and Shoes

Every person buying Boots and Shoes should SEE OUR STOCK
Before parting with their money, as we claim that we can sell the Best and Solidest goods for the LEAST MONEY.
As we don't have to depend on Boots and Shoes alone for our support, and can naturally sell Solid Boots and Shoes at Less Money than regular Shoe dealers, especially when BUYING A BILL OF OTHER goods. In order to Sell Farmers Their Entire Bill of Goods
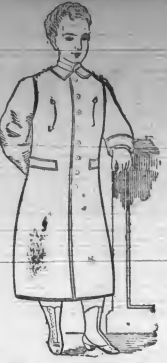
We frequently put in their Boots and Shoes at about
WHOLESALE PRICE.

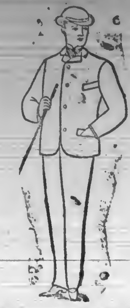


No. 202.
BOYS' & CHILDREN'S Overcoats
Style of the above cut, of Dark Gray Overcoating, fully four-fifths wool, for age 4 to 8, at $2 50 each; for age 9 to 12, $3 each; for age 13 to 17, $3 50 each; men's at $4 each.

Boys' Suits of same material, age 4 to 8, just Pants and Coat, at $2 75; age 9 to 12, long Pants, Coat & Vest, at $3 75; age 13 to 17, at $4 75.

We have a full line of Boys', Children's and Youths' Suits, from the best material down to the cheapest material made.

Parties buying Clothing of us will be told precisely what kind of goods they are buying, as we regard it to our interest to do so



No. 175.
The above cut, No. 175, represents the style and pattern of our Business Suits,
In various grades and materials, ranging in price from $6 50 to $8 per Suit. Also have same style and cut in our Fine English Worsted Suits, at $11 to $13. We are Turning Out Thousands of Full Suits.
And making every effort to get goods that will Suit Our Customers in both PTICE AND MATERIAL.

No. 174.
The above, No. 174, is our Elegant
DOUBLE-BREASTED SUIT,
In Black Worsted, with Elegant Binding and Spring Bottom Pants, equal to any Custom Tailor Work, and fine Farmer's Satin Lining Sewed and stiched with silk. It has been an excellent seller, and no custom-made suit will make any Better Appearance
And none are of better workmanship.
Price, $14.
Having over Three Thousand Full Suits in our stock, at Any Price and Grade up to $22 a Suit.

No. 196.
This cut (No. 196) represents our
REVERSIBLE OVERCOATS,
That we challenge the world to beat. It is a lot of sixty-three coats that we purchased of a Rochester, New York Clothing manufacturer at just 65 cts. on the dollar. This is a Brown-mix Cassimere on one side, and a Fancy Plaid on the other. It would be cheap at $10, but, as a rule, in order to increase our trade, we have put the price on this coat at $6. And we have the same cut, and style Reversible Coat at $8 and up to $15. We offer one lot of Chinchilla Overcoats at $4; next lot, better garde, at $5, which Beats any Price Ever Named on Overcoats.
We have over One Thousand Overcoats, ranging in price from $3 25 up to $16.

Just received 10 bales, over 200 bolts of Standard Sheeting, Special Bargains. Heavy Sheeting, at 8c by the bolt, 1-2c. less. One bale fine Sheeting at 6 1-4c, actually worth 8 cents. One lot of coarse Sheeting at 6c. Lighter Muslin in same proportion.

Parties buying Fall Goods can not fail to visit our Mammoth stock of all kinds of goods. We have a house of over 16,000 Square Feet of Floor, packed and jammed with all kinds and grades of Goods, from the finest to the ordinary. See future Price and Adver't COLTER'S Mammoth Cheap Cash Store, Rising Sun, Ind.

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL,
Proprietors.

BURLINGTON, KY. OCT. 10 1883.

ADVERTISING RATES.

1 Column	1 year	$80
1	½ "	40
1	¼ "	20
½ "	1 "	20
¼ "	½ "	10
¼ "	¼ "	6

For announcing candidates, $5. Obituary poetry, 5 cents per line. Obituary notices 20 lines free; over that number (excepting the announcement of the death) 3 cents per line.
Tributes of respect from lodges, &c., $1 50

RATES OF SUBSCRIPTION.

One year	$1 50
Six months	75
Three months	40

MEMPHIS had a $200,000 fire last Sunday.

THE Cincinnati Exposition closed Saturday.

NEXT Friday is the day set for the execution of Ellis Craft.

LATE tobacco was materially benefited by the late rains.

THE Queen of the turf, Maud S., has been sent back to Cincinnati.

BUTLER claims his election in Massachusetts by 40,000 majority.

THE total attendance at the Cincinnati Exposition this year was 314,438.

THE burning of the Pittsburg exposition entailed a heavy loss upon its exhibitors.

IT has been a long time since this county has received such a shaking up by a grand jury.

THE Kentucky New Era published a very neat and spicy daily during the Hopkinsville Fair.

THEY are making a big fuss about a water supply for Lexington. Wonder how their mint crop is holding out up there.

THERE will be an effort made in the next General Assembly to have the number of days in a school month reduced to twenty.

IT turns out that William Rogers, killed in Robertson county, was the attorney known to the members of the bar at this place.

IT is claimed that a telephone has been invented that will record a conversation, and will reproduce the words at any future time.

Col. Thomas L. Jones, of Newport, sailed for Europe a few days ago to join his wife and son, who have been spending several months abroad.

Ellis Craft hangs on the 12th of this month.—Ex.

A mistake—he is to hang on a gallows.

IT may be comforting to our farmers who are busily engaged in sowing wheat to remind them of the old saying that "a good season for small grain follows a drouth."

IN Ohio the Democrats have been claiming thirty thousand majority, while the Republicans set their figures at forty thousand, only a difference of 70,000 votes in the matter of majorities.

THE Wheeling Register says: Iowa temperance ladies will sing, pray, and dispense sandwiches at the polls on election day. The men will eat the sandwiches and vote for something to wash them down

WITHIN the last year the women of the United States have given the sum of $600,000 for the spread of the gospel to the heathen lands. Of this amount the Presbyterians gave nearly $200,000, the Baptists $156,000, the Congregationalists $130,000, the Northern Methodist $108,000, and the women of Methodist Church South $26,110.

THE Trustees of the Frankfort Public School, through their attorney, have filed suit against the Auditor for a mandamus to require him to pay to the School Fund of the State $300,000, which they allege to be due the School Fund from the tax collected from railroads since the year 1878. This is a very important suit, and if successful will add more money to the common schools of the State.

THE Railroad Commissioners have completed the assessments of the railroads in Kentucky, which are taxed as real estate. The aggregate value of the roads is $31,478,381 for 1883, a reduction of $968,934 in value since 1882. The following is the assessed value of some of the roads: Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific, $6,027,942; L. & N., Louisville to Lexington, $2,827,840, and L. & N. Cincinnati Branch, $2,052,655.

Thomas Lewis, a boy of eighteen years, who was sent to the State prison from Covington for malicious shooting, and who had served sixteen months of a two years' sentence, hearing that his sister was sick, ran off from a railroad gang a few days ago, and paid her a visit. He came back voluntarily on Thursday, and reported to the Governor, asking him to intercede with the prison authorities to save him any punishment for the escape.—Yeoman.

Subscribe for the RECORDER.

TAKING the indictments found by the last grand jury as an evidence, it looks very much like the concealed weapon carrier has about disappeared from the county.

WE go to press before the result of the Ohio election is known, but don't think there is much doubt but that the Democrats are snowed under.

THE New York newspaper war goes on apace and the papers that cut their prices are vociferous in upholding their excellence. The Times people, are heartily sorry for their steps. They have gained nothing by it. The World, Sun and Star have likewise not escaped scot fee, and altogether everybody is dissatisfied. There was some talk that the Harpers proposed reducing the price of their weeklies, but there is no truth in it. On the contrary it looks very much as if a reaction would set in and prices be broughs back to the old figure.

COUNSEL for Sergeant Mason, the soldier who attempted to shoot Guiteau, recently applied to the secretary of war for a copy of the Judge Advocate General's review of the proceedings of the court martial by which Mason was tried. The secretary refused the application on the ground that the document was a confidential communication. It is said, however, by the prisoner's friends that the secretary withholds the report because it was favorable to Mason and contrary to his own view of the case. Counsel will, it is reported apply to the president for the full records.

STATE NEWS.

—The Danville Advocate says that Irish potatoes are being sold there, in car load lots, at 25 cents per bushel.

—They are not as law abiding in Simpson county as they might be. There thirteen persons in the county jail.

—The State Grand Lodge of Masons will meet in the Masonic Temple in Louisville, on Tuesday, the 15th inst.

—A peach tree—of the White Heath variety—in Bourbon county has yielded sixty dollars worth of peaches this year.

—Charles Cunningham, of Mercer county, has fifteen acres of tobacco which will make eighteen hundred pounds to the acre.

William Butler, cut a portion of his Burley tobacco, and he put five plants to the stick, and each stick weighed thirty-five pounds. Some of the leaves measured three feet one-and-a-half inches in length and nineteen in width.—Columbia Spectator.

—A heavy rain fell at Paducah on Monday night, the first of any consequence for two months.

—It is reported in Catlettsburg, that Governor Knott expressen a willingness to Mrs Craft to delay the execution of her son until after the trial of Neal. The Governor has refused to send a company of militia to assist in maintaining order at the time of the execution. He says the people should learn to rely upon the the law and not upon military force for protection.

County Directory.

OFFICERS.

Assessor—G. M. Riley.
County Surveyor—W. E. Vest.
School Commissioner—D. M. Snyder.
Coroner.—Dr. A. A. Murat, Constance.

COURTS.

CIRCUIT COURT meets the 2d Monday in April and first Monday in October, P. U Major, Judge; W. L. Riddell, Clerk A. G. DeJarnette, Commonwealths Attorney; W. L. Riddell, Trustee Jury Fund.

COUNTY COURT meets the first Monday in every month. L. H. Dills, Judge; S. W. Tolin, County Attorney. M. T. Garnett, Clerk; J. R. Clutterbuck, Sheriff, T. W. Finch, Deputy Sheriff.

QUARTERLY COURT meets the first Monday in March, June, September and December. The officers of the County Court preside.

COURT OF CLAIMS meets the first Monday in November.

MAGISTRATES' COURTS are held in March, June, September and December, as follows:

Bellevue—M. B. Green, first Saturday, and T. H. Sutton, third Monday. J. M. Moody, Constable.

Burlington—E. H. Baker, Thursday after first Monday, and Oscar Gaines, fourth Monday. R. H. Sandford, Constable.

Carlton A. G. McConnell, Wednesday after second Monday, and B. H. Ryle, Saturday after third Monday. Constable.

Petersburg—Jos. Hensley, Wednesday after first Monday, and L. A. Loder fourth Saturday. Geo. Comer, Constable.

Union—M. C. Norman, Thursday after third Monday, and H. Bannister, Thursday after second Monday. A. D. Riley, Constable.

Beaver—W. M. Rouse, Friday after the third Monday, and

ADMINISTRATORS NOTICE.

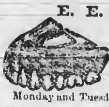
Persons having claims against the estate of J. C. Riley, decd., are hereby notified to present them to the undersigned proven as by law required. Persons indebted to the estate are requested to come forward and settle their indebtedness at once.
C. T. RICE, Admr.

ADMINISTRATORS NOTICE.

Persons having claims against the estate of Erastus Garrison, decd., are hereby notified to present them to the undersigned proven as by law required. Persons indebted to the estate are requested to come foward and settle their indebtedness at once.
C. T. RICE, Admr.

FOR SALE.

A full blooded Alderney cow—will be fresh in the spring. She is very gentle and a good milker.
CY RIDDELL,
Hebron, Ky.



E. E. IGOE,
Resident Dentist,
Rising Sun, Ind.
WITH
J. P. Ulrey.
Monday and Tuesday at Rising Sun. Ind.

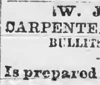
W. J. RICE.
CARPENTER & BUILDER,
BULLITSVILLE, KY.

Is prepared Raise or Move
EITHER LOG or FRAME BUILDINGS
On Short Notice,
And at the Lowest Possible Figures.
33-tf Your orders respectfully solicited

LOOK HERE!
when you go to Lawrenceburg, call on
Winegardner
He has a large assortment of
Wall Paper!
And is daily receiving additions to his stock. Call and examine before purchasing,
Inks, Pens and Stationary
constantly on hand.
Headquators in Lotton House.

LUMBER.
Goe. M. Bedinger & Co.,
Erlanger, - - Ky.

We keep constantly on hand all kinds of Lumber, Laths and Shingles. Also Builder's supplies of all kinds.
—Come and see Us.—
may 9-tf



PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM
A beneficial dressing preferred to similar articles because of its purity and rich perfume. It Restores to Gray Hair the Youthful Color & prevents dandruff and falling of the hair. 50c. & $1. Hiscox & Co., N.Y.

FLORESTON
Excels the finest flower extracts in richness. Delicate, very lasting. No odor like it. Be sure you get FLORESTON Cologne, signature of Hiscox & Co., N. Y., on every label. 25 and 75 cts., at druggists and dealers in perfumes.
COLOGNE

AYER'S
Ague Cure
IS WARRANTED to cure all cases of malarial disease, such as Fever and Ague, Intermittent or Chill Fever, Remittent Fever, Dumb Ague, Bilious Fever, and Liver Complaint. In case of failure, after due trial, dealers are authorized, by our circular of July 1st, 1882, to refund the money.
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists.

INCORPORATED UNDER THE LAWS OF MISSOURI.
CENTRAL MEDICAL & SURGICAL INSTITUTE
OF ST. LOUIS, MO.
SUCCESSORS TO DR. BUTTS' DISPENSARY.
OFFICE & ROOMS, NO. 920 LOCUST ST.
CHAS. I. LaBARGE, M.D., Pres't & Physician in Charge.
NELSON CHESMAN, Treas. & Business Manager.

This Institute has ample facilities and an experienced Faculty. While it succeeds to a large business, which has been established for years, it will aim to extend its medical and surgical practice, giving skillful and scientific treatment to CHRONIC DISEASES of the Head, Spine, Lungs and Air Passages, Heart, Liver, Stomach and Bowel, Rheumatism, Dyspepsia, Consumption and Asthma.
BLOOD IMPURITIES, Inherited or caused by impure association, Scrofula, Fever Sores, Ulcers, etc.
DEFORMITIES of the Limbs, Spinal Curvature, Wry-Neck. Diseases of the Joints, Piles, Fistula, Rupture, etc.
WEAKNESS and wasting diseases in old and young men, also all diseases of the genito-urinary organs.
FEMALE Irregularities and weaknesses, causing pain in the back or side, etc.
Personal interviews with patients are always preferred. Those unable to visit the Institute will be furnished with blank lists of questions that will aid them in making a full statement of their cases, and if not requiring a surgical operation they can be successfully treated by correspondence, and medicines sent by mail or express. To enable us to send proper list of questions applicants should give a brief statement of their trouble.
The Treasurer of the corporation is of Nelson Chesman & Co., Advertising Agents, and refers to the publisher of this or any other newspaper in the United States or Canada regard his responsibility.
Consultation at Office or by mail free and invited.

VIGOROUS HEALTH FOR MEN

TESTED FOR 5 YEARS
by use in thousands of cases. Founded on scientific medical principles, it has been growing in favor and reputation while its numerous competitors have invariably failed. The direct application of this remedy to the seat of the disease makes its specific influence felt without delay. The natural functions of the human organism are restored. The animating elements of life which have been wasted are given back. The buoyant energy of the brain and muscular system renders the patient cheerful; he gains strength with rapidity.
NERVOUS DEBILITY, organic weakness, and numerous obscure diseases, baffling the skill of best physicians, result from youthful indiscretion, too free indulgence, and over brain work.
Do not temporize while such enemies lurk in your system. Take a remedy that has cured thousands, and does not interfere with you attention to business or cause any pain or inconvenience.
(Send for a Descriptive Pamphlet giving Anatomical Illustrations, which will convince the most sceptical that they can be restored to perfect manhood, and fitted for the duties of life, same as if never affected. Sent free to any one.) Remedy sold ONLY by the
HARRIS REMEDY CO. MF'G. CHEMISTS.
306½ N. 10th. St. ST. LOUIS, MO.
One Month's treatment $3. two months $5. three months $7

TUTT'S PILLS
TORPID BOWELS, DISORDERED LIVER, and MALARIA.
From these sources arise three-fourths of the diseases of the human race. These symptoms indicate their existence: Loss of Appetite, Bowels costive, Sick Headache, fullness after eating, aversion to exertion of body or mind, Eructation of food, Irritability of temper, Low spirits, A feeling of having neglected some duty, Dizziness, Fluttering at the Heart, Dots before the eyes, highly colored Urine, CONSTIPATION, and demand the use of a remedy that acts directly on the Liver. As a Liver medicine TUTT'S PILLS have no equal. Their action on the Kidneys and Skin is also prompt; removing all impurities through these three "scavengers of the system," producing appetite, sound digestion, regular stools, a clear skin and a vigorous body. TUTT'S PILLS cause no nausea or griping nor interfere with daily work and are a perfect
ANTIDOTE TO MALARIA.
Sold everywhere, 25c. Office, 44 Murray St., N.Y.

TUTT'S HAIR DYE.
GRAY HAIR OR WHISKERS changed instantly to a GLOSSY BLACK by a single application of this DYE. Sold by Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of $1.
Office, 44 Murray Street, New York.
TUTT'S MANUAL OF USEFUL RECEIPTS FREE.

INJECTION
SANTINELI
Cures all recent and chronic secret diseases of the Urinary passages in both sexes. Directions in all languages. $1.00 a bottle Druggists, or sent by express on receipt of price secure from observation Fairmount Chemical Co. Cincinnati, Ohio, U.S.A. Sold by ...

AYER'S
Cherry Pectoral.
No other complaints are so insidious in their attack as those affecting the throat and lungs: none so trifled with by the majority of sufferers. The ordinary cough or cold, resulting perhaps from a trifling or unconscious exposure, is often but the beginning of a fatal sickness. AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has well proven its efficacy in a forty years' fight with throat and lung diseases, and should be taken in all cases without delay.

A Terrible Cough Cured.
"In 1857 I took a severe cold, which affected my lungs. I had a terrible cough, and passed night after night without sleep. The doctors gave me up. I tried AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, which relieved my lungs, induced sleep, and afforded me the rest necessary for the recovery of my strength. By the continued use of the PECTORAL a permanent cure was effected. I am now 62 years old, hale and hearty, and am satisfied your CHERRY PECTORAL saved me. HORACE FAIRBROTHER."
Rockingham, Vt., July 15, 1882.

Croup.—A Mother's Tribute.
"While in the country last winter my little boy, three years old, was taken ill with croup; it seemed as if he would die from strangulation. One of the family suggested the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, a bottle of which was always kept in the house. This was tried in small and frequent doses, and to our delight in less than half an hour the little patient was breathing easily. The doctor said that the CHERRY PECTORAL had saved my darling's life. Can you wonder at our gratitude? Sincerely yours,
MRS. EMMA GEDNEY."
159 West 128th St., New York, May 16, 1882.
"I have used AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL in my family for several years, and do not hesitate to pronounce it the most effectual remedy for coughs and colds we have ever tried. A. J. CRANE."
Lake Crystal, Minn., March 13, 1882.
"I suffered for eight years from Bronchitis, and after trying many remedies with no success, I was cured by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.
JOSEPH WALDEN."
Byhalia, Miss., April 5, 1882.
"I cannot say enough in praise of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, believing as I do that but for its use I should long since have died from lung troubles. E. BRAGDON."
Palestine, Texas, April 22, 1882.
No case of an affection of the throat or lungs exists which cannot be greatly relieved by the use of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, and it will always cure when the disease is not already beyond the control of medicine.
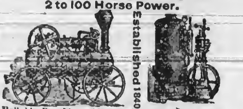
PREPARED BY
Dr. J. C. Ayer & Co., Lowell, Mass.
Sold by all Druggists.

Paynes' AUTOMATIC Engines.
2 to 100 Horse Power.



Reliable, Durable, and Economical. Will furnish a horse power with ⅓ less fuel and water than any other engine built, not fitted with an automatic cut-off. Catalogue sent free. B. W. PAYNE & SONS, Box 1400, Corning, N. Y.

WRIGHT'S INDIAN VEGETABLE PILLS
FOR THE LIVER
And all Bilious Complaints
Safe to take, being purely vegetable; no griping. Price 25 cts. All Druggists.

FREE!
RELIABLE SELF-CURE.
A favorite prescription of one of the most noted and successful specialists in the U. S. (now retired) for the cure of Nervous Debility, Lost Manhood, Weakness and Decay. Sent in plain sealed envelope free. Druggists can fill it.
Address DR. WARD & CO., Louisiana, Mo.

PAYSON'S INDELIBLE INK
Is the BEST. No preparation. Used with any clean pen for marking any fabric. Popular for decorative work on linen. Received Centennial MEDAL & Diploma. Established 50 years. Sold by all Druggists, Stationers & News Agt's.

Cut This Out & Return to us with TEN CTS. Silver, & you'll get by mail a GOLDEN BOX OF GOODS that will bring you in MORE MONEY in One Month than anything else in America. Absolute Certainty. Either Sex. No capital. M. Young, 173 Greenwich St. N. York.

NAVAL Agents Wanted for Ancient & Modern BATTLES.
New and graphic Pictorial History of the great Sea fights of the World. By Medical Director SHIPPEN, U. S. N. Address J. C. McCURDY & CO., 180 W. Fourth St., Cincinnati, Ohio.

AGENTS Wanted for handsome illustrated standard works of character; great variety; Books & Bibles low in price; selling fast; needed everywhere; Liberal terms. Wm. Garretson & Co., ... College St., Nashville, Tenn.

Local News.

Beautiful nights.

Wheat sowing is in full blast.

Exit, straw hats and linen coats.

Court will adjourn about Thursday.

Buy your flour and salt of Dudley Rouse.

Dr. Murat, of Constance, is now Coroner of Boone county.

The protracted meeting in progress here is being well attended.

Nearly all the indictments found by the grand jury are for misdemeanors.

The Sims-Setters case developed considerable knowledge on tobacco culture.

Joe Reed returned home Monday after several days absence in the Queen City.

Boys, the game law is in force yet. Better not go hunting for a few days yet.

The late rains and the autumnal sun have restored the verdure of the pastures.

The pure air and good food furnished by Burlington soon rejuvinated Judge Major.

Mr. Dicken commenced a protracted meeting at the Baptist church, this place, Sunday.

Before putting up your stoves examine the flues and see that they are in good repair.

Mr. Geo. Brown and wife, of Constance, started for Nashville, Tenn., Tuesday morning.

In the case of J. B. Thornton vs. J. L. Henderson, the defendant got judgement for his costs.

We were only a week ahead of time in making the appointment for Mr. Dicken's meeting.

Ayer's Ague Cure never fails to cure Fever and Ague, and all malarial disorders. Warranted.

After the first day the attendance at court was rather small, being confined to witness and litigants.

Temp Graves, of the Bullittsburg country, fell from a wagon a few days since and fractured a bone in his leg.

The grand jury condemned the jail, and now the question is, what is the County Court going to do in the premises?

With their new levee and the river at its present stage, the Lawrenceburgers feel securely protected against high water.

Colonel Crisler desires to thank his friends for their favors in the past, and and hopes to have them at his new place of business.

Couldn't the jail be rented to one of the Hotels for an ice-house, this winter? Wouldn't Burlington be putting on airs with a $4,999 ice-house.

Miss Nettie Gardner commenced teaching a school in district No. 51, Monday morning. This is in the Barlow and Crisler neighborhood.

Col. Crisler, of Florence X-Roads desires all those indebted to him to come forward and settle at once, as he will this week move his place of business.

One attorney had the misfortune to be a witness against his client, but he being the only witness the attorney for the Commonwealth would not try.

Samuel Pope has sold his farm, 58 acres of the Porter farm on the Union road near here, to Albert Crigler and son-in-law. We understand the price is $40 per acre.

Since Joe Reed has been in the city, (about two weeks) Cy Crisler has come out in a new suit and plug hat. We thought all along that Cy was joking about Joe's eating.

Commonwealth attorney, DeJarnett, complimented J. Frank Grant as being the best foreman he ever saw on a grand jury. The business was expedited in the most systematic order.

One jury was instructed by the Court that the defendant in the indictment was guilty, but nevertheless the jury hung for about a half a day trying to agree on the amount of the fine.

Col. Calilus, Col. Landram, C. Y. Dyas, Judge Youell, Judge O'Hara, Judge Pryor, A. G. DeJarnett, Col. W. Montfort, A. W. Gaines and O. D. McManama were the visiting legal lights.

Willie Riddell, son of James A, brought to this office the other day two potatoes on both of which there grew a cluster of smaller ones. The two potatoes and their annexes weighed six pounds.

Nice tombstones or monuments at the graves of the departed, are marks of respect which should not be neglected. Hurschart & Co., Lawrenceburg, Ind., have just what you want. John Beall, of Hebron, is their agent.

Jno. F. Patmore who was indicted on the 3 inst., for forging the name of Jno. S. Mason, on a note which was given Churchell Clore, decd., was arrested on the 4th, plead guilty and was given two years in the penitentiary on the 5th.

The jury in the Madden-O'Gorman case was delivered of a verdict Monday about noon, giving the widower a verdict against the widow for $100, being $200 less than the one he recoverd last court. The defense was strengthened by a large enstallment of legal lore this term, but Stephens and his hibernian client were victorious.

Report of the Grand Jury.

To the Hon. P. U. Major:

We have been in session 5 days, have had before us 68 witnesses, and presented to the Court 58 Indictments. We have found it very troublesome to get witnesses from some parts of the county, and especially complain of the Constable in the Big Bone precinct, in failing or refusing to use due diligence in summoning witnesses.

We desire to call especial attention to the public water closet in the yard in rear of the jail. The floor is very insecure from the rotteness of the supporting timbers, and there being no drain or other means of emptying the vault, the accumulating mass of filth is very large, so large as to endanger the health of the citizens of the town from the poisonous gasses arising therefrom.

We have been unable to get the witnesses from Walton in the case of the Commonwealth vs. Chas. Morris, a little boy confined in jail for petit larceny. We continue his case with the recommendation to your Honor that the boy Chas. Morris be dismissed from custody upon his own recognizance.

The Grand Jury have carefully examined the public buildings, and report as follows:

The County and Circuit Clerks' Offices are in good repair. The Court-house has a dangerous porch on second story, which should be immediately repaired or torn down; otherwise the building is in moderately good repair. The Poor-house seems to be all right except that one gutter is so damaged as to be injuring the walls of the building and for want of a drain to carry away the water from one of the vertical pipes the foundation walls are being damaged.

The jail is condemned by a vote of 13 to 3 as totally unfit to confine human beings in. There is insufficient ventilation and light; a most foul and sickening oder pervading the building, especially the parts occupied; and the water closet has absolutely no drainage whatever, and no trap or other means of cutting off from the cells the escaping poisonous vapors which constantly arise therefrom. We believe that our jail should be more a place for the confinement of subjected persons, than for the punishment of criminals, and recommend by a unanimous vote that the prisoners confined in the jail at the expiration of this term of the Court, be sent by your Honor's direction to a more comfortable place of confinement.

J. FRANK GRANT, Foreman.

Oct., 1883.

John Daisley the boy who stole $16 in money from Temp Graves, plead guilty and was given one year in the penitentiary.

Mr. Hubert Nead and Miss C. V. Richardson, of Kenton County, were married at the Florence Baptist Church, last Tuesday afternoon, (Oct., 2d last.)—Enquirer.

Mr. Hubert and his fair bride have the best wishes of the RECORDER.

The game in the Petersburg neighborhood is very scarce now. Dr. Ed Terrill, Elihu Alden, Jack Carson and Jas. Loder were preparing to take a hunt the other evening, and the rabbits hearing of their intentions, skipped for Indiana. It took the ferryman some time to cross them over. The boys hearing of their departure postponed the hunt to some future day.

Mr. Ferd Hughes and daughter, of Missouri, have been visiting his father's, E. A. Hughes, near here, since last Wednesday. Ferd says he used to think it was a level country around Burlington, but, after 20 years absence in the western country, it looks to him as though there are two hills now, where there was one then.

Pursuant to the recommendation of the grand jury Chas. Morris, who was lodged in jail for breaking into a house in Walton, was released from custody and the cause continued. Money was contributed by the bar and those attending court, and the little fellow taken to Petersburg by J. Frank Grant, who was to see that he secured passage on the railroad for St. Louis, the home of his widowed mother.

Base-ball.

The Boone Base-ball club visited Batavia, Ohio, Saturday and won a nice victory. The boys were in good trim and played the strongest game of the season. Their opponents were a strong team, and had not been defeated this season. When the Boones get down to earnest work, they are a strong amateur team. Below is the score by

Innings.	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	8	9	T
Boones	0	0	0	0	1	5	1	0	0	—7
Batavia	0	0	2	0	1	0	2	0	0	—5

Ed Maxwell, of Boone county, Ky., aged twenty-one years, was afflicted with consumption, and one week ago appeared at the "Faith Rest," 250 Park avenue, for admission. He was found dead in his bed yesterday at noon. Coroner Muscroft viewed the body, but did not deem it necessary to hold an inquest, as the case was plainly visible.—Enquirer October 2d.

The remains of young Maxwell were interred in the cemetery at this place, last Thursday morning. He is the brother of Mr. Wood and Frank Maxwell, who live near here.

Death of Mrs. Lucinda Tousey. Mrs. Lucinda Tousey died at two o'clock on Tuesday morning, at her residence in Indianapolis, in the eightieth year of her age. She was married in 1813 to Omer Tousey, who died in this city in 1868. She was born at North Bend, Ky. but came to Indiana about sixty years ago, living here until 1861, when she made her home in Indianapolis. She was the daughter of Col. Cave Johnson. Her husband was the uncle of Governor Porter. She had no children. She has been an invalid for many years, and her vitality was something very remarkable. She leaves a considerable estate.—Lawrenceburg Press.

Personal Mentions.

[illegible]

Miss Gussie Kirkpatrick has been visiting friends in Cincinnati, for several days.

Mrs. Geo. W. Hughes, of Paris, Ill., is visiting her parents, at this place, Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Winston.

We are informed that Mr. Thomas O. Cowen will hold a position in F. P. Walton's tobacco house during the winter.

Mr. Geo. H. Moore and wife, of Moors Hill, Ind., were visiting his father-in-law, Mr. McFarland, at this place, last week.

Mrs. Campbell left Monday morning for Eagle Station, Ky., where she expects to spend the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Gullion.

Miss Lizzie Allen, of Boone county, is visiting friends here. We notice she has some of cupid's darts with her.—Liberty Station Item, Carrolton Dem.

A petition will be presented to Governor Knott asking him to extend Executive clemency to John Daisley, who was given one year in the penitentiary last week for stealing Temp Grave's money.

NGEIHBORHOOD NEWS.

Scattersville.

The farmers are rejoicing over the fine shower.

Most of the farmers are through cutting and housing their tobacco, and have commenced cutting up their corn and sowing wheat, of which there will be a large amount sown, in this neighborhood.

James Acra is remodeling his dwelling house.

Mr. Sebree has sold his tobacco to Esq. Baker. We did not learn the price.

Rabbit Hash.

Our little town looks somewhat dilapidated since the fire. Business is dull with all except Wilson & Riddell, who are moving along as lively as ever.

Charlie Wilson and George Duncan witnessed the closing of the Cincinnati Exposition, last Saturday.

Mrs. R. F. Bell is visiting her cousin, Mrs. Lucinda Bethel, of Gallatin county.

John P. Ryle has bought several crops of tobacco.

Dr. L. H. Patl, of Bellevue, was in town last Wednesday.

E. T. Gleason and wife, and Mrs. Mollie Acra, attended the Soldier's Reunion, in Rising Sun, last Wednesday.

Hebron.

We are having fine growing weather, and the pastures present a spring-like appearance. Farmers are in good spirits again.

John Henderson and wife had the misfortune to lose their infant child that was born on the 3d inst.

The sale of the estate of E. Hammond, decd., was well attended, and the property brought good prices. Wheat brought 90c, corn 40 cents, tobacco 8 cents and hogs 4½c.

While coon hunting the other night Jas. Conner got a bad cut on the shin, by an ax.

When going from a party Saturday night Leonard Anderson was thrown from a horse and badly crippled.

Jake Crigler is keeping batch this week.

Huntsville.

A good rain has once more visited us which has greatly revived the downcast farmers. Seeding is the chief employment of the farmers at present.

L. S. Pope is talking of trying the hog market this week, with 32 head of hogs, which we think will average 300 pounds.

The Huntsville band met at the residence of Mr. Alfred Casons, last Saturday, and had a pleasant time.

Among the many visitors at the residence of Mr. Sandford Popes Sunday, were Miss Bettie Acra, Miss Lue Barlow, Miss Lizzie Acra, of Scattersville, Miss Emma and J. P. Jones, of Gunpowder, Miss Tennie Aylor, of Florence X-Roads, Messrs Ed Rice, Johnnie Duncan and Mont Halsly, of near Bullittsburg, Mr. Perry Utz, of Florence, Mr. Milton Acra, of Burlington, Messrs. Thos. Roberts, W. E. Barker and Andrew Acra, of this place.

Health of the neighborhood good.

Florence.

Owing to the attractions of the Cincinnati Exposition and the Judicial Fair at Burlington, last week, our place was nearly depopulated, and your correspondent had come to the conclusion that the space allotted to Florence items, would be a beautiful blank in the next issue of the RECORDER. Of course we had on hand our host of doctors, our old war veterans and those twenty widows, that we keep on hand as a nucleus, around which to gather in case of emergency. But litigants, jurors and witnesses were at court, and the lovers of industry and fine-arts at the exposition, and that other class that are of no particular use only to fill up, were count ounies. Even the baseballists, who are such an addition to the streets of town, had deserted us.

I was loaesome, and the old adages, "A calm before a storm" or "T'is an ill wind that blows nobody good," were revolving in my mind as to what would be next, when suddenly the noise of vehicles was heard and a procession of hacks and carriages came in view. Heads popped in the windows, women ran across the street, the canines that hadn't committed suicide, barked, and everybody wanted to see. What's the matter? I inquired of a woman (always ask a female if you want the news.) Why, Hubert Nead is married, she replied. And to whom, pray? To Miss Richardson, of Kenton, of course. I sprang to my feet to get a glimpse of the happy couple and grand cortege, for Hubert is a particular favorite of mine and I wanted to take in the whole surroundings. A description of toilet is out of the question, in the hurry, and we could only notice, under a "slick beaver" one of Hubert's broadest smiles, (beat Tom Swetnam's sunflower), and a glance at a small piece of furniture at his side, told us he had a good reason for that smile. The bride is the daughter of Sinclair Richardson, of Kenton, and the groom is the son of Dennis Nead, of Florence. The marriage was solemnized Oct., 24., at the bride's residence, being the 25th anniversary of Hubert's birth.

Court is over and our population is repleted once more. The hotel keepers are jubilant over the prize they drew, and seem to be stimulated to renewed exertions to excel each other in their peculiar modes of business, for the next term, by the way they've started in. The boys say that sheriff Clutterbuck can be at more places at once, and on time, and more polite and pressing in his invitations to attend court, when they have no particular business in that direction, than any man they have met with.

Died—Oct. 6th, at 9 o'clock p. m., after a protracted illness of several years, Mrs. Emma Brown, daughter of Enes Tanner, of Boone county, and wife of Wm. T. Brown, formerly of Virginia.

GAS OMLTER.

Petersburg was well represented at court Monday.

As the boys say, "Big court is on hand," and our readers will please excuse our dearth of local items this week.

Jim Westbay and the rest of the little boys had a big treat Tuesday morning. There was a hand-organ man in town.

The Woolper bridge case was before the court again Monday, and a demurrer to the petition and amendments was sustained, which will also be taken to the higher court.

LADIES and all sufferers from neuralgia hysteria, and kindred complaints will find without a rival Brown's Iron Bitters.

FARMINGTON, ILL.—Dr. M. T. Gamble says: "I prescribe Brown's Iron Bitters in my practice and it gives satisfaction."

FORT STEVENSON, DAKOTAH TER.—Rev James McCarty says: "Brown's Iron Bitters cured me of severe dyspepsia."

FOR SALE.

A good cow and calf—the cow is fresh and a number one milch cow, apply to
C. L. CRISLER, Burlington, Ky.

Grange Meeting

On Saturday the 13th inst., the members of the Mt. Pleasant Grange will hold a meeting. The members of Petersburg and Point Pleasant Granges are especially invited to attend. Speeches and a good dinner will be the order of the day. Bros. N. S. and J. H. Walton, and others will deliver cheering speeches. The object of the meeting is to consolidate the granges mentioned. Our Grange Hall has passed from under another cloud, and will soon bask in the sunshine with a new coat of tea green, with red trimmings. Meeting at 10 a. m.

G. C. GRADDY.

Mother's Spinning Wheel.

Concerning One Article that was Not For Sale, and Another which is Cheap at Any Price.

"No, sir, I wouldn't sell you that for any money; that spinning-wheel was my mother's. It was one day, when she was singing like a lark and making this old wheel hum, that my father, then a young medical student, afterwards a farmer, fell in love with her—some fifty years ago."

So spoke the proprietor of a rough bit of farm land in Ulster county, N. Y., to a relic-hunter, and "mother's" spinning-wheel remained among her children and grandchildren.

"My mother," writes Rev. J. W. Phelps, pastor of St. Paul's M. E. Church, Chicago, has used PARKER'S TONIC, and wishes me to say that she has found it more effective than anything she ever used for invigorating and strengthening the system debilitated by malaria. She desires me also especially to mention the certainty with which it aids digestion and overcomes exhaustion."

Ever since the first household was established "mother's" opinion has been more potent in this world than that of judge, jurist or physician. Her hand has always cooled the fever and her voice has been filled with hope. With each day's decline, PARKER'S TONIC, is becoming more deservedly popular with the women who guard alike husband and children. It eradicates malarial poison from the blood, from which there is now such widespread suffering.

Please observe: Dr. PARKER'S TONIC is not an intoxicant. It is a combination of several ingredients, of which none singly can produce anything like its effect. For Kidney, Stomach and Liver troubles, it is the standard and unfailing remedy. In two sizes: 50 cents and $1. The latter the cheaper. HISCOX & CO., Chemists, New York

Farm for Sale!

35 acres of good rolling bottom land, 3½ miles below Aurora ferry, ½ mile from Bellevue and ½ mile from the Ohio river, being part of the Warren Rogers farm. For particulars call on or address T. H. SUTTON, Grant P. O., Ky., or at this office. 44-2 m

Farm for Sale.

I am offering for sale my farm, lying 8 miles south of Burlington on the Big Bone road, containing 55¼ acres, a part of the Mason Crisler farm. The land lays well and is conveniently located, the improvements are a good brick house and all necessary out buildings, and a variety of good fruit. Any person desirous of purchasing a nice farm will do well to come and examine the premises and learn terms. Title good. MRS. OSCAR CRISLER.

INSURE AT HOME

The Farmers' Mutual Fire

INSURANCE COMPANY

Of Boone County

Is now completely organized and receiving applications for insurance.

Its Rates are Lower

Than those of any other Company, and it gives the farmers of Boone County a

HITHERTO UNKNOWN ADVANTAGE

In keeping their property insured.

EVERY FARMER IN THE COUNTY

should take a policy at once.

N. S. WALTON, President. Petersburg, Ky.
J. H. WALTON, Secretary. Constance, Ky.
R. RANDALL, Treasury.

DIRECTORS.

LEGRAN GAINES, Jeff Utz, JNO. M. MOODY.

We Have

J. SCHOFIELD & SON'S

JEANS, BLANKETS AND YARNS.

THE JEANS IS BLUE WARP, THE PRICE IS

45 Cents.

Those parties that wanted to get a corner on Schofield's Goods are badly disappointed, as they see they can't get 60 cents a yard for the Madison Jeans when we propose to stir matters up a little.

COLTER, Rising Sun, Ind

J. W. KIRKPATRICK & SON,
—BURLINGTON, KY.—
UNDERTAKERS
—AND—
EMBALMERS,
Will furnish nice Hearse any reasonable distance for $10.

ROBERT B. REED
Attorney at Law.
OFFICE AT - UNION, KY.

F. RIDDELL,
ATTORNEY at LAW
BURLINGTON, KY.
Office over Dudley Rouse's Store.

ALBERT W. GAINES,
Attorney and Counselor at Law,
LAWRENCEBURG, - - - IND.
Will practice in the courts of Boone county, Ky., Cincinnati, Ohio, Dearborn and adjoining counties, Ind. dec-6-82

W. E. VEST,
COUNTY SURVEYOR
WALTON, KY.
Is prepared to do all kinds of surveying. All orders sent him through the mail to Walton, will receive his prompt attention.

FANNIE G. RICE,
—TEACHER OF—
PIANO & ORGAN.
Lessons given at my residence,
Burlington, - - Ky.

L. C. NORMAN. H. J. STEPHENS.
NORMAN and STEPHENS,
ATTORNEYS at LAW,
UNION, BOONE CO., KY.
Will practice in the Courts of Boone Kenton and adjoining counties. Collections solicited and made throughout the State. 24 tf 81

DR. A. B. HARRY AN
RESIDENT DENTIST.
Aurora, Indiana.
(Office Over Postoffice)
With J P. ULREY.
Dr. ULREY'S days, Wednesday and Saturday. Office open at all hours. 8-1y

J. J. Landram. G. G. Hughes.
LANDRAM & HUGHES,
ATTORNEYS at LAW.
Will practice in the Boone Circuit Court and the Court of Appeals. Prompt attention given to Collections, on application to G. G. Hughes, Burlington, Ky.

S. W. TOLIN,
ATTORNEY AT LAW
BURLINGTON, - - KY
Office in Court-house on 2d floor.
Will manage litigation in any of the Courts of the State, contracts and other legal instruments drawn up at reasonable rates. A prompt and studious attention given to business intrusted to my care. A trial solicited. 12-1y

H. KASSEN & CO.
(Formerly of Covington.)
—Dealers in Fine—
BOOTS AND SHOES,
106 W. 5th Street,
CINCINNATI, - - - OHIO.
Custom made work a Specialty. A perfect Fit Guaranteed. dec. 20-1y

BOONE HOUSE,
BURLINGTON, KY.
C. L. CRISLER, Prop'r.
No pains spared in the accommodation of guests. The table supplied with the delicacies of the season. Stock well cared for. dec. 20-1y

AURORA
MARBLE
AND GRANITE
WORKS,
Aurora, Ind
Will have constantly on hand
Marble and Granite Monuments,
Italian & American Headstones, &c.
I am ready to do all kinds of Stone Work on short notice and at low prices Hoping to receive the patronage of Boone County, I am respectfully,
F. W. KASSEBAUM.

Just From New York
WITH A
Full LINE of FALL SUITINGS,
AND
OVERCOATS.
The above stock was carefully selected, and consists of all the NEW STYLES of FALL GOODS, and you can not fail to be pleased with the Goods and Prices.
H. F. BLASE,
540 Madison St, - COVINGTON, KY.

M. L. SWETNAM. HUBERT NEAD.
SWETNAM & NEAD,
(SUCCESSOR TO ALONZO GRAVES.)
LIVERY AND BOARDING STABLE
AND TRANSFER LINE.
79 Pike Street, Covington, Ky.
Horses Kept by the Day, Week or Month.
Horses and Buggies for Hire.
Stock of all kinds Bought and Sold.
Best Care Taken of Horses entrusted to our Keeping.
All Orders for Hauling Promptly Attended to.

THIS SPACE BELONGS TO THE
Petersburg Drug Store,
Where you can find everything in the Drug line, such as——
Well call and see and be convinced.
Respectfully, S. C BUCHANAN.

TRADE MARK.

Dr. CLARK JOHNSON'S
Indian Blood Syrup
Cures all diseases of the Stomach, Liver, Bowels, Kidneys, Skin and Blood. Millions testify to its efficacy in healing the above named diseases, and pronounce it to be the
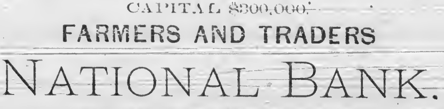
BEST REMEDY KNOWN TO MAN.
Guaranteed to cure Dyspepsia.
AGENTS WANTED.
Laboratory 77 W. 3d St, New York City. Druggists sell it.
D. CLARK JOHNSON:— [illegible] your Indian Blood Syrup [illegible] L. B. McCABE, Seaville, Ky. Mar. '83

JAMES S. WAYNE, President. JNO. L. SANDFORD, Cashier
CAPITAL $300,000.
FARMERS AND TRADERS
NATIONAL BANK.
Covington, Kentucky.
DIRECTORS.
James S. Wayne, M. C. Mateh, Sam Hind, E. J. Hickey, E. J. Green, J. S. Matson, J. H. Mersman, A. R. Mullen, L. H. Dills, F. P. Helm, L. C. Stephens.
The general operation of Banking transacted upon the most favorable terms. Collections made on all points in the United States.
The Business and Accounts of Farmers are Especially Solicited by the Bank. dec. 20-6m

City Flouring Mills
RISING SUN, INDIANA.
FLOUR EXCHANGED FOR WHEAT OR CASH. THE HIGHEST MARKET PRICE PAID FOR GOOD WHEAT.
mar7-tf28 J. W. Talbott.

UNDERTAKING.



We keep Constantly on Hand all sizes of
Burial Cases and Caskets.
And having just received a beautiful
NEW HEARSE,
Which can be had at a reasonable price when desired.
PRICES GUARANTEED LESS THAN CITY PRICES.
DAVIS BROS. HEBRON, KY.

Subscribe for the Recorder

THE RECORDER.

RIDDELL & HALL, Publishers.

BURLINGTON, : : KENTUCKY.

Love's Devotion.

At a private residence in St. Louis, Wednesday afternoon, the crowning scene of a most romantic and touching story was witnessed by a reporter and a few intimate friends of those directly interested. As gathered by the scribe, the facts in the case bear out the oft-quoted assertion that "truth is stranger than fiction." and are about as follows;

Some years ago there lived in the city of Mobile, Ala., a family named Rives, consisting of a father, mother and three daughters, aged respectively seven, fifteen and seventeen, the girls being remarkable for their beauty, and the two eldest, especially, exceedingly well educated and accomplished and most brilliant pianists. Colonel Rives was largely interested in several plantations, possessed property in the city of Mobile proper, and was regarded as one of the leading citizens. Reverses of fortune came, however, and the once wealthy family were soon reduced to decidedly small means. In addition to other misfortunes, Colonel Rives was one day accidentally killed by the explosion of a steam boiler upon one of his plantations, and his children were thus deprived of their mainstay and support, and thrown upon the charities of a world unfeeling and selfish at the best.

Gathering together the remnants of what was left of her husband's property, Mrs. Rives decided to leave her southern home and come to St. Louis to begin the battle for existence. The money which they had sufficed for some months, but at last their means gave out, and the only alternative was for one of the daughters to obtain some employment by means of which the wolf might be kept from the door. After seeking in vain for some occupation in keeping with her former surroundings, the eldest daughter Eloise, was forced to accept a position as chambermaid in the Hotel Hunt, at the corner of Ninth and Chestnut streets. The mother and the two youngest girls meanwhile secured accommodations at the residence of a kind-hearted lady named Mrs. A. B. Waterhouse, who lives at 1310 Pine street, and who readily appreciated the hard lot which had fallen to the distressed family. Like a true daughter, Eloise devoted her earnings, small though they were, toward the support of her mother and two younger sisters, and, with the assistance of an aunt, who also came from Mobile, and possessed some resources, life was made comparatively comfortable for them.

The beauty and attractiveness of Eloise proved a strong drawing card for the hotel, and many a festive and innocent "drummer" stopped there in the hope of ultimately gaining favor in her eyes. But she was discreet and kept all admirers at a distance, with the exception of a young man who was employed in a Fourth street business house as a book-keeper, and who fell passionately in love with her. Another adorer, who was connected with a sewing machine company, also evinced a decided preference for her, but she did not appear to receive his advances with favor, and gave her affections to Seid. This regard soon deepened into love, and the two finally became engaged, but after a short time the inevitable lovers' quarrel took place and the engagement was broken. This occurred nearly three months ago. About this time there came to the hotel a German gentleman from Colorado, named R. Stager, a chemist and metallurgist by profession, and who resided in the village of Garfield, a thriving hamlet in the Centennial State. Fortune having been kind to him he had gathered a competency amounting to about $50,000. Upon arriving he immediately fell violently in love with the pretty chambermaid, and Miss Rives was then able to boast of two lovers who both swore they were ready to die for her, with a possibility of the rejected one doing likewise if she so desired. The girl did not receive Stager's attentions with favor, he being more than twice her age, so she kept herself fancy free, for all that the outside world knew. Stager went back to Colorado with the intention of forgetting her, if possible, but found himself unable to do so, and after staying away about one month returned to St. Louis again, stopping at the Hotel Hunt, loving the girl as fondly as ever, but she refused to give him any encouragement. About three weeks ago Miss Rives's eyes became affected, and being seriously ill she was obliged to leave her place in the hotel. Mrs. Waterhouse took her to her own home, where she could be properly cared for, and where a mother's tender hands could ease her daughter's pain.

Then followed a test of Stager's affection and loyalty. By night and by day he thought of nothing but the girl he so fondly loved. Flowers, fruit and every delicacy obtainable he had sent to the house where his love lay sick. Every expense was paid by him, and he used his money solely for her benefit. Her heart could not withstand these proofs of his devotion, however, and against the wishes of her family she consented to become his wife. Yesterday was fixed upon as the wedding day, and at two o'clock in the afternoon Dr. Vineil appeared at the residence of Waterhouse for the purpose of performing the ceremony. The girl soon to be a wife still occupied her bed, unable to be moved. Sweet-smelling flowers graced the room, and in her hand she held a bunch of forget-me-nots. Through the open window the sun shone brightly, throwing slanting sunbeams upon her wasted form. At her side stood her future husband, while around the bed were gathered her mother and sisters, Mrs. Waterhouse, who had helped to nurse her, a few friends of the family, and a Globe-Democrat reporter. Solemnly and quietly the two were wedded and joined together for life. During her sickness she had become blind, and while the ceremony was being performed, helplessly extended her arms to her lover, as if to keep him ever near her, and as he placed the wedding-ring upon her finger a bird flew in at the window and perched upon the head of the bed. Though his wife will probably never rise from her bed again, Stager insisted that the coming of the bird was a good omen, and a sure sign that his love would recover. If she does, which is earnestly hoped will be the case, he will have a wife who has been "tried and not found wanting."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

—The old idea that men do not die from overwork is having a good many rebukes nowadays. The cases of insanity as the effects of excessive brain-work, and the frequent suicides resulting from aberration so produced, should appal men who grind continually at their business afraid that money-making chances may be missed during the weeks of rest brain and body so much need.

Feed Versus Phosphate.

A ton of phosphate costs from $10 to $45. When applied to a crop it may or may not improve it. Its beneficial effect, taking the average of phosphates, does not last more than a year. Now, if this same amount of money should be invested in linseed oil meal, a half a ton costing $14, and the balance in buckwheat bran costing $18 a ton, there would be 3,444 pounds of the latter to mix with the oil meal, which would be a good proportion for feeding any kind of stock for any purpose. My line of experience and philosophy teaches me that it is far better policy for a farmer to buy extra feed and give his stock the benefit of it, than to expend the same amount of money, or any money, in purchasing at exorbitant prices chemical compounds about which he really knows nothing. Two tons of oil meal and bran will make a profit on the stock which may be wintered, by giving them just as much extra growth, without which the feed in the form of fodder is really wasted; except the manure it may make. My point is this: the farmer feeds out a barnful of fodder to a lot of stock which may weigh less, or no more, in the spring than they did in the fall. What gain has he had on his barnful of fodder more than the manure which it has made? This is the condition of thousands of farmers who work hard all summer, that their stock may live through the winter. An exception may be made, perhaps, in the case of milch cows who are thus brought through to the period when they may be made profitable.

This period of profit can not begin, as cows are usually fed, until after another period of recuperation has been reached, which varies from a month to two months, and sometimes longer, after they have been out to pasture. My second point comes in right here. Which is the wisest thing to do, to leave the cows in the above condition, with their manure lacking everything except weakness, and to depend upon going into the phosphate lottery to make up its deficiency so that crops may be raised, or to invest the same money, or more, in buying linseed oil meal and bran to improve the condition of the stock, make a profitable growth, and cause the cows to increase in flesh and the flow of milk? There is no lottery in this kind of investment, but in all cases, every time and everywhere, it is a sensible and profitable thing to do. It means more freedom from disease, fewer abortions, less of the abomination of "hollow horn," "tail soak," and other evidences of the want of vitality: less "tailing up" of cows, less tottering frames, with staring coats and hollow eyes. It means glossy coats, bright, full eyes, rounded forms, no sickness, big udders, full pails, fat calves, lots of butter and a large pile of manure, rich in plant food. The sequel is—independence and a home fertilizer which has already paid for itself in milk and flesh, which then costs nothing and which will show its good effects for years.—Colonel Curtis, in N. Y. Tribune.

Monstrosities at Dinner.

One by one the ancient curiosities, or monstrosities, of our capitals vanish from the sight of a wondering public to make room for more modern monsters. The most curious of all Paris curiosities will cease to exist when the demolition of the Grand Hotel Leguay, known as "La Table d'Hote des Monstres," is completed. The hotel in itself is like any common provincial hotel, but the guests of its table d'hote, as described by the reporter of the Lanterne, form an assembly hardly to be met with in any other place. "Dinner being announced," says this privileged guest, "the first couple to enter the dining-hall with an air of perfect propriety are a bearded woman accompanied by a skeleton-like gentleman. She receives his whispers with thoughtful eyes; gently stroking her beard. A dwarf with an enormous nose sits next to them on a high stool; her neighbors are a well-known showman, who now and then turns his face round to the middle of his back—a convenience whenever the waiter is wanted—and a young giantess of sixteen, weighing four hundred pounds. Somnambulists, acrobats and many more of the same school complete the circle, who, after their meal is ended, will sometimes for the benefit of an occasional visitor unite in a dance, fantastic, grotesque and hideous to the last degree.—Pall-Mall Gazette.

Overdoing Cultivation.

A farmer tried the experiment last year of raking several plots, so that the soil was as fine as possible, and then sowing wheat. The effects of this extra care were not evident in better crop or larger heads. There is such a thing as making a soil too powdery. If it is at all heavy soil it will crust over and bake, after the first hard rain, like cement. We know a farmer who, after getting his corn ground in good order, invariably goes over it two or three times more with the expectation of making it in better condition for the growing of corn. With all his cultivation he never raises a very large crop, no more and frequently not as good as do his neighbors with good but not extra cultivation previous to planting. Enough seems to be sufficient for all practical purposes in such cases, and that there can be too much cultivation of the soil when either wet or dry is evident to most practical farmers. It is, however, not of frequent occurrence, and few err in this direction. The general rule is too little rather than too much.—Michigan Farmer.

Bogus Disease.

"Wolf-in-the-tail" usually co-exists with "hollow-horn," and is equally without foundation as a cause of disease. In the tail of a healthy cow the bones, which are quite large at the root, gradually diminish in size until they finally disappear entirely, their place being supplied by a rather soft, flexible gristle. During any serious internal disease the circulation in the tail, as in the other extremities, is lessened, and the part becomes relaxed. Sometimes there is a slight dropsical irritation, which often makes it difficult for one who handles the tail to convince himself that some of the bones are not really wanting. Their absence is then accounted for by supposing that they have been devoured by a hypothetical worm—the "wolf"—but though "cow doctors" have sometimes found this marvel, we have never heard that it has been seen by a trustworthy practitioner. Here, as in hollow-horn, when the real disease is properly treated, the imaginary disease of wolf-in-the-tail disappears.—Rural New Yorker.

—This year's crop of Rio coffee is estimated at from 3,000,000 to 3,500,000 bags.

—There is no better food for chickens than skim milk.—Chicago Journal.

THE DAIRY.

—It is figured that four acres of land are necessary to the sustenance of one dairy cow.

—The Dairy is of the opinion that there is a grand opportunity for some public spirited wealthy man, whose tastes incline to the dairy, to do a helpful thing for thousands of his fellows who have not been so favored by fortune as he has been, by the establishing of a dairy experiment station and school.

—The Dairy Farmer has this to say about cows and milkers: The disposition of milkers has much to do with the disposition of cows. In fact, the milker must study the dispositions of the different cows under his care, and learn to accommodate himself to their peculiarities. We have never known a cow to condescend to take off her bonnet and make a bow to any irate, high-tempered milker. If they incline to do anything it is to lay him on the cool, soft ground, and then smash through the yard fence in such a way as to leave three or four panels prostrate.

—The main obstacle in the way of extending dairying in the West is the fact that the raising of dairy stock takes time and the old cows are constantly dropping out. Another is the extensive deaconing of calves, the haste to reap the fruits of dairying causing the killing of the goose that would lay the golden egg. The prevailing tendency is to depend on buying calves in the fall or cows already developed. These two things materially check the growth of the dairy business; and, considering the present low prices of dairy products, perhaps this is a blessing to dairymen, whatever it may be to consumers. It is pretty certain that the creamery men will be large losers this year in the West if prices do not go up in the fall. Thus far the outlook has been very discouraging for them.—N. E. Farmer.

What is Rennet?

Once upon a time it was supposed that the action of rennet in making curd (precipitating the caseine in the milk and making it insoluble) was due to the acids contained in the gastric fluid of the stomach. It was very soon discovered, however, that it was not this acid, but a peculiar action of the substance of the stomach itself, which produced the effect. That even after the stomach of the calf had been steeped in brine for months, and had been dried and exposed to the air for a time, it might be again steeped in brine and would furnish a second and even a third supply of rennet. It was found, then, that this property was not confined to the stomach only, but that the membrane of the intestine, or even of the bladder of an animal, would exert the same effect as the stomach; that is, that it would change milk sugar into lactic acid, and would cause sweet milk to form curd. Moreover, by further use of these animal substances it was found that their agency was greatly increased and intensified by the action of the atmosphere, or of its oxygen upon them, and that long-continued exposure to the air strengthened their action. A calf's stomach that had been kept twelve months became possessed of very powerful coagulating properties.

But there are other substances which have the same effect. A solution of malt in water contains a sweet substance called diastase, and this has the power of changing starch into sugar. But when the diastase has been exposed to the air for a length of time it acquires the same property that rennet possesses, viz., that of changing sugar to lactic acid and of producing curd. So that the property of rennet seems to be acquired by the action of oxygen upon the membrane of the stomach, or at least this oxidizing action certainly restores the active property of rennet after it has been exhausted.

But just here arises an evil which occurs in practice more frequently than factorymen suspect. It is this: By this exposure to the atmosphere of insufficiently cured rennets, the putrefactive fermentation sometimes, and indeed often, takes place. The putrescent germs then carry a taint into the cheese, which in course of a short time sets the putrefactive fermentation into action, and the cheese rapidly deteriorates in quality. Such cheese will not keep, and in the very hot weather a very few days will suffice to spoil it. And this fact in regard to rennet should receive the most careful study and consideration of factorymen.—The Dairy.

Drying the Cows.

In response to the question, "When should cows go dry?" the Dairy says: There is such a thing as burning a candle at both ends. One may easily do this in the dairy, and while the "good, easy man" thinks he is making a good deal of light at the same cost, suddenly his candle may go out. This kind of thing may go on when one milks the cows up to the time of calving, or near it, and even encourages it by feeding for that end. But then it may not. And it is the dairyman's business to know all about it and not take any general rule for his guide. There is no rule without a multitude of exceptions, and these are as numerous as times, places and circumstances; and as circumstances alter cases, so the reply to the question we have put above depends upon circumstances. There are cows that will not go dry, but will milk from calf to calf. Is the dairyman to worry himself and the cow in useless defiance of her natural habit? By no means. He must suit his case to the circumstances, and reduce the milk yield as much as possible by milking once a day perhaps, and compensate the cow for her extra burden by giving her more feed up to a safe limit. What this limit may be depends wholly on the ability of the cow to healthfully digest and dispose of the food. And no one but the intelligent owner can say what this limit may be, for it will vary, as cows vary, and no two cows are precisely alike. As long as the cow is in a thriving condition, not losing flesh or making fat, the limit is reached.

But, as a rule, to be contracted and expanded judiciously and safely. It might be said that a cow should be dried off six weeks before she is due to calve. That up to that time she should be liberally fed in the usual manner; that thenceforth her food should be curtailed, or even changed to dry hay; and if her condition is reduced somewhat, so much the better. It will make it safer for her and the calf. The milking may be done once a day, or not wholly completed, leaving a little in the udder. We have even taken a little milk several times a day from a cow in this condition, with the effect of rapidly drying the udder. But it is a dangerous thing, and one to be avoided, to leave any considerable quantity of milk in a cow's udder at this time.

—Don't spare the butcher and fee the doctor.

A Dangerous Prescription.

"Here's a prescription to be filled," said a lady to Doctor Caldwell at the drug store of the latter in Cleveland this evening. "Can I have it filled at once?"

"Certainly," said the Doctor. "What is it for?"

"It is for a horse," said the lady.

The prescription called for nitric acid, mercury and turpentine. Doctor Caldwell looked at it a moment, and, without recalling the circumstance that the ingredients formed an explosive mixture, proceeded to put up the prescription. He put the mercury into a bottle and then poured in the turpentine. He then poured in the nitric acid from a jar. A tremendous explosion took place, shattering the bottle to atoms, and throwing the pieces of glass and burning acid into the Doctor's face. The Doctor was knocked down by the shock and terribly hurt. Some gentlemen came in and found him putting sweet oil on his face. It was badly burned by the acid, and his eyes were injured so that he could hardly see. He was taken home. It is a serious question whether he does not lose the sight of one, if not both of his eyes. The strange part of the occurrence is that neither the woman nor the prescription could be found after the explosion. The woman, accompanied by a man and a boy, drove hurriedly away from the store after the explosion.—Chicago Tribune.

Chickory Farming.

Chickory farming promises to be one of the coming industries of California farming. Chicory was first planted in the State about fifteen years ago, but since that time it has been extensively raised on the San Joaquin and Sacramento Rivers. Chicory is cultivated on a small scale in some of the Eastern States, and in some places in that section grows wild in abandoned fields and orchards. It grows very luxuriantly on the bottom lands of Louisiana and Texas. The root of the plant, when being prepared for use, is cut by a machine, into small square blocks, then placed in the sun to dry, afterward roasted, and finally ground in a mill. Chicory possesses few elements in common with coffee; and yet it imparts a taste to it greatly fancied by certain coffee drinkers in Europe. In France and Belgium, the common people have been so accustomed to mix chicory with the coffee they drink that they prefer it, so prepared, to the beverage in its pure state. Travelers in those countries, even when they purchase pure coffee for their private consumption, find that the cooks will mix chicory with it, even after having received strict orders to the contrary.—San Francisco Chronicle.

Noah's Ark.

The London Daily News gives another version of the story of finding Noah's ark on Mount Ararat. Many years ago, a Mr. Garvy, then in the employ of the Russian Government, ascended the summit of the mount and remained some days on a visit at a monastery which was then there. The monks stated to him that the roof of the apartment assigned to him and some others was composed of the ribs of the ark. Mr. Garvy said that he examined the structure very closely, and that it bore all the appearance of the roof being supported by the ribs of a vessel, and the wood appeared very old. He also said that a few years after his visit the monastery was destroyed by an earthquake, and that he had never heard what became of the alleged ribs of the ark. Mr. Garvy in making his report afterward, expressed the opinion that the monks, having got the story from their predecessors, were honest in telling it.

—A young couple from St. Louis, who have evidently been feasting on yellow-covered literature, got married in the surf at Ocean City, N. J., the other day. They marched into the sea together, standing in water to the depth of the bride's shoulders. The bathers had withdrawn, and the bridal party had the beach to themselves. A few friends stood at the edge of the white sand, when the clergyman stepped in and did his best to tie the knot in Jack Tar style. The sky was bright, the breeze was grateful, and the waves were just frisky enough to lend zest to the occasion. Indeed, one bouncing billow gave the bride a complete ducking.—Chicago Times.

—The pall-bearers for the funeral of Mr. Hugh J. Hastings were a notable list and in this connection an interesting fact may be mentioned. A number of years ago Mr. Hastings and Mr. William G. Weed each made up a list of those whom he would choose to act as his pall-bearers. Of all those selected by Mr. Hastings, only Mr. Weed is alive to-day.—Albany (N. Y.) Times.

—At a reception tendered General Sherman in San Francisco the other day, he said in his bluff way that when he first knew the city it was the most forbidding, God-forsaken place between Cape Horn and the North Pole, and that he would not have given twenty-five cents for the whole place, or the inhabitants either.

—The telephone is as common in India as in New England.

THE MARKETS.

CINCINNATI, October 5, 1883.

LIVESTOCK—Cattle—common	$1 75	@	2 75
Choice butchers	4 00	@	4 75
HOGS—Common	4 00	@	4 50
Good packers	4 50	@	4 90
SHEEP	3 75	@	4 50
FLOUR—Family	5 25	@	6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—Long berry red	1 08¼	@
No. 2 red	1 05	@	1 06
Corn—No. 2 mixed	51¼	@
Oats—No. 2 mixed	30	@
Rye—No. 2	57¼	@
HAY—Timothy No. 1	10 50	@	11 00
HEMP—Double dressed	8½	@
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	11 50	@	11 62½
Lard—Current make	7⅝	@
BUTTER—Fancy Dairy	17	@	18
Prime Creamery	20	@	23
FRUIT AND VEGETABLES—
Potatoes per bar. from store	1 25	@	1 30
Apples, prime, per barrel	2 50	@	3 00
NEW YORK.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 25	@	3 85
Good to choice	4 40	@	7 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 spring	1 06¾	@
No. 2 red	1 11½	@	1 12¼
Corn—No. 2 mixed—new	60⅜	@	60¾
Oats—mixed	33¼	@	36
PORK—Mess	13 50	@	13 75
CHICAGO.
FLOUR—State and Western	$3 50	@	4 25
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 02¼	@
Corn—No. 2	47¾	@
Oats—No. 2	27½	@
Rye	55¼	@
PORK—Mess	10 50	@	10 60
LARD Steam	7 85	@
BALTIMORE.
FLOUR—Family	$5 25	@	6 00
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red	1 08	@	1 08¼
Corn—mixed	59	@	59¼
Oats—mixed	34	@	35
PROVISIONS—Pork—Mess	14 50	@
Lard—Refined	10¼	@
LOUISVILLE.
FLOUR—A No. 1	$5 00	@	5 50
GRAIN—Wheat—No. 2 red, new	1 00	@	1 02
Corn—mixed	49	@
Oats—mixed	30	@	31
PORK—MESS	12 00	@
INDIANAPOLIS.
WHEAT—No. 2 red, new	$1 03¼	@
CORN—mixed	47¼	@
OATS—mixed	27½	@
LIVE STOCK—Cattle—
Butchers' stock	2 75	@
Shipping cattle	5 25	@

An Indianapolis baby was bitten,
In teasing a pet Maltese kitten,
Before a day ended,
St. Jacobs Oil mended,
And with it mothers are smitten.

A hunter who lives at Bear Run,
Hurt his arm by the kick of a gun,
The hunt it did spoil,
But St. Jacobs Oil
Cured him before swelling begun.

A MISER is often surprised at close "quarters."—N. Y. News.

Young, middle-aged, or old men, suffering from nervous debility or kindred affections, should address, with two stamps, for large treatise, WORLD'S DISPENSARY MEDICAL ASSOCIATION, Buffalo, N. Y.

IS A lost girl a Maid of the Mist?—N. Y. Graphic.

THE only scientific Iron Medicine that does not produce headache, &c., but gives to the system all the benefits of iron without its bad effects, is Brown's Iron Bitters.

AFTER a bill is settled you can enjoy the rest that follows pavin'.—N. Y. Journal.

Greatest Discovery Since 1492.

For coughs, colds, sore throat, bronchitis, laryngitis, and consumption in its early stages, nothing equals Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery." It is also a great blood-purifier and strength-restorer or tonic, and for liver complaint and costive conditions of the bowels it has no equal. Sold by druggists.

BILLIARD playing is a sort of green baize ball game.—N. O. Picayune.

I HAVE BEEN very much benefited by a 50-cent bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. When I began using it my Catarrh was so bad I had headache the whole time and discharged a large amount of filthy matter. That has almost entirely disappeared and I have not had headache since to amount to any thing. Please send me two more bottles. JOHN H. SUMMERS, Stepney, Conn.

ANGER is a passion which may be red in the face.—Burlington Free Press.

What's Saved is Gained.

Workingmen will economize by employing Dr. Pierce's Medicines. His "Pleasant Purgative Pellets" and "Golden Medical Discovery" cleanse the blood and system, thus preventing fevers and other serious diseases, and curing all scrofulous and other humors. Sold by druggists.

THE mosquito's auger is an appropriation bill.—N. Y. News.

FRONT ROYAL, VA.—Dr. G. H. Hill says: "Brown's Iron Bitters seems to give general satisfaction. I recommend it strongly."

A SHERRY cobbler will never mend your old shoes.—N. Y. Independent.

OTTAWA, ILL.—Dr. T. A. Smurr says: "Brown's Iron Bitters give entire satisfaction."

THE women who do fancy work don't fancy work.

I HAVE known and watched the use of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) for over fifty years, and never have known or heard of its failure to cure any case of Blood Poison when properly taken.

H. L. DENNARD, Perry, Ga.

Walnut Leaf Hair Restorer

Is entirely different from all others. It is as clear as water, and, as its name indicates, is a perfect Vegetable Hair Restorer. It will immediately free the head from dandruff, restore gray hair to its natural color, and produce a new growth where it has fallen off. It does not in any manner affect the health, which Sulphur, Sugar of Lead and Nitrate of Silver preparations have done. It will change light or faded hair in a few days to a beautiful glossy brown. Ask your druggist for it. Each bottle is warranted. JOHN D. PARK & SONS, Wholesale Agents, Cincinnati, Ohio, and C. N. CRITTENTON, New York.

I HAVE been using Swift's Specific (SSS) and find it to be the best remedy of the kind that I have ever been able to get, and I have tried them all.

JOHN TISCHER, 3d U. S. Cavalry.

THE HIGHEST AUTHORITY.

Upon a Subject of Vital Interest, Affecting the Welfare of All.

The following remarkable letter from one of the leading and best known scientific writers of the present day is especially significant, and should be of unusual value to all readers who desire to keep pace with the march of modern discoveries and events:

"A general demand for reformation is one of the most distinctive characteristics of the nineteenth century. The common people, as well as the more enlightened and refined, cry out with no uncertain voice to be emancipated from the slavery of conservatism and superstition which has held the masses in gross ignorance during a large portion of the world's history, and in the time of the Dark Ages' came near obliterating the last glimmer of truth. Dogmatic assertions and blind empiricism are losing caste among all classes of all countries. People are beginning to think for themselves, and to regard authority much less than argument. Men and women are no longer willing that a few individuals should dictate to them what must be their sentiments and opinions. They claim the right to solve for themselves the great questions of the day and demand that the general good of humanity shall be respected. As the result of this general awakening, we see, on every hand, unmistakable evidences of reformatory action. People who, a few years ago, endured suffering the most intense in the name of duty, now realize the utter foolishness of such a course. Men who were under the bondage of bigoted advisers allowed their health to depart; suffered their constitutions to become undermined and finally died as martyrs to a false system of treatment. There are millions of people filling untimely graves who might have lived to a green old age had their original troubles been taken in time or properly treated. There are thousands of people to-day, thoughtlessly enduring the first symptoms of some serious malady and without the slightest realization of the danger that is before them. They have occasional headaches; a lack of appetite one day and a ravenous one the next, or an unaccountable feeling of weariness, sometimes accompanied by nausea, and attribute all these troubles to the old idea of 'a slight cold' or malaria. It is high time that people awoke to a knowledge of the seriousness of these matters and emancipated themselves from the professional bigotry which controls them. When this is done and when all classes of physicians become liberal enough to exclude all dogmas, save that it is their duty to cure disease as quickly and as safely as possible; to maintain no other position than that of truth honestly ascertained, and to indorse and recommend any remedy that has been found useful, no matter what its origin, there will be no more quarreling among the doctors, while there will be great rejoicing throughout the world.

"I am well aware of the censure that will be meted out to me for writing this letter but I feel that I can not be true to my honest convictions unless I extend a helping hand and indorse all that I know to be good. The extended publications for the past few years, and graphic descriptions of different diseases of the kidneys and liver have awakened the medical profession to the fact that these diseases are greatly increasing. The treatment of the doctors has been largely experimental and many of their patients have died while they were casting about for a remedy to cure them.

"It is now over two years since my attention was first called to the use of a most wonderful preparation in the treatment of Bright's disease of the kidneys. Patients had frequently asked me about the remedy and I had heard of remarkable cures effected by it, but like many others I hesitated to recommend its use. A personal friend of mine had been in poor health for some time and his application for insurance on his life had been rejected on account of Bright's disease. Chemical and microscopical examinations of his urine revealed the presence of large quantities of albumen and granular tube casts, which confirmed the correctness of the diagnosis. After trying all the usual remedies, I directed him to use this preparation and was greatly surprised to observe a decided improvement within a month, and within four months no tube casts could be discovered. At that time there was present only a trace of albumen, and he felt, as he expressed it, 'perfectly well,' and all through the influence of Warner's Safe Cure, the remedy he used.

"After this I prescribed this medicine in full doses in both acute and chronic nephritis, [Bright's disease] and with the most satisfactory results. My observations were neither small in number nor hastily made. They extended over several months and embraced a large number of cases which have proved so satisfactory to my mind, that I would earnestly urge upon my professional brethren the importance of giving a fair and patient trial to Warner's Safe Cure. In a large class of ailments where the blood is obviously in an unhealthy state, especially where glandular engorgements and inflammatory eruptions exist, indeed in many of those forms of chronic indisposition in which there is no evidence of organic mischief, but where the general health is depleted, the face sallow, the urine colored, constituting the condition in which the patient is said to be 'bilious,' the advantage gained by the use of this remedy is remarkable. In Bright's disease it seems to act as a solvent of albumen; to soothe and heal the inflamed membranes; to wash out the epithelial debris which blocks up the tubuli uriniferi, and to prevent a destructive metamorphosis of tissue.

"Belonging as I do to a branch of the profession that believes that no one school of medicine knows all the truth regarding the treatment of disease, and being independent enough to select any remedy that will relieve my patients, without reference to the source from whence it comes, I am glad to acknowledge and commend the merits of this remedy thus frankly.

"Respectfully yours,
"R. A. GUNN, M. D.

"Dean and Professor of Surgery, United States Medical College of New York; Editor of Medical Tribune; Author of Gunn's New and Improved Hand-Book of Hygiene and Domestic Medicine, etc."

Glenn's Sulphur Soap

Issued by ladies who possess the finest complexion. Hill's Hair Dye, black or brown, 50c.

LYON'S Heel Stiffeners keep new boots and shoes straight. By shoe and hardware dealers.

St. Jacobs Oil

THE GREAT GERMAN REMEDY

For Pain!

Relieves and cures

RHEUMATISM,
Neuralgia,
SCIATICA, LUMBAGO,
BACKACHE,
Headache, Toothache,
SORE THROAT,
QUINSY, SWELLINGS,
SPRAINS,
Soreness, Cuts, Bruises,
FROSTBITES,
BURNS, SCALDS,
And all other bodily aches and pains.

FIFTY CENTS A BOTTLE.

Sold by all Druggists and Dealers. Directions in 11 languages.

The Charles A. Vogeler Co.
(Successors to A. VOGELER & CO.)
Baltimore, Md., U.S.A.

HOSTETTER'S CELEBRATED STOMACH BITTERS

In chronic dyspepsia and liver complaint, and in chronic constipation and other obstinate diseases Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is beyond all comparison the best remedy that can be taken. As a means of restoring the strength and vital energy of persons who are sinking under the debilitating effects of painful disorders, this standard vegetable invigorant is confessedly unequaled. For sale by all Druggists and Dealers generally.

CATARRH ELY'S CREAM BALM

when applied by the finger into the nostrils, will be absorbed, effectually cleansing the head of catarrhal virus, causing healthy secretions. It allays inflammation, protects the membrane of the nasal passages from additional colds, completely heals the sores and restores taste and smell. A few applications relieve. A thorough treatment will positively cure. Agreeable to use.

HAY-FEVER

Send for circular. Price 50 cents by mail or at druggists. Ely Brothers, Druggists, Owego, N.Y.

CANCER AND TUMORS Treated scientifically and cured without the knife. Book on treatment sent free. Drs. Gratigny & Norris 204 W. 4th St., Cincinnati, O.

Texas Send at once for Maps, Pamphlets, Land-folders, etc., describing the marvelous growth and wonderful resources of The Great South-west. Address N. B. WARWICK, 131 Vine Street, Cincinnati, O.

WANTED—Agents for an article in general use; $3 to $5 per day made easy; send for sample and circular. Address J. F. DAVIS, Fall River, Mass.

FREE By return mail. Full Description Moody's New Tailor System of Dress Cutting. MOODY & CO., Cincinnati, O.

$250 A MONTH. Agents Wanted. 90 best selling articles in the world. 1 sample FREE. Address JAY BRONSON, Detroit, Mich.

AGENTS WANTED. Fastest selling books. Largest profits to canvassers. Circulars free. COBURN & NEWMAN, Publish'g Co., Chicago.

A YOUNG MAN'S CASE.

MR. F. S. HODGKIN, Jr., of No. 147 Park street, Lewiston, Me., relates the following personal narrative, May 14, 1883: "About fifteen months since I had a severe attack of typhoid fever, was very lame, and confined to my bed for eleven weeks, and when the fever left me I was in a very debilitated condition. My back and loins seemed to have no strength, and I had no vitality or appetite. I tried various kinds of medicine recommended by my friends, but found they did not improve my condition. I was induced to try Hunt's Remedy, which has been used with such great success here in Lewiston that it has a very enviable reputation of being a most reliable medicine. I purchased one bottle, and can date my improved health from the time I commenced using it, and my progress continued very rapidly; I gained in strength, and experienced less pain in my back, my appetite increased, and after using three (3) bottles my pains were all gone, and my health entirely restored, and I can most heartily recommend Hunt's Remedy to any who may need a true remedy for debility, kidney or urinary troubles."

A GOOD MECHANIC.

MR. L. J. JONES, of No. 10 Charles street, Portland, Me., writes us these convincing facts, May 11, 1883: "I have for several years been troubled with liver complaint and indigestion, and have suffered at times terrible distress, and have tried many different cures, so called, that have been recommended from time to time. I one day noticed in one of our papers the testimonial of a person that had used Hunt's Remedy and been cured of diseases similar to mine. I purchased a bottle of one of our drug stores in Portland, and before I had used the first bottle found that I was improving beyond my expectation; have used in all six bottles, and I have no trouble from indigestion, no distress or pain in back as I formerly had; and since I have been cured my wife has used it for kidney trouble, and it has cured her. We can truly say that Hunt's Remedy is a blessing to any that are troubled with kidney or liver diseases, or indigestion. We gladly recommend it to our friends or to any sufferers from liver or kidney diseases, and you can use this letter as you may [illegible]

S.S.S. TRADE MARK

I was suffering from Blood Poison and Mercurial Rheumatism, and had spent $40 for treatment with no benefit, and it seemed that I was doomed to die. Caught at Swift's Specific as a drowning man would at a straw, and it has saved me from a horrible death, and cured me sound and well. It is the greatest medicine in the world. C. H. SMILEY, Quincy, Ill.

HEREDITARY.—Swift's Specific cured me sound and well of a Scrofulous taint inherited from my ancestors. J. A. MAY, Macon, Ga.

I am sure that Swift's Specific saved my life. I was terribly poisoned with Malaria, and was given up to die. Swift's Specific relieved me promptly and entirely. I think it is the greatest medicine of the age. C. G. SPENCER, Supt Gas Works, Rome, Ga.

$1,000 REWARD will be paid to any chemist who will find, on analysis of 100 bottles of S. S. S., one particle of mercury, Iodide potassium, or any poisonous substance.

SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Drawer 3, Atlanta, Ga.

Our treatise on Blood and Skin Diseases mailed free to applicants.

Mason & Hamlin Organs.

New Illustrated Catalogue, (40 pp. 4to) for season of 1883-4, including many new styles; best assortment of the best and most attractive organs we have ever offered, and at lowest prices, $22 to $600, for cash, easy payments or rented. Sent free.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGAN & PIANO CO.

Boston, 154 Tremont St.; New York, 46 East 14th St.; Chicago, 149 Wabash Ave.

ST. PATRICK'S SALVE

TRY IT USE IT

It relieves at once Burns, Piles, Chapped Hands or Lips, Corns, Bunions, Scalds, Bruises, Soreness of feet, hands, eyes, etc.; Itching from any cause. 25c. Ask your druggist, or send to 93 Fulton Street, N. Y.

CHICAGO SCALE CO.

2 TON WAGON SCALE, $40. 3 TON, $50.
4 Ton $60, Beam Box Included.
240 lb. FARMER'S SCALE, $5.
The "Little Detective," ¼ oz. to 25 lb. $3.
300 OTHER SIZES. Reduced PRICE LIST FREE.

FORGES, TOOLS, &c.

BEST FORGE MADE FOR LIGHT WORK, $10.
40 lb. Anvil and Kit of Tools, $10.
Farmers save time and money doing odd jobs.
Blowers, Anvils, Vices & Other Articles
AT LOWEST PRICES, WHOLESALE & RETAIL.

PORTABLE & STATIONARY

Steam Engines

and STEAM BOILERS, smaller sizes adapted to

Farm and Plantation Use!

$200 We make six sizes, capacity from 3 to 50,000 ft. per day with one saw. [illegible] Saw Mill. LANE BODLEY CO., John & Water Sts., Cincinnati, Ohio. [illegible]

"THE BEST IS THE CHEAPEST."

SAW MILLS, ENGINES THRESHERS, HORSE POWERS,

For all sections and purposes.) Write for Free Pamphlet and Prices to The Aultman & Taylor Co., Mansfield, Ohio.

Lady Agents can secure permanent employment and good salary selling Queen City Skirt and Stocking Supporters, etc. Sample outfit Free. Address Queen City Suspender Co., Cincinnati, O.

WAHOO, An old Indian Remedy. A certain cure for Dyspepsia, Liver Complaint and General Debility. One trial will convince the most skeptical of its merits. Package 50c each, postage paid. GEO. W. DOUGLASS, 169 Gates Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

AGENTS make money selling our Family Medicines. No capital required. STANDARD CURE Co., 197 Pearl St., New York.

HAIR Wigs & Waves sent C.O.D. anywhere. Wholesale & Retail. Price-list free. Goods guaranteed. B.C. STREHL, 157 Wabash-av., Chicago.

$5 to $20 per day at home. Samples worth $5 free. Address STINSON & Co., Portland, Me.

COLEMAN BUSINESS COLLEGE, Newark, N. J. Terms $40. Positions for graduates, write for circular.

$66 A WEEK in your own town. Terms and $5 outfit free. Addr's H. Hallett & Co., Portland, Me.

PARSONS' PURGATIVE MAKE NEW RICH BLOOD PILLS

And will completely change the blood in the entire system in three months. Any person who will take ONE PILL EACH NIGHT FROM ONE TO TWELVE WEEKS, may be restored to sound health, if such a thing be possible. For curing Female Complaints these Pills have no equal. Physicians use them in their practice. Sold everywhere, or sent by mail for 25 cents in stamps. Send for pamphlet. I. S. JOHNSON & CO., Boston, Mass.

THE MINISTER WHO FAILS to interest his congregation and build up his church is generally accused of being a poor preacher, or of not studying hard enough. That is not always where the trouble comes from. Dyspepsia and liver disorders are responsible for many a dull sermon and many a vacant pulpit. When the Dominie's digestive apparatus is working wrong and his nerves are giving him pain, and his brain refuses to do its duty, it is almost impossible to make or to preach a good sermon. Give your suffering minister a bottle of Brown's Iron Bitters. You will see its effect on next Sunday's preaching. The Rev. Mr. Zehring, of Codorus, Pa., was paralyzed, and could not walk except with crutches, until Brown's Iron Bitters made a new man of him. The Rev. Mr. White, of Rock Hill, S. C., says: "It restored me to strength and vigor." Brown's Iron Bitters is not only for the minister, but for all people.

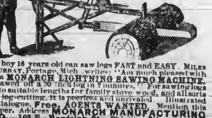
5

If you are Interested

In the inquiry—Which is the best Liniment for Man and Beast?—this is the answer, attested by two generations: the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT. The reason is simple. It penetrates every sore, wound, or lameness, to the very bone, and drives out all inflammatory and morbid matter. It "goes to the root" of the trouble, and never fails to cure in double quick time.

Sawing Made Easy

Monarch Lightning Sawing Machine!



Sent on 30 Days Test Trial.
A Great Saving of Labor & Money,

A boy 16 years old can saw logs FAST and EASY. MILES MURRAY, Portage, Mich., writes: "Am much pleased with the MONARCH LIGHTNING SAWING MACHINE. I sawed off a 30 inch log in 2 minutes." For sawing logs into suitable lengths for family stove wood, and all sorts of log-cutting, it is peerless and unrivaled. Illustrated Catalogue, Free. AGENTS WANTED. Mention this paper. Address MONARCH MANUFACTURING CO., 163 E. Randolph St., Chicago, Ill.

PILES "Anakesis" gives instant relief, and is an infallible cure for Piles. Price $1 from druggists, or sent prepaid by mail. Samples free. Ad. "ANAKESIS," Makers, Box 2416, New York.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION. 25 100

$72 A WEEK. $12 a day at home easily made. Costly outfit free. Address True & Co. Augusta, Me.

A. N. K.—E. 910

PATENTS NO PATENT, NO PAY! R. S. & A. P. LACEY, Patent Attorneys, Washington, D. C. Full instructions and Hand-Book of Patents sent free.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOLUME VIII. BURLINGTON, KY., WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1883. NUMBER 51.

MILLIONAIRE AND BAREFOOT BOY.

'Tis evening, and the round red sun sinks slowly in the west,
The flowers fold their petals up, the birds fly to the nest,
The crickets chirrup in the grass, the bats flit to and fro,
And tinkle-tankle up the lane the lowing cattle go;
And the rich man from his carriage looks on them as they come—
On them and on the Barefoot Boy that drives the cattle home.

"I wish," the boy says to himself—"I wish that I were he.
And yet, upon maturer thought, I do not—no sirree!
Not for all the gold his coffers hold would I be that duffer there,
With a liver-pad and a gouty toe, and scarce a single hair;
To have a wife with a Roman nose, and fear lest a panic come—
Far better be the Barefoot Boy that drives the cattle home."

And the rich man murmurs to himself; "Would I give all my pelf
To change my lot with yonder boy? Not if I know myself.
Over the grass that's full of ants and chill with dew to go,
With a stone bruise upon either heel and a splinter in my toe!
Oh, I'd rather sail my yacht a year across the ocean's foam
Than be one day the Barefoot Boy that drives the cattle home."

Harper's Magazine.

JENNY OF CORNWALL.

"My half day's work is done,
And this is all my part,
I give a patient God
My patient heart.

"And grasp His banner still,
Though all the blue be dim;
For stripes no less than stars
Lead after Him."

Down among the rocks and sunken reefs of the coast of Cornwall stands a light-house. And its revolving light, as it turns slowly, shows first the terrible waters that lightly cover the dangerous rocks and many half-forgotten graves, and then shows a grand gray castle, that stands securely on the crags, and lifts a weatherbeaten front to sun and storm.

There is a story that connects those two—the light-house and the castle. A story that is very sad, as the stories of many lives would be if they were written.

Twenty-five years ago the heir to Melford Manor was a little, sturdy, straight-limbed boy of five; a child who was always restless, always in mischief. One moment he would be chasing the chickens in the farm-yard, and the next trying experiments on his little brothers under nurse's dignified eyes. When the baby cried, Master Philip was always ordered off in disgrace, to take a prim walk with Jenny. That was always the end of it—Jenny and peace, Jenny and happiness.

But as it is Jenny's story I am going to tell you, let me describe her to you as she stood, one sunny afternoon in March, hand in hand with Philip Wynne down among the Melford rocks. To begin with, she is a nursery-maid, a little girl whom Lady Wynne had chosen out of the village school for her good behavior, and also perhaps for that strange, sad, far away look in her eyes. She was young—"just on fifteen," as she said herself—but she had a way with children that a whole lifetime could not have taught her. She had motherly instincts that were deep-rooted in her heart, and it gave a charm to her in the eyes of children that older people might have overlooked. All children loved her. In that great airy nursery there was a paradise to her. A paradise of little folks, who clustered around her.

"The children want me," she would say, and her whole sad face would change and brighten as she rose to meet them.

So on that March afternoon—a bright, warm day after a week of cold, blustering winds—she took little Philip by the hand and went down among the rocks.

"It is hot!" said Philip, balancing himself on a slippery seaweed. "I can't jump any more. May we get out into the boat, Jenny?"

"Surely," said Jenny. "You're well wrapped, and it's warm."

The boat was some fishermen's boat, tied loosely to a stake, and was bobbing safely afloat on the rising tide. They went down together to the water's edge, and Philip's shrill laugh rang out joyfully as he tumbled into the boat and seized an oar. Jenny came last, pausing for a moment to read the painted name outside, "The Swallow—John Smith."

"Now lie still, Master Philip," she said, "shut your eyes and listen."

The sun was very hot, and the little boat rose and fell monotonously on the sweeping waves. Philip shut his eyes, so that the flickering light upon the water might not dazzle them. Jenny sang softly to herself long after he had fallen asleep, with his chubby face hidden on her knee and his hair limp with the sea air. Then Jenny began to find the sunlight made her eyes ache, too, and the water made her giddy, and she too shut her eyes and laid her head upon the gunwale. When she awoke there was a high wind, and it was growing cold and she was shivering. It was quite light still, but a heavy sea-fog had crept upon them unawares, and everything was gray and misty about them. A little frightened at the sudden stillness, she crept across the sleeping child and found the rope. The boat half turned and then rocked aimlessly from side to side. She drew the rope inch by inch, into the seat beside her, and looked at it with a kind of stupid wonder, too frightened to realize that they two were out alone on the wide waters and the fog was dense about them.

Little Philip lay fast asleep in the bottom of the boat, and though she shouted till she was hoarse, he never stirred. Then when the silence had grown terrible she crouched down beside him and laid her cheek to his. Her heart was beating wildly, but the breathing fell with soft regularity through his baby lips, and it seemed to quiet her to feel his mute companionship. It had grown almost dark when he woke at last querulous and cold.

"We are out in the boat," she told him cheerily; "and the fog makes it dark. But I have some biscuits in my pocket, and we will make believe we're eating supper. We can have our real tea when we get home."

She laid the biscuits on the seat and chattered on while he ate them gladly, until she had made him laugh. Then she drew him up on her knee and sang him songs and hymns, until he fell again into a heavy sleep. It was now quite dark.

"It is night," she said aloud. "And the children will be wanting me."

Little Philip slept as calmly as in his own little bed at home, but Jenny was cold and restless. She sat up in the darkness, after a while, and clasped her hands about her knees to think. She could not see that gray mist any longer, but she felt its chill breath all about her. It seemed like some thin veil that hung between her and the familiar places—a veil behind which the sun had set as usual, and would rise again to-morrow. She was very hungry, but she left the biscuits for little Philip. She was very tired, but too cold to sleep. She could not even think at last, but lay down in the bottom of the boat, half delirious, saying over to herself, softly, aloud:

"The children are calling me, but it is too early yet—too early—and so very cold!"

She never knew when the day broke, for the fog still enveloped them; but the mysterious veil grew lighter, and little Philip woke. Jenny dragged herself into a sitting posture, and gave him the two biscuits, turning her eyes away, so that he might not see their hungry longing. He was as warm and happy as possible after his long night's rest, but Jenny was too cramped and wearied to move much. Her very lips refused to open when she first tried, and when words came they fell feebly from her. But by and by, when the child grew fretful, she had strength left to gather him up into her weary arms, and whisper softly to him until he grew content again.

"Sing, Jenny!" he cried, imperiously.

She turned her eyes vacantly upon him and tried to speak, but she was shivering in the bitter wind, and numb, and no words came. Then she tried to smile, but it seemed as if she had forgotten how. Slowly, one by one, the tears rolled down her cheeks, because, for the first time, this child had wanted her, and she was too weak to answer. Philip thought she was asleep—so fast asleep that he could not awaken her. And then, in a moment, the mist rolled away, and the sunlight flickered upon the waters just as it had done the day before. And they were quite close to land—so close that John Smith, who was rowing along the shore, searching for the Swallow, came out to them with a few quick strokes of his oars. Men had been searching for the missing ones all night, and John Smith's lusty shouts brought them together very swiftly, but they ceased shouting when they stood with little Philip, looking at that still form that the Swallow had brought home. Sir Philip, pale and anxious, came down to the shore, and it was he who took Jenny out and laid her on the sand, covering her with his coat, and forcing brandy between her lips.

"The lassie's deid," the neighbors said solemnly to one another.

But Sir Philip knew better.

"She is not dead," he said. "I will carry her to the house myself—but she is overcome by the cold."

He knew the whole story instinctively when he looked from his little son's flushed face to the still fair whiteness of Jenny's sharpened features. For the moment he was almost tempted to think, with these rough fishermen, that the unspoken question of Jenny's sad eyes had been answered at last. But she awoke at last—delirious.

For seven days she hovered between life and death; but even in delirium her love for little children was strangely visible. Hour after hour Lady Wynne sat patiently beside the bed on which the long straight form left so slight an impression. Sometimes she held the restless brown hands; sometimes she sang nursery rhymes softly. But Jenny never knew her. She would push her hands away, and murmur softly to herself about the waters, and the boat, and the rocks, and the terrible biting wind. But at last the delirium wore itself out, and the great sad eyes looked quietly out from beneath the short tangled locks. Jenny was hardly sensible even now, but she was violent no longer.

"The Swallow will get home soon," she said. "I am cold and tired—tired."

Presently the baby cried in the inner room, and the sound roused her. So they hushed him to sleep and Lady Wynne brought him in herself and laid his little round head close to Jenny's shoulder. She wrapped her arms tenderly about him and laid her cheek to his, and then there was silence in the room for a long time.

"She is sleeping," Lady Wynne said to the Doctor. But the Doctor shook his head.

"It is mere exhaustion, not sleep," he said. "It is possible we may never rouse her again."

So Lady Wynne sat down beside the bed once more and took the baby on her own knee. And she watched, with tears in her eyes, the little life that had been sacrificed to Philip slowly flickering out. By-and-by the children came in from their walk and pattered by the door on tiptoe on their way to the day nursery.

Jenny opened her eyes feebly and her face flushed.

"Let me go!" she cried, stretching out both her arms. "The children want me!"

She threw the coverings aside and tried to rise, but Lady Wynne held her gently back. She struggled feebly for a minute and then lay still—so still that her quick, uneven breathing seemed to fill the room. Then once again her eyes opened—sad no longer, but unutterably happy.

"Don't let the children forget me," she said.

The desire was fulfilled at last. The other life had opened out before her. She had gone where the children "wanted her."

They built a light-house out among the rocks and wrote Jenny's name upon the corner-stone—not because they feared they would forget her, but because her undying memory was as a light to Philip Wynne, far above the storms and tempests of this work-a-day world.—Geraldine Butt, in Youth's Companion.

—A test case brought in New York ended in a decision that the baking of bread upon the Sabbath is unlawful.—N. Y. Tribune.

THE DAIRY.

—The Breeder's Gazette insists that the material going into the manufacture of skim cheese is worth two or three times as much to feed to calves or pigs.

—Soiling cows is again becoming a large item in the agricultural papers. Whether it will ever pay or not in this country is an open question. Many men claim to have done it, and probably they have in a small way, but we know of no community of dairymen who have abandoned the pasture practice for it, even in the face of the enormous profits that some writers are able to figure out in its favor. We never could see how cows could be induced to eat enough of the rank feed to make the extra labor pay, but the way to prove it is to try it.—Exchange.

—Here is a straw that shows which way the wind is blowing: "One of the wonders of the Iowa State Fair last week was the production each day of about fifty pounds of butter from milk furnished by cows on the ground. The milk fresh from the cows was put into the centrifugal milk separator, the cream spun from the milk, and from thence put into a churn and quickly reduced to butter." It is our candid belief that this method of separating the cream from the milk will very soon supersede all other methods. The number of these separators now being purchased by the owners of herds of dairy cows is quite amazing, judging from our own individual knowledge of late purchases. Since these machines have been reduced in size to the working of less than a single horse power, there is no reason why any dairyman with twenty cows or more should be without them.—The Dairy.

Old Butter.

It is a live question, just at this time, what success the holders of summer-made butter will meet in disposing of their stock. At present the demand is almost entirely for fresh made goods, and mostly of the kind known among the trade in this city as "extra creameries," extra firsts selling better as a rule than any dairy makes. Owing to the scarcity of these grades, a little of the best grades of butter which has been held for a short time has found purchasers; but the majority of that sold was for speculative purposes. The sales of such held stock may continue for a short time, when the cooler weather will bring a large amount of butterine on the market, which will sell at much lower prices than holders are willing to take for their held dairy and creamery butter, and the result will be that the butterine, being of fine quality and fresh made, will sell in preference to any old butter.

It may not be well known, except among the sellers of butter, but it is nevertheless a fact, that butterine was sold in this city last winter so fine that many consumers could not tell it from creamery butter. Consequently, we may expect a very lively competition between the makers of fine butterine and the holders of old butter during the present fall and winter. That an increased amount of butterine will be made and sold there is no doubt; and that it will take the place of any old-flavored butter that may be sent here to sell, whether dairy or creamery, is beyond question.

Consumers of butter have now become so much opposed to anything not fresh-flavored that they will use largely of a product that is always fresh, though it may not always have the fine, delicate flavors of fresh-made butter. "But," say you, "this is talking up adulterated butter." No; on the contrary, we are merely stating the fact, as all dealers in the commodity well know.

When a man manufactures an article for any particular market it would be common sense to expect him to produce goods which he is sure will find favor in that market. When he goes contrary to this plain business rule he must expect, and surely deserves, failure. So, too, with this question: The amount of butter held this year is probably as large, or larger than ever before, and with the experience of last winter to base a judgement on, very little old butter can be sold at a profit, as it does not suit the consumers, and holders are very likely to fail to see as many dollars for their goods as they invested in them. That the surplus will sell at some price at some time before another season opens there is no doubt. But that butter, held after the first of October (summer-made), will sell for as much as it cost, there is serious reason to doubt. Old-flavored butter will not now, or at any time in the future, be wanted by the great centers of trade distribution, and the quality that always suits, always pleases the market, and is most likely to produce a profit to the maker, is fresh-made extra creamery butter.—American Dairyman.

Old Cows.

What shall be done with the old cows? Years ago the farmers used to feed up an old cow, and fatten her on turnips and corn meal, and the beef we used to get in those days was as much better than what we buy from the butcher now as "gilt-edge" is better than Chicago lard. Now we are getting so "uppish" that if the butcher's cart does not come around three times a week, we think things are going crooked, and the old cows are kept along, feeding and milking at a loss, until they can be worked off to some peddler. No cow should be kept in a dairy after she's seven or eight years old, unless she is a good one, and her calves are good too. At that age a cow is just past her prime, and there are fools enough who will pay a good price for such cows rather than rear their own. And a farmer may turn off some excellent beef from a good Ayshire, Dutch, Devon or Durham grade, or any fair kind of a native cow, when she is retired from dairy work at eight years old.—The Dairy.

—Crenshaw, a colored preacher in Trousdale County, Tenn., made a boastful and slanderous remark concerning a beautiful young white girl, and a mob lynched him. While he was kicking in mid-air a Sheriff's posse arrived and cut him down.—Chicago Herald.

On a Man of War.

During peace activity on board a naval vessel begins at dawn of day The boatswain blows his whistle at daylight and cries: "All hands up all hammocks." Within five minutes the sailors may be seen piling up on deck, each with his hammock neatly rolled and lashed, handing it to the stower in the "netting," the long box-like receptacle along the rail, where it remains until sundown, when it is taken down on the berth-deck again and made ready for occupation. Immediately after the hammocks are stowed the sailors get a pint of coffee and then turn to to "holystone" and wash down decks or, if it is Monday, the sailors are first piped to "wash clothes," and lines may be seen running fore and aft, filled with cleanly washed white and blue clothes, or scrubbed white hammocks. At "seven bells" (7:30 o'clock) the sailors are piped to breakfast, and those, who are to go on watch at "eight bells" (eight o'clock) must be ready at that hour. At eight bells the ensign is hoisted at the peak, and "The Star-Spangled Banner" is played by the band, if on a flag-ship, or drum and fife on others than flag-ships. At the same time the boatswain's whistle is heard, followed by the bellowing: "All the watch; hold the reel; pump ship, and relieve the wheel." After breakfast the watch is employed in cleaning the brass-work and the guns, coiling ropes, and generally making the ship clean.

The officers not on watch do not generally rise until eight o'clock, and then, after making their toilet, sit down to a cup of coffee and toast or fruit. At "two bells" (nine o'clock) the "assembly" is beat, and for the next two hours the crew are drilled at great guns or in the small arm, or sword manual. At "six bells" (eleven o'clock), the officers have breakfast, a substantial meal. From this time until "four bells" in the evening (six o'clock), the officers not on watch may occupy their leisure as they see fit. They may generally be found poring over their books or working out some problem, when at sea, to avoid being rusty for their next examination. If in port they may stroll on on shore. At "two bells" (six o'clock), is the officers' dinner hour, and an hour afterward they drill the sailors in seamanship, making, reefing, furling, bending, or unbending sails, in boat exercise, or target practice.

Rank and rank etiquette are strictly enforced on board ship. None but the line and staff officers are permitted to walk on the quarter-deck—the officer of the deck having the starboard side and the others the port side, when in harbor, and when at sea the officer of the deck taking the windward, and the others the leeward side. The Captain enjoys the exclusive use of the starboard side of the poop deck, and the other commissioned officers the port side. Forward of the mainmast all the officers have the exclusive right of way on the starboard or the windward side of the deck, while the sailors must keep on the opposite side. In leaving or coming on board ship the same regulation is observed—the line and staff use the starboard companionway, while the warrant officers and crew use the port ladder. Commissioned officers are received on board with the boatswain's pipe as a salute.

The Captain messes alone in the cabin, having his own steward, cook and waiter, and unless he invites some of the officers to dine with him at times (as often happens) he lives in this monotonous way. The line and staff officers, above the grade of ensign, constitute the "wardroom mess," and live in the main saloon of the vessel. The midshipmen and ensigns and other officers of assimilated rank form the "steerage mess," and the warrant officers mess by themselves. The mess expenses of the wardroom will range from thirty to forty-five dollars a month, according to the station; those of the other messes about twenty-five to thirty dollars a month.

